DR. WITHROW'S CATACOMBS OF ROME!

And Their Testimony Relative to Primitive Christianity.

FOURTH ENGLISH EDITION JUST ISSUED IN HANDSOME STYLE. 8VO., CLOTH.
Pp. 560, WITH 136 ILLUSTRATIONS. PRICE $2.10.

No Canadian book has ever been more favourably received in Great Britain and the United States. The following are extracts from a few of the notices of the Press:

Notices of the British Press of the Second, Third and Fourth English Editions.

"This is an elaborate and detailed account of those interesting excavations which surrounded the ancient city of Rome, graphically told and copiously illustrated. The book possesses both historical and religious interest, and will recommend itself to all who remember how much succeeding generations owe to the confessions of the first three centuries."—London Mail and Weekly Times.

"Dr. Withrow's account of the Catacombs of Rome is an exceedingly painstaking and thorough-going work."—Saturday Review.

"We recommend this handsome volume as being at all points profoundly interesting, whether to the antiquarian, the artist, the reader of church history, the controversialist, or the Christian."—London Quarterly Review.

"The scholarly readings of the inscriptions could be given by none but a student familiar with almost every page of the history of the Apostolic and Post-Apostolic Church. . . . Must supersede every other work in the English language on the Catacombs."—London News-Supplement.

"This is the best English book on the subject of the Catacombs."—Edinburgh Review.

"Puts before the reader the entire evidence with scholarly appreciation and method."—British Quarterly Review.

"This book is well worth re-publication here. It will rank high among books of its class, for scholarship and theological learning."—London Spectator.

"We are not surprised that this deeply interesting work has reached a Second Edition."—(now a Fourth.)—London Weekly Review.

"We can recommend this as a learned and scholarly work, written in a pleasing and attractive style."—London Standard.

"The interest—we had nearly said the fascination—of the book endures from the first page to the last page."—Western Methodist Magazine.

"Dr. Withrow's book contains the most exhaustive and accurate account of the Catacombs, with their Paintings and Inscriptions, and of early Christian Art and Symbolism, that we have met with. The Author has evidently thoroughly mastered both pagan and Christian archeology. For the history and martyrology of the early centuries we do not know so safe a guide. The Publishers have given us at a price surprisingly low this book handsomely brought out."—Irish Ecclesiastical Gazette.

"A rich treat awaits the reader of this book."—The Aton.

"One of the most interesting, curious, and valuable works we have met with for a long time. The book is wonderfully cheap."—Melbourne (Australia) Spectator.

American Press Opinions.

"A book of unusual completeness."—N. Y. Independent.

"A book of uncommon interest and importance."—Christian Union.

"Gives results of latest explorations at Rome."—N. Y. Tribune.

"We could linger for hours over this enchanting work."—Nashville, Tenn., Christian Advocate.

"By far the best book on the subject in the English language."—St. Louis Christian Advocate.

"Most prove an almost indispensable part of every library."—Buffalo Christian Advocate.

"The Church is under great obligations to Dr. Withrow for his gift to it of this book."—New York Christian Advocate.

"Is wonderfully interesting. Such books are worth their weight in gold to the Christian student."—Pittsburgh Methodist Recorder.

"Enchanting as a novel, and full of Christian instruction."—N. Y. Sunday-School Journal.

"The fullest, latest, and best review of facts on the Catacombs."—Evening Globe.

"A book of unique and absorbing interest."—Toronto Mail.

"A work to be classed with higher literature, and well worthy to be deeply studied, not only by Christian scholars, but by the more thoughtful part of our entire Christian people."—Methodist Quarterly Review.
