The cat and the dog are oft at war. Ned sat on my lap to eat his pie. The cat is run up the elm or the ash. The cat bit the rat, and the dog bit the cat. You may pat the dog, and let him run. A fox got my old hen, and ate her all up. An old man had in his box a bag of tow. For him who is bad a rod may be had.

Love
to do well.

Hate
evil.

Jack Hall was a good boy. He went to school, and took pains to learn as he ought. When he was in school he kept to his books, till all his tasks were done, and then when he came out he would play with a good will, for he knew that he had time.

You should be a good
child.

God is angry
with a
bad
child.

These boys, you see, are at play at ball, and, as all good boys ought to do, they have learnt well their tasks before coming out to play. When you go out to play at ball you should not go near any windows, or you may break them, and that would take all your money.

Come
and
trundle
the hoop.

Four
boys
are
at play.

Now
for a
merry
show-
man.
ha! ha!

This
seems
a
great
fool.

When you play at blind man's buff, you should not come near a fire, but go out in the open fields, where you need fear no harm. It is a very funny game and will give you much sport. When you have done playing, go straight home, as your mamma may want you for some errand.

boy.

Learn
well.

Swing
Swang
Swung.

Yes, here are Kate and I and Lizzie, with little Bob and Peg, come out to have a fine long tug at the swing. I am only a little boy, yet I often think how much better it is to agree in play than to pout and sulk and say bad words.

Now Lizzie
I am off
over the hill
with my hoop.

As soon as I have learnt
my task, my papa says I
may go and

play where I please, so that I do no harm. So I and some of my school-mates have each made a bow and arrow, and we meet once a week to try which is the best hand at hitting the bull's eye with our arrows. Be careful when you shoot.

Skip
and
jump.
Mind
not to fall.

Hop
scotch
which
of you
can
beat?
