OF

LITTLE TALES.

How pleasant seems the Gard'ner's life,
The trees he cuts with pruning knife ;
Now gathers all the fruits so sweet,
And then the garden decks so neat.
Should winter come, and turn out wet,
They but a scanty living get ;
Sweet summer here, he works away ;
And, with the birds, sings all the day.

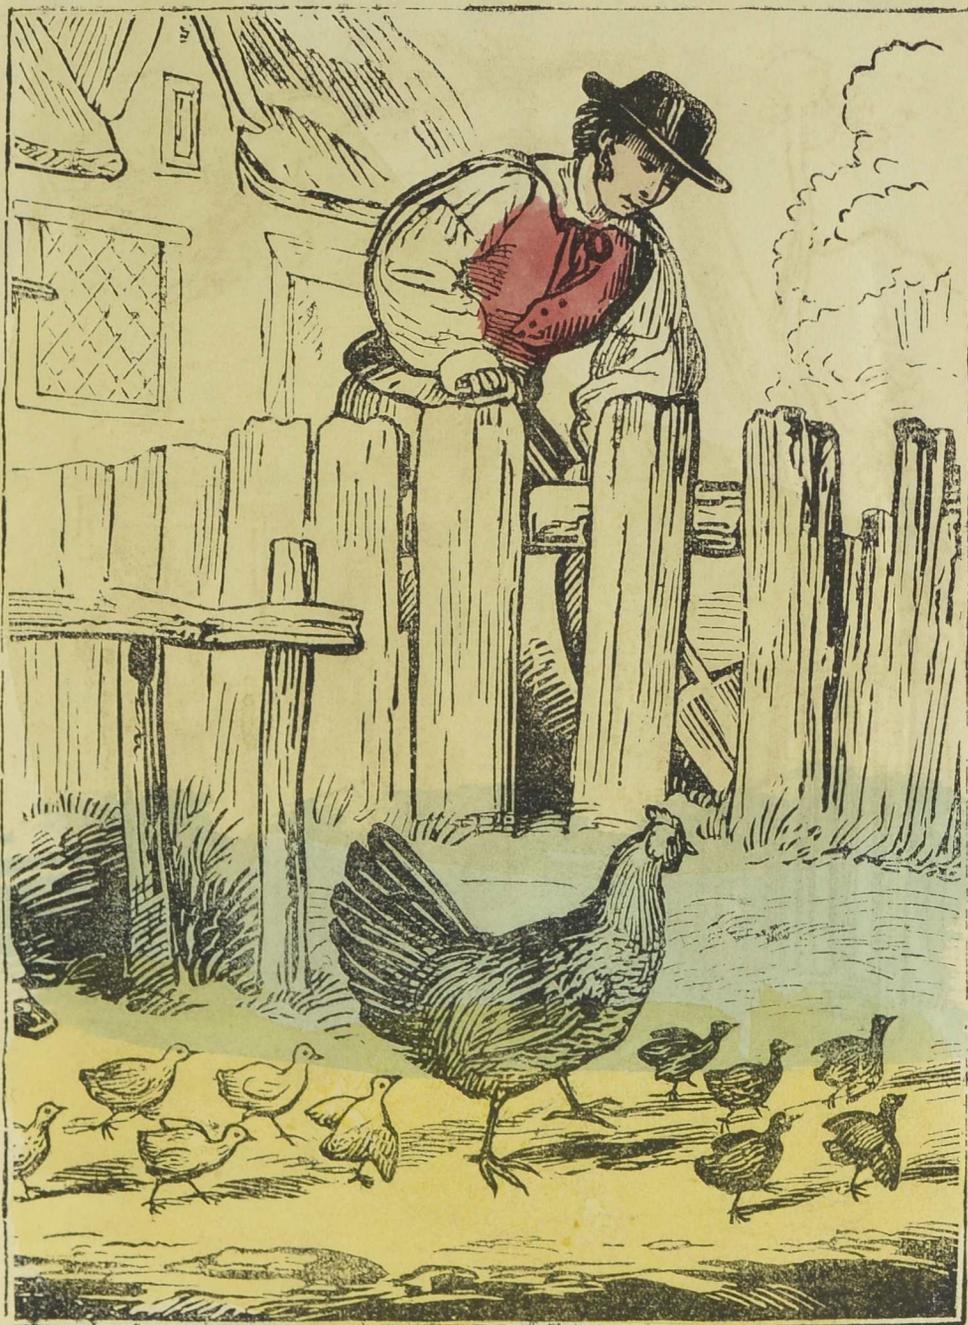

Faint, illegible text, likely bleed-through from the reverse side of the page. The text is arranged in several lines and is too light to read accurately.

Here are roots for your garden,
Pinks, tulips, and roses ;
In May they will make you
Some sweet pretty posies.

Come buy them, and try them,
Nor let it be said
That nothing but weeds grow
In your flower bed.

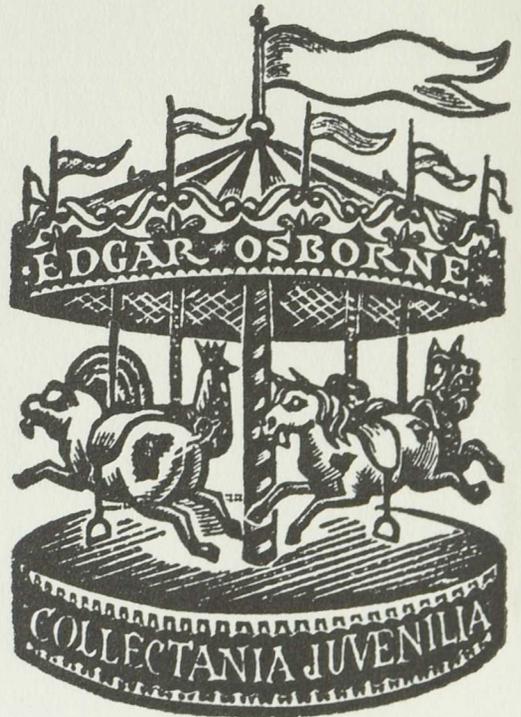

With spade the Gardener digs his land,
The useful seed he sows,
Of Beans, and Peas, and other things,
All neatly laid in rows.

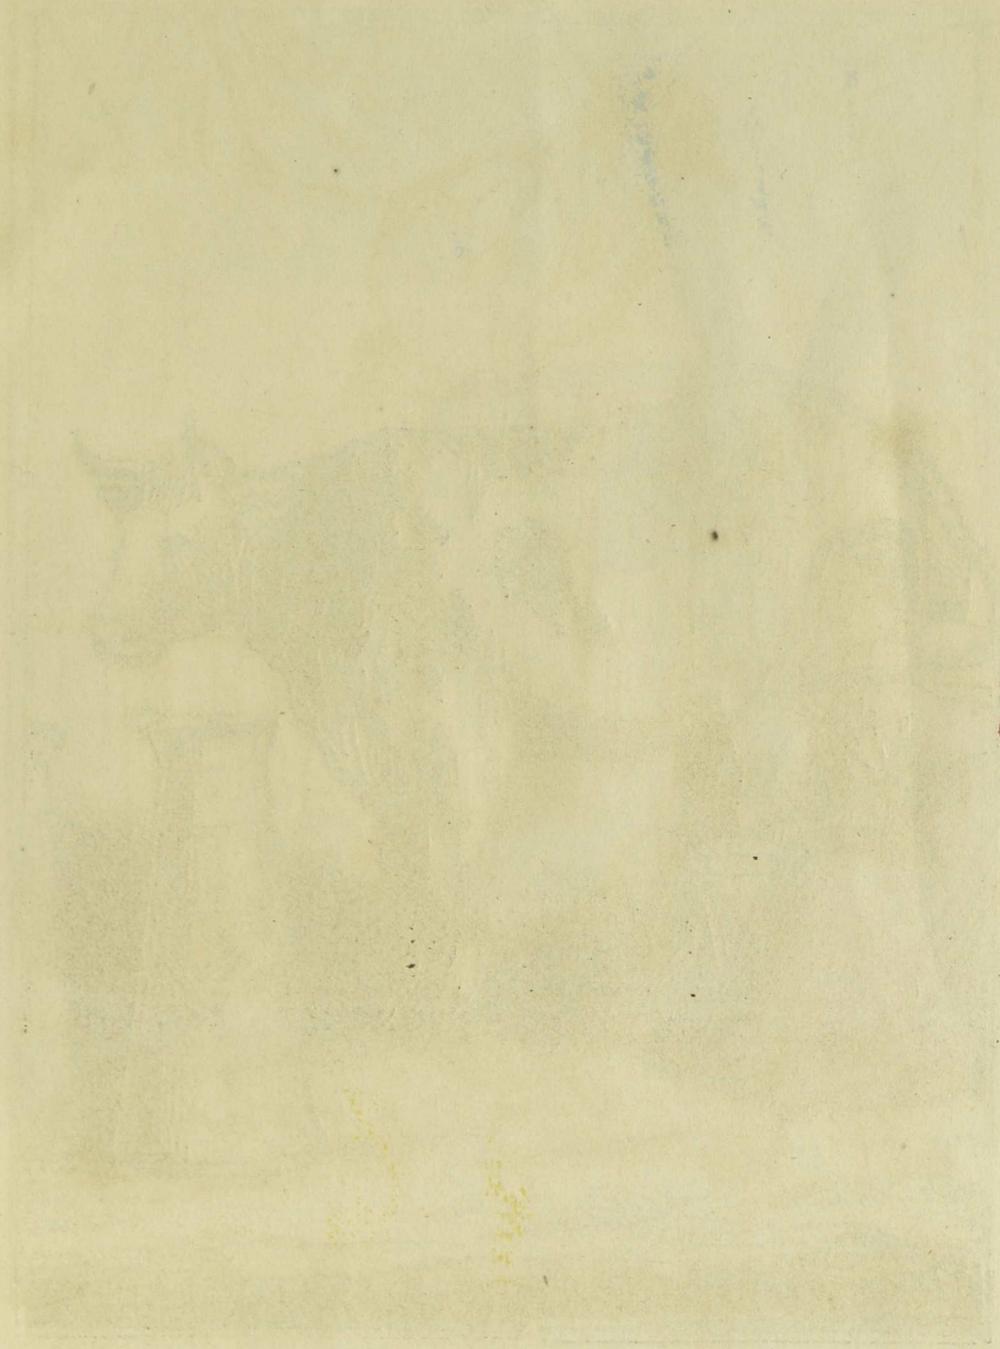

The Hen is watching with her brood
To find some seeds or worm,
And calling all her little chicks,
She feeds each one in turn.

Faint, illegible text visible at the bottom of the page, likely bleed-through from the reverse side. The text is too light to read accurately but appears to be organized into several lines.

In summer time, in meadow green,
The milkmaid milks the cows ;
In winter, when the days are cold,
She milks them in the house.

The cow a useful creature is,
She gives us milk so sweet,
And cream, from which we butter make,
And nice new cheese to eat.

This man has just brought to the top of the hill
A large sack of corn to be ground at the mill ;
The sails go round fast, and in less than an hour
This large sack of corn will be turned into flour.
Then back to the farmer this flour will go,
And soon will be made by his wife into dough ;
And when it is baked, Tom, William, and Ned,
Will each have at supper a piece of the bread.
