

4

3

$$
\begin{aligned} & 28 \\
& \text { 薄 } \end{aligned}
$$

(2) 禹

> . Ylight frim Marreate to. Soith AMIE RTCA. MUNCHATSEN'S TRAVELS. Sep. 242

The EIGHTH EDITION,
Ornamented with Twenty Explanatory Engravings, from Original Defigns.

GULLIVER REVIVED:

> O R,

The VICE of LYING properly expofed CONTAINING

SINGULAR TRAVELS, CAMPAIGNS, VOYAGES, - AND ADVENTURES

IN RUSSIA, THE CASPIAN SEA; ICELAND, TUKKEY, EGYPT, GIBRALTAR, UP THE MEditerranean, on the atlantic OCEAN, AND THROUGH THE CENTRE OF MOUNT ETNA into the south sea.
ALS o,

An Account of a Voyage into the Moon and Doc-star ; with many extraordinary Particulars relative to the Cooking Animal in thofe Planets, which are there called the Human Species.
B Y

BARON MUNCHAUSEN.

LONDON:

Printed for G. Kearsley, Flebt-Street.

$$
1799 .
$$

Cone Tox onoons

( iii )

PREFACE

Ta the SEVENTH EDITION.

SOME notice of the extraordinary fuccef of this little volume, and the various improvements it has undergone, will not, we hope, be thought unneceffary. The frit edition contained no more than what was written by Baron Munchaufen, and includes Chapters 2, 3, 4, 5, and 6 only; all the other Chapters are the production of another pen, written in the Baron's manner. To the

$$
\text { a } 3 \quad \text { fame }
$$

$$
(\text { iv })
$$

fame perfon the Public is alfo indebted for the Plates with which the book is now emberlifhed.

Some of the hints, and a few of the facts, are taken from "Luclan's True History," as he ironically calls it ; particularly a fort account of fuch things as were difcovered in the Moon. Lucio$\mathrm{an}^{3}$ s motives for writing foch ex traordinary tales were partly to entertain the reader after more fevere Studies, and partly as a fatire upon fome writers who had related a number of monftrous and incredible tories in their works.

( x )

Baron Munchaufen is a man of great original humour ; and having found that prejudiced minds cannot be reafoned into common Senfe, and that bold affertors are very apt to bally their audience out of it, he never argues with either of them, but adroitly turns the converfation upon indifferent topics, and then tells a ftory of his travels, campaigns, and adventures, in a manner peculiar to himfelf, and well calculated to awaken and put to fhame the practice of lying, or, as it is politely called, drawing the long bow.

The

$$
(2)
$$

The fudden eftimation which this work is grown into (having paffed fix editions within a Chort period) is a Atrong proof that the Public have feen its moral tenden cy in a proper light; it might have been intitled, with great propriety, The Liar's Monitor: -for, furely, no vice is more contemptible than a habit of abufing the ears of our friends with falfehoods.

The firft edition, for want of more matter, was comparatively Ilow in fale; but the whole of the: fublequent impreflions were purchafed.

(3)

chafed within a fort time after they were printed.

In the preface to Gulliver's Travels, which is a fine piece of irony, we find the following paffage :
" There is an air of truth ap= "parent through the whole of os there travels; and, indeed, the "r author was fo diftinguifhed for "s veracity, that it became a fort "s of proverb among his neigh" blurs, when any one affirmed " a thing, it was as true as if Mr . "G Gulliver had Spoken it." The Editor of there Adventures humbly hopes they will alto

(4)

alfo be received with the fame marks of refpect, and the exclamation of that's a munchauSEN! given hereafter to every article of autbentic intelligence.

CON-

(5)

CONTENTS.

C H A P. I.

The Baron relates an account of bis firs - travels. - The aftonibing effects of a florm. - Arrives at Ceylon; combats and conquers two extraordinary opponents. - Returns to Holland,

Page 17

C HAP. II.

In which the Baron proves bimfelf a good foot. - He lofes bis borfe, and finds a wolf;-Makes bim-draw bis Jedge. Promifes to entertain bis company with a relation of fuch facts as are well deServing their notice, 28
A
CHAP。

(6)

CH A P. III.

An encounter between the Baron's nose and a door-poft, with its wonderful effects. - Fifty brace of ducks and other forel destroyed by one Shot.- Flogs a fox out of bis Skin. - Leads an old for bone in a new way, and vanquibes a wild boar,

CHAP. IV.

Reflections on Saint Hubert's flag. Shoots a fag with cherry-fones; the wonderful effects of it.-Kills a bear by extraordinary dexterity; bis danger pathetically deforibed.-Attacked by a wolf, which be turns infide out. -Is affailed by a mad dog, from which be escapes. - The Baron's cloak Seized with madness, by which bis whole wardrobe is thrown into confusion, $4 \mathbf{I}$

( 7 )  CHAP. V.

The effects of great activity and pressense of mind. - A favourite bound defcribed, which pups while purfuing a bare; the bare alpo litters while pursued by the bound. - Presented with a famous bore by Count Przobos/ky, with which be performs many extraordinary feats,

Page 48

CHAP. VI.

The Baron is made a prifoner of war, and fold for a lave. - Keeps the Sultan's bees, which are attacked by two bears.- Lopes one of bis bees; a fiver batchet, which be throws at the bears, rebounds, and flies up to the moon; brings it back by an ingenious invention: falls to the earth on bis return, and belps bimpelf out of a pit. - Extricates bimelf from a carriage which meets

$$
\text { A } 2 \quad \text { bis }
$$

( 8 )

Bis own in a narrow road, in a manner never before attempted, nor practiced since. The wonderful effects of the frost won bis Servant's French born, Page 59

CH A P. VII.

The Baron relates bis adventures on a voyage to North's America, which are well worth the reader's attention. Pranks of a whale. - A fea-gull faves - Sailor's life. - The Baron's bead forced into bis Atomach. - A dangerous leak flopped a pofieriori,

CHAP. VIII.

Bathes in the Mediterranean. - Meets an unexpected companion. - Arrives unintentionally in the regions of beat and darkness, from which be is extricated

( 9 )

by dancing an hornpipe. - Frightens bis deliverers, and returns on fore,

Page 73

CH AP. IX.

Adventures in Turkey, and upon the river Nile. - Sees a balloon over Conftantinople; Shoots at, and brings it down: finds a French experimental pbillofopher suspended from it. - Goes on an emboly to Grand Cairo, and returns upon the Nile, where be is thrown into on unexpected Situation, and detained fix weeks,

77

CH AP. X.

Pays a vijit during the fiege of Gibraltar to bis old friend General Elliot. -Sinks a Spaniel man of war. - Wakes an old woman on the African coaft. -Deftroys all the enemy's cannon; frightens the Count d' Artois, and fends bim to PaA 3 pis.

(10)

sis. - Saves the lives of two English Spies with the identical Sing that killed Goliath; and raifes the liege, Page 86

CHAP. XI.

An interefing account of the Baron's anceftors. - A quarrel relative to the foot where Noah built bis ask. - The biftory of the ling, and its proper-ties.- A favourite poet introduced upon no very reputable occafion. Queen Elizabeth's abfinence. - The Baron's father croffes from England to Holland upon a marine bor fe, which be fells for feven hundred ducats, 97

CHAP XII.

The frolic; its consequences. - Windjor raffle. - St. Paul's. - College of ply frisians, frisians, undertakers, sextons, $\mathcal{F}^{2} c$. almoo ruined. - Induftry of the apothecaries,

(11)

Page 103

CHAP. XIII.

The Baron Jails with Captain Phipps. - Attacks two large bears, and has a very narrow efcape. - Gains the confidence of the le animals, and then deAroys thousands of them; loads the flip with their bans and fins; makes presents of the former, and obtains a general invitation to all city feafts. A dispute between the Captain and the Baron, in wish, from motives of politeness, the Captain is suffered to gain bis point. - The Baron declines the bonour of a throne, and an empress into the bargain,

( 12 )

CHAP. XIV.

Our Baron excels Baron Tott beyond all comparijon; yet fails in part of bis attempt. - Gets into diggrace with the Grand Signior, who orders bis bead to be cut off. - Efcapes, and gets on board a veffel, in wbich be is carried to Venice. - Baron Iott's origin, with fome account, of that great man's parents. - Pope Ganganelli's amour.His Holine fs fond of hell-figh,

$$
\text { Page } 117
$$

CHAP. XV。

A further account of the journey from Harwich to Helvoetfluys. - Defcription of a number of marine objects, never mentioned by any traveller before. Rocks feen in this paffage, equal to the Alps in magnitude: Lobfters, Crabs, Esc. of an extraordinary magnitude. A womanis

( 13 )

1) woman's life Saved. - The cause of beer falling into the fea.-Dr. Hares's directions followed with Success,

CH A P. XVI.

This is a very bort chapter, but contains a fact for which the Baron's memory ought to be dear to every Englifbman, especially those who may bereafter have the misfortune of being made prisoners of war, 133

CH A P. XVII.

Voyage eaftward. - The Baron introduces a friend who never deceived bim; wins an bundred guineas by pinning bis faiths upon that friend's nose. -Game farted at Sea. -Some other circumfances, which will, it is hoped, afford the Reader no small degree of amusement, 136

C HAP.

( 14 )

CHAP. XVIII.

A Second vifut (but an accidental one) to the moon. - The fin driven by a whirlwind a thousand leagues above the surface of the water, where a new atmofphere meets them, and carries them into a capacious barbour in the moon. A description of the inhabitants, and their manner of coming into the Lunarian world. - Animals, cuftoms, weapons of war, wines, vegetables, E\%c. Page 140

CHAP. XIX.

The Baron crofles the Thames without the aflifance of a bridge, Bit, boat, or balloon, or even bis own will; rouses bimelelf after a long nap, and destroys a monster, who lived upon the deftrucsion of others.

Page 150CHAP 。

(15)

CHAP. XX.

The Baron lips through the world: af ter paying a visit to Mount Etna, be finds bimfelf in the South Sea; vifits $V$ vulcan in bis paffage; gets on board a Dutchman; arrives at an illand of Cheese, surrounded by a sea of Milk; describes some very extraordinary ob-jects.-Lofe their compass; their hip lips between the teeth of a ff unknown in this part of the world; their diffsultry in escaping from thence; arrive in the Caspian Sea.-Starves a bear to death.-A few waiftcoat anecdotes.In this chapter, which is the longeft, the Baron moralizes upon the virtue of veracity,

Page 153

SUPPLEMENT.

Extraordinary Flight on the Back of an Eagle over France to Gibraltar, South and North America, the Polar Regions, and back to England, within fix-andthirty bours.

Page 178

( 17 )

Gulliver Revived.

C H A P. I.*

The Baron relates an account of bis firs travels. - The aftonibing effects of a Aorm. - Arrives at Ceylon; combats and conquers two extraordinary oppo-nents.-Returns to Holland.

COME years before my beard announced approaching manhood, or, in other words, when I was neither man nor boy, but between both, I expreffed in repeated converfations a frong defire of feeing the world, from which I was difcouraged by my parents, though my father had been no inconfiderable traveller himfelf, as will appear before I have reached the end of my fingular, and, I may add, interefting, adventures. A coufin, by my mother's fide, took a liking to me, of ten faid I was a fine forward youth, and was much inclined to gratify my curiofity. His eloquence had more effect than mine, for my father confented to my accompanying him in a voyage to the intand of Ceylon, where his uncle had refided as governor many years.

* The Baron is fuppofed to relate thefe adventures to his friends, over a bottle.
$B$ rents,

( 18 )

We failed from Amfterdam with difpatches from their High Mightineffes the States of Holland. The only circumftance which happened on our voyage worth relating, was the wonderful effects of a ftorm, which had torn up by the roots a great number of trees of enormous bulk and height,

(19.)

(in an inland where we lay at anchor to take in wood and water); fome of thefe trees weighed many tons, yet they were carried by the wind fo amazingly high, that they appeared like the feathers of fmall birds floating in the air, for they were at leaft five miles above the earth : however, as foon as the form fubfided, they all fell perpendicularly into their refpective places, and took root again, except the largeit, which happened, when it was blown into the air, to have a man and his wife, a very honeft old couple, upon its branches, gathering cucumbers, (in this part of the globe, that uffful vegetable grows upon trees); the weight of this couple, as the tree defcended, overbalanced the trunk, and brought it down in an horizontal pofition: it fell upon the chief man of the ifland, and killed him on the fpot; he had quitted his houfe in the ftorm, under an apprehenfion of its falling upon him, and was returning through his own garden when this fortunate accident happened. - The word fortunate, here, requires fome ex, planation. - This chief was a man of a very avaricious and opprefive difpofition, and though he had no family, the natives of the ifland were halfftarved by his oppreffive and infamous impofitions.

The very goods which he had thu taken from them were fpoiling in his fores, while the poor wretches from whom they were plundered were pin. ing in poverty. Though the deftruction of this tyrant was accidental, the people chofe the cucumber-gatherers for their governors, as a mark of their gratitude, for deftroying, though accidentally, their late tyrant.

(21)

After we had repaired the damages we fuftained in this remarkable ftorm, and taken leave of the new governor and his lady, we failed with a fair wind for the object of our voyage.

In about fix weeks we arrived at Ceylon, where we were received with great marks of friendhip and true politenefs. The following fingular adventure may not prove unentertaining.

After we had refided at Ceylon about a fortnight, I accompanied one of the governor's brothers upon a fhooting party. He was a ftrong athletic man, and being ufed to that climate (for he had refided there fome years), he bore the violent beat of the fun much better than I could ; in our excurfion, he had made a confiderable progrefs through a thick wood when I was only at the entrance.
B 3 Near

( 22 )

Near the banks of a large piece of water, which had engaged my attention, I thought I heard a ruftling. noife behind; on turning about, I was almoft petrified (as who would not?) at the fight of a lion, which was evidently approaching with an intention of fatisfying his appetite with my poor carcafs, and that without afking my confent. - What was to be done in this horrible dilemma? I had not even a moment for reflection; my piece was only charged with fwan fhot, and I had no other about me: however, though I could have no idea of killing. fuch an animal with that weak kind of ammunition, yet I had fome hopes of frightening him by the report, and perhaps of wounding him alfo. I immediately let fly, without waiting till he was within reach; and the report did but enrage him, for he now quickened his pace, and feemed to approach me full fpeed: I attempted to efcape, but that only added (if an addition could be made) to my diftrefs; for the moment I turned about, I found a large crocodile, with his mouth extended almof ready to receive me ; on my right hand was the piece of water be-fore-mentioned, and on my left a deep precipice, faid to have, as I have fince learned, a receptacle at the bottom for venomous creatures; in fhort, I gave myfelf up as loft, for the lion was now upon his hind-legs, juft in the act of feizing me: I fell involuntarily to the ground with fear, and, as it afterwards appeared, he fprang over me. I lay fome time in a fituation which no language can defcribe, expecting to feel his teeth or talons in fome part of me every moment: after waiting in this proftrate fituation a few feconds, I heard a violent

(23)

( 24 )

lent but unufual noife, different from any found that had ever before affailed my ears ; nor is it at all to be wondered at, when I inform you from whence it proceeded: after liftening for fome time, I ventured to raife my head and look round, when, to my unfpeakable joy, I perceived the lion had, by the eagernefs with which he fprung at me, jumped forward as I fell, into the crocodile's mouth! which, as before obferved, was wide open; the head of the one ftuck in the throat of the other ! and they were ftruggling to extricate themfelves : I fortunately recollected my couteau de chaffe which was by my fide; with this inftrument I fevered the lion's head at one blow, and the body fell at my feet! I then, with the but-end of my fowling-piece, - rammed the head farther into the throat of the crocodile, and deftroyed him. by by fuffocation, for he could neither: gorge nor eject it.

( 25 )

Soon after I had thus gained a complete victory over my two powerful adverfaries, my companion arrived in fearch of me; for, finding I did not follow him into the wood, he returned, apprehending I had loft my way, or met with fome accident.

After mutual congratulations, we meafured the crocodile, which was juft forty feet in length.

As foon as we had related this extra. ordinary adventure to the governor, he fent a waggon and fervants, who brought home the two carcafes. The lion's fkin was properly preferved, with its hair on; after which it was made into tobacco-pouches, and prefented by me upon our arrival in Hol land to the burgomafters, who in return turn requefted my acceptance of a thoufand ducats.

$$
(26)
$$

The fkin of the crocodile was ftuffed in the ufual manner, and makes a capital article in their public mufeum at Amfterdam, where the exhibitor relates the whole ftory to each fpectator, with fuch additions as he thinks proper: fome of his variations are rather extravagant ; one of them is, that the lion jumped quite through the crocodile, and was making his efcape at the back-door, when, as foon as his head appeared, Monfieur the Great Baron (as he is pleafed to call me) cut it off, and three feet of the crocodile's tail along with it; nay, fo little attention has this fellow to the truth, that he fometimes adds, As foon as the crocodile miffed his tail, he turned about, fnatched the couteau de chaffe out of Monfieur's hand, and fwallowed it with fuch eagernefs, that it pierced his heart, and killed him immediately!

( 27 )

The little regard which this impudent knave has to veracity, makes me fometimes apprehenfive that my real facts may fall under fufpicion, by being found in company with his confounded inventions.

( 28 )

C HAP. II.

In which the Baron proves bimjelf a good fhot. - He lofes bis borfe, and finds a wolf;-Makes bim draw bis Jledge. Promijes to entertain bis company with a relation of fuch facts as are weell deServing their notice.

I SET off from Rome on a journey to Ruffia, in the midft of winter, from a juft notion that froft and fnow muft of courfe mend the roads, which every traveller had defcribed as uncommonly bad through the northern parts of Germany, Poland, Courland, and Livonia. I went on horfeback, as the moft convenient manner of travelling; I was but lightly clothed, and of this I felt the inconvenience the more I advanced north-eaft. What muft not a poor old man man have fuffered in that fevere weather and climate, whom I faw on a bleak common in Poland, lying on the road, helplefs, fhivering, and hardly having where-withal to cover his nakednefs?

(29)

I pitied the poor foul ! - Though I felt the feverity of the air myfelf, I threw my mantle over him, and immediately I heard a voice from the heavens, bleffing me for that piece of charity, faying,
"You will be rewarded, my fon, "for this in time."

I went on. Night and darknefs overtook me. No village was to be feen. The country was covered with fnow, and I was unacquainted with the road.

Tired, I alighted, and fattened my horfe to fomething like a pointed fump of a tree, which appeared above the fnow; for the fake of fafety, I placed my piftols under my arm, and laid down on the fnow, where I flept fo foundly that I did not open my eyes till full day-light. It is not eafy to conceive my aftonifhment, to find myfelf in the midft of a village, lying in a church-yard; nor was my horfe to be feen, but I heard him foon after neigh fomewhere above me. On looking upwards, I beheld him hanging by his bridle to the weather-cock of the fteeple. Matters were now very plain to me: the village had been covered with fnow over night; a fudden change of weather had taken place; I had funk down to the church-yard whilft aneep, gently, and in the fame proportion as the fnow had melted away; and what in the dark I had taken to be a ftump of a little tree appearing above the fnow, to which I had tied my horfe, proved to have been

( 30 )

(31)

been the crofs or weather-cock of the fteeple!

Without long confideration, I took one of my pittols, fhot the bridle in two, brought down the horfe, and proceeded on my journey.*

He carried me well-advancing into the interior parts of Ruffa, I found travelling on horfeback rather unfafhionable in winter, therefore I fubmitted, as I always do, to the cuftom of the country, took a fingle horfe fledge, and drove brifkly towards St. Peterfburgh. I do not exactly recollect whether it was in Eaftland or Jugemanland, but I remember that in the midft of a dreary foreft, I fpied a terrible wolf making after me, with all the fpeed of ravenous winter hunger.

* Here the Baron feems to have forgot his feelings; he thould certainly have ordered his horfe a feed of soin, after falting fo long.

( 32 )

He foon overtook me. There was no poffibility of efcape. Mechanically I laid myfelf down flat in the nedge, and let my horfe run for our fafety. What I wifhed, but hardly hoped or expected, happened immediately after. The wolf did not mind me in the leaft, but took a leap over me, and falling furiounly on the horfe, began inftantly to tear and devour the hind part of the poor animal, which ran the fafter for his pain and terror. Thus unnoticed and fafe myfelf, I lifted my head nily up, and with horror I beheld that the wolf had ate his way into the horfe's body; it was not long before he had fairly forced himfelf into it, when I took my advantage, and fell upon him with the but end of my whip. This unexpected attack in his rear, frightened him fo much, that he leaped forward with all his might: the horfe's carcafs

( 33 )

carcals dropt on the ground; but in his place the wolf was in the harnefs; and I , on my part, whipping him continually, we both arrived in full career fafe at St. Peterfburgh, contrary to our refpective expectations, and very much to the aftonifhment of the fpectators.

I fhall not tire you, gentlemen, with the politics, arts, fciences, and hiftory of this magnificent metropolis of Ruffia; nor trouble you with the various intrigues, and pleafing adventures, I had in the politer circles of that country, where the lady of the houfe always receives the vifitor with a dram and a falute. I fhall confine myfelf rather to the greater and nobler objects of your attention, horfes and dogs, my favourites in the brute creation; alfo to foxes, wolves, and bears, with which, and game in general, Ruffia abounds more than any other part of the world; and to fuch forts, manly exercifes, and feats of gallantry and activity, as flow the Gentleman better than mufly Greek or Latin, of all the perfume, finery, and capers of French wits, or petit-maitres.

$(34)$

( 35 )

C HAP. III.

An encounter between the Baron's nose and a door-poft, with its wonderful effects. - Fifty brace of ducks and other fowl defiroyed by one boot. -Flogs a fox out of bis Skin. - Leads an old fore bome in a new way, and vanquibes a wild boar.

I1 T was rome time before $I$ could obtain a commiffion in the army, and for feveral months I was perfectly at 1 i betty to fort away my time and money in the mot gentleman-like manner. You may eafly imagine, that I pent much of both out of town, with fuch gallant fellows as knew how to make the mon of an open foref country. The very recollection of thole amufements gives me frefh fpirits, and creates a warm with for a repetition of them.

( $3^{6}$ )

One morning I faw through the windows of my bed-room, that a large pond, not far off, was covered with wild ducks. In an inftant I took my gun from the corner, ran down ftairs and out of the houfe in fuch a hurry, that I imprudently ftruck my face againft the door poft. Fire flew out of my eyes, but it did not prevent my intention; I foon came within fhot, when levelling my piece, I obferved, to my forrow, that even the flint had fprung from the cock, by the violence of the fhock I had juft received. There was no time to be loft. I prefently remembered the effect it had upon my eyes, therefore opened the pan, levelled my piece againft the wild fowis, and my fift againft one of my eyes.* A hearty blow drew fparks again; the fhot went off, and I killed fifty brace of ducks, twenty widgeons, and three couple of teals. Prefence of mind is: the foul of manly exercifes. If foldiers and failors owe to it many of their lucky efcapes, hunters and fportfimen are not lefs beholden to it for many of their fucceffes. In a noble foreft, in Rulfia, I met a fine black fox, whofe valuable fkin it would have been a pity to tear by ball or fhot. Reynard ftood clofe to a tree. In a twinkling I tock out my ball, and placed a good fike nail in its room, fired, and hit him fo cleverly, that I nailed his brufh faft to the tree. I now went up to him, took out my hanger, gave him a crofs cut over the face, laid hold of my whip, and fairly flogged him out of his fine fkin.

[^0]
( 37 )

Chance

( $3^{8}$ )

Chance and good luck often correct our miftakes: of this I had a fingular inftance foon after, when, in the depth of a foreft, I faw a wild pig and fow running clofe behind each other. My ball had miffed them, yet the foremoft pig only ran away, and the fow ftood motionlefs, as fixed to the ground. On examining into the matter, I found the latter one to be an old fow, blind with age, which had taken hold of her pig's tail, in order to be led along by filial duty. $M^{*}$ ball having paffed between the two, had cut his leadingftring, which the old fow continued to hold in her mouth; and as her former guide did not draw her on any longer, fhe had ftopped of courfe: I therefore laid hold of the remaining end of the pig's tail, and led the old beaft home, without any farther trouble on my part, and without any reluctance or apprehenfion on the part of the helplefs old animal.

( 39 )

Terrible as thefe wild fows are, yet more fierce and dangerous are the boars, one of which I had once the misfortune to meet in a foreft, unprepared for attack or defence. I retired behind an oak tree, juft when the furious animal levelled a fide blow at me, with fuch force, that his tufks pierced through the tree, by which means he could neither repeat the blow nor retire. - Ho! ho! thought I, I fhall foon have you now - and immediately I laid hold of a ftone, wherewith I hammered and bent his tufks in fuch a manner, that he could not retreat by any means, and muft wait my return from the next village, whither I went for ropes and

(40)

and a cart, to fecure him properly, and to carry him off fafe and alive, in which I perfeetly fucceeded.

CHAP.

(41)

CHAP. IV.

Reflections on Saint Hubert's Jag. Shoots a flag with cherry-fones; the wonderful effects of it. -Kills a bear by extraordinary dexterity; bis danger. pathetically defcribed. - Attacked by a wolf, which be turns infide out.-Is affailed by a mad dog, from which be efcapes. - The Baron's cloak Seized with madness, by which bis whole. wardrobe is thrown into confufion.

YOU have heard, I dare fay, of the hunter's and fportfman's faint and protector, St. Hubert ; and of the noble flag, which appeared to him in the forest, with the holy crofs between his antlers. I have paid my homage to that faint every year in good felllowfhip, and feen this fag a thoufand times, either painted in churches, or

D embroidered

( 42 )

embroidered in the ftars of his knights; fo that, upon the honour and confcience of a good fportfman, I hardly know whether there may not have been formerly, or whether there are not fuch croffed ftags even at this prefent day. But let me rather tell what I have feen myfelf. Having one day fipent all my fhot, I found myfelf unexpectedly in prefence of a ftately ftag, looking at me as unconcernedly as if he had known of my empty pouches. I charged immediately with powder, and upon it a grod handful of cherry-ftones, for I had fucked the fruit as far as the hurry would permit. Thus I let fly at him, and hit him juft on the middle of the furehead, between his antlers: it ftunned him - he faggered-yet he made off. A year or two after, being with a party in the fame foreft, I beheld held a noble ftag with a fine full-grown cherry-tree above ten feet high between his antlers. I immediately recollected my former adventure, looked upon him as my property, and brought him to the ground by one Shot, which at once gave me the haunch and cherry-fauce ; for the tree was covered with the richeft fruit, the like I never had tafted before. Who knows but fome paffionate holy fportf. man, or fporting abbot, or bihop, may have thot, planted, and fixed the crofs between the antlers of St . Hubert's ftag, in a manner fimilar to this? They always have been, and ftill are, famous for plantations of croffes and antlers; and in a cafe of diftrefs or dilemma, which too often happens. to keen fportfmen, one is apt to grafp at any thing for fafety, and to try any expedient, rather than lofe the favourable opportunity. I have many times found myfelf in that trying fituation.

( 43 )

[^1]
( 44 )

What do you fay of this, for example? Day-light and powder were fpent one day in a Polifh foreft. When I was going home, a terrible bear made up to me in great fpeed, with open mouth ready to fall upon me: all my pockets were fearched in an inftant for pewder and ball, but in vain-I found nothing but two fpare Hints; one I flung with all my might into the monfter's open jaws, down his throat. It gave him pain, and made him turn about, fo that I could level the fecond at his back door, which, indeed, I did with wonderful fuccefs; for it llew in, met the firft flint in the ftomach, ftruck fire, and blew up the bear with a terrible explofion. Though I came fafe off that time, yet I fhould

( 45 )

I fhould not with to try it again, or venture againft bears with no other am. munition.

There is a kind of fatality in it. The fiercest and moo dangerous anmall generally came upon me when defenceless, as if they had a notion or an inftinctive intimation of it. Thus, a frightful wolf rushed upon me fo fuddenly, and fo clofe, that I could do nothing but follow mechanical inftinct, and thruft my fit into his open mouth. For fafety's fake I puffed on and on, till my arm was fairly in, up to the Shoulder. How fhould I difengage myfelf? I was not much pleafed with my awkward fituation - with a wolf face to face, our ogling was not of the molt pleafant kind. If I withdrew my arm, then the animal would fly the more furioufly upon me; that I haw in his flaming eyes. In fort, I laid hold of his entrails, turned him infide out like a glove, and flung him to the ground, where I left him.

$D_{3}$of

( 46 )

The fame expedient would not have anfwered againft a mad dog, which foon after came running againft me in a narrow flreet at St. Peteriburgh. Run who can, I thought; and to do this the better, I threw off my fur cloak, and was fafe within doors in an inftant. I fent my fervant for the cloak, and he put it in the wardrobe with my other clothes. The day after I was amazed and frightened by Jack's bawling: "For God's fake, Sir, your fur cloak is mad!" I haftened up to him, and found almoft all my clothes toffed about and torn to pieces. The fellow was perfectly right in his apprehenfions about the fur cloak's madnefs. I faw him myfelf jurt then falling falling upon a fine full-drefs fuit, which he fhook and toffed in an unmerciful manner.

( 47 )

CHAP.

$(48)$

CHAP. V.

The efferts of great activity and prefence of mind. - A favourite bound defcribed, which pups while purfuing a bare; the bare alfo litters while: purfued by the hound. - Prefented with. a famous borje by Count Przobos/ky, with which be performs many extraordinary feats.

ALL thefe narrow and lucky efcapes, gentlemen, were chances turned! to advantage, by prefence of mind and vigorous exertions; which, taken together, as every body knows, make the fortunate fportiman, failor, and foldier; but he would be a very blameable and imprudent fportfman, admiral, or general, who would always depend upon chance and his flas, without troubling himfelf about thore

( 49 )

thofe arts which are their particular purfuits, and without providing the very beft implements, which infure fuccefs. I was not blameable either way ; for I have always been as remarkable for the excellency of my horfes, dogs, guns, and fwords, as for the proper manner of ufing and managing them, fo that upon the whole I may hope to be remembered in the foreft, upon the turf, and in the field. I fhall not enter here into any detail of my ftables, kennel, or armory; but a favourite bitch of mine I cannot help mentioning to you-fhe was a greyhound, and I never had or faw a better. She grew old in my fervice, and was not remarkable for her fize, but rather for her uncommon fwiftnefs. I always courfed with her. Had you feen her, you muft have admired her, and would not have wondered at my predilection, and at my courfing her fo much. She ran fo fat, fo much, and fo long in my fervice, that the actually ran off her legs; fo that, in the latter part of her life, I was under the neceffity of working and ufing her only as a terrier, in which quality fie itill ferved me many years.

( 50 )

Courfing one day a hare, which appared to me uncommonly big, I pitied my poor bitch, being big with pups, yet the would courfe as faff as ever. I could follow her on bareback only at a great diftance. At once I heard a cry as it were of a pack of hounds but fo weak and faint that I hardly knew what to make of it. Coming. up to them, I was greatly furprifed. The hare had littered in running; the fame had happened to my bitch in courfing-and there were jut as many leverets as pups. By inftinct the former ran, the latter courfed; and thus I found myfelf in poffeffion at once of fix hares, and as many dogs, at the end of a courfe, which had only begun with one.
mes

(51)

I remember this, my wonderful bitch, with the fame pleafure and tendernefs as a fuperb Lithuanian horfe, which no money could have bought. He became mine by an accident, which gave me an opportunity of fhewing my horfemanfhip to a great advantage. I was at Count Przobosfky's noble country feat in Lithuania, and pemained with the ladies at tea in the drawingroom, while the gentlemen were down in the yard, to fee a young horfe of blood, which was juft arrived from the ftud. We fuddenly heard a noife of diftrefs - I haftened down ftairs, and found the horfe fo unruly, that nobody durft approach or mount him.

The

(52)

The moft refolute horfemen ftood difo mayed and aghaft: defpondency was expreffed in every countenance, when, in one leap, I was on his back, took him by furprife, and worked him quite into gentlenefs and obedience, with the beft difplay of horfemanfhip I was mafter of. Fully to fhew this to the ladies, and fave them unneceffary trouble, I forced him to leap in at one of the open windows of the tea-room,* walked round feveral times, pace, trot, and gallop; and at laft made him mount the tea-table, $\dagger$ there to repeat his leffons, in a pretty ftyle of miniature, which was exceedingly pleafing to the ladies, for he performed them amazingly well, and did not break either cup or faucer. It placed me fo high in their opinion, and fo well in that of the noble lord, that with his ufual politenefs, he begged I would accept of this young horfe, and ride hims full career to conqueft and honour, in the campaign againft the Turks, which was foon to be opened, under the command of Count Munich.

* See plate. + See plate.

( 53 )

I could not indeed have received a more agreeable prefent, nor a more ominous one at the opening of that campaign, in which I made my apprenticefhip as a foldier. A horfe fo gentle, fo fpirited, and fo fierce - at once a lamb and a Bucephalus, put me always in mind of the foldier's and the gentleman's duty; of young Alexan: der, and of the aftonifhing things he performed in the field.

We took the field, among feveral other reafons, it feems, with an intention to retricve the character of the Ruffian arms, which had been blemifhed a little by Czar Peter's laft campaign on the Pruth; and this we fully accomplifhed by feveral very fatiguing and glorious campaigns under the command of that great general I mentioned before.

[^2]
(-54)

Modefty forbids individuals to arrogate to themfelves great fucceffes or victories, the glory of which is generally engroffed by the commander, nay, which is rather aukward, by kings and queens, who never fmelt gun-powder but at the field-days and reviews of their troops; never faw a field of battle, or an enemy in battle array.

Nor do I claim any particular fhare of glory in the great engagements with the enemy. We all did our duty, which, in the patriot's, foldier's, and gentleman's language, is a very comprehenfive word, of great honour, meaning," and import, and of which the generality of idle quidnuncs and coffee-coffee-houfe politicians, (can hardiy form any but a very mean and contemptible idea. However, having had the command of a body of huffars, I went upon feveral expeditions, with difcretionary powers; and the fuccefs I then met with is, I think, fairly and only to be placed to my account, and to that of the brave fellows whom I led on to conqueft and to victory. We had very hot work once in the van of the army, when we drove the Turks into Oczakow. My fpirited Lithuanian had almoft brought me into a fcrape: I had an advanced fore-poft, and faw the enemy coming againft me in a cloud of duft, which left me rather uncertain about their actual numbers and real intentions: to wrap myfelf up in a fimilar cloud was common prudence, but would not have much advanced my knowledge, or anfwered E 2 the

(55)

( 36 )

the end for which I had been fent out; therefore I let my flankers on both wings fpread to the right and left, and make what duft they could, and I myfelf led on ftraight upon the enemy, to have a nearer fight of them ; in this I was gratified, for they ftood and fought, till, for fear of my flankers, they began to move off ather diforderly. This was the moment to fall upon them with fpirit - We broke them entirely, made a terrible havock amongft them - and drove them not only back to a walled town in their rear, but even through it, contrary to our moft fanguine expectation.

The fwifnefs of my Lithuanian enabled me to be foremoft in the purfuit; and feeing the enemy fairly flying through the oppofite gate, I thought it would be prudent to ftop in the marketplace, to order the men to rendezvous.
I ftop-

( 57 )

I ftopped, gentlemen; but judge of my aftonifhment, when in this mar-ket-place I faw not one of my huffars about me! Are they fcouring the other ftreets? or what is become of them? They could not be far off, and muft, at all events, foon join me. In that expectation I walked my panting. Lithuanian to a fpring in this marketplace, and let him drink. He drank uncommonly - with an eagernefs not to be fatisfied, but natural enough, for when I looked round for my men, what fhould I fee, gentlemen? the hind part of the poor creature's croup and legs were miffing, as if he had been cut in two, and the water ran out as it came in, without refrefhing or doing him any good! How it could have happened, was quite a myftery to me, till I returned with him to the towngate. There I faw, that wher I rufhed E 3 in.

( 58 )

in pell-mell with the flying enemy, they had dropped the port-cullis*, unperceived by me, which had totally cut off his hind part $t$, that fill lay quivering on the outfide of the gate. It would have been an irreparable lofs, hàd not our farrier contrived to bring both parts together while hot. He fewed them up with fprigs and young fhoots of laurels that were at hand - the wound -healed; and, what could not have happened but to fo glorious an horfe, the fprigs took root in his body, grew up, and formed a bower over me; fo that afterwards I could go upon many other expeditions in the fhade of my uwn and my horfe's laurels.

* An heavy falling door, with Tharp pikes at the boitom, let down fuddenly, to prevent the entrance of an enemy into a fortified town.
$t$ See the plate.

(. 59 )

CHAP. VI.

The Beron is made a prifoner of war, and fold for a lave - Keeps the Sultan's bees, which are attacked by two bears - Lofes one of bis bees; a filver batchet, wbich be throws at the bees, rebounds, and fies up to the moon; brings it back by an ingenious invention; falls to the earth on bis return, and belps bimfelf out of a pit-Extricates bimfelf from a carriage wbich meets bis own in a narrow road in a manner never before attempted, nor practifed fince. The wonderful effects of the froft upon bis fervant's French born.

IWAS not always fucceffful. I had the misfortune to be overpowered by numbers, to be made prifoner of war; and, what is worfe, but always ufual ufual among the Turks*, to be fold for a nave. In that fate of humiliation, my daily tank was not very hard and laborious, but rather fingular and irkfome. It was to drive the Sultan's bees every morning to their pafturegrounds, to attend them all the day. long, and againft night to drive them back to their hives. One evening I miffed a bee, and foon obferved that two bears had fallen upon her, to tear her to pieces for the honey fhe carried $\dagger$. I had nothing like an offenfive weapon in my hands but the filver hatchet, which is the badge of the: Sultan's gardeners and farmers. I threw it at the robbers, with an intention to frighten them away, and fet the poor bee at liberty; but, by an unlucky.

( 60 )

* The Baron was afterwards in great favour with the Grand Signior, as will appear hereafter. t. See the plate.

(61)

lucky turn of my arm, it flew upwards, and continued rifing till it reached the moon. How fhould I recover it? how fetch it down again? I recollected that Turkey-beans grow very quick, and run up to an aftonifling height. I planted one immediately; it grew, and actually faftened itfelf to one of the moon's horns. I had no more to do now but to climb up by it into the moon, where I fafely arrived, and had a troublefome piece of bufinefs before I could find my filver hatchet, in a place were every thing has the brightnefs of filver ; at laft, however, I found it in a heap of chaff and chopped ftraw. I was now for returning: but alas ! the heat of the fun had dried up my bean; it was totaily ufelefs for my defcent: fo I fell to work, and twifted me a rope of that chopped ftraw, as long and as well as I could

( 62 )

I could make it. This I faftened to one of the moon's horns, and nid down to the end of it. Here I held myfelf faft with the left hand; and, with the hatchet in my right, I cut the long, now ufelefs end of the upper part, which, when tied to the lower. end, brought me a good deal lower: this repeated fplicing and tying of the rope, did not improve its quality, or bring me down to the Sultan's farms. I was four or five miles from the earth at leaft *, when it broke; I fell to the ground with fuch amazing violence, that I found myfelf flunned, and in a hole nine fathoms deep at leaft, made by the weight of my body falling from fo great a height: I recovered, but knew not how to get out again; however, I dug flopes or fteps with my nails (the Baron's nails were then of

* See the plate.

forty

( 63 )

forty years growth), and eafily accomplifhed it.

Peace was foon after concluded with the Turks; and gaining my liberty, I left St. Peterfburgh at the time of that fingular revolution, when the emperor in his cradle, his mother, the duke of Brunfwick, her father, field-marfhall Munich, and many others, were fnet ot Siberia. The winter was then fo uncommonly fevere all over Europe, that ever fince the fun feems to be froftbitten. At my return to this place, I felt on the road greater inconveniences than thofe I had experienced on my fetting out.

I travelled poft, and finding myfelf in a narrow lane, hid the poftillion give a fignal with his horn, that other travellers might not meet us in the narrow paffage. He blew with all his might ; but his endeavours were in vain, he could not make the horn found; which was unaccountable, and rather unfortunate, for foon after we found ourfelves in the prefence of arother coach coming the other way: there was no proceeding; however, I got out of my carriage, and being pretty ftrong, placed it, wheels and all, upon my head; I then jumped over a hedge about nine feet high * (which, confidering the weight of the coach, was rather difficult) into a field, and came out again by another jump into the road beyond the other carriage; I then went back for the horfes, and placing one upon my head, and the other under my left arm, by the fame means brought them to my coach $\dagger$, put to, and proceeded to an inn at the end of our ftage. I fhould have told you, that the horfe under my arm was very firited, and not above four years old; in making my fecond fpring over the hedge, he expreffed great diflike to that violent kind of motion, by kicking and fnorting; however, I confined his hindlegs, by putting them into my coatpocket. After we arrived at the inn, my poftillion and I refrefhed ourfelves: he hung his horn on a peg near the kitchen fire ; I fat on the other fide. Suddenly we heard a Tereng! tereng! teng! teng! We looked round, and now found the reafon why the poftillion had not been able to found his horn; his tunes were frozen up in the horn, and came out now by thawing, plain enough, and much to the credit of the driver; fo that the honeft fellow entertained us for fome time with a variety of tunes, without putting his mouth to the horn - The King of

( 64 )

[^3]
(65)

F

( 66 )

of Pruffia's march - Over the hill and over the dale - with many other favourite tunes : at length the thawing entertainment concluded, as I fall this fort account of my Ruffian travels.

Some travellers are apt to advance more than is perhaps fitly true; if any of the company entertain a doubt of my veracity, If ball only fay to fuck, I pity their want of faith, and must request they will take leave before I begin the Second part of my adventures, which are as frizzly founded in fail as thole I have already related.

$(67)$

Gulliver Revived.

PARTII.

C H A P. VII.

The Baron relates bis adventures on a voyage to North America, which are well worth the reader's attention. Pranks of a whale.-A fea-gull farves a Sailor's life.- The Baron's bead forced into bis Atomach. - $A$ dangerous leak fopped a pofteriori.

I Embarked at Portfmouth in a firf. rate Englifh man of war, of one hundred guns, and fourteen hundred men, for North America, Nothing worth relating happened till we arrived within three hundred leagues of the river $\mathrm{F}_{2}$ Saint

( 68 )

Saint Laurence, when the fhip ftruck with amazing force againit (as we fuppofed) a rock; however, upon heaving the lead, we could find no bottom, even with three hundred fathom. What made this circumftance the more wonderful, and indeed beyond all comprehenfion, was, that the violence of the fhock was fuch that we loft our rudder, broke our bowprit in the middle, and fplit all our mafts from top to bottom, two of which went by the board: a poor fellow, who was aloft, furling the main fheet, was flung at leaft three leagues from the fhip; but he fortunately faved his life, by laying hold of the tail of a large fea-gull, who brought him back, and lodged him on the very fpot from whence he was thrown*. Another

* See the plate.

$(69)$

proof of the violence of the Shock was the force with which the people between decks were driven againft the floors above them: my head particularly was preffed into my ftomach, where it continued forme months before it recovered its natural fituation. Whilft we were all in a fate of altonifhment at the general and unaccountable confufion in which we were involved, the whole was fuddenly explained, by the appearance of a large whale, who had been balking afleep, within fixteen feet of the furface of the water. This animal was fo much difpleafed with the difturbance which our hip had given him (for, in our paffage, we had with our fud. der fcratched his nope) that he beat in all the gallery and part of the quarterdeck with his tail, and almoft at the fame infant took the main-fheet anE 3 char,

( 70 )

chor, which was fufpended, as it ufually is, from the head, between his teeth, and ran away with the fhip, at leaft fixty leagues, at the rate of twelve leagues an hour*, when fortunately the cable broke, and we loft both the whale and the anchor. However, upon our return to Europe fome months after, we found the fame whale, within a few leagues of the fame fpot, floating dead upon the water; it meafured above half a mile in length. As we could take but a fmall quantity of fuch a monftrous animal on board, we got our boats out, and with much difficulty cut off his head, where, to our great joy, we found the anchor, and above forty fathom of the cable concealed on the left fide of his mouth, juft under his

* See the plate.

tongue

Page.70.

Publighed according to tet of Parliament, Mav 20,1786, by ci:F caylley Fleet Street, Tomdere.

(2)
Page. 70.

[^4]
(71)

tongue*. This was the only extraordinary circumftance that happened on this voyage. One part of our diftrefs however I had like to have forgotten : while the whale was running away with the fhip, fhe fprung a leak, and the water poured in fo faft, that all our pumps could not keep us from finking: it was, however, my good fortune to difcover it firtt. I found it a large hole about a foot diameter; you will naturally fuppofe this circumftance gives me infinite pleafure, when I inform you, that this noble veffel was preferved, with all its crew, by a moft fortunate thought! In fhort, I completely filled it with my $\quad$ with. out taking off my fmall-clothes, and could have difpenfed with it had it

* Perhaps this was the caufe of his death, as that fide of his tongue was much fwelled, with a great degree of inflammation.

(72)

been larger; nor will you be furprifed when I inform you, I am defcended from Dutch * parents.

My fituation, while I fat there, was rather cool, but the carpenter's art foon relieved me.

* The Baron's anceftors have but lately fettled there : in another part of his Adventures, he boafts of royal blood.

(73)

CHAP. VIII.

Bathes in the Mediterranean - Meets an unexpected companion - Arrives unintentionally in the regions of beat and darknefs, from wbich be is extricated by dancing an bornpipe - Frigbtens bis deliverers, and returns on ßbore.

I Was once in great danger of being loft in a moft fingular manner in the Mediterranean: I was bathing in that pleafant fea near Marfeilles, one fummer's afternoon, when I difcovered a very large fifh, with his jaws quite extended, approaching me with the greateft velocity; there was no time to be loft, nor could I poffibly avoid him. I immediately reduced myfelf to as fmall a fize as poffitle, by clofing my feet and placing my hands alfo near my fides, in which pofition I paffed directly between his jaws, and into his ftomach, where I remained fome time in total darknefs, and comfortably warm, as you may imagine; at laft it occurred to me, that by giving him pain, he would be glad to get rid of me: as I had plenty of room, I played my pranks, fuch as tumbling, hop, ftep, and jump, &cc. but nothing feemed to difurb him fo much as the quick motion of my feet in attempting to dance a hornpipe; foon after I began, he put me out, by fudden fits and flarts: I perievered; at laft he roared horridly, and ftood up almoft perpendicular in the water, with his head and fhoulders expofed, by which he was difcovered by the people on board an Italian trader, then failing by, who harpooned him in a few minutes. As foon as he was brought on board, I heard.

( 74 )

( 75 )

heard the crew confulting how they fhould cut him up, fo as to preferve the greateft quantity of oil. As I underftood Italian, I was in moft dreadful apprehenfions left their weapons employed in this bufinefs fhould deftroy me alfo; therefore I ftood as near the centre as poffible, for there was room enough for a dozen men in this creature's ftomach, and I naturally imagined they would begin with the extremities: however, my fears were foon difperfed, for they began by opening the bottom of the belly. As foon as I perceived a glimmering of light, I called out luttily, to be releafed from a fituation in which I was now almoft fuffocated. It is impoffible for me to do juftice to the degree and kind of aftonifhment which fat upon every countenance at hearing a human voice iffue from a fifh, but more fo at feeing feeing a naked man walk upright out of his body *: in fhort, gentlemen, I told them the whole fory, as I have done you, whilf amazement ftruck them dumb.

( $7^{6}$ )

After taking fome refrefhment, and jumping into the fea to cleanfe myfelf, I fwam to my clothes, which lay where I had left them on the fhore. As near as I can calculate, I was about four hours and a half confined in the ftomach of this animal.

> * See the plate

( 77 )

CHAP. IX.

Adventures in Turkey, and upon the river Nile. - Sees a balloon over Conftantinople; Jboots at, and brings it down: finds a French experimental philofopher fuspended from it. - Goes on an embalfy to Grand Cairo, and returns upon the Nile, where be is tbrowon into an unexpected fituation, and detained fix weeks.

WHEN I was in the fervice of the Turks, I frequently amufed myfelf in a pleafure-barge on the Marmora, which commands a view of the whole city of Conftantinople, including the Grand Signior's Seraglio. One morning, as I was admiring the beauty and ferenity of the fky, I obferved a globular fubftance in the air, which appeared to be about the fize

of

( 78 )

of a twelve-inch globe, with fomething furpended from it. I immediately took up my largeft and longeft barrel fowling piece, which I never travel or make even an excurfion without, if I can help it : I charged it with ball, and fired at the globe ; but to no purpofe, the object being at too great a diftance. I then put in a double quantity of powder, and five or fix balls : this fecond attempt fucceeded; all the balls took effect, and tore one fide open, and brought it down. Judge my furprife, when a moft elegant gilt car, with a man in it, and part of a freep which feemed to have been roafted, fell within two yards of me: when my aftonifhment had in fome degree fubfided, I ordered my people to row clofe to this ftrange aerial traveller.

I took him on board my barge (he was a native of France): he was much indifpofed from his fudden fall into the fea, and incapable of feaking; after fome time, however, he recovered, and gave the following account of himfelf, viz. "About feven or " eight days fince, I cannot tell which, " for I have loft my reckoning, hav" ing been moft of the time where "the fun never fets, I afcended from " the Land's end in Cornwall, in the " ifland of Great Britain, in the "car from which I have been juft "taken, fufpended from a very large " balloon, and took a fheep with me, to "try atmofpheric experiments upon: "unfortunately, the wind changed " within ten minutes after my afcent; " and, inftead of driving towards " Exeter, where I intended to land, I " was driven towards the fea, over "which, I fuppofe, I have continued G 2

( 79 )

" ever

( 80 )

sh ever fince, but much too high to " make obfervations.
" The calls of hunger were fo "preffing, that the intended experi" ments upon heat and refpiration " gave way to them. I was obliged " on the third day, to kill the Sheep for " food; and being at that time infi-" nitely above the moon, and for up"wards of fixteen hours after fo very " near the fun that it fcorched my " eye-brows, I placed the carcafs, "taking care to Ikin it firft, in that " part of the car where the fun had * fufficient power, or, in other words, " where the balloon did not fhade it " from the fun, by which method " it was well roafted in about two " hours. This has been my food "ever fince." Here he paufed, and feemed loft in viewing the objects about him. When I told him the buildings

( 8 i )

buildings before us were the Grand Signior's Seraglio at Conftantinople, he feemed exceedingly affected, as he had fuppofed himfelf in a very different fituation. "The caufe," added he, "of my long flight, was owing " to the failure of a ftring which was " fixed to a valve in the balloon, in" tended to let out the inflammable " air; and if it had not been fired " at, and rent in the manner before " mentioned, I might, like Mahomet, " have been fufpended between hea"ven and earth till doomfday."

The Grand Signior, to whom I was introduced by the Imperial, Ruffian, and Erench ambaffadors, employed me to negociate a matter of great importance at Grand Cairo, and which. was of fuch a nature that it muft ever remain a fecret.

I went there in great fate by land'; G. 3 where where having compleated the bufinefs, I difmiffed almoft all my attendants, and returned like a private gentleman: the weather was delightful, and that famous river the Nile was beautiful beyond all defcription; in fhort, I was tempted to hire a barge, to defcend by water to Alexandria. On the third day of my voyage the river began to rife moft amazingly (you have all heard, I prefume, of the annual overflowing of the Nile), and on the next day it fpread the whole country for many leagues on each fide! On the fifth, at fun-rife, my barge became entangled with what I at firft took for Thrubs; but as the light became ftronger, I found myfelf furrounded by almonds, which were perfectly ripe, and in the higheft perfection*. Upon plumbing with a line, my people found

( 82 )

* See the plate.

Page.III.

( 83 )

we were at leaft fixty feet from the ground, and unable to advance or retreat. At about eight or nine o'clock, as near as I could judge by the altitude of the fun, the wind rofe fuddenly, and canted our barge on one fide; here fhe filled, and I faw no more of her for fome time. Fortunately we all faved ourfelves (fix men and two boys) by clinging to the tree, the boughs of which were equal to our weight, though not to that of the barge: in this fituation we continued fix weeks and three days, living upon the almonds; I need not inform you we had plenty of water. On the fortyfecond day of our diftrefs, the water fell as rapidly as it had rifen, and on the forty-fixth we were able to venture down upon terra firma. Our barge was the firt pleafing object we faw, about two hundred yards from the fpot fpot were the funk. After drying every thing that was ufeful by the heat of the fun, and loading ourfelves with neceffaries from the ftores on board, we fet out to recover our loft ground; and found, by the neareft calculation, we had been carried over gar-den-walls, and variety of inclofures, above 150 miles. In four days, after a very tirefome journey on foot, with thin fhoes, we reached the river, which was now confined to its banks, related our adventures to a Bey, who kindly accommodated all our wants, and fent us forward in a barge of his own. In fix days more we arrived at Alexandria, where we took fhipping for Conftantinople. I was received kindly by the Grand Signior, had the honour of feeing the feraglio, to which his highnefs introduced me himfelf, and prefented me with as many ladies, his wives

( 84 )

( 85 )

wives not excepted, as I thought pro* per to felect for my own amufement, and that of my friends alfo.

CHAP.

( 86 )

C HAP. X.

Pays a vifit during the sege of Gibraltar to bis old friend General Elliot.-Sinks a Spanifs man of war. - Wakes an old woman on the African boaft. - Defiroys all the enemy's camnon; frigbtens the Count d'Artois, and Jends bim to Paris. - Saves the lives of two Englijh Spies with the identical fling that killed Goliath; and raijes the fiege.

D URING the late sfege of Gibraltar, I went with a provifion-fleet under Lord Rodney's command to fee my old friend General Elliot, who had, by his diftinguifhed defence of that place, acquired laurels that can never fade. After the ufual joy which generally attends the meeting of old friends had fubfided, I went to examine the ftate of the garrion, and view the Publifial according to lot of Parliambent Jhay 20.1, 80 , br GKiarfley, Fleet Strat. Iondore.

( 87 )

the operations of the enemy, for which purpofe the General accompanied me. I had brought a moft excellent refracting telefcope with me from London, purchafed of Dollond, by the help of which I found the enemy were going to difcharge a thirty-fix pounder at the fpot where we ftood. I told the General what they were about; he looked through the glafs alfo, and found my conjectures right. I immediately, by his permiffion, ordered a forty-eight pounder to be brought from a neighbouring battery, which I placed with fo much exactnefs (having long ftudied the art of gunnery) that I was fure of my mark.

I continued watching the enemy till I faw the match placed at the touchhole of their piece; at that very inftant I gave the fignal for our gun to be fired alfo. About midway between the two pieces of cannon, the balls ftruck each other with amazing force, and the effect was aftonifhing! The enemy's ball recoiled back with fuch violence as to kill the man who had difcharged it, by carrying his head fairly off, with fixteen others, which it met with in its progrefs to the BARBARY COAST ; where its force, after paffing through three mafts of veffels that then lay in a line behind each other in the harbour, was fo much fpent, that it only broke its way through the roof of a poor labourer's hut, about two hundred yards inland, and deftroyed the few teeth an old woman had left, who lay afleep upon her back with her mouth open. The ball lodged in her throat. Her humband foon after came home, and endeavoured to extract it; but finding that impracticable, by the afiftance of a rammer he forced it into her ftomach, from whence it was dircharged downwards in a natural way. Our ball did excellent fervice; for it not only repelled the other in the mannee jut defcribed; but proceeding as I intended it fhould, it difmounted the very piece of cannon that had been jut employed againft us, and forced it into the hold of the flip, where it fell with fo much force as to break its way through the bottom. The flip immediately filled and funk, with above a thoufand Spanifh failors on board, befides a confiderable number of foldies. This, to be fare, was a moil extraordinary exploit: I will not, however, take the whole merit to myself; my judgment was the principal engive, but chance affined me a little; for I afterwards found, that the man who charged our forty-eight pounder put in, by mistake, a double qua-

( 88 )

( 89 )

H

city
tity of powder, elfe we could never have fucceeded fo much beyond all expectation, efpecially in repelling the enemy's ball.

General Elliot would have given me a commiffion for this fingular piece of fervice; but I declined every thing, except his thanks, which I received at a crowded table of officers at fupper on the evening of that very day.

As I am very partial to the Englifh, who are beyond all doubt a brave people, I determined not to take my leave of the garrifon till I had rendered them another piece of fervice, and in about three weeks an opportunity prefented itfelf. I dreffed myfelf in the habit of a Popifb Prieft, and at about one o'clock in the morning ftole out of the garrifon, paffed the enemy's lines, and arrived in the middle of their camp, where I entered the

(91)

the tent in which the Prince d'Artois was, with the commander in chief, and feveral other officers, in deep council, concerting a plan to form the garrifon next morning. My difguife was my protection; they fuffered me to continue there, hearing every thing that paffed, till they went to their $\mathrm{re}_{-}$ veral beds. When I found the whole camp, and even the fentinels, were wrapped up in the arms of Morpheus, I began my work, which was that of difmounting all their cannon (above three hundred pieces) from forty-eight to twenty-four pounders, and throwing them three leagues into the fea. Having no affiftance, I found this the hardeft tafk I ever undertook, except fwimming to the oppofite fhore with the famous Turkifh piece of ordnance, defcribed by Baron de Tott in his Memoirs, which I fhall hereafter mention,

( $9^{2}$ )

tion. I then piled all the carriages together in the centre of the camp, which, to prevent the noife of the wheels being heard, I carried in pairs undér my arms: and a noble appearance they made, as high at leaft as the rock of Gibraltar. I then lighted a match, by ftriking a flint fone, fituated twenty feet from the ground (in an old wall, built by the Moors, when they invaded Spain), with the breech of an iron eight-and-forty pounder, and fo fet fire to the whole pile. I forgot to inform you, that I threw all their ammunition waggons upon the top.

Before I applied the lighted match, I had laid the combuftibles at the bottom fo judicioufly, that the whole was in a blaze in a moment. To prevent fufpicion, I was one of the firft to exprefs my furprife. The whole camp was, was, as you may imagine, petrified with aftonifhment; the general conclufin was, that their fentinels had been bribed, and that leven or eight regiments of the garrifon had been employed in this horrid deftruction of their artillery. Mr. Drinkwater, in his account of this famous fiege, mentons the enemy fuftaining a great lois by a fire which happened in their camp, but never knew the caufe: how. Should he? as I never divulged it before (though I alone faved Gibraltar by this night's bufinefs), not even to General Elliott. The Count d'Artois, and all his attendants, ran away in their fright, and never flopped on the road till they reached Paris, which they did in about a fortnight. This dreadfut conflagration had fuch an effect upon them, that they were incapable of taking the leaf refrefhment for H 3 three thee months after, but, cameleon-like, lived upon the air.

(93)

If any gentleman will fay be doubts the truth of this fory, I will fine bim a galion of brandy, and make bim drink it at one draugbt.

About two months after I had done the befieged this fervice, one morn. ing, as I fat at breakfaft with General Elliott, a fhell (for I had not time to deftroy their mortars, as well as their cannon) entered the apartment we were fitting in; it lodged upon our table. The general, as moft men would do, quitted the room directly; but I took it up before it burft, and carried it to the top of the rock; when looking over the enemy's camp, on an eminence near the fea-coaft, I obferved a confiderable number of people, but could not, with my naked eye, difcover how they were employed. I had recourfe again to my telefcope, when I found that two of our officers, one a general, the other a colonel, with whom I had fpent the preceding evening, and who went out into the enemy's camp about midnight as fpies, were taken, and then were actually going to be executed on a gibbet. I found the diftance too great to throw the fhell with my hand; but moft fortunately recollecting that I had the very ning in my pocket which affifted David in flaying Goliath, I placed the fhell in it, and immediately threw it in the midit of them: it burft as it fell, and deftroyed all prefent, except the two culprits, who were faved by being fufpended fo high, for they were juft turned off: however, one of the pieces of the fhell flew with fuch force againft

( 95 )

$(96)$

the foot of the gibbet, that it immediately brought it down. Our two friends no fooner felt terra firma, than they looked about for the caufe; and finding their guards, executioner and all, had taken it in their heads to die firt, they directly extricated each other from their difgraceful cords; and then ran down to the fea-fhore, feized a Spanifh boat with two men in it, and made them row to one of our fhips, which they did with great fafety; and in a few minutes after, when I was relating to General Elliott how I had acted, they both took us by the hand, and, after mutual congratulations, we retired to fpend the day with feftivity.

( 97 )

C HAP. XI.

An interefing account of the Baron's an-refers.- A quarrel relative to the spot where Noah built bis ark.-Tbe bifory of the ling, and its proper-ties.- A four to poet introduced upon no very refutable occafion.Queen Elizabeth's abfin ne. - The Baron's father croffes from England to Holland upon a marine bore, which be Sells for seven hundred ducats.

YOU win (I can fee by your coontenances) I would inform you how I became poffefled of fuch a treafure as the ling jut mentioned (Here facts mut be held fared). Thus then it was: I am a defcendant of the wife of Uriah, whom we all know David was intimate with; fie had feveral children by his majefty: they quarrelled once upon

( $9^{8}$ )

upon a matter of the firft confequence, viz. the fpot where Noah's ark was built, and where it refted after the flood. A feparation confequently enfued. She had often heard him fpeak of this ning, as his moft valuable reafure: this fhe ftole the night they parted; it was miffed before the got out of his dominions, and the was purfued by no lefs than fix of the king's body guards : however, by ufing it herfelf, fhe hit the firft of them (for one was more active in the purfuit than the reft) where David did Goliath, and killed him on the fpot. His companions were fo alarmed at his fall, that they retired, and left Uriah's wife to purfue her journey. She took with her, I fhould have informed you before, her favourite fon by this connexion, to whom fhe bequeathed the Ring; ; and thus it has, without interruption, defcended from father to fon till it came into my poffeffion. One of its poffeffors, my great great great grandfather, who lived about two hundred and fifty years ago, was upon a vifit to England, and became intimate with a poet, who was a great deer-ftealer; I think his name was Shakfpeare: he frequently borrowed this ning, and with it killed fo much of Sir Thomas Lucy's venifon, that he narrowly efcaped the fate of my two friends at Gibraltar. Poor Shakfpeare was imprifoned, and my anceftor obtained his freedom in a very fingular manner. Queen Elizabeth was then on the throne, but grown fo indolent, that every trifing matter was become a trouble to her; dreffing, undiefing, eating, drinking, and fome other offices, which fhatl be namelefs, made life a burthen to her: all thefe thin:

( 99 )

( 100 )

he enabled her to do without, or by a deputy! and what do you think was the only return the could prevail upon him to accept for fuch eminent fervices? - Setting Shakfpeare at liberty. Such was his affection for that famous writer, that he would have fhortened his own days to add to the number of his friends.

I do not hear that any of the queen's fubjects, particularly the beefeaters, as they are vulgarly called to this day, however they might be ftruck with the novelty at the time, much approved of her living totally without food. She did not furvive the practice herfelf above feven years and a half.

My father, who was the immediate poffe ffor of this fling before me, told me the following anecdote:

He was walking by the fea-fhore

101)

at Harwich, with this fling in his pocket; before his paces had covered a mile, he was attacked by a fierce animal, called a fea-horfe, open mouthed, who ran at him with great fury; he hefitated a moment, then took out his ning, retreated back about a hundred yards, ftooped for a couple of pebbles, of which there was plenty under his feet, and flung them both fo dexteroully at the animal, that each fone put out an eye, and lodged in the cavities which their removal had occafroned. He now got upon his back, and drove him into the fea; for the moment he loft his fight he loft alfo his ferocity, and became as tame as poffible: the ning was placed as a bridle in his mouth; he was guided with the greateft facility acrofs the ocean, and in lefs than three hours they both arrived on the appofite

( 102 )

fhore, which is about thirty leagues. The mafter of the Three Cups, at Helvoetlluys, in Holland, purchafed this marine horfe to make an exhibition of, for feven hundred ducats, which was upwards of three hundred pounds; and the next day my father paid his paffage back in the packet to Harwich.
dif My father made jeveral curious obJervations in this paflage, wbich I will relate hereafter.
Parc. 702

( 103 )

CHAP XII.

The frolic; its confequences. - Windjor caftle. - St. Paul's. - College of pbyficians, undertakers, fextons, Ejc. alo moft ruined. - Induftry of the apothesaries.

The Frolyc.

T
HIS famous ning makes the por feffor equal to any tafk he is defirous of performing.

I made a balloon of fuch extenfive dimenfions, that an account $c$ ? the filk it contained would exceed all credibility; every mercer's. fhop and weaver's ftock in London, Weftminfter, and Spital-fields, contributed to it: with this balloon and my fling I played many tricks, fuch as taking one houfe from its ftation, and placing another in its ftead, without difturbing the inhabitants, who were generally afleep, or too much employed to obferve the peregrinations of their habitations. When the fentinel at Wind-for-cafte heard St. Paul's clock ftrike thirteen, it was through my dexterity ; I brought the buildings nearly together that night, by placing the caftle in Saint George's Fields, and carried it back again before day-light, without waking any of the inhabitants : notwithftanding thefe exploits, I fhould have kept my balloon and its properties a fecret, if Mongolfier had not made the art of flying fo public.

I 2 another:

( 104 )

On the 30th of September, when the College of Phyficians choofe their annual officers, and dine fumptuoufly together, I filled my balloon, brought it over the dome of their building, clapped the fling round the golden ball

Paoc. 140.

Publifhed as the Act directs by G. Kearrley. at N:46, Fleet Smeet', Londore.
at the top, faftening the other end of it to the balloon, and immediately afcended with the whole College to an immenfe height,* where I kept them upwards of three months. You will naturally enquire what they did for food fuch a length of time? To this I anfwer, Had I kept them furpended twice the time, they would have experienced no inconvenience on that account, fo amply, or rather extravagantly, had they fpread their table for that day's feafting.

Though this was meant as an innocent frolic, it was productive of much mifchief to feveral refpectable characters amongt the clergy, undertakers, fextons, and grave-diggers; they were, it muft be acknowledged, fufferers; for it is a well-known fact, that during the three months the college * See the plate.
was fufpended in the air, and therefore incapable of attending their patients, no deaths happened, except a few who fell before the fcythe of father Time, and fome melancholy objects who, perhaps, to avoid fome trifing inconvènience here, laid the hands of violence upon themfelves, and plunged into mifery infinitely greater than that which they hoped by fuch a rafh ftep to avoid, without a moment's confideration.

If the apothecaries had not been yery active during the above time, half the undertakers, in all probability, would have been bankrupts.

CHAP. XIII.

A TRIP TO THE NORTH.
The Baron Jails with Captain Phipps, -attacks two large bears, and has a very narrow e escape. - Gains the confidence of there animals, and then detroys thousands of them; loads the Trip with their bans and Skins; makes presents of the former, and obtains a general invitation to all city feafts. A dipute between the Captain and the Baron, in which, from motives of politeness, the Captain is suffered to gain bis point. - The Baron declines the bonour of a throne, and an empress into the bargain.
$W_{\text {E }}$ all remember Capt. Phipps's (now Lord Mulgrave) aft voyage of difcovery to the North. I accompaneed the captain, not as an officer, but a private friend. When we arrived in a high northern latitude, I was viewing the objects around me with the telefcope, which I introduced to your notice in my Gibraltar adventures. I thought I faw two large white bears in violent action upon a body of ice confiderably above the mafts, and about half a league diftance. I immediately took my carbine, flung it acrofs my fhoulder, and afcended the ice. When I arrived at the top, the unevennefs of the furface made my approach to thofe animals troublefome and hazardous beyond expreffion: fometimes hideous cavities oppofed me, which I was obliged to fpring over; in other parts the furface was as fmooth as a mirror, and I was continually falling: as I approached near enough to reach them, I found they were only at play. I immediately began to calculate the value of their fkins, for they were each as large as a well-fed ox: unfortunately, at the very inftant I was prefenting my carbine, my right foot llipped, I fell upon my back, and the violence of the blow deprived me totally of my fenfes for near half an hour; however, when I recovered, judge of my furprife at finding one of thofe large animals I have been juft defcribing, had turned me upon my face, and was juft laying hold of the waittband of my breeches, which were then new, and made of leather: he was certainly going to carry me feet foremoft, God knows where, when I took this knife (fhewing a large clafp knife) out of my fidepocket, made a chop at one of his hind feet, and cut off three of his toes; he immediately let me drop, and roared moft horridly. I took up my carbine, and

( 108 )

( 100 )

( 110 )

and fired at him as he ran off; he fell directly. The noife of the piece roufed feveral thoufands of thefe white bears, who were aneep upon the ice within half a mile of me; they came immediately to the fpot. There was no time to be loft. A moft fortunate thought arrived in my pericranium juft at that inftant. I took off the fkin and head of the dead bear in half the time that fome people would be in fkimning a rabbit, and wrapped myfelf in it, placing my own head directly under Bruin's; the whole herd came round me immediately, and my apprehenfions threw me in a moft piteous fitua. tion, to be fure : however, my fcheme turned out a moft admirable one for my own fafety. They all came fmelling, and evidently took me for a brother Bruin: I wanted nothing but bulk to make an excellent counterfeit:

( III)

terfeit: however, I faw feveral cubs amongft them, not much larger than myfelf. After they had all fmelt me, and the body of their deceafed companion, whofe fkin was now become my protector, we feemed very fociable, and I found I could mimic all their actions tolerably well; - but at growling, roaring, or hugging, they were quite my mafters. I began now to think how I might turn the general confidence which I had created amongt thefe animals to my advantage. I had heard an old army furgeon fay, a wound in the fpine was inftant death. I now determined to try the experiment, and had again recourfe to my knife, with which I ftuck the largeft in the back of the neck, near the fhoulders, but under great apprehenfions, not doubting but the creature would, if he furvived the ftab, tear tear me to pieces. However, I was remarkably fortunate; for he fell dead at my feet, without making the leaft noife. I was now refolved to demolifh them every one in the fame manner, which I accomplifhed without the leaft difficulty; for though they faw their companions fall, they had no fuppicion of either the caufe or the effect. When they all lay dead before me, I felt myfelf a fecond Sampfon, having flain my thoufands.

( 112 )

To make fhort of the ftory, I went back to the fhip, and borrowed three parts of the crew, to affift me in fkinning them, and carrying the hams on board, which we did in a few hours, and loaded the fhip with them. As to the other parts of the animals, they were thrown into the fea, though I doubt not but the whole would eat as well as the legs, were they properly cured.

$$
(I 13)
$$

As foon as we returned, I fent fome of the hams, in the captain's name, to the lords of the Admiralty, others to the lords of the Treafury, fome to the lord-mayor and corporation of Lortdon, a few to each of the trading companies, and the remainder to my particular friends, from all of whom I received warm thanks; but from the city I was honoured with fubftantial notice, viz. an invitation to dine at Guildhall annually on Lord Mayor's day.

The bear-fkins I fent to the Emprefs of Ruffia, to clothe her majefty and her court in the winter, for which The wrote me a letter of thanks with her own hand, and fent it by an ambaffador extraordinary, inviting me to fhare the honours of her bed and K crown ; crown; but, as I never was ambitious of royal dignity, I declined her majefty's favour in the politeft terms. The fame ambaffador had orders to wait and bring my anfwer to her majefly perfonally, upon which bufinefs he was abfent about three months: Wer majefty's reply convinced me of the frength of her affection, and the dignity of her mind; her late indifpofition was entirely owing (as fhe, kind creature! was pleafed to exprefs herfelf in a late converfation with the prince Dolguroucki) to my cruelty. What the fex fee in me I cannot conceive, but the Emprefs is not the only female fovereign who has offered me her hand.

( 114 )

Some people have very illiberally reported, that Captain Phipps did not proceed as far as he might have done upon that expedition. Here it becomes my duty to acquit him; our Ship was in very proper trim, till I loaded it with fuck an immenfe quan tity of bear-fkins and hams, after which it would have been madness to have attempted to proceed further, as we were now fcarcely able to combat a brink gale, much leis thole mountains of ice which lay in the higher latitudes.

The captain has fince often expreffed a diffatisfaction that he had no share in the honours of that day, which he emphatically called the bear-kin day. He has alfo been very defirous of knowing by what art I deftroyed fo many thoufands, without fatigue or danger to myfelf: indeed he his fo ambitious of dividing the glory with me, that we have actually quarrelled about it, and we are not now upon flaking terms. He boldly afferts I had no K 2 merit merit in deceiving the bears, becaufe I was covered with one of their flkins; nay, he declares there is not, in his opinion, in Europe, fo complete a bear naturally, as himfelf, among the human fpecies.

( 116 )

He is now a noble peer, and I am too well acquainted with good manners to difpute fo delicate a point with his lordfhip.

CHAP. XIV.

Our Baron excels. Baron Toot beyond all comparison; yet fails in part of bis attempt. -Gets into difgrace with the Grand Signior, who orders bis bead to be cut off. - Escapes, and gets on board a veffel, in which be is carried to Venice. - Baron Tot's origin, with. fome account of that great man's parents. - Pope Ganganelli's amour. His Holiness es fond of 乃ell-fifh.

Baron de Tote, in his Memoirs, makes as great a parade of a fingle act, as many travellers whore who e lives have been fpent in feeing the different parts of the globe; for my part, if I had been blown from Europe to Afia from the mouth of a cannon, I fhou'd have boated leis of it afterwards ti an he has done of only

$$
\mathrm{K}_{3} \quad \text { firing }
$$

( 118 )

fring off a Turkifh piece of ordnance. What he fays of this wonderful gun, as near as my memory will ferve me, is this: "The Turks had placed belore " the caftle, and near the city, on the "banks of Simois, a celebrated river, "an enormous piece of ordnance, caft in "brafs, which would carry a marble " ball of eleven hundred pounds " weigbt. I was inclined, says Tott, "to fire it, but I was willing firf to " judge of its effect; the crowed about " me trembled at this propofal, as they "aferted it would overtbrowe not only " the caftle, but the city alfo: at length "their fears in part fubfided, and I was "permitted to dijcbarge it. It required " not lefs than three hundred and " thirty founds weight of pow"DER; and the ball weighed, as be" fore mentioned, eleven hundred " weight. When the engineer brought

(119)

"the priming, the crowds who were " about me retreated back as faff as they "could; nay, it was with the utmost dif"ficulty I persuaded the РАСНА, who "came on purpose, there was no danger: "even the engineer, who was to discharge " it by my direction; was considerably "s alarmed. I took my ftand on Some
"Atone-rwork behind the cannon, gave "the fignal, and felt a Bock like that " of an earthquake! At the difance " of three hundred fathom, the ball " burt into three pieces; the fragments "cropped the Strait, rebounded on the "opposite mountain, and left the furface " of the water all in a foam, through the "whole breadth of the channel."

This gentlemen, is, as near as I can recollect, Baron Tots's account of the largeft cannon in the known world. Now, when I was there not long fince, the anecdote of Tor's firing firing this tremendous piece was mentioned as a proof of that gentleman's extraordinary courage.

(120)

I was determined not to be outdone by a Frenchman; therefore took this very piece upon my fhoulder, and, after balancing it properly, jumped into the fea with it, and fwam to the oppofite fore, from whence I unfortunately attempted to throw it back into its former place: I fay unfortunately, for it lipped a little in my hand, juit as I was going to dircharge it, and in confequence of that, it fell into the middle of the channel, where it now lies, without a profpect of ever recovering it; and, notwithftanding the ligh favour I was in with the Grand Signior, as before mentioned, this ciuel Turk, as foon as he heard of the lofs of his famous piece of ordnance, iffued an order to cut off my head.

( 121 )

head. I was immediately informed of it by one of the Sultanas, with whom I was become a great favourite, and the fecreted me in her apartment while the officer charged with my exccution was, with his affiftants, in fearch of me.

That very night I made my efcape on board a veffel bound to Venice, which was then weighing anchor to proceed on her voyage.

The laft flory, gentlemen, I am not fond of mentioning, as I miscarried in the attempt, and was very near losing my life into the bargain : however, as it contains no impeachment of my honour, I would not withhold it from you.

Now, gentlemen, you all know me and can have no doubt of my reracity: I will entertain you with the

(122)

the origin of this fame fwaggening, bouncing Tort.

His reputed father was a native of Berne, in Switzerland; his profellion was that of a furveyor of the freets, lanes, and alleys, vulgarly called a fravenger. His mother was a native of the mountains of Savoy, and had a moft beautiful large wen on her neck, common to both fexes in that part of the world; the left her parents when young, and fought her fortune in the fame city which gave his father birth: the maintained herfelf while fingle by acts of kindnefs to our fex, for fhe never was known to refure them any favour they afked, provided they did but pay her fome compliment before hand. This lovely couple met by accident in the ftreet, in confequence of their being both intoxicated; for, by reeling to one centre, they threw each other down; this created mutual abufe, in which they were complete adepts; they were both carried to the watch-houfe, and afterwards to the houre of correction; they foon faw the folly of quarrelling, made it up, became fond of each other, and married: but madam returning to her old tricks, his father, who had high notions of honour, foon feparated himfelf from her; fhe then joined a family who ftrolled about with a puppet fhew. In time fhe arrived at Rome, where fhe kept an oyfter-ftand. You have all heard, no doubt, of Pope Ganganelli, commonly called Clement XIV. he was remarkably fond of oyfters. One Good-Friday as he was paffing through this famous city in ftate, to afiift at high-mafs at St. Peter's church, he faw this woman's oyfters, (which were remarkably fine, and and frefh) he could not proceed without tafting them; there were above five thoufand people in his train ; he ordered them all to ftop, and fent word to the church he could not attend mals till next day; then alighting from his horfe (for the Pope always rides on horfeback upon thefe occafions) he went into her ftall, and ate every oyfter fhe had there, and afterwards retired into the cellar, where fhe had a few more. This fubterraneous apartment was her kitchen, parlour, and bed-chamber. He liked his fituation fo much, that he difcharged all his attendants, and, to make fhort of the ftory, His Holiness paffed the whole night with her! Before they parted, he gave her full abfolution, not only for every fin the had, but all fhe might hereafter commit.

( 123 )

( 124 )

$$
(125)
$$

Now, gentlemen, I have bis mother's word for it, (and ber honour cannot be doubted) that Baron Tote is the fruit of that amour. When Toot was born, bis mother applied to bis Holiness, as the father of beer child: be immediately placed bim under proper people; and as be grew up, gave bim a gentleman's education, bad bim taught the use of arms, procured bin promotion in France, and a title, and when be died be left bim a good effete.

( 126 )

CHAP. XV.

A further account of the journey from Harwich to Helvoet/luys. - Defcription of a number of marine objects, never mentioned by any traveller before.Rocks feen in this paffage, equal to the Alps in magnitude: Lobfers, Crabs, §c. of an extraordinary magnitude. A woman's life faved. - I'be cause of ber falling into the sea.-Dr. Harwes's directions followed with fuccefs.

IOmitted feveral very material parts of my father's journey acrofs the Englifh channel to Holland, which, that they may not be totally loft, I will now faithfully give you in his own words, as I heard him relate them to his friends feveral times.
"On my arrival," fays my father, " at Helvoetीluys, I was obferved

(127)

" to breathe with fome difficulty :
" upon the inhabitants inquiring in" to the caufe, I informed them, that " the animal upon whofe back I rode " from Harwich acrofs to their fhore " did not fwim! fuch is their pecu" liar form and difpofition, that they " cannot float or move upon the " furface of the water: he ran with " incredible fwiftnefs upon the fands, ", from fhore to more, driving filh in " millions before him, many of which " were quite different from any I had " yet feen, carrying their heads at the "extremity of their tails. I croffed," continued he, " one prodigious range " of rocks, equal in height to the "Alps,* on the fides of which there " were a great variety of tall, noble

* The tops or highef parts of thefe marine mountains are faid to be upwards of one hundred fathoms below the furface of the fea.

$$
L_{2} \quad \text { trees }_{2}
$$

(128)

os trees, loaded with marine fruit, fuch or as lobfters, crabs, oyfters, fcollops, os mufcles, cockles, &c. &c. fome of " which were a cart load fingly! and ss none lefs than a porter's! All thofe " which are brought on fhore, and " fold in our markets, are of an infe" rior dwarf kind, or properly water"falls, i.e. fruit fhook off the branches " of the tree it grows upon by the s motion of the water, as thofe in s our gardens are by that of the " wind! The lobfter-trees appeared " the richeft, but the crab and oyfters "s were the talleft. The periwinkle " is a kind of fhrub; it grows at the " foot of the oyfter-tree, and twines " round it, as the ivy does the oak. "I obferved the effects of feveral ac"s cidents by fhipwreck, &xc. particu" larly a fhip that had been wrecked " by friking againft a mountain or rock,
"rock, the top of which lay with ins s three fathoms of the furface. As " The funk, the fell upon her fine, and " forced a very large lobfter-tree out " of its place. It was in the firing, " when the lobsters were very young; " and many of them being feparated " by the violence of the flock, they " fell upon a crab-tree, which was " growing below them ; they have, " like the farina of plants, united, " and produced a fifth refembling both.
"I endeavoured to bring one with " me, but it was too cumberfome, " and my falt-water Pegafus feemed " much difpleafed at every attempt " to fop his career whiff I continued " upon his back; befides, I was then,
" though galloping over a mountain " of rocks that lay about midway the " paffage, at leaft five hundred fathom
" below the furface of the fa, and

$$
\text { L. } 3 \text { " began }
$$

( 130 )

" began to find the want of air in" convenient ; therefore I had no in"clination to prolong the time. Add " to this, my fituation was in other "refpects very unpleafant: I met " many large fifh, who were, if I " could judge by their open mouths, " not only able, but really wifhed to " devour us; now, as my Rofinante "was blind, I had thefe hungry gen" tlemen's attempts to guard againft, "s in addition to my other difficulties. "As we drew near the Dutch " Phore, and the body of water over " our heads did not exceed twenty "fathoms, I thought I faw a human " figure in a female drefs then ly" ing on the fand before me,* with " fome figns of life: when I came "clofe, I perceived her hand move; "' I took it into mine, and brought

[^5]
( 131 )

" her on fhore as a corpfe. An apo" thecary, who had juft been inftructed " by Dr. Hawes,* of London, treated " her properly, and the recovered. "She was the rib of a man who " commanded a veffel belonging to "Helvoetnuys. He was juft going " out of port on a voyage, when fhe, " hearing he had got a miltrefs with " him, followed him in an open " boat. As foon as fhe had got on " the quarter-deck, fhe flew at her " hufband, and attempted to ftrike " him with fuch impetuofity, that he "thought it moft prudent to llip on " one fide, and let her make the im"preffion of her fingers upon the " waves rather than his face: he was " not much out in his ideas of the " confequence; for meeting no oppo-

* The Baron's father mult have lived very lately, if Dr. Hawes was his preceptor.
"fition,

( 132 )

"f fition, fhe went directly overboard, " and it was my unfortunate lot to " lay the foundation for bringing this " happy pair together again. " I can eafily conceive what exe-
" crations the hufband loaded me with, " when, upon his return, he found "this gentle creature waiting his ar"rival, and learned the means by " which the came into the world again. "However, great as the injury is " which I have done this poor devil, " I hope he will die in charity with " me, as my motive was good, though "the confequences to him are, it muft " be confeffed, horrible."

( 133 )

C HAP. XVI.

This is a very fhort cbapter, but contains a fact for which the Baron's memory ought to be dear to every Englifbman, efpecially thofe who may bereafter bave the misfortune of being made prifoners of war.

ON my return from Gibraltar, I travelled by way of France to England. Being a foreigner, this was not attended with any inconvenience to me. I found in the harbour of Calais a fhip juft arrived, with a number of Englifh failors, as prifoners of war. I immediately conceived an idea of giving thefe brave fellows their liberty, which I accomplifhed as follows. After forming a pair of large wings, each of them forty yards long, and fourteen wide, and annexing them to myfelf, myfelf, I mounted at break of day, when every creature, even the watch upon deck, was falt afleep. As I hovered over the fhip, I faftened three grappling irons to the tops of the three mafts, with my fling, and fairly lifted her feveral yards out of the water, and then proceeded acrofs to Dover*, where I arrived in half an hour! Having no further occafion for thefe wings, I made them a prefent to the governor of Dover Cattle, where they are now exhibited to the curious.

( 134 )

As to the prifoners, and the Frenchmen who guarded them, they did not awake till they had been near two hours on Dover Pier. The moment the Englifhmen underfood their fituation, they changed places with their guard, and took back what they had been plundered of, but no more; for they were too generous to retaliate, and plunder them in return.

[^6]
( 135 )

CHAP。

( $13^{6}$ )

C H A P. XVII.

Voyage eaftward.-The Baron introduces a friend who never deceived bim; wins an bundred guineas by pinning bis faith upon that friend's nofe.-Game ftarted at Sea. - Some other circumfances, which will, it is boped, afford the Reader no small degree of amusement.

TNN a voyage which I made to the Faft Indies with Captain Hamilton, I took a favourite pointer with me; he was, to ufe a common phrafe, worth his weight in gold, for he never deceived me. One day when we were, by the beft obfervations we could make, at leaft three hundred leagues from land, my dog pointed: I obferved him for near an hour with aftonifhment, and mentioned the circumftance to the captain and every officer on board, board, afferting, that we mut be near land, for my dog fimelt game. This occafioned a general laugh; but that did not alter in the leaf the good opinon I had of my dog. After much converfation pro and con, I boldly told the captain, I placed more confidence in Tray's noe, than I did in the eyes of every feaman on board; and therefore boldly propofed laying the fum I had agreed to pay for my paffage (viz. one hundred guineas), that we fhould find game within half an hour. The captain (a good hearty fellow) laughed again, defired Mr. Crawford the furgeon, who was irefens, to feel my pulfe: he did fo, and reported me in perfect health. The following dialogue between them took place; I overheard it, though fpoken low, and at forme diftance.

( 137 )

Captain.

( 138 )

Captain. His brain is turned; I cannot with honour accept his wager.

Surgeon. I am of a different opinion; he is quite lane, and depends more upon the fcent of his dog, than he will upon the judgment of all the officers on board: he will certainly lofe, and he richly merits it.

Captain. Such a wager cannot be fair on my fide; however, I'll take him up, if I return his money afterwards.

During the above converfation, Tray continued in the fame fituation, and confirmed me ftill more in my former opinion. I propofed the wager a fecond time; it was then accepted.

Done! and Done! were fcarcely faid on both fides, when fome failors who were filhing in the long-boat, which was made faft to the ftern of the fhip, harpooned an exceeding large fhark, which

( 139 )

which they brought on board, and began to cut up for the purpofe of barrelling the oil, when, behold, they found no lefs than fix brace of live partridges in this animal's fomach !

They had been fo long in that fituation, that one of the hens was fitting upon four eggs, and a fifth was hatching, when the fhark was opened *!!!

* 'This young bird we brought up, by placing it *ith a litter of kittens that came into the world a few minutes before! The old cat was as fond of it as any of her own four-legged progeny, and made herfelf very unhappy when it flew out of her reach till it returned again. As to the other partridges, there were four hens amongft them: one or more were, during the voyage, confantly fitting, and confequently we had plenty of game at the Captain's table; and in gratitude to poor Tray (for being a means of winning one hundred guineas), I ordered him the bones daily, and fometimes a whole bird.

( 142 )

till a frefh gale arifing, filled the fails in every part, and onwards we travelled at a prodigious rate: thus we proceeded above the clouds for fix weeks. At laft we difcovered a great land in the fky, like a flining ifland, round and bright; where, coming into a convenient harbour, we went on fhore, and foon found it was inhabited. Below us we faw another earth, con taining cities, trees, mountains, rivers, feas, &xc. which we conjectured was this world which we had left. Here we faw huge figures riding upon vultures of a prodigious fize, and each of them having three heads. To form fome idea of the magnitude of thefe birds, I muft inform you, that each of their wings are -as wide, and fix times the length of the main-fheet of our veffel, which was about fix hundred tons burthen. Thus, inftead of riding upon horfes, as we do in this world, the inhabitants of the Moon (for we now found we were in madam Luna) fly about on thefe birds. The king we found was engaged in a war with the SUN, and he offered me a commiffion, but I declined the honour his majefty intended me.

(143)

Every thing in this world is of extraordinary magnitude; a common flea being much larger than one of our fheep: in making war, their principal weapons are radifhes, which are ufed as darts; thofe who are wounded by them, die immediately. Their fhields are made of mufhrooms; and their darts (when radifhes are out of feafon) of the tops of afparagus. Some of the natives of the dog-ftar are to be feen here; commerce tempts them to ramble: their faces are like large maftits, with their eyes near the lower end or tip of their nofes; they have no eye-lids, but cover their eyes with the end of their tongues when they go to fleep: they are generally twenty feet high. As to the natives of the Moon, none of them are lefs in ftature than thirty-fix feet; they are not called the human fpecies, but the cooking animals, for they all drefs their food by fire, as we do, but lofe no time at their meals, as they open their left fide, and place the whole quantity at once in their ftomach, then fhut it again till the fame day in the next month; for they never indulge themfelves with food more than twelve times in a year, or once a month. All but gluttons and epicures muft prefer this method to ours.

( 144 )

There is but one fex either of the cooking or any other animals in the Moon; they are all produced from trees of various fizes and foliage: that which produces the cooking animal, or human fpecies, is much more beautiful than any of the others; it has large ftraight boughs, and flefhcoloured leaves, and the fruit it produces are nuts or pods, with hard fhells, at leaft two yards long: when they become ripe, which is known from their changing colour, they are gathered with great care, and laid by as long as they think proper: when they choofe to animate the feed of thefe nuts, they throw them into a large cauldron of boiling water, which opens the fhells in a few hours, and out jumps the creature.

( 145 )

Nature forms their minds for different purfuits before they come into the world; from one fhell comes forth a warrior, from another a philofopher, from a third a divine, from a fourth a lawyer, a lawyer, from a fifth a farmer, from a fixth a clown, &xc. &xc. and all of them immediately begin to perfect themfelves, by practifing what they before knew only in theory.

( 146 )

When they grow old, they do not die, but turn into air, and diffolve like fmoke! As for their drink, they need none; the only evacuations they have are infenfible, and by their breath. They have but one finger upon each hand, with which they perform every thing in as perfect a manner as we who have four befides the thumb. Their heads are placed under their right arm ; and, when they are going to travel, or about any violent exercife, they generally leave them at home, for they can confult them at any diftance : this is a very common practice: and when thofe of rank or quality among the Lunarians have an inclination inclination to fee what's going forward among the common people, they ftay at home, i. e. the body ftays at home, and fends the head only, which is fuffered to be prefent incog. and return at pleafure with an account of what has paffed.

( 147 )

The ftones of their grapes are exactly like hail; and, I am perfectly fatisfied, that when a frorm or high wind in the Moon fhakes their vines, and breaks the grapes from the ftalks, the ftones fall down, and form our hail. fhowers. I would advife thofe who are of my opinion, to fave a quantity of thefe ftones when it hails next, and make Lunarian wine. It is common beverage at Saint Luke's. Some material circumftances I had nearly omitted. They put their bellies to the fame ufe we do a fack, and throw whatever they have occafion for into it, for they can fhu:

( $14^{8}$ )

thut and open it again when they pleafe, as they do their ftomachs: they are not troubled with bowels, liver, heart, or any other inteftines; neither are they incumbered with clothes, nor is there any part of their bodies unfeemly or indecent to exhibit.

Their eyes they can take in and out of their places when they pleare, and can fee as well with them in their hand as in their head! and if by any accident they lofe or damage one, they can borrow or purchafe another, and fee as clearly with it as their own. Dealers in eyes are on that account very numerous in moft parts of the Moon, and in this article alone all the inhabitants are whimfical; fometimes green, and fometimes yellow eyes are the fafhion. I know thefe things appear Atrange; but if the fhadow of a doubt

 See Page 103; $\uparrow$

MUNCHATA施基S TRAVEIAS.

(ase

(. 149 )

can remain on any perfon's mind, I fay, let him take a voyage there himfelf, and then he will know, I am a traveller of veracity.

( 150 )

CHAP. XIX.

The Baron crofles the Thames without the affetance of a bridge, bip, boat, or balloon, or even bis own will; roufes bimpelf after a long nap, and deftroys a monfter, who lived upon the deftrustion of otbers.

MY firft vifit to England was about the beginning of the prefent King's reign. I had occafion to go down to Wapping, to fee fome goods fhipped, which I was fending to fome friends at Hamburgh: after that bufinefs was over, I took the Tower Wharf in my way back. Here I found the fun very powerful; and I was fo much fatigued that I ftepped into one of the cannon to compofe me, where Ifell faft afleep. This was about noon; it was the fourth of June : exactly at one o'clock, thefe cannon were all difcharged in memory of the day: they had been all charged that morning, and having no fufpicion of my fituation, I was fhot over the houfes on the oppofite fide of the river, into a farmer's yard, between Bermondfey and Depiford, where I fell upon a large hayftack, without waking, and continued there in a found fleep till hay became fo extravagantly dear (which was about three months after); that the farmer found it his intereft to fend his whole ftock to market: the ftack I was repofing upon was the largeft in the yard, containing above five hundred load; they began to cut that firf. I waked (with the voices of the people who had afcended the ladders to begin at the top) and got up, totally ignorant of my fituation;

(15)

( 152 )

in attempting to run away, I fell upon the farmer to whom the hay belonged, and broke his neck, yet received no injury myfelf! I afterwards found, to my great confolation, that this fellow was a moft deteftable character, always keeping the produce of his grounds for extravagant markets.

( 1.53 )

CHAP. XX.

The Baron Sips through the world: after paying a visit to Mount Etna, be finds bimjelf in the South Sea; rifts Vulcan in bis paflage; gets on board a Dutchman; arrives at an iland of Cheefe, surrounded by a sea of Milk; describes forme very extraordinary ob-jecris.-Lofe their compafs; their fop Sips between the teeth of a fib l unknown in this part of the world; their diffisully in escaping from thence; arrive in the Caspian Sea. -Starves a bear to death.-A few waifcoat anecdotes.In this chapter, which is the longeft, the Baron moralizes upon the virtue of veracity.

MR. Brydone's Travels to Sicily, which I had read with great pleafure, N 3 induced:

(154)

indused me to pay a vifit to Mount Etna; my voyage to this place was not attended with any circumftances worth relating. One morning early, three or four days after my arrival, I fet out from a cottage where I had flept, within fix miles of the foot of the mountain, determined to explore the internal parts, if I perifhed in the attempt. After three hours hard labour, I found myfelf at the top; it was then, and had been for upwards of three weeks raging ; its appearance in this fate has been fo frequently noticed by different travellers, that I will not tire you with defcriptions of objects you are already acquainted with. I walked round the edge of the crater, which appeared to be fifty times at leaft as capacious as the Devil's Punch-Bowl near Petersfield, on the Portfmouth road, but not fo broad at the bottom, as in that part it refembles the contracted part of a funnel more than a punch-bowl. At laft, having made up my mind, in I fprang feet foremoft: I foon found myfelf in a warm birth, and my body bruifed and burnt in various parts by the redhot cinders, which, by their violent afcent, oppofed my defcent; however, my weight foon brought me to the bottom, where I found myfelf in the midft of noife and clamour, mixed with moft horrid imprecations; after recovering my fenfes, and feeling a reduction of my pain, I began to look about me. Guefs, gentlemen, my aftonifhment, when I found myfelf in the company of Vulcan and his cyclops, who had been quarrelling for the three weeks before mentioned, about the obfervation of good order and due fubordination, and which had occafioned fioned fuch alarms for that fpace of time in the world above. However, my arrival reffored peace to the whole fociety, and Vulcan himfelf did me the honour of applying platters to my wounds, which healed them immediately ; he alfo placed refrefhments before me, particularly nectar, and other rich wines, fuch as the gods and goddefles only afpire to. After this repaft was over, Vulcan ordered Venus to fhew me every indulgence which my fituation required. To defcribe the apartment and the couch on which I repofed, is totally impoffible, therefore I will not attempt it : let it. fuffice to fay, it exceeds the power of language to do it juftice, or fpeak of that kind-hearted goddefs in any terms equal to her merit.

(155)

( 156 )

Vulcan gave me a very concife account of Mount Etna; he faid it was nothing more than an accumulation of afhes thrown from his forge; that he was frequently obliged to chaftife. his people, at whom, in his paffion, he made it a practice to throw red-hot coals at home, which they often parried with great dexterity, and then threw them up into the world, to place them out of his reach, for they never attempted to affault him in return, by throwing them back again: our quarrels, added he, laft fometimes three or four months, and thefe appearances of coals or cinders in the world are what I find you mortals call eruptions. Mount Vefuvius, he affured me, was another of his fhops, to which he had a paffage three hundred and fifty leagues under the bed of the fea, where fimilar quarrels produced fimilar eruptions. I fhould have continued here as an humble attendant upon Madam Venus; but fome bufy tattlers

( 157 )

(158)

tattlers, who delight in mifchief, whifpered a tale in Vulcan's ear, which roufed in him a fit of jealoufy not to be appeafed. Without the leaft previous notice, he took me one morning under his arm, as I was waiting upon Venus, agreeably to cuftom, and carried me to an apartment I had never before feen, in which there was, to all appearance, a well, with a wide mouth : over this he held me at arm'slength, and faying, "Ungrateful mor" tal, return to the world from webence " you came," without giving me the leaft opportunity of reply, dropped me in the centre. I found myfelf defcending with an increafing rapidity, till the horror of my mind deprived me of all reflection. I fuppofe I fell into a trance; from which I was fuddenly roufed, by plunging into a large body body of water illuminated by the rays of the fun!!

( 159 )

I could, from my infancy, fwim well, and play tricks in the water. I now found myfelf in paradife, confidering the horrors of mind I had juft been releafed from. After looking about me fome time, I could difcover nothing but an expanfe of fea, extending beyond the eye in every direction; I alfo found it very cold, a different climate from Mafter Vulcan's fhop. At laft I obferved, at fome diftance, a body of amazing magnitude, like a huge rock, approaching me: I foon difcovered it to be a piece of foating ice; I fwam round it till I found a place where I could afcend to the top, which I did, but not without fome difficulty. Still I was out of fight of land, and defpair returned with double force: however, before night night came on, I faw a fail, which we approached very faft; when it was within a very fmall diftance, I hailed them in German; they anfwered in Dutch; I then flung myfelf into the fea, and they threw out a rope, by which I was taken on board. I now enquired where we were, and was informed, in the great Southern Ocean; this opened a difcovery which removed all my doubts and difficulties. It was now evident that I had paffed from Mount Etna through the centre of the earth to the South Seas ; this, gentlemen, was a much fhorter cut than going round the world, and which no man has accomplifhed, or ever attempted, but myfelf: however, the next time I perform it, I will be much more particular in my obfervations.

( 160 )

I took fome refrefhment, and went to reft. The Dutch are a very rude for of people; I related the Etna paffage to the officers, exactly as I have done to you; and fome of them, particularly the Captain, feemed by his grimace and half-fentences to doubt my veracity : however, as he had kindly taken me on board his veffel, and was then in the very act of adminittering to my necefities, I pocketed the af. front.

( 161 )

I now in my turn began to enquire where they were bound? To which they anfwered, they were in fearch of new difcoveries; " and if, faid they, your fory is true, a nerw paffage is really dijcovered, and we Joall not return difappointed." We were now exactly in Captain Cook's firft track, and arrive 1 the next morning in Botany Bay. This place I would by no means recommend to the Englifh government as O a rea receptacle for felons, or place of punifhment: it fhould rather be the reward of merit, nature having moft bountifully beftowed her beft gifts upon it.

( 162 )

We ftaid here but three days; the fourth after our departure, a moft dreadful ftorm arofe, which in a few hours deftroyed all our fails, fplintered our bowfprit, and brought down our top-maft; it fell directly upon the box that inclofed our compars, which, with the compafs, was broken to pieces. Every one who has been at fea, knows the confequences of fuch a misfortune ; we now were at a lofs where to fleer. At length the ftorm abated, which was followed by a fteady brifk gale, that carried us at leaft forty knots an hour for fix months*! when we began to obferve

* We fhould fuppofe the Baron has made a little miftake and fubfituted months for days.

( 163 )

an amazing change in every thing about us; our fpirits became light, our nofes were regaled with the moft aromatic effluvia imaginable: the fea alfo had changed its complexion, and from green became white! Soon after thefe wonderful alterations we faw land, and not at any great diftance an inlet, which we failed up near fixty leagues, and found it wide and deep, flowing with milk of the moft delicious tafte. Here we landed, and foon found it was an ifland confifting of one large cheefe: we difcovered this by one of the company fainting away as foon as he landed; this man always had an averfion to cheefe: wher he recovered, he defired the cheefe to be taken from under his feet; upon examination we found him perfectly right, for the whole ifland, as before obferved, was nothing but a cheefe of $\mathrm{O}_{2}$ im-

( 164 )

immenfe magnitude! Upon this the inhabitants, who are amazingly numerous, principally fuftain themfelves, and it grows every night in proportion as it is confumed in the day. Here feemed to be plenty of vines, with bunches of large grapes, which, upon being preffed, yielded nothing but milk. We faw the inhabitants running races upon the furface of the milk; they were upright, comely figures, nine feet high, have three legs, and but one arm; upon the whole, their form was graceful; and when they quarrel, they exercife a ftrait horn, which grows in adults from the centre of their foreheads, with great adroitnefs : they did not fink at all, but ran and walked upon the furface of the milk, as we do upon a bowlinggreen.

Upon this inland of cheefe grows great plenty of corn, the ears of whictr produce loaves of bread, ready made, of a round form like mufhrooms. We difcovered, in our rambles over this cheefe, feventeen other rivers of milk, and ten of wine.

( 165 )

After thirty-eight days journey, we arrived on the oppofite fide to that on which we landed; here we found fome blue mould, as cheefe-eaters call it, from whence fpring all kinds of rich fruit: inftead of breeding mites, it produced peaches, nectarines, apricots, and a thoufand delicious fruits, which we are not acquainted with. In thefe trees, which are of an amazing fize, were plenty of birds nefts: amongtt others was a king-fifher's, of prodigious magnitude; it was at leaft twice the circumference of the dome of St. Paul's church in London: upon infpection, this neft was made of huge

( 166 )

huge trees, curiounly joined together ; there were, let me fee (for I make it a rule always to ppeak witbin compafs), there were upwards of five hundred eggs in this neft, and each of them was as large as four common hogfheads or eight barrels, and we could not only fee, but hear the young ones chirping within. Having, with great fatigue, cut open one of thefe eggs, we let out a young one unfeathered, confiderably larger than twenty fullgrown vultures. Juft as we had given this youngter his liberty, the old king fifher lighted, and feizing our captain, who had been active in breaking the egg, in one of her claws, flew with him above a mile high, and then let him drop into the fea, but not till the had beaten all his teeth out of his mouth with her wings.

Dutchmen generally fwim well; he foon

Pac. $76 \%$.
$\qquad$ 沮 Yis

( 167 )

foon joined us, and we retreated to our fhip. On our return we took a different route, and obferved many ftrange objects. We fhot two wild oxen, each with one horn alfo, like the inhabitants, except that it fprouted from between the eyes of thefe animals: we were afterwards concerned at having deftroyed them, as we found, by inquiry, they tamed thefe creatures and ufed them as we do horfes, to ride upon and draw their carriages; their flefh, we were informed, is excellent, but ufééfs where people live upon cheefe and milk. When we had reached within two days journey of the fhip, we obferved three men hanging to a tall tree by the heels: upon enquiring the caufe of their punifhment, I found they had all been travellers, and upon their return home had deceived their friends, by defcribing fcribing places they never faw, and relating things that never happened: this gave me no concern, as I bave ever confined myjelf to facts.

( 168 )

As foon as we arrived at the fhip, we unmoored, and fet fail from this extraordinary country, when, to our aftonifhment, all the trees upon fhore, of which there were a great number very tall and large, paid their refpects. to us twice, bowing to exact time, and immediately recovered their former pofture, which was quite erect.

By what we could learn of this Cheese, it was confiderably larger than the continent of all Europe !

After failing three months we knew not where, being fill without compafs, we arrived in a fea which appeared to be almoft black; upon tafting it, we found it moft excellent wine, and had great difficulty to keep the

(169)

the failors from getting drunk with it: however, in a few hours we found ourfelves furrounded by whales and other animals of an immenfe magnitude; one of which appeared to be too large for the eye to form $+a$ judgment of: we did not fee him till we were clofe to him. This monfter drew our fhip, with all her mafts ftanding, and fails bent, by fuction, into its mouth, between its teeth, which were much larger and taller than the maft of a firtt-rate man of war. After we had been in his mouth fome time, he opened it pretty wide, took in an immenfe quantity of water, and floated our veffel, which was at leaft 500 tons burthen, into his ftomach; here we lay as quiet as at anchor in a dead calm. The air, to be fure, was rather warm, and very offenfive. We found anchors, cables, boats, and barges

( 170 )

barges in abundance, and a confiderable number of fhips, fome laden and fome not, which this creature had fwallowed. Every thing was tranfacted by torch-light; no fun, no moon, no planet, to make obfervations from. We were all generally afloat and aground twice a-day: whenever he drank, it became high-water with us; and when he evacuated, we found ourfelves aground: upon a moderate computation, he took in more water at a fingle draught than is generally to be found in the Lake of Geneva, though that is above thirty miles in circumfererice. On the fecond day of our confinement in thefe regions of darknefs, I ventured at low water, as as we called it, when the fhip was aground, to ramble with the Captain, and a few of the other officers, with lights in our hands: we met with people

(171)

ple of all nations, to the amount of upwards of ten thoufand; they were going to hold a council how to recover their liberty ; fome of them having lived in this animal's ftomach feveral years, there were feveral children here who had never feen the world, their mothers having lain-in repeatedly in this warm fituation. Juft as the chairman was going to inform us of the bufinefs upon which we were affembled, this plaguy fifh becoming thirfy, drank in his ufual manner: the water poured in with fuch impetuofity, that we were all obliged to retreat to our refpective fhips immediately, or run the rifque of being drowned; fome were obliged to fwim for it, and with difficulty faved their lives. In a few hours after, we were more fortunate; we met again juft after the monfter had evacuated. I was chofen

(172)

chairman, and the firft thing I did was to propofe fplicing two main-mafts together; and the next time he opened his mouth, to be ready to wedge them in, fo as to prevent his fhutting it. It was unanimoully approved. One hundred ftout men were chofen upon this fervice. We had fcarcely got our mafts properly prepared, when an opportunity offered; the montter opened his mouth: immediately the top of the maft was placed againft the roof, and the other end pierced his tongue, which effectually prevented him from fhutting his mouth. As foon as every thing in his ftomach was afloat, we manned a few boats, who rowed themfelves and us into the world. The day-light, after, as near as we could judge, three months confinement in total darknefs, cheered our fipirits furprifingly. When we had all taken our leave of this capacious animal, we muftered juft a fleet of ninety-five fhips, of all nations, who had been in this confined fituation.

( 573 )

We left the two mafts in his mouth, to prevent others being confined in the fame horrid gulph of darknefs and filth. Our firft object was to learn what part of the world we were in : this we were for fome time at a lofs to afcertain; at laft I found, from former obfervations, that we were in the Cafpian Sea, which wafhes part of the country of the Calmuck Tartars! How we came here, it was impoffible to conceive, as this fea has no communication with any other. One of the inhabitants of the Cheefe Ifland, whom I had brought with me, accounted for it thus ; that the monfter, in whofe ftomach we had been fó long confined, had carried us here $P \quad$ through through fome fubterraneous paffage; however, we pufhed to fhore, and I was the firft who landed. Juft as I put my foot upon the ground, a large bear leaped upon me, with his forepaws; I caught one in each hand, and fqueezed him till he cried out moft luftily; however, in this pofition I held him till I ftarved him to death. You may laugh, gentlemen, but this was foon accomplifhed, as I prevented him licking his paws. From hence I travelled up to St. Peterfburgh a fecond time; here an old friend gave me a moft excellent pointer, defcended from the famous bitch before mentioned, that littered while the was hunting a hare. I had the misfortune to have him fhot foon after by a blundering fportiman, who fired at him initead of a covey of partridges which he had juit fet. Of this creature's fkin I have had this waitcoat made (hhewing his waiftcoat), which always leads me involuntarily to game if I walk in the fields in the proper feafon; and when I come within fhot, one of the buttons conftantly flies off, and lodges upon the fpot where the fport is; and, as the birds rife, being always primed and cocked, I never mifs them. Here are now but three buttons left. I fhall have a new fet fewed on againft the fhooting feafon commences.

( 175 )

When a covey of partridges is difturbed in this manner, by the button falling amongt them, they always rife from the ground in a direct line before each other. I one day, by forgetting to take my ram-rod out of my gun, fhot it ftraight through a leafh, as regularly as if the cook had fitted them. I had forgot to put in any fhot, and the rod had been made fo hot with the powder, that the birds were completely roafted by the time I reached home.

$$
P_{2} \quad \text { fhot, }
$$

Since my arrival in England I have accomplifhed what I had very much at heart, viz. providing for the inhabitant of the Cheefe Inland, whom I had brought with me. My old friend, Sir William Chambers, who is intirely indebted to me for all his ideas of Chinefe gardening, by a defcription of which he has gained fuch high reputation; I fay, gentlemen, in a difcourfe which I had with this gentleman, he feemed much diftreffed for a contrivance to light the lamps at the new buildings, Somerfet Houfe: the common mode with ladders, he obferved, was both dirty and inconvenient. My native of the Cheefe 1nand popped into my head; he was only nine feet high when I firft brought him from his own country, but was now increafed to ten and an half: I introduced him to Sir William, and he is appointed to that honourable office. He is alfo to carry, under a large cloak, an utenfil in each coat pocket, inftead of thofe four which Sir William has very properly fixed for private purpofes-in fo confpicuous a fituation, in the great quadrangle.

( 177 )

He has alfo obtained from Mr. $P_{\text {Itt }}$, the fituation of meffenger to his Majefty's lords of the bed-chamber, whofe principal employment will now be, divulging the fecrets of the Royal Houfehold to their wortby patron.

$-(178)$

S UPPLEMENT.

Extraordinary Flight on the Back of and Eagle over France to Gibraltar, Soutb and North America, the Polar Regions, and back to England, within fix-andthirty bours.

ABOUT the beginning of his prefent Majefty's reign I had fome bufinefs with a diftant relation who then lived on the ine of Thanet; it was a family difpute, and not likely to be finifhed foon. I made it a practice during my refidence there, the weather being fine, to walk out every morning. After a few of thefe excurfions, I obferved an object upon a great eminence about three miles diftant; I extended my walk to it, and found the ruins of an ancient temple: I approached it with admiration admiration and aftonifhment ; the traces of grandeur and magnificence which yet remained were evident proofs of its former fplendour : here I could not help lamenting the ravages and devaftations of time, of which that once noble ftructure exhibited fuch a melancholy proof. I walked round it feveral times, meditating on the fleeting and tranfitory nature of all terreftrial things: on the eaftern end were the remains of a lofty tower, near forty feet high, overgrown with ivy, the top apparently flat; I furveyed it on every fide very minutely, thinking that if I could gain its fummit, I fhould enjoy the moft delightful profpect of the circumjacent country. Animated with this hope, I refolved, if poffible, to gain the fummit; which I at length effected by means of the ivy, though not without great difficulty and danger:

( 180 )

ger: the top I found covered with this evergreen, except a large chafm in the middle. After I had furveyed with pleafing wonder the beauties of art and nature that confpired to enrich the fcene, curiofity prompted me to found the opening in the middle, in order to afcertain its depth, as I entertained a fufpicion that it might probably communicate with fome unexplored fubterranean cavern in the hill; but having no line, I was at a lofs how to proceed. After revolving the matter in my thoughts for fome time, I refolved to drop a ftone down, and liften to the echo: having found one that anfwered my purpofe, I placed myfelf over the hole with one foot on each fide, and ftooping down to liften, I dropped the ftone; which I had no fooner done, than I heard a rufling below, and fuddenly

( 18 I )

denly a monftrous eagle put up its head right oppofite my face; and rifing up with irrefiftable force, carried me away feated on its fhoulders. I inftantly grafped it round the neck, which was large enough to fill my arms; and its wings, when extended, were ten yards from one extremity to the other. As it arofe with a regular afcent, my feat was perfectly eafy, and I enjoyed the profpect below with inexpreflible pleafure. It hovered over Margate for fome time, was feen by feveral people, and many fhots were fired at it ; one ball hit the heel of my fhoe, but did me no injury. It then directed its courfe to Dover cliff, where it alighted, and I thought of difmounting; but was prevented, by a fudden difcharge of mufquetry from a party of marines that were exercifing on the beach: the balls flew about my head,

( 182 )

and rattled on the feathers of the eagle like hail-ftones ; yet I could not perceive it had received any injury. It inftantly re-afcended, and flew over the fea towards Calais; but fo very high, that the channel feemed to be no broader than the Thames at Londonbridge. In a quarter of an hour I found myfelf over a thick wood in France, where the eagle defcended very rapidly, which caufed me to flip down to the back part of its head: but alighting on a large tree, and raifing its head, I recovered my feat as before, but faw no poffibility of difengaging myfelf without the danger of being killed by the fall: fo I determined to fit faft, thinking it would carry me to the Alps, or fome other high mountain, where I could difmount without any danger. After refting a few mi. nutes it took wing, flew feveral times round the wood, and fcreamed loud enough to be heard acrofs the Englifh channel. In a few minutes one of the fame fpecies arofe out of the wood, and flew directly towards us: it furveyed me with evident marks of difpleafure, and came very near me. After flying feveral times round, they both directed their courle to the fouth-weft. I foon abferved that the one I rode upon could not keep pace with the other, but inclined towards the earth, on account of my weight : its companion perceiving this, turned round, and placed itfelf in fuch a poffion that the other could reft its head on its rump: in this manner they proceeded till noon, when I faw the rock of Gibraltar very diftinctly. The day being clear, notwithfanding my degree of elevation, the earth's furface appeared jult like a map, where land, fea, lakes, rivers, rivers, mountains, and the like, were perfectly diftinguifhable; and having fome knowledge of geography, I was at no lofs to determine what part of the globe I was in.

( 183 )

( 184 )

While I was contemplating this wonderful profpect, a dreadful howling fuddenly began all around me, and in a moment I was invefted by thoufands of fmall, black, deformed, frightfullooking creatures, who preffed me on all fides in fuch a manner that I could neither move hand nor foot: but I had not been in their poffeffion more than ten minutes, when I heard the moft delightful mufic that can poffibly be imagined; which was fuddenly changed into a noife the moft awful and tre mendous, to which the report of cannon, or the loudeft claps of thunder, would bear no more proportion than the gentle zephyrs of the evening to the moft dreadful hurricane: but the fhortnefs of its duration prevented all thofe fatal effects which a prolongation of it would certainly have been attended with.

(185)

The mufic commenced, and I faw a great number of the moft beautiful little creatures feize the other party, and throw them with great violence into fomething like a fnuff-box, which they fhut down ; and one threw it away with incredible velocity; then turning to me, he faid, they whom he had fecured were a party of devils, who had wandered from their proper habitation; and that the vehicle in which they were inclofed would fly with unabating rapidity for ten thoufand years, when it would burft of its own accord, and the devils would recover their liberty and faculties, as at the prefent moment. He had no fooner finifhed this relation than the mufic ceafed, and they all difappeared, leaving me in a ftate of mind bordering on the confines of defpair.

( 186 )

When I had recompofed myfelf a little, and looking before me with inexpreffible pleafure, I obferved that the eagles were preparing to alight on the peak of Teneriffe: they defcended on the top of a rock: but feeing no poffible means of efcape if I difmounted, determined me to remain where I was. The eagles fat down feemingly fatigued, when the heat of the fun foon caufed them both to fall anleep; nor did I long refint its fafcinating power. In the cool of the evening, when the fun had retired below the horizon, I was roufed from nleep by the eagle moving under me; and having ftretched myfelf along its back, I fat up, and reaffumed my travelling pofition, when they

( 187 )

they both took wing, and having placed themfelves as before, directed their courfe to South America. The moon flining bright during the whole night, I had a fine view of all the inands in thofe feas.

About the break of day we reached the great continent of America, that part called Terra Firma, and defcended on the top of a very high mountain. At this time the moon, far diftant in the weft, and obfcured by dark clouds, but juft afforded light fufficient for me to difcover a kind of fhrubbery all around, bearing fruit fomething like cabbages, which the eagles began to feed on very eagerly. I endeavoured to difcover my fituation, but fogs and paffing clouds involved me in the thickeft darknefs; and what rendered the fcene ftill more fhocking, was the tremendous howling of wild beafts, Q 2 fome fome of which appeared to be very near: however, I determined to keep my feat, imagining that the eagle would carry me away if any of them fhould make an hoftile attempt. When day light began to appear, I thought of examining the fruit which I had feen the eagles eat; and as fome was hanging, which i could eafily come at, I took out my knife, and cut a flice; but how great was my furprife to fee that it had all the appearance of roaft beef regularly mixed, both fat and lean! I tafted it, and found it well flavoured and delicious; then cut feveral large nices, and put in my pocket, where I found a cruft of bread which I had brought from Margate ; took it out, and found three mufket balls that had been lodged in it on Dover cliff. I extracted them, and cutting a few nices more, made

( 188 )

( 189 )

made a hearty meal of bread and cold beef fruit. I then cut down two of the largeft that grew near me, and tying them together with one of my garters, hung them over the eagle's neck for another occafion, filling my pockets at the fame time. While I was fettling thefe affairs, I obferved a large fruit like an inflated bladder, which I wifhed to try an experiment upon; and ftriking my knife into one of them, a fine pure liquor like Holland's gin gufhed out, which the eagles obferving, eagerly drank up from the ground. I cut down the bladder as faft as I could, and faved about half a pint in the bottom of it, which I tafted, and could not diftinguih it from the heft mountain wine. I drank it all, and found myfelf greatly refrefhed. By this time the eagles began to ftagger againft the fhrubs. I endeavoured to Q3 keep keep my feat, but was foon thrown to fome diffance among the burhes. In attempting to rife, I put my hand upon a large hedge-hog, which happened to lie among the grafs upon its back: it inftantly clofed round my hand, fo that I found it impoffible to thake it off. I ftruck it feveral times againit the ground without effect ; but while I was thus employed', I heard as ruftling among the fhrubbery, and looking up, I faw an huge animal within three yards of me: I could make no defence, but held out both my hands, when it rufhed upon me, and feized that on which the hedge-hog was fixed My hand being foon relieved, I ran to fome diftance, where I faw the creature fuddenly drop down, and expire with the hedge-hog in its throat. When the danger was paft, I went to view the eagles, and found them lying

(190)

( 19 I )

ing on the grafs faft aneep, being intoxicated with the liquor they had drank. Indeed I found myfelf con. fiderably elevated by it, and feeing every thing quiet, I began to fearch for fome more, which I foon found; and having cut down two large bladders, about a gallon each, I tied them together, and hung them over the neck of the other eagle; and two fmaller ones 1 tied with a cord round my own waif. Having fecured a good ftöck of provifions, and perceiving the eagles begin to recover, I again took my feat. In half an hour they arofe majeftically from the place, without taking the leaft notice of their incumbrance. Each reaffumed its former ftation; and directing their courfe to the northward, they croffed the Gulf of Mexico, entered North America, and fteered directly for the Polar Polar regions; which gave me the fineft opportunity of viewing this valt continent that can poffibly be imagined.

Before we entered the frigid zone, the cold began to affect me; but piercing one of my bladders, I took a draught, and found that it could make no impreffion on me afterwards. Paffing over Hudfon's Bay, I faw feveral of the company's fhips lying at anchor, and many tribes of Indiarts marching with their furs to market.

By this time I was fo reconciled to my feat, and became fuch an expert rider, that I could fit up and look around me; but in general I lay along the eagle's neck, grafping it in my arms, with my hands immerfed in its
I feathers, in order to keep them warm.
In thefe cold climates I obferved that the eagles flew with greater rapidity, pidity, in order, I fuppofe, to keep their blood in circulation. In paffing Baffin's Bay I faw feveral large Greenlandmen to the ealtward, and many furprifing mountains of ice in thofe feas.

( 193 )

While I was furveying thefe wonders of nature, it occurred to me that this was a good opportunity to difcover the north-weft paffage, if any fuch thing exifted, and not only obtain the reward offered by government, but the honour of a difcovery pregnant with fo many advantages to every European nation. But while my thoughts were abforbed in this pleafing reverie, I was alarmed by the firt eagle ftriking its head againft a folid tranfparent fubftance; and in a moment that which I rode experienced the fame fate; and both fell down feemingly dead.

(194)

Here our lives muft inevitably have terminated, had not a fenfe of danger, and the fingularity of my fituation, infpired me with a degree of fkill and dexterity, which enabled us to fall near two miles perpendicular with as little inconveniency as if we had been let down with a rope : for no fooner did I perceive the eagles ftrike againft a frozen cloud, which is very common near the poles, than (they being clofe together) I laid myfelf along the back of the foremoft, and took hold of its wings to keep them extended, at the fame time ftretching out my legs behind to fupport the wings of the other. This had the defired effect; and we defcended very fafe on a mountain of ice, which I fuppofed to be about three miles above the level of the fea.

I difinounted; unloaded the eagles;

( 195 )

opened one of the bladders, and adminiftered fome of the liquor to each of them, without once confidering that the horrors of deftruction feemed to have confpired againft me. The roaring of waves, crafhing of ice, and the howling of bears, confpired to form a fcene the moft awful and tremendous ; but notwithftanding this, my concern for the recovery of the eagles was fo great, that I was infenfible of the danger to which I was expofed. Having rendered them every affiftance in my power, I ftood over them in painful anxiety, fully fenfible that it was only by means of them that I could poffibly be delivered from thefe abodes of defpair.

But fuddenly a monftrous bear began to roar behind me, with a voice like thunder. I turned round, and seeing the creature juft ready to devour me, having the bladder of liquor in my hands, through fear I fqueezed it fo hard, that it burft, and the liquor flying in the eyes of the animal, totally deprived it of fight. It inftantly turned from me, ran away in a ftate of diftraction, and foon fell over a precipice of ice into the fea, where I faw it no more.

(196)

The danger being over, I again turned my attention to the eagles, whom I found in a fair way of recovery; and furpecting that they were faint for want of victuals, I took one of the beef fruits, cut it into fmall flices, and prefented them with it, which they devoured with avidity.

Having given them plenty to eat and drink, and difpofed of the remainder of my provifion, I took poffeflion of my feat as before. After compofing myfelf, and adjufting every thing thing in the beft manner, I began to eat and drink very heartily ; and through the effects of the mountain, as I called it, was very cheerful, and began to fing a few verfes of a fong, which I had learned when I was a boy: but the noife foon alarmed the eagles, who had been anleep, through the quantity of liquor which they drank, and they arofe feemingly much terrified. Happily for me, however, when I was feeding them, I had accidently turned their heads towards the fouth-eaft, which courfe they purfued with a rapid motion. In a few hours I faw the wettern ifles; and foon after had the inexpreffible pleafure of feeing old England. I took no notice of the feas or inlands over which I paffed.

( 197 )

The eagles defcended gradually as they drew near the fhore, intending, as I fuppofed, to alight on one of the R

Welch

( 198 )

Welch mountains; but when they came to the diftance of about fixty yards, two guns were fired at them, loaded with balls, one of which took place in a bladder of liquor that hung to my waift; the other entered the breaft of the foremoft eagle, 'who fell to the ground, while that which I rode, having received no injury, flew away with amazing fwiftnefs.

This circumftance alarmed me exceedingly, and I began to think it was impofible for me to efcape with my life; but recovering a little, I once more looked down upon the earth; when, to my inexpreffible joy, I faw Margate at a little diftance, and the eagle defcending on the old tower whence it had carried me on the morm ing of the day before. It no fooner came down, than I threw myfelf off, happy to find that I was once more reftared reitored to the world. The eagle flew away in a few minutes, and I fat down to compofe my fluttering fpirits, which I did in a few hours.

( 199 )

I foon paid a vifit to my friends, and related thefe adventures. Amazement ftood in every countenance ; their congratulations on my returning in fafety were repeated with an unaffected degree of pleafure, and we paffed the evening, as we are doing now, every perfon prefent paying the higheft compliments to my Courage and Veracity.

> FND OF VOLUME THE FIRST

$$
(x-2 e t))^{0}
$$

 2 No

嵒
?

[^0]:    *. The Baron's eyes have retained fire ever fince, and appear particularly illuminated when he relates this anecdote.

[^1]:    D 2 vourable

[^2]:    E on

[^3]:    * See the plate- + See the plate.

[^4]:

[^5]:    * See the plate.

[^6]:    * See the plate.

