The tongs stood in the room where Mary oft staid,

And the lantern gave light to the hall where she play'd.

The table was placed in the corner quite snug,

And the milk for her breakfast was put in the jug.

Most little boys
and girls love to see the soldiers
exercise, and so does little Mary.

This is the park
that little Mary,
one day, passed
through, where she first saw the deer.

A Robin.

Published Dec 7 1800 by J Marshall N<sup>o</sup> 4 Aldermany Church Yard London

Little Mary was eating her breakfast when she saw a robin-red-breast standing on a rail, at a little distance; she gathered up the crumbs as fast as she could, and threw them out of the window upon the gravel-walk. As soon as the bird observed the bread, he jumped down off the rail, and began picking up the crumbs: but Mary, eager to shew her love to her little visitor, threw out more crumbs, which frightened it away.

The flag is hoisted on the fort. It is an holiday. If little Mary takes a walk to the camp, she will see much bustle there.
