A B E Y

TO THE

SPELLING OF THE INDIAN.

---

A a—has the uniform sound of a in fate.

E e—has the uniform long sound of e in tete.

I i—has the long sound when it begins a word, or constitutes a syllable, and the short sound in all other cases. The two sounds are like i in pine, and i in in.

O—has the uniform long sound of o in note.

Ö—has the short sound of o in ou.

U—has the sound of u gun, except at the end of a word followed by k, when it has the sound of oo in good, food.

ah—has the sound of ah in Jehovah.

uh—has the sound of u in ugly.

— this marks the nasal sound, and the words are pronounced as if the vowel was followed by n obscure.

B b—as in English.

C c—as in English.

D d—as in English.

G g—always hard, as g in game or go.

H h—as in English.

J j—always soft, sometimes like ch soft.

K k—as in English.

M m—as in English.

N n—as in English.

P p—as in English.

Q q—as in English.

S s—as in English.

T t—as in English.

W w—as in English.

Y y—as in English.

Z z—as in English.

Call him—I wish to speak to him

Did you call him ?

No—he has gone into the woods

He will be home soon

What is he doing ?

Chopping fire-wood

Do you go to school ?

Yes

Do you like to learn how to read ?

Certainly

Why do you like to learn ?

I wish to be wise ; I am too ignorant. I want to learn God's word—what is written in his book. I wish to know many other things besides, written in other books. I wish all the children of the Indians to know God's word.
I wish them to listen to the ministers (or teach-rant; our mothers also

 Their minds are dark.—
 Our forefathers for a long time have been so.
 They love their own religion. Some of them hate to hear of this true light which comes from heaven,—it is the very word of God.

Yes, my sister; I pity those who are ignorant and wicked. They do not understand (or know)
 the great God; his Son, (Jesus Christ,) and His Spirit (the Holy Ghost.)
