A SQUALL IN THE HONEY-MOON.

It's too bad, we have only been married two weeks, and—she's got my breeches on.

Bad Memory.

A village pedagogue in despair with a stupid boy, pointed at the letter A, and asked him if he knew it. 'Yes, sir.' 'Well, what is it?' 'I knows him, very well by sight, but rot me if I can call his name.'

March of Education.

In the learned city of Toronto, the other week, a lady was rebuking her servant for some fault or neglect of duty. All at once the lecture was interrupted by the pert damsel exclaiming, 'stop, Mrs — that is shocking to educated ears. If you are to scold me at all, I beg you will do it grammatically.'

On an Ugly Man.

With such a nose and face you dare not look
In the still lake or in the tranquil brook;
Or else you're sure to meet Narcissus' fate,—
He died from love of self, you'll die from hate.

To be let, or to be sold, for the term of her life,
Elizabeth Hall—by the way of a wife;
She's old and she's ugly, ill-natured and thin:
For further particulars enquire within.

The Yankee Beauty, that was so ugly he was afraid to sleep alone.

A ROSE BETWEEN TWO THISTLES.

Green grow the rashes, O!
Green grow the rashes, O!
The sweetest hours that e'er I spent,
Were spent among the lasses, O!

There's nought but care on ev'ry han',
In ev'ry hour that passes, O;
What signifies the life o' man,
An 't were na for the lasses, O!

SONG OF THE HEN-PECKED HUSBAND.

O her hair is dark as the midnight wave,
And her eye is like kindling fire,
And her voice is sweet as the spirit's is
That chords with the seraph's lyre.

But her nails are as sharp as a toasting fork,
And her arm is as strong as a bear's;
She pulled my hair, and she gouged my eye,
And she kicked me down the stairs.

I've got me an eye that's made of glass,
And I've got me a wig that's new—
The wig is frizzled in corkscrew curls,
And the eye is a clouded blue.

She may shake her knuckles full in my face,
And put the lamp to my beard,
And hold the broomstick over my head—
But I'm not a bit afraid!

I've bound her over to keep the peace,
And I've bought me a crabtree cane—
The justice will come, and the constable too,
If she meddles with me again.

My head was a week in the linnen cap,
And my eye a month in the patch;
I never thought the torch of love,
Would light such a brimstone match!

A FITTING PAIR.

*“Sure such a pair was never seen,
By nature formed to come together.”*

NATIVES OF THE SILLY ISLES,
Or, Marks of Intelligence.

“What are you jumping after there?” said a schoolmaster to an urchin who stood up to his eyes in shirt collar.

“I wanted to spit, sir,” was the reply, “and I was jumping up to try to spit over my dickey.”

Praise without profit, puts little in the pocket.

Seek till you find, and you will not lose your labour.

YANKEE AMALGAMATION.

Liberty on both sides.—[Scene, a porter house.]—"Cuff, you're a good honest fellow, and I like to compliment a man wat's lived an honest life, if he is black! you shall take a glass of something to drink with me, Cuff!"—"Well, Capt'n, I's berry dry, so I won't be ugly 'bout it—some niggers is too proud to drink wid a militia ossifer, but I tink a militia ossifer, when he's sober, is jis as good as a nigger—'specially if nigger's dry!—yockee! yockee! yockee!"

A Loafer's Soliloquy.—
 "All my friends have dropped off! I never thought any of them would be so elevated. Well, 'luck's all,' wisely and truly hath the poet said, 'hanging is no-thing, it's what goes before, that's the devil.' I shall remain in suspense until I am suspended; but no more on that line, dying is too solemn a thing for me to make my exit grinning through a hempen cravat, though for matter of fact it will be no-thing but giving the devil his due."

What is the difference between a living stag & a dead friend?—The one is "Dear alive," and the other the "Dear deceased."

Mr. Botts.—Yaw, I dinks she's a-rorer.

Auctioneer.—Ha! ha! very good; thank you, Mr. Botts—$50—only 50—Oh! gentlemen, she's worth that to work one mud machine. Perfectly sound in wind and limb, and only $50.

Countryman.—Will she go well under the saddle?

Auc.—O yes; it would be a monstrous sad-ill if she did'nt. I'll put $10 on for you, sir. $60 for this beautiful blooded mare; stir her up, Joe, and let the gentlemen see her graceful movements. Thank you, sir; you're a man of taste—$65 for the beautiful Aurora. I say, Mr. Snooks, you needn't be pulling at her mouth; she's like most discreet ladies, she wont tell her age. $70 for you, Mr. Snooks? No! Well, $65 to Mr. Snivel!—once—twice—three—Snivel—No such thing.

Auc.—Well, no matter—$60 to Mr. — the countryman.—Stop, sir; I'll be switched if I bid any thing.—Zounds, gentlemen, somebody must have her. Going to Mr. Botts for $50.—Donder and Blitzum! I'll give vive tollars.—Thank you, sir; $5—once! twice! three times! She's worth half the money!

JOHN BULL,

Just come over to dance us a Hornpipe, with his breeches on.

A wag of a fellow, by some unlucky accident, made a small rent in his pantaloons. His landlady discovering his linen upon the chair under him, and thinking it a napkin, endeavored to pull it away undiscovered. The fellow feeling what was going on, seized the collar of his shirt with both hands, exclaiming, 'By jolly, you must tear the collar off before you get it.'

Sir Walter Scott had a pet servant whom he had indulged until he was positively beyond all endurance. 'This won't do,' cried Sir Walter, in a passion. 'We can't live together any longer—we must part.' 'An' where the devil does your honor mean to go?' asked the servant.

How to raise the Rent.

A mechanic in this city was thus accosted by his landlord: 'John, I am going to raise your rent.' John replied, 'Sir, I am very much obliged to you, for I cannot raise it myself.'

As James was one day in deep chat with his friend, He gravely advised him his manners to mend,
That his morals were bad he had heard it from many:
They lie, replied James, for I never had any.

A Countryman being nettled at a severe joke, turned round to the wit and observed, "that every man had his gift; yours is to crack jests, mine to break heads," which he accordingly executed with a severe blow.

Borrowing a knocker.—"Why, you'd better knock the door down—what do you want?" "Och, my darling! don't let me wake any of your family; I'm jist using your knocker to wake the papple next door: I'm locked out, d'ye see, and they've niver a knocker at all." [Rap, rap, rap.]

A COUNTRY GRUB CHANGED TO A CITY BUTTERFLY.

This is a portrait of a raw and unsophisticated child of nature, leaving his hoe and rake to become a tape and needle clerk, and ends by becoming a rake himself.

A caterpillar no more,
the butterfly shines forth
the effects of two years'
counterspunging in the city: "I say, Jem, sa-
lary's cursed low, dem,
me; and if it was't for
me; and if it was't for sour kroul, I could't go
March Street."

The wretch that would a tyrant own,
 And the wretch, his true born brother,
 Who would set the mob above the Throne,
 May they be hang'd together!

Who will not sing "God save the King,"
 Shall hang as high's the steeple;
 But while we sing "God save the King,"
 We'll ne'er forget the People. BURNS.

Friendship.

There are people whose friendship is very like the Weland Canal; that is to say, its repairs cost more than the fee simple is worth.

Mr. H. was recently turned out of office by his political opponents: the next year, having turned his coat, he was reinstated. Some one expressing surprise at Mr. H.'s sudden reinstatement, "Oh, said a wag, "he was only turned out 'during good behaviour.'"

A hungry fellow took up a raw egg, cracked the shell, and was raising it to his mouth, when his ear was saluted by the shrill pipe of an unborn chicken. "You spoke too late," said he, and down went pullet, feathers and all.

The Hatter and the Rustic.—"There are tricks in all trades but ours," as the lawyer said to his client.

An honest rustic went into the shop of a quaker to buy a hat, for which twenty-five shillings was demanded. He offered twenty shillings.

"As I live," said the quaker, I cannot afford it thee at that price."

"As I live," exclaimed the countryman, "then live more moderately, and be hanged to you."

"Friend," said the Quaker, "thou shalt have the hat for nothing. I have sold hats for twenty years, and my trick has never been found out till now."
