A is for Amy; pray look at her doll, Which is dress'd in pink muslin, and call'd little Poll.

B is for Brian; I'm sorry to say He took a young bird from its warm nest one day.

C is for Caroline, graceful and tall, With her fan and her bouquet,—just dress'd for the ball.

D is for David, the dunce of the school,
Who wears the fool's cap while he stands on a stool.

E is for Emma, who left her dull room

To pluck the bright roses when they were in bloom.

F is for Frank, who a sailor would be,

So in new hat and jacket he goes off to sea.

G is for Gertrude, industrious and wise,

Who helps sister Ann to make puddings and pies.

H is for Harry so kind and so good, Who took little Jane to pull buds in the wood.

I is for Isabel, learning to ride,

J is for Johnny, who walk'd by her side.

K is for Kate, who is trying, you see,

To catch the young parrot she chanced to set free.

L is for Lewis, who went to the fair,
And scream'd like a coward at sight of the bear.

M is for Minna, who gives her dog
Gyp

A bowl of rich cream for the beauty to sip.

N is for Noel, who ended his task,
To amuse his young cousins by wearing a mask.

O for Olivia, a good little maid,
Who worked very hard her poor parents to aid.

P is for Patrick, the wild Irish boy, Whose blunders and fun all the schoolboys enjoy.

Q is for Quashee, a poor little slave,

Whom kind-hearted children would pity and save.

R is for Richard, both gentle and good,

Who gave his last penny to poor Bessy Wood.

S is for Susan, who sat on the ground,

To watch her tame sparrow that hopped round and round.

T is for Thomas, a spoiled little boy, Who cried for the Moon as he would for a toy.

V is for Vincent, with trumpet and gun,

Who thinks a great battle is capital fun.

W for Winny, who pities the poor,
And leads the blind boy to his own cottage-door.

X for Ximena, a young girl of Spain,

Whose sweet songs we ask for again and again.

Y for You all, and I hope you may see,

When we all meet next Christmas, this grand Christmas tree.

Z is for Zoe, with sweet smiling look,

Who bids you good bye as you're closing the book.
