PRO-VERBS.

No gains but with pains.

He that will steal an egg will steal an ox.

Chil-dren should be mild and meek, quick to hear and slow to speak.

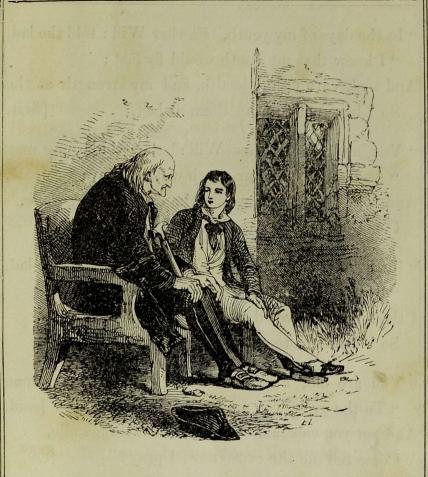

Waste not, want not.

FA-THER WILL:

"You are old, Fa-ther Will:" a young man said,
"The few hairs that are left you are grey;
You are straight, Fa-ther Will: and a strong old man,
Come tell me the cause now, I pray?"

FA-THER WILL:

- "In the days of my youth," Fa-ther Will: told the lad,
  "I knew that my youth would fly fast;
- And took care of my health, and my strength at the So I have not to want them at last." [first,
- "You are old, Fa-ther Will:" then the young man "And the joys of our youth will not stay; [said,

And yet you don't grieve for the days that are gone, Come tell me the cause now, I pray?"

- "In the days of my youth," Fa-ther Will: told the lad,
  "I knew that my youth would not last;
- I thought what would come, boy, of all that I did, So I have not to care for the past."
- "You are old, Fa-ther Will:" then the young man
  "To the grave you are far on your way; [said,
  And yet you can talk of your death with a smile,
  Come tell me the cause now, I pray?"
- "I can talk of my death with a smile, my good boy, But mark well the cause," said the sage,
- "In the days of my youth, lad, I thought of my God;
  And He thinks of me in my age."

Done into Monosyllables from Southey.

My clothes should be both neat and smart;
My hands and face, too, should be clean;
My tasks I ought to get by heart,
And strive to think of what they mean.

My books I must not tear or lose,
But try to keep them smooth and neat;
And vile bad words I must not use
Like those I hear when in the street;

And I must think of what I'm told,
And as I'm bid must try to do;
I must not mock the lame or old,
Nor should I say what is not true.

These are the things I ought to mind,
And so I will with all my might,
For I am sure that I shall find
I must be lov'd if I do right.

When I was but a babe, and knew
No word to tell what I would do,
Who was it felt my wants like you?
My Mo-ther.

When I was ill and could not rest,
Who sought to lull me on her breast
By some sweet song, or cale, or jest?
My Mo-ther.

Who finds me clothes and food to eat?
Who makes my bed so clean and neat?
Who minds me when I walk the street?
My Mo-ther.

Who told me that I ought to pray
That God will hear each word I say,
And bless and guard me night and day?

My Mo-ther.

Done into Monosyllables from the Popular Poem.

Who made the earth that gives us grain?
Who feeds it both with dew and rain?
Who made each beast that treads the plain?
Goo!

Who by his will in bounds doth keep
The great and wild waves of the deep?
Who made all things that swim or creep?
Goo!

Who gave the air we breathe or die?
Who made the bird that soars on high?
Who taught its wings the way to fly?

Goo!

Who gave us life and all we prize?
Who shields us when we close our eyes?
Who guards us when at morn we rise?
Goo!

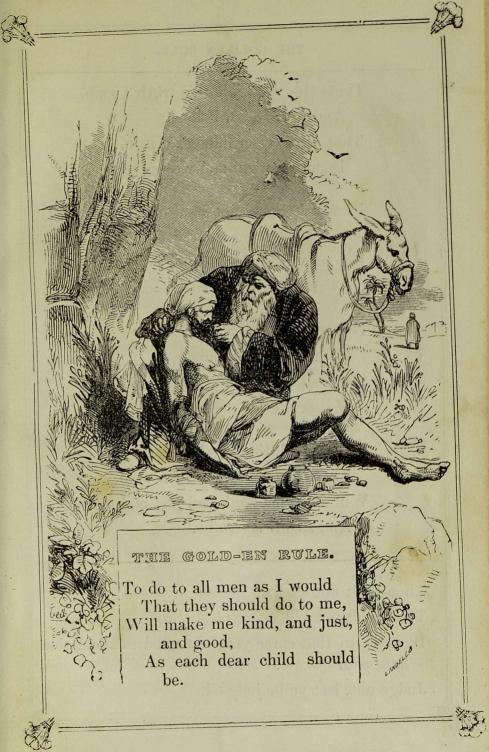

Who sends the sweet sleep to my bed?
By whom are all the wild birds fed?
Who gives to me each day my bread?
Goo!

Who knows each thing that night or day, I dream or think, or do or say?
Who hears me when I kneel to pray?

GoD!

From this wise rule this truth I gain,
And I will mind it long;
That if an act of mine give pain,
It must be bad and wrong.

I know I should not steal or use
The least thing that is thine;
For sure I should not like to lose
That thing, if it were mine.

I should not give a child a blow,
Or call it a bad name;
For I should feel a pain I know,
If it serv'd me the same.

To do to all, then, as I would

That they should do to me,

Will make me kind, and just and good,

And so I'll try to be.

Thou shalt not steal.

Thou shalt not kill.

Bless them that curse you—do good to them that hate you.

Judge not, lest ye be judg-ed.

THE LORD'S PRAY-ER.

Our Fa-ther, which art in heav-en, hal-low-ed be Thy Name. Thy king-dom come. Thy will be done in earth, as it is in heav-en. Give us this day our dai-ly bread. And for-give us our tres-pass-es, as we for-give them that tres-pass a-gainst us. And lead us not in-to temp-ta-tion; But de-liv-er us from e-vil: For Thine is the king-dom, the pow-er, and the glo-ry, for ev-er and ev-er. A-men.

MORN-ING PRAY-ER.

Great God of All! here on my knee, To Thee my thanks I pay; How good to guard a child like me, By night as well as day.

I know that Thou on all dost look, And all I do dost see; So I will try to read Thy Book, And to be lov'd by Thee.

My fa-ther and my mo-ther dear, I would not vex this day;
But I am weak—then help me, Lord!
To mind each word they say.

EVEN-ING PRAY-ER.

I owe to Thee, Great God a-bove, Each good this day I've known, And come to thank Thee for the love That Thou to me hast shown.

I'll seek each day to learn Thy word, And try to do Thy will; And then I know that Thou, O Lord, Wilt love and bless me still!

To Thee, my God, for strength I pray, In Thy good ways to live; And all I've done that's wrong this day, For-give—O Lord! for-give.

A GRACE BE-FORE MEAT.

WE pray-ed Thee this morn-ing, O Goo! to give us this day our dai-ly bread. Thou hast heard our pray-er, and we thank Thee for Thy love through Je-sus Christ our Lord and Sa-vi-our. A-men.

A GRACE AF-TER MEAT.

We bless and praise Thee, O Goo! for Thy feast hath giv-en strength to our bo-dies. Grant that Thy Word may do the same for our hearts, through Je-sus Christ our Lord and Sa-vi-our. A-men.
