THE GOOD NATURED SHEPHERD.

THIS Shepherd is known every where for his mildness and good behaviour; if he knows any poor person is in want, he will even share his rustic meal with them, or go round his field picking blackberries for them to make a pie with, and is sure not to give a poor person the berries without a sufficient quantity of flower. He seems always happy, his garden flourishes, his fortune increases--- he is respected and loved by the whole village; and if he has any thing the matter with him, they will run in every direction to assist him. This is the consequence of being a good boy.

THE ENRAGED COW.

Two bad boys were coming through this field the other day and began to set their dogs upon the poor Cow, till it was so much enraged that it ran towards them and tossed one of them into the river--- Miss Prettyman, who happened to see this from her Father's House, called for assistance, and with great difficulty he was saved from a watery grave. What a pity it is these boys don't follow the example of Miss Prettyman, who is gay, affable, polite and sensible; if she is speaking to a poor person, she knows she has no reason to be proud; and if she speaks to a rich one, she is respectful---in short, she delights in being called a lady and a good girl.

THE IDLER.

JOE SLEEPYHEAD is a dull child, instead of improving himself, and endeavouring to learn more than his school fellows, he saunters to some meadow, or lays gasping in the sun, as insensible as possible of his being sent into this world for the purpose of serving God and doing good for his neighbours. He never thinks of any thing but playing, eating, drinking, and sleeping, he rises in the morning, never washes himself, nor does he think of making himself look respectable. He often gets into trouble; and the other day being inclined to tease a Dog, it flew upon him, and would have torn him to pieces but for an old Soldier who was passing by and saved him. A boy like Joe is despicable.

Sing a Song of Sorrow

 A pocket full of sorrow
 Four and twenty blackbirds
 Baked in a pie
 When the pie was opened
 The birds began to sing
 Was not that a pretty thing
 To see before the King?

The boy was in the parrot
 Counting out his money
 The queen was in the kitchen Making bread and honey
 The maid was in the garden
 Laying out the cloths
 There came a little blackbird
 And sang it out of nose.

To set before the King ?
