Feeding-time for the Polar Bears. They are very fond of fish.

The lovely, rose-coloured Flamingoes.

The Kangaroo, with its strong hind-legs
and thick tail,
is a marvellous
jumper.

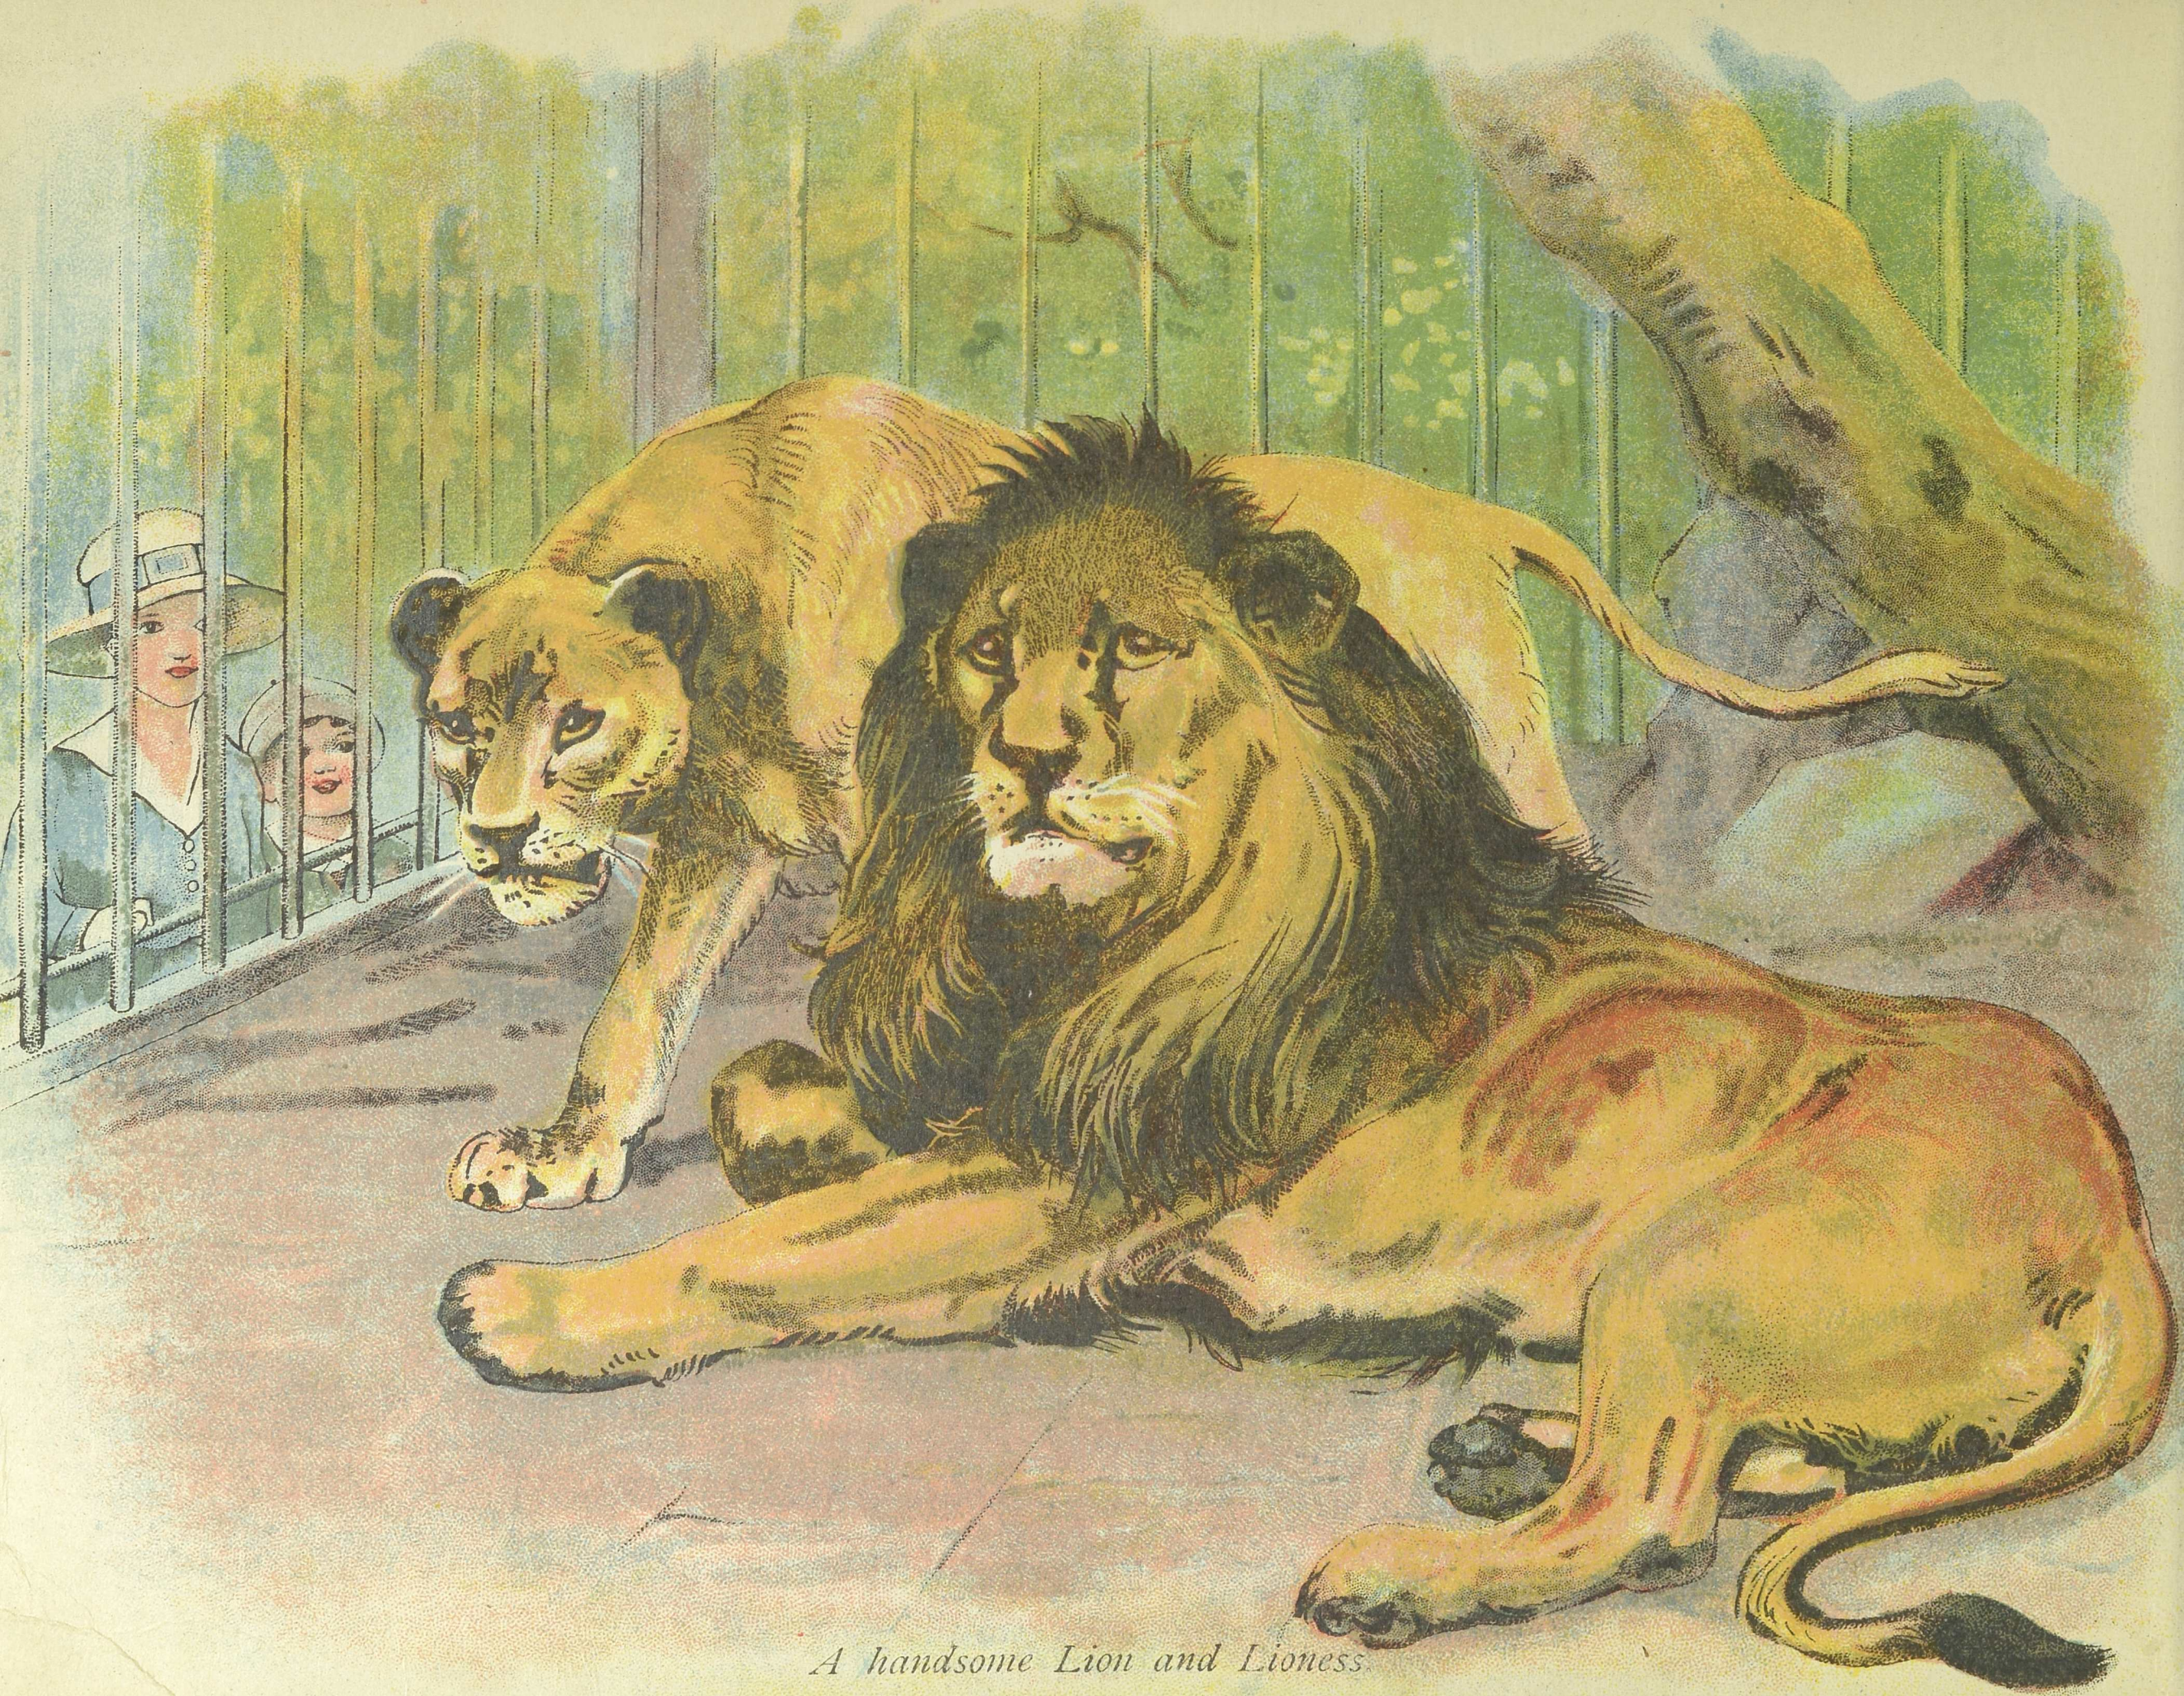

Feeding-time also for the Sea-Lions.
They dive and swim wonderfully,

and in their mouths
catch the fish that the keeper throws them.

A handsome Lion and Lioness

A She-Wolf and her four Cubs. She is very proud of her family.

From the Parrot House.

This is a peculiar-looking Ox with a hump on its back. It comes from India, and is called the Zebu.

Mountain Sheep. They can climb steep rocks with the greatest ease, and are very sure-footed.

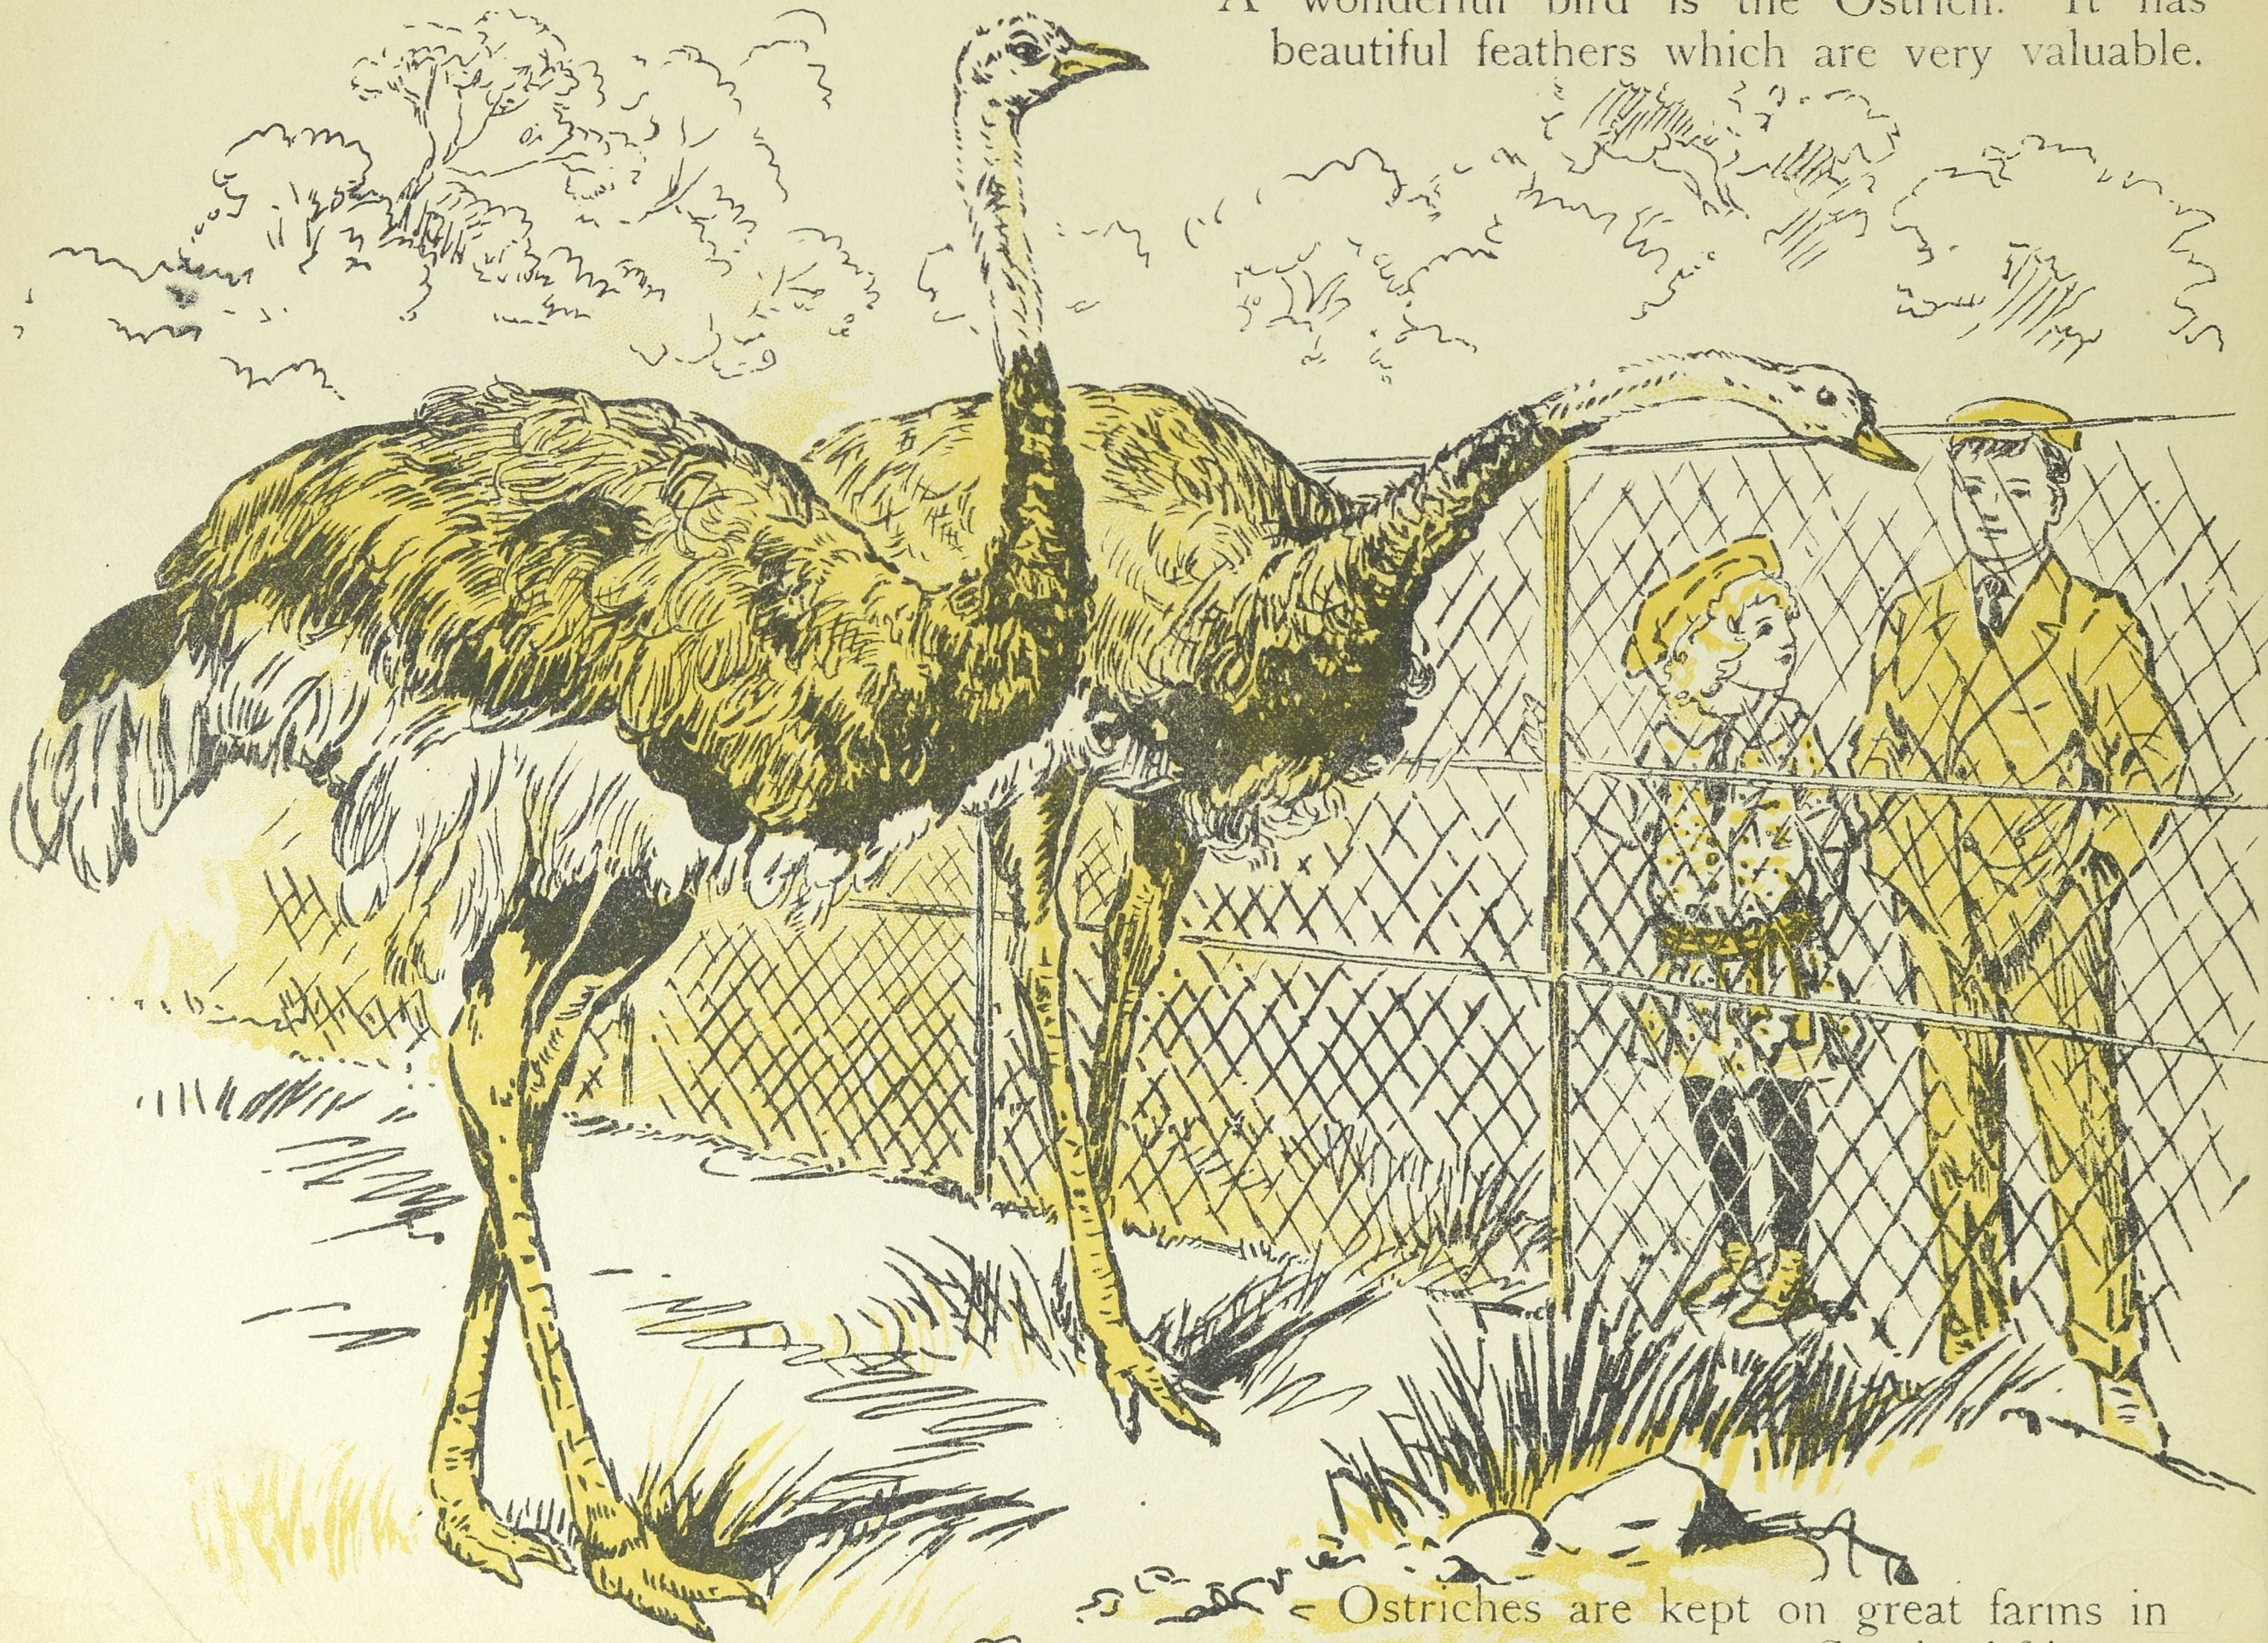

See the little grey Squirrel on the ground. 25

A visit to the Cockatoo, Parrot, and the gay Macaw.

A wonderful bird is the Ostrich. It has beautiful feathers which are very valuable.

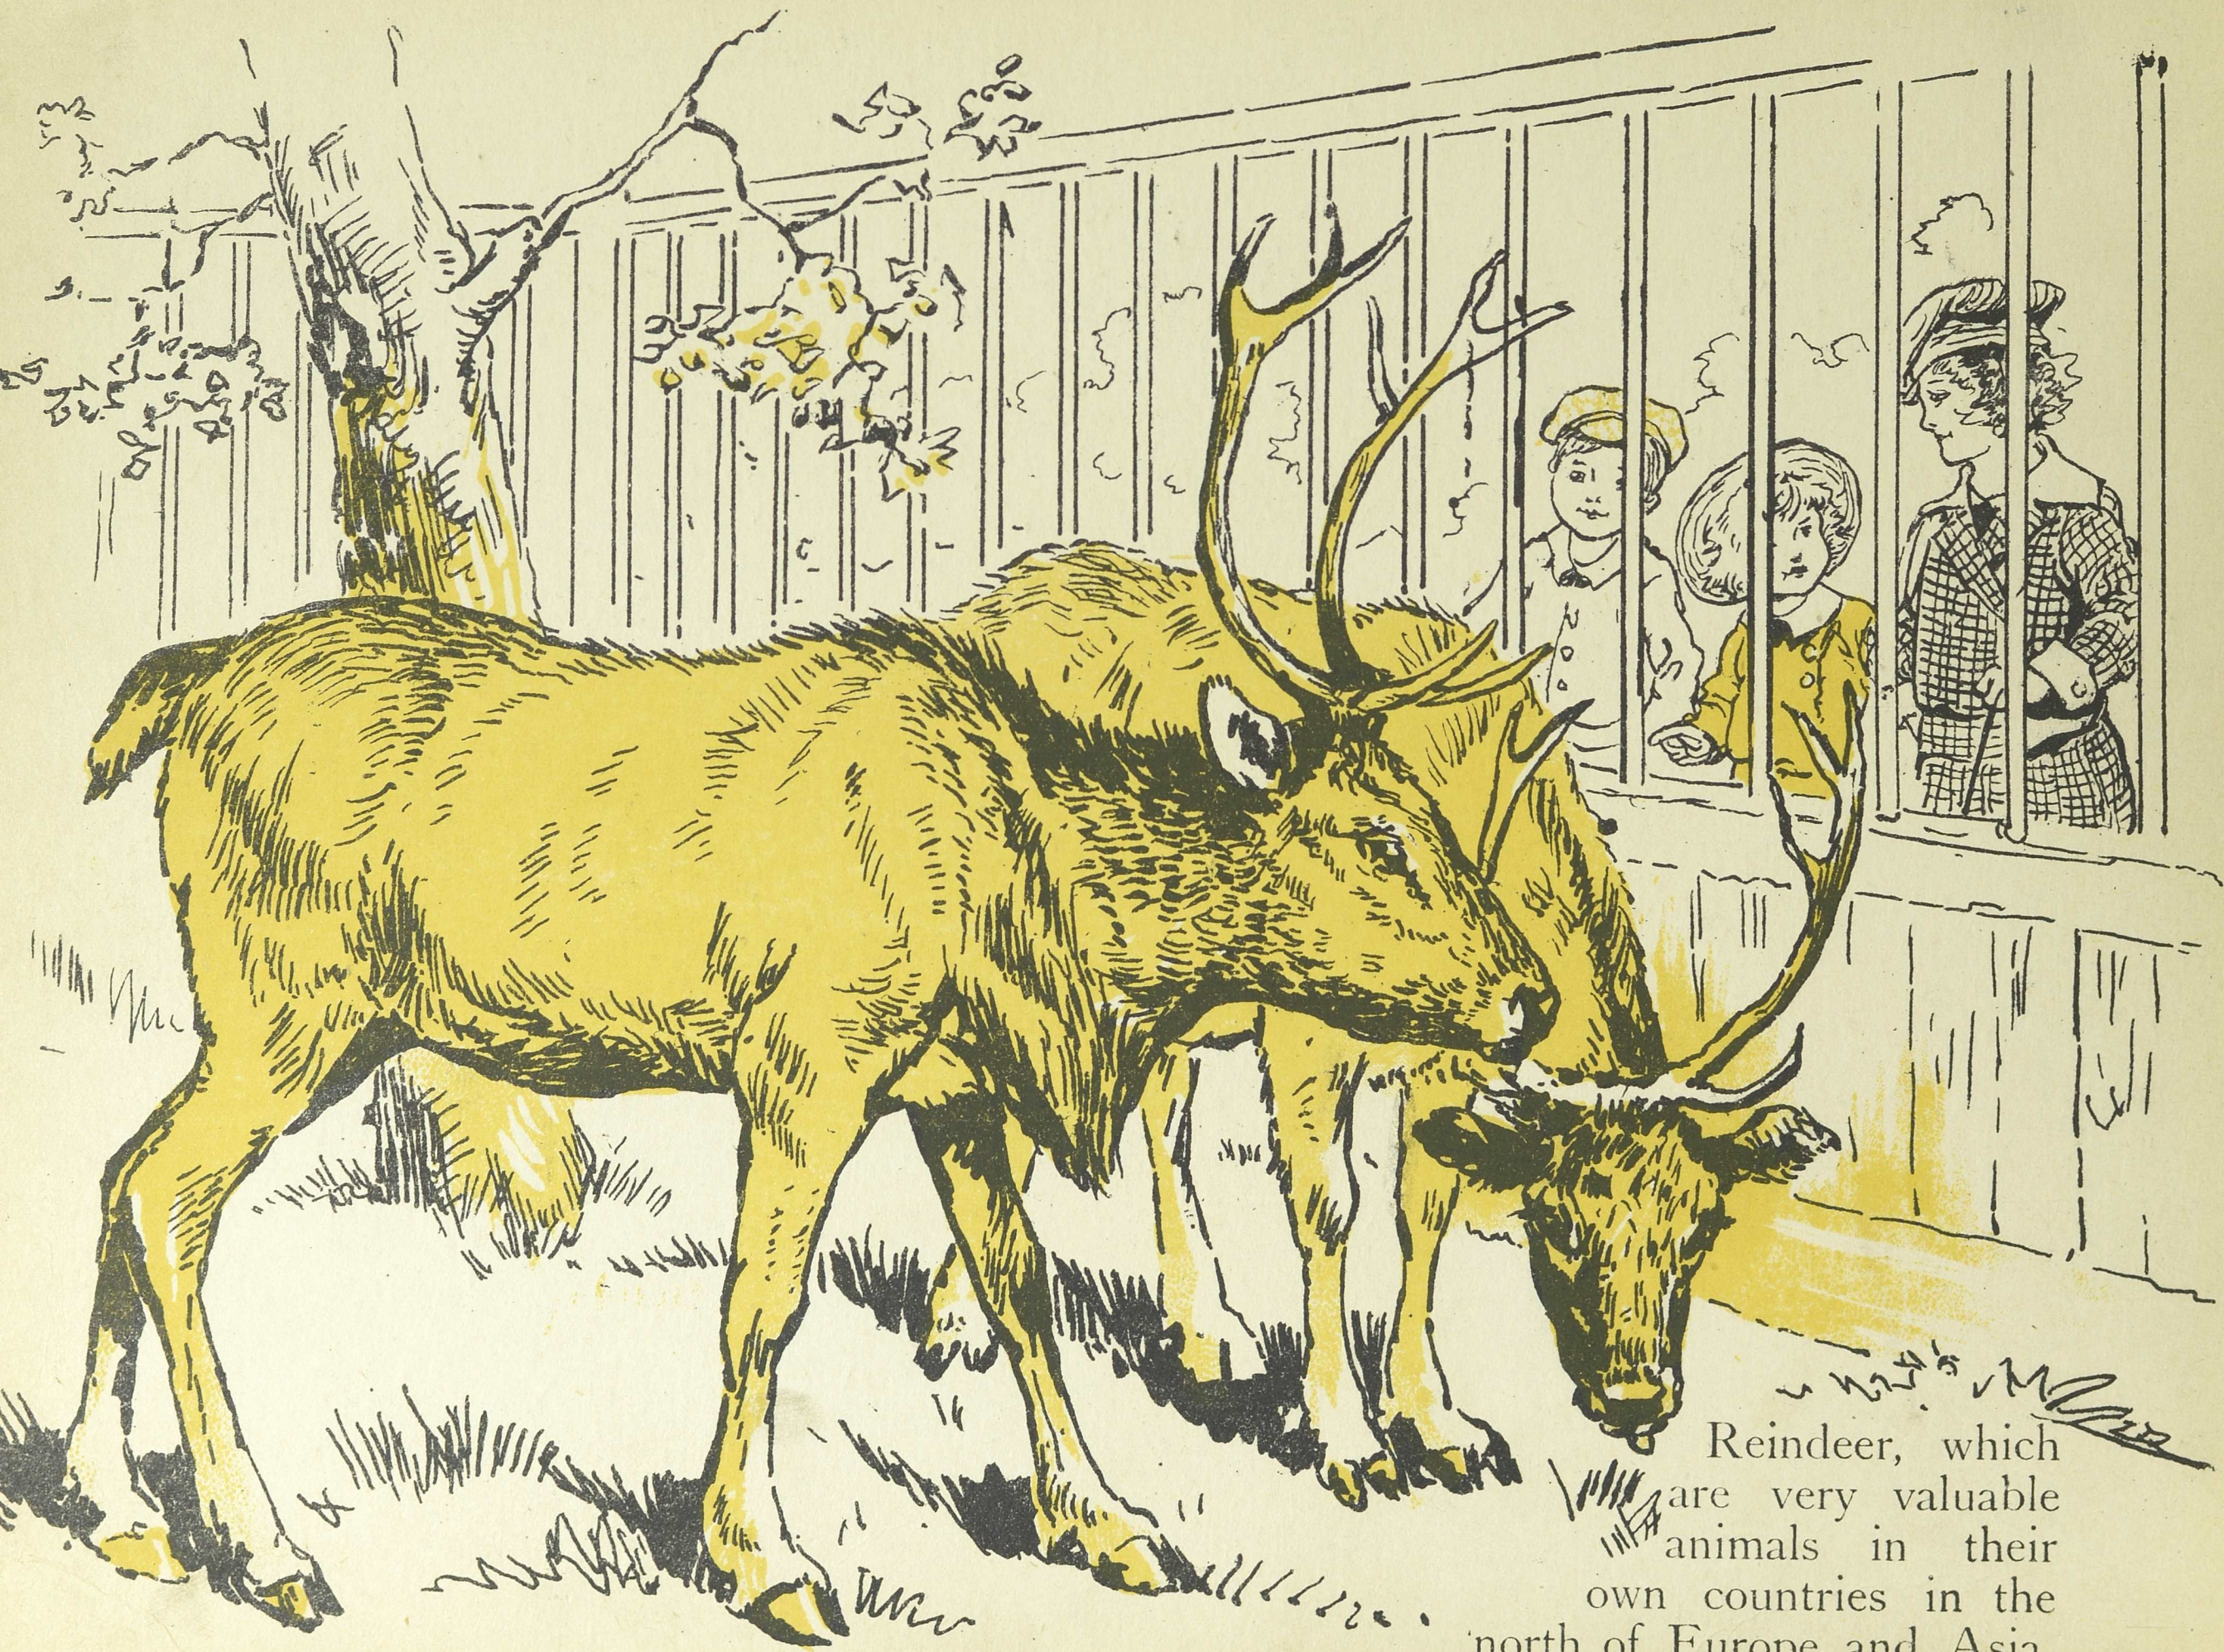

Ostriches are kept on great farms in South Africa.

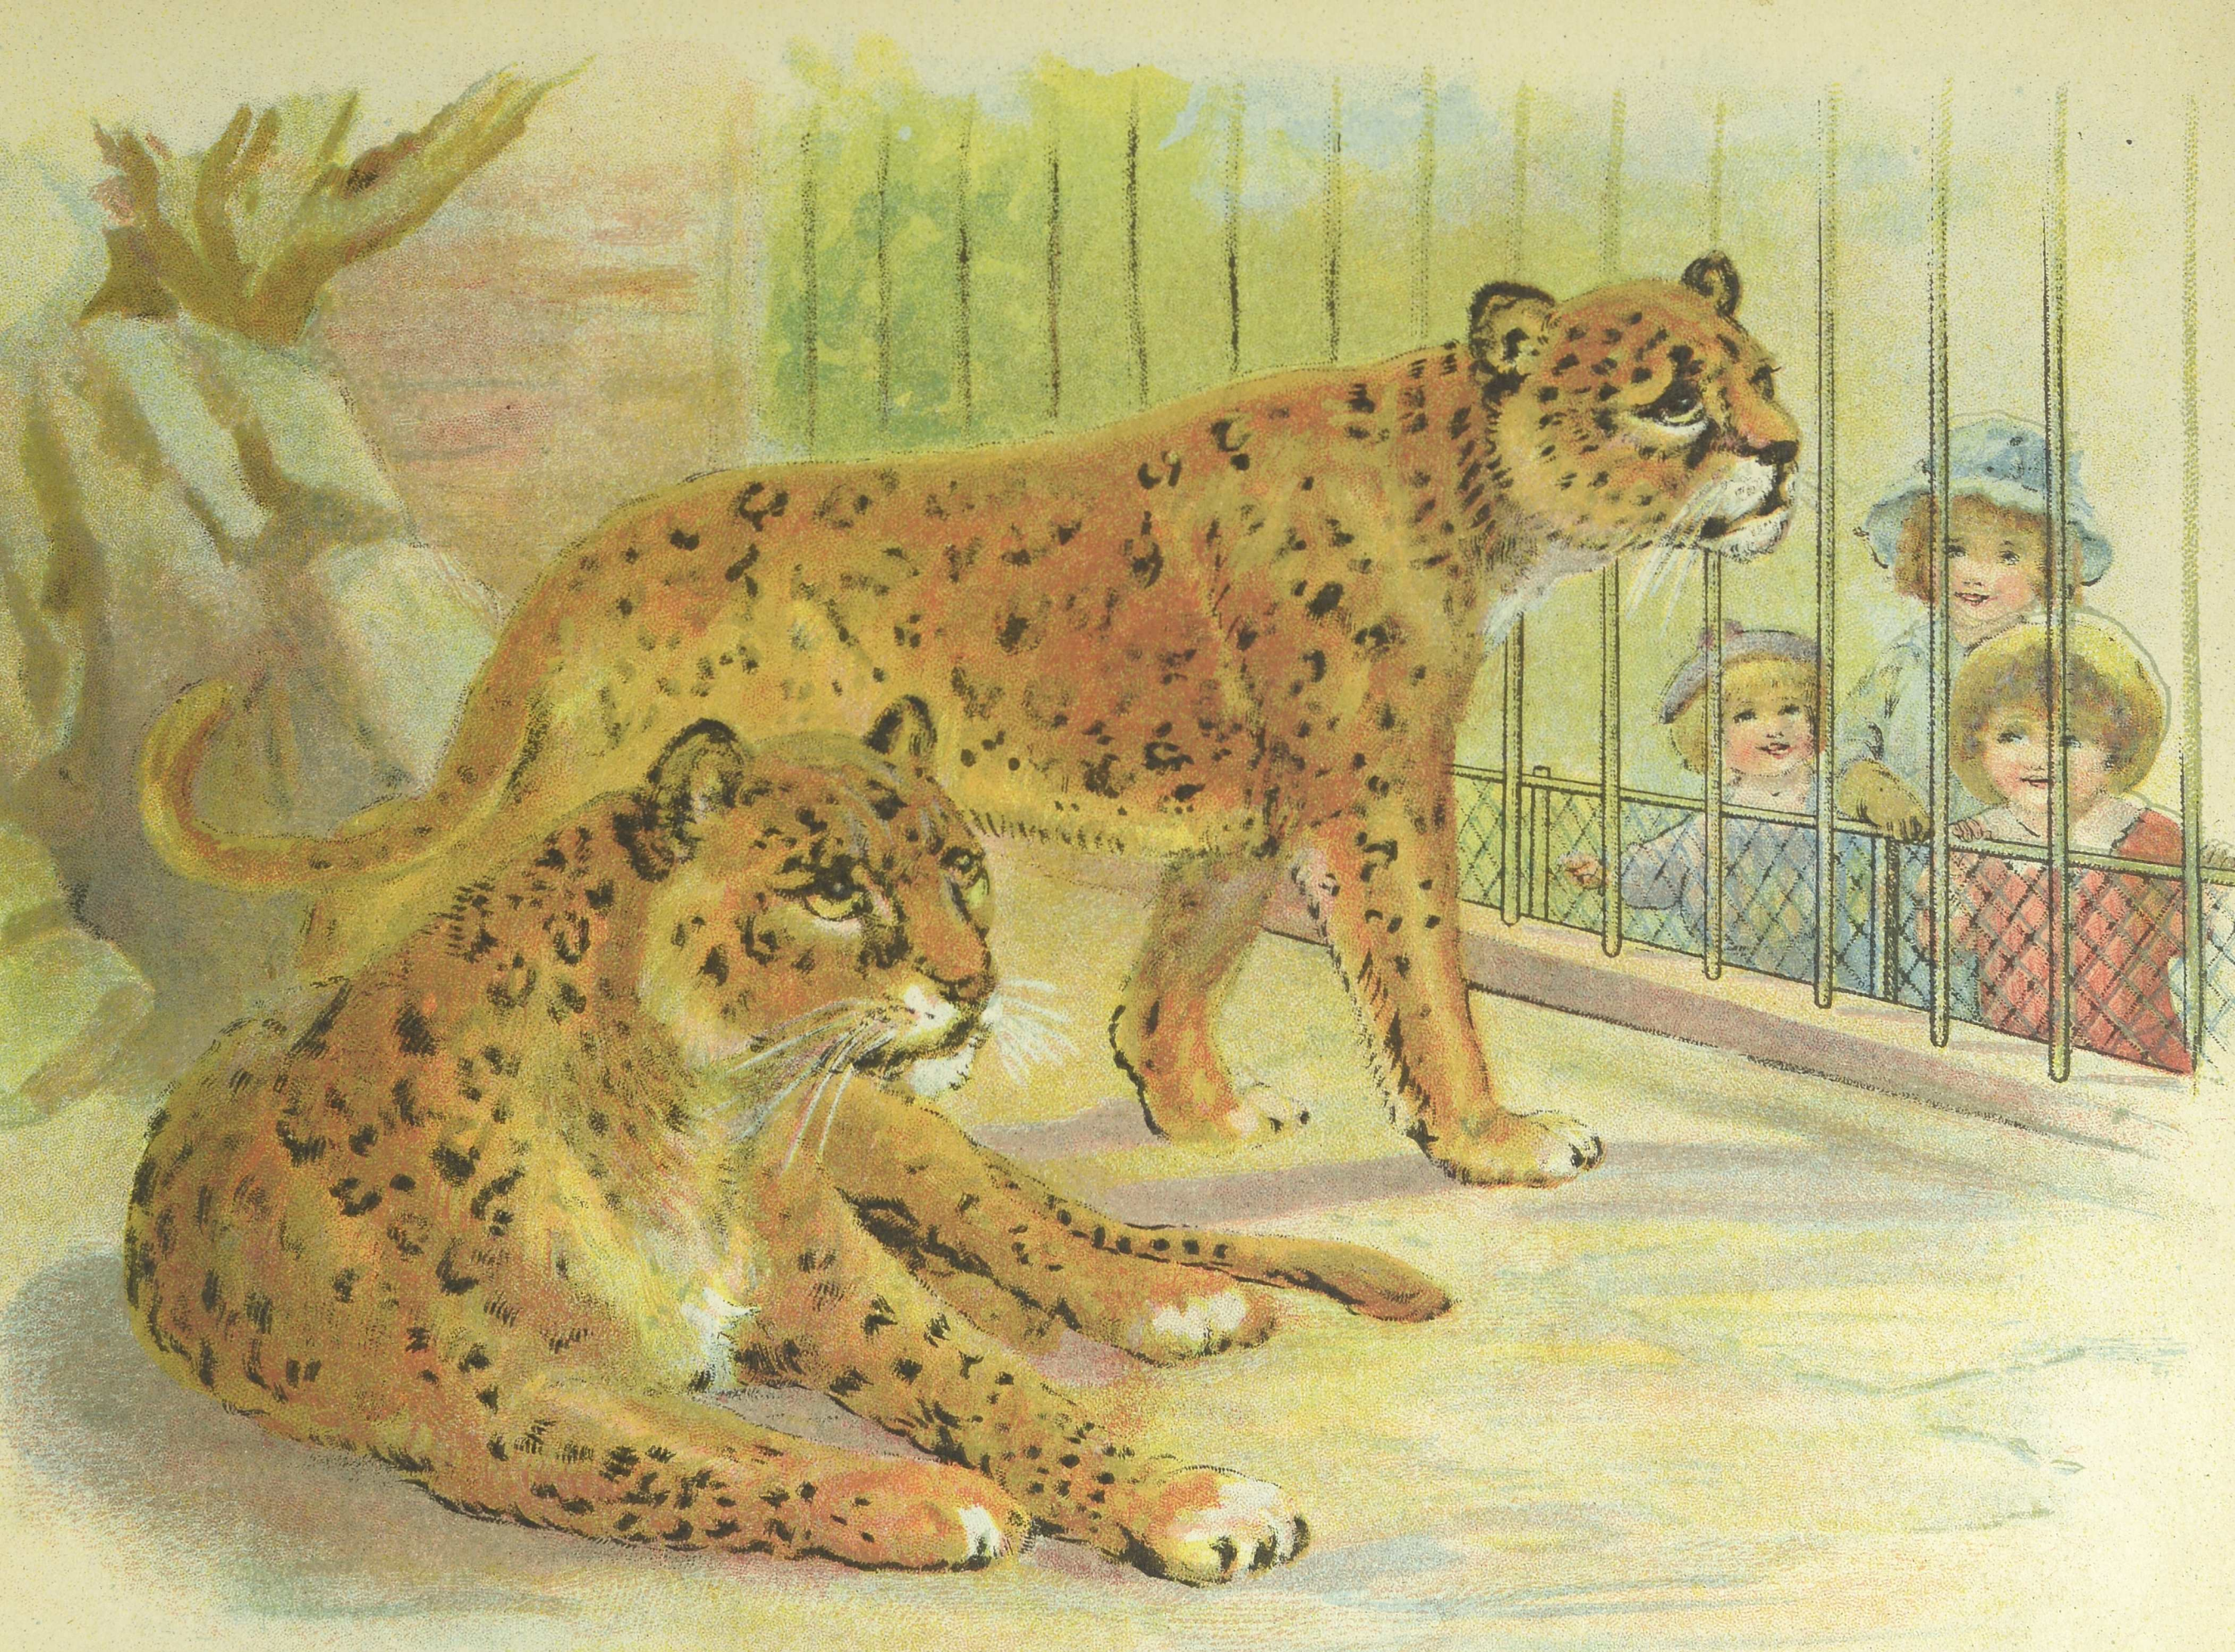

This is the Emu from Australia. Like the Ostrich, it cannot fly but it can run very fast.

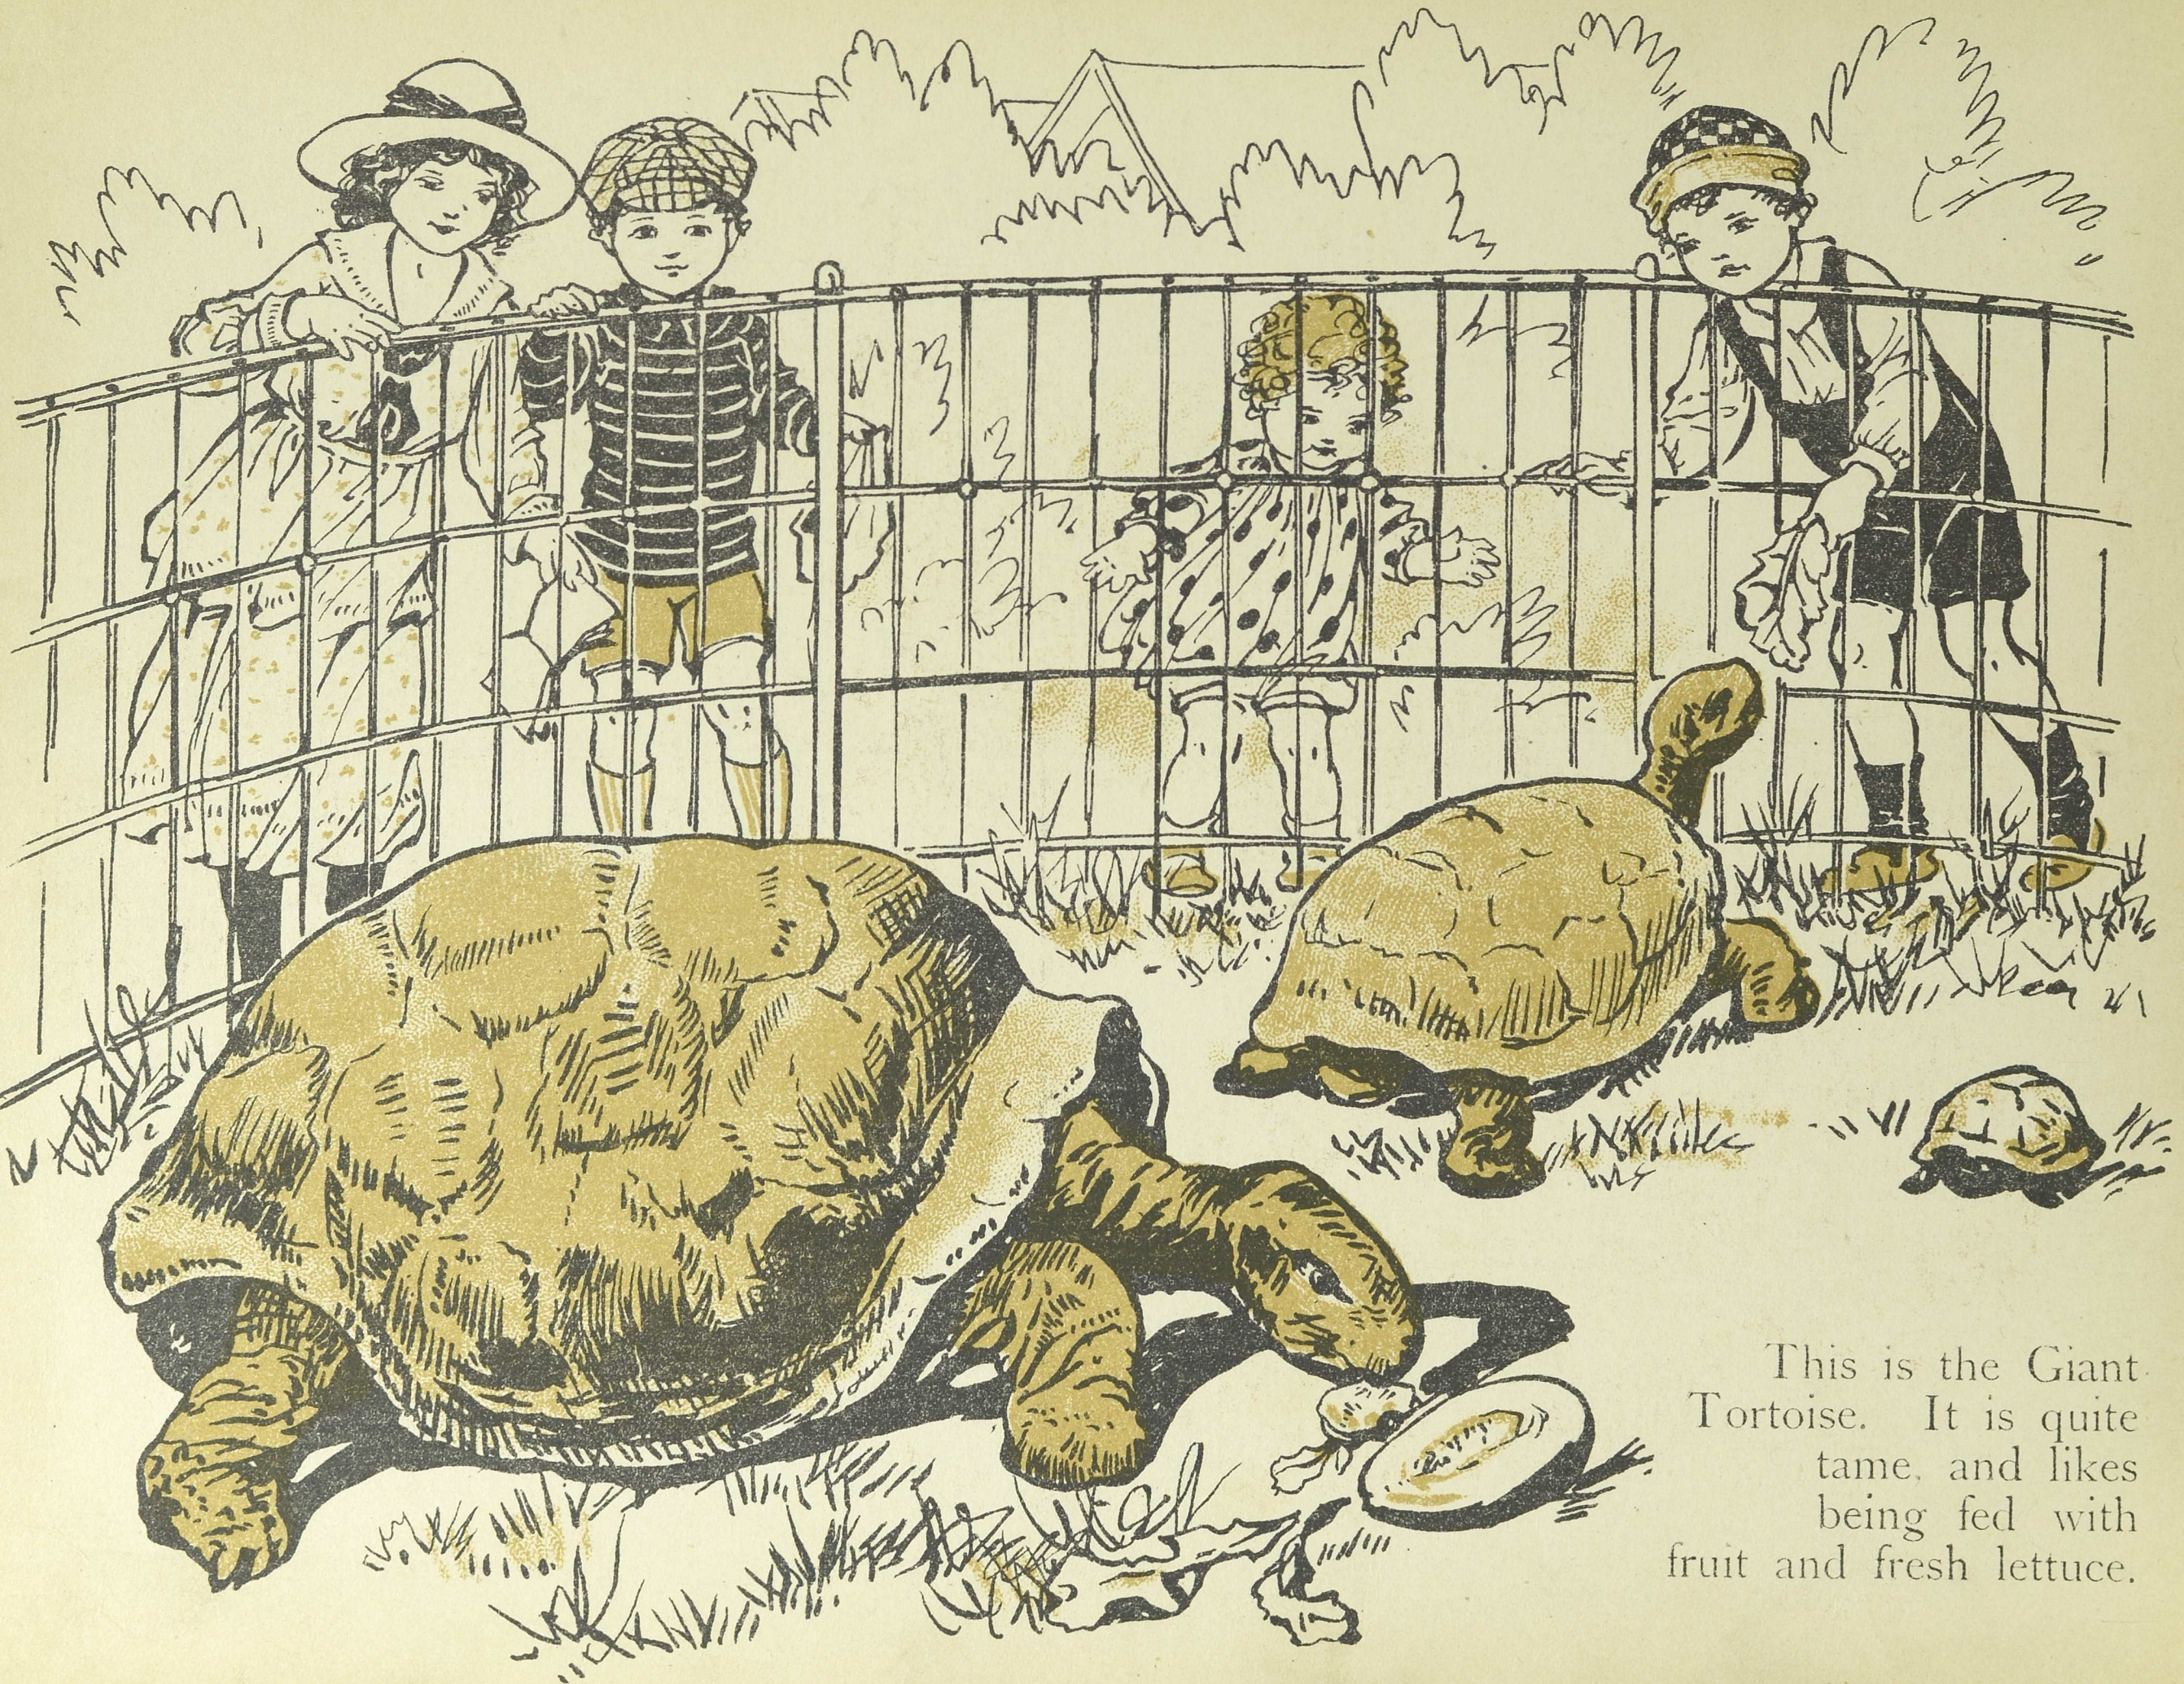

Reindeer, which are very valuable animals in their own countries in the north of Europe and Asia.

Two Leopards. They are savage animals, and never to be trusted.

This is the Giant Tortoise. It is quite tame, and likes being fed with fruit and fresh lettuce.

The Llama takes the children for a drive, and enjoys it as much as they do.

The Pelicans are strange birds. They carry their food in the pouch on their lower bill.

The Monkey House is a house full of mischief.
The children never forget to pay it a visit.

The Bears are always on the look-out for buns and sweets.

The Condor is a bird of prey, and one of the largest of flying birds. It has a habit of standing with its wings expanded.

The Hippopotamus opens its big mouth to be fed. It must take a lot of food to keep such a huge animal alive.

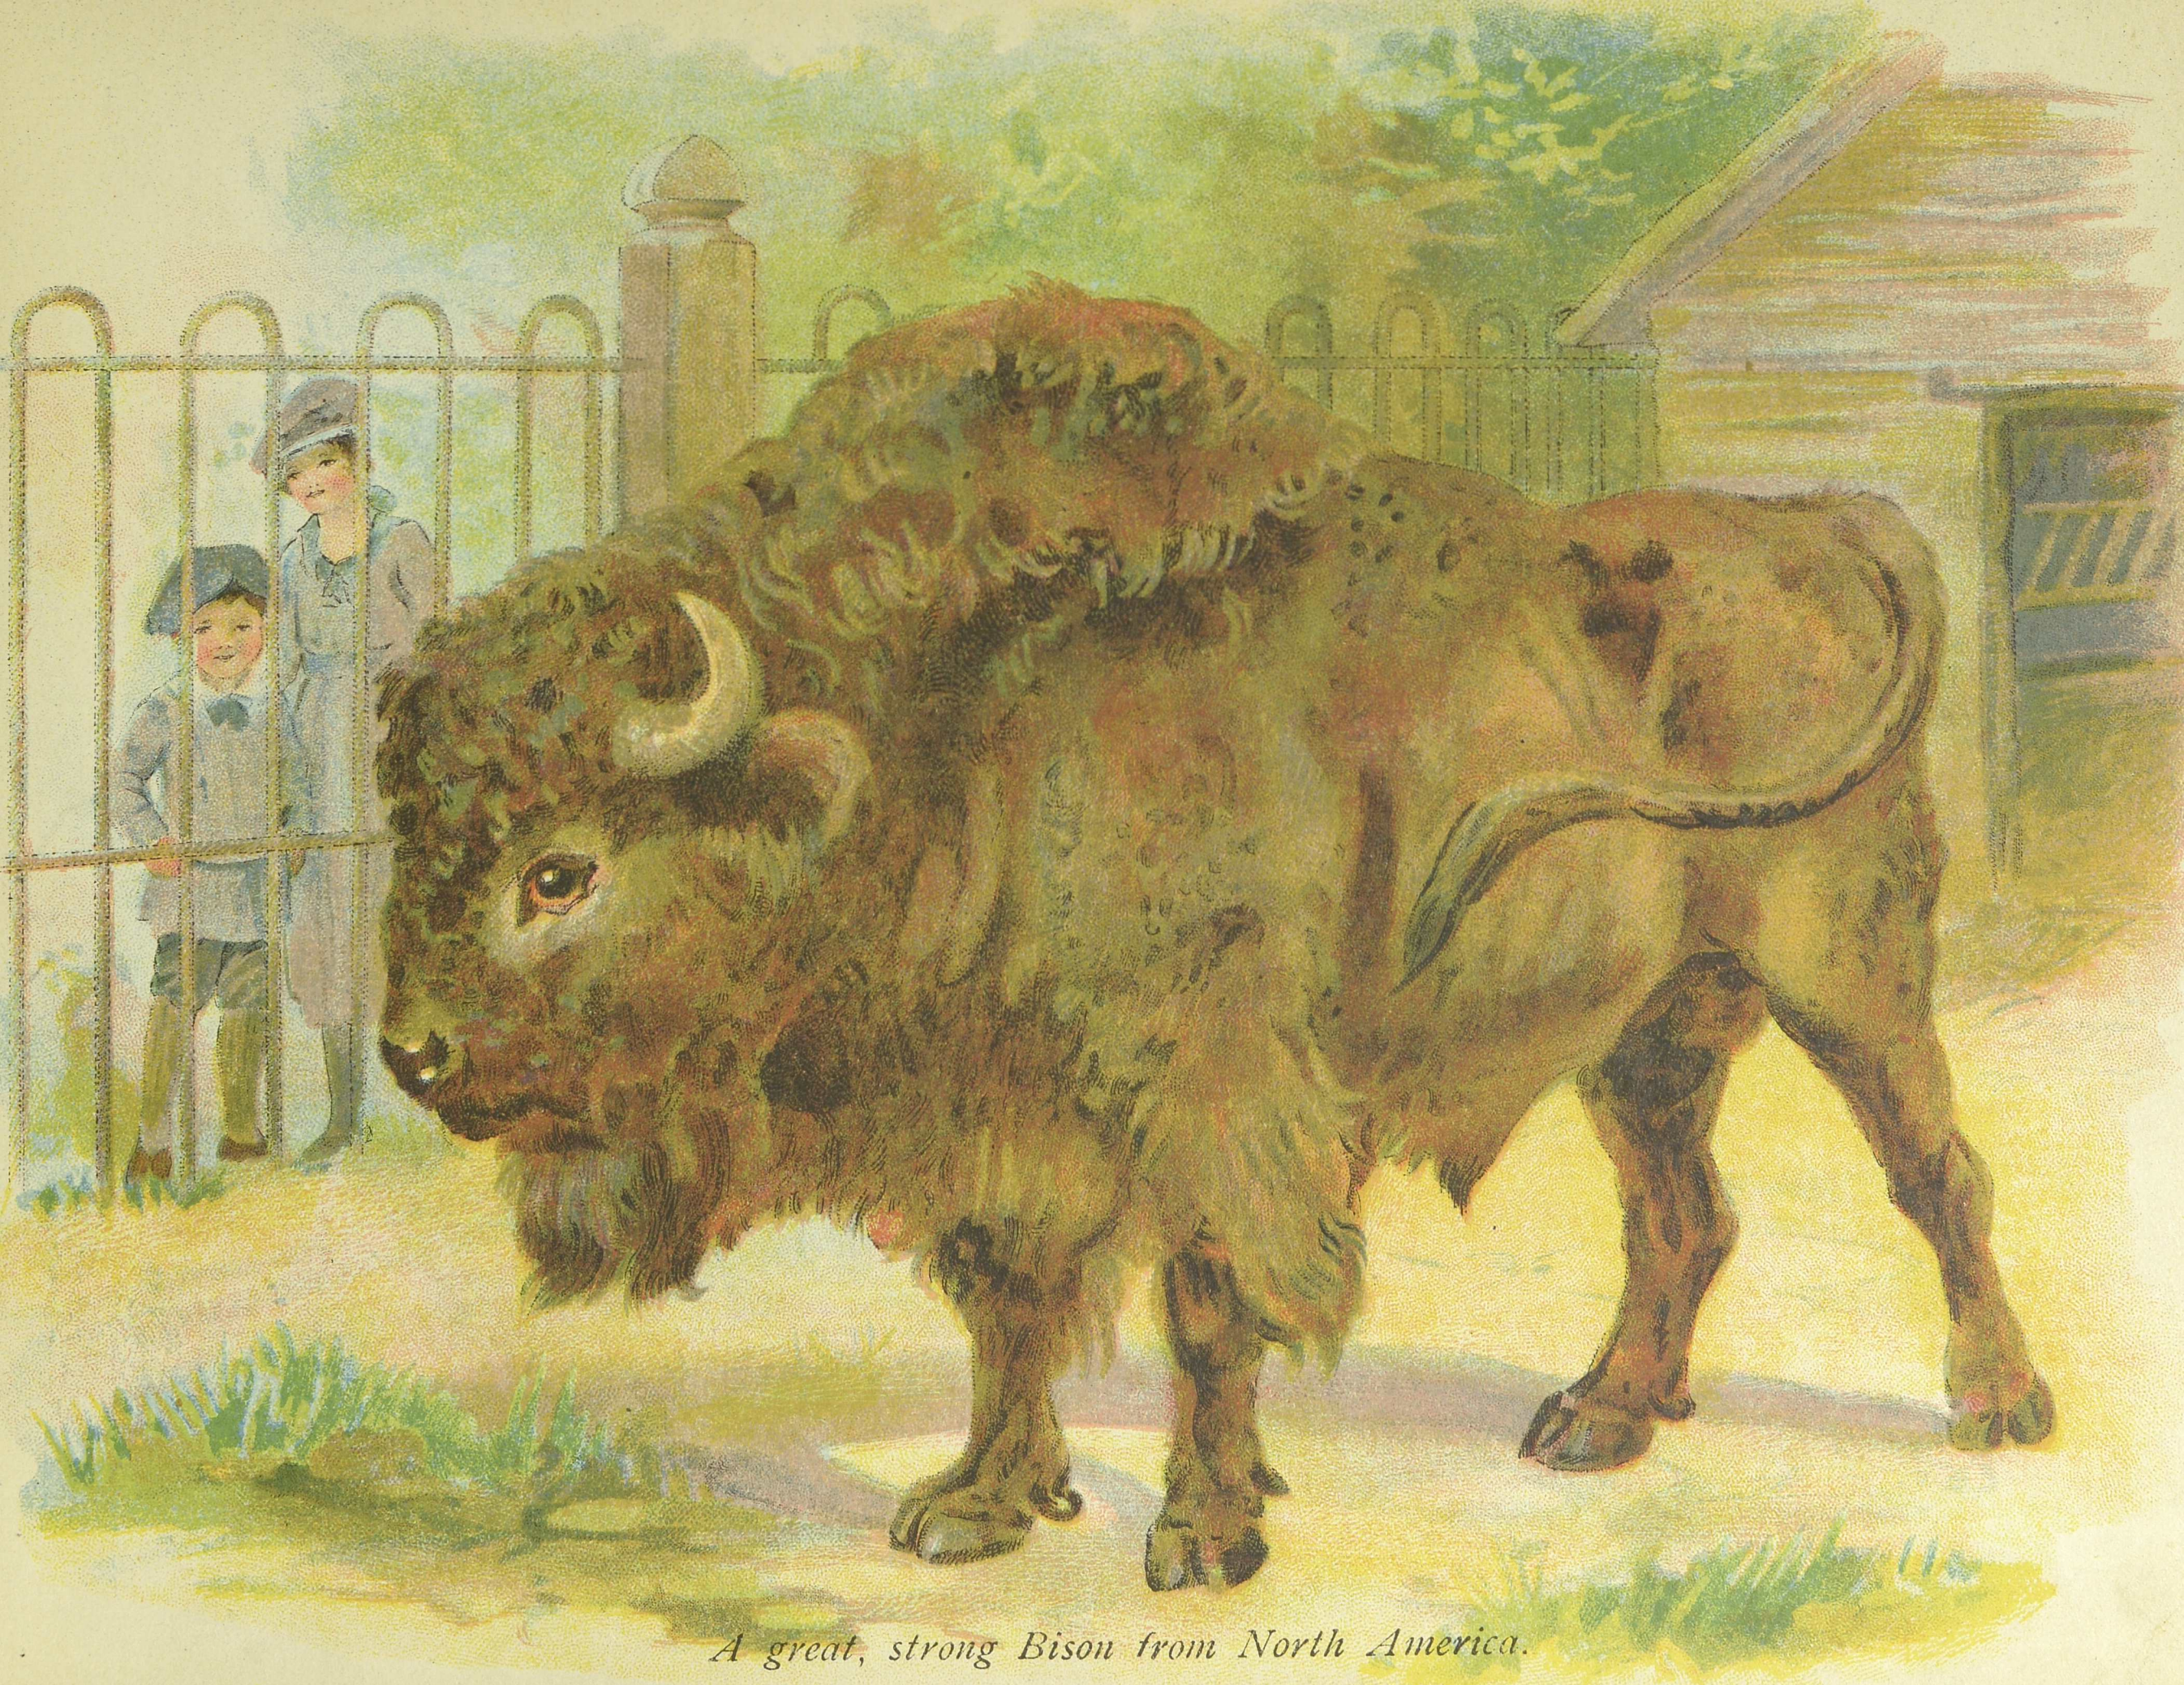

The Rhinoceros is having some fresh hay for its dinner. It is surprising how fast it can run with its rather short legs.

Two wise-looking Owls. Owls generally sleep in the day and are wide-awake at night, when they come out to feed.

A great, strong Bison from North America.

Penguins are funny-looking birds. They are clumsy walkers, but swim well and fast, using their wings as paddles.

In the Reptile House you will find the ugly
'Crocodiles, with
their cruel teeth,
and hard, scaly
bodies.
