SIR: I have the honour to advise you, that in consequence of General Sullivan's information, first by letter and afterwards verbally, that you were willing to exchange him for Major-General Prescott, and Brigadier-General Lord Stirling for any Brigadier of yours in our possession, I wrote to Congress to send General Prescott to some convenient place from whence the proposed exchange might be made.

And supposing that it would be agreeable to exchange Lord Stirling for Brigadier-General McDonald, he is also come forward with General Prescott. Both these gentlemen are now at Elizabethtown, and I only wait your answer to this, in which you will please to fix the time and place, when and where the exchange may be effected.

I am, sir, with due respect, &c.,

Go. WASHINGTON.

To Lieutenant-General Howe.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO COMMANDING OFFICER OF MASSACHUSETTS MILITIA.

New-York, September 19, 1776. }

SIR: The honourable Assembly of the State of the Massachusetts-Bay having informed me by letter of the 13th instant, that they have ordered a number of Militia to reinforce the army under my command, and requested my order for their destination, I therefore request that you will give direction that the whole of them may be brought forward as expeditiously as they can; sending before you, when you get within three or four days' march of King's Bridge, an officer to receive instructions from me how they are to be stationed and disposed of. It will be proper to send notice of this to the officers who are behind you with part of the men, that they may know how to conduct themselves.

I am, sir, &c.,

Go. WASHINGTON.

To the Commanding Officer of the First Division of the Massachusetts Militia marching towards King's Bridge.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE MASSACHUSETTS ASSEMBLY.

New-York, September 19, 1776. }

GENTLEMEN: I was honoured the night before last with your favour of the 13th instant, and at the same time that I conceive your anxiety to have been great, by reason of the vague and uncertain accounts you received respecting the attack on Long-Island, give me leave to assure you that the situation of our affairs, and the important concerns which have surrounded me, and which are daily pressing on me, have prevented me from transmitting, in many instances, the intelligence I otherwise should have conveyed.

In respect to the attack and retreat from Long-Island, the publick papers will furnish you with accounts nearly true. I shall only add, that in the former we lost about eight hundred men; more than three-fourths of which were taken prisoners. This misfortune happened, in great measure, by two detachments of our people who were posted in two roads leading through a wood, in order to intercept the enemy in their march, suffering a surprise, and making a precipitate retreat, which enabled the enemy to lead a great part of their force against the troops commanded by Lord Stirling, which formed a third detachment, who behaved with great bravery and resolution, charging the enemy and maintaining their posts from about seven or eight o'clock in the morning till two in the afternoon, when they were obliged to attempt a retreat, being surrounded and overpowered by numbers on all sides, and in which many of them were taken. One battalion (Smallwood's of Maryland) lost two hundred and fifty-nine men, and the general damage fell upon the regiments from Pennsylvania, Delaware, and Maryland, and Colonel Huntington's, of Connecticut.

ware, and Maryland, and Colonel Huntington's, of Connecticut.

As to the retreat from the Island, it was effected without loss of men, and with but very little baggage. A few heavy cannon were left, not being moveable on account of the ground's being soft and miry through the rains that had fallen.

The enemy's loss in killed we could never ascertain; but have many reasons to believe that it was pretty considerable, and exceeded ours a good deal. The retreat from thence was absolutely necessary, the enemy having landed the main body of their army there to attack us in front, while their ships of war were to cut off the communication with the city, from whence resources of men, provisions, &c., were to be drawn.

Having made this retreat, not long after we discovered by their movement and the information we received from deserters and others, that they declined attacking our lines in the city, and were forming a plan to get in our rear with their land army, by crossing the Sound above us, and thereby cut off all intercourse with the country, and every necessary supply. The ships of war were to coöperate; possess the North River, and prevent succour from the Jerseys, &c. This plan appearing probable, and but too practicable in its execution, it became necessary to guard against the fatal consequences that must follow, if their scheme was effected; for which purpose I caused a removal of a part of our stores, troops, &c., from the city; and a council of General Officers determined on Thursday last that it must be entirely abandoned; holding up, however, every show and appearance of defence, till our sick and all our stores could be brought away. The evacuation being resolved on, every exertion in our power was made to baffle their design and effect our own. The sick were numerous, and an object of great importance; happily we got them away; but before we could bring off all our stores, on Sunday morning, six or seven ships of war, which had gone up the East River some few days before, began a most severe and heavy cannonade, to scour the ground and effect a landing of their troops. Three ships of war ran up the North River that morning above the city, to prevent our boats and small craft carrying away our baggage, &c.

I had gone the evening before to the main body of our army, which was posted about the Heights and Plains of Harlem, where it seemed probable, from the movements and dispositions of the enemy, they meant to land and make an attack the next morning. However, the event did not happen. Immediately on hearing the cannonade, I rode with all possible expedition towards the place of landing, where breastworks had been thrown up to secure our men, and found the troops that had been posted there, to my great surprise and mortification, and those ordered to their support, (Parsons's and Fellows's brigades,) notwithstanding the exertions of the Generals to form them, running away in the most shameful and disgraceful manner. I used every possible effort to rally them, but to no purpose; and, on the appearance of a small party of the enemy, not more than sixty or seventy in number, they ran off without firing a single shot. Many of our heavy cannon would have inevitably fallen into the enemy's hands, as they landed so soon; but this scandalous conduct occasioned a loss of many tents, baggage, and camp-equipage, which would have been easily secured had they made the least opposition. The retreat was effected with the loss of three or four men only. We encamped, and still are, on the Heights of Harlem, which are well calculated for defence against their approaches. On Monday morning they advanced in sight in several large bodies, but attempted nothing of a general nature, though there were smart skirmishes between their advanced parties and some detachments from our lines, which I sent out. In these our troops behaved with great resolution and bravery, putting them to flight in open ground, and forcing them from posts they had seized, two or three times. A Sergeant who deserted from them says, the report was they had eighty-nine missing and wounded, and eight killed; in the last instance his account is too small, because our people have buried more than twice as many. In number our loss was very inconsiderable; but in the fall of Lieutenant-Colonel Knowlton, of Connecticut, I consider it as great, being a brave and good officer. Major Leitch, who commanded a detachment from the Virginia regiment, unfortunately received three balls through his side; he still supports his spirits, and seems as if he would do well. Colonel Knowlton was interred with every honour due to his merit, and that the situation of things would admit of. Since this affair, nothing has happened. The enemy, it is said, are bringing forward several heavy cannon to force us from the Heights. At the same time that they open their batteries in front, their ships of war, seven or eight of which are in the North River, are to cannonade our right flank.

Thus have I run over, in a cursory, rough way, an account of the most material events from the battle on Long-Island to the present moment. I have not time to study order or elegance. This, however, I do not so much mind, and only wish my narrative was more agreeable; but we must set down things as they are. I hope they will be better; nothing on my part shall be wanting to bring about the most favourable events.

I am now to make my most grateful acknowledgments to your honourable body for the succour they meant to afford me in the Militia lately ordered to march, and have only to lament that they should be so unprovided with tents and other camp necessities. Our distresses in these instances are extremely great, having by no means a sufficiency for the troops already here; nor do I know how they can be procured. I am at a loss for the officers' names who command this reinforcement, as they are not mentioned; however, I have wrote by Fessenden that they should lead the men on as fast as possible, sending before them, when they get within one or two days' march of King's Bridge, an officer to receive orders from me how they are to be disposed of. Instructions given now might become improper, by the intervention of a variety of circumstances.

I have the honour to be, &c.,

GO. WASHINGTON.

To the Hon. Jeremiah Powell, Esq., President, &c.

JOHN HUNTER TO JOHN M'KESSON.

King's Bridge, September 19, 1776.

SIR: I have been very industrious in getting the Linen Manufactory removed to Hackensack; it is necessary for me staying there, to have it carried on. General Scott would not have me resign my commission without orders from Congress. Mr. Rosevelt is for my continuing with the Factory. Mr. Ramsey has been sick for some time at Elizabethtown. Please send me an answer by return of the post, to be left at General Scott's.

I am, sir, yours respectfully,

JOHN HUNTER.

To John McKesson, Esquire.

JOHN THOMAS, JUN., TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

In Committee of Safety for the County of Westchester, }
White-Plains, September 19, 1776. }

GENTLEMEN: As a great number of poor and indigent persons, as well from the work-house as others of New-York, have been sent into this County, and no person to take care of them, it has been recommended to us to provide houses for said poor, which we have done in the best manner we could, which was to divide them in the several districts of said County; and as we find they must suffer, though they have houses provided, unless they have food, and as food is not to be got without money, we cannot find any one to provide for the said poor, without your honourable House will interpose either by appointing some person or persons to provide for them, or else to empower us to appoint persons in each district to provide for them, and at the same time we must be furnished with money as well to pay what has been laid out for the use of said poor as to purchase more provision. Humanity causes us to solicit your interposition, as without it the poor must suffer in spite of all can be done. By order of Committee:

JOHN THOMAS, Jun., Chairman.

To the President of the Convention of the State of New-York.

ROBERT AND JAMES TOTTEN TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

September 19, 1776.

We, having part in a brig laying in Sawpit Creek, agreed, with the other owners, to have her loaded in Philadelphia, in consequence of which we ordered a freight of flour, purchased in that place. On applying to the Committee for a permit to go round in ballast, they did not incline to agree thereunto. Their reasons against it were, the danger of the Captain's availing himself of such an opportunity of going over to the enemy. The design of her voyage was to take a cargo of flour for Curacoa, and return with a freight of salt. We should thank the Convention if they would, as soon as convenient, give us their determination on the matter.

ROBERT & JAMES TOTTEN.

To the President of the Convention of New-York.

GENERAL GATES TO GENERAL ARNOLD.

Tyonderoga, September 19, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: Last night I received your letters of the 15th and 16th instant, with the examination of Sergeant Thomas Day, late of Colonel McLane's regiment, and the old Canadian. The former I take to be the truth as nearly as he had an opportunity of knowing it. The latter I think of exactly as you do. However, it behooves us to keep a good look out.

I am much pleased with the disposition you have made with the fleet; confident it is the best. General Waterbury is indefatigable in fitting the galleys, and if he is not detained for want of proper rope for breechings, I see nothing can stop them more than a week at most.

This will be delivered you by Captain Hawley; General Waterbury thinks you will immediately appoint him to the command of the Royal Savage; he takes all his seamen with him.

Mr. Avery writes you by this conveyance, and explains the article relative to provisions; sufficient of both fresh and salt shall be sent you by the galleys.

I have this morning a letter from General Schuyler, in which is the following paragraph:

"I cannot inform you of what is passing at New-York; General Washington's time is so totally engrossed that I can hardly expect he should write me, unless there is an absolute necessity." This is every syllable I have heard since I had the pleasure to write to you last.

As this conveyance is not so entirely certain as that of the galleys, I shall defer being more particular until General Waterbury sails.

I am, dear General, your affectionate, humble servant,

HORATIO GATES.

To Brigadier-General Arnold.

P. S. The tobacco papers will be delivered you by the bearer.

COLONEL BARRETT TO GENERAL GATES.

Rutland, September 19, 1776.

SIR: In obedience to your Honour's commands, as soon as I arrived on Otter Creek, I immediately sent an express off with your Honour's orders to Major Hoisington. Said express has this instant returned without any thing from the Major more than verbal, which is that they were under the direction of the Committees only, and were not raised or incorporated to work on the roads, but for scouting only; therefore refuse to comply. The express informs me the reason assigned therefor was, that he had a scout out or about to go out, of two men of his party, but was not out when your Honour's orders arrived there, as the express avers. I would inform your Honour that there are two hundred men stationed that way, exclusive of Major Hoisington's, raised by the State of New-Hampshire. Your Honour's further orders in the affair I shall cheerfully and vigorously pursue. The party I have on the road and bridge are as expeditious as possible. The great bridge will be raised next week, and I hope finished if the weather permits. I am in want of spades; I could get but eight at Skenesborough.

From your Honour's most obedient, humble servant,

JOHN BARRETT, Superintendent.

To the Hon. General Gates.

MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL TO GENERAL LINCOLN.

Watertown, September 19, 1776.

SIR: Your two letters of yesterday are now before us, and you now have enclosed a printed copy of a resolve of the General Court; by perusing the same you will find that no provision is made for the appointment of brigadiers to this service. The Council on finding this to be the case, have given over the purpose of appointing any. By the same resolve you will also learn the power vested in you of appointing Brigade-Majors; and the Council have no doubt of your making judicious appointments. The Council apprehend they cannot with propriety give directions as to the furnishing horses for the use of officers or any other persons.

To General Lincoln.

COPY OF A LETTER FROM CAPTAIN BRAITHWAITE, OF THE HAMPDEN PACKET, DATED FALMOUTH, ENGLAND, SEPTEMBER 20, 1776.

September 5.—I received the mail and sailed for Lisbon, with the wind to the northward. I received as passengers Mr. Scott, Mr. Fisher, and Mr. Smith, and as distressed subjects, Captain Thomas Moore, his mate and five of his people, being the master and part of the crew of the Mary and James, of Falmouth, bound from London to Salerno, Naples, and Messina, but last from Falmouth, having sailed from thence the 20th of August, with a cargo worth between twenty and thirty thousand pounds, and was taken the 1st instant, on the coast of Portugal, fourteen leagues northwest from Cape St. Vincent, (in sight of Mount Chigo;) by an American privateer of eight carriage guns and a number of swivels, commanded by Simon Forrester,* an Irishman, well known at Lisbon and Falmouth. The privateer was sloop rigged and called the Rover; it being little wind, and rowing with twelve oars, she soon came up with Captain Moore. She had taken before, six sail on the coast, whose people she landed at Faro. The 22d of August a Guineaman, from Bristol, John Baker, master, engaged her, but blew up in the action, and only three men saved out of twenty-eight. They stripped Captain Moore and his people of every thing, and even threatened their lives, and sent the prize directly for America. The next day, being about eight leagues from Cape Spichell, they gave Captain Moore his boat, in which he reached Setuval that night. The Captain of the privateer would not tell him what place he belonged to, but said there were an hundred and fifty of them fitted out of different ports of America. The people told Captain Moore they belonged to Salem, and that several more had sailed from thence for the coast of Spain and Portugal.

T. P. BRAITHWAITE.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM CAPTAIN MOORE, LATE COMMANDER OF THE MARY AND JAMES, DATED FROM ON BOARD THE HAMPDEN PACKET-BOAT, ARRIVED AT FALMOUTH.

You will be surprised at hearing from me in this part of the world. The reason you will see by the protest handed to you. I was taken by a privateer called the Rover, a sloop of eight carriage guns and fourteen swivels; when she left America she had on board eighty men, but when they took me they had only thirty-eight. The Captain's name is Simon Thomson; where she belonged to, I could not learn from them. They appeared more like pirates than any thing else. They had taken six vessels before mine, but I do not remember any of their names; she had also an engagement with a snow belonging to Bristol, Captain Bates, which blew up after fighting six hours; only three of the crew were saved out of twenty-six, two of whom were landed on the coast of Algarve, with three masters of vessels and their crews, and the others entered on board the privateer. There were men of different nations on board of her, but the Captain and major part of the crew were Irish.

A. J. ALEXANDER TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Grenada, September 20, 1776.

SIR: It is probable the many years I have been settled in this country, may almost have made you forget the acquaintance we once had. The noble and generous part you have acted in the foremost rank of the most honourable struggle that mankind were ever engaged in, shall always make me look upon that acquaintance as the greatest honour of my life.

I must confess I have long had an ambition to write you, to convince you of my hearty concurrence in measures which appear to me planned and executed with equal wisdom and justice. No man in the same humble sphere has raised his voice higher than myself in the cause of liberty, and I should be too happy to be able to contribute towards the support of that cause, which I consider as the cause of mankind.

Captain Moulton, the bearer of this, has promised to deliver it if he should be taken; if not, he will destroy it. I need hardly recommend him to your protection; the known humanity of your disposition makes me certain that he will meet with every indulgence which is consistent with the general welfare. I beg my most respectful compliments to your brothers, to Dr. Franklin, to Richard Henry Lee my old and intimate school-fellow, and in general to all your friends in Virginia, most of whom were formerly my acquaintance.

I am, with the greatest respect, sir, your most obedient and most humble servant,
A. J. ALEXANDER.
To General Washington.

COLONEL CRAWFORD TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Williamsburgh, September 20, 1776.

SIR: I should have been glad to have the honour of being with you at New-York, but I am doubtful we shall be involved in an Indian war to the westward, as the Shawnees and Delawares seem in doubt, and from the last accounts from Fort Pitt, had not met our people (Doctor Walker and the Commissioners) who were sent to treat with them from this Government. I should have come to New-York with those regiments ordered there, but the regiment I belong to is ordered to this place. If a war with the westerly Indians happen, I am to go there.

I this Spring, before I came from over the mountains, called at Simpson's, to see your mill go for the first time of its running; and can assure you I think it the best mill I ever saw any where, though I think one of a less value would have done as well. If you remember, you saw some rocks at the mill-seat; those are as fine mill-stone grit as any in America. The millwright told me the stones he got for your mill there were equal to English burrs. Your land on Shurlee's Creek is well cultivated, ready to your hand; the men on it thinking you have no patent for that land, or that, if you have, that you will sell them the land on reasonable terms.

At our last Convention I mentioned the state of lands, and the state of the claimants in general, and amongst other circumstances, mentioned the expense you had been at in having the first improvements on that land, and then laying a warrant on them, and notwithstanding those persons would take it at any rate, upon which an ordinance passed, that all equitable claims should take place. Some, I understand, have since been trying to sell their right of your land; but I have had some advertisements printed and sent up, forewarning any person to purchase those lands, setting forth your title.

I have laid the balance of your warrant on some land on the river that I think will suit, but have not got it run out to my mind, as there is some dispute, and I believe I shall buy them out, if I can reasonable.

Excuse the length of this letter. I shall only add that I wish you to enjoy life, health, and overcome all enemies, and should be happy to see you once more enjoy yourself in pleasure at Mount Vernon.

I am, sir, your most humble servant,

WM. CRAWFORD.

To His Excellency General Washington, New-York.

Williamsburgh, September 20, 1776.

A vessel has arrived at Hampton, with twelve hundred bushels of salt; and on Thursday one came up to Burwell's Ferry, with a quantity of that useful article, besides rum, sugar, linens, &c. She came from Cape Nicola Mole, and brings advice of an insurrection of the Negroes in Jamaica, on account of the scarcity of provisions. Between sixty and seventy white people had been killed, numbers of the Negroes taken and gibbeted, and martial law proclaimed through the Island.

His Excellency General Lee is expected here daily from the southward.

Last Thursday Captain Theodorick Bland's Troop of Light-Horse arrived in town from Petersburg; and yesterday arrived, from Gloucester, the Seventh Regiment of Foot, (late Daingerfield's, now Crawford's) in place of the Fifth, who, as well as the Fourth and Sixth, are under orders to proceed to New-York.

COLONEL WRIGHT TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Queen Anne's County, September 20, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: In obedience to a request from the President of the Convention, signified to me by his letter of the 8th instant, I immediately wrote to the several Captains, and Commanding-Officers where there are no Captains, requesting them to call their companies together—those on Kent Island to meet on Monday, and those on the main to meet on Tuesday, now past. A few days after I had wrote to the officers on the main, the principal persons in five of the companies (some of the officers in them excepted) had a meeting, and determined to meet on the Monday, and not on the Tuesday, agreeable to my request. Being in hopes it would be in my power to remove some prejudices, I desired Majors Hemsley and Emory to attend at Kent Island, (where more than an hundred privates attended,) and determined to go myself to the other field, where, after the privates were drawn up in one line, to the number of sixty or seventy, Mr. James O'Bryon informed them that the business of the day was to choose Field-Officers; that there was a probability of there being none gratified; that he offered himself for the first office, and said he demanded it as a matter of right for two reasons: first, because he was the oldest officer in the battalion, and, secondly, because he thought himself as well qualified, if not better, than any other. Three gentlemen were then named to take the polls. The number of those who voted, I cannot, with certainty, pretend to say, as I was by the company denied a copy of the number of votes, but believe it somewhere between fifty and sixty. However, on the clerks examining their numbers, Mr. James O'Bryon was declared duly elected Colonel, Mr. James Bordley Lieutenant-Colonel, Mr. John Dames First, and Mr. George Hause Second Major.

While the men were standing up, I happened to be in argument with Mr. Turbutt Wright, a threat was made to throw us over the fence. I knew it was designed for myself. However, it did not intimidate me from speaking my sentiments.

It is well known that gentleman has publickly advised the people not to meet in battalion under any appointment but their own, and he avowed it in the last Convention. It is said that some of the gentlemen (Delegates from Queen Anne's County) have wrote over to some of their friends, who have long opposed the Convention with regard to their appointments, not only of Field Officers, but other Militia officers, that the Convention is disposed to gratify them in their own appointments, and that now is the time. If that be the case, why does not the Convention signify it to us, or take the commissions from us by commissioning others? The people have been induced to believe they ought not to submit to any appointments but those made by themselves; so that whenever I have requested a meeting of the battalion, part of the officers and five of the companies have met before, and not on the days I appointed. The other four companies in the Twentieth Battalion have always conformed to the regulations of Convention, and, I believe, approve of the power being lodged in that respectable body.

It appears to me needless to attempt, hereafter, to call the battalion, as some of those who have received commissions from Convention, as well as others, refuse to obey orders—particularly those voted for and chosen last Monday.

There have been very few applications made to the Field Officers, and as we are of opinion no time was to be delayed, if any service was expected this Fall from the company to be raised in this battalion, we met yesterday and have recommended; but I am really apprehensive there will be great difficulty in arming them, if it is to be done with the Militia arms. There may be a few muskets offered for sale, and I believe but few. As for impressing, which the Convention has given authority for, I shall not choose by any means to do it, and believe the other gentlemen will not. I most heartily wish some mode could be adopted to restore harmony to this distracted country; but which way it can be effected, I know not. Some are displeased with the Convention or Council of Safety appointing, and others, I believe, are not.

I have been informed the Convention has adjourned till Monday week, which is the reason of my giving your Board the trouble of this; but am determined, if I can make it convenient, to attend their next meeting, in hopes that something may be done to settle the unhappy disputes.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

TH. WRIGHT.

To the President of the Council of Safety, at Annapolis.

CUMBERLAND DUGAN TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, September 20, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Having a large quantity of bread belonging to the publick on hand already baked, and a vessel to dispose, that we think must answer your purpose, thought it most proper to advise you thereof. She is a large schooner that will carry about eleven hundred barrels flour, completely found ready for sea, a good sailer and as tight as a bottle. The price we ask for her is £850. If she will any way suit you, beg you'll advise me immediately for my government, as if she does not answer you, hope very shortly to dispose of her to some people of this place. Dare say the quantity of bread we have baked belonging to you, together with what Mr. Spear has baked for you, will entirely load this vessel, and if immediately sent out must come to a good market almost any where. I, myself, am just now returned from Boston, where I have been on a visit to my friends there, where I found both bread and flour very scarce and high; indeed scarcely any to be got; not one barrel of sweet flour was to be had in the whole town of Boston, and bad as it was, sold quick at four dollars per hundred weight. I think this vessel of ours loaded with a cargo of bread in bulk to go to Boston, must answer well with a little flour, and for returns could purchase best India goods of any kind very low, as they are falling still lower every day, from the great quantities of prizes that are constantly coming into them. I was myself for several days at their publick sales of prize cargoes, where I saw great quantities of sugars, spirits, rum, coffee, cotton, &c., sell very low indeed; or if those articles would not answer, it appears to me there might a great deal of money be made on a cargo of salt. I see it sell in Boston at four shillings per bushel by the quantity, and it was thought by most people there it would be lower, as a great many of their vessels were gone after salt, thinking it will be scarce and dear, which is thought there will not be the case; that I really believe salt may be bought as low in Boston as any where we can safely send for it, as there are many circumstances in favour of a vessel getting there safe, from their good forts on Nantucket and other heights, near which no King's ships will dare to come, and their coast is so much of iron-bound one (so called) that no ship will dare to lay off there this time of the year.

This vessel of ours will carry about four or five thousand bushels of salt, which would be a very handsome back freight, and she is extremely adapted for the purpose of carrying salt, being a very buoyant vessel that will not load too deep. I hope, gentlemen, you won't imagine I intend to dictate to you what should be done in those matters, as you undoubtedly do know much better than I can think or imagine; but several of my friends here advised me to write to this purport, what I know of these matters, which I hope you won't take amiss, as so great a quantity of bread being ready and much in our way, want to make more room, &c., and get it out while the bay is clear. Your favouring me with a line on this subject immediately will much oblige me, and if I can in any wise serve you in loading this vessel, shall be extremely glad of the favour, in which hope I act to your approbation in every respect.

Gentlemen, your most obedient, most humble servant,

CUMBERLAND DUGAN.

To the Honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

JESSE HOLLINGSWORTH TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

GENTLEMEN: The vessel Mr. Dugan mentions in his letter I know well, and do think she would answer your purpose either to carry bread or bring salt. She is a good vessel, and I think a fast sailer. I loaded her once, when she had a passage of about twenty days from here to Bristol in England, and I do believe what Mr. Dugan sets forth in his letter is matter of fact. There is not another vessel in this place will suit you as well as this. Indeed I believe there is not another you can have here at any rate.

Gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

JESSE HOLLINGSWORTH.

N. B. As to the value of this vessel, leave that to you and Mr. Dugan, but she is valuable.

BOARD OF WAR TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

War-Office, September 20, 1776.

SIR: This will be handed you by four French gentlemen, who arrived from Martinique, well recommended, and they have accordingly been appointed by Congress officers in the Army of the United States. The first, Monsieur Marquis de Malmedy, is appointed Major by brevet. Monsieur Jean Louis Imbert is an Engineer, and goes without any particular appointment, to be employed in that capacity, in order to show to your Excellency his abilities, that you may judge of his qualifications. Monsieur Christian de Colerus, is appointed to the rank and pay of Major by brevet, and Monsieur Jean Louis de Vernejout, is appointed a Captain by brevet. They are ordered to wait on you for directions as to the duty they are to execute.

I have the honour to be, your obedient humble servant,
RICHARD PETERS, Secretary Board of War.

To His Excellency General Washington, &c., &c., Head-Quarters.

TH. JOHNSON, JR., TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Philadelphia, September 20, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I enclose you a letter from Mr. Harrison, which came under cover, together with a bill of lading for seventy-four casks of powder, each fifty weight, in the Nancy, Captain Cirvin, to Messrs. Willing & Morris. We have entrusted the powder into Mr. Hollingsworth's care, and requested him to forward it to you. The bill of lading is for the delivery of the goods on payment of £40 5s. in dollars at 7s. 6d., but the owner of the vessel alleges an agreement with Mr. Harrison that the customary freight should be paid. Nothing of the kind is mentioned in Mr. Harrison's letter to Willing & Morris. Will you be pleased to write us whether Mr. Harrison has advised you of it, and what you would have done? The claim is ten per cent. on the powder, valued at 5s. per pound, which comes to just double the money mentioned in the bill of lading.

I am, gentlemen, very respectfully, your most obedient servant,

TH. JOHNSON, JR.

To the Honourable Council of Safety of Maryland.

MARYLAND DELEGATES IN CONGRESS TO COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Philadelphia, Friday, September 20, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Captain Watkins waits on you by our advice with a return of his company, by which it appears he has now here only thirty-seven effective men, and indeed several of that number appear to us not really effective. The men complained of not being furnished with blankets and clothing according to the engagement made with them, and from this ground, as Captain Watkins alleges, the present discontent of the men originated. We have no certainty of getting the clothing, though our endeavours shall be continued. The officers have procured the blankets. Lieutenant Long goes to Worcester to endeavour to get the deserters to return to their duty, under our assurance, which we have presumed to give, that on their immediate return the past shall be forgiven. Captain Watkins and his men, we are very sorry to inform you, are on very ill terms. The Captain has beat some of them. He says he had great cause; they say he had none. Some of the men have said nothing shall induce them to continue in the company under Captain Watkins. We shall endeavour to keep the remnant of the men together under the care of the Third Lieutenant until your orders can interpose; for though an inquiry seems to us to be necessary, it cannot be had here. If the Independent companies should be regimented, or even if the soldiers' clothes can be got, perhaps order may be restored in the company.

We have a letter of the 15th instant from Captain Thomas, from whence it appears our sick have not such care taken of them as they ought. We wish, if it is in your power to send a skillful and attentive person, who should have the immediate care of the Independent companies, you would do so. We have requested Doctor Bond to recommend such a one that we may prefer him to Congress for this purpose; but from the Doctor's answer, we almost despair of finding a suitable person here.

By a letter from General Washington of the 8th instant, we had a little brush on Monday, in which the enemy had about one hundred killed and wounded. Our loss was considerably less. Report had much exaggerated our advantage. Major Leitch, of the Virginians, is wounded, though it is hoped he will recover. Some of Richardson's and Griffith's battalions were in the action, and behaved well.

Colonel Richardson told William Paca that he lodged in the same house as Captain Watkins—that he is addicted to drink; and his appearance at several times we have seen him bespeaks it. Perhaps Colonel Richardson would not choose that what he said should be mentioned to Captain Watkins.

We are, gentlemen, your most obedient servants,

THOS. JOHNSON, JUN.,
WM. PACA,
SAM'L CHASE,
T. STONE.

To the Honourable Council of Safety of Maryland, at Annapolis.

By a letter this minute received from General Washington, dated the 19th, we are informed that he expects a general attack on his lines.

WILLIAM WILLIAMS TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

[Private.]

Philadelphia, September 20, 1776.

HONoured AND DEAR SIR: It will undoubtedly be needless for me to give you any account of the evacuation of New-York by our army, on Sabbath-day, the 15th—of most of our heavy cannon falling into the hands of our enemies, &c., as it will be communicated to you by my brother Commissaries, many ways ere this can reach your hand. This event, unhappy and distressing as it is, has been foreseen and known ever since the quitting of Long-Island, and had been determined by the General and his Council. Congress had been made fully acquainted with, and assented to it, as absolutely necessary, and directed that the city should not be destroyed by us on leaving it. These events, however, and signal advantages gained by our opposers, and the distress to which our army and country are and must be subjected in consequence of them, are loud-speaking testimonies of the displeasure and anger of Almighty God against a sinful people—louder than sevenfold thunder. Is it possible that the most obdurate and stupid of the children of America should not hear and tremble? God has most certainly a controversy with this people, and he is most certainly able to manage it, and he will accomplish his designs, and bring us to repentance and reformation, or destroy us. We must bend or break. The ways of his providence are dark and deep, but they are holy, wise and just, and altogether right, though our feeble understandings comprehend them not; and though his chastisements are severe and dreadful, they are dictated by unbounded wisdom and love. They have a meaning of awful and kind import: "Turn unto me, for why will ye die, oh sons of America?" We have thought God was for us, and had given many and signal instances of His power and mercy in our favour, and had greatly frowned upon, and disappointed our enemies, and verily it has been so. But have we repented, and given him the glory? Verily, no! His hand seems to be turned and stretched out against us; and strong is his hand, and high is his right hand. He can and will accomplish all his pleasure. It is God who has blunted the weapons of our warfare—that has turned the counsels of wise men into foolishness—that has, thus far, blasted and disappointed our hopes, and made us flee before our enemies, and given them possession of our strongholds. Trouble does not spring out of the dust, nor rise out of the ground. I have always thought this was a just and righteous cause in which we are engaged. I remain unshaken in that firm persuasion, and that God would sooner or later vindicate and support it. I believe so still; but I believe this people must first be brought to know and acknowledge the righteousness of his judgments, and their own exceeding sinfulness and guilt, and be deeply humbled under his mighty hand, and look, and cry to, and trust in Him, for all their help and salvation, but in the use and exertion of all the strength he has given us. Surely we have seen enough to convince us of all this; and then why are we not convinced?—why is not every soul humbled under the mighty hand of God, repenting and mourning for its sins, and putting away the evil of its doings, and looking to him that smites us, by humble, earnest and fervent prayer and supplication, day and night? Why are not the dear children of God (surely there are many, through the scorn and insult of our enemies) besieging the Throne of Grace, sighing and crying for their own sins and backslidings, and for all the abominations that are done in the land, saying, “Spare, spare thy people, O Lord! and give not thine heritage to reproach. Let not the vine which thy right hand has planted here be rooted up and destroyed. Let not thy churches be washed and drowned. Let not virtue and the remains of religion be borne down and trampled in the dust. Let not thy name be blasphemed, nor our insulting, wicked foes say, Where is your God?—nor the profane world that there is no God that rules the world and regardeth the right—that vindicateth the just and righteous cause.” I know that God can vindicate his own name and honour without our help, and out of the stones raise up children to Abraham; and it is amazing folly and madness to cry, The temple! the temple of the Lord! and trust in that while we remain an incorrigible people. But such things are what God would have us learn and practise while his judgments are abroad in the land, and with such like arguments fill our mouths, and pour out our souls before him. Are any, are not all in New-England, especially who have any interest in Heaven, crying, begging, and entreating for the outpouring of the blessed spirit of God upon the land? ’Tis a most grievous and distressing consideration that God is pleased so to withhold the blessed influences and operations thereof, without which we shall remain stupid forever. Therefore, with redoubled fervency of ardent prayer and supplication, should every soul that has one spark of heavenly fire, kindle it to a fervent heat and expanded blaze. Oh New-England, oh my dear native land, how does my soul love thee! Be instructed, therefore, lest God’s soul depart from thee—lest thou be like Chorazin and Bethsaida in condemnation as thou hast been in privileges—lest he make thee as Admah, and set thee as Zeboim. Are the ministers of the Gospel alive and awake, and lifting up their voices like a trumpet, and sounding the alarm of the Almighty’s anger and wrath, ready to break on the defenceless heads of a guilty people? Are they warning the wicked of their infinite danger, animating and urging them to consideration? Are they, with ardent zeal and fervour, animating and enlivening the languid graces of the godly, exciting and leading them to fervent prayer—sighing and crying for their own dissensions and lukewarmness in religion, and for the sins and iniquities of the land, praying, begging and entreating with unceasing, and as it were, resistless importunity, for the copious effusion of the Blessed Spirit upon all orders and degrees of people, and refusing to let God go without an answer of peace, and in “the midst of wrath to remember mercy,” and not give up this his heritage to reproach, nor blast the blooming hopes and prospects of this infant country, the asylum of liberty and religion?

Strange that mankind should need such alarming providences to produce such an effect. It is no more than to act like reasonable creatures; to possess a spirit and temper that will add a thousand-fold sweetness and pleasure to all the enjoyments of this world; to exchange the slavery of the devil, that accursed enemy of our souls, for the service of God and the liberty of his children; to act justly, to love mercy, and walk humbly with our God; to answer the sole end of our creation, to secure a peace here infinitely better than the world can give, and an eternity of peace and happiness in the world to come. But still more strange, if possible, and astonishing, is it that they should disregard the voice of the Most High, remain thoughtless and stupid under the dreadful tokens of his anger and the awful judgments of his hand by sickness and by the sword, of our unnatural and enraged enemies, threatening to depopulate the land and drench the plains with the blood of its inhabitants, leaving the weeping widows, helpless orphans, and all that survive the shocking carnage and subsequent massacre, to drag out their lives in want, wretchedness and miserable bondage, and all this aggravated with the constant prospect of leaving this dreadful curse entailed on all posterity. A thorough repentance and reformation, without all peradventure, will appease the anger of a holy and just God, avert these amazing calamities, secure liberty and happiness to this and all succeeding ages, and eternal felicity and glory to all the subjects of it. If such considerations and motives won’t awake a serious thoughtfulness and attention, I know not what will but the voice of the archangel and the trump of God.

I am, honoured and dear sir, most affectionately, your dutiful son and servant,

WM. WILLIAMS.

To Hon. J. Trumbull, Esq., &c.

P. S. You will not think proper to communicate this letter to the Assembly. I am anxious beyond the power of language to describe of contributing something to the good and salvation, temporal and eternal, of my countrymen. (Hope I have not been totally useless here.) If you should think this may have any tendency to awake our sleepy people, and be of no disadvantage, I am willing it should be printed, and, from other possible reasons, leaving out such of the beginning as may be a clue to guess the author or where he is, and with the description or signature of a letter from a gentleman of Connecticut now in a distant Colony. May God in great mercy preserve your health and long continue your valuable and important life! With kindest remembrance to my dear wife and friends, W. W.

MARINE COMMITTEE TO CAPTAIN YOUNG.

September 20, 1776.

SIR: The sloop Independence, of which you are appointed Commander, being now laden, completely fitted, armed, victualed, and manned, you are to proceed with said sloop and cargo for the Island of Martinico, putting into Fort Royal or St. Pierre’s, just as the winds and other circumstances point out for the best. On your arrival at either place, you must inquire for Mr. William Bingham, our resident in that Island. Should he be at the place where you put in, deliver to him the sundry despatches now committed to your care; should he be at any other part of the Island, you will send an express to inform him of your arrival, and that you have such despatches, which you are directed to deliver into his own hands. He will then repair to you immediately, and you must comply with his orders by landing the cargo wherever he may direct. You must also consult with him, and be advised by Mr. Bingham in all things that respect the interest or honour of the United States in the concerns of their sloop under your command. If you put into Fort Royal and Mr. Bingham is not there, you must wait on the General, and inform him you belong to the United States of America; ask the liberty of the port, and protection during your stay there. If you put into St. Pierre’s, and don’t find Mr. Bingham, wait on the Governour and Intendant, observing the same conduct. If Mr. Bingham is present, he will direct what you are to do on these points. You are to consider the French, and all nations but Great Britain, as the friends of these United States, and conduct yourself towards them accordingly; and during your stay in any French ports, be particularly attentive to the behaviour and prudent conduct of your people. You are to receive on board the sloop any arms, ammunition, or other goods, Mr. Bingham may order; receive from him, also, his despatches, and then proceed back for this port. You are to consider that we are anxious for you to make an expeditious voyage, notwithstanding which, as you are well armed and manned and the sloop sails fast, we do not forbid you chasing such vessels either going or coming as you think may become your prize. For this purpose you have a commission; a book containing the resolves of Congress respecting prizes, which you must strictly conform to; and a list of the Continental agents, to some of whom you must address any prize you take. Should Mr. Bingham find it necessary to detain you any time, and he and you should think it advisable to make a short cruise during that time, we do not forbid it; but take care not to fall into the enemy's hands. It is an object with us that you should pick up, and bring home with you, as many seamen as possible; the more the better; and you may enter all you get on the same pay and terms of those you carry out. You must sling our despatches to Mr. Bingham, and on your return his to us, with a weight sufficient to sink them, and always keep them ready to be thrown overboard should you unfortunately be taken; for you must not let these packets fall into the enemy's hands on any account. You are to afford relief or assistance to any of the subjects of the United States that want it, if in your power, unless proof should appear that they are inimical to their country and its cause. You are authorized to take, burn, sink, or destroy the vessels and property of all British subjects, except those residing in Bermuda and New-Providence; but we recommend humanity and politeness to be inseparable companions of the officers in the Continental service. It is necessary you should be careful of the sloop, her materials and stores; diligent in the discharge of your own duty, and careful to make your officers and men perform theirs; strict in discipline, but attentive to render the service agreeable to all concerned in it. We expect you will be frugal in your expenses, and on your return furnish us with duplicates of your log-book and journal, giving, also, a satisfactory account of your voyage; and when you approach this coast, keep a good look out, as you may expect many of the enemy's ships will be cruising for plunder. If you cannot get in here, you may push for any of the inlets or other places of safety; the nearer to this the better.

We are, sir, your humble servants.

ACT OF NEW-JERSEY.

An Act to render certain Bills of Credit a legal tender within this State, and to prevent the Counterfeiting of the same and other Bills of Credit.

Whereas sundry disaffected persons have refused to take in payment the Bills of Credit emitted by the Continental Congress, and also the Bills of Credit emitted by the late Congress or Convention of this State; and whereas it is expedient that the said bills, and also the Bills of Credit lately issued on loan in this State, should be a legal tender:

1. Be it therefore enacted, by the Council and General Assembly of the State of New-Jersey, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That the Bills of Credit emitted and made current by the Continental Congress, the Bills of Credit emitted and made current by the Congress or Convention of this State, and the Bills of Credit issued on loan by virtue of an act of the Legislature of New-Jersey, made and passed in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and seventy-four, intituled, "An act for striking one hundred thousand Pounds in Bills of Credit, and directing the mode for sinking the same," shall be, and they and each of them are hereby, declared to be a legal tender for the payment of money; and if any person or persons, from and after the publication hereof, shall refuse to take any of the Bills of Credit when the same shall be properly tendered in payment of any debt or demand whatsoever, (provided the whole of such debt or demand be so tendered,) he, she, or they, so refusing, shall be forever barred from suing for or recovering the same in any court in this State; and if any suit or suits shall be commenced for such debt or demand after tender and refusal as aforesaid, the defendant may plead payment, and give this act and the special matter in evidence.

2. And whereas it is necessary that the counterfeiting of the Bills of Credit, made current by publick authority, should be prevented, Be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every person and persons who, from and after the publication hereof, shall counterfeit or alter any of the aforesaid Bills of Credit by this act made a legal tender, or any of the Bills of Credit emitted and made current by any of the Assemblies, Conventions, or Congresses of any of the United States of North America, or utter any bill or bills so counterfeited or altered, knowing the same to be so counterfeited or altered as aforesaid, and be duly convicted thereof, shall be adjudged guilty of felony, and be punished with death in like manner as persons convicted of counterfeiting or altering the former Bills of Credit of this State, and knowingly uttering the same, might or should have been.

Passed at Princeton, the 20th of September, 1776.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Head-Quarters, Heights of Harlem, September 20, 1776.

SIR: I have been honoured with your favour of the 16th, with its enclosures. To prevent the injury and abuses which would arise from the Militia and other troops carrying away ammunition and Continental property, I have published the substance of the resolves upon the subject in general orders.

Since my letter of yesterday, nothing of importance has cast up. The enemy are forming a large and extensive intrenchment in the Plains mentioned in my last, and are busily employed in transporting their cannon and stores from Long-Island. As they advance them this way, we may reasonably expect their operations will not long be deferred.

Enclosed are sundry letters, &c., to which Congress will be pleased to pay such regard as they may think them deserving of. The letter from Monsieur Devouroney came open under cover of one to me. Those from Colonel Hand and Colonel Ward contain a list of vacancies in their regiments, and of the persons they esteem proper to fill them. The former I believe returned no list before. The latter says he never got any commissions. Generals Howe's and Erskine's proclamations show the measures that have been pursued to force and seduce the inhabitants of Long-Island from their allegiance to the States, and to assist in their destruction.

As the period will soon arrive when the troops composing the present army (a few excepted) will be disbanded according to the tenour of their enlistments, and the most fatal consequences may ensue, if a suitable and timely provision is not made in this instance, I take the liberty of suggesting to Congress, not only the expediency, but the absolute necessity there is, that their earliest attention should be had to this subject. In respect to the time that troops should be engaged for, I have frequently given my sentiments; nor have I omitted to express my opinion of the difficulties that will attend raising them, nor of the impracticability of effecting it without the allowance of a large and extraordinary bounty. It is a melancholy and painful consideration to those who are concerned in the work and have the command, to be forming armies constantly, and to be left by troops just when they begin to deserve the name, or perhaps at the moment when an important blow is expected. This, I am informed, will be the case at Ticonderoga with part of the troops there, unless some system is immediately come into by which they can be induced to stay. General Schuyler tells me, in a letter received yesterday, that De Haas's, Maxwell's, and Winds's regiments stand engaged only till the beginning of next month, and that the men, he is fearful, will not remain longer than the time of their enlistments.

I would also beg leave to mention to Congress that the season is fast approaching when clothes of every kind will be wanted for the army. Their distress is already great, and will be increased as the weather becomes more severe. Our situation is now bad, but is much better than the Militia that are coming to join us from the States of the Massachusetts-Bay and Connecticut, in consequence of the requisition of Congress. They, I am informed, have not a single tent or a necessary of any kind, nor can I conceive how it will be possible to support them. These circumstances are extremely alarming, and oblige me to wish Congress to have all the tents, clothing of every kind, and camp necessities, provided and forwarded that are to be procured. These Eastern reinforcements have not a single necessary, not a pan or a kettle, in which we are now greatly deficient. It is with reluctance that I trouble Congress with these matters, but to whom can I resort for relief unless to them? The necessity, therefore, which urges the application will excuse it, I am persuaded.

I have not been able to transmit Congress a general return of the army this week, owing to the peculiar situation of our affairs, and the great shifting and changing among the troops. As soon as I can procure one, a copy shall be forwarded to Congress.

I have the honour to be, with every sentiment of respect, sir, your most obedient servant,

Go. WASHINGTON.

P. S. September 21st, 1776.—Things with us remain in the situation they were yesterday.

Westchester, August 14, 1776.

SIR: I take the liberty to request that when you next write to Congress, you may be pleased to recommend the appointment of a Major to my regiment. As I learn that Congress have an objection to the advancement of my oldest Captain, I can't think myself at liberty to recommend any. The annexed gives your Excellency the names and rank of the Captains; one of them I hope will be promoted: Robert Clugage, Matthew Smith, James Ross, Henry Millen, Charles Craig, James Grier, David Harris, James Parr, James Hamilton.

I beg your Excellency may please to appoint Third Lieutenant John Dick to be Second Lieutenant, vice Jacob Zank, who has resigned since the last promotion, and Robert Cunningham to be Third Lieutenant, vice John Dick.

If the Major be appointed from my Captains, I beg leave to recommend the following promotions in consequence, viz:

First Lieutenant John Holliday, to be Captain; Second Lieutenant, William Wilson, to be First Lieutenant; Third Lieutenant, John Dougherty, to be Second Lieutenant, and Benjamin Lion to be Third Lieutenant.

I wish to remind your Excellency that Lieutenant Francis, of my regiment, is still in arrest for associating and drinking to excess with the soldiers of the regiment.

I am, sir, with much respect, your Excellency's most boedient, humble servant,

EDWARD HAND.

To the Commander-in-Chief.

So I am, with due submission, your Excellency's most devoted, humble servant,

To His Excellency General Washington, Commander-in-Chief of the Continental Army.

J. WARD, Colonel.

If it's agreeable, I desire the persons recommended in the within for Captains and subalterns may be appointed, in orders, to do duty in said stations, as recommended.

GENERAL ORDERS.

Head-Quarters, Harlem Heights, September 19, 1776.

(Parole, Hancock.)

(Countersign, Warren.)

The Companies from Maryland, under the command of Major Price, are to join Colonel Smallwood's Battalion and General McDougall's Brigade; and it is expected that the commanding officer of every corps will, together with all the officers therein, exert themselves in seeing good order and discipline observed. They are to consider that it is the duty of a good officer to see, or at least to know, that orders are executed, and not to content themselves with being the mere vehicles through which they are conveyed to the men. We are now arrived at an important crisis, which calls loudly for the zeal and activity of the best of officers. We see, we know, that the enemy are exerting every nerve, not only by the force of arms, but the practices of every art, to accomplish their purposes; and that among other pieces of policy, which is also founded on justice, we find them exceeding careful to restrain every kind of abuse of private property, whilst the abandoned and profligate part of our own army, countenanced by a few officers, who are lost to every sense of honour and virtue, as well as their country's good, are by rapine and plunder spreading ruin and terrour wherever they go; thereby making themselves infinitely more to be dreaded than the common enemy they are come to oppose; at the same time that it exposes men who are strolling about after plunder, to be surprised and taken. The General, therefore, hopes it will be unnecessary on any future occasion, for him to repeat the orders of yesterday, with respect to this matter, as he is determined to show no favour to officer or soldier who shall offend herein, but punish without exception every person who shall be found guilty of this most abominable practice, which, if continued, must prove the destruction of any army on earth.

That the men may be acquainted with the orders relative to plundering as well as others, the neglect of which will incur blame or punishment, the General directs and positively orders, that every commanding officer of a corps takes special care that the orders are regularly read to the men every day.

General Nixon, with his brigade, is to remove over to the Jersey, and will receive his orders from General Greene, with respect to his encamping, &c. Such men of his brigade as are now on duty must be relieved.

The picket guards which are to occupy the outposts most advanced to the enemy, are to consist of eight hundred men, officered with two Colonels, two Lieutenant-Colonels, two Majors and Captains, and subalterns in proportion. They are to be furnished by detachment from the several brigades below King's Bridge, and so every day till further orders.

Head-Quarters, Harlem Heights, September 20, 1776.

(Parole, Spain.)

(Countersign, France.)

As many of the Regiments that came last from New-York have lost their tents and cooking utensils, (not from any default of their own, but want of teams and vessels to bring them off in time,) by which means one part of the army are greatly distressed, whilst the other part are comfortably supplied, the General earnestly advises and directs the Colonels and commanding officers of such corps as have not suffered, to store their men thicker in their tents, and lend all they can spare to their suffering fellow-soldiers, till such time as others can be provided. The tents, &c., are to be sent to General Spencer's, at Mr. Kortright's house, who will cause them to be delivered to the regiments standing most in need of them, which regiments are to be answerable for them when called for.

The General hopes that soldiers fighting in such a cause as ours, will not be discouraged by any difficulties that may offer; and informs them that the grounds he now possesses are to be defended at all events. Any officer or soldier, therefore, who, upon the approach or attack of the enemy's forces, by land or water, presumes to turn his back and flee, shall be instantly shot down, and all good officers are hereby authorized and required to see this done, that the brave and gallant part of the army may not fall a sacrifice to the base and cowardly part, or share their disgrace in a cowardly and unmanly retreat. The Heights we are now upon may be defended against double the force we have to contend with, and the whole Continent expects it of us. But that we may assist the natural strength of the ground as much as possible, and make our posts more secure, the General most earnestly recommends it to the commanding officers of every brigade and regiment to turn out every man they have off duty for fatigue, and apply to Colonel Putnam for tools and directions where and how to work. This measure is also earnestly recommended to the men, as it will tend greatly to their own security and ease, as the guards will be lessened in proportion as the grounds get strengthened.

General Greene is to appoint some careful officer at Burdett's Ferry to examine passengers, and see that none come over but such as have proper passes. General Mifflin is to do the same on this side, to prevent disaffected or suspected persons from passing. If Captain Johnson and the other gentlemen who were employed in this business at New-York, incline to engage in it again, they are to have the preference given them.

The Colonels or commanding officers of the Militia regiments now in the service, may make out their pay abstracts, in order to receive payment; they will be particularly attentive in doing it, as the disorderly manner in which many of those men have left the service, will require the utmost care to prevent impositions on the publick. And the Congress have resolved, that all Continental troops and the Militia going home from service, shall restore all Continental arms and other property, and also all ammunition remaining in their possession at the time of their being about to return, or to have the value of it deducted.

The guards will be relieved at four o'clock this afternoon, after which they are to be relieved constantly and regularly at nine o'clock every day.

The General desires that the Brigade Majors may attend him precisely at seven o'clock to-morrow morning, and account for the remissness in their several departments, as he is determined to put up with no more negligence in office. He expects the punctual attendance of the whole.

General Wadsworth must look out a good person to do the duty of his brigade.

Commanding and other officers of regiments, are to collect the horses straying about their encampments, and send them to the Quartermaster-General, or one of his deputies; the uses these horses may answer when properly employed, will be an inducement to every officer to exert himself.

The officers of the guard at King's Bridge to be careful that no soldiers take horses over the bridge, though such soldier should have a common pass. Every person riding without a saddle, is to be immediately taken up, and the horse sent to the Quartermaster, till released by further orders.

The scarcity of fodder makes it necessary that no horses should come into camp but what belong to the army. All visitants, therefore, are to leave their horses beyond the bridge, unless they obtained a special order from some General officer, or commandant of a brigade.

General Beall, Brigadier of the day, to meet the guards at four o'clock, on the parade, and report immediately what Brigade Major fails of bringing his proportion of guards at the time.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Head-Quarters, Heights of Harlem, September 20, 1776.

SIR: Having received authentick advice from Long-Island that the enemy are recruiting a great number of men with much success, and collecting large quantities of stock throughout the island, for their support, I have directed Brigadier-General Clinton forthwith to repair to Fairfield, to meet General Lincoln on his march hither, with a part of the troops lately voted by the Massachusetts State to reinforce this army, in order to concert with him an expedition to the island, to check and suppress, if possible, a practice so injurious and detrimental to our cause.

Those gentlemen will wait on you for your advice in the matter, if time and the situation of things will admit of it, and with a view of obtaining such aid as you and they may judge necessary to facilitate the enterprise. However, if it should not be in their power personally to attend you, I must take the liberty of requesting your good offices upon the occasion, and that you will afford them every assistance that you conveniently can, and which they require, either in men, vessels, &c., for carrying their scheme into execution.

It is absolutely necessary that the measures of the enemy should be effectually counteracted in this instance, or in a little time they will levy no inconsiderable army of our own people. The influence of their money and their artifices has already passed the Sound, and several have been detected of late, who had enlisted to serve under their banner, and the particular command of Major Rogers.

Being in haste, I have not time to add more than that I have the fullest confidence that your favour will not be wanting in this instance, and that I have the honour to be, with regard and esteem,

GO. WASHINGTON.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Head-Quarters, Colonel Roger Morris's, ten miles from }
New-York, September 20, 1776. }

SIR: I have your several favours of the 9th, 12th, and 16th instant, with their enclosures. I am particularly happy to find, by the copies of General Arnold's and Colonel Dayton's letters, that your apprehensions of an Indian war in your quarter have entirely vanished, and that you have disbanded the Militia in consequence.

I clearly see, and have severely felt, the ill effects of short enlistments, and have repeatedly given Congress my sentiments thereon. I believe they are by this time convinced that there is no opposing a standing, well-disciplined army but by one upon the same plan; and I hope, if this campaign does not put an end to this contest, they will put the army upon a different footing than what it has heretofore been. I shall take care to remind them that the terms for which De Haas's, Maxwell's, and Winds's regiments enlisted, expire the beginning of October; but if they have not already thought of taking some steps to secure them a while longer, it will be too late, except the officers will exert themselves in prevailing on the men to stay until their places can be supplied by some means or other. If the officers are spirited and well inclined, they may lead their men as they please.

I removed my quarters to this place on Sunday last, it having been previously determined, by a Council of General Officers, on the preceding Thursday, to evacuate New-York. The reasons that principally weighed with them were, that from every information, and every movement of the enemy, it was clear that their attack was not meditated against the city; their intent evidently was, to throw their whole army between part of ours in New-York and its environs, and the remainder about King's Bridge, and thereby cut off our communication with each other and with the country. Indeed, their operations on Sunday last, fully satisfied the opinion of the Council, and the steps taken in consequence; for on that morning they began their landing at Turtle Bay, and continued to throw over great numbers of men from Long-Island, and from Montresor's and Buchanan's Islands, on which they had previously lodged them. As we had exerted ourselves in removing our sick and stores of every kind, after the measure of abandoning had been determined upon, very few things, and but three or four men, fell into the enemy's hands.

On Monday last, we had a pretty sharp skirmish between two battalions of Light Infantry and Highlanders and three companies of Hessian Riflemen, commanded by Brigadier Leslie, and detachments from our army, under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel Knowlton, of Connecticut, and Major Leitch, of Virginia. The Colonel received a mortal wound, and the Major three balls through his body, but he is likely to do well. Their parties behaved with great bravery, and being supported with fresh troops, beat the enemy fairly from the field. Our loss, except in that of Colonel Knowlton, a most valuable and gallant officer, is inconsiderable—that of the enemy, from accounts, between eighty and one hundred wounded, and fifteen or twenty killed. This little advantage has inspirited our troops prodigiously; they find that it only requires resolution and good officers to make an enemy (that they stood in too much dread of) give way.

The British army lies encamped about two miles below us; they are busy in bringing over their cannon and stores from Long-Island, and we are putting ourselves in the best posture of defence that time and circumstances will admit of.

I enclose you copies of several resolutions of Congress, respecting the Northern army, &c., not knowing whether they have yet been transmitted to you. I received Captain Varick's resignation, which shall be forwarded to Congress this day.

I am, sir, &c.,
Go. WASHINGTON.
To Major-General Schuyler, Northern Department.

COLONEL REED TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Camp at King's Bridge, September 20, 1776.

SIR: The bearer, Mr. Bartholomew Van Heer, has been mentioned to the General as a person who may render the publick some service. He desires an opportunity of presenting himself and producing his certificates. I have his Excellency's directions to forward him to you for that purpose; and am, with the greatest respect, sir, your most obedient, and very humble servant,

JOS. REED.

To the Honourable President of Congress.

JOSEPH TRUMBULL TO GENERAL GATES.

King's Bridge, September 20, 1776.

MY DEAR GENERAL: This will be delivered you by Mr. Yancey, who I have appointed to Mr. Avery's place. He and Mr. Avery will apply to you, and show their warrants and orders, and I must beg your kind aid, assistance, and directions. And whatever cash Mr. Yancey wants, and you give him warrants for on the Paymaster, I shall hold myself accountable for the disposition of by him, for use of the army.

I find by a letter from Mr. Gerry, that General Schuyler is about to resign. I congratulate you and myself thereon. Also that Congress is about to raise eighty-eight full battalions, for next year, the officers to have gratuities in land, and the men who engage for the war twenty dollars and one hundred acres of land at the close, and same wages.

We have nothing since I wrote my brother, which he will receive and show you, before you receive this. I think we shall keep them at bay, now we are away from their ships.

I am, dear General, your most humble servant,

JOS. TRUMBULL.

To Major-General Gates.

NEW-YORK CONVENTION TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read September 27, 1776.]

Fishkill, September 20, 1776.

SIR: I am directed by the Convention of the Representatives of this State to enclose to Congress resolutions of the Convention, requesting the advance of a sum of money to enable them to pursue their exertions in the present exigencies of this State, and earnestly to request a speedy consideration thereof. From the papers attending the resolutions, it will appear that a large balance is due to this State from the Continent, which will no doubt have due weight at this distressing period.

FIFTH SERIES.—VOL. II.

I have the honour to be, most respectfully, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

AB'M YATES, Jun., President.

To the Hon. John Hancock.

NEW-YORK CONVENTION TO THEIR DELEGATES IN CONGRESS.

Fishkill, September 20, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The Convention have much at heart the subject of the enclosed resolutions, and have directed me to recommend them to your particular attention. They are persuaded that General Schuyler's resignation will not only be highly prejudicial to the common cause of America, by the loss of an able and vigilant officer, singularly qualified for the command he now fills, but will be productive of internal jealousy and discontent at a period when union and harmony are necessary for our preservation.

I have the honour to be, gentlemen, your most obedient, humble servant,

AB'M YATES, Jun., President.

To the Honourable the Delegates of the State of New-York in Congress, at Philadelphia.

P. S. I am directed to add that the Convention have received no answer to their last letter. They would wish to hear from you on the matter contained in that and this letter as soon as possible.

Resolutions enclosed in the Letter from the Convention of the State of NEW-YORK.

[Read September 27, 1776. Referred to Mr. McKean, Mr. Rutledge, Mr. Hooper.]

In Convention of the Representatives of the State of New-York, }
Fishkill, September 20, 1776. }

The Committee appointed to "examine into and report the present state of the Treasury, the progress which has been made in emitting £200,000 to supply the exigencies of the State agreeable to a resolution of the Convention passed on the 13th day of August last, the obstructions which have prevented the settlement of the publick accounts of this State against the Continent, and further means for the immediate supplying the Treasury with money," delivered in their report, which was read, and is in the words following, to wit:

Your Committee do report that they have according to order considered the several matters submitted to their examination; that the Treasury is exhausted, as appears by the account No. 1, being a general state of receipts and payments of the Treasury down to the 17th instant, and that the most speedy and effectual means ought to be adopted to supply the Treasury with money that the publick credit may be supported, and the heavy expenses to which this State must unavoidably be exposed in its present critical and dangerous situation be provided for; that by reason of the evacuation of the metropolis, the loss of the paper-mills, the dispersions of the printers, as well as the gentlemen entrusted to procure the plates, superintend the press, and sign the bills of credit directed to be emitted, there cannot be the least prospect of supplying the Treasury from the intended emission so as to answer the exigencies of the State; that the Committee have examined into the measures which have been pursued for adjusting the publick accounts of this State against the Continent, and for that purpose have been attended by the Deputy Treasurer, to whose state of facts, mentioned in the paper No. 2, they refer, and from which it appears that several of the persons named in the list delivered in by the Deputy Treasurer on the 17th instant, who have been entrusted with publick money have, though called upon, neglected to settle their accounts with the Auditor-General of this State, which putting it out of his power precisely to ascertain how much of the moneys have been applied for Continental services, and how much for the more immediate purposes of this State, hath hitherto proved an insurmountable obstruction to the adjustment of the publick accounts of the State against the Continent; that nevertheless, from an estimate made by the Deputy Treasurer, contained in the paper No. 3, which is herewith presented, it appears, and your Committee are satisfied that upwards of sixty-two thousand dollars are due from the United States to the State of New-York: Whereupon your Committee have agreed to the following resolutions:

Resolved, 1st, That it is the opinion of this Committee, that the Auditor-General be directed to use all possible diligence in completing the settlement of the publick accounts of this State with the United States, and procuring the necessary vouchers, in order that the said accounts and vouchers may, without further delay, be transmitted to the Treasury office of the United States at Philadelphia, there to be finally settled and passed, and to remove the impediment which hath hitherto retarded the settlement of the said accounts.

Resolved, 2dly, That in the opinion of this Committee, such of the persons named in the said list who have been entrusted with the publick money and have neglected to produce their accounts and vouchers to the Auditor-General of this State be, and they hereby are, enjoined, on pain of incurring the displeasure of this Convention, to attend the said Auditor-General at the Fishkills, with the respective accounts and vouchers, as soon as possible after receiving notice for that purpose from the said Auditor-General.

Resolved, 3dly, That it is the opinion of this Committee, that the honourable Congress of the United States be requested to advance to this State one hundred thousand dollars in consideration of the vast expense to which we are exposed, and the impracticability, for the reasons herein set forth, of emitting bills of credit with a despatch suitable to the urgency of our publick affairs and the calamitous circumstances into which we are involved; that in case this requisition shall be complied with, the Convention do pledge this State to be accountable for the sum so to be advanced, declaring that the receipt of the Delegates of this State, or either of them, shall be a sufficient voucher for the same, and directing the said Delegates to forward the money as expeditiously as possible.

Resolved, 4thly, As the opinion of this Committee, that if it shall be inconvenient to the United States to advance to this State the sum specified in the before-mentioned requisition, that then the honourable Congress be, and are hereby, requested to advance to this State the sum of sixty thousand dollars on account of the balance due from the Continent to this State—this Committee being of opinion upon the best evidence they have been able to procure, that at least that sum must be due from the United States to this State.

The said Report being again read by paragraphs, was agreed to: Thereupon, Resolved, unanimously, That this Convention agree with their Committee in the said Report.

Ordered, That a copy of the said Report be immediately transmitted by the President of this Convention to the President of the honourable Continental Congress, and that a copy be also transmitted to the Delegates of this State at the Continental Congress.

On the 11th March, 1776, the Convention of this State appointed a Committee, viz: Mr. Van Zandt, Captain Denning, Mr. Beekman, Colonel Brasher, and Mr. Sands, to examine the Treasurer's accounts, and to point out what part of the charges therein were to be considered as Continental, and what Provincial. A fair copy of the Continental account as stated by them, was prepared by the Auditors' clerk.

In May last, the Auditors, viz: Messrs. Van Zandt, Bancker, Beekman, Sands, and Denning, continued this account down to the 30th of April last. It was afterwards examined by some of the New-York members of the Continental Congress, and then taken to the Convention of this State, where it underwent several alterations, in which state it is now fair copied. Many accounts being not then come in, the Auditors deferred sending it to Philadelphia till some of the principal ones could be procured, and many letters were wrote for that purpose.

Nothing more was done with the Continental account till the Auditor-General was appointed the latter end of July last, when he came to the Plains to endeavour to continue it down to that time, but the number of outstanding accounts was so increased by the great sums of money that had been paid out there by order of the Convention, on account of the services to be performed, as to induce him to defer the completion of it till they could be got in, several of which accounts he procured abroad, and left orders for writing to many persons who had neglected sending in theirs, which letters have accordingly been wrote, and copies of some of them sent, and though the number of outstanding accounts is greatly diminished, there are still many to be brought in, as per the annexed list, amounting to about forty thousand pounds.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Albany, September 20, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Since my last of yesterday, I have received sundry papers from General Gates, copies of all which I do myself the honour to enclose. I have mentioned to Congress that I had sent them to your Excellency.

I am, dear sir, respectfully your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

To His Excellency General Washington.

GENERAL GATES TO MAJOR HOISINGTON.

Tyonderoga, September 20, 1776.

SIR: I received your letter of the 14th instant from Newbury by Captain Wait. Until you sent me the orders of the Convention of New-York, I was unacquainted with the nature of your engagement, and the services expected from the men placed under your command. You will now exactly observe the orders you have received from the Convention, sending a return once a fortnight of the companies raised, and the stations they are posted at. As to assisting Colonel Barrett upon the new road and in building the bridge over Otter Creek, I fancy that is sufficiently provided for, as I have sent a large detachment from hence to aid the Colonel in forwarding those works. In case of general alarm, you will hold all the companies under your command in readiness to march hither.

I am, sir, your most obedient humble servant,

HO. GATES.

To Major Hoisington.

COLONEL HARTLEY TO GENERAL GATES.

Crown-Point, September 20, 1776

HONoured SIR: I arrived here yesterday afternoon, found all my people in tolerably good spirits, but many of them unwell; those that will not be fit for duty in a month, I send on to Fort George.

Ludwick Potier, a German, who had been taken prisoner by the Indians and carried to Montreal, has given me the following intelligence, which perhaps may be of some consequence:

The Indians took him by the Isle Noix and St. John's. At the first place, he saw about three hundred Regulars and a dozen Canadians, with two pieces of artillery. The Canadians were employed in cleansing the ditches. When he arrived at St. John's he saw a sloop and schooner on the stocks, besides seven gondolas; he supposes there were about six hundred Regulars there. At Montreal he was confined. He can give no account from there. He left St. John's a month past. The sloop and schooners were not finished—two of the gondolas were. They came up with him to the Isle Noix; they carried a long twelve-pounder each. He saw about fifty batteaus at the Isle Noix and St. John's. He is clear that there were no other vessels building then on this side of St. John's, but some parties were cutting large timber between the two places. He understood the enemy were also busily engaged at Chamblee, but they could be building nothing more than batteaus there, as the rapids near St. John's prevent a larger vessel from coming up this time of year. Most of the timber in all the vessels and boats, seemed to be seasoned. I have treated Potier with the utmost civility. He will return home to-morrow. He seems a plain, honest man. What he says may be relied on, I believe. The enemy were making a good road from Chamblee to St. John's—they may have done much within this last month.

In order if possible to intercept the small party of Indians mentioned by the Frenchman, I sent a note to Major Dunlop from Ticonderoga, desiring him to despatch a batteau, a good officer and twenty-five woodsmen, if possible, to waylay them about four or five miles below Gilliland's. They set off this morning early. This, with a party sent to the fleet before, and the officers and men General Arnold detains (and means to do until the galleys come down, as he has informed by letter) as you will observe by my return, will reduce me very low. I should be glad some good company were sent here to assist in doing the duty of guards, till my other men arrive.

A good party returned from the westward yesterday evening. It had been upwards of fifteen or twenty miles off. No appearance of an enemy; the way was very rough and disagreeable; the men were much fatigued.

I have wrote to Major Badlam for a few things. I presume he will send them.

I am, sir, with great respect, your most humble servant,
THOS. HARTLEY.

To General Gates.

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Lebanon, September 20, 1776.

SIR: Since the receipt of your favour of the 9th instant, our nine regiments of Foot under command of Brigadier-General Saltonstall, and two regiments of horse under the command of Major Backus have begun their march, with orders to rendezvous at or near West-Chester, and there to attend your orders, and trust that many of them are arrived there as the rest will soon.

It gives me great concern to learn that so many of our Militia have refused to submit to proper discipline, and that such numbers have deserted as to reduce those that remain to about two thousand. 'Tis certain that by their absence they were great sufferers in point of interest, yet this is far from justifying their desertion, which ought not to pass unnoticed. I must therefore entreat your Excellency, as soon as it can be conveniently done, to order returns to be made of all such deserters, and communicate them to me, that proper measures may be taken with them, either by returning them to their corps, mulcting them of their wages, or otherwise. If the Militia may desert with impunity, there is an end of their usefulness.

To His Excellency General Washington.

CONNECTICUT COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

At a meeting of the Governour and Council of Safety of Connecticut, held in Lebanon, on the 20th day of September, 1776, Present: His Honour the Governour, his Honour the Deputy Governour, Eliphalet Dyer, Jabez Huntington, Titus Hosmer, Nathaniel Wales, Jun., Esquires.

Voted, To allow Mr. Elkanah Tisdale for his service in procuring Hospitals for sick soldiers returning from New-York, six shillings per diem, with his expenses and horse hire.

Voted, That an Account now exhibited by Noadiah Hubbard, of Middletown, for carting a load of Clothing from Middletown to the Northern Army, amounting in the whole to £31 13s. 8d., be allowed, and that an order be drawn on the Pay-Table accordingly. (Order drawn and delivered Chauncey Whittlesey.)

Voted, That an Order be drawn on the Pay-Table to draw on the Treasurer, in favour of Mr. Chauncey Whittlesey, for the sum of £1,200, to enable him to pay for the goods he hath already purchased for Clothing for the Continental Army, and to enable him to continue his purchases for that purpose. (Order drawn and delivered Mr. Whittlesey.)

September 24, 1776.—Colonel Jabez Huntington, Colonel Jedediah Elderkin, Titus Hosmer, and Nathaniel Wales, Jun., Esquires, met and assisted his Honour the Governour on business of the publick.

September 26, 1776.—Colonel Jabez Huntington, Colonel Jedediah Elderkin, Titus Hosmer, and Nathaniel Wales, Jun., Esquires, met and assisted his Honour the Governour on business of the publick.

ALEXANDER EXUEN TO THE NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

New-London, September 20, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I again take this opportunity to acquaint you of my safe arrival here from Firy-Island, where I was obliged to leave part of my cargo behind. To my great sorrow, I have lost my medicines, all excepting two boxes, my pepper, prunes and raisins; such as I could get off with my people I saved. The wagons being all pressed to carry the Regulars' baggage, if that the rascal Wallace, that had unloaded me, had not refused to take any thing off on board the brig, I should saved most part of my cargo, if not all. But the Tories mustering so strong and carrying such sway, I was obliged to leave, as I did to my sorrow. The privateer left the place forty-eight hours before I did myself.

I have stored the salt here, and wait your orders, by the orders of the Committee here, which I think is best, as it takes the vessels off of damage.

I am, gentlemen, your humble servant,
ALEX. EXUEN.

To the Provincial Congress of the State of New-York.

P. S. Be pleased to send your orders as soon as possible.

JOHN HURD TO COLONEL CHASE.

Exeter, September 20, 1776.

SIR: The bearer, Mr. Moses Chase, will inform you of the two additional ranging companies allowed by our Assembly to be raised for the defence of our frontiers, to serve till the first of December next, one of which is expected will be taken chiefly out of your regiment, the officers being so appointed—Mr. Russell, of Plainfield, for the Captain, by the recommendation of Mr. Chase—the said company to consist of fifty-five men including officers, and which you are desired to see mustered and properly equipped; for which purpose the money is now sent by Mr. Chase, viz, the bounty or blanket money of twelve shillings each, and half month's advance pay, which you'll please to receive of him and deliver out to officers and men, agreeable to the memorandum herewith. This company is to rendezvous and make their head-quarters at Cohos, and for their scouting marches to be under the direction of a Committee there—Colonel Charles Johnstone, Mr. Jonathan Hale, Mr. James Bailey, and myself; and as I am authorized to furnish them with provisions, I must desire you would in my behalf supply them when and while they are in your neighbourhood, for the amount of which I will either pay you the money or give an order on the Committee at Exeter for it. Mr. Moses Chase has also promised me to assist you in this business. I shall write you again from Cohos, when I return there, in about a fortnight from this, and shall be glad to hear also from you. In the mean while remain, with due respect, sir, your most humble servant,

JOHN HURD.

LETTER RECEIVED BY A MERCHANT IN LONDON FROM PARIS, DATED SEPTEMBER 21, 1776.

The American Plenipotentiary created great debates in the Cabinet. Lord Stormont exercised all his powers of intrigue and persuasion to gain a refusal to negotiate with them, and remonstrated with many of the Ministers, some of whom, who did not hesitate to deliver their real opinion, opposed the treaty, and spoke with great acrimony against the Colonies: among these was the Count de St. Germain, who endeavoured to impress in the minds of the other members a conviction of the justice of the measure. This statesman seemed to have the greatest weight; and had not the Queen interfered, it is thought Mr. Silas Deane would have returned a very different answer to the Congress. It is astonishing the interest this she-politician bears in matters of State; she can cajole and threaten into compliance the most popular Minister about the palace. The Count, however, dared to represent the inconvenience that might arise to the Kingdom upon taking an active part in the dispute. It was not England alone that could raise any fearful apprehensions in his breast, but it was the resentment of her allies. He depicted the horrors of war in the most lively and emphatick strains of eloquence; upon the blessings of peace, he bestowed every eulogium that he thought might be the means of rendering it an object of cultivation; but all was in vain; the treaty was signed, which it is confidently reported will be attended with the disgrace of the Count. Certain it is that his parsimony has given universal disgust, and every means are trying to render him obnoxious to the King.

During Mr. Deane's stay here, he was frequently at Court, where he often met with Lord Stormont. All outward etiquette was preserved, and they often conversed together upon general topicks, so that strangers might easily mistake them for cordial friends. They never entered into political debate at the levee. His Lordship, however, observed him with a jealous eye, whenever he was in conversation with any of the members of the Cabinet. Notwithstanding the caution used, it came to the knowledge of his Lordship that Mr. Deane had private conferences at some of their houses. This underhand proceeding, procured, we may conjecture, by the most powerful and never-failing application, raised his Lordship's choler, and he upbraided them with it openly in the King's presence; the charge was positively denied, and as positively persisted in; the matter grew warm, the King interposed, and for the present the dispute subsided.

The good old Count de St. Germain, fruitless to frustrate the league, yielded at length to the torrent of opposition, and was apparently reconciled to the resolutions of the Cabinet. After giving his opinion as above related, he remained a silent spectator, and passively approved of the treaty. After it had undergone the Royal sanction, he issued immediate orders to the several ports to put the maritime department in the most formidable state. Various conjectures are formed, whether these preparations are made with an offensive or defensive view. There can be no doubt that a war will be the consequence of our support to American rebellion; but who will open the business, is the material question; your Court, if they have spirit, are furnished with a very justifiable pretext.

GENERAL GADSDEN TO JOHN LEWIS GERVAIS.

Sullivan's Island, September 21, 1776.

SIR: We are out of ruin, of which, for the work I am about, I am obliged to use a great deal. Pray send a hogshhead for this garrison as soon as possible, by Captain Ham, if you can.

I am, sir, your humble servant,

CHRIST. GADSDEN.

To John Lewis Gervais, Esq., Commissary-General, Charlestown.

COLONEL ROBERTS TO JOHN LEWIS GERVAIS.

Colonel Roberts's compliments to the Commissary, and informs him that it is not the season either for carrion or salt beef—both of which when he takes the trouble of sending to Fort Johnson for the Artillery he will order to be returned, &c.

Saturday, September 21, 1776.

[ENDORSED—Impertinent note of Colonel Roberts, 21 Sept., 1776, treated with contempt—not answered.]

DELAWARE CONVENTION TO THE BOARD OF WAR.

New-Castle, September 21, 1776.

SIR: In an answer to your letter, dated from the War Office, requesting a list of prisoners in this State, I am to inform you that none are within it at present; the few we had were ordered to Philadelphia, for the purpose of exchanging them for a Captain Budden and others, under a resolution of Congress. One Continental battalion only hath been raised in this State; and a complete list of the officers, their ranks, and dates of commissions, was transmitted to Mr. President Hancock, by the President of the Council of Safety of this State, and I must refer you to that list for the information you want.

I am your most obedient and very humble servant,

GEO. READ, President of Convention.

To Richard Peters, Esq.

DELAWARE CONVENTION TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read September 23, 1776.]

New-Castle, September 21, 1776.

SIR: The Convention of this State, upon the receipt of your letter of the 3d of this instant, enclosing the resolution of Congress of the same date, requesting all the aid in our power to be sent to the army at New-York, immediately took the same into their consideration, and have at length ordered a battalion, to consist of four hundred and eighty men, including officers, to be forthwith raised and equipped, to reinforce the army of the United States, and to serve till the last day of December next. The want of arms, and the great extent of our frontiers on the river and bay of Delaware, must apologize for the smallness of this aid—it is the widow's mite. God grant that it may, in the least degree, contribute to the common safety, is the sincere wish of, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

GEO. READ, *President of Convention.*To the Hon. John Hancock, Esq.

COMMITTEE OF SECRET CORRESPONDENCE TO WILLIAM BINGHAM.

Philadelphia, September 21, 1776.

SIR: Your several letters of the 4th, 15th, and 26th August, to this Committee, have been duly received, with the several enclosures, and the whole have been laid before Congress. We can therefore communicate that satisfaction which we dare say it must afford you to know, that you have so far obtained the approbation of that august body.

It is not necessary that we should enter into minute replies to the contents of your letters; therefore, we shall only notice such parts as seem to require it.

Captain Wickes's behaviour meets the approbation of his country, and fortune seems to have had an eye to his merit when he conducted his three prizes safely in. You made a very proper use of his engagement by your question to the General, and it is extremely satisfactory that our prizes may be carried into and protected in the French ports; but hitherto the Congress have not thought proper to entrust blank commissions beyond seas, neither can their resolve for bringing prizes into some of these States for condemnation, be dispensed with. These matters are now under consideration of a committee, and should any alteration take place, you shall be informed of it.

We are bound to return thanks to his Excellency the General, for the information he authorized you to give us, as mentioned in your letter of the 4th, and particularly for his disposition to favour our commerce in port, and protect it at sea; and likewise, for that concern he expressed at not having it in his power to assist us with the arms and powder we requested. You will therefore signify to his Excellency, that this Committee entertain the warmest sentiments of esteem and respect for his person and character, and of gratitude for his favourable attention to the concerns of our much-injured country; that we request the continuance of his friendship, and hope during your residence at Martinico, there will be many opportunities of benefiting by his favourable disposition, particularly in countenancing you in the purchase and exportation of arms, ammunition, and clothing.

We are not surprised that Admiral Young's letter should have altered the General's sentiment respecting convoys; but we esteem much his spirited answer to the Admiral, which may probably be productive of some alteration.

We like well your proposal for a constant intercourse by packets; and the sloop Independence, Captain John Young, is now sent on that service, in which we hope she will be successful and continue; more of the like kind shall follow, and probably this may be found the best method of supporting our intercourse with Europe; and as these vessels are properly commissioned, we cannot see any impropriety in fitting out tenders, with copies of their commissions, provided the commanding officers of those tenders are really officers belonging to the vessel whose commission they bear; but the prizes must be sent to America for condemnation, unless the cargoes are perishable, and in such case, if properly certified, we suppose it might be best to make sale of them.

We thank you for Mr. Price's pamphlet, and wish you would write to Mr. Deane and Mr. Morris to contrive you a constant and ample supply of the English, Irish, and French newspapers, political publications, &c. We send you by this opportunity the Journals of Congress, as far as published, and the newspapers to this time.

We received the arms and powder by the Reprisal. They come seasonably, and we wish there had been more of them. The Secret Committee will supply you with funds for the payments of these and more.

Since the arrival of Lord Howe and General Howe in the neighbourhood of New-York, with their forces, they have been rather too strong for our people to cope with, and consequently have succeeded in their enterprises; which, however, have not been of that importance that they will probably represent to the world. They have been ten or twelve weeks, with a powerful fleet and a numerous army, well provided and appointed with every thing necessary, and what have they done? They have got possession of three small islands on the coast of America. These were hardly disputed with them, and yet, if every acre of American territory is to cost them in the same proportion, the conquest would ruin all Europe. Our army are now collected to a point, and are strongly intrenched on New-York Island and at King's Bridge, so that in fact Mr. Howe is hemmed in, as he was at Boston, except that he has more elbow-room, and a powerful fleet, commanding an extensive inland navigation. Our Northern army are strongly posted at Tyconderoga, and expect they will be able to keep Mr. Burgoyne from crossing the Lakes this campaign.

We are worse off for woollen clothing for our army than any other matter, and you must exert your utmost industry to buy, and send us every thing of that kind you can meet with in Martinico, or any of the neighbouring Islands.

We have gone into this detail of our present situation, that you may have a just idea of it, and be able to make proper representations to the General and inhabitants of Martinico.

We recommended the French officers that came with Captain Wickes to Congress, and the Board of War have provided for them to their satisfaction. On this subject your remarks have been very proper; officers unacquainted with our language cannot be useful; therefore we do not wish to encourage such to come amongst us; at the same time, men of merit and abilities will always meet with suitable encouragement. You must therefore pursue the line you set out in; give general discouragement to those that apply, and recommend none but such as the General will pledge his word for, and you may even intimate to him, that if too many come over, the Congress will not know what to do with them.

We are now at the 1st of October, and have not heard from Mr. Deane after his arrival at Bordeaux. His last letter is dated 23d June, when he was just setting out for Paris. We have later intelligence than his; in consequence of which we desire you to inquire of the General and Governor, whether they have received any arms or ammunition from Monsieur Hortalez, with directions to deliver the same to any persons properly authorized by Congress to receive them. If they have, we hereby authorize you to receive the same, giving your receipts on behalf of the United States of America. If none such are arrived, inquire if they have any advice of such, and request they will make known to you when they do arrive. We desire you will make the like application to the Governor of St. Eustatia, but proceed cautiously in this business. We think you should go there yourself in a French vessel, or if that might be unsafe, or make a noise, get Mr. Richard Harrison or some person in whose prudence you can confide; let the first question be, whether his Excellency has received any advices from Monsieur Hortalez; if the answer be in the negative, tell him that he will receive letters from such a person, and that those advices have reference to you; therefore request the favour of being immediately made acquainted when they come to hand, and you will wait on him or send a proper person in your stead. If the answer be in the affirmative, then inquire if his Excellency had received any thing beside advice from Monsieur Hortalez, and if he has, inform him you are empowered to receive the same from him agreeable to the directions sent with the goods. We believe you had best proceed in the same cautious manner at Martinico, and open no more of this business than circumstances shall make absolutely necessary.

We also enjoin you to the strictest secrecy, and herewith enclose you two separate letters as your proper authority for receiving any goods or money Monsieur Hortalez, our agent in Europe, may remit.

It was intended that Captain Young should deliver you this letter; but as we have some important despatches to send Mr. Deane, we have concluded to send Mr. William Hodge, junior, the bearer hereof, with the same, in order that he may deliver them with his own hands. You'll please to show Mr. Hodge proper attention, and assist him to the utmost of your power in procuring him a passage immediately from Martinico to France, in a good ship. If any men-of-war or packet should be going, make application to the General, to recommend Mr. Hodge to the commander; also, to the Governour, commander of the port where he goes to in France, to give him passport and assistance from thence to Paris, with the best despatch.

If Mr. Hodge should want money for his expenses, supply him, and transmit us his receipts for the same. You will serve your country by forwarding Mr. Hodge without delay; but you need not mention to the General how urgent we are on this point, unless you find it will promote his despatch.

We learn, from many quarters, that a fleet of twenty sail of the line are fitting at Brest and Toulon. Should they come out to the West-Indies, and be destined to commit hostilities against the British trade or territories, they have a fair opportunity to strike a capital stroke at New-York, where they have upwards of four hundred sail of ships, guarded only by two sixty-four-gun ships, two fifties, and six forties—the rest are all frigates, &c. Twenty sail of the line would take their whole fleet, with ease, and then we could as easily manage their army.

We had omitted above to desire that you should send back in the sloop Independence, Captain Young, a proportion of the arms, ammunition, money, or other stores you may receive either at Martinico or St. Eustatia, from Monsieur Hortalez, taking bills of lading for the same, deliverable to us, or our order; and if the quantity you receive should be considerable, you may send by Captain Young about the value of three or four thousand pounds sterling, observing that we want muskets and woollen clothing most immediately.

We shall send more armed vessels after Captain Young, to bring away the remainder of what you may receive or buy, and are, sir, your obedient, humble servants.

To William Bingham, Esq.

MARINE COMMITTEE TO THOMAS CUSHING.

September 21, 1776.

SIR: In consequence of a letter from the President of Massachusetts-Bay, dated the 13th instant, to the President of the Congress, which was by Congress referred to this Committee, we have determined to comply with the wishes of your Assembly by ordering the frigate commanded by Captain McNeill, and that by Captain Thompson, of New-Hampshire, to be fitted immediately and proceed on a cruise on your coast, in hopes of taking the Millford frigate, or driving her or any other enemy away from those seas. We therefore authorize you to accept the proffered assistance of the said Assembly, or any Committee they appoint to assist in fitting, equipping, arming and manning that frigate. You are also to accept their offer of twenty-four nine-pounders cannon, and to coöperate with them in getting the ship to sea with the utmost expedition; and we agree to reimburse the State of Massachusetts-Bay for all just and necessary expenses they incur in effecting this business.

We shall in due time cause their cannon to be returned, unless they think proper to make sale of them for the use of this ship, and in that case we would choose to purchase them, provided they are good guns, quite suitable for the service. You will please to purchase a proper number of swivel-guns, good muskets, blunderbusses, cutlasses, pikes, and other arms and instruments suitable for this ship. You will apply to the State for a proper quantity of powder, ball, musket shot, and other military stores, to be paid for or returned by the Congress; and in short as this ship will instantly go into danger, we hope nothing will be neglected that ought to be done in fitting and manning her.

If Mr. Langdon applies to you, Mr. Bradford, or to your State, for assistance in fitting out the frigate under his care, we hope it will be granted, and we shall reimburse all just expenses and charges. The intended enterprise should be kept secret as possible.

We are sincerely, sir, your most obedient servants.

JOHN HANCOCK.

To the Hon. Thomas Cushing, Esq.

MARINE COMMITTEE TO JOHN BRADFORD.

September 21, 1776.

SIR: In consequence of some overtures from the Assembly of your State, we have determined to order the Continental frigate, commanded by Hector McNeill, Esq., to be immediately armed, manned, and fitted for the sea, and accordingly have this day written what we judged necessary to Mr. Cushing and the Captain on that subject. The present is to desire you will give them all the aid and assistance in your power in this business. You are to supply them with any Continental stores you may have in your possession that are wanted, and assist in procuring such. Similar orders are sent to John Langdon, Esq., of New-Hampshire, respecting the frigate there; and should he apply to you for any assistance, we pray it may be granted.

We are, sir, your humble servants.

To John Bradford, Esq.

MARINE COMMITTEE TO CAPTAIN THOMPSON.

September 21, 1776.

SIR: The Assembly of New-Hampshire and Massachusetts having offered their assistance in equipping, arming, and manning the frigate under your command, we have accepted their kind offers, and hope in consequence thereof you will soon be ready for sea. We expect the same will be the case with the frigate commanded by Captain McNeill, of Massachusetts; and our design is that you should join company soon as possible and cruise in concert. We are informed the Millford frigate now infests the coast of those States, and does much injury to their commerce. It is our duty to prevent the continuance of this soon as we can; and as the two frigates mentioned will be an overmatch for the Millford, or any single frigate of the enemy, you are to join Captain McNeill and go in search of that or any of the enemy's ships in those seas that you can cope with; and we hope in due time that you have taken, destroyed, or drove off the said enemy. The rank betwixt you and Captain McNeill is not yet established; you are therefore to act in concert, and consult each other in all things that relate to the good of the service, to the safety and preservation of your ships, or to the interests and honour of the United States of America.

The Continental agents in any State you put into, will supply provisions or any necessaries that may be wanted. To some of them you are to address your prizes, and you must advise the Committee of your proceedings as opportunities occur. You are also to furnish us, in due time, with copies of your log-book and journal, and advise us of any important intelligence that may come to your knowledge.

With the best wishes for your success, we are, sir, your humble servants.

To Captain Thomas Thompson.

MARINE COMMITTEE TO CAPTAIN M'NEILL.

September 21, 1776.

SIR: The Assembly of Massachusetts having offered their assistance in equipping, manning, and arming the frigate under your command, we have accepted the same, and therefore hope you will very soon be ready for the sea. We expect the same from the frigate in New-Hampshire, commanded by Captain Thompson, and our design is that you should join company as soon as possible and cruise in concert. We are informed that the Millford frigate now infests the coasts of these States, and does much injury to their trade. It is our duty to prevent this soon as we are able; and as the two frigates mentioned will be an overmatch for the Millford, or any single frigate of the enemy, and go in quest of that or any other of the enemy's ships in those seas, provided they be such as you are able to cope with; and we hope in due time that you have taken, destroyed, or drove the enemy off the coast. The rank betwixt you and Captain Thompson is not yet established; you are therefore to act in concert, and consult each other in all things that relate for the good of the service, to the safety and preservation of your ships, or to the interest and honour of the United States of America.

The Continental agents in any State you put into, will supply provisions or any necessities that may be wanted. To some of them you are to address your prizes, and must advise this Committee of your proceedings as opportunities occur. You are also to furnish us in due time with a copy of your log-book and journal, and advise us of any important intelligence that may come to your knowledge.

With the best wishes for your success, we are, sir, your friends, &c., &c.

To Captain Hector McNeill.

MARINE COMMITTEE TO JOHN LANGDON.

September 21, 1776.

SIR: The Assembly of Massachusetts-Bay having represented the necessity and utility of fitting out, with all possible expedition, one of the frigates built in that State, and that under your direction, to cruise on your coasts, in order to take or drive off the enemy that now infest them, and having offered their assistance to equip and man these ships, and also handed us the copy of a note or resolve of your honourable Assembly, to the same purport, we have determined to comply with their wishes, so far as depends on us, and have this day given the necessary orders to Mr. Cushing, Captain McNeill, and Captain Bradford, for getting their ship ready. We are, therefore, to request that you will exert your utmost endeavours to have the frigate under your care completed immediately.

You will accept the assistance of your Assembly, or the Committee they appoint for that purpose. You may either purchase or borrow suitable cannon, swivels, blunderbusses, muskets, pistols, cutlasses, pikes, ball, shot, powder, &c., &c. You may apply to the State of Massachusetts, to the Honourable Mr. Cushing, or to any of the Continental agents in the neighbouring States, for materials or other assistance you stand in need of; and this Committee, on behalf of the United States, will pay all just and equitable charges that you or any of them incur in effecting this business: so that we hope Captain Thompson will soon be able to join Captain McNeill in this enterprise, which ought to be kept as secret as possible.

We are, sir, your friends, &c., &c.

To John Langdon, Esquire.

MARINE COMMITTEE TO CAPTAIN WICKES.

September 21, 1776.

SIR: This Committee being very desirous of sending the Reprisal under your command on immediate service, desire that you forward her outfit, take in provisions and stores for two months, and get ready for sea, with the utmost expedition; and all commanders and officers of the fleet now in this port, as well as all other persons in the Continental employ, are hereby desired to aid and assist you in getting your ship immediately fitted and manned.

We are, sir, &c., &c.

To Lambert Wickes, Esquire.

SAMUEL CHASE TO GENERAL GATES.

Philadelphia, September 21, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I came from Annapolis ten days ago, and have the pleasure to inform you that your lady was well, at Frederickton, a few days before, as Mr. Beatty informed me. I wrote to Mrs. Gates, and enclosed her your letter to me.

I readily make peace with you, and shall wait, with patience, till I see you, for a full explanation. I could not but be mortified at your censure, because I both respect and esteem you. I wish you would, by letter, inform me of your suspicions, and disclose the secret springs which you suppose have influenced men and measures in your department. It is not curiosity, but an earnest desire to hunt out the villain, and to drag him before the awful tribunal of the publick, that urges me to know the mystery.

Our affairs here wear a very unfavourable aspect. You have been, undoubtedly, informed of the battle on Long-Island. On this day week the enemy landed a body of forces at Turtle Bay, (after a severe cannonade from their ships in the East River, to scour the country, and to cover their landing.) Our troops, posted in lines thrown up to oppose their landing, abandoned them, at the first appearance of the enemy, with the utmost precipitation and confusion. Two brigades, commanded by Generals Parsons and Fellows, were ordered to support them. They also fled in every direction, without firing a single shot, notwithstanding the exertions of their Generals to form them, and, oh, disgraceful! on the appearance of only about sixty or seventy of the enemy. By this infamous conduct we lost a great part of our baggage and most of our heavy cannon which had been left at New-York. Our army retreated, and possessed themselves of the Heights of Harlem; our Head-Quarters at Roger Morris's house.

On Monday last the enemy appeared in the plains, two and a half miles from the Heights; about four hundred, under General Leslie. A skirmish began between them and a party of volunteers from several New-England regiments, commanded by Colonel Knowlton. Our people were supported by companies from a Virginia battalion and from two Militia Maryland regiments. The enemy were obliged to retreat, with the loss of about one hundred, killed and prisoners. Colonel Knowlton, a brave officer, was killed. Major Leitch, of Maryland, was wounded, and despaired of.

The enemy's main army is now encamped between seven and eight miles-tone; General Howe's Head-Quarters at one Mr. Apthorp's.

On the 19th, General Washington writes that he expects, from the movements of the enemy, a general attack. I greatly fear the event.

If General Schuyler is with you, make me most respectfully remembered to him; also to Generals Arnold and St. Clair. Adieu!

Your affectionate and obedient servant,

SAML. CHASE.

Congress have resolved to raise eighty-eight battalions of Regular forces, to be enlisted during the war. Would it had been done last year!

TO THE PEOPLE OF PENNSYLVANIA.

It has been said that many timid people begin to be very apprehensive for the fate of the Continental currency, and are vesting it with great expedition, in lands and certainties of various kinds; for, say they, "should the forces of Great Britain prevail over the Colony troops, the currency will be totally abolished by the conquerors, and the possessors will sink the whole." Surely those who thus reason, are but little acquainted with the movements of Government, neither are they aware of the injury they do their country; for by such conduct they immediately effect, in part, the evil they wish to avoid. When paper money circulates in the common course of trade, its value gradually rises and falls according to its quantity, when relatively considered with the value of the real effects of a country, such as houses, lands, provisions, gold, silver and merchandise of every kind; for though paper merely has not any significant value in itself, and has only such nominal value as we please to fix on it, a single dollar bill being as large as an eight dollar bill, yet as by general consent, we agree to receive and pass this as one and that as eight, so long as this mutual confidence and resolution continues, they are, to all intents and purposes, of as much real worth as so much actual gold and silver, which are, of themselves, of no other absolute value than what mankind have been pleased to fix on them. The Mexican Indians found iron of vastly greater use than gold, and freely exchanged one for the other, till they learned, by fatal experience, that the Eastern world preferred the gold at the risk of life, honour, and their boasted religion.

Paper bills are, with respect to the publick, what private bonds and notes of hand are amongst individuals—mere promissory notes; and so long as the grantor is good and sufficient, they will bear a very safe assignment; for he that receives an eight dollar bill in payment, does in fact only receive an assignment of a Continental promissory note, which at some future day is to be paid off. It must be granted, that the issuing large sums will gradually decrease the value of the emission, in the same proportion as the introduction of an over-quantity of any article of merchandise would affect its price and sale; but as this decrease in value can never instantaneously take place, the trader, by keeping his money in a constant circulation, will gradually raise the price of his commodities in proportion to the decreased value of the money, and thereby always keep fairly and safely above water. A loss can only happen where long credits are given, or to such as keep large sums useless by them; therefore, it becomes, of course, their interest to throw such money immediately into trade; for the captures may happen in the course of their adventures, the prices of such goods as arrive safe must, in the end, amount to more than the losses; for whether insurance be made or not, the consumer must actually pay such advanced price as will be equal to the risk run, and leave a profit to the trader besides; otherwise, there must be a general bankruptcy amongst the merchants, a general cessation of exports, a stoppage to the raising of the several staples of America, and of course an almost total stagnation to the circulation of money; for, without trade, little money will serve us. But as the necessities of our unhappy contest still call for large and continued emissions of paper money, it becomes absolutely necessary for every cashholder to push it into trade; for though we are a people individually consisting of distinct fortunes, yet on the great scale we are one large trading company, and must sink or rise together.

If the whole Continent upon an extensive view of the matter, are unequal to the conflict, the suffering must be individually felt, and nothing will so effectually support us, as steadily and resolutely extending our trade to the utmost limits it will bear. It is a grand Continental experiment we are trying, and nothing but the experiment itself can determine the expediency; we are not to look on our present situation as a matter of choice, but necessity; we have got into a labyrinth, and must get out of it as well we can. If by giving a general credit to our money, and forcing a trade, we should weary out Great Britain, or involve her in a war with some of her European neighbours, we may then take our own time to pay off the debt we have been contracting, and every year will restore the currency nearer to its original value. To what extent a country may venture to run itself in debt, is a question beyond my abilities to solve; whether a community and an individual may with propriety be compared, I cannot pretend to determine; but if the comparison would hold, I should say, that as an individual has a right to spend or run into debt to the exact amount of what he is worth, without injury to his creditors, so may a community; if this be true, it may be easy to determine how much farther we may safely go. The present value of all the estates in America is about three million two hundred thousand dollars per annum, supposing the rated taxes to be, on an average, only one-sixth of the real annual value of the estates. Some may think that the rates bear a much greater proportion to the real value, yet it should be considered, that there are large estates in land as well as money, which are scarcely rated at all. If I am right in this estimate, the whole present worth of America, at twenty years' purchase, is sixty-four millions of dollars. Thus if the whole Continent belonged to one man, it would be very safe to trust him to the amount of sixty-four millions, and I presume the debt we have yet contracted, both continentally and provincially, does not amount to near half that sum; and besides, we should consider that land will annually increase in value, and that there will be large tracts to dispose of to foreigners, who may be tempted by a mild administration of equitable laws, to come amongst us. Here it is to be observed, I go upon the presumption, that we shall carry our point of independence; but supposing the worst that can happen, that we should be reduced to our former situation of allegiance to the Crown of Great Britain, it can never be the interest of England to abolish our paper currency, for many weighty reasons. She must certainly wish to renew her trade with us upon her former advantageous plan; but, if by a total reduction of our currency, she should ruin all the moneyed men upon the Continent, where should we find merchants to build ships and export the produce of the country in exchange for English manufactures? Or where would she find customers to purchase the thousand useless articles which luxury had introduced amongst us? The rich would be no more, and it would take half a century to reinstate them; the poor, becoming industrious, would make a few necessities serve them, and the consumption of English goods would be amazingly diminished. But why should they wish to destroy our paper currency? To punish us, say some, for our misconduct, and to deter us in future from repeating it.

If punishment be their aim, it would certainly be more heavily felt by their leaving us in the full possession of our money; for as we should be under a necessity of paying an annual tax for a long series of years to come, in order to sink the money emitted during the war, we shall more sensibly feel the effects of the present dispute, than if the whole was to be at once annihilated; for such annihilation falling principally on the moneyed men, those of small or no fortunes, who form the majority in every country, would be thereby released from defraying any part of the expenses incurred, and would therefore have no memento of any past inconveniences of the moneyed kind, to deter them from renewing the attempt to cast off the slavish yoke which conquest might fix on them; and the once rich, becoming now poor, would be men of so little importance, either from numbers or influence, that no remembrance of their sufferings would retard the design, whenever there appeared a prospect of success. Like the distresses of an earthquake or shipwreck, the horrors would exist for a short period, and then be remembered no more; like extracting a tooth, it would give one violent twinge and then be forgotten; but, on the other hand, should perpetual rumblings and storms daily disturb our quiet, or continual grumbling pains deprive us of rest, we might be more doubtful of the propriety of renewing the experiment; in one case, every year's tax would bring the dispute fresh to our minds; in the other, not a trace would be left behind, except the wandering shades of departed fortunes, denouncing feeble but bitter execrations against the authors of their ruin. The punishment would be too partial to answer the designs of our inveterate enemies; for if the money remains to be sunk by taxes in the several Provinces, every man, who by success in trade or steady industry, increases his fortune, will pay additional taxes in proportion to this growing wealth, and of consequence will feel a proportionably greater part of the effects of the dispute, which would not be the case if a general dissolution of paper money should take place. We may depend on the determination of the King and Parliament to pursue that mode which would be the longest felt, and I should expect no favour from them but what arose from their own interest to grant; but as I am confident that a sudden suppression of our money would be but a temporary and partial suffering, they are too deep politicians to attempt it. It is to be observed, I here take up the argument as if Great Britain had made a complete conquest of America, which I by no means grant she is likely to accomplish; it is for argument sake that I admit it, in order to convince those who are fearful of losing by Continental money, that it cannot be the intention, because it is not the interest of England to destroy it; they would rather desire to leave us with a perpetual burthen on our shoulders, which, like their own national debt, may incline more to peace than war, and would wish us, like the wood-cutter in the fable (who thought all his toiling and sweating proceeded from the sins of his first parent) to cry with every stroke of the axe, "Oh, Adam!" But I trust we reside in a Paradise from which the powers of Great Britain can never expel us.

POSTSCRIPT TO THE PAPER ADDRESSED TO THE PEOPLE OF PENNSYLVANIA.

Looking over the calculations I had made in the piece published in the last Evening Post, I perceived a very gross error; and the discovery being too late to be corrected before the paper was struck off, I must request an insertion of the following remarks; and as the correction tends more fully to support my argument of the goodness and safety of Continental money, I make no doubt but it will find a place in next paper.

I have said that "the present value of all the estates in America is three million two hundred thousand dollars per annum, supposing the rated taxes to be, on an average, only one-sixth of the real annual value of the estates;" and that, at this "estimate, the whole present worth of America, at twenty years purchase, is sixty-four millions of dollars." As this calculation was made from a series of figuring, it had escaped my notice, at first, that I was calculating upon the actual taxes paid, and not upon the rates from which those taxes arose. For instance, I supposed Pennsylvania, by an eighteen-penny tax, to bring in twenty-five thousand pounds per annum; and as our Province is generally ranked in the quotas at about one-eighth of the Continent, the whole income would be two hundred thousand pounds; and, taking for granted that this was not above one-sixth of the sum which would arise from a just and full valuation, I called the whole value one million two hundred thousand pounds—equal to three millions two hundred thousand dollars; and this, at twenty years' purchase, amounted to sixty-four millions: whereas I should have calculated upon twenty years purchase on the rates from which the eighteen-penny tax was drawn, which would make the whole value of the Continent just thirteen times and one third as much, viz: about eight hundred and fifty-three millions of dollars, of which we yet have expended but a small portion. I the more readily fell into the error, as this part of my essay was not the object I had in view, which was to persuade those who possess Continental money, that we have nothing to fear from Great Britain, and that it is our interest to force a trade, and give a brisk circulation to the money, which will necessarily prevent individuals from suffering by any gradual depreciation, which is by no means so great as some would infer from the extravagant height of bills of exchange. In our present circumstances, bills are by no means a proper touchstone to try the value of our money by. It is the small exports to Europe which occasion the scarcity of bills; and the great profits made by imports from foreign ports, has increased the proportion of bill buyers far beyond the bill sellers. Let us but send off our ships, and having the same open trade we formerly had, and I am confident, notwithstanding all our fears, that the value of Continental money will rise—that is, bills of exchange will soon fall to near their old standard.

REMARKS ON THE PAPER ADDRESSED TO THE PEOPLE OF PENNSYLVANIA.

MR. TOWNE: My present purpose is not to investigate whether your correspondent means well or ill to the community, by his essay concerning the Continental currency in your Saturday's paper; but I mean to rectify a capital mistake, to prevent wrong and pernicious conclusions. This essayist supposes the annual value of all the estates in America to be three millions two hundred thousand dollars, and thence concludes the whole present worth of America to be sixty-four millions of dollars, at twenty years purchase.

Here we discover a gross error in the first outset, because it has been admitted, even by our enemies, that the annual exportation of North America to Great Britain only, is of value two millions of pounds sterling, to which we may safely add one million for the exportation to the other parts of Europe and the West-Indies. If this be right, then the value of the annual produce of North America is near fifteen millions of dollars, which estimated at twenty years purchase, the whole present worth of North America, is nigh three hundred millions of dollars, instead of sixty-four millions, which this writer values it at. These, however, are very inadequate modes of estimating the incomputable value, if I may be indulged the expression, of a vast Continent, filling fast with industrious freemen, and abounding in all the valuable products which the finest soils and climates are capable of producing.

Let it be our care to prevent the killing grasp of tyranny from destroying this our hopeful harvest and fair inheritance; we need not apprehend for the paltry debt the war may create, which the industrious hands of agriculture and commerce unrestrained, will quickly wipe away.

DORIA.

OBSERVATIONS OF FINANCE, BY PELATIAH WEBSTER.

The computations of the value of the free States of America by Conti—and Doria in the Evening Post of September 21, rather prove that value to be immense than reduce it to a certainty. Perhaps another method of computation might be admitted, viz: From the quantity of land within the present inhabited part of those States, which is at least two hundred millions of acres, and worth a dollar per acre I should think, at least, some say two or three dollars, and perhaps the personal estate may be computed at as much more, which I do not think is reckoning high, and will make the amount four hundred millions of dollars. All these computations prove with certainty enough that the funds on which the Continental money depends are sufficiently great to support a very much larger quantity than is already emitted. I would further observe, that the American States owe nothing to pay any body but themselves, and employ no ships, soldiers, &c., but their own, so that they contract no foreign debt; and I take it to be a clear maxim, that no State can be ruined, bankrupted, or indeed much endangered, by any debt due to itself only; nor can it be much impoverished by any war; and the people that are left at home can furnish the provisions, clothing, &c., necessary for themselves and the soldiery, together with all other necessary stores and implements of war.

There requires no more to preserve such a State in a war of any length of time than good economy in bringing the burthen equally on all, in proportion to their abilities; but then I think it very necessary that they should pay as they go as near as may be. The soldier renders his personal services down on the spot, the farmer his provisions, the tradesman his fabricks, and why should not the moneyed man pay his money down, too? Why should the soldier, tradesman, farmer, &c., be paid in promises, which are not as good as money if the fulfillment is at a distance? Payment in promises or bills of credit is a temporary expedient, and will always be dangerous where the quantity increases too much; at least it will always have the consequences of a medium increased beyond the necessities of trade; and whenever that happens a speedy remedy is necessary, or the ill effects will soon be alarming, and, if long neglected, will not be easily remedied. The remedy, or rather prevention, of this evil I take to be very easy at present. If the quantity of Continental currency is greater than is necessary for medium of trade, it will appear by a number of very perceptible effects, each of which point out and facilitate the remedy. One effect will be that people will choose to have their estates vested in any goods of intrinsic value rather than in money, and of course there will be a quick demand for every kind of goods, and consequently a high price for them; another effect will be discouragement of industry, for people will not work hard to procure goods for sale while the medium for which they must sell them is supposed to be worse than the goods; and of course another effect will be a discouragement of trade, for nobody will import goods and sell them when imported for a medium that is worse than the goods themselves, for in that case though the profits may be nominal the loss will be real; these effects all point out their only remedy, viz: lessening the quantity of the circulating medium, and this can be done but by three ways that I know of: First, the destruction of it by some casualty, as fire, shipwreck, &c.; or, secondly, exportation of it, which cannot happen in our case, because our medium has no currency abroad, and I think it very well for us that it has not, for in that case our debt would soon become due to people without ourselves, and of course less sensible, more difficult to be paid, and more dangerous; the third, and in my opinion the only practicable way of lessening the quantity, is by a tax, which never can be paid so easy as when money is more plenty than goods, and of course the very cause which makes a tax necessary facilitates the payment of it; the tax ought to be equal to the excess of the currency, so as to lessen the currency down to that quantity which is necessary for a medium of trade, and this, in my opinion, ought to be done in every State, whether money is immediately wanted in the publick Treasury or not, for it is better for any State to have their excess of money, if it is in bullion, hoarded in a publick Treasury or Bank than circulated among the people, for nothing can have worse effects on any State than an excess of money. The poverty of the States of Holland, where nobody can have money who does not first earn it, has produced industry, frugality, economy, good habits of body and mind, and durable and well-established riches, whilst the excess of money has produced the contrary in Spain, i. e., has ruined their industry and economy, and filled them with pride and poverty; and perhaps England owes much of her ruin to the same causes.

But there is, besides this general principle, a special reason in our case why we should pay a large part of our Continental debt by a present tax. The great consumption of our armies and stoppage of our imports, makes a great demand for the produce of our lands, the fabricks of our tradesmen, and the labour of our people, and of course raises the prices of all these much higher than usual, so that the husbandman, tradesman, and labourer, get money much faster and easier than they used to do; and it is a plain maxim that people should always pay their debts when they have a good run of business, and have money plenty. Many a man has been distressed for a debt when business and money were scarce, which he had neglected to pay when he could have done it with great ease to himself had he attended to it in its proper season; this applies to a community or State as well as to private persons. These last observations will apply with great exactness to these parts of the Continent, which lie nearest to the great scenes of the war, and have suffered most by it, and if they can bear the tax, I think those who lie at a distance from those horrors and have felt little more than a sympathy of the distress of their brethren, can have no reason to complain if they are called on for their share of the expense. The Continental money is to be considered as a debt fastened on the person and estate of every member of the United States; a debt of great honour and justice—of national honour and justice—not barely empty honour, but that essential honour and credit in which the safety of the State is comprised, and, therefore, by confession of every body, must be punctually and honourably paid in due time, otherwise all security arising from publick credit must be lost, all confidence of individuals in our publick councils must be destroyed, and great injustice must be done to every possessor of our publick currency to the detriment of all and ruin of many who have placed most confidence in our publick administration, and nothing but shame, scandal, and contempt can ensue, for which nothing but most inevitable necessity can be any excuse. And in this great agreement is every individual of our United States so deeply interested that I cannot conceive one sensible person can be persuaded to risk these consequences for the sake of a little delay of payment of that which must one day be paid, or must all be ruined together. The Continental debt is already a heavy one, and there is no way of sinking it but by paying it while we can; it is still increasing fast, and without a speedy tax, and a very sufficient one, it will grow upon us beyond any possibility of payment. If a man only suffers his rents, butcher's, and tradesman's bills, &c., to be unpaid a number of years, it will endanger his whole fortune. An expense account ought always to be paid up as it becomes due; these are accumulating sums, and it is dangerous to neglect them.

I have heard some people say, it is no matter for the present payment of the Continental debt; we are a country of rapid increase, and what is contracted by three millions of people will soon be paid by six. But how unfatherly and ungenerous is it to load posterity with an immense debt which we have an advantage in sinking a good part of it ourselves; besides, it will be a great discouragement to foreign emigrants to settle in this country to be told that the country is loaded with an immense debt, and their first title to an enfranchisement will be by beginning to pay it.

We are engaged in a cause, which, in all annals of time, has ever been deemed most honourable and glorious, and most characteristic of noble and generous minds, viz: spurning off slavery, and asserting our liberty. As things now stand, the most hardened, impudent Tory does not pretend, that if we fail of supporting our cause, we have any other chance but that of absolute submission and pardon; and even that pardon, doubtless, with numerous exceptions. Good God! who can bear the thought of absolute submission and pardon? Pardon, for the greatest virtue of a civil nature that the human mind is capable of! Who can think, without distraction, of coming under the domination of Tories, suing to them for favour and intercessions? Tories, with standing armies at their heels; soldiers, with bayonets ready to enforce all the respect and submission they may claim. This dreadful apprehension intrudes, with great force, on my mind, another reason why we ought to sink, by a sufficient tax, as much as we can of the Continental debt, viz: That without this it is not possible to continue the war, and avoid absolute submission. I conceive the value of the currency of any State has a limit, a ne plus ultra, beyond which it cannot go; and if the nominal sum is extended beyond that limit, the value will not follow. No human wisdom or authority can be able to stretch the nominal currency beyond such real value. That the consequence of any attempt to extend such nominal addition, must depreciate the value of the whole, till it is reduced within said limit. I will explain my meaning thus: Suppose that thirty millions of dollars was the utmost limit of currency to which the United States of America could give real effectual value, and they should emit thirty millions more, I say the last thirty millions would add nothing to the value of the whole, but would sink the value of the whole sixty millions down to its limits, viz: thirty millions, i. e., the whole sixty millions, in that case, would not purchase more real substantial goods than the thirty millions would have done before the other thirty millions were added to it. It follows from this, that any attempt to continue the war, by increasing the currency beyond the above-said limit, is vain, and must fail of the effect intended, and ruin all those who possess the currency already emitted. Whether the currency already emitted arises to the said limit, is a question of fact that may admit some doubt; but that it is not greatly within it, I think can be no doubt with people well acquainted with the nature and circumstances of this great subject; and be that as it may, I think every inconvenience arising from it is easily remedied by a sufficient tax. I do not apprehend we have yet suffered by a depreciation of the currency, because I cannot observe that the general prices of goods are more raised than the circumstances of the war will make necessary, were our money all gold and silver; and further extremities may produce further effects of the same kind, without depreciating the currency at all.

No kind of necessities have risen to the excess of price given last winter in Boston, for fresh provisions, though their currency was all gold and silver. Increase of risk must raise the price of all imported goods; scarcity of labourers must raise the price of labour, and of consequence, of every thing produced by labour; scarcity of tradesmen (many of whom are gone into the war) and demand for tradesmen's fabricks, must raise the price of them; besides, many raw materials used by the tradesmen, must be imported at great risk, and I do not see that the prices of most, or all these, are greater than they would be if every Continental dollar was a silver one; and should we admit that we are on the verge of depreciation, or that our currency hath suffered some little already in its value, two consequences will follow, which deserve great and immediate consideration: First. That a speedy remedy is immediately necessary, which shall operate effectually, and prevent the ruin of our currency; and the second is, that the remedy, by this very means, becomes more easy and practicable than otherwise it could be; because a tax will be paid much more easily in this case than it could be if money was in credit enough to be avariciously hoarded; and this holds, let the tax be of any nature, such as general assessment of polls and estates, excises, imposts, or duties on goods, lotteries, &c., &c.; in any or all these ways, our currency may be lessened much easier when its credit is a little doubted, than when it is at its highest. What contributes not a little to this facility is, that it may be done by general consent, without publick uneasiness and disturbance; for a depreciation of currency can be wished for by nobody but those who are deeply in debt, the weight or number of whom, I have reason to believe, is not great at present in these States. It is the mighty interest of all the rest of the inhabitants to prevent a depreciation, and I conceive every man of estate who has cash in hand, or due to him, would be willing to contribute his share to the lessening our currency, and so preserving its credit; yea, would eagerly choose this, rather than risk his own loss by a depreciation of the cash he has in hand, and in debts due.

In this time of distress, the publick has a right to every man's best thought. I have not the vanity to think I can exhaust the subject; but I have said so much on it, as I hope will set abler heads and pens on a thorough disquisition of it; for I think all will agree that the subject is a very important one, and deserves the most immediate and most serious attention.

A FINANCIER.

Philadelphia, October 4, 1776.

GEORGE PEACOCKE TO RICHARD PETERS.

Carlisle, September 21, 1776.

SIR: My bad state of health entreats you will be so good as to procure me leave to go to Philadelphia, in order that I may have proper advice, as my illness does not centre in one disorder. Would wish, if leave can be obtained, to have it sent before the warm weather is entirely over.

I am, sir, your very humble and obedient servant,

GEO. PEACOCKE, a Prisoner.

To Richard Peters, Secretary of War.

GENERAL SIR WILLIAM HOWE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Head-Quarters, York Island, September 21, 1776.

SIR: I have the favour of your letters of the 6th and 19th current. In consequence of the latter, directions are given for Major-General Sullivan being conveyed to Elizabethtown on the earliest day; and I conclude Major-General Prescott will return in the same boat.

The exchange you propose of Brigadier-General Alexander, commonly called Lord Stirling, for Mr. McDonald, cannot take place, as he has only the rank of Major by my commission; but I shall readily send any Major in the enclosed list of prisoners that you will be pleased to name, in exchange for him; and that Lord Stirling may not be detained, I would propose to exchange him for Governour Montfort Browne, although the latter is no longer in the military line.

Enclosed you have a list of officers, belonging to the army under my command, who are your prisoners. It is not so correct as I could wish, having received no regular return of the officers of the Forty-Second and Seventy-First Regiments taken this year, but beg leave to refer you to Lieutenant-Colonel Campbell, of the Seventy-First, to rectify any omissions that may be; and am to desire that you will put opposite to their names such of your officers of equal rank as you would have in exchange for them.

The names of the non-commissioned and private prisoners with you are not sent, being unnecessary; but the return herewith enclosed specifies the number; and I shall redeem them by a like number of those in my possession; for which purpose I shall send Mr. Joshua Loring, my Commissary, to Elizabethtown, as a proper place for the exchange of prisoners, on any day you may appoint, wishing it to be an early one, wherein I presume you will concur, as it is proposed for the more speedy relief of the distressed.

As it may be some time before Mr. Lovell arrives here from Halifax, though I took the first opportunity of sending for him after your agreement to exchange him for Governour Skene, I am willing to believe, upon my assurances of Mr. Lovell's being sent to you immediately on his arrival, that you will not have any objections to granting the Governour his liberty without delay; and am induced to make the proposal for your compliance—neither of the persons being connected with military service.

General Carleton has sent from Canada a number of officers and privates, as per return enclosed, to whom he has given liberty upon their paroles; and in pursuance of his desire and their engagements to him, I shall send them to Elizabethtown on the earliest day. It is nevertheless the General's expectation that the exchange of prisoners, as settled by Captain Forster in Canada, will be duly complied with; and I presume you are sufficiently sensible of the sacred regard that is ever paid to engagements of this kind, not to suffer any infringement upon the plighted faith of Colonel Arnold.

It is with much concern that I cannot close this letter without representing the ill treatment which I am too well informed the King's officers now suffer in common gaols throughout the Province of New-England. I apply to your feelings alone for redress, having no idea of committing myself by an act of retaliation upon those in my power.

My Aid-de-Camp, charged with the delivery of this letter, will present to you a ball cut and fixed to the ends of a nail, taken from a number of the same kind found in the encampments quitted by your troops on the 15th instant. I do not make any comment upon such unwarrantable and malicious practices, being well assured the contrivance has not come to your knowledge.

I am, with due regard, sir, your most obedient servant,
W. HOWE.

To General George Washington, &c., &c.

N. B. Two Majors, nine Captains, twenty subalterns, and four hundred men, were taken at the Cedars, by Captain Forster, and returned upon an agreement to send as many of our people taken at St. John's.

RICHARD MURRAY, Commissary of Prisoners.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM HARLEM, SEPT. 21, 1776.

One of our cruisers to the eastward has carried a prize into Cape Ann, with three hundred and fifty hogsheads of sugar, one hundred and fifty pipes wine, one hundred hogsheads rum, and one hundred and fifty bales cotton.

Last night there was a dreadful fire at New-York; it burnt ten hours; what damage is done, we know not; but one of the steeples which we could see from hence, is missing.

COLONEL GRAYSON TO GENERAL HEATH.

Head-Quarters, Heights of Harlem, September 21, 1776.

SIR: In answer to your letter of this date, I am commanded by his Excellency to inform you that he thinks it expedient that an officer with about twenty men should be immediately sent to Dobbs's Ferry, and that the Pennsylvania troops under your command should be marched directly to this place; he is of opinion it is advisable they should be paid off here.

I am, sir, your most obedient servant,

WILLIAM GRAYSON, A. D. C.

To Major-General Heath, King's Bridge.

ORDERS TO MAJOR BACKUS.

King's Bridge, September 21, 1776.

SIR: You are to order one of the troops of Light-Horse under your command, to be posted at Mareneck, New-Rochelle, and Eastchester. The remainder (after six or seven troopers to his Excellency General Washington's quarters, and about the same number somewhere in this neighbourhood, if you can find quarters for them) are to be posted in parties from Frog's Neck to Morrisania. They are to act as videttes, and also to be ready in case the enemy should land, to harass them and their light troops. The videttes are to be very vigilant, and take always two together; on any new discovery or movement of the enemy, they are to give immediate notice to the officer of the guard, who will transmit it to Head-Quarters. The videttes are to be constantly mounted, whilst on guard, and relieved often during the night. As soon as they perceive any object moving towards them, one of the two must advance and challenge. If after having challenged three times he receives no answer, or a false watch-word, he must fire his piece and retire with his comrade towards the guard, in case the enemy advance; but if they move off, one of the videttes reports to the officer, and the other remains on his post. They are never to suffer a patrol to advance within twenty paces of their post, until they have received the watch-word. They are not to make any fire or smoke tobacco during the night, and are to be quite silent, as their chief dependence must be on their ears. They are as soon as possible to get well acquainted with all the roads, lanes, and by-paths in the vicinity of the camp, that they may be able to conduct the troops by the nearest and best roads. They are to preserve good order and regularity, both on guard and in quarters. They are also to have a watchful eye that none of the inhabitants correspond with the enemy, or supply them with any kind of provisions or stores.

Further orders and instructions will be given as occasion may require. An order of battle for the whole division will soon be given out, when the posts and duty of the Horse will be pointed out.

I am, sir, yours, affectionately,

W. HEATH, Major-General.

To Major Backus, Commander of the Light-Horse from the State of Connecticut.

RESOLUTIONS OF THE NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Fishkill, September 21, 1776. }

Resolved, That the Secret Committee for obstructing the navigation of Hudson's River, be empowered and directed to purchase or impress for the service of this State, any number of Vessels not exceeding six, which they shall think best calculated for the purpose of completing the obstructions in Hudson's River, opposite to Mount Washington. That they cause an appraisement of the said Vessels to be made by persons under oath, in the most equitable and expeditious manner possible, in order that satisfaction may hereafter be made by this Convention to the owners of such vessels. And it is recommended to the said Committee to request the services of Captain Thomas Grenell in ballasting, navigating, and delivering those vessels to Captain Cooke, at Mount Washington.

Resolved, That the said Committee be directed to send all the oak Plank which they have in their possession to Mount Washington, with the utmost despatch.

Resolved, That the superintendents for building the Continental Frigates at Poughkeepsie, be earnestly requested to send as much of their short oak Plank as they possibly can spare to Fort Washington with the utmost despatch; and this Convention do engage to justify their conduct in this particular to the Continental Congress.

Extract from the Minutes:

ROBERT BENSON, Secretary.

GENERAL ARNOLD TO GENERAL GATES.

Bay St. Amand, September 21, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: My last was the 18th instant, by Lieutenant Whitcomb. The next day at noon weighed anchor with the whole fleet, which arrived here the same evening. This is a fine Bay and good anchorage, two leagues to the northward of Cumberland-Head, on the west shore. The Liberty was ordered to cruise off the Isle-la-Motte until two o'clock, and then join the fleet. On her return, opposite to the Isle-la-Motte, a Frenchman came down and desired to be taken on board; the Captain suspected him and went near the shore with his boat, stern in, swivels pointed, and match tiled; the Frenchman waded near a rod from the shore, but when he found he could decoy the boat no farther, he made a signal to the enemy, when three or four hundred Indians, Canadians, and Regulars, rose up and fired on the boat; they wounded three men. The boat returned the fire with their swivels and small-arms, and the schooner fired several broadsides of grape before they dispersed, though several were seen to fall. On their way down, they discovered a large party of savages on the western shore; they imagined two or three hundred. They have a large number of white birch canoes, with which they can pass us in the night, and in the day time secure them in the bushes. It will be dangerous sending down single boats. I have sent up the Liberty to guard the return boats and bring down the medicines, &c. The Surgeons can be of no use to us without. Captain Hawley is appointed to the Royal Savage.

I must renew my request for more seamen and gunners; there is a plenty of the former in the army, provided they have liberty of inlisting. Though it is a bad precedent, this emergency will justify the measure. I am greatly at a loss what could have retarded the galleys so long. I verily believe if we are attacked this fall by the enemy, it will be in the course of a week or ten days; the want of those galleys may decide the contest against us.

I am surprised our intelligence from New-York is so imperfect. I hope we shall soon have the particulars. The tobacco papers were delivered me. I will endeavour to send them soon. The articles I wrote for in my last, I hope will be sent, if possible. I have sent up Mr. Dunn to collect the shot and other articles I want, and bring them down.

We had an exceeding hard gale here the 20th, and a prodigious sea. The galleys rode it out beyond my expectation.

I have sent two boats to sound round the Island Valcour, who report that it is an exceeding fine and secure harbour. I am determined to go there the first fair wind, as the fleet will be secure, and we can discover the enemy, if they attempt to pass us up the East Bay on the back of Grand Isle. I make no doubt you will approve of this measure; if not, I will return to any of my former stations. We are as well prepared for the enemy as our circumstances will allow: they will never have it in their power to surprise us. The men are daily trained to the exercise of their guns, and if powder was plenty, I would wish to have them fire at a mark with their great guns often. At present we cannot afford it.

I wish the workmen could all be employed on one galley, and finish her first, that something might be added to the fleet. I cannot help thinking that they are hindering each other; there was all the material sufficient for one when I came away. I hope they will not mount twelve-pounders, if eighteens or twenty-fours can be procured.

I am, with great respect and esteem, dear General, your affectionate, obedient, humble servant,

B. ARNOLD.

To Hon. Major-General Gates.

P. S. The drafts from the regiments at Ticonderoga, are a miserable set; indeed the men on board the fleet in general, are not equal to half their number of good men. B. A.

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Lebanon, September 21, 1776.

SIR: Your letter of the 3d instant came the 9th. Knowing the circumstances of the army at New-York, and the difficulty which attends the Militia, from their impatience, want of discipline, and the suffering of their affairs and business at home, the Governour and Council of Safety had before ordered nine regiments in the eastern part of this State, likely three thousand men or more, under command of Brigadier-General Saltonstall, and two regiments, probably three hundred Light Horse, under command of Major Backus, to march to or near Westchester, in aid to the army, and, if possible, to give some relief to the Militia which was sent some time since from the westward part of this State. Sensible that the situation of our affairs at New-York required vigorous exertions, stimulated by the voice of liberty and the General Congress, no delay hath happened to forward our Militia; and I trust many of them have arrived before this time.

Assistance is, and hath been afforded to the sufferers in Suffolk County, on Long-Island. Many of the inhabitants, their furniture, their cattle and sheep, are transported to the main.

Just now received letters from the Northern army, that there are eight thousand five hundred fit for duty. The sickness is the fever and ague, with which part of the country is every year attended. The sick are bettering.

This State is in advance for clothing, &c., agreeable to a former request of Congress, near seven thousand pounds. More than double that sum will soon be wanted. I am not able to give any exact estimate.

It was answered in a former letter to you, that leather breeches could not be had here; since which I am told that three or four hundred pairs may be purchased if needed.

The time of the inlistment of our soldiery is beginning to expire. Congress will suffer me to ask, if it is not a matter worthy serious and speedy consideration, that measures should be adopted for their further inlistment? In which case, I think it of great moment that the engagement should be for longer time than has hitherto been. Would it not be well that recruiting orders be immediately issued to officers, who may inlist the old soldiers for a new time, even before the expiration of their present engagements? Men may be induced, while in service, to engage. If they are suffered to disperse and return to their homes, it will be very difficult again to collect them, without greater expense attending it than a small bounty to be given them now. The mode of supporting our army by Militia, I fear, is a measure not to be depended on. Men turning out for a short time and remaining only a few days, cannot be brought to know the duties of a camp, or attend to the discipline necessary in an army. They will be impatient of command, and uneasy to return home. We must have a durable army, or I fear the consequences will be fatal.

To Hon. President Hancock.

COUNCIL OF MASSACHUSETTS TO GENERAL GATES.

Watertown, September 21, 1776.

SIR: We have received a letter from John Trumbull, Esq., Deputy Adjutant-General, dated Head-Quarters, Ticonderoga, August 31, 1776, acquainting us that Lieutenant-Colonel Reed, of Colonel Patterson's regiment, has left the army without proper leave of absence, and requesting that we would make inquiry into the occasion of his stay in the country. Upon inquiry we find that Colonel Reed's ill state of health is the occasion of his absence from the army, and that he obtained from General Schuyler leave of absence, till his health should be restored; copy of which we inclose. We have sent Colonel Reed a copy of Mr. Trumbull's letter, and expect that he will either return to his duty or resign his commission.

In the name and by order of Council.

I am, sir, with great esteem, your most humble servant,

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

To Hon. Horatio Gates.

ELNATHAN BATES TO RICHARD DEVENS.

From Hull, September 21, 1776.

SIR: Colonel Lovett informed me that you had a number of small cannon to stock, and was ordering a letter to be wrote to me about them when he was there about the iron I sent for, and I have not received any letter about said cannon, but should be glad if you would send me one as soon as you can. I am laying the platforms for cannon at Hull, but hope to complete them soon, and shall then engage upon stocking the cannon above mentioned, if wanted. I received the half ton of iron from Colonel Lovett, and Dr. Tufts told me, when I was at home, he had fifteen pounds in cash for me from you. Pray, sir, send me a few lines as soon as you can, and in so doing you will oblige your humble servant,

ELNA'N BATES, of Weymouth.

To the Commissary-General Mr. Richard Devens.

COLONEL BABCOCK TO GOVERNOUR COOKE.

Westerly, September 21, 1776.

SIR: We arrived at New-York 13th current; in concert with John Collins, Esq., waited on General Washington, with the other General Officers. Just after dinner three frigates and a forty-gun ship (as if they meant to attack the city) sailed up the East River, under a gentle breeze, towards Hell-Gate, and kept up an incessant fire, assisted with the cannon at Governour's Island. The batteries from the city returned the ships the like salutation. Three men agape, idle spectators, had the misfortune of being killed by one cannon ball. The other mischief suffered on our side was inconsiderable, saving the making a few holes in some of the buildings. One shot struck within six foot of General Washington, as he was on horseback riding into the Fort.

We this day (being a very busy time with the officers of the army) were assured by the General should have an audience at six o'clock next morning. However, his Excellency came and breakfasted with us at General Putnam's, hard by the fort whereat we lodged. He further assured us he would attend us at General Putnam's an hour before dinner. He did so. A number of interrogatories were proposed to his Excellency, viz: 1, Whether it would be expedient to attempt, with all our force, to defend the town of Newport and Island of Rhode-Island? He answered, if it was defensible, it would; but, he added, he was incapable of judging of its defensibility, having never been there but once formerly and transiently; but the State must be the best judges of the propriety of the measure. His Excellency had ordered half the brigade to New-York, and the places to be supplied with like number from the Massachusetts. Was agreeably elated when we assured him that the General Assembly had voted the whole of the brigade and forty of the train to be sent off, even from that exposed Island, for the defence of such of our brethren as were immediate sufferers or in imminent danger, and the places of those troops to be supplied by a like number of each town's proportion, (by a certain estimate taken,) to be sent to Newport. 2d quere. Whether, in concert with the neighbouring States, it would be advisable to fortify any part of Long-Island? If so, where at? What number of troops to be raised on this occasion? What number and size of field-pieces should be sent, and whether he would recommend a General Officer to take the command, &c., &c. It was also requested to communicate to us in confidence a regular return of the troops, which he promised we should have. His Excellency's answer to the second quere was to this purpose, viz: That it would be prudential to send a committee on Long-Island and learn the sentiments of those towards the east end, and whether they would, i. e. the bulk of the inhabitants of such part of the Island, coöperate with the neighbouring States in protecting or removing them and their stock; and this to be previously done before an attempt to defend, intrench, &c.

At parting with his Excellency, Saturday afternoon, 15th instant, he promised us a letter to your Excellency, with such answers to the interrogatories (a copy of which he requested and were given him) as he should be able to make. But the troops gathering fast from the landing of the enemy, under the thunder of their cannon, which was on Sunday morning, 16th, his Excellency, from his closest attention to his command then found it impracticable. This morning, Mr. Collins and we parted, he for Philadelphia, being fearful of being left in the city and captivated by our enemies. But Colonel Knox, we conjecture, procured him a passage to the Jersey side. The despatch we would make in our obstructed negotiations, has caused us to omit that on Sunday morning five more frigates sailed up the East River, anchored near the four former, which, with Wallace, who was there before, augmented their number to ten. At the same time three capital ships went up the North River, causing a most tremendous firing, assisted with the cannon on Governour's Island, discharging to no purpose against our batteries, though they made a few holes in some of the buildings; which firing was returned on our side as well as could be from the scantiness in and about the city of heavy cannon, the bulk having been carried to a hill about four and a half miles south of King's Bridge, whereat an impregnable fortress was begun and well-nigh perfected, and which could not be annoyed by the enemy's ships. For more minute particulars must refer your Excellency to Colonel Stanton, who will inform you of the interview we had with Governour Trumbull, who anxiously requested our return that way, but an accident prevented us; although at New-London we spent an hour or two with some of his Council.

I am, sir, with profound respect, your Excellency's most obedient and most humble servant,
JOSH. BABCOCK.
To His Excellency Governour Cooke.

London, November 1, 1776.

In letters from Isle Madame, were the following particulars: On the 21st of September, a number of armed men belonging to the sloop Providence, Jones, master, with fourteen guns, came in a shallop to Arichat from Petit-de-Grats, and took possession of the vessels and storehouses; that on the 24th they went off with the Alexander, Luce, having twenty-two hundred quintals of fish on board. On the 25th, they burnt the Adventure, and plundered the storehouses. This privateer took at Petit-de-Grats, the Success, Balliene, loaded with fish. The Alexander, Luce, and Success, Balliene, are supposed to be retaken by the Millford, man-of-war, and carried to Halifax, with the Providence privateer.

JOHN ADAMS TO MRS. ADAMS.

Philadelphia, September 22, 1776.

We have at last agreed upon a plan for forming a regular army. We have offered twenty dollars and a hundred acres of land to every man who will enlist during the war. And a new set of articles of war are agreed on. I will send you, if I can, a copy of these resolutions and regulations.

I am at a loss what to write. News we have not. Congress seems to be forgotten by the armies. We are most unfaithfully served in the Post Office, as well as many other offices, civil and military. Unfaithfulness in publick stations is deeply criminal. But there is no encouragement to be faithful. Neither profit, nor honour, nor applause is acquired by faithfulness. But I know by what. There is too much corruption even in this infant age of our Republick. Virtue is not in fashion; vice is not infamous.

COLONEL REED TO MRS. REED.

Harlem Heights, September 22, 1776.

I have just received yours of the 20th, by which I imagine one of mine, written the day after the engagement of the 17th, had not yet come to hand, wherein I gave you the particulars, which I was able to do better than almost any other person, as I happened to be in it when it began, and assisted in calling off our troops when they had pursued the enemy as far as was thought proper. It hardly deserves the name of a battle; but as it was a scene so different from what had happened the day before, it elevated the spirits of our troops, and in that respect has been of great service. It would take up too much time and paper to go into a minute description of the whole affair. The substance of it is this: Just after I had sealed my letter to you, and sent it away, an account came that the enemy were advancing upon us in three large columns. We have so many false reports, that I desired the General to permit me to go and discover what truth there was in the account. I went down to our most advanced post, and while talking there with the officer of the guard, the enemy's advanced guard fired upon us at about fifty yards' distance. Our men behaved well, stood, and returned the fire, till overpowered by numbers, they were obliged to retreat. The enemy advanced upon us very fast. I had not quitted the house five minutes before they were in possession of it. Finding how things were, I went over to the General to get some support for the brave fellows who had behaved so well. By the time I got there the enemy appeared in open view, and sounded their bugles in a most insulting manner, as is usual after a fox-chase. I never felt such a sensation before. It seemed to crown our disgrace. The General was prevailed upon to order out a party to attack them; and, as I had been upon the ground, which no one else had, it fell to me to conduct them. They were Virginia troops, commanded by a brave officer, Major Leitch. I accordingly went with them, but was unhappily thwarted in my scheme by some persons calling to the troops and taking them out of the way I intended. In a few minutes our brave fellows mounted up the rocks, and attacked the enemy with great spirit; at the same time some of our troops, in another quarter, moved up towards the enemy, and the action began. Major Leitch fell near me, in a few minutes, with three balls through him; but he is likely to do well. Colonel Knoulton, a brave Connecticut officer, also fell, mortally wounded. I mounted him on my horse, and brought him off. In about ten minutes, our people pressed on with great ardour, the enemy gave way, and left us the ground, which was strewed pretty thick with dead, chiefly the enemy, though it since turns out our loss is also considerable. Our greatest loss is poor Knoulton, whose name and spirit ought to be immortal. I assisted him off, and when gasping in the agonies of death, all his inquiry was if we had driven in the enemy. The pursuit of a flying enemy was so new a scene, that it was with difficulty our men could be brought to retreat, which they did in very good order. We buried the dead, and brought off the wounded on both sides, as far as our troops had pursued. We have since learned that the main body of the enemy was hastily advancing, so that, in all probability, there would have been a reverse of things if the pursuit had not been given over.

You can hardly conceive the change it has made in our army. The men have recovered their spirits, and feel a confidence which before they had quite lost. I hope the effects will be quite lasting.

You will probably hear from other quarters of the double escape I had. My own horse not being at hand when the alarm was first given, I borrowed one from a young Philadelphian. He received a shot just behind his fore shoulder, which narrowly missed my leg. I am told he is since dead. But the greatest was from one of our own rascals, who was running away. Upon my driving him back, he presented his piece and snapped it at me, at about a rod distance. I seized a musket from another soldier, and snapped at him; he had the same good luck. He has since been tried, and is now under sentence of death; but I believe I must beg him off, as, after I found I could not get the gun off, I wounded him on the head, and cut off his thumb with my hanger. I suppose many persons will think it was rash and imprudent for officers of our rank to go into such an action. General Putnam, General Greene, many of the General's family, Mr. Tilghman, &c., were in it; but it was really to animate the troops, who were quite dispirited, and would not go into danger unless their officers led the way.

Our situation is very much the same as it was. We are fortifying ground naturally strong. The enemy lie about three miles from us. They have been very busy bringing over cannon, &c., from Long-Island, but we cannot learn what they intend.

The night before last there was a most dreadful fire in the city, but how it happened we are quite at a loss. There was a resolve in Congress against our injuring it; so that we neither set it on fire or made any preparations for the purpose; though I make no doubt it will be charged to us.

ROBERT H. HARRISON TO GENERAL HEATH.

Harlem Heights, September 22, 1776.

SIR: I am directed by his Excellency to inform you in answer to your's, that he has no objection to your making the attempt you propose, if you are of opinion that the intelligence given by the two lads is satisfactory and will warrant it, and of which he says you are as good a judge as he is. He requests that you will acquaint him in time of the resolution you come to in this affair, that he may know how to conduct himself with respect to our guards. If it is undertaken they certainly must be apprised of it, to prevent an alarm. I am, sir, your most obedient servant,

ROBERT H. HARRISON.

To Major-General Heath.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO JOHN AUGUSTINE WASHINGTON.

Heights of Harlem, September 22, 1776.

DEAR BROTHER: My extreme hurry for some time past has rendered it utterly impossible for me to pay that attention to the letters of my friends, which inclination and natural affection always incline me to. I have no doubt, therefore, of meeting with their excuse. With respect to the attack and retreat from Long-Island, the publick papers would furnish you with accounts nearly true. I shall only add, that in the former we lost about eight hundred men, more than three-fourths of whom were taken prisoners. This misfortune happened in a great measure by two detachments of our people, who were posted in two roads leading through a wood, in order to intercept the enemy in their march, suffering a surprise, and making a precipitate retreat, which enabled the enemy to lead a great part of their force against the troops commanded by Lord Stirling, who formed a third detachment, and who behaved with great bravery and resolution.

As to the retreat from Long-Island, under the circumstances in which we then were, it became absolutely necessary, and was effected without loss of men, and with that of very little baggage. A few heavy cannon were left, not being moveable, on account of the ground being soft and miry, occasioned by the heavy and incessant rains which had fallen. The enemy's loss in killed we could never ascertain, but have many reasons to believe that it was considerable, and exceeded ours a good deal. Our retreat from thence, as I said before, was absolutely necessary, the enemy having landed the main body of their army to attack us in front, while their ships of war were to cut off all communication with the city, from whence our resources of men and provisions were to be drawn.

Having made this retreat, we not long after discovered, by the movements of the enemy and the information we received from deserters and others, that they declined attacking our lines in the city, and were forming a plan to get in our rear with their land army, by crossing the Sound above us, and thereby to cut off all intercourse with the country and every necessary supply. The ships of war were to coöperate, possess the North River, and prevent succour from the Jerseys. This plan appearing probable, and but too practicable in its execution, it became necessary to guard against the fatal consequences that must follow, if the scheme were effected; for which purpose I caused a removal of a part of our troops and stores from the city; and a Council of General Officers determined that it must be entirely abandoned, as we had, with an army weaker than theirs, a line of sixteen or eighteen miles to defend, to keep open our communication with the country, besides the defence of the city. We held out, however, every show of defence, till our sick and all our stores could be brought away. The evacuation being resolved upon, every exertion in our power was made to baffle their designs and effect our own. The sick were numerous, amounting to more than the fourth part of our whole army, and an object of great importance. Happily we got them away; but, before we could bring off all our stores, on Sunday morning six or seven ships of war, which had gone up the East River some days before, began a most severe and heavy cannonade, to scour the grounds and effect a landing of their troops. Three ships of war also ran up the North River that morning above the city, to prevent our boats and small craft from carrying away our baggage.

I had gone the evening before to the main body of our army, which was posted about these Heights and Plains of Harlem, where it seemed probable, from the movements and disposition of the enemy, they meant to land and make an attack the next morning. However, the event did not happen. Immediately on hearing the cannonade, I rode with all possible expedition towards the place of landing, and where breastworks had been thrown up to secure our men; and, to my great surprise and mortification, I found the troops who had been posted there, and those ordered to their support, consisting of eight regiments, notwithstanding the exertions of their Generals to form them, running away in the most disgraceful manner. I used every possible effort to rally them, but to no purpose; and, on the appearance of a small part of the enemy, not more than sixty or seventy, they ran off without firing a single gun. Many of our heavy cannon would inevitably have fallen into the enemy's hands, as they landed so soon; but this scandalous conduct occasioned a loss of many tents, baggage, and camp equipage, which would have been easily secured, had they made the least opposition.

The retreat was made with the loss of a few men only. We encamped, and still remain, on the Heights of Harlem, which are well suited for defence against their approaches. On Monday morning, they advanced in sight in several large bodies, but attempted nothing of a general nature, though there were smart skirmishes between their advanced parties and some detachments from our lines, which I sent out. In these our troops behaved well, putting the enemy to flight in open ground, and forcing them from posts they had seized, two or three times. A sergeant, who deserted from them, says they had, as he was told, eighty or ninety wounded and missing, but other accounts make the number of wounded much greater. Our loss in killed and wounded was about sixty; but the greatest loss we sustained was in the death of Lieutenant-Colonel Knowlton, a brave and gallant officer. Major Leitch, of Weedon's regiment, had three balls through his side, and behaved exceedingly well. He is in a fair way of recovery. Nothing material has happened since this skirmish. The enemy, it is said, are bringing up their heavy cannon, so that we are to expect another attack soon, both by land and water, as we are upon the Hudson, at the place where we have attempted to stop the navigation by sinking obstructions in the river and erecting batteries.

The dependence which the Congress have placed upon the Militia has already greatly injured, and I fear will totally ruin our cause. Being subject to no control themselves, they introduce disorder among the troops whom we have attempted to discipline, while the change in their living brings on sickness, this causes an impatience to get home, which spreads universally, and introduces abominable desertions. In short, it is not in the power of words to describe the task I have to perform. Fifty thousand pounds would not induce me again to undergo what I have done. Our numbers, by sickness and desertion, are greatly reduced. I have been trying these four or five days to get a return, but have not yet succeeded. I am sure, however, we have not more than twelve or fourteen thousand men fit for duty, whilst the enemy, who it is said, are very healthy, cannot have less than near twenty-five thousand.

With sincere love to my sister and the family, and compliments to any inquiring friends, I am, &c.,

GO. WASHINGTON.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read September 23, 1776]

Camp near King's Bridge, September 22, 1776.

SIR: I had flattered myself that the Congress would before this time have forwarded the amended articles for the government of the army; but as they have not, I think it my indispensable duty to lay before them the necessity, the absolute necessity, of forming an article against plundering, marauding, and burning of houses. Such a spirit has gone forth in our army that neither publick or private property is secure. Every hour brings the most distressing complaints of the ravages of our own troops, who are become infinitely more formidable to the poor farmers and inhabitants than the common enemy. Horses are taken out of the Continental teams; the baggage of officers and the hospital stores; even the quarters of General Officers, are not exempt from rapine. Some severe and exemplary punishment, to be inflicted in a summary way, must be immediately administered, or the army will be totally ruined. I must beg the immediate attention of Congress to this matter, as of the utmost importance to our existence as an army.

I am, sir, with due respect, your most obedient and very humble servant,

GO. WASHINGTON.

To the Honourable the President of Congress.

GENERAL ORDERS.

Head-Quarters, Harlem Heights, September 21, 1776.

(Parole, Lisbon.)

(Countersign, Dover.)

If the Quartermaster-General has any sails or other covering, he is to deliver them to General Spencer's order, who will see that the regiments most in need of it now under his immediate command are first supplied.

The General earnestly exhorts the commanding officers of every regiment and corps to fall upon the best and most expeditious method of procuring clothes and necessaries for their men before the season gets too far advanced. For this purpose they are hereby authorized to send out one or more officers, as the nature of the case shall require, and the service will admit of, to purchase and provide them.

Generals Putnam and Spencer, together with the several Brigadiers on this side King's Bridge, are to look over the grounds within our lines and fix upon places to build barracks or huts for quartering the men in. No time should be lost in making the choice, that covering may be had as soon as possible for the ease and comfort of the men.

It is earnestly recommended to all Brigadiers and commanding officers of corps, to see or know that the orders relative to their respective brigades, &c., are complied with; and they, as well as commanding officers of regiments, &c., are requested to attend particularly to the state of the men's health; that those that are really sick may be supplied in the best manner our situation and circumstances will admit of, while such as feign themselves sick merely to get excused from duty meet with no kind of countenance or favour, as it only tends to throw the burden upon the spirited and willing men, who disdain such scandalous practices. The General would remind all officers of the indispensable necessity there is of each of them exerting himself in the department he acts; and that where this is the case, of the advantages resulting from it, as an army, let it be ever so large, then moves like clock-work; whereas without it, it is no better than an ungovernable machine, that serves only to perplex and distract those who attempt to conduct it.

The Brigadier-General and the Brigade-Major of the day are both to attend the parade at the hour of mounting guard; see them brought on and marched off, and so continue near the advanced lines till they are relieved the next day, in order that they may be ready in case of an attack to command at the lines. When they are relieved, they are to report extraordinaries to the Commander-in-Chief.

Head-Quarters, Harlem Heights, September 22, 1776.

(Parole, Hampton.)

(Countersign, Newark.)

The Court-Martial of which Colonel Sage was President, is dissolved. The Brigade-Majors to form a new one immediately, Colonel Magaw to preside, to meet to-morrow at Head-Quarters, nine o'clock. The Brigade-Majors to give notice to the officers of their respective brigades.

There is a shameful deficiency of officers at guard-mounting and other duty. The Brigade-Majors are to put in arrest any officer who, being warned, does not attend his duty, unless excused by the Brigadier-General.

The many complaints that are hourly made of plundering both publick and private property, induces the General to direct that every regiment be paraded at five o'clock this evening; the knapsacks and tents of the whole to be examined under the inspection of the Field-Officers, and all articles not the proper baggage and accoutrements of a soldier, set apart and kept by the Colonel or commanding officer till inquiry can be made how they came possessed of them. A report is expected from the commanding officer of the regiment to Head-Quarters whether any articles are found or not, and the General depends upon the honour of the officers to inspect carefully and make a faithful report.

It is with particular pleasure that the General has it in his power to inform the officers and soldiers who have been wounded in their country's cause, and all others whose lot it may be to be disabled, that the Congress have come to the following resolution, viz:

"That officers and privates losing a limb in any engagement, or who shall be so disabled in the service of the United States of America as to render them incapable of getting a livelihood, shall receive half of their monthly pay during life or the continuance of their disability, from the time their pay ceases as officers or soldiers."

"Also such officers or soldiers as are wounded in any engagement and rendered incapable of service, though not totally disabled from getting a livelihood, shall receive monthly such sums towards their subsistence as the Assembly or representative body of the State they belong to, or reside in, judge adequate, they producing in the cases above mentioned to the committee or officer appointed to receive the same in the State where they reside or belong, or to the Assembly or legislative body of such State, a certificate, from the commanding officer who was in the engagement in which they were wounded, or, in case of his death, from some other officer of the same corps, and the Surgeon that attended them, of their names, office, rank, department, regiment, and company, the nature of their wounds, and in what action or engagement they were wounded."

The Brigadier of the day, where the guards mount at the lines, is to give strict charge to all the officers, not to suffer any person whatsoever to go beyond the out-sentries without an order in writing from himself. All the sentries are to be informed of this, and if any person whatever presume to disobey the orders, they are to fire upon in the same manner as they would do on a common enemy. Any persons coming in from the enemy's lines are to be carried to the Brigadier of the day immediately for examination, who is to take their information in writing and send it, with the person or persons, to the Commander-in-Chief. The Brigadier is to see that a chain of sentries extend from the North River to Harlem River, beyond which no stragglers are to pass.

The officer commanding the scouts is to attend at Head-Quarters at seven o'clock every morning, to know if there are any orders for these corps.

The commanding officers of the several regiments are to be particularly attentive in seeing that their men are supplied with ammunition, and that they account regularly for the cartridges delivered to them. They are not to suffer any pieces to be discharged at retreat-beating but such as will not fire in an engagement and cannot be drawn. The great waste of ammunition is such that unless the officers will exert themselves to see justice done to the publick, a sufficiency cannot be kept upon hand to supply them.

Mr. Josiah Adams is appointed Paymaster to Colonel Little's Regiment, and Mr. Elisha Humphrys to Colonel Webb's Regiment.

The Court-Martial whereof Colonel Sage was President, having found Ebenezer Liffenwell, of Captain Clift's company and Colonel Durkee's Regiment, guilty of "cowardice and misbehaviour before the enemy on Monday last," and also "of presenting his firelock at his superiour officer when turning him back a second time," which, by the 27th article of the Rules and Regulations of the Army, is death, he is accordingly adjudged to suffer death.

The General approves the sentence, and orders that he be shot at the head of the army on the grand parade, near Kortright's house, to-morrow morning at eleven o'clock. The men of the several regiments below King's Bridge, not upon fatigue or guard, are to march down at that hour; the Provost-Marshal to attend. Major Henley, acting Deputy Adjutant-General, will order twelve men out of the guards paraded for duty to-morrow, to execute the sentence.

The same Court-Martial having found Ensign McCumber, of Captain Barns's company and Colonel Sargent's Regiment, guilty of the infamous crime of "plundering the inhabitants of Harlem," ordered him to be cashiered.

The General approves the sentence, and orders him to be turned out of the army immediately as an officer.

General Return of the Army in the service of the UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, at KING'S BRIDGE and its Dependencies commanded by His Excellency GEORGE WASHINGTON, Esq., General and Commander-in-Chief. Sept. 21, 1776.

ROBERT H. HARRISON TO GENERAL HEATH.
September 22, 1776.

SIR: His Excellency wishes success to the expedition that is to be attempted, and requests that no houses or private property may be destroyed by burning or otherwise, unless there shall be an absolute necessity.

I am, sir, your humble servant,
ROBERT H. HARRISON.
To the Hon. Major-General Heath.

ORDERS TO COLONEL JACKSON.
King's Bridge, September 22, 1776.

SIR: It being determined to make an attempt to dislodge the enemy from Montresor's Island this night, you are to take the command of the party designed for that purpose, who are to parade at the new bridge at eleven o'clock. You will then, without delay, embark them on board the flat-bottomed boats, and fall down with the tide to Morrisania, where you are to remain very silent until the flood makes sufficiently to enable you to proceed to the Island, where you are immediately to land, leaving a party with your boats, and surround the enemy, killing or taking them prisoners, as occasion may require. You are not to allow any abuse to the prisoners, should you take any. You are not to burn the buildings, but, according to your best discretion, effect the enterprise. Silence, secrecy, and despatch are all necessary.

I am, sir, yours, &c.,

W. HEATH.

To Lieutenant-Colonel Jackson, of the Sixteenth Regiment.

JOSEPH TRUMBULL TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read September 27, 1776.]

King's Bridge, September 22, 1776.

SIR: I received your favour of the 16th instant, enclosing Congress resolutions respecting Commissary matters in the Northern district. I have taken the necessary steps to put matters on a proper footing there, and doubt not I shall succeed.

Congress may depend that while I remain in the department, my utmost abilities shall be exerted to have the duties of the office well executed, in every part, and as far as possible, to acceptance.

I am, most respectfully, sir, your most humble servant,

JOS. TRUMBULL.

To the Hon. John Hancock, Esq.

WILLIAM DUER TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Fishkill, September 22, 1776.

SIR: The Convention of this State have established a Committee of Correspondence for the purpose of facilitating the intercourse of intelligence betwixt this place and Headquarters. I am directed by that Committee (of which I have the honour of being a member) to order their express to wait on your Excellency daily, to know your commands, and to receive such accounts of the operations of our army as your Excellency's leisure will admit you to inform us of.

Captain Cooke, who has been employed in sinking the vessels opposite to Mount Washington, informed me in his way to Poughkeepsie that he is apprehensive the chevaux-de-frise which are sunk in the river may not be sufficient for stopping the enemy's ships; and he is of opinion that it would tend much to render the obstructions effectual to sink five or six vessels to the northward of the chevaux-de-frise.

In consequence of this information, the Convention of this State, ever solicitous to exert themselves in effecting so important an object as the obstruction of the navigation of the river, have entered into the enclosed resolutions, which I have the honour to transmit to your Excellency.

They have likewise given the necessary directions for supplying you with a quantity of oak plank, agreeable to General Clinton's request in a late letter.

I have the honour to be, with the greatest respect, your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,

WM. DUER.

To His Excellency General Washington, Commander-in-Chief of the American Army, King's Bridge.

WALTER LIVINGSTON TO GENERAL GATES.

Albany, September 22, 1776.

SIR: I received your order to furnish the officers of the army and the sick with Madeira wine, coffee, chocolate, loaf-sugar, and butter, or such articles as Mr. Avery, Deputy Commissary-General, may order me. I shall not remain here to obey the Deputy Commissary-General's orders. In compliance with yours, I have sent seven hundred pounds to Kingston, to purchase wine, and ordered a sloop to be hired to bring it up. When it arrives, I will send it all forward myself, unless you order part thereof to be detained for the other garrisons. I have sent three tierces of loaf-sugar and a barrel of coffee. Chocolate and butter I cannot procure. Whatever necessaries you may think proper to order, I will with pleasure furnish, whether within the line of my duty or not.

I am, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

WALTER LIVINGSTON.

To Major-General Gates.

EXTRACT FROM A LETTER DATED TICONDEROGA, SEPTEMBER 22, 1776.

The fleet is well. Lieutenant Whitcomb is this moment arrived from St. John's, with an officer and Corporal, prisoners. They are out of humour. We shall gain some intelligence from them, I expect, but have not examined them yet. The army is in good spirits; the season almost too far advanced to expect an attack.

"INCOGNITO" TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Easthampton, September 22, 1776.

SIR: When of late I have wrote your Honour, it has been seized and stopped by the way; nor have I been able to devise a method of conveyance till this day. Countless reports have from time to time been ventilated and spread, with much assurance, that your Honour had given positive orders for the removal of the people from the east end of this Island, with all their effects, and those who obeyed not must be judged inimical to the general good of America, and expect to be utterly laid waste and destroyed. But relying upon your Honour's wisdom and benevolence, I have told the people that your Honour and the Government of Connecticut, they might depend, would never pursue measures oppressive to the oppressed, whatever individuals might design. By converse this day with some gentlemen your Honour hath sent over here, people are convinced that no more has been proposed to be taken from them, by orders given by your Honour, than an overplus of what they have not present necessity for, and which, perhaps, would soon be demanded by General Howe. Last week a vessel load of cattle and a boat load of calves were taken from Montauk, and carried to Groton, or thereabouts, supposed entirely without orders. Some orders given at Headquarters, at Saybrook, and executed, whereby the people of Southampton and Bridgehampton have thousands of sheep, and even all their flocks, taken from them, poor and lean sheep as well as fat, and are utterly destitute, hath extremely distressed poor people, and alarmed their fears, so that they know not what sufferings they shall soon share in. As to the orders your Honour hath given, the people think not strange, who were expecting them in consequence of war and their present unhappy situation. But to have the whole species and kind indiscriminately and entirely taken from them, and vessel loads of stock taken away, without orders given properly, and without any account taken, this they judge oppressive, and effective of their utter ruin in the issue. In this, their distressed situation, the people have their waiting eyes lifted up to your Honour, requesting and supplicating that, if possible, a stop may be put to these last-mentioned oppressive methods of procedure. They look upon themselves as a people given up by the Continent, and know they must obey the orders which are given them, or abide the infinitely shocking consequences of a refusal. They wish, too, and presume they will be looked upon in a proper point of view. Notwithstanding emigration, there are now at least a thousand people in the town of Easthampton. 'Tis impossible for them all to remove to the Continent with their effects. Many families would be ruined as to worldly substance in so doing. The people, in their present distressed and perplexed situation, would yet hope that they may not be as a torch on fire at both ends, which must necessarily have a quick consumption.

Considering the times in which we are fallen, your Honour will please to excuse me, if I only add, your Honour's, &c., &c., &c.,

INCOGNITO.

To Hon. Jona. Trumbull, Esq., Governour of Connecticut, in New-England.

COMMODORE HOPKINS TO THE MARINE COMMITTEE.

Providence, September 22, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Since my last I have been to see Governour Trumbull on the business of his letter to me, a copy of which you have enclosed. From there I went to New-London, which place I left the 19th instant. Captain Hacker is there with the Hampden; he has proved her, and she will be ready for sea in a few days, but not full manned. Have ordered her round to Newport, there to join the Alfred, who I expect will be cleaned and ready for the sea in a week. The two frigates here will be ready for sea in a week or ten days, but it will be very difficult to man any of them, without you will make the chance of prize money as good as they get in the privateers, which is one half, and large sums advanced to the people before they go to sea.

I expect Governour Hopkins every day; hope he will bring with him the commissions for the officers of the new ships. The Alfred and the Hampden shall send as soon as possible on the station you ordered, and if Governour Hopkins brings no other orders for the new frigates, I think it will be the best use they can be put to, to attempt to clear the Sound with them, as Governour Trumbull advises, as that, if effected, will give great ease to supplying our army near New-York.

Since I wrote you there have arrived here seven or eight valuable prizes, sent in by the privateers out of this place, and a brig (Captain Biddle's prize) was taken by the Cerberus; a few days ago the people got on shore in their boats, and are set out for Philadelphia. There is a report that a prize brig, taken by the Columbus, was spoke with a few days ago.

Enclosed you have a list of the privateers out of this place; them that are called letters of marque, expected to get manned in the French Islands. You likewise have a list of the prizes brought in here.

I am, with great respect, gentlemen, your most humble servant,

ESEK HOPKINS.

To the Hon. John Hancock, Esq., President of the Marine Committee at Philadelphia.

COMMODORE HOPKINS TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Providence, September 22, 1776.

SIR: When I left you I went to New-London, and saw your ship, and come from there here, and I am of opinion that the two frigates here will be ready for the sea by the time your ship will be ready, if it is possible to man them. If I receive no orders to the contrary from the Marine Committee, by my brother, who I expect every hour, shall be ready to follow any orders or advice you may think best to give me respecting their operation.

I am, with great respect, sir, your most humble servant,

ESEK HOPKINS.

To the Hon. Jonathan Trumbull, Esquire, Governour of Connecticut, at Lebanon.

ARTHUR LEE TO C. W. F. DUMAS.

London, September 23, 1776.

DEAR SIR: My absence from town till now prevented my answering your two last favours of September 3d.

By our latest and best accounts from America the die is now cast, and we may every day expect to hear of a decisive action at New-York; decisive I mean as to the fate of General Howe and New-York, but not of America, which depends very little upon the event of New-York being taken or saved.

There is a publick torpor here, which, without being superstitious, one may regard as a visitation from heaven. The people in general think the declaration of independence as a thing of course, and do not seem to feel themselves at all interested in the vast consequences which that event must inevitably draw after it. The Ministry have by certain manœuvres contrived to keep up the demand for, and price of manufactures; and while trade and manufactures apparently prosper, the people are so deaf, that wisdom may cry out in the streets and not be heard. But the course of the seasons is not more fixed, than it is certain that these ministerial arts must be temporary in their operation and fatal in their issue; because the more men are flattered, the more desperate they are when the calamity comes upon them. Already the West-India Islands begin to cry out, as you will have seen in the address from the Island of Barbadoes. The great number of captures lately made of West-India ships by the Americans, have already had very visible effects upon the Royal Exchange. Holland taking the alarm, which the least movement on the part of France would produce, must shake our stocks to the foundation, and give an equal shock to a deluded prince and a deluded people.

The characters you desire me to touch upon are such as seldom occur in the same period. Lord Sandwich has been noted through a long life for every thing in word and deed, directly opposite to honesty and virtue. With moderate abilities, and little real application, he maintains an appearance of both by impositions and professions, which at a time so averse to inquiry as the present, pass for facts. Lord George Germain, though cradled in England, has all the principles of a Scotchman; subtle, proud, tyrannical and false. In consequence of his patronising the Scots they have always been his panegyrist and his advocates and as they are a people indefatigable in all interested pursuits, they have procured him a character for ability which he very little deserves. Dissimulation and craft in worldly occurrences too often pass for real wisdom; and, in this sense, Lord George is a wise man. Such a man could no long pass unnoticed and unpatronised by a Court which searches with lyncean eyes for the basest hearts, and is actuated by Scotch principles and Scotch counsels. Lord Suffolk is a peer of sullen pride and arbitrary principles. He listed in the publick cause with Mr. Wedderburne, under the banner of George Grenville; and while his life gave the hope of success in getting preferment, they were the loudest in opposition; but immediately upon his death, they made their terms, and have been ever since the most devoted tools of the Court. Lord Suffolk recommends himself very much to the King, by an indefatigable attention to the little detail business of his department, and an obsequiousness that knows no bounds. Lord Rochford is by birth a Tory, and is linked with Lord Mansfield; but his fears have made him withdraw himself upon an ample pension, for he is persuaded that France will soon strike a blow which will endanger the heads of those who conduct these measures.

I have been apprised by Hortalez, that the business for which I recommended him to you is to be transacted through France, which is the reason of your not seeing him.

I do not conceive you need be under any alarm about intercepted letters, as the Ministry have too much upon their thoughts, and too many more immediately dangerous and known opponents at home, to suffer them to look abroad for victims. Their success must be certain and decisive before they will venture to attack the friends of America in Europe, and provoke retaliation. I flatter myself with being as much within the eye of their enmity as any man can be. But I think that the enmity of bad men is the most desirable testimony of virtuous merit. Adieu.

ARTHUR LEE.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO COLONEL RUMSEY.

Annapolis, September 23, 1776.

SIR: We received your letter by the post, and observe what is said about the expenditure of the three hundred pounds formerly sent the Committee of Harford. We say nothing in answer to that at present, nor to what you say about the Committee of Observation refusing to act with regard to arms and blankets in Harford. We are willing that the company which is first ready in your County should have them. We expect it will be from your battalion; but if otherwise, the first ready must have them, for their encouragement. We have given Mr. Steel the bounty money and one month's pay for a company to be raised according to your letter of recommendation on Saturday last. We shall hereafter advance for another company when we receive the recommendations.

We have heretofore wrote you about attending the Council of Safety, to which you have given no answer from whence we conclude you have not received it. The Convention would not proceed to any new appointments only in the room of Mr. Hands, who declined. Pray let us have your personal attendance here for two or three weeks, as soon as you can; at furthest by the first of next week. We are, &c.

To Colonel Benjamin Rumsey.

N. B. Get linen for tents, if you can procure any upon reasonable terms; you are as good a judge of the price as we are.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO COLONEL HALL.

[No. 187.]

Annapolis, September 23, 1776.

SIR: We send you the bounty and advance money for Captain Francis Holland's company. Colonel Rumsey wrote this day about the guns and blankets collected in your County for the publick. Our answer was, that the company first ready must have them, by way of encouragement to exert themselves. Mr. Ray's order on the Treasury was for the sum of four hundred and twenty-nine pounds currency. We are, &c.

To Colonel Aquila Hall.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO THOMAS RINGGOLD.
[No. 188.] Annapolis, September 23, 1776.

SIR: Be pleased to bring with you when you come over to the Convention the Continental money which is in your possession, belonging to this State. We are, &c.

To Thomas Ringgold, Esq.

In Committee, Baltimore, September 23, 1776.

Upon motion, Resolved, n. c. d., That Lieutenant Ezekiel Tousin be recommended to the honourable Council of Safety as a proper person to command the guard to be stationed at the magazine at Armstrong's tavern.

Extract from the Minutes:

GEO. LUX, Clerk.

N. B. The house will be completed in about a fortnight.

TORIES WHO BROKE GAOL AT FREDERICK-TOWN ON THE NIGHT OF THE 23D OF SEPTEMBER, 1776.

Aaron Verdue, an Englishman, about six feet high, a very strong, well-made man, ruddy complexion, chestnut brown curled hair; had on an old brown broadcloth coat and jacket, a pair of leather breeches, stockings, shoes, and an old hat.

Alexander McCraw, a Scotchman, a well-made man, about five feet nine inches high; had on a coarse hunting-shirt and leather breeches, a pair of striped trowsers, and a pair blue stockings, yarn, a pair of shoes and Scotch bonnet.

Kennith Stewart, a Scotchman, well-made, about five feet nine inches high; wears a long hunting-shirt with pockets in the sides of it, a pair of leather breeches, white stockings, a brown surtout coat and Scotch bonnet; pretends to have some knowledge in physick.

Robertson York, a Pennsylvanian, about five feet seven or eight inches high, slender-made man, red hair, curled on his neck, remarkable large lips, and bad teeth; is a very chattering fellow; had on a short brown coat, mixed coloured cloth jacket, and leather breeches, shoes and stockings.

Robert Turner, an Englishman, about five feet eleven inches high, well-made, strong man, short brown hair; had on a light-coloured surtout coat, made in the Quaker manner, a country cloth close brown coat, blue cloth jacket, pieced in the back with pale blue cloth, a pair of grey cloth and a pair of fustian breeches, several pairs of ribbed yarn stockings, shoes, and hat.

Thomas Branford, an Englishman, about five feet six inches high, a slim made man, and very pale countenance, short black hair; an old grey cloth coat, striped cotton jacket, leather breeches, worsted stockings, shoes and hat.

Stephen Lysney, a Pennsylvanian, five feet five inches high; a well-proportioned man, has a dimple in his chin, short, dark brown hair; a hunting-shirt, a brown shalloon jacket, leather breeches, and a pair of trowsers, stockings, shoes, and a large hat.

Whoever takes up and secures the above persons, so that they may be brought back to their place of confinement, shall have at the rate of eight dollars for each, or fifty-six dollars for all of them. Per order.

COLONEL SIM TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Upper Marlborough, September 23, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I received by Captain Covington two hundred and twenty-two pounds of bounty money for the company to be raised in this County, which I have this day paid to Messrs. Levin Covington, R. Wooton, R. Crable, and Thomas Hands, gentlemen recommended by the Field Officers of this County to recruit said company. As there are no Field Officers belonging to the Eleventh Battalion except myself, the gentlemen appointed by Convention having resigned and returned their commissions, and are unwilling to act again, it's very troublesome and disagreeable to me to continue. I have therefore now returned you my commission also, and beg a new appointment may be made of Field Officers. And I am, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

JOSEPH SIM.

To the Honourable Council of Safety, Annapolis.

DOCTOR WEISENTHALL TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.
Baltimore town, September 23, 1776.

SIR: I received a letter from Dr. Tootell which I take the liberty to communicate to you, as it refers to a verbal order of the Council of Safety to deliver to him all the medicines, shop-furniture, instruments, &c., belonging to the Province, now under my care.

As the reason for it is, because the hospital in Annapolis is crowded with patients, and medicines are much in request, I will take the liberty to observe, that the whole shop cannot be so easily removed without manifest loss and great trouble; every thing must be taken out of boxes, drawers, &c., and packed up singly, then packed into chests or barrels; the shop furniture likewise must suffer, besides we being burthened with several useless articles in bulky furniture, as well as medicines, and the expenses made in putting them in order, would be likewise thrown away. If I add to this, that our hospital is perhaps crowded equally to that in Annapolis, and wants medicines, and considering that this may be deemed the safest place for the repository, if at any time any disturbance should happen in the Province. The Defence and Resolution, as well as the frigate, have been from time to time supplied with medicines, which is another reason I must give.

Dr. Tootell, at his first accession to his majority, gave me an invoice of medicines he wanted; but as we had not the fourth part of them, neither in quantity nor at all, I furnished him with what we had; and when in Philadelphia I made inquiry, the whole city could not have furnished the half. I assorted our shop as well as the scarcity would admit of. I have not received any order from the Doctor since for a supply, which is about ten days ago. I got a little supply; should have furnished him if he would return his prescriptions to the present situation of affairs. I shall, however, deliver every thing according to order of the Council, whenever it is so desired, along with the patients.

Chirurgical instruments are not in my possession except a few lancets, a bullet forceps, and some needles, as well as three small catheters, having hitherto made use of my own instruments. The capital instruments are on board the Defence, and in Annapolis.

I beg to excuse my intruding on your patience, and am, with due respect, your most obedient, humble servant,

C. WEISENTHALL.

To Charles Carroll, Esq., Barrister, Mount Clare.

CAPTAIN COOKE TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Potowmack, Ship Defence, September 23, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I have thought it best to send the tender up, as her mainmast head is sprung, and am under the necessity of keeping Mr. Middleton as a pilot, to carry the ship down the bay. I have endeavoured to get one at Smith's Creek, but could not. I am informed by Commodore Boucher that he was chased by the Fowey off the capes. I shall use every proper method in my power for the safety of our ship. I have the pleasure to inform you that the greatest harmony subsists amongst the whole ship's crew, and all in high spirits and good health. I shall inform you fully of our state by the return of Mr. Middleton.

I have the honour to be, gentlemen, your most obedient, humble servant,

GEORGE COOKE.

To the Honourable Council of Safety.

N. B. Commodore Boucher was chased the 14th instant.
G. C.

BALTIMORE COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Committee, September 23, 1776, Present: William Aisquith, Chairman, P. D.; Andrew

Buchanan, W. Buchanan, W. Wilkinson, C. Ridgely of William, D. Lux, J. Smith, J. Boyd, T. Rutter, J. Cockey, D. Shaw, J. Standeford, and E. Talbot.

The fine of Mr. George Counsellman is reduced from six pounds to three pounds.

The fine of ten pounds assessed on Mr. Aquila Gallo-way, as a non-enroller, is remitted, it appearing from a certificate from Dr. Weisenthal that he is non-effective.

The fine of five pounds imposed on Joseph Hilton, as a non-enroller, is reduced to three pounds.

Mr. Charles Rogers is hereby directed to delay distressing the effects of Sater Stevenson and Nathan Perigo till further orders from this Committee.

Fifty-five shillings was given to Mr. Edward Talbot for a gun, and fifty shillings to Mr. Michael Craner for a gun, and an order for payment given to Mr. Samuel Purviance, Chairman of Committee.

Upon motion,

Resolved, n. c. d., That Mr. Ezekiel Towson be recommended to the honourable Council of Safety as a proper person to command the guard to be placed at the magazine at Armstrong's.

Attest: GEO. LUX, Secretary.

ROBERT MORRIS TO JOHN JAY.

Philadelphia, September 23, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Although your express delivered me your favour last Wednesday or Thursday, yet I did not receive the letter from Mr. Deane until this day, and shall now send after the express, that he may convey this safe to your hands; should he be gone, I must find some other safe conveyance. You will find enclosed both Mr. Deane's letters, as you desired, and I shall thank you for the copy of the invisible part. He had communicated so much of this secret to me before his departure, as to let me know he had fixed with you a mode of writing that would be invisible to the rest of the world; he also promised to ask you to make a full communication to me, but in this use your pleasure; the secret, so far as I do or shall know it, will remain so to all other persons. It appears clear to me, that we may very soon involve all Europe in a war, by managing properly the apparent forwardness of the Court of France. It is a horrid consideration that our own safety should call on us to involve other nations in the calamities of war. Can this be morally right, or have morality and policy nothing to do with each other? Perhaps it may not be good policy to investigate the question at this time. I will therefore only ask you whether General Howe will give us time to cause a diversion favourable to us in Europe? I confess, as things now appear to me, the prospect is gloomy indeed. Therefore, if you can administer comfort, do it. Why are we so long deprived of your abilities in Congress? Perhaps they are more usefully exerted where you are: that may be the case; but such men as you, in times like these, should be every where.

I am, with true sentiments of respect and esteem, dear sir, your obedient and humble servant,

ROBERT MORRIS.

To John Jay.

JOSIAH BARTLETT TO JOHN LANGDON.

Philadelphia, September 23, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Yours, by Captain Manly, I have received, and should have been glad of affording him any assistance in my power, but unluckily they (the Marine Committee) commonly meet in the evening, when I am not able to attend them on account of my health. The latter end of last week Captain Roche called on me, and told me Captain Manly was taken very sick. I have not heard from him since, so hope he is better.

I hope Colonel Whipple and your successor as a Delegate are now setting off for this city to relieve me. I am very anxious to have them here, as some very important affairs are before the Congress, and my health will not permit my constant attendance; and I am loth to be absent, as you know the voice of a single Colony is often very important. I shall not write to Colonel Whipple, as I think he must be on his journey before this reaches you.

I am sorry our affairs at New-York have succeeded so badly. We want a regular, well-disciplined army, and more experienced Generals. A regular standing army we must have, at all events, against another year. You will see the plan the Congress has laid for effecting it. The conduct of some of the New-England soldiers this year has afforded me great pain, though I believe some of the disaffected this way have represented their conduct worse than it deserved, yet the affair at the Cedars, and of some at New-York, are not to be excused.

I have this moment received Colonel Whipple's letter of the 10th instant, wherein he recommends Hopley Yeaton for a Lieutenant of your ship, in the room of Mr. Wheel-right, and some other marine affairs, which I shall lay before the Marine Committee, and try to procure the orders he mentions, though at present I cannot meet with them in the evening, as I am at present troubled with a fever-fit every evening; however, I will do the best I can in the affair. Colonel Whipple informs me the Colony had not then appointed another Delegate in your stead. I hope the Colonel has set off without him, and the other may be appointed and follow after as soon as convenient.

I hope you will soon have the Raleigh fit for sea. I will try to procure orders for her and one of the Newbury ships to take the Millford frigate, which it seems is a great plague to the Northern States. Prepare her as soon as possible for the business.

I am, dear sir, your sincere friend,

JOSIAH BARTLETT.

To Mr. John Langdon.

JOSEPH CARY AND JONATHAN PIERSON TO RICHARD PETERS.

Philadelphia, September 23, 1776.

SIR: This being the second time of troubling you, hope you will not take it amiss our sending this epistle to inform you that we should think ourselves very happy in having a hearing before you, or who is proper to examine us. This being the first time of our being in confinement, and that without a cause, as we never were employed, or any other way meddled or made, but on the contrary were endeavouring to get out of the country towards the West-Indies, where we might be quiet, we hope you will take our matter into consideration; and as we are strangers here, and not acquainted with any one, our request is that we may have either the liberty of a parole or leave to depart from this Continent.

We are your most obedient, &c.,

JOSEPH CARY,
JONATHAN PIERSON.

EXTRACT FROM A JOURNAL KEPT BY THE CHAPLAIN OF COLONEL DURKEE'S REGIMENT.

Powle's Hook, September 15, 1776. After Long-Island was evacuated, it was judged impossible to hold the city of New-York, and for several days the artillery and stores of every kind had been removing, and last night the sick were ordered to Newark, in the Jerseys; but most of them could be got no farther than this place and Hoebuck, and as there is but one house at each of those places, many were obliged to lie in the open air till this morning, whose distress when I walked out at day-break gave me a livelier idea of the horrors of war than any thing I ever met with before. The commandant ordered them every thing for their comfort that the place afforded, and immediately forwarded them to the place appointed and prepared for them.

About eight this morning three large ships came to sail and made up towards the Hook. The garrison, consisting of the Twentieth Continental Regiment, (Colonel Durkee's,) and a regiment of Jersey Militia, (Colonel Duyckinck's,) were ordered into our works. Soon after they had taken their posts, the ships came up near Jersey shore to avoid our shot from the grand battery, (the removal of the cannon from which they were ignorant of,) and as they passed up the North River kept up an incessant fire upon us; their shot (a great part of which was grape) raked the whole Hook, but providentially one horse was all the loss we sustained by it. The fire was briskly returned from our battery by Captain Dana, who commanded a company of the train on this station. It gave me great pleasure to see the spirit of the troops around me, who were evidently animated by the whistling of the enemy's shot, which often struck so near them as to cover them with dust.

About eleven o'clock a furious cannonade was heard a little above New-York, and before night numbers came over from the city and informed that it was evacuated by our troops, and about sunset we saw the tyrant's flag flying on Fort George.

Having received intelligence that a number of our troops were in the city, and the enemy spread across the Island above it, two small parties were ordered to assist them in making their escape. Two Captains, with about forty men, two brass howitzers, and about two tons of military stores, were brought off by one of them; the other party, consisting of five men only, were fired upon by the enemy, (supposed the Tories, who have committed a number of robberies on the friends of America.) when one Jesse Squire, of Norwich, was wounded, who, together with another, fell into their hands.

16th. About two o'clock this morning an attempt was made to burn the ships that passed up the North River yesterday and anchored about three miles above us; one of them (the Renown, of fifty guns) was grappled, but broke her grappling and came down by us again. Another cannonade ensued, but no damage was received on our side.

The brave Colonel Duyckinck, who did all he could to retain his men, could now keep his regiment no longer, but was obliged to retreat to Bergen, from which time Colonel Durkee was left on the Hook with only a part of his regiment, consisting of about three hundred effective men.

17th. An express arrived with information that Colonel Williams, from Connecticut, was ordered to reinforce us, and might be expected the next day, but was not able to join us till our retreat to Bergen, the 23d. This day a large quantity of lead musket-ball and buckshot was discovered in a suspected house, about a mile and a half above us, and brought down to this place and properly secured for the United States. Towards night the Renown returned back to her station up the North River, but kept near the eastern shore to avoid the shot from our battery, which, however, kept up a brisk fire upon her as long as she was within reach.

18th. Nothing material happened here. Just at evening, intelligence was received that the brave Lieutenant-Colonel Knowlton, of our regiment, was killed in the action that happened a little below King's Bridge on Monday, as he was fighting with undaunted courage at the head of a body of Rangers, the command of which was assigned him. The joy the success of that action would have occasioned was greatly lessened in this department by the loss of an officer so greatly respected and beloved.

20th. The Renown returned back again to the fleet, and though she passed close in with New-York shore, yet as there was very little wind about forty shot from our battery were fired at her, many of which took effect. She lay all next day upon a careen to repair.

21st. At two this morning we were waked up by the guards, who informed us that New-York was on fire. As the fire began at the southeast end of the city, a little east of the grand battery, it was spread by a strong south wind, first on the East River, and then northward across the Broadway, opposite to the old English Church, (if I mistake not the name;) from thence it consumed all before it between Broadway and the North River, near to the College, laying about one third part of the city in ashes (in the opinion of those best acquainted with it;) and had not the wind as it veered to the west, died away, the remainder of that nest of vipers would have been destroyed.

This evening a seaman, who said he belonged to Providence, that he was taken and obliged to fight against his countrymen on board the Roebuck, made his escape by swimming from New-York to this place. He informed that the men on board the Roebuck were very sickly, that they had lost one hundred since they left the Capes of Virginia. He also gave notice that preparation had been made to attack this post; that a number of large ships were to come up and endeavour to silence our batteries, while a large body of the troops in boats (which we discovered on the opposite shore above us this afternoon) were to make a descent above us and endeavour to cut off our retreat; that it was to have been executed this morning, but the fire prevented.

22d. As no reinforcement could be sent us, we received orders this morning to remove our artillery, stores, and baggage, and hold ourselves in readiness to retreat; and before night most of them were removed.

About nine, A. M., we saw the enemy embarking in flat-bottomed boats, about two miles above us, who appeared in large numbers on the shore after their boats (about thirty) were full. Four ships at the same time came to sail below, and stood up towards us, but they soon came to anchor again, and the boats which had pushed off returned back. Had they come at this time, we must either have retired and left them large quantities of artillery stores, or fought their army and navy at the same time with our small detachment, and that under every disadvantage; but they saw fit to retire to get more strength, as appeared afterwards, though they could not be ignorant of our weakness, as our men were paraded every day in full view of them.

23d. At one o'clock, P. M., having removed every thing of value, we were ordered to retreat from the Hook. As soon as we began our march, four ships came up and anchored near the shore around the Hook; at the same time a number of boats and floating-batteries came down from just above New-York; the latter run up into the cove opposite the causeway that leads to Bergen. After taking a considerable time to see that there was nobody to hurt them, they began a most furious cannonade on our empty works, which continued until they had wearied themselves. In a word, they dared to come much nearer, and displayed the boasted British valour in much brighter colours than ever they had while there remained a single man to oppose them. Meanwhile our little battalion retreated, with drums beating and colours flying, to Bergen; and before night the brave Britons ventured on shore and took possession of our evacuated works, where they have taken every precaution to prevent our formidable detachment from returning and driving them from a post which, with so great a display of heroism, they have got possession of.

The post we now possess covers the Jerseys. Here we are reinforced by a number of regiments; more are daily coming in; the sick are recovering; the troops in high spirits, and we have no fear but we shall be able to maintain our ground against all the banditti of George the Third.

Newark, September 28, 1776.

In our last we informed our readers that the city of New-York was in flames on Saturday morning, the 21st instant; since which we have many and different reports concerning that melancholy affair, the most authentick of which, we believe, is as follows, viz: That the fire originated at or near Whitehall, soon extended to the Exchange, took its course up the west side of Broad street, as far as Verlattenberg Hill, consuming all the blocks from the Whitehall up. The flames extended across the Broadway from the house of Mr. David Johnston to Beaver lane, or Fincher's alley, on the west, and carried all before it, a few buildings excepted, to the house at the corner of Barclay street, wherein the late Mr. Adam Vandenberg lived, sweeping all the crossed streets in the way. The buildings left standing on the west side of the Broadway are supposed to be Captain Thomas Randall's, Captain Kennedy's, Doctor Mallet's, Mr. John Cortlandt's sugar-house and dwelling-house, Dr. Jones's, Hull's tavern, St. Paul's, Mr. Axtell's, and Mr. Rutherford's. The cause of the fire is not known. We imagine a sixth part of the whole city is destroyed, and many families have lost their all.

SIR WILLIAM HOWE TO LORD GEORGE GERMAIN.

York-Island, September 23, 1776.

MY LORD: Between the 20th and 21st instant, at midnight, a most horrid attempt was made by a number of wretches to burn the town of New-York, in which they succeeded too well, having set it on fire in several places with matches and combustibles that had been prepared with great art and ingenuity. Many were detected in the fact, and some killed upon the spot by the enraged troops in garrison; and had it not been for the exertions of Major-General Robertson, the officers under his command in the town, and the brigade of Guards detached from the camp, the whole must infallibly have been consumed, as the night was extremely windy.

The destruction is computed to be about one-quarter of the town; and we have reason to suspect there are villains still lurking there, ready to finish the work they had begun, one person, escaping the pursuit of a sentinel the following night, having declared that he would again set fire to the town the first opportunity. The strictest search is making after these incendiaries, and the most effectual measures taken to guard against the perpetration of their villainous and wicked designs.

I have the honour to be, &c.,

W. HOWE.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM NEW-YORK TO A GENTLEMAN
IN LONDON, DATED SEPTEMBER 23, 1776.

The day after the city was taken I repaired to it, and found it a most dirty, desolate, and wretched place. My house had been plundered by the Rebels of almost every thing I had left behind. However, our late success, and the pleasing prospect before us, especially as the city was not destroyed, made me forget this loss. I thought little about it.

I flattered myself that the city would soon be peopled again, and that matters would speedily be restored to their former state; but the authors of our calamities were determined to frustrate this expectation. The destruction of the city was resolved on by some villains who were concealed in the city. Accordingly on Thursday night following, when every thing was very dry, and a brisk southerly wind blew, some of them set fire to the houses near Whitehall. The fire instantly spread and raged with inconceivable violence. There were few citizens in town; the fire-engines and pumps were out of order. Two regiments of soldiers were immediately ordered into town, and many boats full of men were sent from the fleet. To these, under Providence, it is owing that the whole city was not reduced to ashes. The destruction was very great. Between a third and fourth of the city is burnt. All that is west of the new Exchange, along Broad street to the North River, as high as the City-Hall, and from thence along the Broadway and North River to King's College, is in ruins. St. Paul's Church and the College were saved with the utmost difficulty. Trinity Church, the Lutheran Church, the parsonage, and charity-school are destroyed. Between a thousand and fifteen hundred houses are burnt, and we are under the most dismal apprehensions that there are some more of these villains concealed in town to burn what is yet left. Our distresses were great before, but this calamity has increased them ten-fold. Thousands are hereby reduced to beggary. This scheme was executed to prevent the King's troops from having any benefit by the city.

The clergy of this Province and New-Jersey have shut up their churches, as they refused to comply with the orders of the Congress. In Connecticut the clergy met and opened their churches; but they omit the service, and only read the lessons and a sermon. Before sermon, they use the accustomed collect and Lord's prayer.

We got in New-York several thousand barrels of flour. The storehouses were full of provisions of all sorts, and we have every eatable in plenty.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Head-Quarters, Heights of Harlem, September 23, 1776.

SIR: I have nothing in particular to communicate to Congress respecting the situation of our affairs. It is much the same as when I had the honour of addressing you last.

On Friday night, about eleven or twelve o'clock, a fire broke out in the city of New-York, near the new or St. Paul's Church, as it is said, which continued to burn pretty rapidly till after sunrise the next morning. I have not been informed how the accident happened, nor received any certain account of the damage. Report says many of the houses between the Broadway and the river were consumed.

I have the honour to be, with great esteem, sir, your most obedient servant,

GO. WASHINGTON.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GENERAL MERCER.

Head-Quarters, Harlem Heights, September 23, 1776.

SIR: General Howe, by letter yesterday evening, having concurred in the proposition for the exchange of General

Sullivan for General Prescott, and informed me that the former would be sent in a boat to-day to Elizabethtown, in order that it may be effected, you will be pleased to have General Prescott in readiness at the point, that he may return without delay in the boat that brings General Sullivan.

In respect to Mr. McDonald, General Howe does not allow him the rank of a Brigadier, and refuses to execute the exchange proposed between him and Lord Stirling. Under these circumstances you will direct his return to Philadelphia, with the escort that is with him, where Congress will give their direction concerning him.

I am, &c.,

GO. WASHINGTON.

To Brigadier-General Mercer, or officer commanding at Elizabethtown.

P. S. You will please to deliver the enclosed letter to General Prescott.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GENERAL HOWE.

Head-Quarters, Heights of Harlem, Sept. 23, 1776.

SIR: I yesterday evening received the favour of your letter of the 21st, by your Aid-de-Camp, Captain Montresor, in consequence of which I this morning despatched an express to Elizabethtown, with orders that Major-General Prescott should be permitted to return in the boat that carried General Sullivan over to that place.

I most readily concur in the proposition you are pleased to make for the exchange of Brigadier-General Lord Stirling for Governour Montfort Browne, and have sent for him accordingly. I should hope that Lord Stirling will be immediately set at liberty, on my promise that Governour Browne shall be sent to you as soon as he arrives.

I had no doubt but Mr. McDonald's title would have been acknowledged, having understood that he received his commission from the hands of Governour Martin; nor can I consent to rank him as a Major till I have proper authority from Congress, to whom I shall state the matter, upon your representation.

Agreeable to your request, I shall transmit to Lieutenant-Colonel Campbell a copy of the list of officers of the Forty-Second and Seventy-First Regiments, taken by us last Spring, that it may be rectified in the instances in which it may be wrong; and will then place opposite to their names the officers I would wish in return for them.

The exchange of privates I shall take the earliest opportunity in my power to carry into execution; but they being greatly dispersed through the New-England Governments, in order to their better accommodation, will prevent it for some time.

Having the fullest confidence in your assurance that Mr. Lovell will be released when he arrives from Hakifaz, I have wrote for Governour Skene to come to Head-Quarters, that he may proceed immediately to you.

As to the exchange of prisoners settled between Captain Forster and General Arnold, I beg leave to inform you that it was a transaction in which I had not the smallest concern; nor have I authority to give directions, in any degree, respecting the matter.

The information you have received concerning the ill treatment of your officers, I would fain hope is not generally well founded. The letters from them, which have passed through my hands, hold forth a different language. In particular instances, it is true, there are some who have been restrained to a closer confinement and severer treatment than they otherwise would have been, for breaking or refusing to give their paroles. Such (I am confident) will not be countenanced by your Excellency; and I am persuaded, by a closer investigation of the inquiry you will discover that there have been no other persons whatever who have experienced the smallest harshness from us. I shall, however, obtain all the information on the subject in my power, that every ground of complaint (if any exists) may be entirely removed, it being my most earnest wish that, during this unhappy contest, there be every exercise of humanity which the nature of the case will possibly admit of.

Your Aid-de-Camp delivered me the ball you mention, which was the first of the kind I ever saw or heard of. You may depend the contrivance is highly abhorred by me, and every measure shall be taken to prevent so wicked and infamous a practice being adopted in this army.

I have the honour to be, with due regard, your most obedient servant,

GO. WASHINGTON.

To Lieutenant-General Howe.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Head-Quarters, Heights of Harlem, Sept. 23, 1776.

SIR: General Howe, in a letter received from him yesterday evening, by a flag, having offered to exchange Brigadier-General Lord Stirling for Governour Montfort Browne, and also requested that Governour Skene may be granted his liberty without delay, assuring me that Mr. Lovell shall be immediately enlarged on his arrival from Halifax, and whose exchange for Governour Skene has been agreed upon, I must take the liberty of requesting the favour of your notice to these two gentlemen, and that you will provide them with a proper escort to repair to Head-Quarters as soon as they can, with their baggage, that the proposed exchange for Lord Stirling may be effected, and General Howe's request be complied with respecting Governour Skene's being returned. The gentlemen are to consider themselves under parole till such time as they are sent from Head-Quarters to General Howe.

I must beg your excuse for not having wrote you of late upon the situation of our affairs and such events as have cast up in the military line. I shall only add that the important concerns which have commanded my closest attention have been the cause, and I am fully persuaded, will furnish me with a sufficient apology.

Of the evacuation of the city of New-York on Sunday se'nnight, and the retreat to this place, you will have heard before now, and of the manner in which it was conducted. I am certain a minute relation of them would only increase the uneasiness which would naturally arise upon hearing the events, and therefore, as I have not time, I shall not enter upon it.

The enemy, by their movements, having unfolded their plan of operations, and discovered that they declined making a direct attack upon the town, and that their designs were to land in our rear, and to cut off all intercourse with the country, at the same time to prevent any communication with the Jersey, and States south of the North River, by means of their ships of war, it became necessary to adopt such measures as seemed best calculated to baffle their schemes and promote the common interests. To these ends, a Council of Officers determined the evacuation of the city absolutely necessary; and I have only to wish that it had been made in a way more honourable, and with less loss of baggage; which might have been the case had the troops that remained there for the defence of the lines not betaken themselves to a most precipitate and disgraceful flight, contrary to the exertions of their General Officers and every effort in my power to prevent and form them, having gone from hence, as soon as the ships began their cannonade, and whither I had come the night before, to the main body of our army, in expectation of an attack that night or the next morning, as the parade of the enemy and the unusual stir amongst them strongly indicated one. The next morning several large columns of them appeared on the plains, at the distance of about two miles and a half below us; and some smart skirmishes ensued between their advanced parties, composed of the Second Battalion of Infantry, a regiment of Royal Highlanders, and three companies of the Hessian Chasseurs or Riflemen, and the detachments which I sent out to oppose them. Upon this occasion our men behaved with great spirit and intrepidity, putting the enemy to flight, and forcing them from their posts two or three times. Our people buried sixteen or eighteen of their dead, as they say; and a Sergeant who has since deserted, reports they had eighty-nine missing and wounded. Our loss in number was inconsiderable, but must be considered as great in the fall of Lieutenant-Colonel Knowlton, of your State, who commanded a party of Rangers, composed of volunteers from the several New-England regiments, and who was a brave and good officer. Every honour was paid to his merit, in his interment, that the situation of things would admit of.

FIFTH SERIES.—VOL. II.

The enemy have formed a large encampment in the plains, or rather heights, below us, extending across, as it were, from the East to the North River; but have attempted nothing, as yet, of a general nature. We are making every disposition in our power for defence; and I should hope, from the ground we are on, if they make an attack, and our men behave with tolerable resolution and firmness, that they will meet with a repulse, or, at least, any advantage they gain will be attended with sorrow and a considerable loss. Major Leitch, who led on a detachment of the Virginia regiment in the affair of Monday, received three balls through one side. He still retains his spirits, and seems as if he would recover.

On Friday night, about eleven or twelve o'clock, a fire broke out in the city of New-York, which, burning rapidly till after sunrise next morning, destroyed a great number of houses. By what means it happened we do not know; but the gentleman who brought the letter from General Howe last night, and who was one of his Aids-de-Camp, informed Colonel Reed that several of our countrymen had been punished with various deaths on account of it, some by hanging, others by burning, &c.; alleging that they were apprehended when committing the fact.

I have, &c.,

GO. WASHINGTON.

To Governour Trumbull, Connecticut.

P. S. I would choose that Governours Browne and Skene should be stopped when they come within ten or twelve miles, and detained till one of the escort can inform me of their coming, and receive my directions respecting them.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Head-Quarters at the Heights of Harlem, }
September 23, 1776. }

SIR: Your favour of the 21st instant, enclosing the resolution of the Representatives of the State of New-York, has come duly to hand and will be properly attended to. I am exceedingly obliged by the readiness you declare you will pay to any commands which you may receive from me, respecting the great cause in which we are engaged.

The manœuvres of the enemy before their landing on Sunday last, were various and perplexing; however, about eight o'clock in the morning they became extremely plain and obvious. At that time they began their operations, by sending three ships of war up the North River, as high as Bloomingdale, which put a stop to the removal of our stores by water, and about eleven of those in the East River began a constant and heavy cannonade, for the purpose of securing the grounds and covering the landing of their troops, where breastworks had been thrown up to oppose them. As soon as I heard the firing I immediately repaired to the place of landing, when, to my extreme astonishment, I discovered the troops who were posted in the lines retreating in the greatest disorder, and Parsons's and Fellows's brigades, who were directed to support them, retreating in the greatest confusion, and without making the slightest opposition, although only a small party of the enemy appeared in view. As I perceived no dependence could be reposed in these troops, and apprehending another impression might be made on Harlem Plains, by which means our retreat to this place might be cut off, I directed the Heights to be secured, and our retreat was effected with little or no loss of men, though of a considerable part of the baggage. Some of our heavy cannon, and a part of our stores and provisions, which we were about removing, were unavoidably left in the city, though every means (after it had been determined in Council to abandon the post) had been used to prevent it.

On Monday morning last, several parties of the enemy appeared on the high grounds opposite to our Heights, and some skirmishing had happened between our troops and those of the enemy. On reconnoitering their situation, I formed the design of cutting off such of them as had or might advance to the extremity of the wood; I accordingly ordered three companies of Virginia Riflemen, under the command of Major Leitch, and Colonel Knowlton with his Rangers, to endeavour to get in their rear, while an apparent disposition was making as if to attack them in front. The enemy ran down the hill with great eagerness to attack the party in front; but unluckily, from some mistake or misapprehension, the parties under Major Leitch and Colonel Knowlton began the fire on their flank, instead of their rear. The Major was soon brought off the field wounded, and Colonel Knowlton soon received a wound of which he is since dead. Their men, however, behaved with the greatest resolution. Finding that they wanted assistance, I advanced part of Colonel Griffith's and Colonel Richardson's Maryland regiments, with some detachments of Eastern troops, who charged the enemy and drove them from the wood to the plain, and were still pursuing, when I judged it prudent to withdraw them, fearing the enemy might be sending a large reinforcement to the troops which were engaged, which was the case as I have since understood. A Sergeant who deserted from the enemy has informed me their party was greater than I imagined, as it consisted of the Second Battalion of Light Infantry, a battalion of Royal Highlanders, and three companies of Hessian Riflemen, under the command of General Leslie. Their loss by his report amounted to eighty-nine wounded and missing, and eight killed; in the latter his account is altogether imperfect, as our people discovered and buried double that number. I am in hopes this little success will be productive of salutary consequences, as our army seems to be greatly inspirited by it.

I am, sir, your most obedient servant,

GO. WASHINGTON.

To the Hon. Abraham Yates, Jun., President of the Convention of the State of New-York.

Proceedings of a General Court-Martial of the Line held on the Heights of HARLEM, by order of His Excellency GEORGE WASHINGTON, Esq., General and Commander-in-Chief of the Forces of the UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, for the trial of all Prisoners to be brought before them. SEPTEMBER 23, 1776.

Colonel MAGAW, President.

Lieut. Colonel Chandler ,	Captain Brown ,
Lieut. Colonel Russell ,	Captain Chamberlain ,
Captain Ledyard ,	Captain Prentice ,
Captain Greaton ,	Captain Rogers ,
Captain Wiley ,	Captain Foster ,
Captain Hindman ,	Captain Stanley .
Captain Scott ,

William Tudor, Judge-Advocate.

The Court being duly sworn, proceeded to the trial of Lieutenant Stewart, of Captain Thomas's Independent Company, under the command of Colonel Smallwood, brought prisoner before the Court, and accused of "striking Sergeant Phelps, of Colonel Silliman's regiment, and of threatening the life of Colonel Silliman, for arresting him, Lieutenant Stewart."

The prisoner being arraigned on the said charge, pleads, "Not guilty."

Captain HUBBEL. Last Wednesday morning Lieutenant Stewart came to my hut and inquired for Ensign Phelps, calling him a damned coward. I sent for the man, who is a Sergeant in my company; he came up, and Lieutenant Stewart told him he wanted to know his name to report him for a coward, for he had behaved like a damned coward the day before, and told him he was not fit for an Ensign; on which Phelps replied, he was as fit for an Ensign as he (Stewart) was for a Lieutenant. Upon which Lieutenant Stewart immediately struck him in the face with the flat of his hand. I went off and complained to Colonel Silliman, and Lieutenant Stewart came up with the Adjutant of our regiment, when Colonel Silliman very mildly talked with Lieutenant Stewart, and told him he ought to have taken another course; Lieutenant Stewart grew warm, when Colonel Silliman ordered him under an arrest. On this, Lieutenant Stewart took his hat and flung it on the ground, and said, "I'll go to my tent—all you can do is to take my commission, but I am a gentleman, and will put it out of your power, for I will resign it, and in less than two hours will be revenged on you, God damn you." He soon went off. He damned Colonel Silliman several times.

Sergeant Bass confirms Captain Hubbel's testimony throughout.

JOSEPH PHELPS confirms Captain Hubbel's testimony.

Lieutenant STEWART's Defence.

Mr. CHESLEY. Was present when Lieutenant Stewart and Sergeant Phelps were talking. The deponent says, Lieutenant Stewart said Phelps, who he supposed was an Ensign, had behaved cowardly the day before, and that he meant to report him for a coward. Phelps replied, he was no more a coward than Stewart was—some more words ensued, when Phelps said something which looked like giving Stewart the lie, when Mr. Stewart struck him in the face.

Lieutenant-Colonel WARE. Was present at the conversation between Lieutenant Stewart and Colonel Silliman, and did not hear Lieutenant Stewart damn Colonel Silliman.

Captain SMITH. I went up with Lieutenant Stewart to Colonel Silliman, and Lieutenant Stewart showed the utmost complaisance to the Colonel, and begged to be heard; the Colonel refused to hear him, and ordered him under an arrest. Lieutenant Stewart grew warm, and made use of some hasty expressions.

The Court after mature consideration, are of opinion, that Lieutenant Stewart is guilty of striking Sergeant Phelps, but the Court are of opinion that Lieutenant Stewart was provoked to do so; and the Court are of opinion, that Lieutenant Stewart is not guilty of threatening the life of Colonel Silliman.
ROBERT MAGAW, President.

The Court proceeded to the trial of Lieutenant Daniel Pelton, of Captain Riker's Company, in Colonel Ritzema's Regiment, brought prisoner before the Court, and accused of "leaving camp and being absent two days without leave from his commanding officer."

The prisoner being arraigned on the above complaint, pleads guilty, and acknowledges "that he left camp on Monday morning without leave of absence, and went three or four miles beyond King's Bridge, and returned on Wednesday afternoon following."

The Court are of opinion, that the prisoner is guilty of a breach of the nineteenth article of the rules and regulations for the government of the Continental troops, and sentence the said Lieutenant Pelton to be mulcted of one month's pay for said offence.

ROBERT MAGAW, President.

The Court proceeded to the trial of Sergeant William Phelps, of Captain Hubbel's Company, in Colonel Silliman's Regiment, brought prisoner before the Court, and accused of "cowardice and deserting his party when out on a scout" on Tuesday, September 17.

The prisoner being arraigned on the above charge, pleads, "Not guilty."

Lieutenant STEWART deposes. That he was on a scouting party on Tuesday, 17th of September, and met Captain Northrop with another party, of which the prisoner was one, and we agreed to endeavour taking the enemy's advanced guard. We were prevented doing it, but got down to a fence, where we exchanged some shot with the enemy. Both parties were together. In about ten minutes the prisoner and three or four others ran off to a fence a hundred yards. The prisoner had a large pewter dish under his arm; I ordered him to lay down his dish and go back, or I would shoot him. I was so intent on the motions of the enemy, I did not observe him afterwards; it was immediately after a shot from the enemy that the prisoner ran away.

JOSEPH MILLER confirms Lieutenant Stewart's deposition.

NATHANIEL THOMAS confirms Lieutenant Stewart's deposition, and adds, that the prisoner ran two hundred and fifty yards and lay behind a fence, and did not join the party again, as he saw.

Prisoner's Defence.

JOSEPH BASS. After Lieutenant Stewart had threatened to shoot Sergeant Phelps, and Phelps found that the party was not going to the fence, he asked Captain Northrop if he should go back, who told him yes, and he accordingly joined Captain Northrop, and came off with him when the party retreated.

Captain NORTHROP. After Lieutenant Stewart ordered

Phelps back, he came back in a minute and a half and joined me, and we came off together. The prisoner was of my party, and I saw nothing of cowardice in him, and would take him again as soon as any man I know upon a scouting party.

The Court are of opinion, that the prisoner is not guilty of the charge against him.

ROBERT MAGAW, President.

COLONEL PAWLING TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

King's Bridge, September 23, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I am laid under the disagreeable necessity to inform your Honours that I have not had a Surgeon appointed to my regiment agreeable to the resolve of your honourable House, passed the 16th July last. On my arrival at this place, (which was the 12th ultimo,) found many inconveniences, which were all surmounted without difficulty, except the non-appointment of a Surgeon, which I had reason to expect had been done, in compliance to said resolve; but as it was not done, I attended your honourable Board at Harlem, and got Dr. Gregur appointed temporary until another should be appointed. This gentleman gave all the attendance in his power; he at length told me it was not in his power to attend any longer, and at the same time recommended Mr. Joseph Crane; accordingly Mr. Crane was wrote for; he came, and has attended the sick of my regiment since the 1st of this instant, and with general satisfaction. I therefore desire that this gentleman may be appointed Surgeon to my regiment, and also that he may receive proper directions concerning medicines.

Your Honour's compliance will much oblige your very humble servant,

LEVI PAWLING.

To the Honourable the Convention of the State of New-York, now at the Fishkill.

JOSEPH TRUMBULL, COMMISSARY-GENERAL, TO THE NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

King's Bridge, September 23, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Your letter and resolutions in consequence of my application for your assistance in procuring immediately a supply of flour, is received. I most sincerely thank you for your ready compliance therewith. I doubt not that the kind assistance of the gentlemen appointed by you will secure me success. I paid Mr. Banker twelve thousand five hundred dollars, on account of the pork. When the vouchers are procured and the price is settled, the remainder will be paid on demand.

I am, with greatest respect and gratitude, gentlemen, your obliged, humble servant,

JOS. TRUMBULL.

To the Honourable Convention of the State of New-York.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Albany, September 23, 1776.

DEAR SIR: General Gates has requested me to send up twenty casks of shingle nails. He says "the carpenters are unable to proceed with the publick works for the want of them." I have wrote to Congress on the 8th instant, begging that a quantity might be sent up; but if your Excellency can spare any, I wish to have them sent with all possible despatch, as we cannot procure any here, and those from Philadelphia may probably not arrive in time, if at all.

The Committee of the town of Schenectady have requested me that barracks should be built there for the accommodation of any troops that may be quartered there, or pass through it. I do not conceive myself authorized to take such a step without your Excellency's consent, or that of Congress.

I am, with the greatest respect and esteem, your Excellency's obedient, humble servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

To His Excellency General Washington, &c., &c.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GENERAL GATES.

Albany, September 23, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: I am extremely sorry that it is not in my power to furnish you with shingle nails. Not a pound is to be had in this country. I shall try to get some made. On the 8th instant I wrote to Congress, and entreated them to send up nails. It is possible they may order some to be forwarded to this place; as soon as any arrive, they will be expedited to you.

I wish I could give a confirmation of the account of last week's transactions on York-Island, as you will have received it by Major Pierce. It is partly contradicted by Captain Lucas, who left King's Bridge on Thursday last.

It will undoubtedly be necessary to build barracks for a strong garrison, both at Tyonderoga and on Mount Independence. And I beg you to make every preparation for it in your power, and also effectually to repair the old fort, as soon as you shall be in a condition to do it.

The cordage from Poughkeepsie arrived last night, except the cables, which were not finished, and for which I shall send express.

If potatoes and turnips cannot be procured in sufficient quantity for the army nearer than Saratoga, and if Mr. Avery wants any, he may send to my overseer. I suppose a thousand bushels may be spared.

Not less than one hundred and sixty thousand boards are wanted at King's Bridge. I greatly fear we shall not be able to procure them.

If you can possibly spare any men, a considerable number should be employed in cutting fire-wood, and bringing it to Tyonderoga. If it is long delayed, it will be difficult to procure a stock sufficient for the winter's consumption.

I am just now informed by a letter from Mr. Trumbull, the Commissary-General, that Mr. Avery is appointed to act as Commissary in this department, in the room of Mr. Livingston, Deputy Commissary-General, resigned; and that he has ordered him to repair to this place. You will therefore please to send him down.

I am, dear General, your most obedient, humble servant,
PH. SCHUYLER.

To the Hon. General Gates.

GENERAL GATES TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read October 2, 1776.]

Ticonderoga, September 23, 1776.

SIR: As the freedom and welfare of the United States depend in a great measure upon the speedy establishment of the new army, I cannot suffer another day to pass over without sending my sentiments upon a concern so highly important to your Excellency.

The War-Office returns, which go by this conveyance, will show exactly the term for which each particular corps is engaged to serve under the present establishment; the future, therefore, is to be attended to with the utmost wisdom and speed. With the most respectful submission to the commands of Congress, I take the liberty to propose the following plan for recruiting the new army in this department:

Let every regiment, and every officer in each regiment, now upon the Continental establishment, be continued in the new; such officers who shall decline all further service in this, may be replaced by the best men who are desirous to serve on that establishment. Let twenty-three dollars, or the following bounty in clothing, be given to every soldier who will enlist to serve during — years, or the war:

	Value in Dollars.
1st. One black leather cap with a turned-up cape,	\$1 $\frac{1}{2}$
2d. One blanket coat, - - - - -	4
3d. One thick-set waistcoat with sleeves, - - -	2 $\frac{1}{2}$
4th. Two shirts, - - - - -	5
5th. Two pairs of shoes, - - - - -	3
6th. Two pairs of yarn hose, - - - - -	2
7th. One hunting-shirt, - - - - -	2 $\frac{3}{4}$
8th. One pair of baize or duffil leggins, - - -	2 $\frac{1}{4}$
	<hr/> $23

Let a contract be made for supplying five thousand of each of these articles, and delivering them at Albany, by the first day of January. This is intended for a magazine, to supply those who shall have taken dollars for their bounty, and will afterwards want clothing. If some soldiers prefer to take dollars, let them have dollars; their pay must afterwards be stopped for their clothing, which makes it a matter of indifference to Congress. Most of the Eastern men will take the clothing; there the largest number must be supplied. The Congress should immediately contract for five thousand of the articles here mentioned; one half of which must be at Ticonderoga by the first day of November. In the mean time, (that is as soon as the resolve of Congress shall be sent to me,) proclamations may be made to the army of the bounty intended to be given, and such as choose dollars may be paid as fast as they incline to take them; those who choose the clothing, may be assured of receiving it upon a certain day, to be named. Two thousand five hundred men and officers will be enough to guard this post from November till April, and the like number at Albany, Fort Stanwix, and the posts upon the communications leading to that fort and Ticonderoga. If Congress approve this mode of recruiting their Northern army, they will find their troops will be all warmly and suitably clothed for the climate they are to serve in, and there will be no hurry or confusion in the Spring in preparing them for the field.

As the time is so short that a further application to Congress can be of no efficacy before this or some other plan be carried into execution for recruiting the new army, for this reason, if the Congress have no objection, it may be proper to invest the Commanding General in this department with a discretionary power to do what shall seem best to him to be done in the present emergency. At all events, it would be prudent to have a body of men, not less than two thousand, ready to march for Ticonderoga, so as to be certain of their arriving there by the 20th of December. These are to be discharged the instant the like number can be recruited for the service. The enemy have by this time undoubtedly been made thoroughly sensible of the very great opportunity they lost at Boston last year, and will certainly endeavour to avail themselves of our inattention should we be again unguarded. This is perhaps their most sanguine hope. If, upon the attempt to recruit, it be found practicable to raise that number out of the regiments now here, then the General in this department will of course stop the march of the two thousand men above-mentioned. Your Excellency, and the Congress, will see clearly the propriety of a military oath being administered to every officer and soldier of the army, especially now that the United States of America are wisely declared independent; and we ought, by every method in our power, to persuade our friends, as well our enemies, that we will support and render permanent the noble establishment of our independence. The commission to each officer should also correspond with the oath, and be made subordinate to the supreme power of the Congress, under the new system; an inconsistency which the multiplicity of business alone must have occasioned, may turn to the prejudice of those whom the fate of war may put into the hands of the enemy, and expose us to the just censure of the impartial.

I depend upon General Schuyler's sending your Excellency by this conveyance the letter and report I received last night from Brigadier-General Arnold, which I now transmit to General Schuyler by this express.

With great respect I am, sir, your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,

HORATIO GATES.

To the President of Congress.

GENERAL ORDERS.

Head-Quarters, September 3, 1776.

(Parole, New-York.)

(Countersign, Washington.)

The General sees with concern the shameful dilatoriness with which the publick works are carried on on Mount Independence, at a time when our friends and countrymen are hotly engaged with the enemy, and every moment bleeding in the cause of liberty and their country. Is it not shameful that there should any where be a body of the troops of the United States who are so wanting in spirit and love of their country as not to exert every nerve for her defence? Let no man at this time murmur or complain, or for an ague-fit give up the service he owes to himself, his family, and his posterity. The same heats and colds that affect us affect our enemies. They probably, as they are at present more unwholesomely situated, feel more the miseries of disease than we; and shall Americans, whose all is at stake, want that firmness to animate them to arms which is necessary to defeat the unprincipled mercenaries of an unrelenting tyrant? As nothing is more necessary to purify the air than fire, the best physicians always recommend large fires to be made in new ground or damp situations. The General, therefore, desires the commanding officers of the regiments upon Mount Independence to order a small fatigue party every morning and evening to turn up heaps of brush around their several encampments.

The main guard upon Mount Independence being found not to answer the intention of the General in securing the rear of the camp effectually, the General directs that for the future two guards, each consisting of one Captain, three Subs, four Sergeants, four Corporals, two Drums, sixty Privates, be mounted in lieu of the above main guard; one at the present post of said guard, the other on an eminence in the rear of Colonel Paterson's Regiment. One Field-Officer of the day to superintend the whole guard of that camp; one third of the men in each guard are constantly to be on sentry, or on scouting parties.

Head-Quarters, September 4, 1776.

(Parole, Lee.)

(Countersign, Putnam.)

All the spare arms belonging to the First Jersey Regiment are to be immediately valued, and then delivered to Colonel Wayne, commanding the Fourth Battalion of the Pennsylvanians, for the use of that regiment, which valuation shall be paid to such person as may be authorized to receive it, or the arms again returned to the Jersey Regiment, at such time and place as will be directed in general orders.

Major Payne, of Colonel Wheelock's Regiment, and Lieutenant Archibald Dallas, of Colonel Winds's Regiment, and Ensign William Parrott, of Colonel Maxwell's Regiment, are appointed Assistant Engineers, under the Chief Engineer, Colonel Baldwin.

Brigade-Major Wilkinson is to do duty in the Fourth Brigade, commanded by General St. Clair.

Captain Howell, of the Second Jersey Battalion, is appointed Major of Brigade to the Third, commanded by Colonel Stark.

At a late General Court-Martial of the Third Brigade, of which Lieutenant-Colonel McDuffee was President, Captain Woodbury, of Colonel Stark's Regiment, was tried for keeping a soldier out of his pay, and denying that he had drawn it. The Court having considered the evidences, do adjudge Captain Woodbury is not guilty, and therefore acquit him with honour.

Captain William Harper, of Colonel Wyman's Regiment, tried by the same General Court-Martial, for inlisting one James Marston, knowing him to be a deserter from Colonel Poor's Regiment, and for detaining him at Number Four, to screen him from punishment. The Court having considered the evidences, do unanimously adjudge that Captain Harper is guilty of the charges alleged against him, and that he incurs the penalty of the fiftieth article of war, and has behaved unbecomingly the character of an officer and gentleman, and sentence him to be dismissed the service.

The General approves these sentences of the Court, and orders them to take place immediately.

Thirty-three men from Colonel Whitcomb's Regiment, to parade to-morrow morning, at six o'clock, at Head-Quarters, to serve as Marines on board the fleet. The same number of seamen from Colonel Brewer's Regiment, will parade at the same time and place, to serve on board the fleet. They will proceed directly and join General Arnold, under the command of Lieutenant Calderwood, of Marines. Colonel Phinney's Regiment is to join the Second Brigade.

Head-Quarters, September 5, 1776.

(Parole, Sullivan.)

(Countersign, Stirling.)

The following Resolve of the most honourable the General Congress of the United States of America, was made 17th June, 1776:

"Resolved, That no Officer suttle or sell to the Soldiers, on penalty of being fined one month's pay, and dismissed the service with infamy, on conviction before a Court-Martial."

The General earnestly hopes that no officer, high or low, will be guilty of a breach of the above resolve. When an officer descends to be mean enough to turn a huckster to his men, he cannot expect any due obedience from them. Soldiers will forever esteem a man of honour as much as they will despise a contrary character.

Lieutenant James Matthews, of Colonel Poor's Regiment, tried by the late General Court-Martial of which Lieutenant-Colonel McDuffee was President, for often appearing on parade disguised with liquor, selling liquor to private soldiers in his own tent, and associating with persons below the character of an officer. The Court having duly considered the evidence, do adjudge that Lieutenant Matthews is guilty of the several charges alleged against him; that he has behaved in a manner unbecoming an officer and a gentleman, and sentence him to be dismissed the service.

The General highly approves this sentence of the General Court-Martial, and orders Mr. Matthews to leave the camp immediately.

Isaac Alaby, of Captain Lowry's Company, in Colonel Maxwell's Regiment, tried by the same General Court-Martial for leaving the main guard without permission. Plead guilty, and is sentenced to receive thirty-nine lashes on his bare back.

The General approves the sentence, and orders the execution of it at such time and place as Colonel Maxwell shall direct.

The following promotions are ordered to take place in Colonel De Haas's Regiment:

Second Lieutenant John Ellis, a First Lieutenant, vice Lieutenant Hubbley, promoted.

John Patterson, Second Lieutenant, vice Lieutenant Ellis, promoted.

In Colonel Wigglesworth's Regiment:

Major Roberts, Lieutenant-Colonel, vice Lieutenant-Colonel Fuller, deceased.

Captain Rogers, Major, vice Roberts.

Lieutenant French, Captain, vice Rogers.

Thomas Smart, Adjutant, vice Adjutant Clark, discharged.

In Colonel Maxwell's Regiment:

Ensign Henry, Second Lieutenant, vice Lieutenant Ashmore, deceased.

Mr. Andrew Bankson, Ensign, vice Henry, promoted.

Head-Quarters, September 6, 1776.

(Parole, Thompson.)

(Countersign, Armstrong.)

A return of all the spades, axes, shovels, pick-axes, bill-hooks, and hoes, now remaining in store, to be delivered to the Quartermaster-General at six o'clock this evening.

The commanding officers of regiments will take notice that the falling-axes lately delivered to their respective corps, are to be ready to be returned when called for; and such as are deficient must be paid for by a stoppage out of the regimental abstract.

As a considerable body of troops will join the army this week, the Chief Engineer must take care to provide intrenching tools sufficient to employ all the working parties.

At a General Court-Martial held on Mount Independence, of which Colonel Maxwell was President, Colonel Wyman was tried on an accusation of receiving and clandestinely carrying off the ration money of Colonel Stark and his officers at Cambridge, the last campaign, and for not settling his mess bill. The Court having heard the evidences and defence, do adjudge that Colonel Wyman is not guilty, and therefore do acquit him with honour.

The General approves the sentence, and orders Colonel Wyman to be released from his arrest immediately.

Nathaniel Chace, a soldier of Colonel Stark's Regiment, tried by the same General Court-Martial for deserting three several times. Pleads guilty, and is sentenced to be whipped thirty-nine lashes on his bare back, and pay all the costs that have arisen from his desertions.

Moses Crommit, of Captain Bill's Company, in Colonel Poor's Regiment, tried by the same General Court-Martial for desertion, and inlisting into another regiment. The Court having examined the evidences, do adjudge him guilty, and sentence him to be whipped fifteen lashes, and return to his duty in Colonel Poor's Regiment.

Daniel Reading, of Captain Howel's, in Colonel Maxwell's Regiment, tried by the same General Court-Martial for declaring his intention to desert as soon as convenient, and persuaded many others to desert. The Court are of opinion that the prisoner is guilty of the second part of the charge only, and sentence him to be tied naked to the post for five minutes, and to be severely reprimanded by the Colonel of the Regiment.

The General approves the above sentences, and orders them to be put in execution to-morrow morning, at guard-mounting, in front of their respective regiments to which the prisoners belong.

The following promotions are to take place in Colonel Poor's Regiment:

Lieutenant Benjamin Kimball to be Captain, in place of Captain Shortridge, deceased.

Lieutenant James Carr to be First Lieutenant, in place of Lieutenant Carr, advanced.

Lieutenant William Rowel to be First Lieutenant, in place of Lieutenant Kimball, advanced.

Ensign Enoch Chase to be Second Lieutenant, in place of Lieutenant Heard, advanced.

Ensign Charles Gliden to be Second Lieutenant, in place of Lieutenant Rowel, advanced.

Wm. Bell Ensign, in place of Ensign Gliden, advanced.

Noah Robinson Ensign, in place of Ensign Chase, advanced.

After-Orders.—As a very sharp cannonading has been heard all this morning, by the report of the commanding officer at Crown Point, supposed to be between our fleet and that of the enemy, the General hopes and expects every officer and soldier under his command, will, to the utmost of his abilities, prepare himself to repel the attacks of the enemy. Our fleet is only our advanced guard; that defeated, the defence of the United States and the support of American freedom falls upon this army. The General has the greatest confidence in their firmness and fidelity, and is convinced that every officer and soldier will show himself determined to save his country, his posterity, and himself, from falling into the shackles which tyrants have ever prepared for conquered slaves.

Head-Quarters, September 7, 1776.

(Parole, Mifflin.)

(Countersign, Arnold.)

The Surgeons of the Regiments on Mount Independence to attend Doctor Potts, the Director of the Hospital, at Head-Quarters, as soon as possible, with a particular return of their sick, and a supply of medicines will be immediately furnished to such as are in want.

The following promotions to take place in Colonel Phinney's Regiment, viz:

Lieutenant Cara McClallan, First Lieutenant, in place of William McClannan, deserted.

Ensign David Watts, Second Lieutenant, in place of Lieutenant McClallan, advanced.

Sergeant James Mains, Ensign, in place of Ensign Watts, advanced.

Head-Quarters, September 8, 1776.

(Parole, Roberdeau.)

(Countersign, Mercer.)

Colonel Phinney's Regiment to prepare to embark for Fort George as soon as the weather is fair. The Colonel will come to Head-Quarters, to receive the General's orders, as soon as possible.

Mr. Edward Raymond is appointed Wagonmaster to the division of this army stationed upon the west side of the Lake, opposite Mount Independence.

Mr. William Battersbee is appointed Storekeeper and Issuer of Stores in the department under the Deputy Quartermaster-General.

The batteau guard is to be increased to an Officer, two Sergeants, two Corporals, and twenty-one men.

One Captain, two Subalterns, two Sergeants, one Drum, and fifty rank and file, to parade at sunrise to-morrow morning, to begin to cut the road from the east side of Mount Independence towards the bridge now building across Otter Creek. Mr. Benjamin Hicock and Mr. David Remington, who have marked the road, will constantly attend, to direct the party. The party to be taken from Colonel Wingate's New-Hampshire Regiment, and to take their arms, ammunition, and packs with them; the Captain to Head-Quarters at six o'clock this afternoon.

A General Court-Martial, from the two Brigades of Generals St. Clair and Bricket, to sit to-morrow morning, at nine o'clock, in the President's tent: President, a Field Officer; Members, Captains. They are to try all such prisoners as shall be brought before them.

The General Court-Martial, of which Colonel Maxwell was President, is dissolved.

Head-Quarters, September 9, 1776.

(Parole, Middleton.)

(Countersign, Elliott.)

The General has reason to believe that the enemy have spies in and about our camps. It is the duty, and it will be the care, of every officer to endeavour to discover such person or persons, if any there be amongst us.

The General is surprised at the negligence and carelessness of the guards on Mount Independence. Had the troops never served till this month, there might be some excuse for the countersign not being demanded or passengers challenged. The officers commanding guards will be answerable in future for every neglect of this kind.

The fatigue parties from the Militia of New-Hampshire are to turn out at half-past five o'clock, and work (as all the troops are ordered) till twelve o'clock, and from two till sunset. The officers will answer for every neglect.

Colonel Maxwell is to take the command of the First Brigade during the illness of Colonel Greaton.

Head-Quarters, September 10, 1776.

(Parole, Putnam.)

(Countersign, Lee.)

The Commanding Officers of corps are to furnish Lieutenant Bowman, of the smiths, with such workmen, for carrying on the iron work of the galleys and cannon carriages, as he may require.

No boats are to be sent down the Lake in future without permission from Head-Quarters.

The Commissioners appointed by Congress to audit the publick accounts being arrived at Albany, every officer and other person who may have advanced moneys on account of the publick, and whose accounts remain unsettled, are immediately to make out and transmit them to Jonathan Trumbull, Jun., Esq., at Albany, Deputy Paymaster-General of this army, that the same may be adjusted.

Head-Quarters, September 11, 1776.

(Parole, Sydney.)

(Countersign, Warren.)

The General is sorry he is again under the necessity of taking notice of the shameful neglect of the publick works upon Mount Independence. He makes great allowance for sickness, feebleness, &c., but is yet convinced, from the returns, that much more might be done for our defence than is at present attempted. The Field Officers of Colonel Wingate's and Colonel Wyman's Regiments are desired to see those under their immediate command exert themselves in a spirited manner to save themselves and serve their country. A short time will determine whether we are to be freemen or slaves. Let us not lose the precious moments, but, by perseverance and a manly firmness, show we are determined to conquer and be free.

At a General Court-Martial, of which Lieutenant-Colonel Brown is President, Captain Jonathan Danforth, of Colonel Whitcomb's Regiment, was tried for disobedience of orders, neglect of duty, and not joining his regiment upon the march from Boston to Number-Four, and also for keeping some privates, belonging to the regiment, with him, without leave from the commanding officer. The Court, having considered the evidences, are of opinion that the prisoner, Captain Danforth, is not guilty, and therefore acquit him with honour.

John Donnelly, soldier in Captain Whiting's Company, and Colonel Whitcomb's Regiment, tried by the same General Court-Martial, for deserting and inlisting in another company. The Court, on an examination of the evidences, are of opinion the prisoner is guilty of two crimes, and sentence him to receive thirty-nine lashes for deserting, and thirty-nine lashes for inlisting in another company, and to return to the company he first inlisted in.

Arthur Clark, a soldier of Captain Bullard's Company, Colonel Whitcomb's Regiment, was tried, by the same General Court-Martial, for threatening and insulting the officers of the regiment. The Court, on examination of the evidences, adjudge the prisoner not guilty.

The General approves the above sentences, and orders them to take place immediately.

No non-commissioned officer or soldier will, in future, be discharged the service until a receipt is signed by him, on the back of the certificate, acknowledging he is paid all the pay and arrears due to him from the publick for his service in the army.

Those Regiments which have not received their ammu-munition may apply at Head-Quarters for an order on the Commissary of Stores for that purpose.

Head-Quarters, September 12, 1776.

(Parole, Wythe.)

(Countersign, Henry.)

Mr. Alexander Orr, of Colonel Whitcomb's Regiment, is appointed an Ensign in said regiment, in place of Ensign Barber, cashiered.

Lieutenant William Augustus Paterson, of Colonel Paterson's Regiment, is appointed a Captain in place of Captain Nobles, deceased. Samuel Martin, Second Lieutenant, is appointed First Lieutenant, in place of Lieutenant Paterson, promoted. Ensign Mathew Hall is appointed a Second Lieutenant, in place of Lieutenant Martin promoted. And Sergeant Eb. Williams an Ensign, in place of Ensign Hall, promoted. And Sergeant Jesse Hollister is appointed an Ensign in Captain Bliss's Company, in place of Ensign Arnold, deserted.

Head-Quarters, September 13, 1776.

(Parole, Quebeck.)

(Countersign, Wolfe.)

The Independent company of Indians from Stockbridge, under the command of Captain Ezra Whittlesey, are posted with two regiments at the Saw-Mills, under the command of Colonel Brewer. The Colonel will give proper orders, and they are severally to wear a blue and red cap, as a distinguishing mark from the enemy's Indians. Of this all officers and soldiers in this army are to take particular notice, to the end that we may not, by mistake, kill our friends instead of our enemies.

Mr. Silas Miriam is appointed Surgeon to the regiment commanded by Lieutenant-Colonel Wait.

The following promotions are to take place in Colonel Wayne's Battalion, viz: Ensign Job Vernon to be a Second Lieutenant, vice Lieutenant Moulder, resigned; Sergeant Alexander Martin to be an Ensign, vice Ensign Vernon, advanced.

Head-Quarters, September 14, 1776.

(Parole, Belhaven.)

(Countersign, Mason.)

Mr. Jonathan F. Morris is appointed an Ensign in Captain Morris's Company, of Colonel Winds's Regiment, in place of Mr. Hälstead, deserted.

At a General Court-Martial, of which Lieut. Colonel Brown is President, Alexander Watson, an inhabitant, was brought before the Court, charged with retailing spirituous liquors to the soldiers, contrary to general orders. No evidences appearing, the Court ordered him to be set at liberty.

Richard Morrison, a soldier in Captain Bullard's Company, in Colonel Whitcomb's Regiment, tried by the same General Court-Martial, for deserting and inlisting in another company. The Court, on examination, find that the prisoner came and joined his proper company (Captain Bullard's) of his own accord, and from the nature of the offences, are of opinion that the prisoner's leaving one company and joining another, was more the effect of ignorance than design, and therefore order the thirty-three dollars paid him as bounty, to be stopped from his pay by his proper Captain, and paid into the hands of Captain Drew, who inlisted him the second time, and by him to be refunded to the State of New-Hampshire, from whom the bounty was received. The prisoner to be set at liberty.

The General confirms the above sentences, and orders them to take place immediately.

The General Court-Martial, of which Lieutenant-Colonel Brown was President, is dissolved.

Head-Quarters, September 15, 1776.

(Parole, Williamsburg.)

(Countersign, Virginia.)

General St. Clair's and General Bricket's Brigades are to mount the following guards to-morrow morning, at the usual time of guard mounting, viz:

In the French lines, one Captain, three Subs, three Sergeants, three Corporals, two Drums, sixty Privates. Of this guard a Subaltern, Sergeant, Corporal, and twenty men, are to be posted on the road advanced of the lines.

For the Redoubt next the French lines, one Sub, one Sergeant, one Corporal, one Drum, twenty-one Privates.

For the Semi-circular Redoubt, one Sub, one Sergeant, one Corporal, one Drum, twenty-one Privates.

For the Jersey Redoubt, one Captain, two Subs, two Sergeants, two Corporals, two Drums, forty Privates.

For the Redoubt to the east of the Jersey Redoubt, one Sub, one Sergeant, one Corporal, one Drum, twenty-one Privates.

For the old French Redoubt, one Sergeant, one Corporal, twelve Privates.

Tents are to be provided by the two Brigades, until proper guard-rooms can be built for the guards above mentioned.

General St. Clair and General Bricket, attended by the Deputy Adjutant-General, will see these guards and the sentries from each properly posted, giving all the necessary orders to the officers. A Field-Officer for the day is likewise to mount daily, who is to go the grand rounds and visiting rounds, and see that the guards are under arms, every morning, half an hour before day, in the redoubts to which they are appointed. A Major of Brigade of the day is likewise to mount with the Field-Officer, who is to parade the guards, and see them marched to their several posts, and afterwards attend the General at Head-Quarters for his orders.

Colonel Brewer will mount an advanced picket guard in the front of his encampment, at sunset, every evening. He is to be very careful in sending out his evening and morning scouts, and having his and Colonel Willard's Regiment under arms every morn before day.

Field-Officer of the day to-morrow, Colonel De Haas; Brigade-Major of the day to-morrow, Brown.

The persons to whom counterfeit money has been passed lately, are to attend the General Court-Martial at Colonel Johnston's tent, to-morrow morning, at nine o'clock, when the offenders are to be tried.

The sentries at the bridge, and on the west side of the French lines, are not to suffer any of the Stockbridge Indians, of Captain Whittlesey's Company, to pass into this encampment without a written pass from Colonel Brewer.

The following promotions are to take place in the Second Pennsylvania Battalion:

Ensign George McCully, Second Lieutenant, vice Lieutenant Chambers, discharged.

Daniel St. Clair, Ensign, vice McCully, promoted.

Sergeant Nath. McMullen, Ensign, vice Parke, discharged.

Sergeant Inglis, Ensign, vice Evans, deceased.

Head-Quarters, September 21, 1776.

(Parole, Adams.)

(Countersign, Lynch.)

In consideration of the troops having been constantly employed in the publick works every day without intermission ever since their arrival at this camp, the General orders all work but that for the equipment of the vessels, gun-carriage makers, and blacksmiths, to cease to-morrow—those shall be indulged hereafter. Divine service to be performed in every brigade at eleven o'clock in the forenoon, when the whole are to attend with their arms and accoutrements in good order.

The following promotions are ordered to take place in Colonel Wigglesworth's Regiment:

Ensign Adams, First Lieutenant, in place of Lieutenant French, advanced.

Adjutant Swart, Second Lieutenant, in place of Second Lieutenant Clark, discharged.

Sergeant Perkins, Ensign, in place of Ensign Adams, advanced.

William Badlam is appointed Quartermaster of the Corps of Artillery in place of Mr. Gardner, advanced.

Field-Officer of the day to-morrow, Colonel Wayne; Brigade-Major of the day, Ryan.

GENERAL GATES TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

September 23, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: Enclosed I send you General Arnold's letter of the 18th, together with the examination of Sergeant Stiles. The General makes no doubt the enemy will soon pay him a visit. I hope not before we get the row-galleys to his assistance. Then succeed or fail, we have done our best. It is a lamentable case that our galleys must wait for cordage and for gun-carriages to be completed. So long ago as the middle of July, I acquainted the Congress that we were necessitated to make all the carriages upon the spot. Surely a supply might have been sent us before this day. To provide against the worst, it will be proper to send all the troops that are below to Lake George and Skenesborough, and to direct the Militia to be every where in readiness to march to us upon the first alarm. The powder, lead, and flints, I wrote for so long ago, is not yet even in part arrived. Pray hurry it up. The moments are precious, and not one of them should be lost. I have said much to Major Livingston, but my hands are too full to write more.

I am, dear General, your affectionate, humble servant,
HORATIO GATES.

To General Schuyler.

Isle-la-Motte, September 18, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: My last was on the 16th instant by Ensign Botsford. The next morning Lieutenant Whitcomb and his party returned from St. John's with two prisoners, Ensign Saunders and a Corporal of the Twenty-Ninth Regiment, who were taken between St. John's and La Prairie. The Ensign says there is a ship on the stocks at St. John's designed to mount twenty guns, nine and twelve pounders, several schooners and small craft, but seems ignorant as to their size and numbers. He says there was talk of their crossing the Lake soon, but in general it was not thought they would cross this fall. Both him and the Corporal seem cautious of giving any information. A Sergeant who was sent with Ensign McCoy, returned the 16th, and says he parted with the Ensign that morning; soon after, he found a canoe on shore, and when paddling off was fired upon by a party of Indians. He apprehends the Ensign has fallen into their hands. Enclosed is his examination.

I am inclined to think, on comparing all accounts, that the enemy will soon have a considerable naval force; the ship, the Ensign says, will be completed in a fortnight, and is to be manned from the navy in the river. I make no doubt of their soon paying us a visit, and I intend first fair wind to come up as high as Isle Valceur, where is a good harbour, and where we shall have the advantage of attacking the enemy in the open Lake, where the row-galleys, as their motion is quick, will give us a great advantage over the enemy; and if they are too many for us we can retire. I believe their army in crossing the Lake depend entirely on the advice they may receive from New-York. I beg that at least one hundred good seamen may be sent me as soon as possible. We have a wretched motley crew in the fleet; the marines the refuse of every regiment, and the seamen few of them ever wet with salt water. We are upwards of one hundred men short of our complement.

Ensign Bush arrived here last night, and brought four beeves, which is all the fresh provision we have received. By him I send up Lieutenant Whitcomb and his prisoners. I could wish to have a six or eight inch howitz, mounted in two or three of the galleys, if they are arrived. They will be of infinitely more service than guns, especially to attack a large vessel. If the grape and chain shot is arrived, I beg it may be sent, with some good slow matches, and three cables and anchors; we have not a spare one in the fleet, and the blowing season is now coming on. There is a small brass royal at Ty, which, with a hundred shells and a gunner, may be very useful to us. I am anxiously waiting to hear the particulars of the affair at New-York; we are told our troops have evacuated Long-Island. This I cannot credit.

I am, with sentiments of respect and esteem, dear General, your affectionate, humble servant,

B. ARNOLD.

To General Gates.

FIFTH SERIES.—VOL. II.

Examination of Sergeant STILES, sent from the Fleet with Ensign McCoy, to reconnoitre, SEPTEMBER 6, 1776.

September 16. Says that on the 9th instant he saw all the tents on Isle-aux-Noix and counted them, about one hundred, and believes there is about one thousand men there. The 12th arrived opposite St. John's, where were a large number tents, which could not well be counted; he imagines about three hundred; when there, he counted thirty-four large birch canoes paddle by him towards Isle-aux-Noix; supposed they contained about six hundred Indians and one regular officer. Saw a schooner at St. John's mounting twelve iron guns, supposes six-pounders. Another schooner lay at the wharf with a foresail bent, which supposed was not completed, and believes she mounts not more than twelve guns; one other vessel on the stocks was planked to the wales; she appeared built in the common form, and something larger than the other two. Two small gondolas were at the wharf, but saw nothing of any rideaux or floating batteries, and believes there was none. Their batteaus appeared twice as large as ours, and carried fifty or sixty men, one of which rowed near by him. Left St. John's the 12th, in company with Ensign McCoy, and parted with him on the 15th, at ten A. M., opposite Hospital Island, where are about twenty tents.

ELI STILES.

Lieutenant WHITCOMB's Journal on his scout.

August 20, 1776. Set out from Ticonderoga with my party and arrived at Crown-Point that day, where I showed my orders to General Arnold, who advised me to wait for the fleet, which was to sail the next day. I staid according to orders, and sent over the river to buy some sauce. My party found a man at one of the inhabitants' houses who they suspected to be an enemy to the cause. Upon their return and information they gave of the person, I went over the next day and brought him to General Arnold. He could give no account of himself, only came up to work. General Arnold told him he would send him to General Gates, and that night set him at liberty. I never knew what became of him since. The winds being contrary, was detained until the 25th, when we set sail and only made two miles. The 26th made Gilliland's Creek; 27th, the winds being high, the gondolas could not lay there, moved off to Button-Mould Bay. I remained there till the 31st; on the same day I went to my party to Gilliland's Creek, and had orders to take two Tories and examine them, which I did, with Captain Alexander, and found them not guilty; 2d September, at evening, left Captain Alexander, and set out with two canoes, and the wind being against us put up on an island near Cumberland Bay; my Ensign was took sick with the ague, so that we could not move him; left two men to take care of him. The fleet passed us while on the island. 4th, at evening, I set out with Wright in a canoe, when we lost our way, the night being dark, and got into a bay; we could not find our way back, but was obliged to stay till morning. Early in the morning we set out, and came in sight of the vessels, when we were at the lower end of the Isle-au-Motte. The wind being so high, we could make way till about ten o'clock. Arrived that day about two o'clock with General Arnold. I took two men out of the vessels and went on shore, where we encamped that night. On the 7th September, early in the morning, set out and arrived opposite the Isle-aux-Noix. The day being wet, and I was taken with the ague, durst not venture to wade the water. On the 8th, was something better; waded over to the bank of the river, and made a discovery of near one thousand men, as I judged, on the Island, but not a vessel or batteau to be seen. Then returned across the water and travelled five miles towards St. John's. I sent one man back to General Arnold, to inform him of it. The 9th, went above two miles, and was then seized with the ague. 10th, only made one mile, the ague being so violent. 11th, travelled seven miles and came to the road, when the ague seized me again. 12th, saw one of the enemy, but being sick, durst not venture to make an attack upon him. The day before I saw three hundred and nineteen Regulars and a small number of Indians, with their baggage pass by to St. John's. 13th, saw seventy-two Indians, armed, returning from St. John's for Montreal. Before they were out of my sight, I saw two persons coming after them; when they came against me, I found them to be the enemy; I immediately stepped out and told them they were my prisoners, and must immediately go to Ticonderoga and see General Gates. They asked me whether I was not a Canadian, as they were sure I was no soldier. I told them soldier or not, they must go with me; and I immediately ordered them to march out of the road; and they then offered me sums of money to let them go. I told them I would not for all the money King George was worth. We marched that night about eight miles. The 14th, marched about twelve miles; 15th, came to the place where the vessels lay when I left them, and found them gone, which surprised the prisoners very much, as we were just out of provisions, and we were greatly afraid of starving. I told them their fleet had most certainly taken ours or drove them off, with an intent to try them. They asked me the strength of our fleet; I told them; they said it was impossible for them to drive us, that our fleet had not gone far. We marched about six miles, and came in sight of a fleet, to a river which we could not pass. The Indians frequently came there to view our vessels, and the ground being so wet in other places we were obliged to lie there that night, and sent off a man to the vessels, who arrived next day about ten o'clock with a batteau—he crossed the river on a small raft. 16th, we immediately went on board the batteau, and in about two hours got to the vessels. 17th, about two o'clock left the vessels in a batteau commanded by one of Colonel Hartley's subs, and went about twenty miles that night. 18th, early in the morning we set off and made Gilliland's Creek; the officer having business there, we remained until the 19th, at twelve o'clock; then set out; the wind being against us, made only twelve miles. 20th, late in the morning we set out and got to Crown Point about three o'clock. 21st, arrived at Ticonderoga.

BENJ. WHITCOMB, Lieutenant.

Abstract of Lieutenant BENJAMIN WHITCOMB's Report.

Lieutenant Whitcomb departed from the fleet, then stationed at Isle-la-Motte on the 7th of September, and reached the Isle-aux-Noix that day, when he was seized with the fever and ague, several fits of which were very troublesome to him during his scout. He observed about one thousand men encamped on Isle-aux-Noix, but neither a vessel nor a batteau; and he sent one of his men to inform General Arnold of that circumstance. On the 13th, being concealed near the road between St. John's and La Prairie, he saw seventy-two armed Indians going from St. John's to Montreal; and before they were out of sight, two men coming after them. He then sallied out, told these they were his prisoners, that they must go to Ticonderoga and see General Gates. Lieutenant Whitcomb and two men he had with him, being designedly dressed in such manner that they could not be supposed military men, one of the prisoners (who afterwards declared himself to be Ensign Saunders, of the Twenty-Ninth Regiment) asked him whether he were not a Canadian, as he was assured he (the Lieutenant) was not a soldier. The Lieutenant answered him, "soldier or no soldier, you must go with me," and immediately ordered the Ensign and his companion, a Corporal of the same regiment, to march out of the road. They then offered him a sum of money to let them go; but he told them he "would not for all the money King George was worth." They all marched on, and the Lieutenant, notwithstanding the ague, as well as the scouting parties of the enemy to intercept ours and apprehend their deserters, safely brought his two prisoners to the place where he left the fleet, which he could not see; at which, with an intent to try his prisoners, who were extremely reserved, he feigned to be much alarmed. As the Lieutenant had no more provisions left, the prisoners who were already much fatigued and tired of sharing with the Lieutenant the allowance of a small bit of biscuit and raw pork, and lying in swamps, were exceedingly afraid of being compelled to undergo a tedious march through the woods, and be exposed to the danger of starving. On his telling the prisoners that the enemy must certainly have taken our fleet or driven them off, they answered it was impossible, encouraged Mr. Whitcomb to go on and look for our fleet, which they assured could not be far off. And indeed, it was so, as the Lieutenant himself had judged, no uncommon firing having been heard by him or his party. The fleet was not above six miles off, and he saw several Indians come near to them to view our vessels, and observe their motions. He sent off to General Arnold one of his men, who having returned on the next day morning, with a batteau, favoured them with an opportunity to join the fleet on the 17th, after having crossed the river on a small raft.

GENERAL GATES TO GENERAL ARNOLD.

Tyonderoga, September 23, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: Yesterday evening I received your letter of the 18th instant, from Isle-la-Motte, with the examination of Sergeant Stiles enclosed. Lieutenant Whitcomb and his prisoners also arrived at the same time. This morning I despatched your letter, the examination, and the prisoners, to General Schuyler, under the care of Major Livingston, his aid-de-camp, who came Friday from Albany. I also wrote to the General, pressing him in the most earnest manner, to forward every necessary succour, both of men and materials.

Believe me, dear sir, no man alive could be more anxious for the welfare of you and your fleet, than General Waterbury and myself: we are, early and late, labouring to get the galleys to your assistance; one will sail Thursday at farthest, and the two others, we hope, on Saturday. It is the blacksmith's work that has delayed us so much, notwithstanding we have got more forges, and although, with different gangs of men, they are worked night and day.

Enclosed are the two latest newspapers that have come to hand. Major Livingston brought us word that Lord Howe had requested a meeting with a Committee from Congress at Amboy, in the Jerseys, and that in consequence, Messrs. Franklin, J. Adams, and Rutledge, were commissioned to attend his Lordship there. Not one syllable more of news transpires from New-York. This goes by a Sergeant, whom General Waterbury sends with some provisions and the things you demanded.

I am, &c.,

HO. GATES.

To General Arnold.

M. CHRISTOPHER PELISSIER, ENGINEER, TO GEN. GATES.

Tyonderoga, 7bre 23, 1776.

MONSIEUR: Ayant été informé ce matin, par Mons. Clayon, que vous désireriez connoître ma façon de penser au sujet des partis que l'on pourroit tirer des fortifications nouvellement faites icy, et des travaux les plus essentiels que l'on pourroit y ajouter en huit ou dix jours, ayant égard aux tems et aux circonstances: mon opinion seroit d'établir, à quatre-vingt toises de distance des lignes des Français, un glacis, et de remplir l'intervalle qu'il y a entre luy et le fossé d'un plus grand nombre des branches qu'il n'y en a. Avec une telle disposition, l'ennemi ne pourroit point attaquer les lignes avec du canon, à moins qu'il n'en fût le siege, ce qui prendroit du tems. Si l'on donnoit dix-huit pieds de large au banquette, on pourroit, au moyen de cinq ou six coulisses portalire, battre avec du canon par-dessus le parapet, et enfler les colonnes par tout où elles se presenteroient. Une fascine d'épine qui borderoit le bord extérieur du parapet, ne seroit pas inutile.

Il seroit bon aussi qu'il y eût un chemin couvert, pour communiquer, sac l'aile droite d'une redoute à l'autre, celle du General Briquet non comprise.

J'ay l'honneur d'être très respectueusement, Monsieur, votre très humble et très obeissant serviteur,

PELISSIER.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM TICONDEROGA, DATED SEPTEMBER 23, 1776.

Our sick decrease fast, and the army is in high spirits, but whether we shall have the pleasure of giving Burgoyne a rap upon his knuckles is uncertain, as at present he does not seem disposed to come this way. A Sergeant, who deserted from the British army at Point-aux-Trembles, between Montreal and Sorel, the 31st of August last, says, that Colonel Maclean's regiment was quartered at Point-aux-Trembles. Twelve hundred foreigners are at Quebeck; all the Thirty-Fourth at Montreal, except two companies with Colonel Johnson and his Indians at Le Chien. That he heard the officers compute their army at seven thousand, in which were the Ninth, Twentieth, Twenty-First, Twenty-Fourth, Twenty-Ninth, Thirty-First, Thirty-Fourth, and Forty-Ninth, and the Germans. There are none of the Canadians in the King of England's service; but they are in a worse situation than the children of Israel in Egypt, for the Regulars have robbed them of every necessary of life, and now compel them to work without any prospect of reward. They universally wish we were in possession of their country again, declaring their eyes are now fully opened. That Burgoyne had a few gondolas, two sloops, and a floating battery, building at St. John's. That he frequently heard it said, they were to cross the Lake to Crown-Point, as soon as their naval preparations were perfected. That the troops in general were very sickly, the foreigners in particular being afflicted with the fever and flux. And that fifty of the soldiers had signed an agreement to desert together; but being betrayed by one of their accomplices, some of them were condemned to be sent to Senegal, and there to serve during life.

MR. WATSON: You have for a long time published a number in your paper as enemies to the publick. Their obstinacy is a demonstration of the insignificance of such a mode of punishment, or that their neighbours are greatly to blame in not breaking off connection with them agreeable to the resolves of Congress. I never had, indeed, a very exalted opinion of the efficacy of such publications—they might answer in early times, and be sufficient to reclaim such as were honestly under a delusion; but the Tories at this day require other means of conviction, or rather, they sin with their eyes open, and don't mean to be convinced. The application of the halter and the gibbet, I conceive, is the only remedy that can with safety be relied on at present. Newgate, indeed, under proper regulations, might be a proper receptacle for such, if there be any such as have not merited the gallows. But, be that as it may, it is a pity, Mr. Printer, that your paper should be eternally polluted with the hateful names of this stinking race.

JUSTICE.

The Printer returns his thanks to the above writer for the hints he has given, and shall leave out of his paper the names of this sort of gentry for the future.

WILLIAM BRADFORD TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

State of Rhode-Island, &c., Bristol, }
September 23, 1776. }

SIR: Having seen in the publick papers that your Excellency and the British Admiral have agreed upon an exchange of prisoners in the naval department, I beg leave to apply to you in behalf of a mate of a vessel and four seamen, all belonging to Warwick, in this State, some of whom are connected with very reputable families. They were all taken in the merchant's service, and are prisoners on board one of the ships of war now in the Sound. We have a mate of a merchant ship, and four seamen, who were taken in a transport with part of one of the Highland regiments, to give for them.

I request your Excellency's directions as soon as may be, whether we shall send the prisoners directly to you, or how I shall proceed to procure the exchange, which will very much oblige many worthy people here.

I am, with great esteem and respect, your Excellency's most obedient and most humble servant,

WILLIAM BRADFORD, Deputy Governour.

To His Excellency George Washington, Esq., General and Commander-in-Chief of the Forces of the United States of America, New-York.

Newport, September 23, 1776.

Last Monday a ship and a brig, taken by the Montgomery, went up the east passage. On Wednesday a large ship, taken by the General Greene, and a Baltimore schooner and a brig, taken by the Revenge, got safe into a neighbouring port. On Friday another ship, taken by Captain Munro, went up the bay; and the same night another brig, taken by the Revenge, passed the east passage. All the above are valuable prizes. That taken by the General Greene, &c., is three hundred and ten tons, loaded with three hundred and seventy-two hogsheads of sugar, eighty-two puncheons of rum, thirty-six pipes and four hogsheads of Madeira wine, and eighteen hundred weight of copper.

Newport, September 23, 1776.

Last Thursday arrived here Mr. Joseph Kinyon and Mr. William Clarke, who were two of the men made prisoners at the attack on Quebeck. On the 16th of June, they, with eight more, were taken out of prison to go on a fishing voyage to Gaspee, which place Kinyon and Clarke, with four others, left in a boat the 5th of August, and got to Casco Bay, from whence they travelled by land. As they came along they lodged at Newburyport, where they were informed that a number of prisoners who had been taken in prizes, had been paid their wages, &c., and allowed a vessel to go home in, but went immediately to Halifax, and that another set were then about purchasing another vessel for the same purpose.

It is reported that General Arnold has lately destroyed most of the enemy's boats at the north end of Lake Champlain, and made prisoners six hundred English, Scotch, and Hessian soldiers, on a small island in the Lake.

JAMES BOWDOIN TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read October 5. Referred to the Marine Committee.]

Boston, September 23, 1776.

SIR: I have the honour to transmit to Congress the enclosed resolve of the General Court, passed the 18th instant, relative to the fitting for the sea the Continental frigate Hancock, of thirty-two guns, now at Newburyport.

If this frigate, with the other at the same port, could be expeditiously fitted out, it is very probable several of the enemy cruisers, which have much infested our coast, would be soon brought in and made a valuable addition to the naval strength of the United States.

You will please to lay the said resolve before the honourable Congress, whose speedy determination corresponding with the resolve may be attended with many happy consequences. In the mean time every aid in our power will be given to the Continental agent for getting the said frigates in readiness with the utmost expedition.

In the name of the Council of the State of Massachusetts-Bay, I am, with great respect, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

JAMES BOWDOIN.

To the honourable the President of Congress.

P. S. Agreeable to the resolve of our General Court, copy of which has been sent to you, one-fifth part of our Militia, under the command of Major-General Lincoln, are getting ready to march with all possible expedition. By a return from the County of Worcester, near one thousand men, in two regiments, are now on their march from that County.

We should be glad to have some particular and authenticated account of the late actions at Long-Island and New-York. If any such has been collected, be so good as to favour us with it.

In the House of Representatives, September 18, 1776.

Resolved, That this State will furnish the agent for building the Continental ships at Newburyport with a sufficient number of guns, provided they can be obtained by purchase or otherways, for the Continental frigate called the Hancock, John Manley Commander, and which ship is built to carry thirty-two guns, and will afford him every other assistance possible for fitting out and manning said ship. And the Honourable Richard Derby, Esq., is appointed agent in behalf of this Colony for the purposes aforesaid, provided leave can be obtained from the honourable Congress for said vessel to cruise on this coast for the protection of the trade thereof; the said Continental agents engaging to reimburse all the expenses this State shall incur in fitting out and manning said ship; and return said guns whenever said ship shall be otherways employed, it being of great importance that there should be a sufficient number of armed vessels fixed for sea, effectually to free this coast from the enemy's armed vessels now infesting of it.

In Council, September 18, 1776. Sent up for concurrence.

J. WARREN, Speaker,

SAMUEL ADAMS, Secretary.

Consented to by the major part of the Council.

Attest: JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

GENERAL WARREN TO MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL.

Plymouth, September 23, 1776

SIR: Captain Samson, the bearer of this, waits on the honourable Council for their orders for his next cruise. I beg leave to mention to them that the confining the vessels belonging to this State to such narrow limits is very discouraging to all employed in service, and occasions them to wish themselves at liberty to enter into private service. They see these successful, taking many prizes, while they, by this confinement, have not a bare chance of meeting with any, and such only as uncommon accidents of wind and weather may put out of their way, and force into the limits you have assigned these vessels. I don't pretend to judge of the policy of this measure; but it seems to me it must produce bad effects in the end. It not only prevents the State from receiving great emoluments from captures, but will soon make it the least eligible of any service, and we shall find it very difficult to man them, or to keep the men when obtained.

Captain Samson, in his last cruise, took one Gideon White, Jun., who is now in the gaol here, by order of the Committee of this town. Since this a privateer, Captain Paine commander, has brought in Benjamin Marston, Esq., of Marblehead, taken in a schooner from the West-Indies, bound to Halifax. These were both refugees to Boston, and, I conceive, very dangerous men. Both have friends here, very subtle and very inimical. I think, therefore, they cannot be so secure here as they ought to be, and that it would be best to order them to some internal country, there to be properly secured.

I hope the Council will excuse these suggestions, as I really think them calculated to promote the publick good; and am, with great respect, your most obedient, humble servant,

J. WARREN.

To Hon. James Bowdoin, Esq.

CAPTAIN COOKE TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Off Point Look-Out, September 24, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I honoured myself by writing you by the Amelia tender. At that time was in hopes of having a fine night and good run down the bay. At ten, p. m., the wind came round to the eastward; the night had all the appearance of a gale rising. I thought it prudent to have the ship brought to anchor under Point Look-Out. And this morning early, when hove 'bout, the small bower cable parted near the anchor. We got the pilot-boat to the buoy rope, when a strain bore on it, parted the buoy rope at the crown of the anchor. The wind blowing a fresh gale at northwest puts it out of our power to get the anchor at this time. We have left a watch buoy at the place, and set several places for finding it some other time. Mr. Middleton will have the marks, and know the place where the anchor lies.

At ten, a. m., I purpose going down to Gwynn's Island, as I'm informed, by some gentlemen on board, of sundry anchors being there, and propose getting one.

I have the honour to be, gentlemen, your most obedient and humble servant,

GEORGE COOKE.

To the honourable Council of Safety, Annapolis.

CAPTAIN COOKE TO COMMODORE BOUCHER.

Ship Defence, September 24, 1776.

SIR: Unluckily, this morning, our small bower cable parted near the anchor. I endeavoured to weigh it by the buoy rope; that also parted at the crown of the anchor. I have left a watch buoy near the place. I am afraid it will intrude on you too far to ask your kindness. Should it be calm, will you please suffer some of your boats to endeavour to get the anchor, for the good of the service? It will so far suffice, that on seeing the buoy that is to show where our anchor lies.

I am, sir, with esteem, your most humble servant,

GEORGE COOKE.

To Commodore Boucher, of the Congress; or Captain Brook, of the Liberty.

CAPTAIN COOKE TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Abreast New Point Comfort, September 24, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I wrote you this morning, favoured by Commodore Boucher, acquainting you of the loss of our small bower, and my intention of going to Gwynn's Island, to get an anchor. We hauled up for the place, but the gale at northeast increasing, the pilot thought we could not fetch into smooth water. I then bore away, and hope to be at sea by ten o'clock at night, where I make no doubt but to provide the ship with as good an anchor as the one lost.

Our ship's company is all in high spirits; and am in hopes we shall be able to let you hear from us often, by prize from time to time.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

GEORGE COOKE.

To the honourable Council of Safety.

THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia, September 24, 1776.

SIR: You will perceive by the enclosed resolves of Congress, which I have the honour to forward, that they have come to the determination to augment our army, and to engage the troops to serve during the continuance of the war. As an inducement to enlist on these terms, the Congress have agreed to give, besides a bounty of twenty dollars, a hundred acres of land to each soldier; and in case he should lose his life in battle, they have resolved that his children, or other representatives, shall succeed to such grant.

It is unnecessary to repeat to you the numberless ill consequences resulting from the limited enlistment of troops. The untimely death of General Montgomery, alone, independent of other arguments, is a striking proof of the danger and impropriety of sending troops into the field under any restriction as to the time of their service. The noblest enterprise may be left unfinished by soldiers in such a predicament, or abandoned the very moment success must have crowned the attempt. Your own experience has long since convinced you that, without a well-disciplined army, we cannot rationally expect success against veteran troops, and that it is totally impossible we should ever have a well-disciplined army, unless our troops are engaged to serve during the war. The Congress, therefore, impressed with these and other reasons, and fully convinced that our Militia is inadequate to the duty expected of them, have adopted the enclosed resolves, which, I am persuaded, will afford you pleasure, as the only means left to defend our country in its present critical situation.

I have wrote to all the States, and forwarded a copy of the printed resolves herewith transmitted, and urged them, in the most pressing language, to comply, in the fullest manner, with the requisition of Congress.

As the troops now in service belonging to the several States will be considered as part of their quota in the American army, it will be necessary to ascertain what number of the troops, as well as what officers, will engage to serve during the war. For this purpose I have wrote to the States, and forwarded blank commissions for all such officers and others whom they shall appoint agreeably to the enclosed resolves.

The articles of war, as first adopted by Congress, being exploded, I send you sundry copies of those which they have instituted in their room. I enclose you, also, sundry other resolves, to which I beg leave to request your attention.

As the Committee of Congress will confer with you on the state of the army, to them I beg leave to refer you; and am, with every sentiment of esteem and respect, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To His Excellency General Washington.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO THE ASSEMBLIES OF THE SEVERAL STATES.

Philadelphia, September 24, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: You will perceive by the enclosed resolves, which I have the honour to forward in obedience to the commands of Congress, that they have come to a determination to augment our army, and to engage the troops to serve during the continuance of the war. As an inducement to enlist on these terms, the Congress have agreed to give, besides a bounty of twenty dollars, a hundred acres of land to each soldier; and in case he should fall in battle, they have resolved that his children, or other representatives, shall succeed to such land.

The many ill consequences arising from a short and limited enlistment of troops, are too obvious to be mentioned. In general, give me leave to observe, that to make men well acquainted with the duties of a soldier, requires time; and to bring them under proper subordination and discipline, not only requires time, but has always been a work of much difficulty. We have had frequent experience that men of a few days' standing will not look forward, but as the time of their discharge approaches grow careless of their arms, ammunition, &c., and impatient of all restraint; the consequence of which is, the latter part of the time for which the soldier was engaged is spent in undoing what the greatest pains had been taken to inculcate at first. Need I add to this, that the fall of the late General Montgomery before Quebeck, is undoubtedly to be ascribed to the limited time for which the troops were engaged, whose impatience to return home compelled him to make the attack contrary to the conviction of his own judgment? This fact alone furnishes a striking argument of the danger and impropriety of sending troops into the field under any restriction as to the time of their enlistment. The noblest enterprise may be left unfinished by troops in such a predicament, or abandoned at the very moment success would have crowned the attempt.

The heavy and enormous expense consequent upon calling forth the Militia, the delay attending their motions, and the difficulty of keeping them in camp, render it extremely improper to place our whole dependence upon them. Experience hath uniformly convinced us of this, some of the Militia having deserted the camp at the very moment their services were most wanted. In the mean time, the strength of the British army, which is great, is rendered much more formidable by the superiour order and regularity which prevail in it. Under these circumstances, and in the situation of our affairs, it is evident that the only means left us of preserving our liberties is the measure which the Congress have now adopted, and which I am ordered most earnestly to recommend to you to carry into immediate effect. Without a well-disciplined army, we can never expect success against veteran troops; and it is totally impossible we should ever have a well-disciplined army without our troops are engaged to serve during the war. To attain, therefore, this most desirable end, I am to request you will at once, and without a moment's delay, bend all your attention to raise your quota of the American army.

The times call for the greatest despatch and vigour of conduct. When the bloody standard of tyranny is erected in a land of liberty, no good man, no friend to his country, can possibly remain an inactive spectator of her fall. Display, therefore, I most ardently entreat you, that virtue which can alone save her on this occasion. Let us convince our enemies that as we entered into the present contest for the defence of our liberties, so we are resolved, with the firmest reliance on Heaven for the justice of our cause, never to relinquish it, but rather to perish in the ruins of it. If we do but remain firm, if we are not dismayed at the little shocks of fortune, and are determined at all hazards that we will be free, I am persuaded, under the gracious smiles of Providence, assisted by our own most strenuous endeavours, we shall finally succeed agreeably to our wishes, and thereby establish the independence, the happiness, and the glory of the United States of America.

As the troops now in service belonging to the several States will be considered as part of their quota in the American army, you will please to take such steps as you judge necessary to ascertain what number of the troops, as well as what officers, will engage to serve during the war. I send by this express blank commissions, to be filled with such as you shall please to appoint. I also forward a number of the rules and articles of war, as altered by Congress and just published.

I have the honour to be, gentlemen, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To the Honourable Assembly of New-Hampshire.

BENJAMIN MARSHALL AND BROTHERS TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read September 24, 1776. Referred to the Marine Committee, to take into consideration on Wednesday, October 25, 1776.]

Philadelphia, September 24, 1776.

In January, 1775, the subscribers, by orders from London, exported a cargo of flour, wax, staves, &c., to Terceira, one of the Western Islands. The vessel in which they were shipped belonged to us, was purchased at the island aforesaid, and payment made in bills of exchange on London, one of which, to the value of £800 currency, was returned protested for non-payment in March last; since which, have had no opportunity to send it for recovery; therefore, are under the necessity, as the only probable means of saving it, to purchase a small vessel. But lest any thing should prevent our recovering it, the expenses of the voyage would be considerable, and as pipe-staves are an article in demand there and small value here, and less detrimental to the state of the Colonies than flour, should she be unhappily taken by our enemy, induces us to request the honourable Continental Congress to grant us liberty to export pipe-staves, any quantity not exceeding twenty thousand, which indulgence will be esteemed as a favour conferred on your friends,

BENJ. MARSHALL & BROTHERS.

To the Hon. John Hancock, Esquire.

BENJAMIN FISHBOURN TO RICHARD PETERS.

Philadelphia, September 24, 1776.

SIR: I understand a Paymaster is wanted for Colonel Wood's battalion, (late Colonel St. Clair's.) now at Ticonderoga. If the honourable Board of War will please to favour me with that appointment, they may depend I will exert myself to discharge the trust with care and fidelity.

I have the honour to be, with great respect, sir, your obedient servant,

BENJ. FISHBOURN.

To Richard Peters, Esq., Secretary at War.

LANCASTER, PENNSYLVANIA, COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Committee of Observation and Inspection at the house of Adam Reigart, the 24th September, 1776, Present: William Atlee, Edward Shippen, Adam Reigart, Jacob Klatz, Christopher Graffort, George Moore, Henry Dehuff. William Atlee in the chair.

A Letter from the Council of Safety, dated the 18th instant, was read in Committee, mentioning that the Board of War some time since sent them a Resolve, requesting an exact account of the number of State Prisoners confined in the State of Pennsylvania, with their rank or station in the Army, the time of their being taken, and the particular circumstances attending their situation, &c.; and therefore requesting this Committee immediately to furnish them with a particular account of all the Prisoners in this County, that they may be enabled to furnish the Board of War with the said account, agreeable to their resolves.

The Committee, taking the said Letter into consideration, direct that the Sergeant-Majors of the Seventh and Twenty-Sixth Regiments be immediately sent for, and directed to furnish this Committee with lists of the Prisoners of their respective Regiments, who have from time to time been brought to this place.

Mr. Hugh appears in Committee, and requests that the Accounts which he left with the Committee against the Officers who made their escape from Lebanon, may be delivered up to him, as he says he has a prospect of getting his Moneys; and it is ordered that Mr. Atlee deliver them to him, taking his receipt for them.

Ann Brown having been convicted of stealing sundry goods at Mr. Slough's Mill, and the goods being returned to the owner, and the said Ann Brown being far gone with child, and the gaoler being apprehensive of her being soon delivered there, it is the sentiments of the Committee that she be discharged and sent out of town.

Rebecca Williams having been confined on suspicion of stealing goods from ———, being also in the same situation, and the winter approaching, it is also the sentiments of the Committee that she be discharged and sent out of town.

ADDRESS OF NEW-JERSEY ASSEMBLY TO THE GOVERNOUR.

To His Excellency WILLIAM LIVINGSTON, Esq., Governour, Captain-General, and Commander-in-Chief in and over the State of NEW-JERSEY and Territories thereunto belonging, Chancellor and Ordinary in the same:

The Address of the Assembly of the said State.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY: Whilst we anticipate the blessings of a Government founded on freedom, having for its sole object the happiness of the people, it affords the most pleasing reflection that all our measures for attaining that great end are strongly marked with deliberation and firmness, and will bear the strictest scrutiny of reason and conscience. To those disposed to trace the hand of approving Heaven in our deliverance from the galling yoke of slavery, the unparalleled unanimity of the American States in resisting the encroachments of despotism, and refusing the insidious offers of precarious peace—the rejection of our petitions, though fraught with unrefuted reasoning and clear demonstration, joined to the infatuated policy of our enemy and the success of our arms, afford the most unequivocal marks of Providential agency; whilst our willingness even to relinquish some of our indubitable rights for the sake of peace—our patience under repeated injuries and insults—the declaration of our rights and consequent independence, long delayed—plainly evince to the impartial world our aversion to shedding human blood. But compelled by the insatiate plunderers of the East to assert our freedom, we have burst the bands of political slavery, and arisen into a life of liberty. Thus situate, we cannot evince more fully to the world the purity of our intentions and our sense of the value of our purchase, than by placing in the most conspicuous points of view those gentlemen who have taken an early and decisive part in our glorious struggle for freedom.

Our conviction of the rectitude of your Excellency's intentions stands confessed by your appointment to the office of Chief Magistrate of this free State. But, whilst we feel our own inadequacy to the business assigned us by our country, we must acknowledge, with your Excellency, that your task is arduous indeed, and entreat you to look up with us to the indulgent Parent of the universe, who, when the end proposed is stamped with his approbation, can make the abilities keep pace with the will.

Convinced, with your Excellency, of the necessity of a well-regulated Militia for the defence of a free State, and of their being duly paid for their service, our earliest attention shall be given to that most important business; and permit us, sir, to assure you, that, whilst we have aught to bestow, the voice of murmuring for services unpaid, or merit unrewarded, shall not be heard in this State.

If, in fixing the seat of Government according to the local circumstances and convenience of the various parts of this State, we should appoint a place agreeable to your Excellency, it will double our satisfaction. The law mentioned, and such other salutary regulations as may occur to your Excellency during this session, when communicated to us, shall meet with all due attention.

Your obliging mention of the importance of the station in which the uncorrupted voice of our constituents hath placed us, demands our acknowledgments, and will, we hope, spirit us to such exertions in our duty, as may redound to the benefit of the State. And we assure you, with sincerity, that, laying aside all private attachments and resentment, it shall be our study to cultivate that harmony between the branches of the Legislature, that spirit of economy, industry, and patriotism, so justly recommended, and so essential to the publick welfare; and that whilst our Heaven-directed Generals and Soldiers, with an ardour peculiar to freemen, brave the dangers of well-fought fields against the lawless sons of rapine and plunder, ours shall be the important task, in conjunction with your Excellency and the honourable Council, to give our cool deliberations and useful resolves the most unambiguous marks of that spirit which ought to animate a Senate of freemen.

We hope that no situation in life can make us lose sight of that evident truth, so loudly proclaimed in the historic page, that dissoluteness of manners and political corruption are inseparable companions in the destruction of kingdoms, whilst the concurring testimony of the inspired penman will enforce on the most obdurate heart, that "Righteousness exalteth a nation, but that sin is a reproach to any people." Determined to employ the talents given, in procuring and transmitting inviolate to posterity the fair inheritance of civil and religious liberty, though bought at the price of life, we will look for the permanency and stability of our new government to Him who bringeth Princes to nothing, and teacheth Senators wisdom.

By order of the House: JOHN HART, Speaker.

House of Assembly, September 24, 1776.

To which His Excellency was pleased to make the following Reply:

GENTLEMEN: Your kind and affectionate address deserves my cordial thanks; and I feel myself most agreeably affected with your obliging assurances of paying all due attention to the laws and regulations recommended to your consideration.

I heartily participate with you in the pleasure of tracing that conspicuous Providential agency which has hitherto frustrated the sanguinary purposes of our enemies; and which, that is not more generally and devoutly acknowledged, is greatly to be deplored. But while with pious gratitude we survey the frequent interpositions of Heaven in our behalf, we ought to remember that as the disbelief of an overruling Providence is atheism, so an absolute confidence of having our deliverance wrought out by the more immediate hand of God, without our own exertions, is the most culpable presumption. Let us, therefore, inflexibly persevere in exerting our most strenuous efforts in an humble and rational dependence on the great Governour of the world, and we have the fairest prospect of surmounting all our difficulties, and of seeing our merciless oppressors involved in that destruction which they have so long been meditating for others.

SIR WILLIAM HOWE TO LORD GEORGE GERMAIN.

Head-Quarters, York-Island, September 24, 1776.

MY LORD: After waiting two days for a favourable wind to move the ships of war up to the batteries upon Paulus Hook, it was effected yesterday at noon, and the troops landed and took possession of the works without the least resistance, the enemy having abandoned their batteries and redoubts upon the approach of his Majesty's ship Roebuck, and two frigates.

I have the honour to be, &c.,

W. HOWE.

SAMUEL CLEVELAND,

Brigadier-General commanding Royal Artillery.

GOVERNOUR TRYON TO LORD GEORGE GERMAIN.

New-York, September 24, 1776.

MY LORD: On the 21st instant, Lieutenant-Governour Colden departed this life at Flushing. This makes a vacancy in the Council. The following is the present state of the remaining eleven: Mr. Chief-Justice Horsemanden, very old and feeble; Mr. Oliver De Lancey, Mr. Charles Ward Apthorp, Mr. Axtell, and Mr. Henry Cruger, at liberty to attend the summons of Government. Mr. William Smith withdrawn to his plantation up the North River, and not been heard of these five months; Mr. Hugh Wallace and Mr. James Jauncey, prisoners with the Rebels; Mr. John Watts, Colonel Morris, and Mr. Henry White, in England.

By this state, your Lordship will observe I have but five Councillors I can summons, and Judge Horsemanden's infirmities will probably prevent his attendance; therefore your Lordship will view the necessity I shall be under of appointing other Councillors, if the gentlemen in England do not return to take a share in the reestablishment of Government, or that those in captivity are released.

Mr. Thomas Jones, one of the Judges of the Supreme Court, and Mr. David Matthews, Mayor of the City of New-York, with many other gentlemen of the country, are in the hands of the Rebels.

I am, with all possible respect, my Lord, your Lordship's most obedient, humble servant,
WM. TRYON.

To Lord George Germain.

GOVERNOUR TRYON TO LORD GEORGE GERMAIN.

New-York, September 24, 1776.

MY LORD: At the same time that I have the happiness to acquaint your Lordship that on the 15th instant, General Howe, with the forces under his command, by admirable skill, spirit, and conduct, made himself master of the City of New-York, and one-half of the Island, it grieves me to inform you that on the 21st, about two in the morning, the western part of the town was set on fire by a number of incendiaries, and which raged with such violence as destroyed, it is thought, one-fourth part of the city, before the flames could be extinguished. Many of the incendiaries are now in confinement, and two or three were killed as they were detected in their hellish design. Many circumstances lead to conjecture that Mr. Washington was privy to this villainous act, as he sent all the bells of the churches out of town, under pretence of casting them into cannon; whereas, it is much more probable to prevent the alarm being given by ringing of the bells before the fire should get ahead beyond the reach of engines and buckets; besides, some officers of his army were found concealed in the city, supposed for this devilish purpose. The town was thought to be saved more by a sudden change in the wind (which blew strong) and pulling down intermediate houses, than by water. It is afflicting to view the wretched and miserable inhabitants who have lost their all, and numbers of reputable shop-keepers that are reduced to beggary, and many in want for their families of the necessaries of life. The fire broke out in sundry places nearly at the same time, but was first discovered at Whitehall stairs, and has burnt the whole body of the buildings that lies between George street and Broad street, as high up as the City Hall, and all the buildings on the north of Fort George, lying between the North River and Great George street, as far up as King's College, excepting a few houses and St. Paul's Church; and almost all the houses on the church estate, with Trinity Church, are totally consumed. It really seems the conflagration was directed against the interest of the church. The ship-docks, warehouses, and the commercial part of the city is as yet safe, and every measure pursued by General Robertson, commanding officer in New-York, assisted by myself, to establish such regulations and police as may ensure its future security. I was at Flatbush, at Mr. Axtell's, four miles from the city, for the recovery of my health and strength, when this dreadful event befell this devoted city.

As this country is in the present period too much convulsed for the civil Government to act with any good effect, it is the opinion of both his Majesty's Commissioners for restoring peace to the Colonies, that I should postpone any executive acts of Government, until the Province is more liberated from the control of the Rebels. I therefore have kept the executive powers of civil Government dormant, leaving every thing to the direction of the military; never ceasing, however, to throw every information I can procure to the General and Admiral, as it may concern them, and to exhort and recommend to the inhabitants the proper line for their duty and interest.

General Oliver De Lancey, under General Howe's orders, is endeavouring to raise a brigade of fifteen hundred men for the defence of Long-Island, and Major Rogers a corps of Provincials for the war generally.

The two New-York companies, under the Captains Campbell and Grant, have acquitted themselves in action so honourably as to obtain the General's thanks, transmitted to them in publick orders.

I am, with all possible respect, my Lord, your Lordship's most obedient and most humble servant,

WM. TRYON.

To Lord George Germain.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read September 25, 1776.]

Head-Quarters, Heights of Harlem, September 24, 1776.

SIR: The post being about to depart, I have only time to add that no event of importance has taken place on this side Hudson's River since my last, of the 22d instant.

The enclosed letter received last night from General Greene, who now commands in the Jerseys, will give Congress all the information I have respecting the evacuation of Powles Hook, and the landing of the enemy to possess it.

I this minute obtained a copy of the general return of our force, the first I have been able to procure for some time past, which I do myself the honour of transmitting for the satisfaction of Congress.

I am, sir, with the greatest respect, your most obedient servant,

GO. WASHINGTON.

P. S. The thirteen Militia regiments from Connecticut being reduced to a little more than seven hundred men rank and file fit for duty, I have thought proper to discharge the whole, to save the States the immense charge that would arise for officers' pay. There are, too, many Militia that have just come in, and on their way from that State, none of which are provided with a tent or a single camp utensil. This distresses me beyond measure.

Camp Fort Constitution, September 23, 1776.

DEAR SIR: The enemy are landed at Powley's Hook;

they came up this afternoon and began a cannonade on the batteries, and after cannonading for half an hour or a little more, they landed a party from the ships. General Mercer had ordered off from the Hook all the troops except a small guard, who had orders to evacuate the place from the first approach of the enemy. General Mercer mentions no troops but those landed from the ships; but Colonel Bull, and many others that were along the river upon the heights, saw twenty boats go over from York to Powley's Hook. This movement must have happened since General Mercer wrote. I purpose to visit Bergen to-night, as General Mercer thinks of going to his post at Amboy to-morrow. I purpose to detain him one day longer.

I am, with due respect, your Excellency's obedient servant,
N. GREENE.

To His Excellency General Washington.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read 27th. Referred to Mr. Wythe, Mr. Hopkins, Mr. Rutledge, Mr. J. Adams, and Mr. Stone.]

Colonel Morris's, on the Heights of Harlem, }
September 24, 1776. }

SIR: From the hours allotted to sleep I will borrow a few moments to convey my thoughts on sundry important matters to Congress. I shall offer them with that sincerity which ought to characterize a man of candour, and with the freedom which may be used in giving useful information without incurring the imputation of presumption.

We are now, as it were, upon the eve of another dissolution of our army. The remembrance of the difficulties which happened upon that occasion last year, the consequences which might have followed the change if proper advantages had been taken by the enemy, added to a knowledge of the present temper and situation of the troops, reflect but a very gloomy prospect upon the appearance of things now, and satisfy me beyond the possibility of a doubt, that unless some speedy and effectual measures are adopted by Congress our cause will be lost.

It is in vain to expect, that any or more than a trifling part of this army will again engage in the service on the encouragement offered by Congress. When men find that their townsmen and companions are receiving twenty, thirty, and more dollars for a few months' service, which is truly the case, it cannot be expected, without using compulsion; and to force them into the service would answer no valuable purpose. When men are irritated, and their passions inflamed, they fly hastily and cheerfully to arms; but after the first emotions are over, to expect among such people as compose the bulk of an army, that they are influenced by any other principles than those of interest, is to look for what never did, and I fear never will happen; the Congress will deceive themselves, therefore, if they expect it. A soldier, reasoned with upon the goodness of the cause he is engaged in, and the inestimable rights he is contending for, hears you with patience, and acknowledges the truth of your observations, but adds that it is of no more importance to him than others. The officer makes you the same reply, with this further remark, that his pay will not support him, and he cannot ruin himself and family to serve his country, when every member of the community is equally interested, and benefited by his labours. The few, therefore, who act upon principles of disinterestedness are, comparatively speaking, no more than a drop in the ocean. It becomes evidently clear then, that, as this contest is not likely to be the work of a day, as the war must be carried on systematically, and to do it you must have good officers, there are in my judgment no other possible means to obtain them but by establishing your army upon a permanent footing, and giving your officers good pay. This will induce gentlemen and men of character to engage; and till the bulk of your officers are composed of such persons as are actuated by principles of honour and a spirit of enterprise, you have little to expect from them. They ought to have such allowances as will enable them to live like and support the characters of gentlemen, and not be driven by a scanty pittance to the low and dirty arts which many of them practise to filch the publick of more than the difference of pay would amount to upon an ample allowance. Besides, something is due to the man who puts his life in his hand, hazards his health, and forsakes the sweets of domestick enjoyments. Why a Captain in the Continental service should receive no more than five shillings currency per day for performing the same duties that an officer of the same rank in the British service receives ten shillings sterling for, I never could conceive, especially when the latter is provided with every necessary he requires upon the best terms, and the former can scarce procure them at any rate. There is nothing that gives a man consequence, or renders him fit for command, like a support that renders him independent of every body but the State he serves.

With respect to the men, nothing but a good bounty can obtain them upon a permanent establishment; and for no shorter time than the continuance of the war ought they to be engaged; as facts incontestibly prove that the difficulty and cost of enlistments increase with time. When the army was first raised at Cambridge, I am persuaded the men might have been got without a bounty for the war. After this they began to see that the contest was not likely to end so speedily as was imagined, and to feel their consequence by remarking, that to get the Militia in, in the course of last year, many towns were induced to give them a bounty. Foreseeing the evils resulting from this, and the destructive consequences which unavoidably would follow short enlistments, I took the liberty in a long letter written by myself, (date not now recollected as my letter book is not here,) to recommend the enlistments for and during the war, assigning such reasons for it as experience has since convinced me were well founded. At that time twenty dollars would, I am persuaded, have engaged the men for this term. But it will not do to look back; and if the present opportunity is slipped, I am persuaded that twelve months more will increase our difficulties fourfold. I shall, therefore, take the freedom of giving it as my opinion, that a good bounty be immediately offered, aided by the proffer of at least one hundred or one hundred and fifty acres of land and a suit of clothes and blanket to each non-commissioned officer and soldier, as I have good authority for saying, that however high the men's pay may appear, it is barely sufficient, in the present scarcity and dearth of all kinds of goods, to keep them in clothes, much less afford support to their families.

If this encouragement, then, is given to the men, and such pay allowed the officers as will induce gentlemen of character and liberal sentiments to engage, and proper care and precaution used in the nomination, having more regard to the characters of persons than the number of men they can enlist, we should in a little time have an army able to cope with any that can be opposed to it, as there are excellent materials to form one out of. But while the only merit an officer possesses is his ability to raise men, while those men consider and treat him as an equal, and, in the character of an officer, regard him no more than a broomstick, being mixed together as one common herd, no order nor no discipline can prevail; nor will the officer ever meet with that respect which is essentially necessary to due subordination.

To place any dependence upon Militia is assuredly resting upon a broken staff. Men just dragged from the tender scenes of domestic life, unaccustomed to the din of arms, totally unacquainted with every kind of military skill, which, being followed by a want of confidence in themselves when opposed to troops regularly trained, disciplined, and appointed, superiour in knowledge and superiour in arms, makes them timid and ready to fly from their own shadows. Besides, the sudden change in their manner of living, (particularly in their lodging,) brings on sickness in many, impatience in all, and such an unconquerable desire of returning to their respective homes, that it not only produces shameful and scandalous desertions among themselves but infuses the like spirit in others. Again, men accustomed to unbounded freedom and no control, cannot brook the restraint which is indispensably necessary to the good order and government of an army, without which licentiousness and every kind of disorder triumphantly reign. To bring men to a proper degree of subordination is not the work of a day, a month, or even a year; and unhappily for us and the cause we are engaged in, the little discipline I have been labouring to establish in the army under my immediate command, is in a manner done away, by having such a mixture of troops as have been called together within these few months.

Relaxed and as unfit as our rules and regulations of war are for the government of an army, the Militia (those properly so called, for of these we have two sorts, the six months' men, and those sent in as a temporary aid) do not think themselves subject to 'em, and therefore take liberties which the soldier is punished for. This creates jealousy; jealousy begets dissatisfaction; and these by degrees ripen into mutiny, keeping the whole army in a confused and disordered state, rendering the time of those who wish to see regularity and good order prevail more unhappy than words can describe. Besides this, such repeated changes take place that all arrangement is set at nought, and the constant fluctuation of things deranges every plan as fast as adopted.

These, sir, Congress may be assured, are but a small part of the inconveniences which might be enumerated and attributed to Militia; but there is one, that merits particular attention, and that is the expense. Certain I am that it would be cheaper to keep fifty or one hundred thousand men in constant pay, than to depend upon half the number and supply the other half occasionally by Militia. The time the latter are in pay before and after they are in camp, assembling and marching, the waste of ammunition, the consumption of stores, which, in spite of every resolution and requisition of Congress, they must be furnished with, or sent home, added to other incidental expenses consequent upon their coming and conduct in camp, surpasses all idea, and destroys every kind of regularity and economy which you could establish among fixed and settled troops, and will, in my opinion, prove, if the scheme is adhered to, the ruin of our cause.

The jealousies of a standing army, and the evils to be apprehended from one, are remote, and in my judgment, situated and circumstanced as we are, not at all to be dreaded; but the consequence of wanting one, according to my ideas, formed from the present view of things, is certain and inevitable ruin. For, if I was called upon to declare upon oath, whether the Militia have been most serviceable or hurtful upon the whole, I should subscribe to the latter. I do not mean by this, however, to arraign the conduct of Congress; in so doing I should equally condemn my own measures, if I did not my judgment; but experience, which is the best criterion to work by, so fully, clearly, and decisively reprobates the practice of trusting to Militia, that no man who regards order, regularity, or economy, or who has any regard for his own honour, character, or peace of mind, will risk them upon this issue.

No less attention should be paid to the choice of Surgeons than other officers of the army; they should undergo a regular examination, and if not appointed by the Director-General and Surgeons of the hospital, they ought to be subordinate to and governed by his directions. The regimental Surgeons I am speaking of, many of whom are very great rascals, countenancing the men in sham complaints to exempt them from duty, and often receiving bribes to certify indispositions, with a view to procure discharges or furloughs. But independent of these practices, while they are considered as unconnected with the general hospital, there will be nothing but continual complaints of each other—the Director of the hospital charging them with enormity in their drafts for the sick, and they him for denying such things as are necessary. In short, there is a constant bickering among them, which tends greatly to the injury of the sick, and will always subsist till the regimental Surgeons are made to look up to the Director-General of the hospital as a superior. Whether this is the case in regular armies or not, I cannot undertake to say; but certain I am, there is a necessity for it in this, or the sick will suffer. The regimental Surgeons are aiming, I am persuaded, to break up the general hospital, and have in numberless instances drawn for medicines, stores, &c., in the most profuse and extravagant manner for private purposes.

Another matter highly worthy of attention is, that other rules and regulations may be adopted for the government of the army, than those now in existence; otherwise the army, but for the name, might as well be disbanded. For the most atrocious offences, one or two instances only excepted, a man receives no more than thirty-nine lashes, and these, perhaps, through the collusion of the officer who is to see it inflicted, are given in such a manner as to become rather a matter of sport than punishment; but, when inflicted as they ought, many hardened fellows who have been the subjects, have declared that for a bottle of rum they would undergo a second operation. It is evident, therefore, that the punishment is inadequate to many crimes it is assigned to. As a proof of it, thirty and forty soldiers will desert at a time, and of late a practice prevails (as you will see by the letter of the 22d) of the most alarming nature, and which will, if it cannot be checked, prove fatal both to the country and army; I mean the infamous practice of plundering. For, under the idea of Tory property, or property which may fall into the hands of the enemy, no man is secure in his effects, and scarcely in his person; for, in order to get at them, we have several instances of people being frightened out of their houses, under pretence of those houses being ordered to be burnt, and this is done with a view of seizing the goods; nay, in order that the villany may be the more effectually concealed, some houses have actually been burnt to cover the theft. I have, with some others, used my utmost endeavours to stop this horrid practice; but under the present lust after plunder, and want of laws to punish offenders, I might almost as well attempt to remove Mount Atlas. I have ordered instant corporal punishment upon every man who passes our lines, or is seen with plunder, that the offender might be punished for disobedience of orders; and enclose you the proceedings of a Court-Martial held upon an officer, who, with a party of men, had robbed a house a little beyond our lines of a number of valuable goods, among which (to show that nothing escapes) were four large pier looking-glasses, women's clothes, and other articles, which, one would think, could be of no earthly use to him. He was met by a Major of Brigade, who ordered him to return the goods, as taken contrary to general orders; which he not only peremptorily refused to do, but drew up his party, and swore he would defend them at the hazard of his life; on which I ordered him to be arrested and tried for plundering, disobedience of orders, and mutiny. For the result I refer to the proceedings of the court, whose judgment appeared so exceedingly extraordinary that I ordered a reconsideration of the matter, upon which, and with the assistance of a fresh evidence, they made shift to cashier him.

I adduce this instance to give some idea to Congress of the current sentiment and general run of the officers, which compose the present army; and to show how exceedingly necessary it is to be careful in the choice of the new set, even if it should take double the time to complete the levies. An army formed of good officers moves like clockwork; but there is no situation upon earth less enviable, nor more distressing, than that person's who is at the head of troops who are regardless of order and discipline, and who are unprovided with almost every necessary. In a word, the difficulties which have forever surrounded me since I have been in the service, and kept my mind constantly upon the stretch; the wounds which my feelings as an officer have received by a thousand things which have happened contrary to my expectation and wishes; the effect of my own conduct, and the present appearance of things, so little pleasing to myself as to render it a matter of no surprise (to me) if I should stand capitally censured by Congress; added to a consciousness of my inability to govern an army composed of such discordant parts, and under such a variety of intricate and perplexing circumstances, induces not only a belief, but a thorough conviction in my mind, that it will be impossible, unless there is a thorough change in our military system, for me to conduct matters in such a manner as to give satisfaction to the publick, which is all the recompense I aim at, or ever wished for.

Before I conclude, I must apologize for the liberties taken in this letter, and for the blots and scratchings therein, not having time to give it more correctly. With truth I can add, that with every sentiment of respect and esteem, I am yours and the Congress's most obedient and most humble servant,

GO. WASHINGTON.

To the Hon. John Hancock, President of Congress.

Proceedings of a General Court-Martial of the Line, held on the Heights of HARLEM, by order of his Excellency GEORGE WASHINGTON, Esq., General and Commander-in-Chief of the Forces of the UNITED STATES OF AMER-ICA, for the trial of all Prisoners to be brought before them, SEPTEMBER 19, 1776.

Colonel SAGE, President.

Lieut. Col. Brearly ,	Captain Good ,
Major Howell ,	Lieutenant Bleeker ,
Captain Smith ,	Lieutenant Skelton ,
Captain Bond ,	Lieutenant De Witt ,
Captain Burke ,	Lieutenant Humphreys ,
Captain Higgins ,	Lieutenant Blackman ,
Captain Brown ,	Lieutenant Case .
Captain Chamberlain ,

WILLIAM TUDOR, Judge-Advocate.

The Court being duly sworn, proceeded to the trial of Ensign Matthew Macumber, of Captain Barnes's Company, in Colonel Sargent's Regiment, brought prisoner before the Court-Martial and accused of plundering and robbery, and also of mutiny.

The prisoner being arraigned on the above charge, plead "Not guilty."

Major Box. Last Tuesday, about two o'clock, I saw a number of people plundering down on Harlem Plain. I took a party and went down on the Plain, and met Ensign Macumber, with a party of upwards of twenty, all loaded with plunder, such as house furniture, table linen, and kitchen utensils, China and delf ware. I ordered him to lay it down, or carry it back to the place he took it from. He said he had his Colonel's order for what he had done, and that he would defend the plunder as long as he had life. I asked him if he knew me, and told him who I was, and told him how express the General's orders were about plundering. I told him if he did not deliver up the plunder, I should fire upon him, and jumped over a fence, and my little party followed. On this the prisoner and his party surrounded me, and the prisoner gave orders for the party to make ready; they did so, and told me they would die by the plunder, and Macumber, the prisoner, declared the same. When I found I could do nothing, I left them and went up and got a party, and went down. The prisoner seeing me coming, left his party and put off across the fields, loaded with something. I disarmed the party, and made them prisoners. The prisoner ordered his party to make ready, before I jumped over the fence.

Sergeant THAYER. I was one of the party with Major Box, on Tuesday, and met Ensign Macumber, as has been related. Major Box told the prisoner's party to lay down their plunder; they all refused, and the prisoner said that he had obeyed the Colonel's orders, and that he would carry the plunder to his Colonel. On Major Box presenting his pistol at the Ensign, he ordered the men to form themselves. The men were clamorous, and the Ensign was quieting them. He said he had orders from his Colonel, and had obeyed them, and would obey them to the spilling his blood; which I took to mean that he would defend his party and the plunder. The Major went off, and we returned soon after; but I know nothing more of the prisoner. There was women's clothing among other articles of plunder.

WILLIAM THOMAS. Says he was one of the party, and confirmed Sergeant Thayer's testimony.

SAMUEL BROWN. Confirmed Sergeant Thayer's testimony, and adds that the prisoner told Major Box, after he had ordered his men to form, that he would see which had the strongest party, or that the ground should drink his blood. Several of his men said they would blow out Major Box's brains, if he cocked his pistol again.

WILLIAM CORNISH. Confirms Brown's testimony, and adds, that from every appearance, he doubts not the prisoner's party would have fired upon them had they attempted to have rescued the plunder out of their hands.

Prisoner's Defence.

JOHN PETTY. Just before we entered the town of Harlem, Ensign Macumber stopped the party and expressly ordered us not to plunder. I was posted as a sentry, and know nothing of the party plundering. I was one who drove the cattle off, and did not join the party who had the plunder.

GORDON SPENCER. After we got into Harlem, Ensign Macumber took some of the party and went off with them. After he was gone, some of the men broke into the house. I went and found the Ensign, and told him of it. He said it was against his orders, and bid me go and tell them to leave the house. Before we met Major Box, Ensign Macumber had told the men they should carry all the plunder to Colonel Sargent.

The Court being cleared, after mature consideration are of opinion, that the prisoner is not guilty of plundering or of robbery, nor of mutiny, but that he is guilty of offering violence to and disobeying Major Box, his superiour officer. And the Court sentence and adjudge that the prisoner ask pardon of Major Box, and receive a severe reprimand from the commanding officer at the head of the regiment he belongs to.

COMFORT SAGE, President.

Note by General WASHINGTON.—It is to be observed that the men who were to share the plunder, became the evidence for the prisoner.

G. W.

The Court proceeded to the trial of Ebenezer Leffingwell, of Captain Cleft's Company, in Colonel Durkee's Regiment, brought prisoner before the Court, and accused "of cowardice and misbehaviour before the enemy, and of presenting and snapping a musket at Colonel Reed, the Adjutant-General."

The prisoner being arraigned on the above charge, pleads "Not guilty."

Colonel REED deposes. On Monday forenoon I left Colonel Knowlton, with a design to send him a reinforcement. I had accordingly ordered up Major Leitch, and was going up to where the firing was, when I met the prisoner running away from where the firing was, with every mark of trepidation and fear. I followed him, and ordered him back after striking him; he promised to return, and went on into the bushes. A little after, I saw him running off again, and pursued him with a determination to mark him; and came up to him and struck him with my hanger, and wounded him in the head and hand. He bid me keep off, or he would shoot me; he presented his piece, and I think snapped his piece at me. I found him after this lying in a ditch; on his seeing me he fell to bellowing out, and I should have shot him, could I have got my gun off. He has since confessed to me that he was running away at the time I met him.

Lieutenant SHIPMAN, evidence for the prisoner. The prisoner was one of the party with Colonel Knowlton, on Monday, and behaved well in the first of the skirmish; he was after in a small flank guard with me, and stood his ground till we were ordered to retreat. In the second attack, I know nothing of the prisoner, or where he was.

The Court being cleared, are of opinion, that the prisoner is guilty of "misbehaving before the enemy, and of presenting his musket at Colonel Reed," and of a breach of the twenty-seventh article of the rules and regulations for the government of the Continental forces, and the Court sentence him to suffer death for said crime.

COMFORT SAGE, President.

The Court adjourns to Saturday morning, 21st of September, at nine o'clock.

Proceedings of a Court-Martial on Ensign MACUMBER, SEPTEMBER 21, 1776.

The Court met according to adjournment, when the Judge Advocate laid before the Court the proceedings of yesterday, respecting Ensign Macumber, with the order of his Excellency the Commander-in-Chief (hereto annexed) for a reconsideration of the sentence against the said Ensign Macumber; which being read, the Court proceeded to a reconsideration of the judgment in the case of the aforesaid. Present, all the members as yesterday, except Lieutenant-Colonel Brearly and Captain Bond.

Captain RAMSAY being sworn, deposes. Last Tuesday, in the beginning of the afternoon, I was crossing Harlem Plains; I saw a number of men loaded with plunder. I went up to them and told them they had been acting exceeding wrong, and would have to answer for their conduct; they said they had acted in obedience of their officers' orders. Presently Ensign Macumber came up, and I renewed the conversation with him; he told me he had gone out by orders of his officer, and that he had a right to take any thing outside of our lines. Ensign Macumber had at this time a knapsack full on his shoulder, out of which stuck two waxen toys, which I took hold of, and jested with him on his having such a pretty sort of plunder; he made me no reply, but ordered them to proceed with what things they had; they had a large chair full, consisting of poultry and some house furniture; some were loaded with kettles and kitchen furniture. Just upon this, Major Box came up, and spoke to the foremost of the party, who told him they had got the plunder at Harlem; on which the Major, with a pistol in his hand, ordered the man to lay it down; the man hesitated and looked round on his party; upon this, Major Box ordered the whole party to lay down their plunder, or he would shoot the first man that refused; immediately on this, Ensign Macumber called out to his men, "my lads, stand to your arms and form," and said to Major Box, "we'll see who has the strongest party," or words to this effect; the men instantly formed; on this, Major Box asked the Ensign if he knew him; the Ensign replied, yes, that he knew him to be Major Box. The Major replied that he was so, and that he came with express orders from his Excellency to act as he did, and to prevent plundering; the Ensign told him that he had acted by orders of a superior officer. Major Box said, I must put you under an arrest, and ordered a man to take his arms. Macumber said he would not be disarmed, but would go with them and his plunder to his General, who might act with them as he pleased, and that he would spill his blood before he would give them up there. At this time his men were exceeding mutinous; several of them cocked their pieces and brought them nearly to a present at Major Box. The Major asked for the Ensign's name, and went off. The men were exceeding abusive to the Major, and Ensign Macumber ordered them to be quiet. I have no doubt but if any attempt had been made to disarm the prisoner, his party would have fired; and I was so apprehensive of this, that I stood on my guard.

Ensign Macumber offers no evidence.

The Court after a thorough reconsideration of the evidence for and against the prisoner, and after the maturest consideration of the further evidence which has been produced, are of opinion, that the prisoner is guilty of plundering and of mutiny, and the Court annul the sentence of yesterday, and are of opinion that the prisoner be cashiered for said offence; and he is accordingly cashiered.

COMFORT SAGE, President.

GENERAL ORDERS.

Head-Quarters, Harlem Heights, September 23, 1776.

(Parole, Stamford.)

(Countersign, Norwalk.)

Ebenezer Leffingwell, being convicted of offering violence to his superior officer, of cowardice, and misbehaviour before the enemy, was ordered to suffer death this day. The General, from his former good character, and upon the intercession of the Adjutant-General, against whom he presented his firelock, is pleased to pardon him; but declares that the next offender shall suffer death, without mercy.

Sergeant-Major Hutton is appointed Adjutant to Colonel Mead's Regiment, Colonel Silliman's Brigade.

Mr. Charles Knowles is appointed Paymaster to Colonel Knox's Regiment of Artillery.

Colonel Douglass's Brigade-Major being ordered in arrest for "neglect of duty, in not giving the parole and countersign to the guards," Colonel Douglass is to appoint another to do the duty.

Colonels and Commanding Officers of Regiments have neglected to make reports of the examination of their regiments after plunder. They are now reminded of it, and will be mentioned in orders if they neglect it.

A report is to be made at Head-Quarters, as soon as possible, of the several officers under arrest, that they may be tried; Colonels and Commanding Officers of Regiments to attend to it.

Head-Quarters, Harlem Heights, September 24, 1776.

(Parole, Bristol.)

(Countersign, Salem.)

The Quartermaster-General and the Chief Engineer are to mark the grounds, to-morrow, on which the barracks and huts are to be built this side King's Bridge. They are to call upon the General, previous to their setting out upon this business, for directions. When the ground is marked out, the Quartermaster-General is to cause the materials for building to be laid thereon as quick as possible.

The General is informed, that in consequence of his recommendation of the 20th instant, many regiments have turned out very cheerfully to work, when others have sent few or no men on fatigue. The first he thanks for their conduct, whilst the others are to be informed that their conduct will be marked. The General would have them recollect that it is for their own safety and self-defence these works are constructing, and the sooner they are finished, the sooner they will be able to erect warm and comfortable barracks or huts for themselves to lodge in.

The Militia which came to the assistance of this Army, under the command of General Wolcott, are to hold themselves in readiness to return home. Before they go, they are to return into the publick stores every thing they drew from thence, such as ammunition, camp-kettles, &c.

Joseph Jackson appointed Paymaster to Colonel Hutchinson's Regiment.

Major Henly, Aid-de-Camp to General Heath, whose activity and attention to duty, courage, and every other quality which can distinguish a brave and gallant soldier, and must endear him to every lover of his country, having fallen in a late skirmish on Montresor's Island, while bravely leading a party on, his remains will be interred this afternoon, at five o'clock, from the quarters of Major David Henly, acting Adjutant-General, below the hill where the redoubt is thrown up on the road.

The General thanks the Colonels and Commanding Officers of Regiments, for their care in examining the tents and knapsacks of the soldiers, after plunder. He directs that what has been found be sent to the house on the road side, below Head-Quarters; and that Regimental Courts Martial immediately sit, to try every one who cannot prove that he came honestly by what is found in his possession. The offenders to be punished as soon as the sentence is approved by the Colonel or Commanding Officer. As a little wholesome severity now may put a stop to such ruinous practices in future, the General hopes a very strict inquiry will be made, and no favour shown. The General does not admit of any pretence for plundering. Whether it is Tory property taken beyond the lines or not, it is equally a breach of orders, and to be punished in the officer who gives orders, or the soldier who goes without. Such Colonels or Commanding Officers of Regiments as have not reported, will be mentioned by name in to-morrow's orders, if reports are not made before.

A working party, of one thousand men, properly officered, to parade to-morrow, opposite Head-Quarters, at seven o'clock. The parade will be attended by some General Officers, who will put in arrest any officer found delinquent in bringing his men in time.

A Field Officer of the Regiment posted at Mount Washington is to visit the guards there carefully, the distance from the lines not admitting the General Officer of the day to go up.

BENJAMIN DEPUY TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Mamacoting Precinct, Westchester County, New-York, }
September 24, 1776. }

Whereas Captain Tyler, from Cosechton, arrived here as an express, the 22d instant, at night, with an account that all the neighbourhood there and farther up the Delaware, were greatly alarmed, so that several of the inhabitants up that way intended to move down into the more populous settlements. The occasion of said alarm was a letter sent by one Mr. Johnson, from Tunadilla, down the Delaware, an extract of which Captain Tyler brought here, which we send per bearer, Thomas Kyte, to lay before your Honours.

We, concluding that the Cosechton people were in great confusion and terrour, persuaded Captain Tyler for to return and pacify the people, which he consented to do, upon our sending this express to your Honours; and he will send another express here this week, to receive your Honours' answer and directions how to behave in this affair, hoping you are better acquainted with the cause of this alarm than either they or we are. As for other particulars, the bearer can inform you, who is a person you may rely on and confide in, as faithful and zealous in the cause.

From your Honours' friends and humble servants.

Per order of the Committee:

BENJAMIN DEPUY, Chairman.

To the Hon. Congress held for the State of New-York.

P. S. If there should happen to be an attack made on our frontier by disaffected persons or Indians, we are in a poor state of defence at present, our companies being so weakened by the different drafts out of them, but especially by the volunteers that entered into the service under Captain De Witt, who are at present under no command, not being mustered.

JOHN SLOSS HOBART TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Camp at King's Bridge, September 25, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: In pursuance of your orders I called at the Fort in the Highlands, and found things in as good a state as could be expected, considering the number of men in garrison. I have mentioned to General Washington your request that a reinforcement might be sent from hence; his answer was, that from the state of the army it was impossible to be complied with. I saw him yesterday evening, but as he was much indisposed, and crowded with business, I avoided pressing him upon the subject. I have not waited on him to-day, as I suppose him engaged with a Committee of Congress, who arrived as I left Headquarters last evening, but intend to urge, if I should see him as I propose to-morrow, that at least Colonel Livingston with his detachment may be sent there.

When I showed him your resolve respecting the exchange of General Woodhull, he asked me who we had to propose. I mentioned Mr. Matthews, as the only person they would probably think of as an equivalent. He doubted the propriety of such an offer; as Mr. Matthews was not in the military line, he could not, perhaps, be accepted; and besides, the exchanging a person charged with treasonable practices against the United States, for a gentleman taken in arms, might probably be thought not altogether so proper by some people. These were doubts which, I confess, it was not in my power to obviate; however, I shall introduce the subject again to-morrow, and endeavour to have the General's sentiments explicitly upon it. He told me if I would draw up any proposal he would send it over by the first flag. I was in hopes he would have offered some one of the persons he took up and sent to Connecticut; but as he did not mention it, I thought such a proposal would come with a very bad grace from me, as we had neglected to take the precaution of securing the Crown officers and disaffected persons amongst us. However, that I may leave no stone unturned for the relief of our worthy President, I shall consult Mr. Lewis, who is one of the Committee of Congress, and, if possible, draw from the General an offer of one of those men. Should I fail of success, shall set out with a heavy heart for Fairfield, in order to comply with your directions about Ketchum, who, I am informed by Captain Rogers, is there in gaol.

While I am writing, General Clinton has picked up a letter from Mr. Duer, requesting to know the particulars of the conflagration of New-York, and what measures are taking to exchange General Sullivan and Lord Stirling. The city is burnt from the Bowling-Green, on the west side of the Broadway, to the College, except the buildings of Mr. J. Cortlandt and Mr. Rutherford's houses; and on the east side to within two doors of the house lately occupied by General McDougall, and the west side of Broad street from the Exchange to Vervatenburgh street. General Howe disclaims any knowledge of the matter till the city was in flames; and in order to evince his sincerity, we are told he threw several persons, suspected of being concerned, into the flames; several others were hung up by the heels, and afterwards had their throats cut. This, we suppose, has been done in order to take the odium of such a crime from the army. The most rational conjecture we can make for the cause of the fire is, that the army, having been promised the plunder of the town in case of conquest, and finding from their late repulse that such an event is rather too far distant for their impatience, have set fire to the town in order to facilitate their views. As to the exchange, General Prescott is on his way to relieve General Sullivan. The matter of Lord Stirling is not settled, as General Howe excepts to his being exchanged for McDonald, who, he says, only bears the rank of a Major in his army. Our Canada prisoners are at the Hook, and are to be sent on shore on their parole.

This will be handed you by Captain Rogers, who will give a full account of his cruise and success, from which you will be able to judge of the expediency of retaining or selling the Montgomery. Should the latter be your determination, beg I may have the refusal of her, as I will take her with her cannon and stores at the appraisal of any two indifferent persons. Shall be glad to know how I shall dispose of the three hundred and twenty pounds of publick money I left at Fairfield.

A letter in answer, by Captain Rogers, will much oblige your most obedient servant,

J. S. HOBART.

To the Honourable the Convention of New-York.

COLONEL HARTLEY TO GENERAL GATES.

Crown-Point, September 24, 1776.

HONOURED SIR: I received yours of this morning, and shall carefully attend to your directions.

You will understand by Captain Duer that there is a probability of some Canadians and Indians, with some Regulars, paying us a visit at this place. They look upon it as an easy acquisition for a few hours, and are convinced they can destroy the small party here. I differ with them in the fact. A thousand men, without artillery, can do us no injury, or, at least, we shall be able to kill more of them than they will of us. It is very practicable to cut off the retreat of any party that may enter upon the project. I shall give you timely notice to send a party to cut off their retreat, should they make an attempt with any thing less than the main body.

The canister shot has not been sent, but I expect to receive it as soon as the canisters can be made. In the present situation of the fleet, it is practicable for small craft to pass it; but I am yet under no apprehension. My men are recovering within these few days very fast.

I am, honoured sir, your most humble servant,

THOS. HARTLEY.

To General Gates.

COLONEL HENRY B. LIVINGSTON TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Saybrook, September 24, 1776.

SIR: Since my last I have made a little excursion upon Long-Island, and brought off three thousand one hundred and twenty-nine sheep, and four hundred head of horned cattle, from Shemcock's Plains, about thirty miles from Sag-Harbour. There hearing a Mr. Richard Miller and some others were raising companies to aid and assist General Howe, I despatched Captain Roe, with about thirty men, to seize their leaders and hinder the people from collecting. At the time of Captain Roe's arrival at Satucket, he found that Mr. Miller had enlisted about forty men, and was on his way to head his company, when he fell in with Captain Roe and his party, who lay in wait for him, in hopes to make him their prisoner. He was hailed several times, and ordered to stop; but attempting to make his escape, was shot through the body. I have thought proper to be thus particular with regard to this transaction, lest it should be misrepresented, as the young gentleman has many friends. He is said to have been recommended to the notice of Lord Howe by Judge Ludlow.

Oliver De Lancey is a Brigadier-General under Lord Howe, as your Excellency may see by the enclosed copies of orders sent to Colonel Phineas Fanning. I was permitted a sight of the originals, on condition they should be again returned. A reward of five hundred pounds is offered for my head by General De Lancey, I am told. I am in great hopes of being even with him soon, if your Excellency pleases to continue me on this station. If it was possible for me to obtain a few more men, I believe it would be in my power to make their quarters very warm for them at Jamaica, as I am informed most of their army have crossed the East River. However, should this not be a fact, it is certain that Lord Howe has ordered all grain, hay, &c., to be valued and reserved for the use of the British army; the defending or destroying this would be advantageous, I should imagine. The New-England people are very backward in supplying vessels to carry off stock, otherwise I should have removed treble the quantity. Most of those I have, have been pressed for that purpose, and I have given them certificates on the Convention of New-York in payment for the time they were employed.

Any directions your Excellency will be pleased to honour me with shall be strictly complied with.

I remain your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,

HENRY B. LIVINGSTON.

To His Excellency General Washington.

Jamaica, September 1, 1776.

SIR: I am ordered by his Excellency the Honourable William Howe, Esq., General and Commander-in-Chief of all his Majesty's forces in North America, from Nova-Scotia to the Floridas, on the application of the County of Suffolk, by Nathaniel Woodhull and Samuel Phillips, who have signified to him that the inhabitants of said County are desirous to lay down their arms and again become legal and obedient subjects, that for the peace, and ease, and security of the inhabitants, he is willing to accept of their submission, and promise them protection on the King's Colonels or other inferiours of Militia, respectively making and causing the men through the country to lay down their arms, take the oath of allegiance, and sign the said roll of submission, disclaiming and rejecting the orders of Congress and Committees, and totally refusing obedience to them, and to obey the legal authority of Government, and in all places of worship in future to pray for the King and Royal family, as was usual before the present unprovoked rebellion.

OLIVER DE LANCEY,

Major-General of Militia in the Southern District of the Colony of New-York.

To Colonel Conkling.

A true copy:

HENRY B. LIVINGSTON.

Huntington, September 2, 1776.

SIR: You are hereby ordered and directed to give orders to all the King's Captains, or next Commanding officers of the Militia in the Third Battalion in Suffolk County, to call their several companies together, at the usual places, immediately, and to order all them that have taken up arms against the King to lay down their arms, and to take the oath of allegiance to the King, and to sign a roll of submission, disclaiming and rejecting the orders of Congress or Committees, and to obey the legal authority of Government.

I hereby enclose a true copy of the writing sent me from General Howe. This by order of General Howe, by direction of

OLIVER DE LANCEY.

To Colonel Phineas Fanning, or the next Commanding Officer.

A true copy from the original:

HENRY B. LIVINGSTON.

Jamaica, Queen's County, September 5, 1776.

His Excellency the Honourable William Howe, General and Commander-in-Chief of all his Majesty's forces within the Colonies lying on the Atlantick Ocean from Nova-Scotia to West-Florida inclusive, &c., &c., &c., having authorized me to raise a brigade of Provincials, solely for the defence of this island, and to reestablish order and government within the same, to apprehend or drive all concealed Rebels from among his Majesty's well affected subjects, and other purposes:

I do hereby for the encouragement of the inlisting men in the County of Suffolk, give notice, that upon any persons of good recommended character raising a company of twenty men, they shall have commissions for one Captain, one Lieutenant, and one Ensign, and shall be paid and subsisted as the officers and soldiers are in the British pay; and it is hoped that the inhabitants of the County will cheerfully raise the men wanted for this service, as it will prevent the disagreeable business of detaching them, which I shall be under the necessity of doing, if the companies cannot be raised without it.

Given under my hand the date above.

OLIVER DE LANCEY, Brigadier-General.

A true copy:

HENRY B. LIVINGSTON.

Jamaica, September 11, 1776.

I am ordered by his Excellency General Howe to write to you, and order all the fat cattle and sheep in Suffolk County to be immediately drove down to Jamaica, where proper persons will be appointed to ascertain the weight of them, give certificates of the value of them, that the owners may be paid for them, keeping a distinct account of those cattle, &c., that belong to people who are in actual rebellion, whose cattle must be forced down for the refreshment of the King's troops. This order must be speedily obeyed, as the County will otherwise feel the resentment of the King's troops.

Given under my hand the above date. Reserving only as many cattle as is necessary for their own subsistence.

OLIVER DE LANCEY, Brigadier-General.

To Colonel Phineas Fanning, at Southold.

DANIEL ROE TO EBENEZER WATSON.

Saybrook, September 24, 1776.

MR. WATSON: Enclosed I send you an account of our proceedings at Brook Haven, on Long-Island, which you will please to insert in your next, and oblige many of your readers, as well as your humble servant,

DANIEL ROE.

Last Friday, a party from Lieutenant-Colonel C. Livingston's detachment was put under the command of Captain Daniel Roe, to go from Saybrook to Brook Haven, on Long-Island, for the purpose of bringing off said Captain Roe's family and a number of others. On Saturday night, at twelve o'clock, Captain Roe left the sloop at Brook Haven, taking fourteen men with him to assist in bringing down the family, (leaving on board fourteen men to guard the vessel, under the command of Lieutenant George Smith.) He proceeded to his house, pressing teams as he went, to bring down the goods, not being able to procure them by any other means. At nine o'clock in the morning, just as he was in readiness to return with his family and effects, he was informed by one of his guards, that Mr. Richard Miller, of Brook Haven, a young gentleman of family and fortune, but a notorious enemy to his country, was passing his house; upon which Captain Roe ordered his men to hail him, and if he refused to stop, to fire upon him. He was accordingly hailed three times, upon which he stopped, and five men, with their pieces presented, told him they would instantly kill him if he attempted to stir; he stood and viewed them about half a minute, then discharged a pistol at them, and rode off with the utmost expedition, upon which he was ordered to stop several times; but he still refusing, five guns were separately fired at him, from the last of which a ball was shot through his body, upon which he dismounted, and was carried into Captain Roe's house, where he was left in the care of a number of the inhabitants. Captain Roe being informed that one Jacob Smith, who was in conjunction with Miller, and not far distant when he was taken, had collected a party, and were endeavouring to surround and take him and his men prisoners, he thought it prudent to retreat on board his vessel, where he had but just time to arrive with his wife and family, being obliged to leave the whole of his effects behind him.

The above named Richard Miller and Jacob Smith, had received commissions under the King of Great Britain, and had been raising men for the Ministerial service, and pressing horses and wagons, together with persons to drive them, to assist General Howe in removing his baggage. They had likewise taken fat cattle from the inhabitants, and obliged them to drive them to the Ministerial army.

MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Watertown, September 24, 1776.

SIR: The Board have received your favour of the 19th instant, and we are much obliged to your Excellency for the particular account you have favoured us with, relative to the attack and retreat of the Continental troops from Long-Island, as also of their evacuating the city of New-York. We are glad to hear the retreat was effected with the loss of but three or four men. We should have been well pleased to have heard, that in the late action on the 15th instant, the troops had made a bold and resolute stand against the enemy, instead of being informed that some of them deserted their posts in so shameful and disgraceful manner, as you represented, notwithstanding the exertions of their Generals and the attempts your Excellency made to rally them. At the time we informed you that this State had resolved to draft one-fifth part of their Militia, to reinforce the army at New-York, there had been no appointment of a General Officer to command these troops. We have now to inform you that since our last, the Hon. Benjamin Lincoln, Esq., Major-General of the Militia of this State, has been appointed to this command, who will soon be able to give you the necessary information with respect to the officers who are to command the respective regiments of which this reinforcement will consist.

To His Excellency George Washington, Esq.

JOHN TORREY TO MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL.

Plimouth, September 24, 1776.

SIR: The Committee of Correspondence, &c., of this town beg leave to represent to the honourable Council, that there are two persons, viz: Benjamin Marston, Esq., of Marblehead, and one Gideon White, of this town, taken and brought in here, who are refugees to the town of Boston, and from thence to Nova-Scotia. The character and conduct of these men have been so well known to us, and the danger of their going at large so apparent, that we conceived it our duty to confine them. We have accordingly ordered them to the gaol in this town, 'till your Honours' pleasure can be known. We would further inform you, that we conceive the gaol here is not a proper place to confine them in. They have many connexions here, especially the last of them, of the same character of themselves, by whose assistance they may make an escape, and get off with some vessel, to the injury of this town and the common cause. We would therefore beg leave to suggest to your Honours the propriety of sending them to some gaol in the internal parts of this State.

We wait your further directions, and are with the greatest respect, your most obedient, humble servants, the Committee of Correspondence and Safety for the town of Plimouth.

Per order,

JOHN TORREY, Chairman.

MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Council Chamber, Watertown, September 24, 1776.

SIR: Upon the receipt of your Honour's favour of the 9th instant, the General Court of this State appointed a committee to purchase sixty whale-boats, and a suitable number of oars for them, and have ordered the battalion of Militia destined for the State of Rhode-Island, to proceed with the boats to their place of destination, with all possible despatch, and deliver the boats to Governour Cooke. The mode of removing them from thence to Connecticut, will be settled between your Honour and him. We hope that they will arrive safe, and that the valuable and important purposes for which they are designed be fully answered, our enemies disappointed, our friends relieved and supported. General Lincoln, who is appointed to command the Militia from this State, to reinforce the army at New-York, will wait on your Honour, from whom you will learn what further steps have been taken.

To Governour Trumbull.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read October 5, 1776.]

State of New-Hampshire, in Committee of Safety, }
At Exeter, September 24, 1776. }

SIR: The resolve of Congress, accompanied by your letter, requesting aid to be sent to the army under General Washington, at New-York, came to Exeter, the 14th instant. The General Court then sitting, immediately resolved to raise one thousand men for that purpose, and issued orders accordingly. By returns, and information from the different parts of the State, we find the whole number hath voluntarily inlisted, are now just beginning their march, and we expect in two or three days from this time all of them will be on the road. They are formed into two regiments of equal numbers.

I am your most obedient, humble servant,

NATHANIEL FOLSOM, Chairman pro tem.

To Hon. John Hancock, Esq.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

State of New-Hampshire, in Committee of Safety, }
Exeter, September 24, 1776. }

SIR: In pursuance of a requisition from the honourable Continental Congress, received the 14th instant, this State hath raised one thousand men, who are just beginning their march for New-York. They are formed into two regiments, of five hundred men each, under Colonel Thomas Task and Colonel Nahum Baldwin, who are ordered to march their regiments forward with all possible speed, and put themselves under your direction at New-York, and continue so until the first of December next.

That your Excellency and the troops under your command, may be guided by unerring wisdom, save your country, and defeat the cruel purposes of our inveterate enemies, none more fervently wishes, than your most obedient, humble servant,

NATHANIEL FOLSOM, Chairman pro tem.

To His Excellency General Washington.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY TO GENERAL WARD.

State of New-Hampshire, in Committee of Safety, }
Exeter, September 24, 1776. }

SIR: One thousand men, raised by this State to recruit the army under General Washington, at New-York, are now just beginning to march, and, we expect, will all be on the road in two or three days.

As no direction was sent us about ammunition, in the hurry of raising the men that matter was overlooked until now; and whether there is a necessity of any being carried from hence, we are not enough acquainted with the state of the magazines at New-York to determine. Therefore, we thought it necessary to send the bearer express to Boston; and if you suppose it prudent for the men to be supplied with any before they reach New-York, we request you will send forward to Hartford, in Connecticut, where our troops are to rendezvous, such a quantity of powder and balls as you judge necessary for one thousand men, out of the Continental stock in your care. We request this more particularly as our stock is small for our own internal defence.

By order of the Committee. I am, &c.

To Hon. Major-General Ward.

PETITION OF HERCULES MOONEY AND OTHERS.

To the Honourable the Committee of Safety for the State of NEW-HAMPSHIRE, humbly shows:

The subscribers, officers in the Continental service under the command of Colonel Pierce Long, that, before the promotion of Major Hodgdon, he, as Captain of a company in said battalion, with his subaltern officers, had inlisted sixty men for said service, forty of whom have passed muster; that as said company, by reason of said promotion, is now without a Captain, it would be very agreeable to them, as well as to most of the officers of the said battalion, if the command of the said company should be conferred on Mr. Abraham Perkins, the First Lieutenant of said company, who is an able, expert officer, and one who has always been ready and willing to discharge the duty of his station, and to whom, we imagine, the said command naturally falls. Wherefore, we pray your Honours to appoint him Captain of the said company, as we conceive you will thereby give content to the soldiers belonging to the said company, and contribute to the increase of the harmony subsisting among the officers of said battalion. And, as in duty bound, shall pray, &c.

HERCULES MOONEY,	TITUS SALTER,
CALEB HODGDON,	SHACKFORD SEAWARD,
ELIPHALET DANIELS,	WILLIAM COOPER,
MENDON JARVIN,	MESACH BELL,
EBENEZER DEARING,	TOBIAS LAUGHTON,
THOMAS BOWLER,	JOHN CALFE.

September 24, 1776.

COLONEL BAYLEY TO COLONEL HURD.

Newbury, September 24, 1776.

By Sergeant Daniel Booth, of Colonel Hitchcock's regiment, and Captain Tappan's company, taken at Quebeck, in General Montgomery's defeat, and inlisted, May last, into the Royal Emigrants, deserted from them from Point-aux-Trembles twenty-three days since, we learn that Colonel Maclean is gone to London; that there are thirteen regiments in Canada, about four hundred and fifty men in each; that they are stationed in different parts of Canada; that Sir John Johnson has about one thousand Indians eighteen miles above Montreal; that in Canada the regiments are as follow, viz: the Ninth, Twentieth, Twenty-First, Twenty-Fourth, Twenty-Ninth, Thirty-First, Thirty-Fourth, Forty-Seventh, Fifty-Third, and Seventy-Second, Royal Emigrants, Sir John Johnson's five companies of the French, one hundred and fifty Marines, and two regiments of Hessians, one of Horse, the other Foot. Great preparations for crossing the Lake; and two vessels of force, &c.

I should have wrote more particular, but am now setting out for New-York.

Am, sir, your humble servant, JACOB BAYLEY.
To John Hurd, Esq., Exeter.

M. CHAMPIGNY TO THE CONGRESS.

Nantz, September 25, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The desire I have always had of being serviceable to you has induced me to seek for every means of being so. I imagined I would not succeed better than by engaging workmen capable of supplying your troops in America with arms and ammunition; in consequence of which, I have considered of ways to collect a number of artificers, sufficient to establish a manufactory of arms, in which may be made two thousand guns a month. This, I think, may easily be effected. I have also looked out for a man to cast brass cannon, and have found one well skilled; but he demands a handsome establishment. I have also found a person to cast iron cannon, a refiner of saltpetre, a director of powder mills. All these workmen amount to the number of five hundred. If their service is agreeable to you, you can send vessels here, to take them in; and, in the mean while, provide, on the side of some small rivers, where the works are to be established, wood, stone, and bricks, necessary for building the houses and furnaces. You must also provide good copper, tin, and German steel, if possible. I believe I ought to inform that every man will cost you, one with another, a thousand French crowns. But each will be provided with a fusil and a brace of pistols.

If you have occasion for any other workmen, you have only to inform me, and you may rest assured I will use my utmost endeavours to procure them.

I have, for this twelve months past, laboured to gain an acquaintance with these men, and to establish the general proportions for cannon, mortars, and howitzers.

I ought also to inform you that if you want to send for powder, I can procure it for you from the King's magazines at Raison, at the rate of twenty sols a pound.

If you have any orders for me, you will send them addressed to M. Paul, tenant le Café des Quatre Nations à Nantz, (keeper of the Coffee House of Four Nations at Nantz;) where all the Captains call who come from New-England. He will forward them to me, and I will execute them with all possible zeal.

I expect, gentlemen, the favour of an answer, that I may not keep the workmen in suspense; and am, gentlemen, with all possible zeal and attachment for you, gentlemen, and New-England, your most humble and faithful servant,

GUESLARDDE CHAMPIGNY, Formerly an Officer of the Infantry; at present, of the Order of St. LAZARRE.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO CAPTAIN NICHOLSON.

[No. 189.]

Annapolis, September 25, 1776.

SIR: We wish to avoid being thought troublesome, but, conceiving it to be indispensably our duty to have all accounts with this Board adjusted as speedily as possible, are obliged again to repeat our request that you will immediately render us a complete account of all pecuniary matters which you have had the transaction of, relative to the ship Defence, since you took the command of her. The sooner this matter is brought to a conclusion the better, as our Convention, as well as this Board, are anxious to have those accounts adjusted, and your attention to the frigate may render it more inconvenient to you some time hence.

We are, &c.

To Captain James Nicholson.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO MESSRS. WILLING AND MORRIS.

[No. 192.]

Annapolis, September 25, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Eight battalions are to be raised in Maryland by order of Congress. Small-arms will be much wanted; permit us, therefore, to remind you of your engagement with our State for the supplying of arms and gunpowder. We hope that it is, or soon will be, in your power to complete your contract. We are, &c.

To Messrs. Willing and Morris & Co.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO THE SECRET COMMITTEE OF CONGRESS.

[No. 193.]

Annapolis, September 25, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Your favour of the 13th we only received the 23d instant; the delay was occasioned by the letter's being delivered to a member of our Board who resides on the Eastern Shore, which, through hurry of business for some time, escaped his memory.

We have ordered our Commissary of Stores at Baltimore Town to deliver one ton of powder to Messrs. Lux, Purviance, and Stewart, for proving the cannon intended for the frigate; and the further quantity that you desire for the use of her shall be supplied when she is ready, should it not, in the mean time, be convenient for you to send it from Philadelphia. It is true that we have a considerable quantity of powder at Baltimore Town; but as we have and are equipping sixteen armed vessels of one sort or other, we shall in all probability have use for all the powder we have by us, and indeed more.

Upon all occasions, we have furnished the honourable Congress, and our neighbours, with whatever has been requested of us; and we wish the same measure had been dealt out to us; if it had, we should not have been denied fourteen pieces of canvass, which we were in the greatest want of, to complete the sails for some armed vessels that we were fitting out; and for want of it, we have been obliged to substitute oznaburgs. Had we christened our own child first, we could not have let Congress and our friends of Virginia have had two hundred and forty pieces sail-duck, nor yet the cannon, muskets, &c., that we supplied for the Hornet and Wasp.

You will be pleased to excuse our reminding your Board of these things; for we are exceedingly hurt by its refusing us so trifling a quantity of canvass, at a time when we were informed that not less than two thousand bolts were imported to Philadelphia by Congress in one vessel.

We are, &c.

To the honourable Secret Committee of Congress.

Baltimore, September 25, 1776.

One of the prize ships, taken by the Harlequin, Captain Woolsey, of this port, is arrived at Chinquetague, and most of her cargo safely landed.

On Monday night, the 23d instant, arrived here from Philadelphia, on her way to Virginia, the lady of his Excellency General Washington, accompanied by Thomas Nelson, Jun., Esquire, (a Delegate from Virginia;) and his lady, John Custis, George Washington Lewis, Nathaniel Nelson, and Robert Gates, Esquires, of Virginia; and this morning they proceeded for Alexandria.

CÆSAR RODNEY TO THOMAS RODNEY.

Philadelphia, September 25, 1776.

SIR: That the New-England men placed to defend the landing-place, behaved in a most dastardly, cowardly, scandalous manner, is most certain; but that courage is not always to be found the same, even in the same person, is equally true, and verified in the very same men; for some of them the day following were in the other engagement, and behaved with great bravery, as did the whole body engaged. You have some account of the skirmish in the papers; therefore I shall refer you to them and a letter I wrote by Wilds and Bickley. I saw Carson, but not till this morning, when he told me that some person by the name of Jones, from Mifflin's Cross-Roads, had set out from below since he did, and having got here before him, with subscription papers signed by some people below, went to the several printing offices before he did and engaged the packets to carry down as a post in the place of Parke. After I saw Bradford the last, and telling him what accounts I had from below, and what Carson himself had said, they said they would let Carson have the papers for the gentlemen of Dover and elsewhere, except those who subscribed to the other. I suppose the subscribers will settle the matter between them when they go down. I doubt whether you will get any powder and shot. The schooner is not arrived as I know of; and you have made no mention of the sloop, but sent the schooner before you heard what my opinion was about selling her. I wrote you concerning them both by the Bickley. My pen is confounded bad, and I am too blind to mend it, and Captain Papley, who mends and makes them for me, is gone out; therefore must bid you farewell.

CESAR RODNEY.

To Thomas Rodney, Esquire.

P. S. The Convention is dissolved; made a plan of Government it seems, and ordered an election at a short day. Quere: Do their late opponents intend calmly to submit, or try again to rally? I am sorry for Mr. Killon's illness.

JONATHAN SMITH TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

September 25, 1776.

HONOURED SIR: I was honoured by the Congress with a commission of Deputy Mustermaster-General for the Flying-Camp and Militia; and being happy of every opportunity of rendering any service to the United States, I have been engaged in the trust reposed in me. I am fully impressed with a grateful sense of the honour of being called to bear a part in so great a cause, and under so respectable a guidance; yet, although my chief ambition is to be found in the line of duty to my country, reasons of publick as well as of private consideration have reduced me to the necessity, at this time, of asking permission from the honourable Congress to resign the said commission.

With the greatest respect, I have the honour to be, honoured sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

JONATHAN SMITH.

To the Hon. John Hancock.

COLONEL SHEE TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Claremont, September 25, 1776.

SIR: The love I ever bore my country, induced me, contrary to the wishes of my nearest connexions, to accept the honour done me by Congress in appointing me to a regiment. Time and my unwearied endeavours, I flattered myself, would have taken off from the poignancy of those feelings which but too sensibly affected my family, and left me at liberty to pursue a line dictated by duty. With this expectation I quitted my home, and have long combatted the most powerful solicitations, nor would I, till convinced that the entire ruin of those dearer to me than life, depended on my further perseverance, be induced to take the present resolution of resigning that commission with which I was entrusted, and which I now reluctantly enclose you. Let me request you will put the most favourable construction on this conduct, think me, as my uniform conduct has shown, one of the warmest friends of my country, nor blame too rigidly that want of fortitude which the fondest attachment to my family has obliged on this occasion to discover.

I am, with the greatest respect, sir, your obedient, humble servant,

JONATHAN SHEE.

To the Hon. John Hancock.

COMMISSIONERS FOR INDIAN AFFAIRS TO COMMITTEE OF CONGRESS.

Pittsburgh, September 25, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We did ourselves the honour of writing to you on the 31st ultimo by express, since that time we have taken some measures, which it is incumbent on us to account for and explain to you the grounds on which we acted.

We received advice that a body of Chippawas and Ottawas, fifteen hundred in number, intended to rendezvous shortly at Tuscarawas, and that a smaller party of Putawatomaws had set off in order to attack the settlements in this neighbourhood.

The Mingo, Wiandot, and Cockanawaga warriors, assembled at the Kispapoo town, we knew were unfriendly to us. The chiefest part of them consist of a banditti formed out of the Six Nations, headed by one Pluggy, an inveterate enemy of America. Though frequently sent for by the Chiefs of that confederacy, to return to their several nations, they have long refused obedience to their orders, or to hearken to their advice. We had heard that these Mingoes had already taken some prisoners on the Kentuckie, and the latest intelligence we have received from Mr. Anderson, whom we sent down to reside at Coochocking, in the Delaware country, confirms us in our opinions of the intentions of these outlaws. The White Mingo and Keyashuta, two of the Seneca Chiefs, repeatedly represented to us in private council, that the hearts of the Chippewas were black and ill affected towards us; and that four of them, who had just arrived, were come as spies, and with a design of doing mischief, they themselves afraid some danger from the Chippewas' visit. Urged by these considerations, we thought no time was to be lost. The importance of this place demanded our immediate attention. We wrote, therefore, to the Colonels Carnahan and Proctor, of Westmoreland County, to order detachments of one hundred discreet good marksmen, and equipped chiefly with rifle, out of each of the battalions, to march here as soon as possible. We also requested three hundred men of the Militia of West-Augusta, by our letter to Dorsey Penticost, Esq., Lieutenant of that County.

We used at the same time every precaution in our power not to affright the country by our procedure, and intimated to the committees and commanding officers of the Counties of Westmoreland and West-Augusta, that the intelligence should be communicated to the inhabitants, in the most prudent and discreet manner, that they might be put on their guard, but not too much alarmed. We likewise took care to insinuate to the Indians amongst us, that our young men too had been ordered here with no ill designs, but on account of some news we had received of the intention of some foolish people of their tribes, and of the avowed purposes of the commanders of Niagara and Detroit. In pursuance of the plan we had adopted, we appointed a proper Commissary to purchase provision through the country. Flour was both then, and is now, very scarce here, owing to the great wetness of the season; our Commissary would naturally serve the purposes of delivering out the rations regularly to the Militia, and at the same time prevent any impositions which might be practised on us by the Indians. We also recommended to Colonel Mackay to lay in provisions at the Kittaning, for his battalions for three months on the most frugal terms.

In execution of the powers vested in us by the late resolve of Congress, on the 2d, 3d, and 4th instant, we held councils with the few Chippawas who had arrived, and some of the Senecas. The former, we at length had reason to believe, did not come as spies, but with a friendly intention towards us. The chief object of their visit seemed to arise from a desire of coming to an explanation with the Senecas concerning some murders committed by them on the Chippawa nation. We were told by the Interpreter that they had brought the bloody belt to the Senecas, but it was not thought proper by them to deliver it. In the course of our conferences, we observed a good deal of difference and altercation between the two nations; but were obliged to check the flame for the present. This conduct, in some measure, accounted for the sentiments of the Seneca Chiefs; and their own dissensions relieved us from any great fears on account of the Chippawas. The party at the Kispapoo town not having committed any fresh outrages, added to our satisfaction; and Onondageone, of the head Seneca warriors, offering himself to go down and use his influence with Pluggy and his banditti, in order to recall them from our settlements, made us still more easy. We rewarded him properly, and he set off seemingly desirous to accomplish a peace. The white Mingo likewise proffered his service to us to go to the Wyandot towns, and give us intelligence of the operations of our enemies. The four Chippawas in a few days became anxious to return home to quiet the minds of their friends, who, it was said, were very uneasy; but we prevailed on them to stay, and Wassoung, the king of that nation, coming here shortly after, with three more of his people, they all agreed to continue amongst us until the treaty was over. Influenced by these events, we determined on retaining only a small part of the Militia we had ordered. We soon experienced the difficulty of procuring provisions, unless at a most enormous price, and could readily anticipate the disputes and disorders which would probably take place amongst the inhabitants and Indians, if a large number of both were collected; add to this, it would naturally calm the fears of the country, and prevent a general flight, if a large number of the Militia were directed to return home by the Commissioners. We thought it prudent, however, to keep a few to prepossess the Indians with an idea that we were not defenceless or unprepared in case of an attack.

On the 8th instant, we were informed that the detachments from Colonel Carnahan's battalion were rendezvousing at the Bullock Pens, seven miles from hence. We accordingly rode there the next day, and found near one hundred and fifty volunteers collected. We thanked them for their alacrity and despatch, and having explained to them the principles on which we had ordered their march, we dismissed them all except forty. We likewise wrote to Colonel Proctor, ordering back his detachments (of which three hundred and fifty were on their march hither,) except the like number of forty. The Militia of West-Augusta having arrived here from all parts of the County, on the 14th instant, we expressed to them our sense of their spirited conduct, and kept only one hundred of their number. The garrison here now consists of two hundred men, including the Augusta Militia, who are lodged in the Fort, and do regular duty, and the Militia in this town, including the inhabitants who have associated, amount to about one hundred and forty men. It gives us singular satisfaction when we reflect on the cheerfulness with which the Militia turned out on our call. Their behaviour merits our warmest encomiums; and we trust, should the savages be prevailed on to take up the hatchet against us by our merciless enemies, they will find a race of hardy, experienced woodsmen, whom it will be no easy task to overcome. We have not the least doubt but the wise counsels of the honourable Congress will enable such men to exert themselves to the utmost against a perfidious foe. In case an Indian war breaks out, which is by no means improbable, the back inhabitants, properly supported, would form an effectual barrier against the Indian depredations.

Thus, gentlemen, have we endeavoured to point out the grounds on which we first formed our resolutions, and the principles on which we deviated from them afterwards. If we have in some degree pursued a path out of the line of our duty, we humbly hope the circumstances of the country will render our conduct not wholly unpardonable. Conscious of the most fervent zeal for the true interests and honour of the United States of America, we have sought only the security of the frontiers against the horrors of Indian cruelty, and to inspire that confidence into the minds of the inhabitants, which is so essentially necessary for their safety and preservation. We cheerfully submit the steps we have taken to the candid opinion of your Committee and Congress.

We herewith transmit to you some intelligence given to us by a Seneca Indian. It was imparted to us under the strongest injunctions of privacy, and we thought proper to engage to him, that upon the settlements being attacked he should be received amongst us and protected. We also send you the information given to us by two spies whom we sent to Guyahoga to discover the intentions of the savages, and watch their motions.

We are, gentlemen, with great truth and regard, your very obedient and humble servants,

JOHN HARVEY,
JOHN MONTGOMERY,

FIFTH SERIES.—VOL. II.

REPORT OF WILLIAM WILSON TO THE COMMISSIONERS FOR INDIAN AFFAIRS.

Pittsburgh, September 26, 1776.

Some time in June last, 1776, I was sent by Mr. George Morgan, agent for Indian affairs in the Middle Department, to the Shawanees, to prevent their going to Detroit to a treaty, until he arrived there and spoke to them. Upon my reaching the towns, I found them ready to set off for Detroit; but on my delivering Mr. Morgan's message, they agreed to stay until he came to their towns. When Mr. Morgan came and spoke to them, they referred him to the Wyandots to fix the time of holding the treaty, as they had great influence over the western tribes. I continued in the Shawaneese town with Mr. Morgan whilst he stayed. Some time in July I left the towns in company with the Cornstalk, the Hardman, and several others, in order to go to the Wyandot towns with a message from Mr. Morgan, inviting them to a treaty to be held at Pittsburgh the last of August; but Mr. Morgan directed me to settle some other time for holding the treaty, if I should find it was not convenient for them to attend then.

We proceeded to a small Shawaneese town, about ten miles from the principal towns, the first day, and continued there ten days, waiting for some of the chief warriors to join us. I grew impatient, and prevailed on the Cornstalk to set off with me. The Hardman and the others promised to follow the next day. The following morning, a couple of runners were sent to us to inform us that the Hardman had heard the Shade was at Pittsburgh, on his way from Niagara, and that he would wait four days for him to hear the news from the treaty held there. We then proceeded to Pluggy's town. There were very few people in the town, and we agreed to encamp there that night. We were detained the next day by an Indian, who said he had some news which he wanted to inform us of. It turned out to be nothing more than that he had understood the Shade was arrived at the Shawaneese towns, and that we might expect the Hardman, and others which we left behind, to overtake us in a few days.

That evening we were alarmed by an Indian who came in with the alarm halloo, from the Shawaneese towns. The Cornstalk went to him immediately, to hear the news. He soon returned, and informed me that the white people over the big river had fired on a party of Shawanees and Cherokees; that one of the party had got into the towns, who said that one of the Shawaneese was certainly killed, and he did not know but more of them were, for there were a great many guns fired at them. I told the Cornstalk that I imagined the white people had sufficient reasons, or they would not have fired on them. He said he was of the same opinion; and on hearing the news, he told the Mingoes it was they who had killed his young men and not the white people; that the mischief was done in consequence of the prisoners they took from Kentucky.

Some time afterward, the Mingoes assembled together at a house belonging to a French smith, and began to counsel. The Frenchman overheard them, and told me that they had determined to take Joseph Nicholson and myself prisoners to Detroit the next day; that perhaps they might attempt to amuse us by speaking in a friendly manner, but he advised us to pay no regard to them, but to make our escape that night. Some time after night the Mingoes came to where we were encamped, and said they wanted to speak to us. They produced a string, and spoke to the following effect: they desired the Shawanees and Delawares not to be displeased at their laying hold of their two white brothers and detaining them for two days; that they had sent messengers to the Wyandot chiefs, and that within that time they and all the neighbouring chiefs were expected to assemble there, and that all the speeches were to be told over. I told them that as they desired me to continue with them for two days I would do so, on which they went off seemingly satisfied.

I advised with the Cornstalk and Delawares what was the most prudent step for me to take, and what they thought of the before-mentioned speech. The Cornstalk said they only wanted to deceive me, and he and the Delawares recommended to us to make our escape that night, and endeavour to get to Coochocking, a Delaware town. We did so, after engaging a Delaware man to go to the Shaw- anese towns to hear the news which the before-mentioned person brought, and to discover the temper they were in. I thought it expedient to continue at Coochocking until the return of the messenger I had sent to the Shawanees. He returned in four days, and informed that the party of Shawanees and Cherokees before mentioned had killed two men and taken a woman prisoner, on the Kentucky; that the white people pursued them, came up with them the next day, and killed two of the Shawanees, and rescued the prisoner; that the Cherokees had sent a tomahawk-belt with two scalps tied to it, to the Shawanees, informing them that they had struck the white people, and it was his opinion that the Shawanees would join, provided the other nations did. He further said that the Hardman intended to proceed to the Wyandots with the messages from Mr. Morgan, and would meet me at Sandusky.

I thought it advisable to engage some of the Delaware chiefs to go with me to the Wyandot towns. I therefore assembled the Delawares and desired they would appoint some persons for that purpose. They pitched upon Captain Killbuck and two young men, to accompany me. After I had made the necessary preparations for my journey, King Newcomer spoke to me and said, he thought it was dangerous for me to pursue my intended journey, as it was probable the Mingoes might waylay the road and kill me; that he would send a message of his own to the Wyandots, with Mr. Morgan's, and advised me to continue at Coochocking, and let Captain Killbuck proceed with the messages, and to send Joseph Nicholson to Mr. Morgan to inform what I had done. I took his advice. Killbuck returned in eleven days, with the messages sent by him, and a message from the Wyandots to me, signifying that those who lived on this side of the Lake were not able to give an answer without consulting their chiefs on the other side; that I must come with my message myself; that I need not apprehend any danger from them; that if my heart was good towards them I would come, if it was not I would stay away.

On receiving this message, I determined to go, and Killbuck and two young men were again appointed to accompany me. We travelled about ten miles from Coochocking, when Killbuck was taken sick, which obliged us to return. I then applied to Captain White-Eyes to go with me, who very readily consented. At Winganous town, about six miles from Coochocking, I met with John Montour, whom I employed to go with me, and a Wyandot man, who told me that he imagined that Cornstalk and other Shawanees, and the Wyandot chiefs, had left Sandusky, and that he would pilot me a nearer way to where the chiefs were. Nothing material happened until we arrived at a Wyandot village opposite to Detroit, where the chiefs were assembled. They received me in a very kind and friendly manner, and thanked me for coming among them in consequence of their invitation. They said they had heard many bad reports from the Big-Knife, but my coming among them was a convincing proof that they were false. One of the Wyandots refused to shake hands with me. On the others asking the reason, he said he would not do it, for he did not love the Big-Knife. I asked them if all the chiefs were then present, and if they chose to hear my message at that time. They said they were all present, and were willing to hear me immediately. I first spoke to them on a string, telling them that in consequence of the message sent to me from Sandusky, I had visited them; that I put myself under their protection, and that they should determine how long I should continue among them. I then produced the belt and speech sent me by Mr. Morgan. The purport of it was to ask their assistance in brightening and strengthening the chain of friendship with all the western tribes of Indians, and inviting them to a treaty to be held at Pittsburgh in twenty-five days from that time, which was the 2d of September.

Captain White-Eyes then spoke to them and said, that as the path to their towns appeared to be somewhat dim, he had accompanied me, that I might not lose myself. He assured them that the Big-Knife desired nothing more than to live in peace and friendship with all the Indians. They answered that they were convinced the Indians desired to be in friendship with the white people, and as far as their influence extended, they would endeavour to promote the good work of peace. They then withdrew to consider of my speech. After some time, they returned and told me they were glad their brother, the Big-Knife, thought so much of them as to ask their assistance in brightening the chain of friendship. They assured me they would use all their influence with the other tribes to preserve peace; and desired that I would remain with them two days, to hear them explain my speech to the other nations who were assembled at Detroit.

Next morning they sent to the Governour of Detroit, informing that I was in their town, and if he desired to speak to me in a friendly manner, he might have an opportunity of doing so. They made me acquainted with this message. On the return of their messenger, they delivered back the belt they received from me, and said they thought it best I should deliver it in publick in Detroit, to which I agreed. I imagine they were directed by the Governour to return the belt. Captain White-Eyes, John Montour, myself, and the Wyandot chiefs, went to the Council-house at Detroit together. After the Indians and the Governour met, one of the Wyandot chiefs got up and informed the other nations that they had met with one of their brothers, the Big-Knife, which might delay the business they were upon. Then addressing himself to the Governour, he said, he thought that he, as their father, was the proper person to inquire of me the business I came upon.

The Governour then asked from whence I came, and what business I was upon. I told him I came from Pittsburgh, with a message from Mr. Morgan, agent for the Colonies, to the Wyandots; and told him of the message I had received from the Wyandots from Sandusky, and that in consequence of that message, I had come to the Wyandot village. He then asked if I had my message in writing. I told him I had. He desired to see it, and I delivered it to him. After perusing the speech, he addressed himself to the Indians, and said that after the message was explained to them they should consider of a proper answer to make to it, and that he would join them in their answer. The speech was then interpreted to the Indians present, and I delivered the belt to a Wyandot chief. He gave it to the Governour, telling him that he was their father, and knew best what to do with it.

The Governour then spoke to the Indians as follows:

"CHILDREN: I am your father, and you are my children. I have always your good at heart. I am sent here to represent the great King over the waters, and to take care of you. Those people from whom you received this message, are enemies and traitors to my King; and before I would take one of them by the hand, I would suffer my right hand to be cut off. When the great King is pleased to make peace with his rebellious children in this big island I will then give my assistance in making peace between them and the Indians, and not before."

With that he tore the speech and cut the belt to pieces, and contemptuously strewed it about the Council-house. He then told the Indians it was not customary with the English to detain or injure a publick messenger, and that, therefore, I must be suffered to return unmolested; at which the Indians seemed to be greatly pleased. He then asked me if I had any thing more to say to the Indians; that if I had, to speak out. I told him I had nothing further to say to them. He then ordered me to leave the place immediately, and said he would order us ten days' provisions to take us home. I told him I came in a canoe belonging to a Wyandot man, and could not go until he was ready. He said he would furnish me with a canoe. I then told him that my blankets and shirts were at the Wyandot village, and that I must go over for them. He said he would furnish me with blankets and shirts likewise. However, at last, he suffered me to go to the village.

While I was in the Council-house the Governour spoke on a tomahawk belt to the Wyandots; but as he delivered the speech in French to the interpreter, I did not know what he said upon it. The Wyandot chief delivered the belt to the Cornstalk. The Governour asked him if he knew what the belt meant. The Cornstalk answered he did not. He said he would tell him in a few words. He then informed him that that belt was put into the hands of the Wyandots last March, desiring them to request the nations who lived next the river, from Presque-Isle downwards, to be watchful, and if they discovered any army attempting to cross the river, to let him know it; but that it now had a greater meaning, and referred him to the Wyandots for an explanation of it, and told the interpreter to tell the Cornstalk to show that belt to the Cherokees, for they had joined the English in the general cause. He then asked the nations present if any of them had any thing to say at that time.

The Mingoes then produced a black belt, telling the other nations that the Spring before last they received that belt of Guy Johnson, informing them that he was going over the big water—that they must hold themselves in readiness against his return, and, until then, to sit still and listen to no one. They said they thought he was approaching near them, for they perceived the waters to shake. They then produced a white belt, which was sent by the Mingoes at Niagara, with the Shade, (a Shawanee) to the Shawaneese towns, telling them they intended to have sent a messenger with it to them, but as they had met with one of their brothers at Niagara, they thought proper to send it by him. They told them they had their words among them, (meaning the tomahawk,) and desired them to take them up and send them among all their friends. These speeches were explained to me by John Montour.

The Governour then spoke to the Indians, and said he was extremely pleased with the belts produced by the Mingoes.

While we were in the Council, the Governour told me he had inquired no news of me, nor did he want to hear any. "For your part," says he to Montour, "I knew your father well. He was a good man. I don't know how you came to join with those people. If you should come this way again, (though not upon the same errand,) I will give you something." He told White-Eyes he knew his character well, and so did all the nations present. He ordered him to leave Detroit before the sun-set as he regarded his head; that he would lose the last drop of his blood before he would suffer any nation to come there and destroy the union which was brought about by so many nations.

White-Eyes made no reply at that time, but after we had left the place, he said the Governour was a fool; that he did not know what he scolded him for; that he had never done him any injury, nor any other white man, since he had made peace with them—nor never would, unless they injured him; that if he had a mind to join the Buckskins, he would soon make him tremble for his head; and if he joined either side, it would be the Buckskins.

After we left the Council-house, the Governour came up to me and said he would be glad if I would inform the people on my return of what I had seen; that all the Indians I saw there at the treaty were of the same way of thinking; and that he would be glad if the people would consider the dreadful consequences of going to war with so terrible an enemy, and accept the King's pardon while it could be obtained. He then informed me that an army of twenty thousand men were landed in Canada, and had driven the Rebels entirely out of that Government, and were pursuing them to the southward; that twenty-thousand more were landed in New-York, and the same number to the southward, with the completest train of artillery that ever came out of Europe on any occasion; and that the King must be sure of success, or he would not have sent so large an army against the Americans. He then ordered William Tucker, one of his interpreters, with whom I had a small acquaintance, to go with me and get provisions for me.

On our way I asked Tucker his opinion of the dispositions of the Indians at Detroit, and if he thought they would strike soon. He hesitated for some time, but at last told me, that without matters took a very sudden turn, it was his opinion they would.

On receiving my provision, I left Detroit, in company with the Hardman and others, on our way to the Wyandot village. I told the Hardman that Governour Hamilton had informed me that all the Indians who were at Detroit were of the same way of thinking, and that I expected they would all strike the white people very soon. He said he did not doubt the Governour wished them to be of the same way of thinking, but it was not in his power to make them so, unless they chose it; that, for his part, he came there in search of good, and he should not put evil in his heart; and desired me to tell all his white brothers that his heart was good towards them.

I wanted to leave the village that evening, but the Wy- andots insisted on my staying longer with them. They said they would consider my message, for as yet I had seen nothing that was good. That night they all got drunk. The next morning White-Eyes and myself grew impatient to get off, but the head chief of the Wyandots still insisted on our staying, and gave us the strongest assurances that no injury should be done to us. He and some others, in company with White-Eyes, went over to Detroit and returned in the evening. He told White-Eyes that his errand was to obtain the Governour's leave for us to stay a few days among them, but that he would not suffer it; so that we must leave the village directly. The Governour saw White-Eyes, and threatened to put him in irons and send him to Niagara, if he did not leave Detroit immediately.

We left the Wyandot village in company with a Wyandot man, and proceeded that evening as far as his house. The next day one Isaac Zane came to see me. In the course of conversation he told me that in talking with the half-king of the Wyandots, he asked him if the Governour had not delivered him a tomahawk belt. He said he had. That the Big-Knife had threatened them for some time past, so that they could not mind their hunting, and that now they would threaten them. I asked him if it was his opinion that the Wyandots would join generally. He said it was almost certain that one half of them would not.

The next day Zane and a Wyandot man came to where we were. We conversed a good deal on the subject of the quarrel between Great Britain and the Colonies. I asked the chief what the Indians promised themselves by joining the King's troops? I told him, that perhaps, while the contest continued, they might be furnished with clothes and such like, but when it was over they must return to their former way of living; that if the Americans should be successful, they would be so incensed against the Indians who fought against them, that they would march an army into their country, destroy them, and take their lands from them. He said it was very true. "There," said he, "is my tomahawk. I will never lift it, nor shall any of my family fight against the Big-Knife, if I can help it, unless they come into my own house."

John Montour, and the Wyandot man who piloted me to Detroit, came up with us. Montour continued at Detroit two days after I left it. He told me, that after I came away he was drinking in company with the half-king of the Wyandots, and that when he got a little in liquor, he told him that the Big-Knife need never expect him to be friends with them again; and that, for his part, he should follow nothing but breaking their heads, wherever he met with them.

We set out for Coochocking. Nothing material happened on our journey. White-Eyes appeared to be a good deal chagrined, as well at the reception he met with from the Governour as from the more western tribes of Indians. He said the Delawares, he thought, were equally as liable to be struck by the western tribes as the Big-Knife was; that they kept every thing secret from them; and that, as soon as they found they were determined for war, he would collect all his people together, and would apply to his American brothers to send men to him, and erect a strong fort; that then he should not regard them, for the western tribes were but very indifferent warriors, and if they struck he would soon return the blows. "Then," said he, "the Governour of Detroit will need to take care of his head; and the people of the great falls of Niagara shall tremble, too." It was his opinion, if that should be the case, a number of the Shawanees would join him; for that one of their chiefs told him, at Detroit, that his sentiments were the same as his, respecting Great Britain and the Colonies.

SIR WILLIAM HOWE TO LORD GEORGE GERMAIN.

New-York Island, September 25, 1776.

MY LORD: Upon the present appearance of things, I look upon the further progress of this army for the campaign, to be rather precarious, an attack upon Rhode-Island excepted, which I would willingly defer for a short time, in case it should be thought advisable to employ our whole force together. The duration of the campaign must be short, and the second division of Hessians not arrived; nor have I any dependence upon General Carleton's approach, to act with influence this year, upon the main Rebel army, opposed to us, though it is reported to-day by the deserters, that General Burgoyne, with a large corps of troops and Indians, is advancing fast to Albany, by way of the Mohawk River. If he gets possession of Albany, it will no doubt, facilitate General Carleton's movement to that place, and will be attended with favourable consequences. But in my situation, I presume, I must not risk, as a check at this time would be of infinite detriment to us.

The enemy is too strongly posted to be attacked in front, and innumerable difficulties are in my way of turning him on either side, though his army is much dispirited, from the late success of his Majesty's arms; yet have I not the smallest prospect of finishing the contest this campaign, not until the Rebels see preparations in the Spring, that may preclude all thoughts of further resistance. To this end, I would propose eight or ten line-of-battle ships, to be with us in February, with a number of supernumerary seamen for manning boats, having fully experienced the want of them in every movement we have made. We must also have recruits from Europe, not finding the Americans disposed to serve with arms, notwithstanding the hopes held out to me upon my arrival at this port.

Finding the Hessians averse to having their accounts methodized, in the manner observed by the British regiments, I have given them money on account, taking care, that the sums advanced are sufficiently within the whole pay due to them by treaty, to answer for their stoppages of provisions.

An exchange of prisoners has taken place, and Major-General Prescott, in consequence of it, is with me, being exchanged for Major-General Sullivan, of the Rebel army; Governour Montfort Brown is to be returned for Lord Stirling, and Governour Skene for an inhabitant of Boston taken into custody by General Gage.

I am, my Lord, &c.,

W. HOWE.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER RECEIVED IN LONDON FROM MR. JAMES DREWITT, ON BOARD THE MERCURY FRIGATE, AT NEW-YORK, DATED THE 25TH SEPTEMBER, 1776.

Our army has met with great success; we just arrived from Halifax, when they made their landing on Long-Island, and saw the battles fought between our troops and the Rebels—the latter being drove out, leaving behind them their provisions, camp equipage, intrenching tools, &c. The Mercury was ordered abreast the place where they first engaged, to cover the boats sent to bring off the wounded, but, thank God, there were only three hundred killed, a few wounded, and a Lieutenant and thirty marines taken prisoners.

One of the fellows who set fire to this town cut a poor woman's arm off, for attempting to extinguish the fire in her own house, but a party of soldiers coming up run their bayonets through him, and some of the seamen hoisted him up by the heels to a sign-post. There are upwards of six hundred suspected persons taken up and imprisoned in the town. On the 22d, we hung a man who was sent as a spy by General Washington.

The Indians in the back settlements of Virginia, commit great cruelties among the inhabitants by burning their houses, scalping men, women and children. The Virginians had drove all their cattle to the back parts of the country, to prevent the troops from getting them, which the Indians have taken.

We hear General Burgoyne has an army of twenty thousand men, besides Indians, and has boats made to pass Lake Champlain, and expects he will soon approach near New-York. He has sent from Quebeck a number of prisoners, and a General Thompson. It is strongly reported Washington wants to throw up his commission, as the Rebels will not stand to their works; but they say, as he has brought them into a scrape, he shall continue, or get them out of it. The Rebels are now very strongly fortified at King's Bridge, about sixteen miles from New-York.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.
[Read 27th. Referred to Mr. Wythe, Mr. Hopkinson, Mr. Rutledge, Mr. J. Adams, and Mr. Stone.]

Head-Quarters, Harlem Heights, September 25, 1776.

SIR: Having wrote you fully on sundry important subjects this morning, as you will perceive by the letter which accompanies this, I mean principally now to enclose a copy of a letter received from General Howe, on Sunday morning, with the list of the prisoners in his hands, of those in our possession belonging to the army immediately under his command, and of my answer, which were omitted to be put in the other.

His letter will discover to Congress his refusal to exchange Lord Stirling for Mr. McDonald, considering the latter only as a Major. They will be pleased to determine how he is to be ranked in future.

The number of prisoners, according to the returns, is greater than what we expected. However, I am inclined to believe, that among those in the list from Long-Island, are several Militia of General Woodhull's party, who were never arranged in this army. As to those taken on the 15th, they greatly exceeded the number that I supposed fell into their hands in the retreat from the city. At the time that I transmitted an account of that affair, I had not obtained returns, and took the matter upon the officers' reports. They are difficult to get with certainty at any time. In the skirmish of Monday se'nnight, they could not have taken but very few.

Before I conclude, I shall take occasion to mention, that those returns made with such precision, and the difficulty that will attend the proposed exchange on account of the dispersed and scattered state of the prisoners in our hands, will clearly evince the necessity of appointing Commissaries and proper persons to superintend and conduct in such instances. This I took the liberty of urging more than once, as well on account of the propriety of the measure, and the saving that would have resulted from it, as that the prisoners might be treated with humanity, and have their wants particularly attended to.

I would also observe, as I esteem it my duty, that this army is in want of almost every necessary—tents, camp-kettles, blankets, and clothes of all kinds; but what is to be done with respect to the two last articles, I know not, as the term of enlistment will be nearly expired by the time they can be provided. This may be exhibited as a further proof of the disadvantages attending the levying of an army upon such a footing as never to know how to keep them without injuring the publick, or incommoding the men. I have directed the Colonel or commanding officer of each corps, to use his endeavours to procure such clothing as are absolutely necessary; but at the same time I confess, that I do not know how they are to be got.

I have the honour to be, with great respect, sir, your most obedient servant,
Go. WASHINGTON.

Head-Quarters, York-Island, September 21, 1776.

SIR: I have the favour of your letters of the 6th and 19th current. In consequence of the latter, directions are given for Major-General Sullivan being conveyed to Elizabethtown on the earliest day, and I conclude Major-General Prescott will return in the same boat.

The exchange you propose of Brigadier-General Alexander, commonly called Lord Stirling, for Mr. McDonald, cannot take place, as he has only the rank of majority by my commission; but I shall readily send any Major in the enclosed lists of prisoners, that you will be pleased to name, in exchange for him; and that Lord Stirling may not be detained, I would propose to exchange him for Governour

Montfort Brown, although the latter is no longer in the military line.

Enclosed you have a list of officers belonging to the army under my command, who are your prisoners. It is not so correct as I could wish, having received no regular return of the officers of the Forty-Second and Seventy-First Regiments, taken this year, but beg leave to refer you to Lieutenant-Colonel Campbell, of the Seventy-First, to rectify any omissions that may be; and I am to desire you will put opposite to their names such of your officers of equal rank as you would have in exchange for them. The names of the non-commissioned and privates, prisoners with you, are not sent, being unnecessary; but the return herewith enclosed specifies the number, and I shall redeem them by a like number of those in my possession; for which purpose I shall send Mr. Joshua Loring, my Commissary, to Elizabethtown, as a proper place for the exchange of prisoners, on any day you may appoint, wishing it to be an early one, wherein I presume you will concur, as it is proposed for the more speedy relief of the distressed.

As it may be some time before Mr. Lovell arrives here from Halifax, though I took the first opportunity of sending for him after your agreement to exchange him for Governour Skene, I am willing to believe upon my assurances of Mr. Lovell's being sent to you immediately on his arrival, that you will not have any objections to granting the Governour his liberty without delay, and am induced to make the proposal for your compliance, neither of the persons being connected with military service.

General Carleton has sent from Canada a number of officers and privates, as per return enclosed, to whom he has given liberty upon their paroles; and in pursuance of his desire, and their engagements to him, I shall send them to Elizabethtown on the earliest day.

It is nevertheless the General's expectation, that the exchange of prisoners, as settled by Captain Forster, in Canada, will be duly complied with, and I presume you are sufficiently sensible of the sacred regard that is ever paid to engagements of this kind, not to suffer any infringement upon the plighted faith of Colonel Arnold.

It is with much concern that I cannot close this letter without representing the ill treatment, which I am too well informed the King's officers now suffer in common gaols throughout the Province of New-England. I apply to your feelings alone for redress, having no idea of committing myself by an act of retaliation upon those in my power.

My Aid-de-Camp, charged with the delivery of this letter, will present to you a ball cut and fixed to the ends of a nail, taken from a number of the same kind found in the encampments quitted by your troops on the 15th instant. I do not make any comment upon such unwarrantable practices, being well assured the contrivance has not come to your knowledge.

I am, with due regard, sir, your most obedient servant,
W. HOWE.
To General George Washington, &c., &c., &c.

Head-Quarters, Heights of Harlem, September 23, 1776.

SIR: I yesterday evening received the favour of your letter of the 21st, by your Aid-de-Camp, Captain Montresor, in consequence of which I this morning despatched an express to Elizabethtown, with order that Major-General Prescott should be permitted to return in the boat that carried General Sullivan over to that place.

I most readily concur in the proposition you are pleased to make for the exchange of Brigadier-General Lord Stirling for Governour Montfort Brown, and have sent for him accordingly. I should hope that Lord Stirling will be immediately set at liberty, on my promise that Governour Brown shall be sent to you as soon as he arrives. I had no doubt but Mr. McDonald's title would have been acknowledged, having understood that he received his commission from the hands of Governour Martin; nor can I consent to rank him as a Major till I have proper authority from Congress, to whom I shall state the matter upon your representation.

Agreeable to your request, I shall transmit to Lieutenant-Colonel Campbell a copy of the list of officers of the Forty-Second and Seventy-First Regiments, taken by us last Spring, that it may be rectified in the instances in which it may be wrong, and will there place opposite to their names the officers I would wish in return for them. The exchange of privates I shall take the earliest opportunity in my power to carry into execution; but they being greatly dispersed through the New-England Governments in order to their better accommodation, will prevent it for some time.

Having the fullest confidence in your assurance that Mr. Lovell will be released when he arrives from Halifax, I have wrote for Governour Skene to come to Head-Quarters, that he may proceed immediately to you.

As to the exchange of prisoners settled between Captain Forster and General Arnold, I beg leave to inform you that it was a transaction in which I had not the smallest concern, nor have I authority to give directions in any degree respecting the matter.

The information you have received concerning the ill treatment of your officers, I would fain hope is not generally well founded. The letters from them which have passed through my hands, hold forth a different language. In particular instances, 'tis true, there are some who have been restricted to a closer confinement and severer treatment than they otherwise would have been, for breaking or refusing to give their paroles. Such, I am confident, will not be countenanced by your Excellency; and I am persuaded, by a closer investigation of the inquiry you will discover that there have been no other persons whatever who have experienced the smallest hardship from us. I shall, however, obtain all the information on the subject in my power, that every ground of complaint, if any exists, may be entirely removed, it being my most earnest wish that during this unhappy contest there be every exercise of humanity which the nature of the case will possibly admit of.

Your Aid-de-Camp delivered me the ball you mention, which was the first of the kind I ever saw or heard of. You may depend the contrivance is highly abhorred by me, and every measure shall be taken to prevent so wicked and infamous a practice being adopted in this army.

I have the honour to be, with due regard, sir, your most obedient servant,
GO. WASHINGTON.

To His Excellency General Howe.

TENCH TILGHMAN TO WILLIAM DUER.

Head-Quarters, Harlem Heights, September 25, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I am to give you an account of the evacuation of the post at Powle's Hook, as I promised in mine of yesterday. General Greene informs that General Mercer, seeing the enemy were determined to possess themselves by a stronger force of ships and men than we could oppose, removed all the stores and useful cannon, so that nothing fell into the enemy's hands but the guns that had been rendered unfit for further service.

Our army is posted at the town of Bergen, and our advanced party has possession of the mill just back of Powle's Hook.

What the next move of the enemy will be, I don't know. They have been quiet on this side since the affair of the 16th. They are throwing up some works in the front of their encampment on the plain, between the seven and eight mile stone.

We were unlucky in the miscarriage of a small enterprise, the night before last, which was intended to surprise the guard on Montresor's Island, and bring off what tents and baggage remained there. The party consisted of three hundred, in six boats. The headmost boat, in which were Colonel Jackson, Major Hatfield, and Major Henly, Aid-de-Camp to General Heath, pushed to the shore, landed, and drove off the guard at the water side, with ease. The other boats rowed back as soon as the firing began, though they were repeatedly called after. This damped the spirit of the first boat's crew, who could not be prevailed upon to stay. In the retreat, Colonel Jackson was wounded, Major Henly killed, and Major Hatfield is missing. A very strict scrutiny is making into the conduct of the officers who thus shamefully deserted their leader, and it is expected they will meet the fate their cowardice deserves.*

His Excellency begs your Board would immediately order down what powder is ready at Wisner's and Livingston's Mills.

A Committee of Continental Congress are now here, inspecting the present state of the army, and endeavouring to form some new regulations for the better government in future. One principal step will be, enlistment during the war.

I am, with due respect, sir, your most obedient servant,

TENCH TILGHMAN.

To William Duer, Esq.

* September 22, 1776.—Two seamen, belonging to the La Brune, a British ship of war, which lay near Montresor's Island, deserted, and came to General Heath's quarters, and informed him, upon examination, that the British had then but a few men on the Island, stating the number; that the piece of cannon which had been put on the Island was taken back again, on board the La Brune; that there were a number of officers at the house, in which there was a considerable quantity of baggage deposited, &c. General Heath supposed that these troops might be easily taken; and, having called the General Officers of his division together, took their opinion, who all coincided with him in sentiment. He then communicated his intention to the Commander-in-Chief, who gave it his approbation. Two hundred and forty men were destined for this enterprise. The command was given to Lieutenant-Colonel Michael Jackson, of the Massachusetts Line, with Majors Logan and ———, whose name cannot be recollected, of the New-York troops. They were to embark on board three flat-boats, covered by a fourth with a detachment of Artillery, with a light three-pounder, in case it should be found necessary in retreating from the Island. The mode of attack was settled, and every circumstance secured to promise success. They were to fall down to Harlem Creek with the ebb. The time was so calculated that the young flood was to be so much made, at the break of day, as to cover the flats at the Island sufficiently for the boats to float. Matters being thus settled, General Heath ordered the two sailors to be brought in. He then told them that, in consequence of their information, an enterprise against the British troops on Montresor's Island was to take place that night; that he had ordered them to be kept in safe custody until the next morning, when, if their declarations respecting the state of the British on the Island proved to be true, he would give them a passport to the back country, whither they wished to go; but, in case their information was false, he would order them hanged immediately, as spies; that he gave them the opportunity, if they had made a wrong statement to him, then to correct it. They both answered, with perfect composure, that they would cheerfully submit to the condition.

Major Thomas Henly was now one of our General's Aids-de-Camp. He importuned that he might go with the detachment. He was refused, and told that he had no business there; that he could exercise no command. He grew quite impatient, returned again to the General's room, and addressed him, "Pray, sir, consent to my going with the party. Let me have the pleasure of introducing the prisoners to you to-morrow." All his friends present advised him not to go. The General finally consented.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM AN OFFICER AT HARLEM, DATED SEPTEMBER 25, 1776.

I last night paid the last tribute to the remains of a gallant young officer, Major Henly, Aid-de-Camp to General Heath. He fell unsupported and unrevenged, owing to the backwardness of the rest of the party, consisting of one hundred and forty, who intended to have surprised a guard of the enemy, consisting (as was supposed) of about fifty, on Montresor's Island, which lies in the East River, on the mouth of the little river Harlem. This party went in four boats: Major Henly, Lieutenant-Colonel Jackson, Majors Hatfield and Hubbart, were in the first boat, and landed and at first drove the enemy; but neither of the other boats coming to their assistance, they were obliged to retreat, but not till every one of these gallant officers were either killed or wounded, and with the loss of half their men.

By the best accounts, we learn, that about a quarter part of the city of York is burnt, and that it was purposely fired by some private persons. Since this fire, the enemy have practised some inhuman cruelties on the unfortunate wretches they have in their power, under pretence of their being concerned in the plot. They have hanged numbers by the feet, and then cut their throats! The Hessians are continually plundering, and are countenanced by their General; and General Howe dares not punish them for fear of producing a general mutiny.

CAPTAIN DUMOND TO JOHN M'KESSON.

Kingston, September 25, 1776.

SIR: When I was last at Fishkill, the Convention made an order to render an account of the flour, bought agreeable to an order delivered to me last summer, to be sent to Ticonderoga for the use of the army, which I herewith enclose. Beg you to deliver the same to Mr. Banker, as I have made no charge for any expenses, and not being acquainted what is customary to charge commissions, beg you will do it, or desire Mr. Banker to do it for me. Mr. Van Vleet promised me to pay into your hands the sum of seventy pounds, which said money was left in his hands to pay this account since last fall; as I have laid out the other part of the cash that remains, for powder and other charges. The County Convention long disputed who was the Treasurer. Could not get the accounts audited to draw the money due to me from the Treasury. As soon as the County Convention meets, shall settle the whole, as the Convention of the State of New-York has settled that point about the Treasury. Must beg the favour of you to send me a few lines by our post, as I expect to be at Fishkill soon, the latter end of next week, if the County Committee meets. I was this morning at Mr. Clinton's; your sister and all the family are well. I am with part of Col-

The troops, at the hour assigned, embarked. General Heath informed them that he, with others, would be spectators of the scene from a certain point near Haarlem Creek. Notice had been given to the guards and pickets on the York-Island side, not to hail the party as they went down. Unfortunately, the lower sentinel had not been so instructed. He was nearly opposite to the point where General Heath was to be; and just at the instant when he arrived, had challenged the boats, and ordered them to come to the shore. From the boats they answered, "Lo! we are friends." The challenge was repeated. The answer was, "We tell you we are friends; hold your tongue." A bounce into the water was heard, and instantly Major Henly came wading to the shore, stepped up to our General, caught him by the hand, and said, "Sir, will it do?" General Heath, holding him by the hand, replied, "I see nothing to the contrary." To which Henly concluded by saying, "Then it shall do." He waded back to his boat, and got in. The sentinel called again, "If you don't come to the shore, I tell you I'll fire." A voice from some one in the boats was, "Pull away!" The boats went on, and the sentinel fired his piece. The boats reached the Island almost at the moment intended, just as the glimmer of the dawn was discoverable. The three Field Officers were in the first boat. Their intention, on the moment of landing, was, for the two seconds in command to spring, the one to the right, and the other to the left, and lead on the troops from the other two boats, which were to land on each side of the first boat. The Field Officers landed, and the men from their boat. The enemy's guard charged them, but were instantly driven back. The men in the other two boats, instead of landing, lay upon their oars. The British, seeing this, returned warmly to the charge. The Americans, finding themselves deserted, returned to their boat; but not until Lieutenant-Colonel Jackson received a musket ball in his leg, and Major Henly, as he was getting into the boat, one through his heart, which put an instant end to his life. The boat joined the others, and they all returned, having, in the whole, about fourteen killed, wounded, and missing. Major Henly deeply regretted. Had only one of the other boats landed her men, the success would have been very probable; but the two would have insured an execution of the whole plan, in the opinion of all concerned. The delinquents in the other boats were arrested, and tried by Court-Martial, and one of the Captains cashiered.—Heath.

onel Snyder's regiment, now going to the forts; shall return in two or three days.

I am, sir, your friend and humble servant,
Excuse haste. EGBERT DUMOND.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read October 4, 1776.]

Albany, September 25, 1776.

SIR: Yesterday I was honoured with a letter from his Excellency General Washington, of the 20th instant, covering sundry resolutions of Congress.

I thank Congress with a sincerity equal to the attention they have evinced in their resolution of the 14th of September, whereby I am made acquainted that my letter "of the 16th of August was duly received, and referred to the committee appointed to inquire into the causes of the miscarriages in Canada." Permit me to entreat the favour of a further resolution, that I may be permitted to defend my conduct, and if possible point out other causes of the miscarriages in Canada, besides those taken notice of in the resolutions of the 30th July—causes which are so obvious, that I could not but wonder that they passed unnoticed.

I must also beg the indulgence of Congress to order some answer to be given to such parts of my several letters of the 20th July, 16th, 18th, 25th, and 29th August, and 2d, 8th, and 9th September, as are yet unanswered, and one or other of which, I humbly conceive contain matters of some moment to the weal of the American States. Congress will pardon me, if I presume to hint, that there appears to me a little impropriety in resolving that the powder, &c., "be immediately sent to General Gates for the use of the army in the Northern department," as I believe my resignation had not reached Congress on the day that resolution was made. It might perhaps have been as well, if it had been sent to me, as I then could have ordered part of it to Fort Stanwix, and such other places where it is wanted. Should it, however, come to hand, whilst I continue in the command, I shall take the liberty of ordering some into Tryon County. General Gates has begged me to send him twenty casks of shingle nails; not a pound is to be had here, except such as the blacksmiths make, and they cannot complete them as fast as they are wanted for the works now in hand. It will, therefore, be very difficult to build the necessary barracks, until a supply comes up. I believe I applied for nails in one of the letters referred to.

Indians are daily applying for clothing. If some provision is not made to enable your Commissioners to supply them, it may be attended with the most fatal consequences.

I shall transmit a copy of the resolutions to General Gates, with a request to publish such as are necessary so to be.

I do not know the occasion of the resolution respecting the Commissary-General's department. If it is in consequence of any intervention of mine in that branch, I must advise Congress that I have acted in such a manner as not to leave the least occasion to repent of what I have done; returns must and shall be made me, through the proper channel, or I will punish the offender, whilst I am in command, and I will always interfere in every department under my command, when it becomes necessary for the good of the service; and if I had not held this kind of conduct, perhaps things would be in a much worse condition than they are.

I am, sir, very sincerely, and very respectfully your obedient, humble servant,
PH. SCHUYLER.
To the Hon. John Hancock.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Albany, September 25, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I am honoured with your Excellency's favour of the 20th instant. Your situation at New-York has been truly alarming; and it is probable, that had you not so judiciously retreated, and with such good order and despatch, you would have been involved in almost inextricable difficulties. I hope the enemy have got all they will get this campaign, and that we shall be better able to cope with them in another.

I thank your Excellency for the copy of the resolves of Congress enclosed in yours. They had not been transmitted me from Philadelphia. Indeed, I have not been honoured with a line from Congress for a very long time past, a neglect which I do not think I have deserved, and which I, therefore, feel the more sensibly.

I shall hope that one of their resolutions of the 14th instant, was not meant to insult me. It was certainly improper to resolve that the military stores should be immediately sent to General Gates, "for the use of the Northern department," as Congress had not then received my resignation.

I have taken measures to have all the boards in the country brought to this place, and to the banks of Hudson's River, below it, and shall have them forwarded to you as fast as they arrive; and, give me leave to assure, that although I shall soon be out of the army, I shall with as great cheerfulness obey any commands that you may honour me with when I am a private citizen, as I have always done those which I received from you as my superiour officer.

I am, dear sir, with every sentiment of esteem and affection, your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,
PH. SCHUYLER.

To His Excellency General Washington.

Wilmington and Cumberland were represented by letters from some of the principal inhabitants.

At a General Convention of forty-six Delegates on the New-Hampshire Grants, on the east and west the range of Green Mountains, representing thirty-six Towns on said Grants, held at Dorset, the 25th day September, 1776, by adjournment:

Whereas this Convention have for a series of years had under their particular consideration the disingenuous conduct of the former Colony, now State of New-York, towards the inhabitants of that district of land commonly called and known by the name of the New-Hampshire Grants; the several illegal, unjustifiable and unwarrantable measures they have taken to deprive by fraud, violence, and oppression, those inhabitants of their property, and in particular their landed interest; and as this Convention have reason to expect a continuance of the same kind of disingenuity, unless some measures effectual be taken to form the said district a separate and distinct one from New-York:

And whereas it at present appears to this Convention, that for the foregoing reasons, together with the distance of road which lies between this district and New-York, that it will be very inconvenient for those inhabitants to associate or connect with them, for the time being, directly or indirectly:

Therefore, this Convention, being fully convinced that it is necessary that every individual in the United States of America should exert themselves to their utmost ability in the defence of the liberties thereof, and that this Convention may the better satisfy the publick of their punctual attachment to the said common cause, at present as well as heretofore, we do make and subscribe the following, viz: We, the subscribers, inhabitants of that district of land commonly called and known by the name of the New-Hampshire Grants, being legally delegated and authorized to transact the publick and political affairs of the aforesaid district of land, for ourselves and constituents, do solemnly covenant and engage that for the time being we will strictly and religiously adhere to the several resolves passed in this or a future Convention, constituted on said district, by the free voice of the friends to American liberties, that shall not be repugnant to the resolves of the honourable Continental Congress, relative to the general cause of America.

In General Convention, New-Hampshire Grants,
Dorset, September 25, 1776. }

Whereas the difference which has for a number of years last past subsisted between the State of New-York and the inhabitants of the said New-Hampshire Grants, relative to the title of the lands on said district, has not as yet subsided,

Resolved, therefore, by this Convention, That no law or laws, direction or directions, from the State of New-York, should be accepted; neither will they hold themselves bound thereby.

Extract from the Minutes: JONAS FAY, Clerk.

In Convention of Fifty-Six Representatives from the several Counties and Towns of the NEW-HAMPSHIRE GRANTS, holden at DORSET, 25th of SEPTEMBER, 1776, by adjournment.*

That the Committee of War be, and are hereby, empowered to issue their warrants in the name and by the authority of this Convention, to the several Field-Officers in the Militia on the district of the New-Hampshire Grants. That on any sufficient notice received from the General or Commander-in-Chief of any of the Armies of the United States of America, or the honourable Continental Congress, requesting the assistance of the Militia, to march immediately to the relief of such part of the Continent as they may be requested to; and in case any person legally warned or notified justly belonging to any or either of the Company or Companies of the Militia on said district, shall refuse on such notification to attend and perform the duty enjoined on him or them by the officers of the Regiments to which he or they do or may belong, that they be fined, unless sufficient excuse be rendered to the said Committee of War.

Extract from the Minutes:

IRA ALLEN, Assistant Clerk.

Extracts of the Votes and Proceedings of General Convention, held at DORSET, on the NEW-HAMPSHIRE GRANTS, by adjournment, the 25th, 26th, and 27th days of SEPTEMBER, in 1776.

2. Voted that the Records of the Proceedings of this Convention, held at this place, from the 16th of January try all non-commissioned officers and soldiers in their respective regiments, said fines to be applied to furnish those soldiers in said regiment with arms, ammunition, and accoutrements, &c., as are not able to furnish themselves.

Resolved, That each non-commissioned officer and soldier immediately furnish himself with a good gun, with a bayonet, sword, or tomahawk, one pound powder, four pounds of bullets suitable for his gun, six flints, powder-horn, cartouch-box, or bullet-pouch; and for want of a gun, to pay a fine of two dollars on each day required to appear under arms, and for want of each other accoutrement the sum of half a dollar.

Resolved, That the Committee of War be, and they are hereby, empowered to issue their warrants to the several Field-Officers of Militia on the district of the New-Hampshire Grants, on any sufficient notice received from the General or other Commander-in-Chief of any of the Armies of the United States of America, or from the honourable the Continental Congress, requiring the assistance of the Militia, commanding the several officers and soldiers of such regiment immediately to collect, with such necessities as the route may require, and repair forthwith to such part of the United States as they may be required; and in case any commissioned, non-commissioned officer or soldier who shall be legally warned, justly belonging to any the Company or Companies of such Militia, shall refuse or neglect on such notification to attend and perform the duty or duties enjoined on him by the officers of the Regiment to which he or they do or may belong, that the officer, non-commissioned officer, or soldier, so refusing or neglecting to do and perform the duty or duties so required, be subject to the payment of such fine respectively as shall be laid on him or them at the discretion of the said Committee of War.

last to this time, be read, to give light to those gentlemen Delegates from the east side of the Green Mountains in particular, and the whole in general.

6. Voted to make a general list of the names of those of the several Towns on the New-Hampshire Grants, who have signed the General Association voted by the last Convention to be signed.

7. Voted that no Member of this Convention be permitted to speak more than three times to one cause, at one sitting, without leave of the Board.

8. Voted that the Association originally signed be returned to the Clerk of this Convention, at their next sitting at Westminster, the last Wednesday of October next.

9. Voted to submit the Vote relative to making application to the Continental Congress for a new State, to those gentlemen delegated from the east side of the Mountains, for their consideration, which they report, or have reported, their acquiescence therein.

10. Voted to show our minds, whether we will take every suitable or proper step to obtain to be a separate or distinct State by ourselves; and it passed in the affirmative, not one dissenting vote.

11. Voted to choose seven persons for a Committee to form a plan for future proceedings, and report to this Convention.

12. Choose Colonel William Marsh, Doctor Jonas Fay, Doctor Reuben Jones, Captain Ira Allen, Colonel Thomas Chittenden, Colonel Benjamin Carpenter, and Colonel James Rogers, a Committee for the above purpose.

14. Voted that a compact or covenant be made and subscribed by the Members of this Convention, for themselves and constituents, for the security of their common liberties and properties, in conjunction with the free and independent States of America.

15. Voted that the above covenant be made and subscribed at this meeting; and that the several Counties on the New-Hampshire Grants be furnished with a copy, to be signed by the several individuals to be returned to this Convention.

16. Voted that some covenant or compact be entered into by this Convention.

17. Voted that Colonel William Marsh, Colonel Moses Robinson, Mr. Ebenezer Hoisington, Doctor Reuben Jones, Colonel Thomas Chittenden, and Doctor Abijah Durham, be and are a Committee to form the said covenant, and report the same to this Convention to-morrow morning.

The foregoing Committee reported to Convention, in the morning, as follows:

19. Voted that suitable provisions be made that the whole of the inhabitants of said New-Hampshire Grants, on each side of the Mountains, be notified, and have proper opportunity to join and coincide with the measures taken, and to be taken hereafter, for the benefit of forming said District into a separate body or State.

20. Voted that Colonel Jacob Bayley, Captain Abner Sely, and Colonel Jacob Kent, be a Joint Committee to exhibit the Proceedings of this Convention to the inhabitants of the County of Gloucester, and request them to join the Association left with them at their County Convention, held at Hetford, the 13th day of August last; and return the same by the Delegate or Delegates chosen, or to be hereafter chosen, to meet and join this Convention at their next sitting.

21. Voted that it be and is hereby recommended to the several Chairmen of the several Committees of the several Towns on the west side the range of Green Mountains, on the New-Hampshire Grants, faithfully see to it, that the Association made at the last sitting of this Committee be forthwith signed by every individual male inhabitant of each Town, from sixteen years old and upwards, and that, for the future, each person subscribe his own name or mark; that said Association thus signed be returned to Jonas Fay, the Clerk of this Convention, at or before the next sitting of this Convention, on the last Wednesday of October next, to be held at Westminster; as also the names and reasons of those who refuse to sign said Association.

22. Choose Colonel William Marsh and Captain Ira Allen to go over the east side of the Mountain, to assist in collecting their minds and signing of Association in the Counties of Cumberland and Gloucester.

23. Choose Doctor Jonas Fay, Doctor Reuben Jones, and Colonel William Marsh, a Committee to draw a remonstrance or petition to send to the Continental Congress, and report to this Convention as soon as may be.

24. Voted that Doctor Jonas Fay write an answer to Doctor John Wheelock's letter.

25. Voted that the Committees of Safety for the several Towns on the New-Hampshire Grants be legally invested with the same power as other Committees of Safety for other Towns in any of the free States in America.

26. Voted that a sufficient Gaol be made on the west side of the range of Green Mountains, at such place as shall hereafter be agreed on, for securing Tories, &c.

27. Voted that Nathan Clark, Esq., Captain Michael Veal, Captain Samuel Benton, Major Jeremiah Clark, and Colonel James Mead, be and are hereby appointed a Committee to assign the place for erecting a Gaol as above, and prescribe some method for effecting the same as soon as may; and report to this Convention as soon as they conveniently can.

28. Voted that every Colonel issue his orders, immediately, to his several Captains, to muster their Companies, and to take the number of men gone in the service, and what service, and how many at home, and their arms and ammunition; and the Colonels to make their returns to the Committee of War, and they to this Convention.

34. That Doctor Reuben Jones and Lieutenant Spaulding wait, and take the Proceedings of this Convention, and deliver to their constituents.

35. That thirteen Members from this Convention to the Convention on the other side.

36. It's recommended for every Town to send one Member.

38. Voted that Jonas Fay, Colonel William Marsh, and Doctor Jones, be a Committee to prepare a Petition to the honourable Continental Congress.

46. That as it appears that the Town of Arlington are principally Tories, yet the friends of liberty are ordered to warn a meeting, and choose a Committee of Safety, and conduct as other Towns. If they meet with opposition, to make application to the Committees of Safety of the neighbouring Towns for assistance.

47. That Colonel Benjamin Carpenter, of Guilford, notify Hinsdale, Halifax, and Guilford; Captain Francis Whitmore, of New-Marlborough, notify New-Marlborough, Brattleborough, and Draper; Lieutenant Leonard Spaulding and Captain Samuel Fletcher notify Putney and New-Fain, Townsend, and Dummerston, for the purpose of the within Resolves.

49. That this Convention be adjourned to Wednesday, the 30th day of October next, to be held at the Court House at Westminster, at ten o'clock in the forenoon.

A true copy from the original. Attest:

JONAS FAY, Clerk of said Convention.

GENERAL GATES TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Ticonderoga, September 22, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: Your favours of the 14th, 16th, and 17th instant, are now before me. In return, I have the pleasure to send you, enclosed, General Arnold's letters to me of the 15th and 16th, together with the examination of Sergeant Day, a deserter from Colonel Maclean's Regiment, formerly a Sergeant in Captain Lamb's company of artillery; also, the examination of Antoine Girard, a Canadian. The men themselves will be with you soon, as they set out this day for Albany. The Sergeant has the appearance of an open, honest fellow, well attached. The old Canadian, General Arnold has in his letter given reasons for suspecting, which are strongly increased by what you will find enclosed from my Secretary.

I am convinced you have done every thing in your power to procure the cordage, &c., wanted for the row-galleys, as I must gratefully acknowledge you have constantly done, to send every supply demanded for the troops here.

As the command you mention is going to devolve upon me, is totally unsought for and unsolicited, I must in truth and sincerity assure you, that it is an honour from the possession of which I cannot receive the smallest satisfaction, unless you will suffer me to hope that you will continue to give every aid which your experience, interest, and authority, so preëminently supply. The business of this campaign, with the climate, &c., &c., has so worn me down, that I believe all honour or command will be to me no more than the last blaze of the candle. I devoted myself to the service when I entered it, and will, while I am able, continue to serve. If we finish triumphantly, our posterity will be happy, and in process of time, I hope, all mankind free. These are objects of higher import than a million of lives such as mine.

I am, dear General, your affectionate and most obedient, humble servant,
Ho. GATES.

Isle la Motte, September 15, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: Your favour of the 12th instant was delivered me last night, by Ensign Botsford, who narrowly escaped being lost in his passage down, and was obliged to throw overboard the barrels of provision, to lighten his batteau. I am happy to find you approve of my returning from the Isle-aux-Têtes. Our present situation is five miles to the southward of Point-au-Fer, and two miles to the southward of the north end of Isle la Motte, at a part of the island, where that Lake is one and a half to two miles over. To the southward of us there is no part of the Lake less than two miles over, and entirely out of the reach of any batteries that can possibly be erected by the enemy, of whose naval force I have been able to procure no other intelligence than from a deserter, Thomas Day, whom I have sent you by Ensign Botsford, with his examination, which is enclosed. I have heard nothing from Lieutenant Whitcomb, or Ensign McCoy, since they left the Isle-aux-Noix, from which a man returned from each party, who agree that there is about one thousand men encamped there. They saw no water craft except batteaus.

I have despatched a Frenchman to St. John's for intelligence, whom I found in the bay of Missisqui; he has promised to return in four days with intelligence. If I hear nothing from St. John's soon, I design making a remove to the Island Valcour, until joined by the three galleys. There is a good harbour, and if the enemy venture up the Lake, it will be impossible for them to take advantage of our situation. If we should succeed on our attack on them, it will be impossible for any of them to escape; if we are worsted, our retreat is open and free; in case of wind, which generally blows fresh at this season, our craft will make good weather when their batteaus cannot keep the Lake.

I am glad to hear General Waterbury has taken charge of the galleys. I make no doubt they will soon be completed. My best pilot I sent up by Major Greer.

I requested General Schuyler to send for four Captains of the galleys, since which I have appointed only two. At that time three galleys were nearly finished, and four others ordered to be put on the stocks, which still left a vacancy for one Captain. Captain Warner is one of the four which was requested; one of the others, I wish sent for the Royal Savage, the third for the galley on the stocks, and the fourth for one of the others ordered to be built, which ought to be put on the stocks long ere this. The greatest part of the timber was cut for the four last galleys before I left Skeensborough; and as the carpenters and materials are procured, will it not be prudence and economy to have them completed?

In my last I wrote you we were victualled to the 20th instant. In that calculation I computed ten barrels of pork and twenty of flour, left at Crown-Point, which I ordered to be sent down in the gondola. The order was neglected and the provision left behind, so that the supply sent now will victual us no longer than the 26th instant, unless supplied by the inhabitants on the Lake, of which there is little prospect. Cannot a Frenchman or two, who is acquainted in Canada, and can be depended upon, be sent me with the tobacco?

I keep the two small schooners continually cruising above and below us. The countersign is never given until four o'clock. Two guard-boats are posted every night two miles below us, at a proper distance, to discover the approach of the enemy; another boat goes the rounds every two hours all night; every ship keeps half their men constantly on deck under arms and matches lighted. It will be impossible for the enemy to surprise us.

I am greatly obliged to you for the friendly notice you have taken of me in your publick letter, which, I make no doubt, will have the desired effect.

I am surprised you have received no particular accounts of the battle on Long-Island. The severe check the enemy have met with will doubtless dispirit them greatly, and will, I hope, prove a happy prelude to future success. I hope you will soon have the particulars of the affair. The Act of Independence I will send, agreeable to your directions.

I am, with sentiments of respect and esteem, dear General, your affectionate, humble servant,

B. ARNOLD.

Isle la Motte, September 16, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: The hard gale of yesterday prevented my sending back Ensign Botsford. This morning at one o'clock, Antoine Geroure, whom I mentioned to have sent to St. John's, returned, and gives the following account, viz: That at Isle-aux-Noix there are three thousand troops encamped, and forty pieces of cannon mounted on their lines. At St. John's are three thousand men, one hundred and fifty batteaus; and he was told by a Frenchman two hundred batteaus were at Chamblee, and a party of men sent down to fetch them up; that two schooners were completed and manned, one mounting twelve and the other fourteen brass twelve-pounders; the small vessels on the stocks to carry three guns each; one gondola taken from us and three new ones built there, to mount three guns each; a number of flat-bottomed boats and batteaus, to carry one gun each, and a floating battery with two masts, nearly done, to carry twenty-four eighteen-pounders and two mortars. He imagines the whole will be completed in a fortnight. He has brought a pass from the Isle-aux-Noix, from which and the distance he had to go, the bad weather and time he has been gone, I believe he has been no farther than the Isle-aux-Noix, and that he has been enjoined by the officer there to give the foregoing account. Had not they been convinced he was in their interest, I don't imagine they would have suffered him to return. He formerly lived with Metcalf, whom he says is gone to St. John's, now remains at a French house opposite the Isle-aux-Motte, where Sergeant Day says a number of deserters were lately taken, betrayed to the Indians by the Frenchman. I have every reason to think him placed as a spy on us. I have therefore sent him to you, to be disposed of as you may think proper. I had promised him fifty dollars, provided he procured an exact account of the strength of the enemy. Agreeable to the accounts I received from others, from the accounts of the two men who have viewed the Isle-aux-Noix, one of whom I now send, the accounts of this Frenchman must be false, and a story formed for him by one of the English officers.

I have heard nothing of Lieutenant Whitcomb, or Ensign McCoy, and am very apprehensive for their safety, as the woods are full of Indians.

I am, respectfully, dear General, your obedient, humble servant,

B. ARNOLD.

To Hon. Major-General Gates.

Examination of Sergeant THOMAS DAY, of Colonel MACLEAN'S Regiment, late of Captain LAMB'S Company, who deserted from POINT-AUX-TREMBLES, between MONTREAL and SORREL, with two others, the 31st AUGUST.

Says: That the whole of his Regiment were quartered at Point-aux-Trembles; that there are at Quebeck twelve hundred of the foreign troops; the Thirty-Fourth Regiment are at Trois Rivières and Sorrel; three Companies of the Twenty-Ninth Regiment at Montreal, two Companies, with Colonel Johnston and his Indians, at Lachine. The remainder of the army at St. John's, Chamblee, and the Isle-aux-Noix. The whole army in Canada he says he has heard the officers compute at seven thousand men, including foreigners. The Ninth, Twentieth, Twenty-First, Twenty-Fourth, Twenty-Ninth, Thirty-First, Thirty-Fourth, and Forty-Seventh Regiments are included in the above. That there are no Canadians in the King's service; that they are much oppressed and robbed of every thing by the Regulars, obliged to work without being paid for it, and universally wish we were in possession of the country again. That he heard there were two schooners taken to pieces and brought up to St. John's, to carry six pounders and ten swivels each. That he understood there were two or three more sloops and schooners, with some gondolas and floating batteries, building at St. John's. That he frequently heard for a fortnight before he deserted, that the army were in a few days to cross the Lake for Crown-Point. That the troops at Quebeck were very sickly and many died, as well as at Chamblee, St. John's, and the Isle-aux-Noix, in particular the foreigners at the latter places; they were attacked with the fever and flux. That fifty men had signed an agreement to desert together, but were betrayed by one of the company, when part of them were condemned to be sent to Senegal during life. That two men deserted with him, whom he parted with the day before.

B. ARNOLD.

On board the Royal Savage, September 12, 1776.

Examination of ANTOINE GIRARD, a CANADIAN, and a tenant of Mr. SIMON METCALF, on MISSISQUI BAY, sent to TICONDEROGA by General ARNOLD, and interrogated in the FRENCH language in the presence and by the order of the Honourable Major-General GATES; with some circumstances which may assist the Honourable Major-General SCHUYLER in forming a right judgment of this prisoner.

Antoine Girard was brought to Ticonderoga about the latter end of July, from Crown-Point, having been taken when coming from St. John's, by a scouting party detached by Lieutenant-Colonel Hartley, the commanding officer at Crown-Point. Girard, who appeared a harmless, unintelligent man, was detained here some weeks, and afterwards sent back, upon Mr. Metcalf's clerk answering for his good behaviour.

He says that about the latter end of August, Mr. Metcalf having heard a great cannonade, which continued a considerable time, and was judged to be about Isle-aux-Noix, he was anxious concerning the cause and event, and to obtain information, went towards the Lake, but was taken by a party of Indians, at the carrying place, from Missiski Bay to Isle-aux-Noix, and carried to St. John's, as he, Girard, was afterwards informed of by General Frazer.

On the 10th of September, Mrs. Metcalf being exceedingly uneasy at Mr. Metcalf's not coming back, sent Girard to inquire what was the cause of her husband's delay. Girard proceeded to the house of one Thomas, a Frenchman, who lives between Missiski and the Lake, about four miles from that part of Isle la Motte, where he found our fleet.

He pretends he did not know before he came to Thomas's, that General Arnold was stationed there, and that he went to the fleet in order to know whether our troops had not taken Mr. Metcalf, who General Arnold told him had not been made a prisoner by any of his officers, and if taken, must have been carried off by the English troops.

Girard says that General Arnold proposed to him to go to St. John's on the pretence of inquiring about Mr. Metcalf, and considering him as a trusty man, promised him fifty dollars should he bring good intelligence, but forbade him to mention to the enemy that he had seen our fleet. Girard confesses that as he perceived nobody on board the fleet seemed to know he had been lately suspected of acting as a spy for the enemy, and brought to Ticonderoga as such, he concealed that circumstance from General Arnold, and proceeded on the 12th instant as a spy in our service to Isle-aux-Noix, where he saw next day General Frazer, who knew him long before, and let him go to St. John's.

Girard says he was informed there were three thousand men at Isle-aux-Noix, but does not believe it. He saw at a distance two vessels at St. John's, one of which he believes mounts fourteen eight or twelve-pounders; another, supposed a gondola, rigged in a very odd manner, which would carry, some said, twenty-two heavy guns, and be ready within a fortnight. The enemy have three galleys, and a great number of batteaus, besides one floating battery. There is no General officer, but a Colonel at St. John's. Two hundred Canadians and fifty Regulars are near River à-la-Colle, and a guard of fifty men daily relieved there, at one Stout's, a tailor. He likewise says that nine Indians, with a Canadian interpreter, were sent off as a scouting party the 10th instant, to carry off some prisoners from this camp, and were to land about six miles below Crown-Point, whence they were to march along the mountains to the skirts of our encampment, and wait for an opportunity to execute their design.

Ticonderoga, September 20, 1776.

I have faithfully interpreted and related in the preceding writing, the particulars reported by Antoine Girard as therein mentioned.

WM. CLAJON,

Secretary to Major-General Gates.

H. GLEN TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Schenectady, September 25, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I find by a good many charges that I have been at, by transporting the baggage of two regiments up this river, and by forwarding some provisions to Johnstown in wagons, which could not be done by boats, that I shall have occasion for some more money. I would be glad to know if I could get a warrant for the same.

I am very sorry to learn that you are going to resign your commission, though the reason is best known to yourself.

I can assure you with pleasure, that every thing to the westward is in good order. There is a good stock of provisions at Fort Stanwix, German Flats, and Johnstown.

The bearer hereof is Mr. Haramanus V. Slyck, who has signed the Association, and is a friend of the cause. I recommend him to you for a pass for himself and two more to go with necessaries for the army to Ticonderoga. In giving him a pass, will be acknowledged a favour done to, dear sir, your most obedient servant,

H. GLEN.

To Major-General Schuyler.

UDNEY HAY TO CAPTAIN RAYMOND.

September 25, 1776.

SIR: You will please ride out to the party who have been employed in making a road from Mount Independence to Otter Creek. The entrance to the road you will be shown by any of the soldiers on Mount Independence. You will please observe if the road is properly made, if the stumps are cut sufficiently low, and the necessary bridges made over such gullies or miry places as cattle would not be able to pass over when the rainy season comes on. You will follow Mr. Avery's directions with respect to the method necessary to furnish the party with provisions. There is a Colonel Barrett, who is making a bridge over Otter Creek, to whom you will be directed the highest road by the first party you go to. Acquaint Colonel Barrett that the General desires an exact account of what he has been doing, at the same time make such a survey of it yourself, as will enable you to form an opinion whether the party has been sufficiently diligent. Wishing you a good ride, am, sir, yours, &c.,

UDNEY HAY,

A. D. Quartermaster-General.

To Captain Edward Raymond.

EDWARD RAYMOND TO COLONEL HAY.

September 27, 1776.

In obedience to your order of the 25th instant, I proceeded to Mount Independence, entered the new road, and passed on about eight miles; surveyed the road as I passed, found it cleared about one rod wide, with bridges where wanting. Gave the officer of the party Mr. Avery's directions as to provisions; then proceeded by marked trees about twelve miles to the old road leading to Crown-Point—found the land broken and ridgy, bad to clear. 26th, I passed on to Otter Creek, which I judge to be twelve or fourteen miles, where I found Colonel Barrett with a party building a bridge over said creek; the abutments laid; one pair trestles raised; the others, with the whole of the bridge, appeared to me to be near ready to raise. 27th, returned back.

EDWARD RAYMOND, W. Master.

To Colonel Hay.

COLONEL HARTLEY TO GENERAL ST. CLAIR.

Mount Hartley, Crown-Point, September 25, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: You will think it odd that I should be troubling you when I have nothing material to communicate.

Ensign Saunders mentions that the English employ no savages, yet we every day are informed that hundreds of them watch our fleets and take every opportunity in company with the Regulars to annoy us. They charge us with barbarism, when they every day practise it. They are certainly put to shifts when they call on such scandalous allies.

I find there is weight in what you said about the enemy's approaching this fall. They will certainly attempt, I believe; but if the galleys get down in time they will be disappointed. Should the fleet come up to Split-Rock, which perhaps would be very proper, the Indians on the Lake will pursue it. They will, doubtless, if they have any strength, pay us a visit here. Should they, I believe we will sweat them, especially if we can give you timely notice, so as to assist us in cutting off their retreat. I find the enemy have a very despicable opinion of us; this may, perhaps, lead them into a scrape some day or other, which may not be far off.

Since my return from Head-Quarters, my people have been employed in making huts, &c., and will soon be comfortable. If we had some more of the bark we would do well. Such as are in health are really in good spirits.

I have just now sent off two scouts to the westward, with three days' provision, to see if they can discover any thing of an enemy. They are two expert men; they will stand no great chance of being taken should an enemy be in the way, and will be very likely to bring us intelligence. My parties down the Lake made no discoveries lately.

Should any thing material happen at any time in this quarter, I shall immediately communicate it to Head-Quarters. If there is any thing new from New-York, I would be glad to hear by the bearer. I do not expect you to answer every letter I trouble you with, as your department will not, perhaps, grant you as much leisure as my situation does me.

I am, dear General, with best respects to Colonels Wayne, De Haas, and Johnston, your most humble and respectful servant,

THOS. HARTLEY.

To General St. Clair.

P. S. I hope to see you here this week in one of the galleys.

State of CONNECTICUT—By the GOVERNOUR:

All persons in this State who have any demands for services, or disbursements for publick service, in the Northern department, are directed to prepare well-authenticated accounts of the same, and exhibit or procure them to be exhibited to the honourable Commissioners of the Continental Congress, now sitting at Albany, in the State of New-York, for adjustment and payment. And the several printers in this State are required to insert this notice in their newspapers as soon as may be.

Given under my hand in Lebanon, the 25th day of September, Anno Domini 1776.

JONATHAN TRUMBULL.

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Lebanon, September 25, 1776.

SIR: I am honoured with your favour of the 15th instant, and thank you for the Indian treaty. I have taken copies and returned the originals by my son.

That you have sent Congress a resignation of your command—that you are obliged to vindicate your character by publishing a narrative of your conduct, are matters I cannot hear of but with deep concern. I make no doubt of your ability to justify yourself, yet fear the consequences of such an appeal, at this time especially. I wish to see your character stand as fair with the world as it does with me, but cannot wish that Congress should accept your resignation, that your ability and zeal should be lost to your country, when she most needs them, or that matters of so much delicacy and importance as those which have passed through your hands, and have been under your direction, should be laid open to the world, when our enemies may derive such advantages from the discovery, and our friends be discouraged and disheartened. May I prevail with you to suspend your publication a little while? Perhaps your character may be vindicated from the aspersions you conceive it to labour under, from another quarter, and in a manner more honourable to you and less unhappy for our country. Your resolution to continue to love and serve your country to the utmost of your power, in a private station, does you much honour, and corresponds with the idea I have entertained of your patriotism; but I flatter myself I shall yet continue to see you fill and adorn a sphere of greater extent and usefulness.

I am at a loss to conceive how troops at Skeensborough came to be in want of salt, vinegar, &c., when such supplies were at Fort George; or if they were supplied, how I could be informed they were destitute. Perhaps some want of attention in the Commissaries may have given occasion for it.

In behalf of this State, I sincerely thank you for your attention, both formerly and now, to provide for the relief of the unhappy sick in that army. I hope it will in event prove as happy and effectual for them as it is honourable to you.

I shall publish to all persons in this State to repair to Albany to adjust their accounts with the Commissioners of Congress; and advise General Wooster according to your request.

I am, sir, with great truth and regard, your obedient, humble servant,

JONTH. TRUMBULL.

To General Schuyler.

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL TO GENERAL GATES.

Lebanon, September 25, 1776.

SIR: Your favour of the 16th instant I had the honour to receive the 21st, by the return of our post-rider.

I am glad to hear there is so near a prospect of our troops being relieved, by the approaching season, from the predominant plague of the Lake, which it seems is inevitable and must be endured, with this only gleam of comfort, that our enemy's end of the ship will sink first.

That our troops should be officered with persons of authority, and sense to exert it properly, is doubtless just. We should be happy always to know how to distinguish and select such men; but they cannot well be known until they are tried, and their true and just character in service is not always attained. It would be of service to the States, and happy for the future army, might such officers, as upon trial are found to fall within your description, be pointed out and known at home; for the rest, we must make the best choice in our power, and trust the event. Indeed, it seems but just that such as serve with ability and honour should have the credit of it; such as fail, as it will often happen without their fault, cannot justly consider the applause given to others as a censure upon themselves. They are willing to serve their country, but unhappily have not the requisite capacity.

The late movements and skirmishes at New-York, I presume you are better informed of than I am. I hope it will be in the General's power to make an effectual stand on the ground he has now taken possession of.

It is expected that a new army will soon be formed, and enlistments for that purpose will take place with you. We shall be happy to be furnished with such intelligence as will enable us in the best manner to serve the army and promote the publick service.

I am, sir, with great respect and esteem, your obedient, humble servant,

JONTH. TRUMBULL.

To the Hon. Major-General Gates.

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL TO JOHN TRUMBULL.

Lebanon, September 25, 1776.

DEAR SON: I have before me yours of the 16th, per Brown. When I wrote last I had nothing new to write you from New-York. Since that time I have from Colonel Williams the account from Congress relative to their sending Dr. Franklin, J. Adams, and E. Rutledge, Commissioners to treat with Lord Howe and General Howe. That you may see the whole affair in the light he sends it me, I have enclosed the principal materials he sends me. It seems the conference with Lord Howe came to nothing. He has no powers but to pardon.

The Rebels who need pardon from the King of Britain are not yet discovered. We disclaim the name, and judge that our rights and privileges have been injuriously invaded. Our sins against God, the supreme director of all events, call us to repentance and reformation, and to look to him for pardon, and humbly to trust in him for his salvation and deliverance from our destroyers.

You will probably receive accounts from your friends near New-York, of the late action on Monday se'nnight near that city, more full than I am able to give. Our acquaintance with it is very various. The best I have is from your brother, by his letter dated Colonel Cortlandt's, near King's Bridge, 18th September. Copy of his intelligence is enclosed. It is probable his may not be so complete, and the number killed, wounded, taken of our enemies, so many as they really are; because letters from several who were in the action mention much greater numbers, and that our party took from the enemy three or four field-pieces, with the cartridges prepared for them, and turned them upon the enemy. Surely we shall both have more certain intelligence. Your brother Jonathan hath been with me for more than one week, and Colonel Jedediah Huntington returned here from camp more than a fortnight since. He is finally recovered. His fever and night-sweats left him his spirits better restored than his flesh and strength. Yesterday morning he and Jonathan both set out for the army near New-York. From the latter you'll have a fuller account from thence than can at present be sent from hence.

I am rejoiced to find the Northern army in so much better condition than they have been. Have you any views of attacking the enemy at St. John's, if they don't think proper to meddle with you? I knew not the affair between Arnold and Wynkoop before I received your information. Your brother at Albany did not know it fully. I shall expect the return made out for me. I wish to be fully acquainted with your circumstances and wants, that no relief from hence may be wanted. The old guns, which want considerable repairs, I think had best be sent hither.

Your mother, brother David, sister Williams, and all our connexions, are in usual health; send their love to you, with their best wishes for your health, safety, and happiness. David is very busy in supplying cattle for the army. Captain Walter Hyde went into the service with a company of volunteers, to New-York. He was seized with the dysentery, returned as far as Horse-Neck, and died. Gamble went with him; anxious to get home when sick increased his disorder, and died on the last Lord's day.

Nine of our Eastern regiments, consisting likely of three thousand men, commanded by Brigadier-General Saltonstall, and three hundred Light-Horse, under the command of Major Backus, are gone to the aid of General Washington's army.

You will always remember that the business of religion ought to be the daily concern of our lives. Virtue ought to be the object of all government, and especially of that of ourselves. Profaneness is a fashionable vice in the army. It is one of the most foolish and unaccountable sort.

THADDEUS BURR TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Fairfield, September 25, 1776.

SIR: Agreeable to your directions, through your Secretary, we have disposed of the prisoners of war sent us per General Heath, in the following manner, viz: Lieutenant John Ragg, and his servant Benjamin Jones, we have sent to the Committee of Middletown; Sergeant David Wallace, Corporal Thomas Pike, Edward Gibbon, William Smith, Isaac Hughes, Thomas Harriman, John Woodward, Edward Cavil, William Williams, William Cootney, Stephen Webber, John Smith, Samuel Morsel, Thomas Sorrel, Jos. Destant, William Jones, William Pearce, John Hopkins, Henry Weston, Evan Evans, and John Morton, privates, we sent to the Committee of Wallingford, where they are placed in the parishes in the interior part of the country, agreeable to rules of Congress. We should have sent them to Litchfield, but upon inquiry found that they already had a number there. We hope the disposition will be satisfactory to your Excellency. As we could find no rule of Congress how the charges of marching them were to be defrayed, we took a guard of a Sergeant and six from our battery, and advanced them a penny a mile for their support. Whether we have done right or not we do not know. The men, we are sensible, could not be marched without support. We should, therefore, take it as a favour if your Excellency would direct us to whom we are to look for their billeting for eleven days, and the advanced money for marching them to the places of their destination.

We are, with the highest esteem and respect, your Excellency's most obedient, humble servants.

Signed per order: THADDEUS BURR, Chairman.

To His Excellency General Washington.

P. S. Enclosed is the account as we have made it out.

DEPOSITION OF ELISHA COLE.

Elisha Cole, master of the schooner Triton, bound from Kennebeck to Cape François, testify and declare, that on the 20th day of July last I was taken by the Millford, man-of-war, John Burr commander, who took from me my bed, bedding, sea-clothes, and every thing else, except what I had in my chest. When I got on board Captain Burr, he asked me, after taking my papers, where my money was. I answered that I had not any. Then he ordered his clerk to search me, and I was searched accordingly. He then took away my watch, but returned it. Next morning the Captain called for me, and demanded the key of my chest, and when opened took every thing out of it to search for money; finding none, they gave me the chest, and ordered me to carry it to my berth. On the 25th of July we discovered a ship, which he took near Newbury bar. Captain Burr then ordered me to the fourth gun, and the opposite forward, and compelled me to go, which I was obliged to do after a long dispute; and my mate and all my men were put on the ship's books, and compelled to do duty, and obliged to fight against their American brethren, as are all the prisoners they take, which I often heard the officers of the Millford declare. I left Halifax the 11th day of August, leaving my mate and men all on board the Millford. I told Captain Burr our people gave the masters, mates, &c., their adventures, and it was very hard to have my all taken from me. He replied he could not do it; his people would not allow it; and swore by God he would not give me any thing. The Yankee Hero men, by the information of the steward and others belonging to the Millford, had but three-quarters of the common allowance of provisions to seamen for their support, and no allowance of clothing.

ELISHA COLE.

Boston, September 25, 1776.

Suffolk, ss:

Elisha Cole made oath to the truth of the above Deposition, by him subscribed.

Before me: JOSEPH GREENLEAF, Justice Peace.

CAPTAIN JACKSON TO JOHN AVERY.

Newburyport, September 25, 1776.

SIR: There are eight swivel guns in this town that were brought in here the last year by one Captain Johnson, who was from the West-Indies, in the service of this Colony. Our company would be glad to purchase them of the State, if they may be sold, or to borrow them, if to be lent—or part of them, if any are engaged already. Your making this application for us to the honourable Board, will much oblige me, and your sending me their determination per the first opportunity, will add to the obligations. There is Captain Roberts (whom I expect to be the bearer of this) will be at Watertown this week, and returning, by whom please to write.

I am, sir, your very obedient servant,

JONA. JACKSON.

MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL TO GOVERNOUR COOKE.

Council Chamber, Watertown, September 25, 1776.

SIR: In consequence of a request from the honourable the American Congress, this State have directed one battalion of their Militia to your State, to supply the place of a regiment in the pay of the Continent, lately ordered to reinforce the army at New-York. Your Honour may expect them soon.

The General Court have, at the request of Governour Trumbull, ordered sixty whale-boats to be procured for the service mentioned in his letter of the 9th instant, a copy of which is enclosed. They will be forwarded to Rhode-Island, from which place they are to be sent to some convenient port in Connecticut; the mode of sending them will be settled by you and Governour Trumbull. For further particulars, we beg leave to refer you to General Lincoln, who will wait on you in his way to New-York.

To Nicholas Cooke, Esq., Providence.

ALEXANDER COFFIN TO MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL.

Boston, September 25, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Agreeable to your desire, I have collected the particulars of my voyage from Nantucket to London, and from thence to the West-Indies and Nantucket, and is as follows: I sailed in the ship Somerset from Nantucket, the 27th of August, 1775, with a load of oil, and arrived in London the 2d October following. There I disposed of my ship and cargo, and endeavoured to procure a passage back to Nantucket or some part of America, but by the embarrassments arising from acts of Parliament restraining and cutting off all trade and communication with the Americans, I could find no opportunity of a passage back to Nantucket, and was obliged, in conjunction with Captains Folger, Jenkins and Gardner, to purchase a brig for that purpose; and in order to prevent being liable to be seized or stopped in our intended return to America by any of the King's ships, or by any of the officers of the King's customs in London, we were obliged to conceal our intentions, and by advice of our American friends there, (who entrusted us with letters of the utmost importance to Messrs. Hancock, Adams, Franklin, and Lee,) we put a small cargo on board the brig, that it might appear we intended a trading voyage, and got her made an English bottom to cover our intention, which otherwise we could not have executed. We sailed from London the 23d of May, 1776, and in the Downs we took on board Mr. Morris, who was a Major in the British service; but he disapproving of their diabolical proceedings against this country, sold his commission and secured his effects in London, and took the resolution of proceeding to America to enter into their service, and it was recommended to him, by the friends of America, as the most speedy and safe way to get there. We arrived at the West-Indies the 2d of July, there disposed of our cargo, and took a small quantity of rum, sugar, and molasses, and cleared out for Halifax, but intended for the Continent. On the 20th of July, in latitude 32°, was taken by the Congress privateer, Captain Craigie, from Philadelphia, who told us that he belonged to Lord Dunmore's fleet, which caused us to destroy the bill of sale of our vessel, and many papers which might have been of service to this country. Afterwards he acknowledged himself to be a Provincial privateer, which put us in such confusion that we did not know how to act upon the occasion, and we determined not to open our minds to him, but to abide by the consequence, for as he had deceived us in one instance, we did not choose to give him the opportunity of another, we still believing him to be one of Lord Dunmore's fleet, and meant to trapan us; and we were not convinced that he was not one of them till ten days after, when we came up with a Frenchman loaded with powder, bound to the Continent, whom he dismissed, which convinced us that he belonged to the Continent; we then opened our minds more freely to him, and let him know that we belonged to the same, and entrusted with the above-mentioned letters, which were concealed in the brig, and begged of him to let some of us go in the French vessel, as no one knew where they were concealed except ourselves, which he utterly refused to do. He also refused to let any one of us belonging to the brig proceed in her to Egg Harbour, but he took every person belonging to her on board his privateer, with a professed intention to carry us as far from the Continent as would answer his design of preventing our arriving in season (as some of his officers told us) to claim our right, and recovering our property. He also took all our money, being in gold, with him, to a very considerable amount, and proceeded with it on a cruise. The letters we were charged with to the members of the honourable Congress, &c., were of such importance and nature as required us to act with the utmost care and caution; had they been discovered we hazarded our necks and the necks of the best and sincerest friends of America. We were further charged with some verbal intelligence, such as was judged to be too interesting, and in its consequences too important and dangerous to be entrusted in a letter. We also brought off and concealed the aforementioned Major Morris, which if discovered would be as fatal to us as to him, all which we readily took charge of, as we heartily wished for and interested ourselves in every measure that might contribute to the information or success of the American cause, although, as above, we hazarded our lives in the attempt. The privateer being short of water was obliged to put into Abico, one of the Bahama Islands, where he put us on board a Nantucket vessel, who was there after a load of salt; and he also detained five vessels belonging to New-Providence, while he refitted and took the mast out of one of the vessels, and made a prize of another loaded with salt, and sent her to the Continent; also, out of the five vessels he took twenty negroes, and on the 19th of August he set sail for Philadelphia, and we at the same time for Nantucket, where we arrived the 5th instant.

The Captains Folger and Jenkins, in company with Major Morris, are gone to Philadelphia, in order to get and deliver the above-mentioned letters to Messrs. Hancock, Adams, Franklin, and Lee, and to petition the honourable Congress that their property may be restored, and reparation made them for their detention and suffering, without which they and their families will be very great sufferers, as that of, gentlemen, your most humble servant,

ALEXANDER COFFIN.

To the honourable Council of the State of Massachusetts-Bay.

Nantz, September 26, 1776.

There are here no less than twelve or fourteen ships, brigs, and schooners, &c., belonging to different ports in America, loading with military stores, &c. They bring wheat and flour in exchange. A large ship left this port yesterday bound to America, called the Hancock and Adams, commanded by one Smith. The day before he sailed he was examined by order of the Commandant, when a quantity of contraband stores was found on board, which he was obliged to reland; but the same night they were all reshipped again, with a great deal more, particularly two thousand stand of arms, many barrels of gunpowder, and several barrels of saltpetre. A schooner and a sloop have almost completed their cargoes, and will sail in a few days. Our commandant takes little or no notice of their proceedings, only now and then inspecting a vessel to keep up appearances.

ADVICES FROM THE SOUTHWEST FRONTIER.

On Thursday, the 26th of September, a soldier belonging to Captain Gilmore's company was killed and scalped near the main camp of our army. About the same time one of the inhabitants was killed and another taken prisoner. On Sunday, the 29th, our spies came in and informed that they had discovered the tracks of a large party of the enemy making towards the settlements; upon which, that very same evening, Colonel Christian went in quest of them with about five hundred men, who, after marching part of the night and most of the next day, found that the enemy had tacked about suddenly, and made off towards their towns. On Tuesday and Thursday, the 1st and 3d instant, our whole army, consisting of about two thousand men, healthy, well-equipped, and in high spirits, crossed the river, together with pack-horses and bullocks; and Colonel Christian expected to be at Broad River in eight or ten days, within forty miles of the enemy's towns, where he had information they intended to fight him. Advice had been received that General Rutherford, with the North-Carolina troops, had penetrated as far as the Cherokee middle settlements, and that the savages were flying precipitately before him.

BENJAMIN HARRISON, JUN., TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Williamsburg, September 26, 1776.

HONOURABLE SIR: I do myself the honour to transmit you an account of the state of the money now in my office, by which you will see that there is only £10,143 14s. 1d. on hand. The arrears due to the Seventh Battalion now on Continental pay, and the two Minute battalions taken into Continental service in the room of the Regulars removed from hence, will take all that money immediately, so that the office will be left without any, and the service suffer in case of any immediate demand.

I have the honour to be, sir, your very obedient servant,

BENJ. HARRISON, JR.,

Deputy Paymaster-General.

To the Hon. John Hancock, Esquire.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO BALTIMORE COMMITTEE.

[No. 190.]

Annapolis, September 26, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We approve your choice of Mr. Ezekiel Towson to command the guard at the Magazine, and request that he would hire twelve men to keep guard alternately, according to orders he may give them. The highest price we have allowed for privates at other magazines is forty-five shillings; some are got for forty. We leave it to Lieutenant Towson to hire the men upon the best terms he can, not exceeding forty-five shillings per month, the publick to find them rations.

We are, &c.

To the Committee of Observation for Baltimore County.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO DELEGATES IN CONGRESS.

[No. 191.]

Annapolis, September 26, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We received yours of the 24th relative to Captain Watkins, but have not seen him since you wrote. We have heretofore furnished him and his company with every thing in our power. Just before he left the Province he had near one thousand pounds currency for pay and subsistence, agreeable to his own account. Blankets we had not to give; we wrote to a gentleman at the Head-of-Elk, who we expected would have furnished his company with some. He had linen from us for hunting-shirts, &c., and we frequently intimated to himself, and others who applied on his behalf, that if he would buy woollens to clothe his company we would pay for the stuff and making, the common course of business with all the other Captains of independent companies. He talked of taking money in lieu of clothing; we offered him four pounds per man for that article. He sometimes assented, at others made excuses, and appeared undetermined; and to say the truth, we firmly believe that he renders himself incapable of taking proper care of his company, by drinking to excess. His distance from us was considerable; 'tis but lately we know any thing of him. He was represented to us as a brave man; how it has happened that he and his company have quarrelled, we know not. The men, we doubt not, have suffered from the inattention of their Captain; his removal, perhaps, would be the best method of promoting the publick service.

As to Surgeons, we have sent forward Mr. Stone's letter to Dr. Brown. We know Captain Thomas wrote to some gentlemen of the Convention, and Surgeons have been appointed, of which we send you a list enclosed; if they are all gone up, there can be no just cause of complaint. We have not appointed Dr. Wallace chief Surgeon to Colonel Smallwood's battalion, because Dr. Weisenthal represented to us that he had been up and settled all things to the satisfaction of those concerned. We should be glad to hear whether an appointment be necessary to that battalion; if so, we propose to raise Dr. Weisenthal and his present mate, and send up a second mate.

We are obliged to you for the care of the powder, and request you would order it by the stages to Baltimore Town, to the care of Gerard Hopkins, our Deputy Commissary. The freight we desire you will be pleased to pay; must leave the quantum to yourselves. Harrison & Vanbibber say nothing to us what sum ought to be paid for freight; ten per cent. on the value here is what we have charged to others, and paid when charged; we take it for granted 'tis the customary freight. The bill of lading, however, ought to be adverted to; and if the freight be therein specified, no more ought in our opinion to be granted. We have a duplicate of the bill of lading, which ascertains the freight at forty-six pounds five shillings, in dollars at seven shillings and six pence. Enclosed you have an order of the late session of Convention, which T. Smyth was to have forwarded; but we are uncertain whether he transmitted it or not.

We are, &c.

To the Deputies for Maryland in Congress.

COLONEL HOLLINGSWORTH TO THE MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Cecil County, September 26, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Agreeable to the resolves of Convention, we have endeavoured to have a company raised, under Captain Samuel Evans, Lieutenant Henry Dobson, Second Lieutenant Thomas Ramsey, Ensign William Stuart, which hope you will commission, they having raised sixty-six men, which Lieutenant Dobson will return you lists of, and expect the company will be full in a few days. Colonel Hollingsworth will furnish them with twenty guns, well fitted, and we will buy, out of the Militia, twenty-five more, which is all can engage for, as the battalion has furnished most of her best pieces before. Major Parker can furnish us with as much linen as will make ten tents, which beg you will give orders to have made in Philadelphia, as the Captain has raised a number of his neighbours that would not go into the service, unless they had them, at this advanced season; or would he receive his commission without them? Blankets may be had, but very high. We can purchase cartouch-boxes, if ordered. Knapsacks, wire, and brushes, with canteens, the residue of arms, we expect to be furnished with. The company is now on rations, as it is impossible to keep them otherwise. A drum and fife we can furnish, if ordered.

I have received three hundred and thirty-three pounds ten shillings, which will not be near sufficient. Therefore hope you will furnish us with at least five hundred more, by the bearer, Mr. Henry Dobson; and don't doubt but every thing will be had, so as the company may march by Monday come week.

We are, gentlemen, your obedient servants,

CHARLES RUMSEY,

EDWD. PARKER,

H. HOLLINGSWORTH.

To the honourable Council of Safety.

PENNSYLVANIA ASSEMBLY.

Monday, September 23, 1776.

Mr. Speaker, with twenty-three Members, met, pursuant to adjournment; and a quorum not appearing, they adjourned to to-morrow, at four o'clock in the afternoon.

Tuesday, September 24, 1776.

Mr. Speaker, with twenty-eight Members, met, pursuant to adjournment.

The Committee appointed, at the last sitting, to examine the accounts of the incidental expenses of the past year, made their Report.

Upon consideration of which, the following question was called for, and put by the Speaker: "Whether the sum of one thousand Pounds shall be allowed to the Governour, for his support during the present year?" Carried in the affirmative.

Wednesday, September 25, 1776.

Mr. Speaker, with twenty-five Members, met, pursuant to adjournment.

The Committee appointed to audit and settle the Publick Accounts, reported a general state of the same, in writing.

The House resumed the consideration of the incidental expenses; and, having made some further progress in examining the same, adjourned to nine o'clock to-morrow morning.

Thursday, September 26, 1776.

Mr. Speaker, with twenty-one Members, met, pursuant to adjournment.

The House proceeded to read the Report of the Committee on the Publick Accounts; which being in part gone through, they adjourned to three o'clock in the afternoon.

Mr. Speaker, with twenty-three Members, met, pursuant to adjournment.

The House proceeded in reading the Report of the Committee on the Publick Accounts: which being gone through and carefully examined, follows in these words, viz:

The Committee appointed to strike the sum of Eighty-Five Thousand Pounds in Bills of Credit, directed by the Resolves of the House of the 6th of April last, produced to the Chair a receipt from Michael Hillegas, Esq., Provincial Treasurer, for the said sum of Eighty-Five Thousand Pounds, in the said Bills of Credit to him paid, agreeable to the directions of the said Resolves.

The said Committee also produced five extra sheets, unsigned, which had been printed to supply any loss or deficiency happening in the said Bills during the signing and numbering the same; which five extra sheets were burned, by order of the House, in the presence of the Members.

The Committee appointed the 29th of March last, to confer with the Tenants on the Province Island, and to report what allowance they should think would be reasonable for the House to make for the losses they had sustained by the storm in September, 1775, reported, "that they had conferred with the Tenants, and, upon viewing the Island and the repairs made after the storm, are of opinion that this House make an allowance to Samuel Penrose, the tenant of the said Island, in behalf of the under-tenants, in consideration of the losses and damages by them sustained and repairs by them made, the sum of three hundred and sixty Pounds;" which being read by order, was agreed to by the House.

Ordered, That the Provincial Treasurer allow to Samuel Penrose, Tenant, the sum of three hundred and sixty Pounds, out of the rent due from him to this Province.

Upon motion, Resolved, That Mr. Parker, Mr. Howell, Mr. Rodman, Mr. Brown, and Mr. Pearson, be a Committee to settle the Accounts of the Commanding Officers in the different Battalions of Military Associators in this Province, for the wages of Adjutants, Sergeant-Majors, Fife-Majors, Drum-Majors, Fifers, and Drummers, agreeable to the Resolutions of Assembly of the 5th of April last; and to draw orders for such sums of money as they may find due to the said Commanding Officers, on the Provincial Treasurer, to be paid out of the twenty-two thousand Pounds issued by an Act of Assembly, passed the 30th day of September, 1775; and that the said Committee report their proceedings to the next Assembly.

Resolved, That Michael Hillegas, Esquire, Provincial Treasurer, pay such orders as may be drawn upon him by the said Committee, out of the said twenty-two thousand Pounds.

A Member read in his place, and presented at the table, some Resolutions for the consideration of the House, which being again read by the Clerk, were taken into immediate consideration, and after some debate, the previous question was called for and put, whether a question shall be now put on the said Resolutions?

Carried in the affirmative.

The said Resolutions, being accordingly put to the question, were agreed to, and follow in these words, viz:

"Resolved, by a majority of the Members present, That it is the sacred right of Freemen to give and grant their own Money; and that all Taxes levied without their consent, are arbitrary and oppressive: and that no Freeman can be constitutionally restrained of his liberty, or be sentenced to any penalties or punishment whatsoever, but by the judgment of his peers, and a trial had by a jury of his country.

"Resolved, That the Convention have derived no authority from the good people of Pennsylvania to levy Taxes and dispose of their property: and therefore, that the late Ordinance, imposing a rate of twenty Shillings per month, and four Shillings in the Pound on the Estates of Non-Associators, is illegal, and the said sums ought not to be paid.

"Resolved, That the late Ordinance of the Convention, empowering two or more Justices of the Peace to imprison, for an indefinite time, at their discretion, all persons whom they shall judge to be guilty of the offences therein specified, is, in the opinion of this House, a dangerous attack on the liberties of the good people of Pennsylvania, and a violation of their most sacred rights; and therefore ought not to be considered as obligatory."

The House resumed the consideration of the list of Incidental Expenses, reported by the Committee, and the Accounts therein referred to being allowed, Mr. Speaker in the Chair signed the several Certificates and Orders for payment of the Wages of the Members and Committees, together with the Salaries of Publick Officers and other Contingent Charges of the past year.

Resolved, by the Members present, That Michael Hillegas, Esquire, Provincial Treasurer, pay all such Certificates and Orders as have been heretofore drawn by the Assembly for the Salaries of Publick Officers, and services done the publick, out of the twenty-two thousand Pounds issued by an act of Assembly passed the 30th of September last.

The House then rose.

JOSEPH PARKER,
WILLIAM RODMAN,
CHARLES HUMPHREYS,
JONATHAN ROBERTS.

Philadelphia, September 26, 1776.

LANCASTER, PENNSYLVANIA, COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Committee of Observation and Inspection, at the house of Adam Reigart, the 26th September, 1776, Present: William Atlee, Lodwick Lowman, William Bowsman, John Miller, Christopher Crawford, Henry Dehuff, George Moore. William Atlee in the Chair.

The Committee, to enable them the better to comply with the request of the Council of Safety, in returning to them an account of the State Prisoners in this County, having required of the Sergeant Major of the Seventh and Twenty-Sixth to make returns to the Committee of the number of names and times when the Prisoners of those Regiments arrived here, with an account of the present station of such of them as have left Lancaster, the said Sergeants now make returns, and Sergeants Taylor and J. Wilkinson, in accounting for the men, having the impudence to set down in writing, signed by them, that some of the men are enlisted with the Rebels,—the Committee look upon the conduct of those Sergeants as insulting and designed to affront them; and therefore Order, that they be immediately sent to gaol, and be kept there on bread and water.

Christian Kuntz, John Willson, Joseph Nagle, John Muscatuns, Frederick Widely, Martin Frey, Lodwick Roch, Frederick Keller, John Epple, Frederick Mellinger, Joseph Seemer, Frederick Segmiller, Frederick Hartoffle, John Wentzell, of Captain Dehuff's Company, in Colonel Atlee's Battalion, appear in Committee and agree to march off to join the Battalion at three o'clock this afternoon, and be under the direction of Lieutenant George Brickman from hence to Philadelphia, by whom the Chairman is requested to write to the Council of Safety respecting them, and Mr. Beckham will give certificates for their rations on the road.

Mr. Henry Huttenstein mentions in Committee, that his servant-man, John Reed, went from hence with his consent, with Captain Boyd's Company of Militia, of Colonel Ross's Battalion, to the camp in the Jerseys. That the officers of the company promised if in their power, to bring him back with them, and that the said servant entered into the flying camp; and Captain Boyd also mentioning these facts in Committee; the Committee beg leave to certify the same to the commanding officers of the Battalion in which the said John Reed serves, and if he can be discharged with propriety and sent to his master, recommends to his consideration to do therein as he shall judge right.

Abraham Holmes tent in £400 to the State of Pennsylvania, for the good behaviour of his Negro man, Nambo, to all the subjects and inhabitants of this State, and particularly to John Clendeman and his family and estate; and for his appearance before any court of record of this State, where his attendance shall be required. Acknowledged in Committee the 26th September, 1776.

Matthew Kinch, of the Twenty-Sixth Regiment, is permitted to go to Yorktown as servant to Lieutenant Dulhanty, and a pass to be granted him.

GENERAL MERCER TO THE BOARD OF WAR.

Amboy, September 26, 1776.

SIR: I received the favour of your letter of the 20th just now, and shall, in compliance with the requisition of the Board of War, send off every article of camp necessities, that can be spared from this post. We have for some days past been forwarding tents, camp kettles, and such other furniture as the army in New-York stood in need of. Colonel Biddle has been several days at Fort Constitution, giving every assistance in his power towards the supplies of that post, and our army opposite to it.

I am, sir, your most obedient servant,

HUGH MERCER.

To Richard Peters, Esq., Secretary to the Board of War.

HENRY REMSEN TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Morristown, September 26, 1776.

SIR: The day after my return home from Connecticut, which was the 21st instant, I received a letter from Major G. Abeel, advising that the honourable Convention had appointed me, with himself and Major Van Zandt, a Committee of Safety and Correspondence below the Highlands. I should immediately, with pleasure, have attended on that or any other business that the Convention appointed me to, did the situation of my family admit of my absence. On my return from Connecticut, I found two of my sons unwell, and they continue very ill of fevers, which the Doctor calls nervous and remitting, so as to be confined to their beds; and Mrs. Remsen is at present in a situation that I cannot with propriety leave her; she is without any of her relations, among strangers, and near a perilous hour which she expects soon. I have also some commercial matters of a publick and private concern to attend to; besides I have my house to new-cover; in its present situation it is untenable by the leakings of the roof. The carpenters promised to finish it above six weeks ago; I have hopes they will begin their work in seven or eight days. I shall (God willing) attend my duty as soon as possible, and I hope in a few weeks in person to report to Convention my proceeding in regard to the merchandise imported by Messrs. Van Zandt, Pintard, and self, by order of a former Congress.

Governour Cooke, of Rhode-Island, has not acted politely nor friendly to our State. He thought proper to detain part of our goods some weeks, as a security for a debt due from one private person in our State to another in their State, and through my agency the money was sent and our goods liberated; for particulars I beg leave to refer you to Captain John Harrison, who went the voyage. I have desired him to attend the transportation of the goods by land to the Fishkills, and to deliver them to the order of Convention, and for that purpose advanced him a sum of money, but I believe not sufficient to pay for the whole transportation. Captain Harrison will also give information of his having shipped from prudential motives seventy barrels of gunpowder on board of our armed vessel, from St. Eustatia to Charlestown, South-Carolina, to be delivered to the Committee or Council of Safety there. I shall write a line to Mr. P. Livingston, at Philadelphia, and request him by means of the Delegates in Congress for that State, to have a like quantity (viz: three tons and an half) delivered to our Convention, or, if used there, money sufficient to purchase as much.

Enclosed you have Mr. Joseph Hallet's account of the freight for his sloop, stated exactly as we agreed with him for the voyage; and as he has applied for the money, shall be glad if Convention will order payment to Mr. Jacobus Van Zandt, or his order, who will transmit the same to Mr. Hallet.

I beg the favour of Convention to spare to my family's use one piece of the finest blue broadcloth, and two pieces of the finest linen. On reëxamining my stock of linen, find I was robbed of more than I at first apprehended. I will allow the price, be it more or less, and I believe Mr. Gerard Banker will take the trouble to lay it by for use.

I am very respectfully, sir, your and the Convention's obedient and very humble servant,

HENRY REMSEN.

To the President of the Convention for the State of New-York, convened at Fishkills.Messrs. JACOBUS VAN ZANDT, LEWIS PINTARD, and HENRY REMSEN, in behalf of the Provincial Congress of New-York,Dr. to Joseph Hallet.

For freight of the sloop Nancy, John Harrison master, from New-York, in October, 1775, to Bordeaux, in France, per agreement entered into with them for Provincial Congress, - - - - - sterling £550 0 0
For demurrage, (twenty-six days at 40s. sterling per day,) - - - - - 52 0 0
Sterling £602 0 0

Exchange at 100 per cent., being the lowest exchange when the cargo arrived and since that time, - - - - - 602 0 0
New-York currency £1204 0 0

This serves to certify that the above account is stated exactly as our agreement was with Mr. Hallet, and the exchange, to the best of our remembrance, has not been lower than one hundred per cent. for the last six months.

We have seen Captain Harrison's certificate books, and other vouchers, by which it appears he arrived at the Castle on river of Bordeaux the 23d November, 1775, and sailed from thence the 9th of February, 1776, which period includes the forty working days per agreement—eleven Sundays and twenty-six days on demurrage.

HENRY REMSEN,
JACOBUS VAN ZANDT.

New-Jersey, September 26, 1776.

To the President of the Convention for the State of New-York, convened at Fishkills.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM HARLEM, (NEW-YORK,) SEPTEMBER 26, 1776.

Friday last was discovered a vast cloud of smoke arising from the north part of the city, which continued till Saturday evening. The consequence was that the Broadway, from the new City-Hall down to Whitehall, is laid in ashes. Our friends were immediately suspected, and according to the report of a flag of truce who came to our lines soon after, those that were found on or near the spot were pitched into the conflagration, some hanged by the heels, and others by their necks, with their throats cut. Inhuman barbarity! One Hale in New-York, on suspicion of being a spy, was taken up and dragged without ceremony to the execution post, and hung up. General Washington has since sent in a flag, supposed to be on that account.

The 22d instant was tried for cowardice, disobedience of orders, and daring to present his firelock at a superiour officer in time of the late skirmish, one Leffingwell, of Norwich, for which he was condemned to be shot; accordingly all preparations were made, himself brought to the field, was fixed on his knees, and while the guards were marching to execute the decree, the General sent a pardon, declaring never to forgive another.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GENERAL MERCER.

Colonel Morris's, at Harlem, September 26, 1776.

DEAR SIR: If the troops at this post can be prevailed upon to defend it as they should do, it must cost General Howe a great many men to carry it, if he succeeds at all. If this should happen to be his opinion, there is scarce a doubt but that he will turn his thoughts another way, as inactivity is not to be expected from him. Whither his operations may be directed is uncertain—perhaps an irruption into the Jerseys. Possibly he may bend his course towards Philadelphia, (for I conceive that two thousand men, with the assistance of their shipping, will effectually preserve New-York against our whole strength,) or, which in my judgment is exceedingly probable, knowing that the troops are drawn off from the Southern Colonies, he may detach a part of the army to the southward, for a winter's campaign, as was recommended to him last fall by Lord Dunmore.

In either of these cases it behooves us to keep the best look-out, and to obtain the earliest intelligence possible of the enemy's motions; and as it is now the current opinion that the shipping are greatly thinned, I earnestly recommend to you the necessity of having sensible and judicious persons in different places to observe the movements of the shipping, among others at the Neversinks; for if they should send out a fleet without our giving notice of it to Congress, we shall be thought exceedingly remiss. In short, I entreat you to exert your best endeavours to obtain every useful intelligence you possibly can of the enemy's motions by sea and land. In doing this, money may be required, and do not spare it. Communicate every thing of importance to me with despatch, and be assured that I am, dear sir, your most obedient servant,

Go. WASHINGTON.

To Brigadier-General Mercer, New-Jersey.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Harlem Heights, September 26, 1776.

SIR: Your favour of the 20th instant is duly received. The several Regiments and Militia from Connecticut, lately commanded by General Wolcott, being reduced to almost nothing, one having returned under twenty, and another short of thirty collective men, they were yesterday discharged. I am full in opinion with you that some severe examples ought to be made of the late deserters. For a return of their names, I must refer you to the several commanding officers of the different regiments. I hope those under Brigadier Saltonstall may show a better spirit.

A proposal for an immediate exchange of prisoners has been made by General Howe, agreeable to the resolves of Congress. I am to request a return as soon as possible of all those in Connecticut, mentioning the names and ranks of all commissioned officers, and distinguishing particularly between those of the army and navy, as well privates as officers. It appears to me their being marched to some convenient post, and coming by water, will be much the most convenient; at least it will save expense, and will prevent their having a view of the different towns and their situations on the sea-coast. Your sentiments on the subject, together with the return of the prisoners as early as possible, will much oblige me.

I am, with esteem, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

Go. WASHINGTON.

To Governour Trumbull, Connecticut.

COLONEL RUFUS PUTNAM TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

September 26, 1776.

SIR: I hope the importance of the subject will be a sufficient apology for the freedom I take in addressing your Excellency at this time. I have long wondered that no corps of Engineers was yet established. The number of works to be executed, the necessity of despatch in them, the impossibility for common hands to be made at once to comprehend what they ought to do, without a corps of Engineers is established, the works never will be properly executed, nor done in a reasonable time; and I cannot give my ideas of such a corps, and their duty, better than in the words of Mr. Maignets. Speaking of their subordinate discipline, he says: "The first part of this discipline consists of the division of one corps into several, and the subdivision of the latter into still less." Again: "In the construction of places, that corps of workmen are divided into several others, who are called bands, the officers of each of those companies should be Engineers; and 'tis a leading circumstance to the success of any action, that the soldiers and their officers should be acquainted with each other beforehand; and 'tis from the Engineers that the former are to receive orders for the works of attack, defence, and construction of plans; 'tis evident that the latter ought to be charged with the conduct and command of them. Engineers are the natural officers of workmen; ancient and constant usage has confirmed the practice." Again: "If teachers were appointed to each of these principal corps, such a number of hopeful youth might be formed as would be a great benefit to the service. These workmen are, properly speaking, soldiers, or, rather, both one and t'other—their business being either fighting or working, as occasion requires. The first exercise to be taught them is the use of their arms; the next is to keep them to their business; the third kind of exercise is the instructing them in the several forms, dimensions, and properties of works." Again: "All workmen employed in buildings of any kind may serve very well for works of fortifications." Again: "By this means you may have good miners and sappers in abundance, who, in time of sieges, may ease the Engineers, and even supply the want of them upon occasion."

Two years' experience has fully convinced me, sir, that till the Engineers are rendered independent of any other department for their artificers, till they have miners and sappers, or persons separate from the common fatigue men, to take care of sinking the ditch properly, laying the turf well, and to build the parapet with its proper talus—I say, till this is done, the Engineer will not be able to execute his works well, nor do them in a reasonable time. The service has already suffered much, and will continue to do so, till some such corps as what I have mentioned is established. And to convince your Excellency that I have no interested motives but the common good in this address, I beg leave to quit the department, since the army are or may be so well supplied with regular-bred Engineers.

I am, sir, your Excellency's most obedient, devoted, humble servant,

RUFUS PUTNAM.

To His Excellency General Washington.

COURTS-MARTIAL.

Proceedings of a General Court-Martial of the Line, held on the Heights of HAARLEM, by order of His Excellency GEORGE WASHINGTON, Esq., General and Commander-in-Chief of the Forces of the UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, for the trial of all Prisoners to be brought before them. SEPTEMBER 26, 1776.

Colonel EWING, President.

Lieut. Col. Chandler ,	Captain Lucas ,
Lieut. Col. Russel ,	Captain Brown ,
Captain Ledyard ,	Captain Chamberlain ,
Captain Graydon ,	Captain Rogers ,
Captain Wiley ,	Captain Foster ,
Captain Hindman ,	Captain Stanley .

WILLIAM TUDOR, Judge-Advocate.

The Court proceeded to the trial of Lieutenant Henry Drake, of Captain Houghton's Company, in the Regiment commanded by Lieutenant-Colonel Philips, brought prisoner before the Court, and accused of "leaving the regiment without permission from his commanding officer, and being absent for twenty days."

The prisoner being arraigned, acknowledges that he left the regiment without leave, but that he was only a volunteer; that he has no commission, and that when he came into the service he publicly declared that he would serve only for two months; that he has never received, but refused to accept, either pay or rations; and that he has tarried his two months, and now considers himself at liberty to return home.

Clum, Adjutant, deposes: That Lieutenant Drake has justly stated the circumstances of his entering the service; and that the prisoner has never received either pay or ration money, but refused both.

The Court are of opinion that the prisoner is not culpable for leaving Lieutenant-Colonel Philips's Regiment, as he could never be justly considered as an officer in that corps, having no commission.

THOS. EWING, President.

At a General Court-Martial held at King's Bridge, on the 26th day of September, A. D. 1776:

Colonel LASHER, President.

Lieut. Col. Prentice ,	Captain Dana ,
Major Austin ,	Captain Dixon ,
Captain Sill ,	Captain Brazier ,
Captain Barns ,	Captain Townshend ,
Captain Wyley ,	Captain Platt ,
Captain Allen ,	Lieut. Durstin .

WILLIAM WILLCOCKS, Judge-Advocate.

Ensign Benjamin Snow, of the Sixteenth Regiment, brought before the Court, said to be charged with "leaving his guard and absenting himself from the camp and duty without leave;" but no written accusation or accuser appearing against the prisoner, the Court order that he be discharged from his arrest. [Arrested again.]

James McCormick, of Captain Farrington's Company, Colonel Sargent's Regiment, charged with mutiny, attempting to desert, and firing on his own party.

Captain Keith, of the same regiment, being duly sworn, deposeth: That on the day of the retreat from Horn's Hook, he, the deponent, was left to cover it; that he saw a person go from one of the flanking parties to the prisoner, who was marching towards the enemy; that he stopped him, and high words ensued; that he saw the prisoner lift up his tomahawk; that the person kept him there till Ensign Fish came up, who ordered him to go back; he swore he would not; that he would go and see his wife. He was told the enemy was near by; he, notwithstanding, insisted upon going. He was ordered to go and join the regiment, which he appeared to do, but when the Captain was retreating, they met him again returning towards the enemy. A file of men was ordered to take him up; he swore he would not go back; he was answered that he should; he then swore he would be the death of some one of the regiment, and swore he would as leave be among the Regulars.

Ensign Fish, in addition to the above, testifies that the prisoner had no wife; that he was very turbulent.

Lieutenant Brown, of Captain Perry's Company, and the same regiment, proves that the prisoner attempted to desert twice before this on the same day; that at one time he had gone above twenty rods from the regiment, but the Colonel by presenting his piece at him brought him back; that he heard him often say he would be the death of some one in the regiment, and that he wished for a battle.

The charge of firing upon his party is not sufficiently supported.

The Court adjudge the prisoner guilty of desertion on the eighth article of war, and of mutiny on the fifth article of war.

The prisoner is sentenced by the Court to die.

JOHN LASHER, President.

Referred to the Commander-in-Chief.

The above sentence, respecting the condemnation of James McCormick, is approved of, and General Heath may appoint the time and place for execution, that a warrant may be issued accordingly.

GO. WASHINGTON.

At a General Court-Martial held at the same place, on the 27th day of September, Anno Domini, 1776:

Captains Keith and Hardenburgh in the places of Captain Wyley and Lieutenant Durstin.

Prisoner Charles Bowen, of Captain Brenton Parris's Company, charged with robbery.

The prisoner on his arraignment, pleads guilty; but offers in excuse drunkenness.

Witness.—Captain Bowen for the prisoner, testifies, that he is a man of courage, and a very good soldier.

The Court find the prisoner guilty of robbery and drunkenness.

The prisoner sentenced to receive thirty-nine lashes for robbery, and twenty lashes for drunkenness. (Sentence approved.)

Christopher Keil and Daniel Connell, of Captain Townshend's Company, Col. Thomas's Regiment, charged with desertion.

Keil pleads in excuse his going to see his wife; Connell, his going to get clean clothes.

William Brown, of the same company, testifies, that he was sent to take the prisoners; that Keil was reluctant, and acknowledged that he did not intend to return again.

Lieutenant Woodward, of Captain Townshend's Company, testifies: That he found Connell in a barn; that he would not answer to his name for some time. That he was reluctant; said he went for his clothes. The witness does not believe he had any there.

The Court find the prisoners guilty. Keil sentenced to receive thirty-nine lashes. (Sentence approved.)

Connell sentenced to receive thirty-nine lashes and be discharged from the service. (Whipping approved; discharge disapproved.)

JOHN LASHER, President.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM MOUNT WASHINGTON, DATED SEPTEMBER 26, 1776.

In a skirmish on Montresor's Island, on the morning of the 23d of September, was killed, Major Thomas Henly, Aid-de-Camp to Major-General Heath. This young hero was a native of Charlestown, near Boston, of an ancient and reputable family. He was in England when the news of the battle of Lexington arrived there. He instantly flew to the assistance of his country, and immediately entered into the Continental service, in the regiment commanded by Colonel Varnum, from which he was transferred to the corps of Artillery, commanded by Colonel Knox, as Lieutenant and Adjutant. In this active situation he was beloved and respected by the officers, of not only his own corps, but the whole army, and his reputation as a good officer was such, that, a few days before his death, he was promoted to be first Aid-de-Camp to Major-General Heath. It was proposed to surprise a guard of the enemy's, on Montresor's Island, and as he was impatient for enterprise, he solicited to be of the party, and was in the first and only boat that landed. The other boats appointed to support the party, failed in their duty, by which those who had first landed, after having first obliged the enemy to retreat, were in their turn under the necessity to retire; at this moment, Major Henly received the fatal ball through the heart. Lieutenant-Colonel Jackson was wounded, and Captain Hubbart, Paymaster of Colonel Sargent's regiment, killed. The genius of America starts as from a trance, at her neglect to guard the lives of a Knowlton and a Henly; and then absorbed in melancholy, sighs, "it was a mistake, they were not to have fallen, only upon the decision of the fate of an empire."

AARON BURR TO MRS. EDWARDS.

King's Bridge, September 26, 1776.

MY DEAR AUNT: I fear, madam, you give yourself needless anxiety about the situation of publick affairs. It has been always held a maxim, that our island and seaport towns were at the discretion of the tyrant of Great Britain. Reasons for the retreat from Long-Island are well known; the evacuation of New-York was a necessary consequence. The manner of conducting these made present advantages but trifling to the enemy. The loss to us is of still less importance; and indeed some happy consequences resulting from the manœuvres appear to be worthy of notice.

We have hitherto opposed them with less than half their number, and exposed to all their advantages of shipping. Our force is now more united, theirs more divided. Our present situation renders their navy of less service to them, and less formidable to us; a circumstance of vast importance, and to which I attribute all that has heretofore appeared in their favour. Add to these, besides confirming our internal union, the effect that every appearance of success on the part of the enemy has upon our leading men. It arouses them from the lethargy which began to prevail; convinces them that their measures are unequal to their grand designs; that the present is the important moment, and that every nerve must now be exerted.

This is not altogether fanciful. It has been actually the case. More effectual measures than were ever before thought of are now taking for levying a new army. A Committee of Congress are on the spot with us to know all our wants, and report them properly, that they may be speedily provided for. I do not intend by this, my dear aunt, to deceive you into an opinion that every thing is already entirely secure; that we are now actually relieved from every degree of danger; but to remove your apprehensions concerning the important events which depend on our military exertions. I hope, madam, you will continue, with your usual philosophy and resolution, prepared for the uncertain events of war, not anticipating improbable calamities.

Various have been the reports concerning the barbarities committed by the Hessians, most of them incredible and false. They are fonder of plunder than blood, and are more the engines than the authors of cruelty. But their behaviour has been in some instances savage, and might excite a fear, if reckoned among usual calamities; but these should be viewed on a larger scale than that of common complaisance. It should be remembered we are engaged in a civil war, and effecting the most important revolution that ever took place. How little of the horrors of either have we known! Fire or the sword have scarce left a trace among us. We may be truly called a favoured people.

I have been not so engaged as common for a short time past, and have liberty of remaining, for three or four days, about two miles from camp, from whence I now write you a little more at leisure; but I am now within drum-call.

Your nephew,
To Mrs. Edwards.

A. BURR.

JOHN SLOSS HOBART TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Head-Quarters, September 26, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I wrote to you last night by Captain Rogers, since which have conversed with General Washington, who has ordered Lieutenant-Colonel Livingston to repair to the forts in the Highlands, with his detachment. If this reinforcement should arrive it cannot be sufficient; therefore I hope no pains will be spared to bring the Militia already ordered to those posts.

With respect to the exchange of General Woodhull, I have agreed to furnish Mr. Lewis, a man here, with a copy of the resolution of Convention respecting that subject, and to solicit his interposition with Congress, that the General may be exchanged as soon as possible. This being done, I propose to proceed to Connecticut to-morrow, and there wait an answer to mine of yesterday by Captain Rogers, who, I suppose, will return immediately.

I am extremely sorry to say, that I can hear no intelligence of the Committee of Safety you ordered to sit below the Highlands.

I have been this morning upon the lines, and observe that the enemy are erecting works to annoy our advanced posts. God send them disappointment.

In haste I remain your most obedient servant,
JOHN SLOSS HOBART.

To New-York Convention.

CAPTAIN CREGIER TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Fishkill, September 26, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I have done myself the honour in waiting upon your honourable House in order to lay before you the state and condition of the schooner General Putnam, under my command; and finding there can be no Convention, by reason that some of the members are absent and it being uncertain when those gentlemen will return, I, to avoid the expenses which myself and horse being at, think it prudent to return to my house at the King's Bridge, where I shall remain at my own expense until I receive further instructions from your honourable House.

Gentlemen, I must, in the first place, acquaint you that my provisions being expended, having not more on board than will support the company about fifteen days; in the next place, my vessel being very small and low in the water, my greatest ordnance being twelve swivel-guns, the shrouds very old and not trustworthy, my best bower cable being very poor, the vessel very weak and leaky, which weakness proceeded from her lying on a bar and heavy surf breaking over her when I was run on shore by a man-of-war, the people much exposed when under sail, or even in hard rains the water pouring into their cabins, which prevents them of lying into their beds, (diligent search has been made in order to stop the leaks, but all to no purpose,) daily complaints being made by my people in regard to the vessel's condition, and the season of the year advancing towards cold and stormy weather; this, gentlemen, is certainly the condition of the vessel; the people almost naked, having no shoes nor stockings, and the most part of them not the second shirt to their backs; no money has been advanced to them but from my own private purse; no fresh meat allowed, although I have applied for it; no rum allowed them, which has occasioned much disturbance on board; they have demanded an allowance of half pint of rum per day, which is allowed the men in the Continental fleet, and insist upon it that the Provincial Congress gives that allowance. A riot was made just before I left the vessel in regard to their allowance of rum, in which affair I was obliged to make use of my authority amongst some of the principal ringleaders, upon which some of them have undertaken to complain of my conduct to your Honours by letter. I never heard that the conduct of a commander was to be taken notice of by a report made by a common Boatswain, Carpenter, or Gunner, and men who sacrifice every thing that is dear to them for a single can of grog; men whom I have picked up and put in office on purpose to have the vessel manned, and as the vessel is but very small I was glad to pick up any trash. I am very clear you will not find any principal officers' names in that complaint; they are men of good families and characters, hearty in the cause of liberty; if such men were to complain of my conduct, I confess I ought to stand corrected. Perhaps the names of my chief officers you would be glad to know: my chief Lieutenant is Thomas Quigley, David Walker is my Second Lieutenant, Eliakim Little is the Master, and Cornelius French is my Mate, and upon the whole I would recommend it to your honourable House to give directions to lay the vessel up as unfit for any further service this season, as I look upon keeping her any longer in commission will only be a great expense, without the gleam of any profit or service. As for my part, I am determined not to enjoy a commission unless I can be of service to my country; for I should, on that part of the coast, where the vessel is, only be picking the public's pocket, as nothing is to be met with there but frigates, sloops of war, and large tenders, which we are not able to engage. I am determined to serve in the present cause, and will spend my last moments in serving my country, and fix myself at the seat of war, and whenever I am called on will cheerfully join heart and hand with my staunch countrymen. The accounts of the vessel should be settled and the people paid off, which matter I leave to be determined by your Honours, and shall wait your command with due respect; and am your most obedient, humble

THOMAS CREGIER.

To the honourable gentlemen of the Convention of the State of New-York.

MEMORIAL OF JOHN MACAMLY AND NATHANIEL FINCH.

To the Honourable Convention of the State of New-York, now convened at FISHKILL, &c.

This memorial humbly sheweth, that on Tuesday, the 21th of this instant, a number of persons assembled together at Florida, in Orange County, in order to procure salt by some means, as there was none exposed for sale; they were at a loss what method to take, and had agreed to go, and if such places as they found quantities of salt deposited in, was not at their request exposed to sale at a reasonable price, allowing a sufficient profit to the owner, they were determined to break open such places and to proceed to sell the same to such persons as were in want of that article, according to their present necessity; observing still that the owners were made good the prime cost and reasonable profits, and to leave them what might be thought their proportion of the same according to their circumstances. But as this method was not thought prudent, they were prevailed upon to desist the putting the same into execution until the advice of this honourable Convention could be had in this difficulty, and further your memorialists saith not.

September 26, 1776.

JOHN MACAMLY,
NATHANIEL FINCH.

JOHANNES SLEGHT TO JOHN M'KESSON.

Kingston, September 26, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Since the time that the printing offices have stopped, the intelligence which we get is so confused that we can hardly ever come to the truth of any thing we hear. The Committee of this town, with the advice of many true friends and well-wishers to our cause, have therefore thought good to hire a man to go twice a week to the Convention of this State, or to King's Bridge, if occasion should require, to get the certainty at least of such things of consequence as are a secret to no man. We have sent the bearer, Moses Yeoman, who we can recommend as a person fit to be trusted with any thing belonging to that business, and as we don't doubt but this post will be of service to the publick in general, we have the more reason to hope to be furnished with this weekly intelligence from your honoured Board, which if you will oblige us with, shall ever be thankfully acknowledged by your obedient, humble servants,

By order of the Committee:

JOHANNES SLEGHT, Chairman.

To Mr. John McKesson, Secretary to the Convention of the State of New-York.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Albany, September 26, 1776.

SIR: Yesterday I received sundry papers and letters from General Gates and General Arnold, copies whereof I have transmitted to the Commander-in-Chief, and which his Excellency will probably forward to Congress by this conveyance.

I did myself the honour to address Congress in a letter of this date, in which I forgot to remind them of the very great distress our troops are in for want of clothing of every kind, but more especially shoes and stockings, and that none are to be had here. I must entreat Congress to pardon me if I observe, that unless a very speedy supply is sent, the most fatal consequences must inevitably ensue.

I am, sir, with great respect, your most obedient, humble servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

To the Hon. John Hancock.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GENERAL GATES.

Albany, September 26, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: Your favours of the 22d and 23d instant I had the pleasure to receive on the 25th, with the papers they enclosed, copies of which I have transmitted to Congress.

I have not yet seen Antoine Girard, the Canadian, mentioned in your letter.

I can readily conceive, my dear sir, that you have neither sought nor solicited the command in this department, but it must devolve of course on you, as I have sent my resignation—a step which Congress drove me to by what I conceive a most unjustifiable want of attention to the most reasonable requests repeatedly made. But although I feel a resentment for ill usage, I can never forget my duty to my country, and whoever you shall appoint to command in this place will, if he chooses to accept of it, experience every assistance in my power to give.

I hope you have before this received the first parcel of cordage you wrote for. I have sent boats express for what was mentioned in the list enclosed in your last letter.

What few troops are here cannot be spared. They are hardly sufficient for the indispensably necessary duty of the place. The Militia, I doubt not, will march with the utmost expedition as soon as they shall be called upon. It will be necessary, as soon as you want their aid, not only to let me know it, but also to send expresses to the New-England States, by the way of Skenesborough.

I enclose you sundry resolutions of Congress, transmitted me by General Washington, by which you will perceive that Congress have resolved to send you the ammunition wrote for; but when it was to leave Philadelphia, I do not know, as I am not honoured with a line from thence. It will be forwarded from hence without any delay, and under the best escort I can afford.

Mr. Livingston has sent to Esopus and Poughkeepsie for wine; not a gallon is to be had in this place.

Dr. Stringer, in a letter of the 19th instant, from Boston, advises me that he is likely to succeed in procuring a very considerable quantity of such medicines as we stand most in need of, and that he will hasten up with them. Dr. Lyn is out on the same errand.

You will please to publish in orders such of the resolutions of Congress as are necessary so to be. For God's sake, try to keep the Pennsylvania and New-Jersey regiments in service until every possibility of the enemy's crossing the Lake this campaign disappears. They may, as you imagine, soon make the attempt. I rather wish they would, than delay it five or six weeks longer, as I fear too many of our troops will leave you by that time.

Adieu, my dear General, and believe me, with every friendly wish, your obedient, humble servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

To Hon. General Gates.

GENERAL GATES TO GENERAL ARNOLD.

September 26, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: Yesterday I received your letter of the 21st instant. I hope your little schooner had ample satisfaction for the injury her people suffered in the batteau.

This will be delivered you by Captain Warner, of the Trumbull row-galley. She carries you a fine reinforcement of seamen, and besides, is herself a considerable addition to your squadron. The schooner and the two other galleys will follow Sunday or Monday, at farthest; but the cordage is not yet arrived, and General Waterbury assures me that if your estimate was as large as you mention it to have been, not more than a third of it can have been sent, as more than twenty coils of rigging are now wanted for the galleys already built. The powder wrote for so long ago, is not even in part received at Tyonderoga; so economy is the word. You cannot be more anxious to have all the galleys with you, than we are to send them. Be satisfied more cannot be done than is done to despatch them.

Colonel Trumbull writes you an account, or rather rumour, of an action that happened last Sunday, near Turtle Bay. When any thing to be depended upon arrives, I will send it you without delay. Enclosed is Dr. Potts's letter to me, which I received last night. My affectionate compliments to Colonel Wigglesworth.

I am, dear General,

Ho. GATES.

To Brigadier-General Arnold.

COLONEL HARTLEY TO GENERAL GATES.

Crown-Point, 10 o'clock A. M., September 26, 1776.

HONOURED SIR: A surgeon and a boatswain of the fleet which were last sent down with provision, in a batteau, just now arrived here. They were as far as Split-Rock, when yesterday morning about ten o'clock, they heard a firing of about fifty cannon, near the Isle la Motte, as they supposed. They thought it sounded like the noise of vessels engaged. The wind being unfavourable they could only distinguish it now and then, and then afterwards during the day. About ten o'clock at night they heard it again—about fifty guns more. Also, this morning. What firing it was, is uncertain. I take the earliest opportunity of mentioning it to you. It may have been only a firing of our fleet upon some Indians.

The fellows who returned say they came back here in order to know of me whether it was proper to proceed. I send them to the fleet just now with a reprimand for their timidity. I just now also send off a boat with a Sergeant and eight men towards the fleet to know what has been the matter. The galleys are wanted below. I send you the account as I have it. The enemy will doubtless pay us a visit if they can.

I am in great want of the forty canisters of grape-shot for four-pounders. They may be delivered to the bearer. I have directed him to return this evening with any returns you may have for me. You will please to give directions for a boat and some men to assist in bringing him back. The wind is so unfavourable I must send him by land.

I am, dear General, your most humble servant,

THOS. HARTLEY.

P. S. I would be glad that a couple of thousand cartridges for muskets could be sent in a few days, or by the bearer. Yours, &c.,

THOS. HARTLEY.

I ordered a young man to copy my letter. He has done it incorrectly and signed my name. You will excuse it on this occasion. I hope the Albany Militia may not be alarmed till I can send you further intelligence, as I hope all may yet be well. I am your most humble servant,

11 o'clock A. M.

THOS. HARTLEY.

CAPTAIN FASSETT TO GENERAL GATES.

Williston, September 26, 1776.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOUR: Yesterday the enemy was discovered in sundry places near my post. I had three parties out, one of which discovered a number of the enemy, at which time a party of Indians came to an advance party and fired on the party of men, and took three of them and pursued some more which they could not overtake; the party by the best account, in the whole, is large.

The party under my command, seeing our circumstances, could not be persuaded to stay on the other side of the river, and have removed one mile across the river, contrary to orders. I do all that I can to keep them. They say they had as good die one way as the other. Our road to the Lake is stopped. We have not more than three days' provisions with us. I would be willing to stay and do the best I could, if my men would stay; but they will not, more than five or six of them, stay. Every thing lies in my power I will do; I can do no more.

The event of the siege I cannot tell. My command at this place is gone. Flattery is all I can do. Some of the inhabitants choose to stay, which gives them hard thoughts of their conduct. I cannot write the whole; must subscribe myself your humble servant,

JONATHAN FASSETT, Captain.

In haste to the Hon. H. Gates, Major-General.

COLONEL BARRETT TO GENERAL GATES.

Rutland, September 26, 1776.

SIR: I wrote to your Honour the 19th ultimo by Mr. Swain, the return of your Honour's orders to Major Hoisington. Have now the honour of a visit of Captain Rament from your Honour to inspect the work, who will inform your Honour how matters are prosecuted. I would inform your Honour that I am prosecuting your Honour's instructions as vigorously as possible, with the small party I have, both on the road and bridge; as to the great bridge, we have got it in a good way—part raised, and raising the remainder, and hope to finish it by the middle of next week, if weather permits. One party is steadily at work on the road, and I expect to get through with this part of the new road the week after next. I should be extremely glad if I could have some spades and hoes, which would be very serviceable; and I am, sir, your Honour's most obedient, humble servant,

JOHN BARRETT, Superintendent.

To the Hon. General Gates.

JOHN BROOM TO ABRAHAM YATES.

New-Haven, September 26, 1776.

SIR: I was yesterday served with an order of Convention of the 14th instant, directing my attendance as a member forthwith. Mr. L'Hommedieu and myself had agreed to set out last week for Fishkills; but he did not come here according to appointment, and indeed if he had, it would not have been in my power to have left home, as three of my family were taken sick near about that time; they are now on the recovery, and hope soon to have the pleasure of attending. Meantime I am your and the Convention's humble servant,

JOHN BROOM.

To the Hon. Abraham Yates, Esq., President of the Convention at Fishkills.

CONNECTICUT COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

At a meeting of the Governour and Council of Safety of Connecticut, September 26, 1776, Present: His Honour the Governour, Eliphalet Dyer, Jabez Huntington, Richard Law, William Hillhouse, Nathaniel Wales, Jun., Titus Hosmer, Benjamin Huntington, Esqs.

Voted, That an order be drawn on the Pay-Table, in favour of Captain William Coit, commander of the ship Oliver Cromwell, for six hundred pounds lawful money, for the Colony use. (Order, September 26, 1776.)

Voted, That an order be drawn on the Pay-Table, in favour of Captain Ephraim Bell, for three hundred pounds lawful money, to be on account of ship Oliver Cromwell. (Order drawn September 26, 1776.)

Voted, To draw an order on Messrs. Elderkin & Wales, for ten pounds of Powder, to be delivered to Mr. Simeon Tucker, of the State of Rhode-Island, he paying five shillings four pence per pound for the same. (Order drawn September 26, 1776; delivered Mr. Wales.)

Mr. Benjamin Henshaw, of Middletown, exhibited his account of a journey of himself and expenses to Salisbury, and transporting five tons of Guns from thence to Middletown, amounting to £31 6s. 10½d.; which is allowed, and voted an order on the Pay-Table for the same. (Order drawn September 26, and delivered Mr. Hosmer.)

Voted, To draw on the Pay-Table for five hundred pounds, in favour of Colonel Joshua Porter, to enable him to carry on the publick works of the Furnace at Salisbury, and to be in account. (Order drawn September 26, 1776; delivered Hez. Fitch, Esq.)

Voted, That the overseers of the Furnace be directed to cast six and four Pounders until the sitting of the Assembly, or until further orders from the Assembly or this Council.

Voted, That Messrs. John Hudson & Co., from Long-Island, be encouraged to depend on purchasing four four-pound Cannon and four Swivels from this State, as soon as they can be cast and finished; and the overseers of the Furnace at Salisbury are hereby directed to deliver the same to them accordingly, they paying the customary therefor.

Voted, That Messrs. Lyon & Co., at East Haddam, be encouraged to depend on purchasing two six-pounders and eight four-pounders of Cannon from this State, as soon as they can be cast, for their Privateer; and the overseers of the Furnace are directed to deliver them accordingly, at the price given by others for Cannon of the same size.

Voted, That Captain Jabez Perkins be encouraged to depend on purchasing two four-pounders of Cannon from this State, as soon as they can be cast, for the use of his Privateer or Letter-of-Marque; and the overseers of the Furnace are directed to deliver the same accordingly, at the customary price.

DAVID MATTHEWS TO ABRAHAM YATES.

Litchfield, September 26, 1776.

SIR: I received your letter yesterday, dated the 28th August; and should be glad, if I am to appear before you, that it might be soon; for if it is delayed a few weeks longer, I shall appear before you as Adam did to himself after he had eaten the forbidden fruit, for I only brought here a few summer clothes, and there are none to be bought here, if I had ever so much money; and you will perceive, from my letter to Mrs. Matthews, what effect my letter of credit had. I can get nothing from home, for I have never heard a word from my wife and children since the King's troops landed on Long-Island, so that I can't tell whether they are in the land of the living or not; and if living now, it seems very probable that they will starve before next Spring, as they have no one to provide the least article for them.

I had one jaunt to Hartford, and was sent back here. I expect every day to be ordered to some other part of the Province; for there are some people at work to make my life as uneasy as possible, as you will see by this enclosed copy of a letter from Captain Seymour to the Governour. The Committee here have been compelled to write to Governour Trumbull for my removal, in order to pacify some people who are set on by some designing man. They insist that I can blow up this town, if I set myself about it. They make me out to be a worker of miracles. O that I could! I would soon leave them on the town to themselves. The Sheriff has given orders that I shall not approach the gaol, lest the doors fly open and the prisoners escape. I really could never have thought myself of so much consequence, until I came here, where I find, by report, that I have an army of ten thousand men, and can do more than any of the ancient knights-errant could boast of. This mighty consequence, I am afraid, will, nevertheless, be the means of my being both hungry and naked very soon.

I should not have returned to this cold wilderness, had not the Sheriff at Hartford declared that he must, if I was delivered to him, by virtue of Governour Trumbull's warrant, lock me up in gaol, where I had no bed nor any thing to rest on. However, as it seems it must come to it soon, I hope my end may come at the same time, and that, I hope, will satisfy all my enemies.

I am, sir, your most obedient servant,

D. MATTHEWS.

To Abraham Yates, Esq.

Litchfield, September 20, 1776.

SIR: I am extremely sorry to trouble your Honour, when matters of the greatest importance are constantly employing your attention, but being drove to the necessity, by some very troublesome people, of applying to your Honour for the justification of my conduct, I make no doubt your Honour will excuse the trouble I may give you, in a matter in which some people are pleased to say my character is concerned.

When I did myself the honour of waiting on you at Lebanon, I delivered to you a letter from Mr. Matthews, the contents of which I understood to be a request from him to your Honour, that he might be either put under the care of the Committee at Hartford, or be returned to Litchfield, under my care. Mr. Matthews, before he wrote that letter, had put the question to me, whether, if he obtained your leave to return to Litchfield, I would consent to take him to my house? I told him if he would be accommodated at Hartford, it would do better, but that if your Honour should order him back, I would do every thing in my power to make his stay as comfortable as possible, especially as I was informed, by some of the Committee, that they had no objections to his stay at Litchfield, and that the only difficulty was with some few people, who insisted that I had nothing to show for my keeping him.

Your Honour was pleased, as I conceive, in consequence of Mr. Matthews's request in his letter, to order him back to this place, under my custody, where every thing remained quiet until yesterday, when about a dozen people, without alleging the least cause of complaint against Mr. Matthews's conduct or mine, except in bringing him back, waited on our Committee, and insisted that I should be called before them, in order to show why I brought Mr. Matthews back. I accordingly waited on the Committee, and produced your Honour's order. They have insisted that such order would not have been granted only at my particular request, or some other gentleman's; which has induced me thus to appeal to your Honour, although my principles and character are too well known and established to be hurt by such people. I should, nevertheless, be extremely obliged to your Honour for a few lines, by way of information, whether Mr. Matthews's return here was not solely in consequence of his letter and the information that the Committee had no objections to his stay; for I believe your Honour will remember that I mentioned that if Mr. Matthews could be accommodated at Hartford, it would be full as agreeable to me, as he would be better supplied there than at Litchfield. This, I believe, will put a stop to any further uneasiness, as they give out that it was solely through my measures, or some of the Committee, that Mr. Matthews was sent back here.

I can safely say that my conduct through this whole business, has been governed by those principles which are dictated by humanity, and will always induce me to treat a person well who behaves well. If Mr. Matthews was to busy himself with politicks, or endeavoured to persuade people from the cause of their country, there is no man that would sooner turn him from his house than myself. But I believe there is no person here knows, from his conduct, what his political creed is, for he avoids talking on politicks. However, if your Honour should order him away, I have no objection.

I am, sir, your most obedient servant,

MOSES SEYMOUR.

To Governour Trumbull.

DANIEL TILLINGHAST TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Providence, September 26, 1776.

SIR: Agreeable to a resolve of Congress, I now forward your Excellency seventy-two tents, via New-London, to the care of Nathaniel Shaw, Esq., agent there. I shall forward a number more as soon as finished.

I am, with great respect, your Excellency's most obedient servant,

DANL. TILLINGHAST, Agent.

To His Excellency General Washington, Commander-in-Chief of the American Army.

GENERAL WARD TO NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Boston, September 26, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Your letter of the 24th instant, I received last evening; and agreeable to your request I have ordered five hundred pound of powder and one thousand pound of ball out of the Continental store, to be forwarded this morning with the utmost expedition for Hartford, and there to be delivered to the Committee of Correspondence, who will deliver it to the commanding officers of your regiments as soon as they arrive there.

I am, gentlemen, your obedient, humble servant,
ARTEMUS WARD.

To the Committee of Safety in New-Hampshire.

AARON HOBART TO RICHARD DEVENS.

Abington, September 26, 1776.

SIR: For want of cash, I have sold all the cannon I have by me, so you can't have them. I have waited for another blast, but can't have none at present for want of pig iron. Please to send me all your old iron.

AARON HOBART.

To Richard Devens, Esq.

[Per favour of Captain Weston.]

Boston, September 26, 1776.

The privateer General Greene, of East-Greenwich, and the privateer Harlequin, of Baltimore, have taken a Jamaica ship of three hundred and ten tons, and sent her into a safe port. Her cargo consists of three hundred and twelve hogsheads of sugar, eighty-two puncheons of rum, thirty-six pipes and four hogsheads of Madeira wine, eighteen hundred pounds weight of copper, &c. This ship, we hear, sailed in company with a large fleet, convoyed by two men-of-war, one of which was soon to leave them; the other, said to be a dull sailer, was to proceed with them to Europe.

Last Sunday, was sent into Providence by Captain Munro, the prize-ship Blaze-Castle, from Barbadoes, bound for London, having on board one hundred pipes Madeira wine, one hundred and twenty hogsheads of sugar, eighteen hundred weight whalebone, one hundred and twenty barrels of oil, &c.

Last Monday, was sent into this harbour by the Eagle, Captain Paine, a ship of one hundred and sixty tons, from Grenada, bound to London, having on board one hundred and fifty puncheons of rum, one hundred and nine hogsheads of sugar, some cotton, &c.

Yesterday morning, a sloop, laden with dry fish, was carried into Salem by Captain Waters, in the schooner Dolphin, mounting only six swivels.

MAJOR DRIVER AND COLONEL STANTON TO MARYLAND CONVENTION.

Caroline County, September 27, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Agreeable to the resolve of the Convention, we have had a meeting of the two battalions in this County, in order to see who would step forth as officers for the company to be raised in this County, when the gentlemen offered themselves as follows:

Captain William Haslett, Captain Nehemiah Andrew, Lieutenant William Rich, Mr. James White, as Captains; Mr. Ambrose Mitchel, Mr. John Milboun Walls, as Lieutenants; Mr. William Chipley as Ensign.

And we are of opinion that the proper officers to be commissioned of the above-mentioned persons are, Mr. William Haslett, as Captain; Mr. Ambrose Mitchel, as First Lieutenant; Mr. John Milboun Walls, Second Lieutenant, and Mr. William Chipley, Ensign.

We are, gentlemen, your most obedient servants,

MATTHEW DRIVER, Major and Commander of the 14th Battalion of Militia.

BENSON STANTON, Lieutenant-Colonel of the 20th Battalion of Militia.

To the Honourable the Convention of Maryland, or in their recess, the Council of Safety, Annapolis.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Philadelphia, September 27, 1776.

SIR: I have the honour to enclose you sundry resolves, which are so explicit that I need only request your attention to them.

You will perceive that Congress have come to a determination to augment our army to eighty-eight battalions, and to engage the troops to serve during the continuance of the war, being thoroughly convinced by repeated instances that the short and limited enlistment of troops has been the source of much mischief to the service.

In order that these troops may be better disciplined, the Congress have abolished the system of rules and articles for the government of the army which they at first instituted, and have adopted a new one, sundry copies of which I enclose you.

It is also their determination that the strictest discipline should be kept up in the army, that the soldiers should be daily trained and practised in their different manœuvres. An attention to these things, you will observe by the enclosed resolves, will be the likeliest way to obtain promotion, and will be the surest recommendation to their notice.

The Committee of Congress to confer with you on the state of the army, &c., will set out to-morrow or next day for Tyconderoga. To them I beg leave to refer you; and am, with every sentiment of esteem and regard, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To General Schuyler, Albany.

P. S. The attention of Congress has been so much taken up by our affairs at New-York, that I have not time to reply to your several letters, but hope I shall have leisure to do it by the next conveyance, and that Congress will soon determine on the subject of them. They are now in the hands of a special committee.

In Congress, September 25, 1776.

Resolved, That Mr. Mease be directed to send immediately to General Gates all the white Shirts, Shoes and Stockings he now has in his possession, and which are unappropriated, for the use of the Northern Army; and that he use the utmost diligence in buying, collecting and getting made immediately as many more of those articles as possible, making weekly reports to Congress of what he obtains.

That General Schuyler or the commanding officer at Albany, be desired to employ proper persons immediately, to make up into Soldiers' Clothes the woollens mentioned by General Schuyler, and transmit the same without delay to the General commanding the Northern Army, for the use of such of the troops in that army as have enlisted for three years, or will enlist during the war.

That Richard Varick, (late Captain in Colonel McDougall's Regiment, which office he has resigned,) Secretary to the Honourable Major-General Schuyler, be appointed Deputy Master-General to the Northern Army, and that Major Henry Brockholst Livingston, Aid-de-Camp to General Schuyler, be provided for by Congress in a station equal to his merit when a proper vacancy happens, he being recommended by the General as a very deserving officer.

Mr. Stockton and Mr. Clymer, appointed a Committee to proceed to Tyconderoga, to confer with General Gates with respect to the Army under his command, agreeable to instructions given said Committee, by Congress.

By order of Congress: JOHN HANCOCK, President.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL GATES.

Philadelphia, September 27, 1776.

SIR: I have the honour to enclose you sundry resolves of Congress, to which I must refer your attention. They relate to a variety of subjects, as you will perceive, and are extremely necessary for your information and the direction of your future conduct.

The Congress having resolved to raise eighty-eight battalions of Continental troops, are anxious to promote discipline and subordination in their army as much as possible. For this purpose they have repealed the system of military law they at first adopted, and instituted in its room a more severe and rigorous one, as better calculated to introduce obedience and regularity among the troops. It is also the determination of Congress that an attention to these things will be the best method of obtaining promotion, and will be the most effectual means of recommending the officers in the army of the United States to their notice.

Without a well-disciplined army it is impossible to expect success against veteran troops. You will therefore give orders to all the officers under your command to have the troops daily trained, and to enure them to the most exemplary discipline.

The Congress having appointed a Committee to repair to Tyconderoga, and to devise ways and means of providing the Northern army with provisions, medicines, and other necessaries, have chosen Mr. Stockton and Mr. Clymer, who will begin their journey on Monday next. To them, therefore, I beg leave to refer you for further particulars on this subject; and am, with great respect and esteem, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To General Gates.

P. S. The attention of Congress has been so much taken up by our affairs at New-York, that I have not had time to reply particularly to your letters, but hope I shall have leisure to do it by the next conveyance, and that Congress will soon determine on the subject of them.

RICHARD PETERS TO JASPER YEATES.

Philadelphia, September 27, 1776.

DEAR SIR: A Captain Hesketh's baggage is at Lancaster, under the care of his servant and Sergeant Cooper, prisoners of war. He wants it much at Philadelphia, and does not know how to get it. Do be so good as to take the pains of inquiring after it, and send it down, directed to my care. If it be in the custody of the Committee, this letter will, I fancy, be a justification for their delivery of it. He is a British officer, a prisoner of war, and a very good, but a very helpless man, therefore requires assistance in this matter. I will pay any expense attending the baggage. The reason of troubling you is, that the chests are broke open, and require either new locks or to be corded and sealed, and sent in the care of some trusty person. As the baggage is under these circumstances, I know it is disagreeable to have any thing to do with it. But he knows this, and though he believes the people who have them honest, he must run the risk.

I am your affectionate, humble servant,

RICHARD PETERS.

To Jasper Yeates, Esq.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER DATED NEW-YORK, SEPTEMBER 27, 1776.

TO THE PRINTER OF THE LONDON CHRONICLE:

SIR: For the comfort of some of your late correspondents, who seem to be much distressed with apprehensions that the King's Commissioners in America are sacrificing the honour of Old England, in pitiful negotiations, be so good as to insert in your paper the following extract from a letter dated New-York, September 27. The writer of the letter is a gentleman of observation and integrity, a great sufferer by the rebellion, and inflexibly attached to the honour and interest of Government.

I am very easy as to the Commissioners, their powers, and their conduct as such, since their arrival. Many and very ridiculous have been the alarms concerning the frequent flags of truce that have passed between them and the Rebels, both before the army landed, and after the action of the 27th ultimo; and these alarms, which have arisen from idle apprehensions that matters were going to be patched and juggled up, were so frequent, that many sensible but oversanguine people began to be affected. The whole matter was, that it was thought advisable and proper, during the interval of preparation for the moving of the army, to draw up a kind of Declaration, expressing the powers of the Commissioners, and the terms his Majesty was inclined to grant to such as would lay down their arms and return to their duty, which was certainly right. Two flags, one to Amboy, and the other to Washington, were despatched by Lord Howe. The former delivered letters to the Rebel commanding officer there, (at Amboy,) directed to several members of the grand Congress, at Philadelphia, enclosing those Declarations, which were politely received and forwarded: The other, to Washington, being addressed to George Washington, &c., &c.; he immediately returned unopened, telling the officer he (Washington) knew no such person. There is a fellow for you! I suppose you do not wonder that he did not know himself.

A day or two after, the General sent Colonel Patterson with a flag to Washington, as I was credibly informed, relative to an exchange of the Twenty-Sixth Regiment, and others, that had been taken by Montgomery, at Chambly and St. John's, for six hundred men that had been taken by Captain Forster from Arnold, in Canada, agreeable to a treaty that had been entered into between Forster and Arnold, which the Congress had formed artifices and pretences to evade, and which solemn treaty they still refuse to fulfill, notwithstanding delivered his own son, and eight or nine of his principal officers, as hostages.

Soon after came down a flag from Washington, by a certain Joseph Reed, formerly a lawyer, but now Washington's Secretary, and a Major. Being introduced to Lord Howe, he began a long and laboured harangue, on the oppressions of the Ministry and Parliament, and the long-sufferings of injured America. His Lordship heard him for a while, and then asked him very coolly to explain the nature of the business he was sent upon. He answered, "He was sent by the army of America to know what terms Great Britain had to offer." To which his Lordship replied, "None at all, unless they would lay down their arms, and return to their duty; that he and his brother were sent to compel them to terms; and that if they liked fighting better than a dutiful obedience, he might assure the persons who sent him they should very speedily have enough of it."

I told you General Sullivan was taken in the action of the 27th; I should have rather said he was caught creeping out of a swamp on his hands and knees, the 28th, in the morning, when he was carried to Head-Quarters. He endeavoured to persuade the General and Admiral that there was nothing the Rebel army desired so much as peace, if they could but have any tolerable terms; and begged the brothers would suffer him to go to New-York on his parole, to try what he could do, which was agreed to; and away he went to New-York and Philadelphia, and returned on board the Admiral in eight days. What report he made to the Admiral I have not yet learned; but in three or four days came down a flag of truce, asking his Lordship for a safe conduct for three Delegates of the grand Congress, viz: Adams, Franklin, and Rutledge; which being granted them, they came on board the Eagle, when his Lordship asked them, "How they expected to be treated?" Adams said, "As Delegates from the free and independent States of America." His Lordship made them no reply, but turned upon his heel with a sneer, and ordered the American ambassadors away immediately. Since which there have been no more flags of truce, the officers of the army having, one and all, openly assured the General, that they wish to have no cartel or treaty of any kind with Rebels as to exchanges, because they now look upon it as dishonourable to his Majesty's army; and that therefore they will very freely take their chance in all engagements that may in future happen between the army and the Rebels.

These little anecdotes you may depend on as true; they have served to convince us, and indeed I am convinced more and more every day, of the happy and judicious choice his Majesty and his Ministers have made, in these two brave and worthy men; every one of whose actions is the pure result of wisdom, prudence, and humanity.

I am quite charmed with Lord Howe's behaviour on the 27th; nothing could exceed his anxiety and vigilance. About nine o'clock in the morning the brigades of the left wing had made a halt on the hills at the edge of the woods behind Brooklyn, waiting partly for the front, and partly for want of ammunition; which his Lordship understanding, he immediately collected together what he could in a boat, and went himself with it, sending the boat's crew with it upon their backs up the hill from Yellow-Hook, until wagons could be got for a sufficient supply from the store-ships. When things go on with such unanimity and cordiality, a man must be incorrigible in scepticism who can doubt of the happy issue. Little delays may vex the sanguine and impatient growler; but even those delays have had their use, independent of the necessary and immediate causes of them. They have greatly disappointed the Rebel faction and their leaders, who fondly imagined the troops would always rush on headlong to their works, as in the Bunker's Hill affair; whilst the impenetrable secrecy observed by the two noble brothers has totally disconcerted and confounded them to a degree that will ensure a glorious triumph to his Majesty over this hellish American sedition, its ringleaders, and abettors.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER TO ENGLAND FROM THE MASTER OF THE DOROTHY TRANSPORT, AT NEW-YORK, DATED SEPTEMBER 27, 1776.

When the American army landed on Long-Island, they compelled every seventh man to bear arms; three days after that, one out of every four; and the next day, one out of every two, from twelve to sixty-four years of age; whom they forced away with them to New-York. The majority of those are since returned to their allegiance and habitations in that island. The Congress have been endeavouring to remove from Philadelphia, but the inhabitants have prevented them, declaring they should remain to share the same fate with themselves.

We have got part of the Jerseys, and plenty of provisions; good beef, veal, and mutton, at 3½d. per pound, bread as cheap as in London, apples and peaches for gathering, and cabbages and potatoes in abundance. Some little time before we took New-York, a sermon was preached there from Isaiah xxi. 15, to animate and inflame the minds of the Rebels, and depreciate the Britons.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER TO ENGLAND, DATED NEW-YORK, SEPTEMBER 27, 1776, RECEIVED BY THE EARL OF HALIFAX PACKET-BOAT, CAPTAIN BOULDERSON.

A general exchange of prisoners, in the army and navy departments, is soon to take place; but, I am sorry to add, it is not to include the many loyal subjects who are now, and have long been, imprisoned in different parts of the country. General Howe had sent Mr. Sullivan to the Congress with the Declaration of Great Britain to the Colonies; this produced an interview on Staten-Island between the two Howes, on behalf of the Crown, and Dr. Franklin, Mr. Edward Rutledge, and Mr. John Adams, who, previous to any conference, required to be acknowledged as ambassadors from the free and independent States of America, were answered that it was inadmissible; and consequently they separated re infecta. I forgot to mention that Mr. Washington, presently after the landing on New-York Island, narrowly escaped being made prisoner. He left Mr. Apthorp's house, at Bloomingdale, a few minutes only before the British Light Infantry entered it.

From Canada we are informed that the beginning of September a belt had been sent to Detroit from the Shawanese and Delaware nation of Indians, with a declaration in favour of Government, and that they were going to attack the Provincials on the back settlements of Pennsylvania, Maryland, and Virginia. That the whole force intended to embark on Lake Champlain was on board on the 24th of September, and getting under weigh.

COPY OF A PAPER SENT THROUGH THE COUNTY OF SUFFOLK, NEW-YORK, BY ORDER OF GOVERNOUR TRYON.

The Governour of the Province recommends to the inhabitants of Suffolk County, the following measures, as the best means for those who have been active in the rebellion, to preserve their lives and save their estates, viz:

That all offensive arms, indiscriminately, be forthwith collected in each respective Manor, Township, and Precinct, as soon as possible, to deliver up at Head-Quarters, to the Commander-in-Chief of the King's troops.

That those who have been active in the rebellion, if fit to bear arms, forthwith to wait on the General and enlist in the regular service, for the term of the present war; if not fit to bear arms, to send one of their sons to enlist in their stead; if no sons, to perform some unasked signal service that may merit the protection of Government.

The inhabitants of each Town to associate to prevent any person going to the main, and secure those coming from thence; and to secure and deliver up all persons known to be active enemies to the rights of the Constitution.

And the several Townships to furnish as many men as possible fit to bear arms, to invite those back who have fled from the County, to enlist in General De Lancey's brigade. And lastly, the inhabitants to send all their wood, forage, and provisions they can spare, to New-York market, or to such place as the General shall order.

Circular orders have been sent to the Justices on Long-Island, directing them to summon the farmers in their several districts to attend them at some convenient place, and demand of each of them what grass and straw they can spare. As to hay, they demand the whole. All Rebels that are in arms, the whole of their grass and forage they are to seize for the use of the King. And all who had removed from the Island are deemed Rebels, and are to be dealt with as such.

New-York, September 27, 1776.

SIR: You are to desire the Justices of the Peace to summon the farmers of their districts to attend at some central place, to demand of each what grain and straw he can spare. As to hay, we must have the whole, for which you'll give them proper certificates for me to pay them by. The whole of the grain and forage of Rebels in arms, is to be seized for the King's use. All persons removed off are to be deemed Rebels, and dealt with accordingly.

JOHN MORRISON,
Commissary of Forage.

To Mr. E. Punderson.

Blank Order left with the Inhabitants of SUFFOLK County,
LONG-ISLAND, SEPTEMBER, 1776.

You are hereby ordered to preserve for the King's use — loads of hay, — bushels of wheat, — of oats, — of rye, — of barley, — of Indian corn, and all your wheat and rye straw, and not to dispose of the same but to my order in writing, as you will answer the contrary at your peril.

JOHN MORRISON,
Major and Commissary of Forage.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read September 30, 1776.]

Head-Quarters, Heights of Harlem, September 27, 1776.

SIR: I have nothing in particular to communicate to Congress by this day's post, as our situation is the same as when I last wrote.

We are now sitting on the business the Committee came upon, which it is probable will be finished this evening. The result they will duly report upon their return.

I received yesterday the enclosed Declaration by a gentleman from Elizabethtown, who told me many copies were found in the possession of the soldiers from Canada, that were landed there a day or two ago by General Howe's permission. I shall not comment upon it. It seems to be founded on the plan that has been artfully pursued for some time past.

I have the honour to be, sir, your most obedient servant,
GO. WASHINGTON.

P. S. The account of the troops, &c., in Canada comes from a person who is among the prisoners sent from Canada. It was anonymous, nor do I know the intelligencer; according to him the enemy in that quarter are stronger than we supposed, and their naval force much greater on the Lakes than we had any idea of. I trust he has taken the matter up on the enemy's report.

By RICHARD VISCOUNT HOWE, of the Kingdom of IRELAND, and WILLIAM HOWE, Esq., General of his Majesty's Forces in AMERICA, the King's Commissioners for restoring peace to his Majesty's Colonies and Plantations in NORTH AMERICA, &c., &c., &c.:

DECLARATION.

Although the Congress whom the misguided Americans suffer to direct their opposition to a reestablishment of the constitutional Government of these Provinces, have disavowed every purpose of reconciliation not consonant with their extravagant and inadmissible claim of Independency, the King's Commissioners think fit to declare that they are equally desirous to confer with his Majesty's well-affected subjects, upon the means of restoring the publick tranquillity, and establishing a permanent Union with every Colony, as a part of the British Empire.

The King being most graciously disposed to direct a revision of such of his Royal instructions as may be construed to lay an improper restraint upon the freedom of legislation, in any of his Colonies, and to concur in the revision of all acts by which his subjects there may think themselves aggrieved, it is recommended to the inhabitants at large to reflect seriously upon their present condition and expectations, and to judge for themselves, whether it be more consistent with their honour and happiness to offer up their lives as a sacrifice to the unjust and precarious cause in which they are engaged, or to return to their allegiance, accept the blessings of peace, and be secured in a free enjoyment of their liberty and properties, upon the true principles of the Constitution.

Given at New-York, the 19th day of September, 1776.

HOWE.

W. HOWE.

By command of their Excellencies: HEN. STRACHEY.

The force of the enemy in Canada and on the Lake is from the best intelligence, as follows:

Ten thousand men landed in Canada from Europe, &c. Eight thousand of which, with many Canadians, are to go against Ticonderoga, &c.; all effective men, and in good order and appearance. It is without doubt General Carleton intends to command in person, with Burgoyne, Fraser, and Nesbit, &c.

Their naval force is: A ship built in England, taken to pieces and brought out on board the fleet; she is put up at St. John's, and launched there, has eighteen guns, twenty-four pounders, swivels, &c.

Two brigs, about ten guns each. } swivels, &c.
Three schooners, about eight ditto. }

Twenty gondolas, two guns each, from nine to twelve pounders.

Two hundred and fifty batteaus, all with swivels, and many of them with guns in their bows.

A very fine train of Artillery, of six companies, and at least one hundred pieces of cannon, thought to be the finest ever sent from England. A General officer commands it, General Phillips.

Every sailor and marine that could possibly be spared is sent to man their fleet.

Their determined intention is, if possible, to form a junction of their army with General Howe, in which case General Carleton will command the whole.

Sir John Johnson is gone round by Oswego with near eight hundred Indians, Maclean's Emigrants, and some Canadians of Scotch volunteers. There is some doubt he may come in by Fort George, and cut off our communication with Ticonderoga. He is sanguine in his expectation of taking Fort George and getting the command of the Lake.

GENERAL ORDERS.

Head-Quarters, Harlem Heights, September 25, 1776.

(Parole, Cumberland.)

(Countersign, Pitt.)

Colonel Sargent is to send to the Provost-Guard the soldiers who were with Ensign Macumber, and charged with plundering at Harlem.

The Brigadiers who are in want of tents for their brigades, are to meet at the Quartermaster-General's this afternoon, four o'clock, and divide such as are on hand among them.

Such regiments of Militia, as have returned to the Quartermaster-General the articles belonging to the publick they have received, and to their respective Brigadiers the ammunition they have drawn, of which they are first to produce certificates, are discharged, and may return home as soon as they think proper.

The General hopes the commanding officers, and all others of those regiments, will take care that no other men mix with them when going off; and that particular care be taken, that no horses be carried away by the men but what are certainly and properly employed in that service.

The Court-Martial of which Colonel Magaw is President, having found that Lieutenant Stewart struck Sergeant Philips, but that he was provoked so to do by the latter, and acquitted him of "threatening the life of Colonel Silliman," the General approves the sentence, and orders Lieutenant Stewart to be discharged from his arrest.

The same Court-Martial having tried and convicted Lieutenant Daniel Pelton, of Colonel Ritzema's Regiment, of

I do not apprehend I have any power to give directions in the case, nor do I mean to do it. You had better mention the matter to Congress, and have their opinion and determination upon it.

A paper, of which the enclosed is a copy, came to my hands yesterday morning. This account makes the enemy's force in Canada greater than what we supposed it to be; their naval force on the lakes to surpass any thing we had an idea of. The person who communicated it is not known; he, however, I believe, is among those sent from Canada by General Carleton, and who have lately arrived at New-York. I am in hopes it is a good deal exaggerated.

I am, dear sir, your most obedient servant,

GO. WASHINGTON.

To Hon. Major-General Schuyler, Northern Department.

COLONEL REED TO GENERAL HEATH.

September 27, 1776.

SIR: You will please to give direction that Colonel Tyler be put under arrest for cowardice and misbehaviour before the enemy on Sunday, the 15th instant.

By order of the General.

Sir, your humble servant,

JOS. REED, Adjutant-General.

To Major-General Heath.

Proceedings of a General Court-Martial of the Line, held on the Heights of HAARLEM, by order of His Excellency GEORGE WASHINGTON, Esq., General and Commander-in-Chief of the Forces of the UNITED AMERICAN STATES, for the trial of all Prisoners to be brought before them, SEPTEMBER 27, 1776.

WM. TUDOR, Judge-Advocate.

The Court proceeded to the trial of William Higgins, of Captain Hamilton's Company of the Artillery, brought prisoner before the Court, and accused of "breaking open a chest and stealing a number of articles out of it, in the room of the Provost Guard."

The prisoner being arraigned, pleads, "Not guilty."

Robert Wilson says: A person came into a room where I was, and told me that some men up in the Provost Room had broke open a chest and were plundering it. I went up and found the prisoner, Higgins, with another, tucking a gown and cloak into his bosom. I took them away from him. He said that others were concerned as well as him, and denied that he broke open the chest.

Peter Lynch confirms Wilson's testimony.

The Court are of opinion that the prisoner is guilty of the charge against him, and sentence him to be whipped thirty-nine lashes on his bare back for said offence.

G. WEEDON, President.

TENCH TILGHMAN TO COMMITTEE OF NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Head-Quarters, Harlem Heights, September 27, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The enemy have made no move upon our quarter since mine of yesterday. We heard a firing this morning towards Bergen, but as we have had no express from the commanding officer at that post, I imagine it has been upon some trifling occasion.

General Sullivan arrived at Head-Quarters this day. He informs that General Howe was much chagrined and disappointed at the escape of our army from New-York. He landed thirteen thousand men on the 15th, and looked upon us as good as if in his hands. He says our motions are very extraordinary, and Sullivan imagines not a little perplexing to Howe. I think if the passage of the North River can be so obstructed that the ships of war cannot get above us, our lines will keep them from making any progress in front. General Sullivan adds, that from some hints he heard dropped, provisions are not over-plenty in the fleet and army. You may depend on my keeping you fully advised of any material occurrences.

I am, most respectfully, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

TENCH TILGHMAN.

To the Hon. William Allair, R. R. Livingston, Henry Wisner, and William Duer, Esq., at Fishkills.

COLONEL PATTERSON TO CÆSAR RODNEY.

Head-Quarters, Amboy, September 27, 1776.

SIR: Agreeable to promise to write you, now in part, have sat down, having this opportunity by way of a journalizing.

I arrived here last Monday morning, with six companies, my battalion. Both have been exceeding polite to me since here, and admire our battalion much. This has added much to my pride; also the General has chosen our Light-Infantry for his body guard.

The evening before last I was officer of the day. About sun-down a boat of Hessians came over to our shore, opposite a large marsh above the mill guard, and stuck stakes there, with a number of bills, which were taken down. Enclosed is a copy of each sort. The General had the rest delivered him.

This morning a flag was sent over to the Island, with Captain Hamilton and a lady, Mrs. McMonty's daughter and child, opposite my door. They ordered them not to come near, which our people not beating the parley by drum so soon, they, Hessians, were near firing over our flag for want. They sent a boat off; would not let ours land. Since I have been here they have been fortifying opposite to us by batteries and small lines, all masked with bushes, as also the same done to their tents, which were open here when I came. It is the opinion here they are afraid of us. I hope we shall make them so on trial. The battalion is kept busy on duty. About twenty-seven sick, owing principally to the water, but are somewhat mending. I suppose about four thousand men here. I am happy in my situation, and hope to continue here if I can. Fine quarters, great plenty of oyster, fish, &c.; no ladies, to be sure. God help us; I hope for better times soon. Please to let Mr. Read know I am well, and any part of this; and, for God's sake, don't let the people choose the officers in Colonel West's battalion—if so, a poor figure.

I am, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

SAMUEL PATTERSON.

COLONEL MOYLAN TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read October 2, 1776.]

Harlem Heights, September 27, 1776.

SIR: The Field Deputies from Congress conferred with me this day on the business of the Quartermaster-General's department. They told me they found a dissatisfaction prevail in the army by its not being supplied sufficiently with the necessaries in that department; that it was their wish to reconcile a body of men so very necessary for the defence of the glorious cause we are all engaged in, and proposed that General Mifflin should resume that department, as it appears to them an effectual method of giving satisfaction to the army, and bringing the department into more regularity, which I must own there has of late been great need of, owing to causes which I shall take the liberty of pointing out to you, and through you, sir, to Congress, before I close this.

These gentlemen urged the necessity of this plan, which they had adopted, so forcibly, and at the same time in so delicate a manner, that I did not hesitate in telling them, that, as a servant to the publick, I would very willingly resign my office, as it appeared to them to be for the publick good. I placed my honour in their hands, and I shall be very much mistaken in them if they do not treat it with tenderness. They were pleased to tell me I might have the command of a battalion, which, though I hold to be a most honourable post, for the following reasons I have declined:

First: As the Quartermaster-General is at the head of the staff, I conceive that he takes rank of all Colonels in the army, it being generally the custom in most nations to give the rank of Colonel to the Assistant Quartermaster-General at the end of one or two campaigns. I therefore think that it would be going back in the army rather than advancing, which is what I cannot reconcile to my feelings, especially as there is a precedent which differs.

Secondly: Though I have employed my spare time in studying the art of war, and for fifteen months past have seen a great deal of its practice, my views were turned to the grand and extended parts thereof more than the minute. I do not, therefore, think myself capable of teaching a new regiment the necessary duties. These, sir, are the reasons by which I am actuated. At the same time I can assure the Congress that I am very willing to sacrifice my life when called upon, in the glorious cause which, from the noblest principles, I have voluntarily engaged in. I shall settle my accounts with the Commissioners as soon as possible, and serve a volunteer in this army until Congress is pleased to point out some other line of duty for me.

I will now, sir, beg leave to mention the principal causes which have given rise to the dissatisfaction in the army with my department. When I had the honour of being appointed to the office, the navigation of the North and East Rivers was ours: every thing wanting was carried to us by these channels; every thing went on smooth, easy, well. The few wagons and horses we had, though almost wore down in the service, with a few more added by me, were sufficient for the exigencies of the army. It was a long time after the arrival of the enemy before there was any just cause for complaint. A large part of our army was detached to Long-Island. Wagons, carts, and horses, were necessary to be sent over; many were sent thither. Perhaps there does not occur in history a sudden retreat so well concerted, so well executed, than was made from that island; but our wagons, carts, and horses, could not be brought over. The navigation of both rivers was stopped; of course we were deprived of our usual supplies, and then complaints began. We wanted wagons to do that duty which boats were accustomed to do. I used every endeavour in my power to remedy the evil. It was too sudden, and not in the power of man to provide, time enough for the emergency.

The cooking utensils of many regiments left on the Island, the fluctuating state of the Militia, coming in destitute of every necessary, drained our stores, and it must take up time to get fresh supplies; to this I may add, demands upon the Quartermaster-General, before unheard of in any army, which not being complied with, gave cause of complaint.

The removing of the stores from New-York very soon commenced. All our own, and all the teams that could be pressed or hired, were employed in that important service. The Commissary-Generals, the Director-General of the Hospital, the Commissary of Artillery, and what stores remained in my department, must be sent off, and that suddenly. This movement naturally alarmed the army in and about the city; they wanted teams to move their baggage, &c., and none could be spared; this caused great clamour, and the Quartermaster-General must be to blame. The stores of the different departments were crowded promiscuously on board of every vessel and boat we could procure, no store-houses to put them in provided; of course confusion in the extreme did ensue. I may be asked, why store-houses were not provided? The manœuvre was unexpected, no time allowed to build, and very few houses or barns in this part of the Island.

We were just emerging from this chaos when the Field Deputies arrived; but the clamours of the army had not time to subside. The loss of baggage, which was loaded on wagons, all falling into the enemy's hands, irritated them, and I do suppose the representation of many was strong against me, though themselves were chiefly to blame for leaving their baggage in their great hurry. The Deputies from Congress were alarmed at the many complaints, and proposed the remedy, which I cheerfully acquiesced in, as it was their opinion that it would be for the good of the service. General Mifflin's abilities were tried in this department; they are great, and I sincerely hope he will reconcile all matters. The provision I have made will assist him greatly. Timber, plank, boards, nails, brick, and lime, are engaged in sufficient quantities to build barracks for the army. I have contracted for ten thousand camp kettles, which are daily coming in; fifty wagons, with four horses to each, are now purchasing in Pennsylvania. There are between this and Norwich, coming to camp, fourteen thousand canteens, and a large quantity of pails, with many other articles, which would take up too much of your time to enumerate. I must beg pardon of you, sir, and the Congress, for taking up so much of it as I have done, but justice to my own character, will, I dare say, with gentlemen of your liberal minds, plead my excuse. I will therefore add no more, than assuring you and them, that I am, with the greatest respect, sir, your most obliged and very humble servant,

STEPHEN MOYLAN.

ELBRIDGE GERRY TO GENERAL GATES.

King's Bridge, September 27, 1776.

MY DEAR SIR: Being here with a Committee of Congress, for inquiring into the state of the army, I take the opportunity of informing you, by Mr. Trumbull, that we are endeavouring to new-model the army in every respect, where necessary. Congress have resolved to establish eighty-eight full battalions for the war, and the Assemblies are to appoint the regimental officers; in doing which, if some extra measures are not adopted, we shall have such a corps of officers as the army have been hitherto encumbered with. I have desired General Washington to furnish the Committee with a list of such officers in the army here as he is desirous of having again engaged in the service, with the States to which they belong; and the General thinks it will be necessary to obtain the same from the Northern army. The use we intend to make of this is, to send it with a member of Congress to the Assembly of each respective State, who is to be ordered to impress the necessity of appointing gentlemen of education to military offices, as a measure absolutely necessary for saving the country, and to urge the Assemblies to apportion the men on the towns, and raise them by recruiting or drafting, in readiness for reinforcing or forming the camps by the 1st December next. We have obtained Colonel Moylan's resignation, and General Mifflin comes again into the office of Quartermaster-General. Many other measures will be reported, which I think will put things on a good footing. I suppose you will hear of the retreat from New-York ere this is at hand, and the fire which has consumed about one quarter of the city; and remain, sir, in great haste, your assured friend, and very humble servant,

E. GERRY.

To Major-General Gates.

P. S. Pray direct the list to me at Philadelphia, without delay. The men are to have a bounty of twenty dollars, and one hundred acres land each, at the end of the war—the officers land in proportion.

CAPTAIN CREGIER TO PETER R. LIVINGSTON.

Fishkill, September 27, 1776.

MOST WORTHY SIR: Your honourable House has been pleased to give me liberty to return to my house at King's Bridge, where I shall wait the commands of your Honours, and will be glad to have your directions how I am to apply for the money to pay off my people. I will take it a singular favour if you will be pleased to direct my letter, or instructions which you may be pleased to send me, under cover to Colonel Lasher, at the King's Bridge, who is noted by every one, as he diets and breakfasts at my house.

I am, with due respect, sir, your humble servant,

THOMAS CREGIER.

To Peter R. Livingston, President of the honourable Convention, at Fishkill.

ROBERT YATES TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Poughkeepsie, September 27, 1776.

SIR: The Committee which the Convention of this State appointed for devising ways and means to obstruct the navigation on Hudson's River, have lately received directions from the Convention to purchase vessels to be sunk near Fort Washington. To effect this, we immediately proceeded up to this place, with Captain Grennal, whose assistance, by reason of his naval experience, the Convention conceived might be useful to the Committee.

The Committee upon their arrival here, sent down an old sloop which we had purchased some time before, and directed that another sloop lying in the Highlands should also be sent down; both are intended to be sunk, and we make no doubt but by this time they are at the bridge, as also the fire-ship charged by Captain Hazelwood, he having charged but one here for want of materials.

The Committee have also impressed, and now send down two large ships and two brigs, and in order to ascertain their respective values, have appointed persons of unexceptionable characters and great experience to appraise the same on oath, for the purpose that the owners thereof may receive from the publick a recompense.

The said appraisements stand as follows:

The brig of Lowthrop and others, - - -	£ 400 0 0
The brig of Malcom and others, - - -	760 0 0
The new ship of John Franklin , - - -	3,429 0 0
The new ship of Samuel Franklin , - - -	2,800 0 0
	£7,389 0 0

The fire-sloop was purchased for	£200 0 0
The sloop sent from Poughkeepsie ,	125 0 0
The sloop in the Highlands , - - -	130 0 0

Total amount, - - - - - £7,844 0 0

We found in the brig owned by Mr. Lowthrop a quantity of boards, and knowing that they were much wanted at the bridge, we concluded to send her down, and have requested Captain North to deliver them to such officer as may be appointed to receive and purchase the same, and at the price usually paid, with power to receive the money.

The two ships have never been out to sea, and by the report of masters of vessels and ship carpenters, they are exceedingly well built, and of the very best materials. It would, therefore, become a matter of concern to sink those vessels, if the interest of the publick should not render the measure absolutely necessary and unavoidable.

In order to afford Captain Cook all proper assistance in procuring plank, we directed Captain Casewell, of the sloop of war Cambden, equipped by this State, to carry down all the spare plank in the ship-yards here. We have also purchased upwards of six thousand feet, and sent them down by Captain Donaldson; and as those sloops proceeded down with a fair wind on Tuesday last, we make no doubt but they are safely arrived.

We have the honour to be, with great respect, your Excellency's most obedient and very humble servants,

By order of the Committee:

ROBERT YATES, Chairman.

To His Excellency George Washington, Head-Quarters.

COLONEL CORTLANDT TO GENERAL GATES.

Skeensborough, September 27, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: The bearer hereof, William Foster, a soldier in Colonel Wynkoop's regiment, having lately buried his wife, and has with him now at this place five small children, and no way to provide provision for them unless he can be discharged to go to a small farm he has some distance from here, and begs of me to write in his favour to procure his discharge. He is of little worth in the army, and therefore I think it would be as well to let him go.

I have discharged several sick carpenters, following General Waterbury's example, (who had orders for that purpose.) Hope I have not committed an error by so doing, as I have had no particular directions about it, but thought it best for the good of the service. But have not discharged any soldier.

Not knowing what to do with a company of Dutch carpenters, as there was no work for them at the galley, I set them at getting timber for barracks, ninety-six feet long and sixteen feet wide, to have six rooms on one floor and as many above. Shall be glad to have some direction about this matter, and whether I have acted right or no.

The ill state of health prevailing in the regiment, has prevented me doing any thing at the fort.

Colonel Mott is preparing to embark for Ticonderoga. He has sent some men to Fort Ann for boards. He will leave this as soon as a sufficient number of batteaus arrive to take him off. The boats which were sent up not being more than were wanted for the troops of Colonel Willard's regiment, who is arrived, the last of which will leave this tomorrow. The galley will be off next Thursday, being as far finished as the others were that we sent off already.

I have heard nothing of Colonel Wynkoop since my last. I am, dear General, your most affectionate

PH. CORTLANDT.

To General Gates.

DOCTOR WIGGLESWORTH TO NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Mount Independence, opposite Ticonderoga, }
September 27, 1776. }

GENTLEMEN: When I waited upon you to receive a commission for Doctor Movers, if I am not mistaken, Colonel Thornton informed me that there would be a supply of medicines proper for the campaign without fail. In hopes that it would be so, I appeased the troops at Number-Four, but alas! how have we found ourselves mistaken. Gentlemen, I wish you could transport yourselves to this place for a moment, to see the distressed situation of these troops, and no medicines. Near half of this regiment is entirely incapable of any service, some dying almost every day. Colonel Wyman's regiment in the same unhappy situation. There are no medicines of any avail in the Continental chest; such as are there are in their native state, unprepared; no emetic nor cathartic; no mercurial or antimonial remedy; no opiate or elixir tincture, nor even any capital medicine. It would make a heart of stone melt to hear the moans and see the distresses of the sick and dying. I scarce pass a tent but I hear men solemnly declaring that they will never engage another campaign without being assured of a better supply of medicines.

The above, gentlemen, is this real state of this army. Now, sirs, think how much more unhappy and distressed the condition of these troops must be, should the enemy attack our lines. Numbers of wounded, which is the never-failing consequence of obstinate battles, and nothing suitable wherewith to dress their wounds.

Gentlemen, you will excuse the freedom I have used in transmitting to you the state of this army in the above respect, and thought it my duty to acquaint you therewith.

I am, gentlemen, with great respect, your humble servant,
SAMUEL WIGGLESWORTH.

To the Committee of Safety of the State of New-Hampshire.

P. S. I have before wrote you on this subject, but fearing it should not come to hand, I have once more attempted it, and send by a person of fidelity and trust.

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Lebanon, September 27, 1776.

SIR: I am now to acknowledge the receipt of your favour of the 23d instant.

I have given orders that Governour Skeene be set at liberty, and that he and Governour Browne set out on Tuesday next for Head-Quarters, under an escort of ten men, commanded by Captain John Skinner, who has orders to detain them ten or twelve miles on this side Head-Quarters, and send one of the escort to receive your directions concerning them.

I have likewise given notice to them, agreeable to your request, and appointed as early a day for them to begin their journey as the necessary preparation for it will admit of.

I am, sir, with the greatest respect and esteem, your obedient, humble servant,

JONTH. TRUMBULL.

To His Excellency General Washington.

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Lebanon, September 27, 1776.

SIR: I have your favour of the 23d instant, and have given the necessary orders respecting the Governours Browne and Skeene.

The evacuation of New-York, in the situation you were, appears to me a very prudent and necessary measure, however we could wish the post had been tenable. The panic and flight of our troops, and confusion of the retreat, I have heard from many persons with concern and anxiety. I flatter myself they will be sensible of the danger and dishonour of such conduct, and avoid it in future, and would consider their spirited and brave conduct on Monday as a prelude that their future behaviour will atone for the past.

Can your Excellency spare our row-galleys from further Continental service? The men and their arms may be used to great advantage on board our ship and brigantine in the enterprise formerly mentioned to you, in which I have the promise of Admiral Hopkins's concurrence. Your advice on this head is wanted, as we are not so well acquainted what alteration your present situation may make in regard to it. An early answer will be necessary if the galleys can be spared, and the intended naval expedition is yet prudent and practicable.

I am, sir, with great truth and esteem, your obedient, humble servant,

JONTH. TRUMBULL.

To His Excellency General Washington.

P. S. If the galleys cannot be conveniently spared, or some, cannot a part of the men and arms, especially pistols and cutlasses?

CONNECTICUT COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

At a meeting of the Governour and Council of Safety, of Connecticut, September 27, 1776, Present: His Honour the Governour, Eliphalet Dyer, Jabez Huntington, Richard Law, Titus Hosmer, William Hillhouse, Benjamin Huntington, Nathaniel Wales, Jun., Jedediah Elderkin, Esqrs.

Voted, That the overseers of the Furnace at Salisbury be, and they are hereby directed to deliver to the agents for building the Continental ship, at Chatham, twenty-four twelve-pounders, and six six or four-pounders, of Cannon, they receiving the same at said Furnace, and paying at the rate of £3 10s. per hundred weight, for the twelve-pounders, and £4 per hundred for the smaller Cannon. (Order delivered Mr. Dean, September 27, 1776.)

Voted, To draw on the Pay-Table for £30, to enable him to go to on General Washington with Governours Brown and Skeene, to deliver them to the care of the General, and to render his account. (Order drawn September 27th, and enclosed in a letter to Mr. Hosmer.)

Upon the Memorial of Isaac Doolittle and others, inhabitants of the Town of New-Haven, setting forth the fears and apprehensions they are under on account of sundry persons suspected to be inimical to the liberties of America, praying this Board to take the matter up, and order and decree such suspected persons to be removed, &c., as per Memorial, dated September 17, 1776:

Voted, That the consideration of said Memorial, and the matters therein contained, be referred to the honourable General Assembly, to be holden at New-Haven, on the second Thursday of October next, and that in the mean time a citation go forth thereon, to cite said suspected persons therein complained of to appear before said Assembly, to make answer thereto, and that the Civil Authority, Selectmen, and Committee of Inspection, for said town, be directed to make inquiry, and collect the evidence relating thereto, and lay the same before said Assembly, that justice may be done thereon.

Voted, To draw on the Pay-Table for £10, in favour of Lieutenant Thomas Bill, to enable him to take up Deserters from Colonel Burrell's Battalion, and return them to their duty, and render his account. (Order drawn September 27th, delivered Lieutenant Bill.)

Voted, That Lieutenant Thomas Bill be directed and empowered to take up all Deserters from Colonel Burrell's Regiment, which may be found in this State, and return them to their corps; and all persons are hereby required to afford him such assistance as shall be needful in effecting the same.

Voted, That Dr. Joshua Elderkin, of Windham, be empowered and directed to provide a sufficient quantity of Tow-cloth for one hundred and forty Hammocks for the Ship Oliver Cromwell, and that he forward what Tow-cloth he has on hand, and purchase a further quantity if to be had soon for said use, to the amount of four hundred yards in the whole, and forward the same to Captain Bill, for said purpose.

THADDEUS BURR TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Fairfield, September 27, 1776.

SIR: This is to inform you that at the request of Thomas Tredwell, and other gentlemen of Long-Island, I have received into my gaol Isaac Ketchum and Samuel Skidmore, who are now held by no legal process; I therefore should be glad of some directions from the Convention. I shall hold them until I hear from you.

I am, in great haste, sir, your very humble servant,
THADDEUS BURR, Sheriff of Fairfield County.

To the President of the Convention of the State of New-York.

DANIEL TILLINGHAST TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Providence, September 27, 1776.

SIR: I had the honour of addressing your Excellency 25th, by which opportunity I forwarded to the care of Nathaniel Shaw, Jun., Esq., at New-London, seventy-two tents, agreeable to a resolve of Congress. By this opportunity I send nine marqués and ninety-seven tents, to the care of Nathaniel Shaw, Jun., Esq., who, I trust, will immediately forward the same to your Excellency.

I shall forward a number more as soon as finished; and am, with the greatest respect, your Excellency's most obedient and very humble servant,

DANL. TILLINGHAST, Agent.

To His Excellency General Washington, Commander-in-Chief of the American Army.

COUNCIL OF MASSACHUSETTS TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Council Chamber, Watertown, September 27, 1776.

SIR: We now enclose you a representation made to the Board by Captain Alexander Coffin, late owner, in company with Captains Jenkins, Folger, and Gardner, of a brigantine lately taken, on her passage from London and the West-Indies to this Continent, by the Congress privateer, Captain Craigie commander, from Philadelphia. We would humbly submit it to the consideration of the honourable Congress, whether it would not be for the interest of the American States to take some order to prevent vessels, under similar circumstances with the brig above referred to, from being detained by any of the privateers fitted out from any of the States of America, as in case this practice should be continued, all intelligence from those who are desired from time to time to afford us any, with respect to the measures the Administration in Great Britain are taking against these States, will be prevented, and thereby great detriment may accrue to this Continent. We would, also, recommend the case of Captain Coffin to the consideration of Congress.

The bonds, commissions, and instructions for the commanders of private ships of war, which were sent to us from Congress some time since, are mostly disposed of. As we have daily applications for papers of this sort, we desire your Honour would furnish us with a further supply.

I am, with great respect, in the name and behalf of the Council, your most humble servant,

WALTER SPOONER, President.

To the Hon. John Hancock, Esquire.

Newburyport, September 27, 1776.

Last Tuesday was brought in here by the Washington privateer, a bark bound to the West-Indies, to fetch soldiers for the enemy; she had on board a quantity of provisions, and a few pieces of cannon.

Yesterday was carried into Portsmouth a ship of between two and three hundred tons, laden with about two hundred and fifty hogsheads of sugar, fifty of rum, and some of wine. We also hear that a schooner of about ninety tons, laden with salt, linen, and household furniture, was carried into Ipswich about two days ago.

In Town-Meeting, Petersham, September 27, 1776.

The question being put, whether this Town will consent that the present General Court shall form a Constitution of Government agreeable to their resolve of the 17th instant, and it passed in the negative, unanimously. Also unanimously voted, that the following draft be lodged in the Secretary's office, as the sense of this Town respecting that matter, agreeable to the resolve aforesaid.

The inhabitants, in order to express their mind respecting the forming a Constitution of Government for this State, would humbly show, that it is their opinion that it will be of little avail for this people to shed their blood and spend their treasure in opposing foreign tyranny, if, after all, we should fix a basis of Government partial, unsafe, and not fit for the enjoyment of free and virtuous men. We think that God, in his providence, has now opened a door, possibly the only one that this State will ever have, for the laying a foundation for its prosperity, peace, and glory. A Constitution of Government, one levied on the laws of the people, cannot easily be altered, (especially for the better,) as the craftiness of designing men, if any errors are suffered to be fixed in its foundation in their favour, it will be next to impossible to remove them; therefore, in so momentous and important a matter, we would be willing to set out fair, and on the most likely ground to obtain the prize. If we may be allowed to speak our minds freely, we apprehend that the present General Court of this State are not in a situation most likely to effect this great work to advantage, nor do we believe that when all the towns who have not sent a member, may have sent as many as the late law will allow them, that they will be in a proper situation for so great and important a business; for while the mercantile towns swarm with Representatives, the freehold interest of the country (in which we presume there is the most safety) have neglected to choose such a number as the late regulation entitles them; and the late resolve of Court does not empower any town who have a right to choose a number and have elected but one, to make any addition; and further, a late General Court having taken it upon them in a thin House, uninstructed and without consulting the people, materially to alter the fundamental principles of representation, and as we apprehend much for the worse, most sensibly affects us.

That it is unsafe and for the worse, we would give the following reasons, viz:

The mercantile interest being put on a par with the freehold, cannot be safe, more especially in a community where the balance of trade is against us, and likely so to continue for a considerable time yet to come; which must be where raw materials are exported, and manufactured ones imported. In such case the merchant's interest will lead him to keep the people dependent on the channel of his trade, and of consequence use every means to discourage manufactures among us, as trade will lessen in proportion to their being carried on, and must very near come to a stand at the time when our manufactures are sufficient for our own consumption; and until such time as we change the situation of our exports and imports to our advantage, as is the case of England, the merchant's interest must ever operate against the prosperity of his country. Besides, the late alteration of Representation must enlarge the House to so enormous a size that it must be very unwieldy. We therefore think that, to have remained in our ancient mode of representation until a more equitable one, if possible, could have been adopted by the general voice of the people, would have been much better, than to have pushed the late alteration through at the close of a long session, in a very thin House, without any knowledge of the people at large. Neither can we give our consent that the Council should have any hand in forming the Constitution for this State.

If it has been thought unsafe for that branch to originate, or even alter, any money-bill, much more for them jointly with the House to originate a Constitution of Government, which may be of vastly more importance to this State than all their present money and interest put together, and for the Representative body to choose a number of men less in number than themselves, and invest them with a power to tie their own hands, seems to us a giving up that trust, and exposing that confidence which the people have placed in them, and is only the remains of the feudal system, and a species of tyranny we hoped to have been rid of with the rest of the King's evil; our voice therefore is, that the law entitled "for a more equal representation" be repealed; that writs be issued according to our ancient mode, for a new House, who may be chosen for the purpose of forming a Constitution; that they assemble and hand forth such a Constitution of Government to the people, that the people have sufficient time to examine the same, and report their approbation to such House, and if the major voice of the people is in favour thereof, that it be ratified, confirmed, and continued, until after generations, by being more virtuous, may alter it for the better; or by being more vicious, may alter it for the worse. But if the people do not approve of such a Constitution as may be thus formed, in such case the then House issue writs for a new House for the same purpose, and dissolve themselves as a representative body. And may God, of his infinite mercy, assist this people with wisdom, that they may be able to lay such a foundation as may render this land the glory of all lands.

And also voted, that a copy of the foregoing be transmitted to the Printers, that if they see cause it may be made publick.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO COLONEL READ.

[No. 195.]

Annapolis, September 24, 1776.

SIR: We do not address this letter to Colonel Barnes, because we expect he will be at the Convention. We request you would assist Mr. Middleton in getting a nine-pounder on board his boat, and also in getting up a small anchor lost by the Defence. We are, &c.

To Colonel John Hatton Read, of St. Mary's County.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO BALTIMORE COMMITTEE.

Annapolis, September 28, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We wrote you the 5th of June, requesting you would render a particular account of the expenditures of the £1,000 sent the 8th March to defray the expenses of the Militia on the alarm occasioned by the Otter sloop-of-war, and also to supply us with your vouchers for the general charges in the account of moneys expended on the fortifications at Whetstone Point, but have not as yet been furnished with them. We again repeat that request, and as we are anxious to have all our accounts settled, to lay before the Convention, hope to have the above immediately transmitted to us. We are, &c.

To the Committee of Observation for Baltimore County.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO COLONEL RUMSEY AND OTHERS.

Annapolis, September 28, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We have sent you the money you requested, viz: £700 for Colonel Hollingsworth, also £500 for the Flying-Camp service. Be pleased to apply for linen for tents to Major Parker, and get them made where you can; perhaps they may be got ready-made at Baltimore Town, where we would have you apply for cartouch-boxes, camp-kettles, canteens, also knapsacks and havresacks. Gerard Hopkins, our Commissary, will furnish you if there be any ready made. Flints we are not to furnish, unless it be sufficient for the company's guns. We want much to see and converse with Colonel Hollingsworth, and therefore write no answer to his letter. We are, &c.

To Colonels Rumsey, Hollingsworth, and Major Parker.

JUDGE HALL TO MATTHEW TILGHMAN.

[Baltimore, September 28, 1776.]

SIR: Since my appointment of Judge of the Admiralty, I have had the honour of being chosen one of the Delegates for Anne Arundel County. I have received no commission, nor acted in any manner under the appointment, and am determined to decline acting in that department of Judge Admiral. Be pleased to signify this to the honourable Convention, with my thanks for their favour in appointing me.

I am your most obedient servant,

J. HALL.

To Hon. Matthew Tilghman, Esq., President of the Convention.

CAPTAIN NICHOLSON TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, September 28, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I received yours desiring my attendance to adjust the Defence's accounts. I was under the necessity immediately upon my return here of sending the Clerk and Purser down to the Eastern Shore after men of the frigate, and expect their return in five or six days, when I certainly will attend with them for that purpose, let my business with the frigate be ever so pressing.

I am, gentlemen, your most obliged, humble servant,
JAMES NICHOLSON.

To the Honourable Council of Safety of Maryland.

SAMUEL CALWELL TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Harford County, September 28, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Enclosed you have my commission. The reason of my laying it down is, that on the 16th of the month our battalion was called together to signalize themselves, but from the cowardice of the greatest part of the company that I had the command of, I think I can't head them with honour to the cause, for I have the interest of my country at heart as much as ever and am still willing and ready to act in a private capacity with gentlemen that have distinguished themselves as men of courage. I beg leave to return you thanks and the gentlemen that recommended me to that honour, for the good opinion they had of me.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,
SAM'L CALWELL.

To the Honourable Convention of Maryland.

COL. HOLLINGSWORTH TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Head of Elk, September 28, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The troops having principally passed on, I have for this few days past been collecting the accounts, in order to lay them before your Honours; for which purpose I intended setting out this day for Annapolis, but yesterday had letters from Colonels Parker and Aylet, of the Virginia forces, requesting that I would procure provisions, wagons, &c., for the Fourth and Fifth Regiments of Virginia, and that they would leave Williamsburgh on last Sunday, has retarded my setting out; and as I am in great want of cash, am emboldened to draw on your Honours for seven hundred pounds. The accounts I have collected, paid and assumed for, amount to one thousand and fifty-odd pounds. I have received of your Honours, by Mr. Joseph Gilpin, three hundred pounds. Mr. Gilpin informs me there was an order sent me on the Eastern Shore Treasurer, for three hundred more, but I have not received the order or money. If the order should come to hand, shall return it, as all the money now drawn for is due.

I submit it to your Honours whether it would not be conducive to the service, to lodge a sum of money in this County, in some gentleman's hands who your Honours can confide in, who I might apply to, as my advancing as much as I have done heretofore (this is supposing the troops that are now raising to go forward) may be rather prejudicial to my other concerns. The quantity of musket-barrels and bayonets, that I have made, amounts to about the sum received on that account, the accounts of which I shall bring down with me as soon as in my power, together with the accounts for forwarding and arming the troops. It appears to me that I have a quantity of barrels and bayonets now by me that Mr. E. Winter will not want, as I sent him seventy barrels and ninety bayonets the other day. I shall therefore send them by first opportunity to your Honours, as I have not locks, (or I would have had them fitted.)

I have now begun in earnest with the large barrels. I tried it some time since, with some of the best workmen I had, and found that without stone coal, we should spoil many barrels, which would make the others come high. As soon as the passage was safe, I sent a vessel for a load to Virginia, which has returned with five hundred bushels coal, which answers well. I shall make six a week, as I shall keep one forge with three hands forging those barrels, and they can forge one each day, some of which I shall send down for your inspection, first opportunity. If locks could be had, as Mr. Thomas Johnson informed me he thought might at Frederick, I could have muskets finished here, (as I think to advantage,) as they would be ready for the troops as they pass along to the northward or southward; and if locks could be made of proper size at Frederick, for the large pieces, and sent by way of Baltimore to this place, I would have them fitted also at your Honour's pleasure. As the size and weight of them will make the carriage of them troublesome and expensive, this with the whole, I with much diffidence, submit to your Honours; and am, with much esteem, gentlemen, your most obedient and most humble servant,

H. HOLLINGSWORTH.

To the Honourable Council of Safety of Maryland.

P. S. Pray, gentlemen, excuse the freedom I have taken with your Honours, as 'tis meant to promote and forward the service.

MEMORIAL OF GUNNING BEDFORD, MUSTERMASTER GENERAL.

[Read 28th September. Ordered to lie on the table.]

To the Honourable the Congress of the UNITED STATES OF AMERICA:

The Memorial of Gunning Bedford, Mustermaster General, sheweth:

That your memorialist delivered an account to the President of the Treasury Board, with a request that when the account came to be examined, if there were any objections made to any of the articles contained therein, that your memorialist might have an opportunity of answering them. That your memorialist never heard any thing of the account till yesterday, when he was informed there was an order passed for his money. This morning he went to the Treasury Office, and was astonished to find every article in the account erased, except one, that respected his pay. Your memorialist humbly apprehends he was not treated so generous by the Treasury Board as he had reason to expect, for he could not suppose that the Commissioners of the Treasury would have proceeded to examine and reject an account without giving him an opportunity of being heard and answering any objections that were made against it. Your memorialist feels himself particularly unhappy on this occasion, as he thinks a rejection of his account is such a reflection on his conduct as he by no means deserves. To overcharge the Continent, or to attempt to receive publick money without rendering adequate services, is a conduct unworthy of any gentleman in your service, and such as this honourable House, I am convinced, would not suppose without the fullest evidence.

Your memorialist begs leave to observe to this honourable House, that those articles of his account which are crossed, were all erased. As to the first and second, respecting travelling expenses, it is well known to many of the members when your memorialist first received his appointment as Deputy Mustermaster, it was mentioned that a daily allowance should be made for travelling expenses, which was never done; but the honourable the President, and many other members, desired him to keep an account of his travelling and other necessary expenses attending the office, which he did, and they were allowed on every occasion while he was Deputy, without any objections either by the Committee of Claims or Treasury Board.

The third and fourth articles are for your memorialist's own and servant's board, and servant's wages. While he was Deputy, whenever he was from home and stationed any time at one place, he charged his own board and lodgings, and it was always allowed as Mustermaster. Your memorialist is not entitled to rations, nor indeed could he, from the nature of his department, receive them with any degree of regularity. It is a provision for the military, which he has nothing to do with. While Deputy, he was a few weeks at home, and then as he did charge board, the Committee of Claims allowed him five rations per day. While your memorialist was Deputy, he never charged for a servant; but being promoted to Mustermaster General, he thought himself entitled to one, especially when he considered that every officer in the service (even down to the lowest subaltern) has one, with this distinction, that they take them out of the ranks at fifty shillings per month, pay and rations, and your memorialist found it more convenient to take his own servant at forty shillings per month and board.

As to the fifth article of wages, which was allowed, your memorialist would beg leave to suggest to this honourable House that it is much too low for the duty and trouble of the office. The honourable House remember that it is no more than he had while Deputy, and what every Deputy in the smallest department in the States receives. The difference in pay between principal and deputy in other departments is as two to one. The duty, trouble and care of the office has much increased on his hands by promotion: he has not only the care of the grand army, which is equal to the duty in any three departments, but he has likewise to receive returns from the Deputies in all the departments, and see that those returns are regularly entered and filed.

As to the sixth article, that of a clerk's pay, your memorialist must conceive it a great hardship on him if it is not allowed. While he was Deputy this honourable House were pleased to indulge him with an assistant Deputy. The Deputy for the Flying Camp, (an army much inferior in number to that your memorialist has the care of,) is allowed two assistant Deputies, each of them, if I am not misinformed, receiving the same pay with your memorialist, whose charge is but for a clerk with twenty dollars per month, and no allowance for subsistence.

The seventh and last charge is for a horse. This honourable House gave your memorialist one horse. On his last tour of duty, confined as the army were to a small spot of ground, in comparison to what they now occupy, or are likely to do this some time to come, that one horse was so wore down, that he was frequently obliged to be indebted to the Quartermaster-General for one of the common hack publick horses. And he was the more emboldened to make the charge, as he is informed from good authority that the Deputy in the Virginia department is allowed three horses.

Thus has your memorialist stated his account, with his reasons for making the charges. The Commissioners of the Treasury have been pleased to allow him in recompense for the charges for travelling, board, &c., which they have erased, four rations. The Committee of Claims on a former occasion, and when he was but a Deputy, allowed me five rations. This honourable House, on a view of your memorialist's case, must plainly see in how much better a situation your memorialist was when Deputy, than he is at present, and in how much better situation every Deputy in this department through the States is, than the principal.

Your memorialist being apprehensive that he may not stand so fair before this honourable House as he could wish, he therefore hopes the honourable House will indulge him while he trespasses on their patience to add a few words in vindication of his conduct. On the 17th June last, your memorialist was appointed Mustermaster-General; he repaired immediately to Head-Quarters, and continued there until the army were in such a situation, occasioned by their retreating from New-York, &c., that it was impossible for him to do any thing more in his department. Before our retreat from Long-Island his Excellency General Washington thought it impracticable to muster the troops in their confused situation, numbers being constantly employed on fatigue, and every regiment ought to be kept two days off duty when they are mustered. Notwithstanding these difficulties, the whole army were mustered, except one regiment, which came from Boston, and went on Long-Island just before the battle there.

The honourable House will be pleased to observe, the office of your memorialist is entirely civil, and has nothing to do with the military, save only as a check, and to prevent any frauds being committed by them.

Your memorialist has full confidence that any reflections cast on him, must have proceeded from a want of a due knowledge of the nature of his duty. Musters are taken so often in the year as the situation of the army will permit. After they are finished, the Mustermaster-General has nothing more to do with the army; he makes up his returns and sends them to the proper offices. His attendance on the army is not required, and can be of no kind of service. It would therefore be extremely hard if your memorialist, after being in the line of his duty until the situation of affairs rendered it impossible for him to do more, and after having finished the business of his department, should not be allowed to devote a few weeks to his family and friends, without the mortifying and ungenerous reflections of "eating the publick bread and neglecting his duty."

Your memorialist therefore begs, that the honourable House would take the premises into their consideration, and do therein what to them shall seem just.

ADDRESS OF PENNSYLVANIA CONVENTION.

In Convention for the State of Pennsylvania, }
September 28, 1776. }

Resolved, That Mr. Cannon, Mr. Rittenhouse, and Colonel Matlack, be a Committee to draw up an Address, setting forth the reasons which induced the Convention to make the several Ordinances and Resolves which they have passed in the course of the sitting of this Convention.

To the Freemen of the Commonwealth of PENNSYLVANIA.

GENTLEMEN: The honourable the Convention holding themselves accountable to their constituents, and believing it the duty of every representative body to lay the reasons of their conduct before those who appointed them, for their satisfaction, have directed us to unfold to you the causes of such parts of their proceedings as may appear at first sight out of the line of their appointment. Sensible that the purpose for which they were chosen, and the subject on which they assembled, had many enemies, and those of the first consequence among us; that a Government under the authority of the people only, and deriving its powers from them alone, would meet with warm opposition, and that no means would remain unessayed to defeat your arduous struggle in defence of your liberty and independence, (because the establishing your rights is the downfall of their power,) the Convention early considered it as a matter of vast moment, and not altogether out of the line of their duty, to have some legal principles established whereby avowed enemies to their country might be brought to punishment in that way which, while it destroys the power of the wicked to do mischief, preserves the decorum of civil society. A spirit of licentiousness, when roused, is not easily allayed, and the minds of the people ought to be as calm and composed as possible at the introduction of a new Government. To preserve this calmness, and prevent a spirit of licentiousness growing upon the people, while the course of justice was stopped in the society, the Convention passed some temporary ordinances which to them appeared essentially necessary on the occasion. Others were passed for the same purpose; but the aspect of those looked towards our enemies, to deter them from attempting any thing against us during the interval which, of necessity, came in between the suppression of the old and establishing of the new Government, through hopes of impunity.

The necessity of those ordinances will strongly appear, when you consider how many underhanded attempts are made to excite a confusion in the minds of the people by anonymous publications of divers complexions, but all tending to make you averse to receive a Government founded on your own authority, and absolutely under your control. Such a Government by no means suits the designs of your enemies. It has too much regard to the rights of the people to answer their purposes, and their only way to defeat its operation is by using every effort in their power to bring the Convention which framed it into discredit.

The first ordinance which appears on the minutes of Convention, respects the disarming the Non-Associators. Previous to the Convention's passing that ordinance, it was moved that a resolution might be entered into, declaring that as the Convention had met by a special appointment, and for a particular purpose, no ordinance should pass except such as the exigency of the time would render indispensably necessary; and as no other representative body at that time existed in the State, the urgency of the case would justify the measure.

On considering this motion, it was generally agreed that it would answer a much better purpose to introduce each ordinance with a short preamble, expressing the reasons which induced the Convention to pass it; as then every one who should see the ordinance would at the same time be possessed of the reasons for passing it, but might not be in possession of the resolution moved for. The preambles to the several ordinances passed by the Convention will, therefore, lead the publick into the reasons for passing them. These, with the additional ones advanced at the time of their passing, we make little doubt, will fully satisfy every friend to our country, and justify the Convention. The preamble to the first is as follows:

"Whereas the Non-Associators in this State have either refused or neglected to deliver up their arms, according to the resolves of the honourable Continental Congress and the Assembly of Pennsylvania, and effectual measures have not been taken to carry the said resolves into execution: Be it ordained," &c.

In addition to these reasons, which sufficiently express the necessity of the measure, may be added the folly and danger of leaving arms in the hands of Non-Associators, when the Associators were absent in the service, and the great demand for the best arms we could procure to put into the hands of the Militia from the country, who were ready and willing to march to the camp, but had no arms to take with them, weighed greatly with the Convention in passing this ordinance; and the good effects of it were suddenly perceived, for the Militia were furnished with several hundred stand of good arms in consequence thereof.

The next ordinance is that which was passed for the release of Colonel James Easton, a man who had merited well of his country, and who was unjustly detained in the jail of this city on an action for debt. The publick, we doubt not, will justify the Convention in this ordinance, when it is known that he was the commander at the taking of Ticonderoga, was committed by some gentlemen belonging to New-York not deemed very friendly to our cause, when attending Congress to settle his accounts, whereby he could have been enabled to pay the debt, though they had good security to a much greater amount than the debt came to.

An ordinance for the relief of the prisoners in the several jails of this State, is next in order, and introduced with these reasons for its passing:

"Whereas at this time the courts of justice within this State are surceased, and all process and proceedings by which suits can be legally commenced, proceeded in, or determined, are by the authority of the people justly and totally suppressed; and whereas the detaining in custody debtors under executions who are willing to deliver up their estates for the use of their creditors, or debtors confined under mesne process, who have no mode of entering bail in order to free their persons from imprisonment, is not only oppressive, but can be of no real benefit or advantage to the creditors: and whereas, a total change of Government, by the assistance of Divine Providence, has been effected within the United States, and acts of grace to criminals sometimes are granted on events of such importance: Be it ordained," &c.

An ordinance against counterfeiting the Continental currency comes next, preceded by the following preamble:

"Whereas great mischiefs may arise to the United States of America, and the property of the good people, inhabitants thereof, rendered precarious and insecure by wicked and designing persons counterfeiting the paper bills of credit issued by the honourable the Continental Congress, or by any of the United States of America, for remedy whereof: Be it ordained," &c.

Nothing, perhaps, shows the necessity of the ordinances passed by Convention in a stronger point of light, than the difficulty we are under at this time, arising from not having a section in this ordinance for the more effectual punishment of those who refuse the Continental bills of credit. No one of the ordinances but has prevented as great an evil as the forementioned; and had this appeared before the rising of the Convention, it would have been provided against.

Great licentiousness having arisen about that time, for remedy thereof the ordinance for appointing temporary Magistrates to preserve the publick peace and tranquillity, and to hold persons to bail who should incline to take undue advantages of the times to defraud their creditors, passed the Convention. The preamble, though short, will show the necessity of such an appointment; and the absence of the Associators, who were then generally at camp, will justify the nomination of them by the Convention, as an election would have fallen principally into the hands of Non-Associators and Tories, and the consequence of vesting civil authority in such men would have soon appeared, had it not been prevented by the said nomination. The ordinance is thus introduced:

"Whereas it is necessary that proper officers of justice be appointed under the authority of the people only, and deriving no power whatever from the late Constitution: Be it ordained," &c.

The ordinance for compelling debtors, in certain cases, to give security, being nearly connected with the foregoing, we beg leave to introduce its preamble next:

"Whereas, at this time, when courts of justice in this State are shut, it is absolutely necessary that honest creditors should be made secure, when it shall appear that otherwise they might, by dishonest debtors taking advantage of the times, run the risk of losing their just debts: Be it ordained," &c.

The ordinances against treason and advisedly speaking and writing against the cause of America, are introduced, respectively, in the following words:

"Whereas Government ought, at all times, to take the most effectual measures for the safety and security of the State: Be it ordained," &c.; and

"Whereas evil-disposed persons may, by speaking and writing, endeavour to influence the minds of weak or unwary persons, and thereby impede the present virtuous opposition made by the free United States of America against the wicked and tyrannical measures pursued by the King and Parliament of Great Britain: for prevention whereof, be it ordained," &c.

The powers given to Magistrates in these ordinances arose from the impossibility of erecting regular courts of justice before the new Government should take place; and yet they contain a temporary habeas corpus act, as will appear to every one who will examine them with candour; so far was the Convention from attempting to act arbitrarily, notwithstanding the scurrility with which they are treated. But men who have nothing rational to advance, must use what is in their power.

The ordinance for rendering the burdens of Associators and Non-Associators, in the defence of this State, as nearly equal as possible, is thus introduced:

"Whereas the Associators of this State have bestowed much of their time and been at considerable expense in qualifying themselves for the defence of their country, and are now gone forth into actual service, to the great prejudice of their private concerns; while others, by not associating, have exempted themselves from those difficulties, and pursued their business to advantage; and whereas no effectual measures have hitherto been taken to render the burden of defence, which is a common benefit, as nearly equal as possible: Be it ordained," &c.

However vain it may appear, at this time, to justify this ordinance as it stands, and which is condemned with such severity by those who are the subjects of it, it is no more than common justice, due to the Convention, to recall the publick attention to our situation at that time. A powerful army of the enemy landed on Staten-Island, from whence they might make an excursion into the Jerseys, or even to this city; whilst their fleet, by taking possession of the North River, had it in their power to prevent General Washington from giving us the least assistance. Amboy, Elizabethtown, and Newark, exposed to immediate destruction. At this time no resource was to be found but in our Militia—that Militia which had so frequently complained of the unequal burdens they had already borne, and by repeated petitions demanded redress of the late Assembly. In a conference of a Committee of Congress, the Committee of Safety of this State, the Field Officers of the City battalions, and the Committee of Inspection, it was resolved to call forth the whole Militia of this State, so far as they could be armed. Almost insuperable difficulties appeared in opposition to this measure: amongst others, that of saving the approaching harvest was not the least. The Militia nevertheless turned out with amazing alacrity in some counties; in others, where the Tory interest prevailed, they were more tardy. The Convention thought it a duty they owed their country, to give them all proper encouragement, and, early in the sitting, passed and published a resolve that they meant to do justice to the Associators; and here the matter rested.

The Council of Safety, in the mean time, exerted themselves, with incredible diligence, to put the Militia into a condition to serve their country with effect.

The Associators were obliged to leave their homes at the most busy and important season to farmers, and harassed with long marches to the camp in New-Jersey, in expectation of facing a hostile army; while many of the Non-Associators not only forebore to touch the burden of the day with a single finger, but expressed the diabolical pleasure they enjoyed in beholding the distress of the friends of liberty.*

* Though some of them are highly to be commended for their care and concern for the affairs of their neighbours who were out in the service.

The Convention was often informed of these circumstances, perhaps with great aggravation, and reminded of their promise to the Militia; but the difficulty of fulfilling it stared them full in the face, and perhaps contributed as much as any thing to its delay. However, a Committee was appointed, the ordinance was brought in, debated, committed, and recommitted. A spirit of generosity and moderation was, perhaps, never more warmly displayed than on one side of the House on this occasion; but the minds of many were agitated with the situation of our affairs; their passions inflamed with the part which the Non-Associators in general have acted, and the advantages they have taken of the times; so the ordinance passed the Convention as it now stands, though not with the majority that might be expected from a body so universally attached to the cause, and so sensible of the reasons which the Associators had to complain.

No one who heard the debates in Convention on the subject could doubt that impartial justice was aimed at on both sides. How far they have failed of accomplishing it, is not for the Convention to determine. This they are persuaded of, that when the loss of time and other expenses attending the learning the military exercise, are added to the disadvantages the Associators have laboured under in the late call, and the profits which Non-Associators derive to themselves in consequence thereof, the balance is not much in favour of the Associators. Tradesmen have left their business, to face the enemy in the hour of danger; and the very men whose property they were protecting at the risk of their lives, have stepped into their custom. Farmers left their harvest-fields to be reaped by Non-Associators, and paid them from five shillings to a dollar per day, in some parts, for their labour; whilst themselves were guarding the coasts of a neighbouring State, to preserve it from the incursions of the enemy. Some men have given one half of their crops to get the other secured. Thus, while the Associator was absent upon the most important publick duty, the Non-Associator earned, in extraordinary advantages derived from that single circumstance, much more than the fine to be levied upon him.

The Non-Associators, in many parts of the country, had reason to apprehend that the Associators, as soon as they returned, would undertake it themselves, if the Convention did nothing to make the burden equal between them; and the Convention was greatly misinformed, if those among them who were actuated by no worse principles than scruples of conscience against war, were not very well satisfied that the fines were equitable. It is not for us to pretend to judge of the motives of those who complain; neither was it the mind of the Convention to say any thing in justification of their conduct. They meant only to lay the reasons of it before their constituents. Nevertheless, it may not be improper to observe on which side they stand who have ever been enemies to our cause, and to express a desire that those who are not privy to such men's designs may not be deceived by them.

The Convention considered the interval which of necessity took place between the suppression of all power derived from the Crown, and the erecting of the same on the authority of the people, as a period pregnant with important events, and meant to supply it with such a temporary constitution as might preserve us from ruin. This caused the ordinances to pass, and though some of them as they now stand met with considerable opposition, yet not one passed the Convention but such as appeared absolutely necessary for the safety of the State. Under this idea they passed the Convention, and nothing has yet appeared to convince of the contrary. The Associators long and justly complained of partiality and injustice, and however altered in their minds with regard to the powers of the Convention, they once thought otherwise, and had high expectation that the Convention would consider their case, and leave the Non-Associators no room to triumph over them. The Convention accordingly has done them all the justice they could; but if they, now that they have it in their power to forgive, have changed their minds and are desirous of letting the Non-Associators escape, they can do it, and that without giving great offence to the Convention. But they will thereby preclude all future complaints, and future Legislatures must not be blamed for their lenity.

The pressing necessity of the times, and the urgent application of publick bodies and men in publick stations, induced the Convention to enter into certain resolves, as will appear to every one who examines their minutes, which were published weekly; for they wished to conceal nothing from their constituents. The propriety of these resolves will fully appear to every one who recollects the then state of our affairs, and wishes to see us maintain our freedom; and nothing further need be said on the subject, were it not that some wicked designing people have endeavoured not only to ruin the credit of the Convention but the great cause itself, by infusing hard thoughts into their minds, in consequence of a resolve which they passed about the middle of August.

Repeated and pressing letters were continually arriving from the camp, informing the Convention that some ill-disposed persons who had crept into the Association to cover their unfriendly principles from the publick eye, were exceedingly industrious in sowing the seeds of sedition in the minds of the Militia, and under the show of great patriotism and attachment to the true principles of liberty, persuaded them to believe that they were decoyed and entrapped by their officers, who artfully carried them out with a design to form them into a flying camp, and that unless they rose up in a mutinous manner and forced their way home, they would be converted into mercenaries and obliged to march to Canada, or any other place where their services might be wanted. This report being industriously propagated, desertions were the immediate consequence; and they who had the virtue and patriotism to withstand their insinuations, were in danger of being offered up a sacrifice to the enemy, and the coast of being deserted before the Militia from the country could arrive.

In the distressing exigence the Convention passed a resolve offering a reward of three pounds for taking up every deserter, at the same time assuring the Militia that it was not their intention to keep them out longer than six weeks, having furnished their quota of the Flying-Camp. This step, so necessary for the safety of every Militia-man who had the virtue to stay, and which would affect no man who would wish to preserve the name of a soldier, is by artful enemies represented as treating the Associators like beasts. To prevent and discourage desertion is with them a mark of opprobrium; and thus every law which supposes bad men to exist is to be considered as an insult on the good. Can confidence be placed in men who, wearing a military dress, are offended with a publick body for offering a reward for apprehending deserters? Are they soldiers, or do they mean to do the duty of soldiers, who are dissatisfied with this? Will any man be offended at offering a reward for apprehending highwaymen, but he who is one himself, or has a violent propensity to become such? A man who wishes to stand his ground in the day of danger, will ever be solicitous to have every obstacle laid in the way of deserters, that he may be sure of support in the hour of necessity. Can any thing account for such men's behaviour but that they wished to see us defeated, while they were willing to appear hearty friends to our cause? We mean not this as a general reflection. We know many things happened to alarm the jealousies and excite the resentments of the best-hearted of the Militia, and that in the heat of passion it was easy to inflame them yet more; they are little if in any degree culpable. The men who took the occasion of this state of their minds to sow the seeds of discord and confusion, and who went secretly from battalion to battalion, and from company to company, are the men now in our eye; and we are persuaded that had no such lurking enemies been in the Militia, nothing of the kind would ever have happened.

Lord Howe is near at hand, and your enemies know that if they ever do any thing to ingratiate themselves with him and secure their estates, it must be at this time. They know nothing can be effected by a fair and open opposition; but by dividing and distracting you, they may possibly succeed. They are, therefore, intent on this only, because that debility and weakness must be the inevitable consequence. "A house divided against itself cannot stand," and therefore if you listen to their artful suggestions, and remain disunited, you must fall. To the officer they speak disrespectfully of the private, and to the private they censure the conduct of his officer. To one they condemn this part of the proceedings of the Convention, and to another that, according as they find it suits the person they converse with. What can be the reason of all this? Why, by the one they destroy the Association, and by the other they defeat the endeavour to establish a Government under your authority, and by both they ruin the general cause, defeat the measures of the Continent, prepare the way for a submission to the enemy, and offer up every friend to his country and associator to the gallows, and their estates to confiscation; and yet to men who harbour such designs in their hearts against us, have we the infatuation to listen.

With regard to the resolves and ordinances of the Convention, they are all temporary and intended as such. Magistrates to preserve the peace of the society until the Government could fairly take place, &c. If any one will show candidly and fairly that the present state of our affairs does not justify every ordinance passed, and render it necessary, they will do a kindness to the Convention in so doing; for they mean to defend no measure which the state of the times will not.

The Convention, with the best motives and from the most urgent necessity, stepped so far out of the direct line of their appointment, if it can be thought out of that line, to take every measure necessary to secure success which prudence and a love of the cause and the people could inspire; and they have in this address set an example of that responsibility which they think due from representatives to their constituents. Having received power from you, they employ it solely in your service, and framed a government, wherein the supreme power is lodged in your own hands, and only so far delegated as to act solely for your interest. This has raised a terrible outcry among those who either have heretofore, or now wish to rule, but not by your authority. Thus having finished their work in the best manner in their power, they dissolved themselves, leaving the further success of your measures and Constitution to the mercy of Him who loves mankind, and gives the enjoyment of liberty to those only who are willing to defend it, and your own virtue, on which you must ultimately depend for success, if you will free yourselves from the tyrannical yoke you have heretofore groaned under, and the aristocratical one which is at this time preparing for you.

ADDRESS OF THE COUNCIL OF NEW-JERSEY.

To His Excellency WILLIAM LIVINGSTON, Esq., Governour, Captain-General, and Commander-in-Chief in and over the State of New-Jersey and Territories thereunto be longing, Chancellor and Ordinary in the same:
The Address of the Council of said State.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY: We, the Council of the State of New-Jersey, beg leave to congratulate your Excellency on your appointment to the Government, and to return you our most cordial thanks for your truly patriotic speech.

The impartial and disinterested part of the world will agree with your Excellency, that the separation of America from Great Britain is fully justifiable before God and man: a separation at once expedient, inevitable, and essentially necessary to our very existence as freemen. America, indeed, was compelled to break off all union with a nation which, contaminated with luxury and insatiate with plunder, had concerted a system of despotism for her ruin. All America regrets the necessity, at the same time that all America applauds the rectitude and spirit of the measure. The British nation, too, if not totally immersed in venality and corruption, must applaud an action which accords so eminently with the true spirit of their own Constitution; an action that owes its birth to the same principle which was so signally displayed in the memorable revolution. What, however, is peculiarly worthy of remark in the progress of the present contest is, that wonderful preparation of circumstances and singular combination of causes which gradually brought on the separation, and disposed the minds of men for an event so truly important.

The Constitution framed by the late Convention, although not entirely perfect, has, however, equitably and justly decided on most of the principal points whereon the happiness of this society depends, and therefore hath met with general approbation. Upon so respectable and honourable a bottom, the present Legislature is founded, which, in the most unbiased manner, hath chosen your Excellency to preside over the State, and by that choice hath, at this perilous period, clearly shown how much they admire your virtues, and what confidence they repose in your abilities.

The several important matters recommended by your Excellency, merit our serious and deliberate consideration, and in conjunction with the General Assembly we shall take such steps, and pass such laws as may appear most conducive to the publick weal. We join your Excellency in sentiment as to the disinterestedness and integrity so indispensably requisite in all our proceedings. Certainly as publick men, we are to know neither friend nor favourite, fear nor resentment. Sensible that, especially in the infancy of our civil institution, much depends upon the selection of proper persons to occupy the various departments in the State, your Excellency may be assured that we shall be particularly cautious in our choice. Stationed as we are, the guardians and protectors of the State, the general good should be the sole object of attention, and of course in the appointment of officers, intrinsic merit should be the sole rule of promotion. These, sir, were the considerations which influenced us in the appointment of such officers as have been already elected, and we trust will continue to be the rule of our conduct. No time ever required more economy, industry, patriotism, purity of manners, and true devotion, than the present, and the experience of all ages, with the recent example of Great Britain, hath effectually taught us how essentially necessary it is to the weal of the State, to inculcate these excellent qualifications both by precept and example.

By order of the House:

JNO. STEVENS, V. P.

Princeton, September 28, 1776.

GOVERNOUR'S REPLY.

GENTLEMEN: I am greatly obliged to you for your kind congratulation on my appointment to the Government, and for the favourable sentiments you are pleased to express concerning me. As every office is only honourable in proportion to the publick good it enables the person sustaining it to do, and the officer himself in proportion to the good he actually does, I can assure you that the reflection of having promoted the true interest of this State to the extent of my wishes and of your expectation, will afford me more solid satisfaction than can result from any external splendour or the most illustrious titles.

WIL. LIVINGSTON.

Newark, New-Jersey, September 28, 1776.

Tuesday evening last, arrived at Elizabethtown, from Quebec, in four transports, about four hundred and twenty of our people, that had been taken prisoners at different times in Canada. The names of most of the officers are as follow, viz:

General Thompson, Colonel Irvine, Lieutenant Correy, Lieutenant Bird, Dr. McKinney, Rev. Mr. McCalla, Lieutenant McDougall.

These following were taken the 31st of December last, and all (except Major Lamb) went from Boston with Colonel Arnold, through the wilderness:

Captain Henry Dearborn, Lieutenant Ammi Andrews, Lieutenant Nath. Hutchins, Lieutenant Joseph Thomas, from New-Hampshire.

Major Timothy Bigelow, Captain William Goodrich, Captain Jonas Hubbard, (died of his wound,) Lieutenant John Compton, Lieutenant Samuel Brown, Lieutenant James Tisdale, Lieutenant John Clark, from Massachusetts.

Major Return Jonathan Meiggs, Captain Samuel Lockwood, Capt. Eleazer Osgood, (volunteer,) Captain Oliver Hanchett, Lieutenant Abijah Savage, Quartermaster Benjamin Chatten, from Connecticut.

Lieutenant-Colonel Christopher Green, Captain John Toppan, Captain Simeon Thayer, Captain Samuel Ward, Lieutenant William Humphrey, Lieutenant James Webb, Lieutenant Edward Slocum, Lieutenant Sylvanus Shaw, from Rhode-Island.

Major John Lamb, from New-York.

Lieutenant Francis Nichols, Adjutant Archibald Steel, from Pennsylvania.

Captain Daniel Morgan, Lieutenant William Heath, Lieutenant Peter O'Brien Bruen, John McGuire, (volunteer,) Charles Potterfield, (volunteer,) from Virginia.

Adj't Christian Febiger, from the Kingdom of Denmark.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read September 30, 1776.]

Head-Quarters, Heights of Harlem, September 28, 1776.

SIR: Being about to cross the North River this morning, in order to view the post opposite, and the grounds between that and Powles Hook, I shall not add much more than that I have been honoured with your favour of the 24th, and its several enclosures, and that since my letter of yesterday no important event has taken place.

As Colonel Hugh Stephenson, of the Rifle Regiment, ordered lately to be raised, is dead, according to the information I have received, I would beg leave to recommend to the particular notice of Congress Captain Daniel Morgan, just returned among the prisoners from Canada, as a fit and proper person to succeed to the vacancy occasioned by his death. The present field officers of the regiment cannot claim any right in preference to him, because he ranked above them, and as a Captain, when he first entered the service. His conduct as an officer on the expedition with General Arnold last fall, his intrepid behaviour in the assault upon Quebeck when the brave Montgomery fell, the inflexible attachment he professed to our cause during his imprisonment, and which he perseveres in, added to these his residence in the place Colonel Stephenson came from, and his interest and influence in the same circle, and with such men as are to compose such a regiment, all, in my opinion, entitle him to the favour of Congress, and lead me to believe that in his promotion the States will gain a good and valuable officer for the sort of troops he is particularly recommended to command.

Should Congress be pleased to appoint Captain Morgan in the instance I have mentioned, I would still beg leave to suggest the propriety and necessity of keeping the matter close, and not suffering it to transpire until he is exonerated from the parole he is under. His acceptance of a commission under his present circumstances might be construed a violation of his engagement, and, if not, the difficulty attending his exchange might be increased. The enemy, perhaps, would consider him as a Field Officer, of which we have but very few in our hands, and none that I recollect of that rank.

I have the honour to be, with great esteem, sir, your most obedient servant,

GO. WASHINGTON.

Proceedings of a General Court-Martial of the Line, held on the Heights of HAARLEM, by order of His Excellency GEORGE WASHINGTON, General and Commander-in-Chief of the Forces of the UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, for the trial of all Prisoners to be brought before them; SEPTEMBER 28th, 1776.

Colonel WEEDON, President.

Lieut. Colonel Chandler ,	Captain Brown ,
Lieut. Colonel Russell ,	Captain Chamberlain ,
Captain Ledyard ,	Captain Prentice ,
Captain Graydon ,	Captain Rogers ,
Captain Wiley ,	Captain Foster ,
Captain Hindman ,	Captain Stanley .
Captain Scott ,

WM. TUDOR, Judge-Advocate.

The Court proceeded to the trial of Ensign Thomas Fosdick and Ensign Benoni Shipman, both of Colonel Webb's Regiment, at present in the detachment of Rangers, under the command of Lieutenant Holmes, brought prisoners before the Court, and accused of "abusive language to their officers, of disobedience of orders, and of mutiny."

The prisoners being severally arraigned on the above charge, severally plead, "Not guilty."

Lieutenant Cleveland deposes: Last Thursday night I went home to the house where all of us who are officers in the Ranging service quarter, and, sitting at supper, a dispute soon arose between some of the officers, when Ensigns Fosdick and Chipman were very abusive to Lieutenant Holmes, and Chipman damned them, told them they would not obey their commands, and said they would turn out their company against the rest of the party, and immediately went in, and came out of their room with their guns. We disarmed them and confined them to their room.

Lieutenant Holmes. The prisoners being very abusive on Thursday night, damning the officers, I ordered them to be quiet, but they utterly refused. Fosdick said he was as good as any of us, and would not be commanded by any of us. Fosdick said he could turn out a company equal to all the rest of the detachment. He was in a great fury, and got his gun, which we disarmed him of, and I ordered him under an arrest. Chipman was extremely abusive in his language. There was no one more than another who had the command of the detachment.

Lieutenant Breed says: After the prisoners were under an arrest on Thursday evening, I went to the house, and saw the prisoner Chipman, who was extremely abusive to the other officers, and disorderly, damning them.

Lieutenant Bacon. Thursday evening, observing several persons eating with Ensigns Shipman and Fosdick, I observed that we must draw more rations; when they both came up and damned me, and abused me very much. After some altercation, we agreed to refer it to the determination of Drs. Holmes and Pope. However, they (the prisoners) soon disagreed, damned them both, and refused to have any thing to do with them. Finding the disorders increase, I went away.

Ensign Cleveland. Upon some occasion, the other night, the prisoners were very disorderly, and Lieutenant Holmes was ordering them under an arrest. Fosdick said he would not go under arrest unless he pleased. I went away immediately.

The prisoners produce no evidence.

The Court are of opinion that the prisoners are guilty of abusive language to Lieutenant Holmes and Pope, and that the prisoners be reprimanded for this conduct before the officers of Colonel Webb's Regiment, by the commanding officer of the Regiment.

G. WEEDON, President.

At a General Court-Martial held at King's Bridge, by adjournment on the 28th day of September, Anno Domini 1776:

Colonel LASHER, President.

Lieut. Col. Prentice ,	Captain Dana ,
Major Austin ,	Captain Dixon ,
Captain Sill ,	Captain Brazier ,
Captain Barns ,	Captain Townshend ,
Captain Keith ,	Captain Platt ,
Captain Allen ,	Captain Hardenburgh .

WILLIAM WILLCOCKS, Judge-Advocate.

John Carter and John Barry, of Captain King's Company, Colonel Ward's Regiment, charged with desertion.

The prisoners on their arraignment, severally plead, "Guilty." Sentenced to receive thirty-nine lashes each. (Approved.)

Richard Halloway, of Captain Wool's Company, Colonel Malcom's Regiment, charged with absenting himself from the Regiment without leave.

The prisoner on his arraignment plead, "Not guilty." The Court adjudged the prisoner not guilty. (Set at liberty.)

Jos. Wadder, alias Veder, and Peter Vanvreedeburgh, of Captain Steenborough's Company, Colonel Graham's Regiment, and Richard Lawson, of Captain Swarthout's Company, Colonel Swarthout's Regiment, charged with desertion.

The prisoners all plead excuses.

Henry Mott, of Captain Swarthout's Company, testifies that the prisoner, Lawson, went away without leave; that being sent after him he met his father, and told him his son had better deliver himself up, which he did. The Court adjudge the prisoners guilty of desertion.

The prisoners sentenced to receive thirty-nine lashes each. (Approved.)

Lieutenant Thomas Youngman, of Colonel Haller's Regiment, charged by Colonel Haller with absenting himself from the regiment without leave.

Pleads, "A pass."

Lieutenant Conrad Just, of Captain Henster's Company, Colonel Haller's Regiment, being duly sworn, deposes: That being on his return home he met the prisoner, with two others, between Woodbridge and Newark, New-Jersey; asked him where he was going? he answered, "Home; and that one of the company had a pass for the three," and so said the others; that he is acquainted with them, and believes they spoke the truth.

The Court adjudge the prisoner guilty on the eighth article of war. The Court sentence the prisoner to be cashiered.

Lieutenant Oliver Mildeberger, of Captain Leonard's Company, Colonel Lasher's Regiment, charged with leaving the Regiment without permission.

The prisoner on his arraignment plead, "Guilty."

The Court sentence the prisoner to be cashiered, and mulcted one month's pay, on the eighth article of war.

W. M. WILLCOCKS, Advocate.

GENERAL HEATH TO GENERAL SALTONSTALL.

King's Bridge, September 28, 1776.

DEAR SIR: You will as soon as possible order three of the regiments of Militia under your command to march forward and encamp on the ground lately occupied by the Militia of the regiments commanded by Major Newbury, Lieutenant-Colonel Baldwin, Major Strong, and Major Terry.

I am, dear sir, yours affectionately, W. HEATH.
To Brigadier-General Saltonstall.

GENERAL HEATH TO GENERAL PARSONS.

King's Bridge, September 28, 1776.

DEAR SIR: The last night I received the following:

"SIR: You will please to give direction that Colonel Tyler be put under arrest for cowardice and misbehaviour before the enemy, on Sunday, the 15th instant.

"By order of the General.

"Sir, your humble servant,

"JOS. REED, Adjutant-General.

"September 27, 1776."

You will, therefore, upon receipt hereof, immediately order Colonel Tyler under arrest.

I am, dear sir, yours affectionately, W. HEATH.
To General Parsons.

ISAAC PIERCE TO DOCTOR POTTS.

Ticonderoga, September 28, 1776.

SIR: Complaints having been made to the General of many abuses respecting the discharge of soldiers at the Hospital, he expects that an immediate stop be put to it. Therefore you will give proper directions to all the Surgeons under you, that the General's orders may be obeyed. And he desires you should repair to Head-Quarters as soon as possible.

I am, sir, by order of the General, your most obedient, humble servant,

ISAAC PIERCE, Aid-de-Camp.

To Doctor Potts.

GENERAL ARNOLD TO GENERAL GATES.

Isle Valcour, September 28, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: My last was from the bay of St. Amont, the 22d instant, by Captain Dunn, which make no doubt you have received. The next day the fleet arrived safe at this place, (which is an excellent harbour.) We are moored in a small bay on the west side the island, as near together as possible, and in such a form that few vessels can attack us at the same time, and those will be exposed to the fire of the whole fleet.

The 25th I despatched into Canada a German, who was a mate of the Revenge, and a New-England man, who speaks French well. Both are sensible fellows and may be depended on. They are extremely well acquainted with the country, go in character of deserters, and have proper instructions and credentials (sixteen of each sort) sewed up between the soles of their shoes. As they run a great risk, I have promised them, in case they succeed, five hundred dollars between them. As soon as they know the success of their embassy, they are to return. One of them was a Ranger with Rogers all last war; has since lived in Canada, and knows the woods perfectly. Two men are stationed on the Isle la Motte to watch the motions of the enemy.

Early yesterday morning, Sergeant Strickland, with twelve men, in a provision batteau, passed this place and went as far as Point-aux-Fers, but not finding the fleet, returned. The Revenge (on a cruise) picked them up at six o'clock last night. The Sergeant took the schooner for an enemy, and stupidly destroyed all his letters and papers, when she was at a distance from him, which was very mortifying, as I am deprived of the pleasure of your letter, and have a long time anxiously waited for the particulars of the affair at New-York. This fellow can give me no manner of intelligence respecting the galleys or any thing else. I expect them every minute, as the time is elapsed in which you wrote they would be ready.

Enclosed is the deposition of Thomas Day, which I took at Crown-Point when I came down. I have since examined a Frenchman and his wife who live opposite the Isle la Motte, who says that Ned Watson and Wykes came to his house and there met Captain Frazier who was in pursuit of some deserters; they told Frazier they were sent down by Gilliland and Watson, and acquainted him of Captain Wilson's and his party being on the Lake, in consequence of which he was taken. The Frenchman also says that about a fortnight past, two men whom he knew to be Gilliland's tenants, came to his house, said they were sent down by Gilliland with intelligence; that they appeared in a great hurry, and offered him five dollars to set them over Missisquoi Bay, as their canoe was leaky, which he did. This is partly confirmed by Mr. Hay, who lives opposite this island, and says that one Cross and Scarr came to his house about a fortnight past, and supposes they went to St. John's. Scarr was a servant to MacCawley, who with Cross, were tenants to Gilliland. I am fully of opinion that Gilliland, John Watson, and MacCawley have, from time to time, sent expresses to the enemy, and given them all the intelligence in their power, and no persons have known our affairs better. I make no doubt that the enemy have often been harboured at the houses of the first and last. I have therefore ordered to take them prisoners to Ticonderoga, that you may examine and dispose of them as you think proper. I don't think it is prudent to let them remain on their farms, unless we choose the enemy should know all our measures. Gilliland is a most plausible and artful villain. Enclosed is a letter of complaint which he wrote me after the fleet passed his settlement, not one syllable of which is true. One Mr. Duyuit, a tenant of his, who had left his place, went up with the fleet, and offered me some vegetables, which he said would be lost if I did not accept them. I sent some boats on shore under the direction of Captain Dunn. The whole stuff that was brought off was not worth forty shillings. No other boats from the fleet were on shore. As we returned to Button-Mould Bay the next morning, and on our going down the Lake the second time, only one boat was on shore, and the few vegetables taken were from farms deserted, of which I believe Gilliland has no right. His complaint appears more groundless than that about his cattle, for which he was paid two or three times, and carried them home at last.

Colonel Hartley writes me that one galley was expected at Crown-Point the 26th, and that the others would be there the 27th. There is a fine wind for the enemy to come down; if they appear too strong for us, I will retire until I meet the galleys.

Adieu, dear General, and believe me your affectionate friend and humble servant,

B. ARNOLD.

To the Hon. Major-General Gates.

The testimony of THOMAS DAY, examined on oath before ROBERT LEWIS, one of the Justices of CHARLOTTE County, in the Province of NEW-YORK:

Who saith that sometime in the beginning of July last, being in company with William Gilliland, Esq., and William Wykes, he heard said Wykes say that he was not afraid to go to St. John's, to the Regulars; and that it appeared to him from their intimacy and being frequently together, and from sundry expressions of Gilliland's, that he contrived the plan of Wykes and Ned Watson's going off. That he heard Gilliland say the army acted like a parcel of damned robbers. That several of Gilliland's tenants, in particular one Nathaniel Blood, bought sundry tents, axes, guns, &c., from the soldiers of the American army, for a mere trifle of rum, which said Blood had from said Gilliland, and he believes said Gilliland was concerned with said Blood. He, the deponent, observed to Gilliland, that he thought it very wrong to buy those articles of the soldiers, as it was defrauding the country; to which Gilliland answered, it was no matter how much they got out of the country: the more the better; and that being at Gilliland's when the army was going to Canada this spring, several officers passed by the window, Gilliland said there comes a company of damned buggers. He was also in company with John Watson since the late retreat; he heard said Watson say that he was not afraid of the Regulars if they came, for that he had several officers for relations among them, and as for the American army they had acted like a parcel of damned robbers.

THOMAS DAY.

ROBERT LEWIS.

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Lebanon, September 23, 1776.

SIR: The 25th instant the enclosed petition was delivered me by two of the subscribers, Messrs. Kissam and Nicoll. The principal matter they plead is contained in the second paragraph. It was observed to them the events therein intended is not over; although Long-Island is evacuated by our troops, yet the reason of their being sent here continues; that their desire to return is an evidence of their inimical character, for they are sensible, if they return, they must take an oath of allegiance to King George III., and submit to such orders as General Howe pleases to give. Moreover, they having been in this State, puts it in their power to give important intelligence to the enemy.

They answered that nothing had ever appeared wherefore they should be sent from their families; that Adjutant-General Reed gave them encouragement that they should return as soon as that affair was determined. If never before, doth not their motion to return to the island show them to be really inimical? I told them I was not privy to Adjutant-General Reed's discourse; but if they were desirous of it, I would transmit their petition to your Excellency for your consideration and advice, which is my only apology for this trouble.

Pray God to give you wisdom to guide your councils, and to crown your arduous labours with success.

I am, with great esteem and respect, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

JONTH. TRUMBULL.

To His Excellency General Washington.

To the Honourable JONATHAN TRUMBULL, Esquire, Governour, Captain-General, and Commander-in-Chief in and over the State of CONNECTICUT, in AMERICA, The Petition of the subscribers, inhabitants and freeholders of LONG-ISLAND, in the State of NEW-YORK, humbly sheweth:

That your petitioners having been supposed unfriendly to the States of America, and their residence on Long-Island at the time of the landing of the British forces conceived to be dangerous, were, by an order from his Excellency General Washington, removed from Long-Island to Norwich, in Connecticut, until such time as the situation and state of affairs there should admit of their return to their respective families again.

Conscious of no crime, and solicitous of knowing the charge against them, they were informed by Adjutant-General Joseph Reed that there were no particular matters with which they stood charged; but that the only occasion of their being removed was, that an attack on Long-Island was hourly expected, and that it was thought expedient to remove them from the place of action until that event was over. They therefore flattered themselves that as soon as that affair was determined, they should have been discharged.

That they humbly conceive as their being removed from thence could not have been intended as a punishment for their demerits, and as no mischief can possibly arise from their being suffered to return to their families, to detain them longer would subject your petitioners to the greatest misery and distress, especially as they are entirely unacquainted with the state of their families, and by no means prepared for a longer stay.

Your petitioners therefore humbly pray that your Honour would be pleased to take the matter into your serious consideration and grant them such relief as to your Honour shall seem meet and convenient; and your petitioners as in duty bound, shall ever pray, &c.

PAROLE OF JAMES BABBIGE.

I, James Babbige, Esq., of the Island of New-Providence, being a prisoner of war of the United States of America, and being permitted by the Honourable Jonathan Trumbull, Esq., Governour of the State of Connecticut, to return to my family upon my parole, do pledge my faith and word of honour to said Governour Trumbull, that I will not bear arms against the United States of America during the present war, and that I will not say or do any thing to the prejudice of the interest of said States or any of them, and also that I will return to such place in said States as shall be appointed by the most honourable the Continental Congress, the General or Commander-in-Chief of the army of said States, or by the General Assembly, or Governour and Commander-in-Chief of the State of Connecticut.

Given under my hand at Middletown the 28th day of September, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and seventy-six.

WALTER SPOONER TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Watertown, Council Chamber, September 28, 1776.

SIR: Your Excellency, in your letter of the 19th instant, to the General Assembly of this State, having mentioned that the army under your command were much in want of camp utensils, and that you knew not how to procure a sufficiency, the Council have directed the Commissary-General of this State to forward to your Excellency two loads of iron pots, which he had in his store, for the use of the Continental army, which we hope will be agreeable to your Excellency. In case you should have occasion for any more, if you please to signify it, we will endeavour to procure and forward them. We should have sent tin kettles, but tin was not to be obtained.

I am, with great respect, in the name and behalf of the Council, your most humble servant,

WALTER SPOONER.

To His Excellency General Washington.

WALTER SPOONER TO RICHARD DEVENS.

Watertown, September 28, 1776.

SIR: Since I saw you, I have moved the affair of the rice again; and the Board have thought fit to give you orders to move said rice, in such a way and manner as you think fit.

I expect to return home some time next week; and if you are desirous of my taking any care about it, and will inform me by a letter, I will make the best provision I can to send it to you.

I am, sir, your humble servant,

W. SPOONER.

To Richard Devens, Esquire.

NATHANIEL GUILD TO RICHARD DEVENS.

MR. DEVENS: Sir, these lines may inform you that the fire is in the furnace, and I will make the wheels as soon as possible.

Sir, as to the double-headed shot, I must depend upon you for the bar-iron. Please to inquire of Colonel Gridley or Major Burbanks as to the quantity and size, and send it to me as soon as possible, with the account of the same.

Sir, yours to serve,

NATHANIEL GUILD.

To Richard Devens.

Portsmouth, September 28, 1776.

On Thursday last, arrived here the prize ship Royal Exchange, Lawrence Bowden, late master. She was taken by the Continental ship Columbus, Abraham Whipple, Esquire, commander, on the 29th ult., on her passage from Grenada to London, having on board a valuable cargo, consisting of two hundred and eighty-four hogsheads and two tierces of sugar, fifty-five hogsheads of rum, eleven hogsheads coffee, two bales cotton, and some Madeira wine.

The prize-master, Mr. Olney, informs of two other prizes being taken by the Columbus, just before this, on their passage to Europe from the West-Indies; and in his passage hither, spoke with the Providence brigantine, belonging to the United States, who informed him of her taking two valuable prizes, and sent into Providence.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER TO A GENTLEMAN IN ANNAPOLIS,
DATED PHILADELPHIA, SEPTEMBER 29, 1776.

By a list of prisoners taken on Long-Island, and sent up by General Howe to General Washington, it appears that of the Maryland troops there are one Captain, eight Lieutenants, and two Ensigns in the enemy's possession, to wit: Captain Daniel Bowie, wounded; Lieutenants William Steret, William Ridgley, Hatch Dent, Walter Muse, Samuel Wright, Joseph Butler, (wounded,) Edward Praul, Edward De Curcy; Ensigns James Fernandes, William Courts.

Congress have taken measures for the redemption of the prisoners taken on Long-Island, and it is expected that an exchange will take place in a few weeks.

REV. JAMES CALDWELL TO WILLIAM PATERSON.

Elizabethtown, September 29, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Permit me to use the freedom of introducing to your notice Mr. Hacket, who offers himself for the service of his country in this important crisis. I am fond of introducing, to the defence of the cause, our young natives of property and good connexions. This is his case; and I believe his military talents are as good as any of our untried youth. He carries letters to the Governour and some other gentlemen, and I don't doubt will meet with what assistance you can reasonably give him; for which you will oblige, dear sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

JAMES CALDWELL.

To Hon. William Paterson.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE DEPUTY GOVERNOUR OF RHODE-ISLAND.

Head-Quarters, Heights of Harlem, September 29, 1776.

SIR: I have been honoured with your two favours of the 14th and 23d instant, and am to return you my thanks for the measures you have taken to forward the two Continental battalions from your State.

In respect to the exchange of the persons you mention, I apprehend it cannot be effected till a general one takes place. This I am trying to carry into execution as well in the naval as the land service. And therefore must request the favour of your State, to make out and transmit me a return as soon as possible, of all Continental prisoners in their hands, distinguishing the names and ranks of the commissioned and staff officers, and the corps to which they belong, and the number of non-commissioned and privates; observing the same rule in regard to those in the sea service. It will be well to have the whole collected at one or two commercial places, in order that they may be sent forward as soon as the plan is properly digested, of which I shall advise you as soon as I obtain the return.

I have wrote to the other Eastern States upon the same subject, and to me it appears that the prisoners with you had better join those in Connecticut, that they may come together. I would recommend your writing to Governour Trumbull for information where their prisoners are to be assembled, and for his sentiments in this instance. It also seems advisable that they should come by water rather than by land; but of this you will have due notice, as I mean to settle upon some regular mode with the Admiral and General Howe against the time I am furnished with the returns by the States.

I have the honour to be, with great respect, sir, your most obedient servant,

Go. WASHINGTON.

To the Hon. William Bradford, Deputy Governour of Rhode-Island.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE MASSACHUSETTS ASSEMBLY.

Head-Quarters, Harlem Heights, September 29, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: General Howe having signified to me a desire of making a general exchange of prisoners, both officers and privates, it becomes necessary to have an exact return of the numbers in our possession. You will, therefore be pleased to have all the Continental prisoners of war, belonging to the land service, in the different towns in your State, collected and brought together to some convenient place, from whence they may be removed hither, when a cartel is fully settled. When they are collected, you will please to have made out, and transmit to me, an exact return of the names of the commissioned and staff officers, their ranks, and the corps to which they belong. The names of the non-commissioned and privates need not be mentioned; their numbers will be sufficient. As it will be more convenient to send them by water than by land, which may always be safely effected by means of a flag, I think you had better order the prisoners to some place contiguous to a port, there to remain till you hear further from me. As I apprehend the number of prisoners in the State of New-Hampshire to be too small to make up a freight for a vessel, I have directed, if that should be the case, that they would be sent to your State, that they may come forward with your prisoners.

You will be pleased to forward the enclosed to Lieutenant-Colonel Campbell, of the Seventy-First Regiment. I am not certain where he is stationed, but think it is at Reading.

I have the honour to be, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

Go. WASHINGTON.

To the Hon. Jeremiah Powell, Esq., President, &c.

P. S. Be pleased also to make a return of the prisoners belonging to the British navy, with the names and rank of the officers.

Enclosed you have a letter from Captain Campbell, of the Seventy-First Regiment, to me. As he seems to acknowledge his error, and promises a more circumspect behaviour in future, I could wish you would consider his case, and, if you think proper, admit him to his parole again.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO COLONEL CAMPBELL.

Head-Quarters, Heights of Harlem, September 29, 1776.

SIR: I have been favoured with a letter from his Excellency General Howe, of the 21st instant, on the subject of an exchange of prisoners, both officers and privates. To carry this into execution, it is necessary that the numbers on both sides should be exactly ascertained. In order to determine this, General Howe sent me a list of the officers and privates of the Forty-Second and Seventy-First Regiments, of which the enclosed is a copy; but adds "it is not so correct as I could wish, having received no regular returns of the Forty-Second and Seventy-First Regiments, taken this year, but beg leave to refer you to Lieutenant-Colonel Campbell, of the Seventy-First, to rectify any omissions that may be." I have, therefore, to desire, that you would as soon as possible make the proper additions or alterations, and return the same to me.

I am, sir, your most obedient servant,

Go. WASHINGTON.

To Lieutenant-Colonel Campbell, Seventy-First Regiment.

FRANCIS MENTGES TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

In Camp at Head-Quarters, September 29, 1776.

HONOURABLE SIR: I beg leave by these few lines to renew my former application to the honourable Congress for the place of Major in the Army of the United States of America. I hope such recommendations as I have heretofore produced, which no doubt your Honour will remember, will induce the honourable Congress to grant my request, and hope I shall with fidelity discharge my duty, and with advantage to the service. I would further beg leave to refer you to General Mercer's letter to Doctor Franklin, in my favour.

I am, honourable sir, with great respect, your and the honourable Congress's most obedient, humble servant,

FRANCIS MENTGES, Adjutant in the Pennsylvania Battalion Musqueteers.

To the Hon. John Hancock, Esq.

COLONEL REED TO GENERAL HEATH.

SIR: Colonel Drake has just sent me intelligence that there are some movements among the enemy which indicate an early attack. The General desires you would have your division ready to march to support the troops here if necessary, as they will in the like case do with respect to you. The account says that troops have been coming in boats to Manhattan Island all day.

I am, sir, your obedient, humble servant,

JOS. REED, Adjutant-General.

To Major-General Heath.

COLONEL NICOLL TO JOHN M'KESSON.

King's Bridge, September 29, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I returned last night from Moriscany, which place I have been at for three days last on command. I had a good deal of conversation with some of the Highland Regulars, one in particular, who told me it was disagreeable to him to take up arms against us, as he had a number of friends amongst us and wished heartily for a reconciliation. I asked him how many of the Highlanders got killed in the skirmish the other night. He told me there were four killed and one missing, which he expected we had taken prisoner. His account of Major Hatfield was that he was wounded just above the eye, and he thought was in danger of losing his eye. I don't think that there is above fifty Regulars kept on Montorzor's Island. They mount but twelve sentinels in the day, and double them in the night. There is kept, I suppose, above five hundred on the island next to Montorzor's, according to their tents and movements.

Captain Lamb and about four hundred of our prisoners, taken at Quebeck, have got to Elizabethtown. They were sent away upon the parole of honour, to return when demanded, and not take up arms without a change of prisoners.

Mr. Taylor has come from the lines to-day, who acts as Brigade-Major to General McDougall, and says our people surprised a party of Regulars in a house near their lines, and got a chest of medicines.

I know of no movements in our army nor our enemy's. We have got our lines well fortified—our people chiefly under cover, so as to be comfortable. Two large mortars, from Boston, of solid metal, were day before yesterday carried to Fort Washington.

I am, sir, your sincere friend and humble servant,

ISAAC NICOLL.

To John McKesson, Secretary.

EXAMINATION OF PRISONERS, SEPTEMBER 29, 1776.

David Pinkney, of East-Chester, in West-Chester County, is a native of that town, and utterly denies that he ever thought to join the enemy, and declares that he knows of no person who had any such design; nor does he know of any plan to give any assistance or intelligence to the enemy; nor is he acquainted with either of the persons who have been apprehended. He says he is about twenty-three years old, and is a single man.

John Davenport is an Englishman, born in Cheshire. Has lived seven years in America, and for six years has lived principally on and near Cortlandt's Manor; came to America a soldier in the Twenty-Sixth Regiment, and deserted from it. At Philip's Manor he met Marsh, Thorn, and Frost, who told him they were going to Long-Island, but did not tell the examinant with what design, nor ask him to go with them; nor has he any knowledge of their plan, if they had one; neither of them had any arms to the informant's knowledge.

James Thorn is a native of Long-Island. Has lived at Cortlandt's Manor these ten years, and has a wife there; has relations on Long-Island, about Oyster Bay. Came from Cortlandt's Manor with a design to go to Long-Island to see his friends, who he has not visited these six months. Frost, Marsh, and two Lamorexs, were of the party. Marsh told the examinant that he went to escape being obliged to bear arms, and that made him go to Long-Island. That he was inlisted as a Minute-man, and was in that service four months last winter, at York. That last Wednesday he met one Palmer, who belongs to Cortlandt's Manor, who told Frost and him that he had been over to Long-Island, where it was all peace and quietness, and asked the examinant if he would inlist into the regular service. That the examinant refused. That Palmer told him he was going up to Cortlandt's Manor to inlist some men into the regular service, and left him. Davenport told Thorn he was going to Long-Island.

N. B. This man is rather averse to giving answers to the questions put to him.

Moses Reed is a native of West-Chester, and has lived on Cortlandt's Manor these twenty years, and was going down to East-Chester to see his friends. That he came down with Thorn and Frost, who were going to Long-Island to see their friends, as they told Reed, and asked him to go with them, but he refused. The examinant says one Palmer, who lives on Cortlandt's Manor, has often asked him to inlist into the regular service, but that he has always refused, and never had any thoughts of going to Long-Island, or in any way assisting the Regulars. That he knows of no plan to assist the enemy either by information or otherwise.

John Marsh, of Philip's Patent, in West-Chester County, aged twenty years, says he was taken by a guard commanded by Captain Duet, of East-Chester, in company with George Frost, James Chatterton, Moses Reed, James Thorn, John Davenport, and David Pinkney, on Wednesday night last, the 25th day of September last. That about a month ago, one Smith, a transient person, came to him, and frequently persuaded him to inlist in the service of the enemy, and told him he should have ten pounds bounty, three and sixpence a day till he passed muster, and two shillings and sixpence after; but the examinant made no engagement to inlist with Smith. That about a fortnight ago, one Miller, who the examinant believes came from Long-Island, applied to him and made him the same offer, in case he would inlist in the service of the enemy, in a company to be commanded by one Jacob Frost; upon which he engaged to inlist accordingly, and Miller returned in a day or two after to Long-Island, as the examinant, from what he said, has reason to believe. That in a few days after Miller left the examinant, he set out for Long-Island, and, according to appointment, met in a field near one Philip Smith's, in Cortlandt's Manor, the above mentioned Joseph Frost, James Chatterton, Moses Reed, James Thorn, Abraham Fleetingburgh, and Jacob Fleetingburgh, of the Manor of Cortlandt, Joseph Michiel, and John Dobbs, of Collebergh. That the above-named persons severally informed this examinant they were also inlisted in the said company, to be commanded by Captain Frost, and set out with him on Saturday a week ago from that place to join said company on Long-Island; that having travelled about ten miles on their journey, they met with one Edward Palmer, of Long-Island, who upon some conversation told them that he was on his way to inlist men for the same service; and the examinant believes he is now at the Nine-Partners, on that business, and is to command a company if he can raise one. That having parted with Palmer, they proceeded to within about six miles of East-Chester, at which place they were to cross to Long-Island. That they laid there one night in the bushes. That night Davenport came to them and told them he belonged to the same company, and that there was an opportunity of crossing over to Long-Island from Pills-Neck. Davenport continued with them all night; in the morning he left them to prepare matters for their crossing the River or Sound. They continued there till the next night, when they set out for the place they were to cross, and having travelled about three miles, Davenport and Pinkney met them in a field and proceeded with them, Davenport heading them with a drawn sword in his hand, and Joseph Michiel with a gun. That having marched two miles towards the Sound or River, the examinant, with the six persons first mentioned, were attacked and taken by Captain Duet's guard as aforesaid, the others having fled and escaped. And the examinant further says, that every man of their company, at the time of their being taken, well knew the business they were upon, and that they were severally inlisted in the same company and service, it having been frequently publicly mentioned and talked over among them; and further saith not.

In witness to the premises, I have hereunto set my hand, this 3d day of October, 1776.

JOHN MARSH.

JOHN TAYLOR TO GENERAL GATES.

Skeenaborough, September 29, 1776.

HONOURED SIR: The bearer, Thomas Lesley, I have known to be a soldier in Captain Hendrix's company, who was taken prisoner at the storm of Quebeck. He informs me that he listed with the Regulars, and the regiment he belonged to was stationed near Montreal, and on the 31st ultimo he, with two other soldiers, deserted. I send him to you that he may inform you what he may know concerning the Regulars.

I have the honour to be, sir, your obedient, humble servant,

JOHN TAYLOR.

To Hon. Major-General Gates.

MRS. ADAMS TO JOHN ADAMS.

September 29, 1776.

Not since the 6th of September have I had one line from you, which makes me very uneasy. Are you all this time conferring with his Lordship? Is there no communication? or, are the post-riders all dismissed? Let the cause be what it will, not hearing from you has given me much uneasiness.

We seem to be kept in total ignorance of affairs at York. I hope you at Congress are more enlightened. Who fell, who are wounded, who prisoners, or their number, is as undetermined as it was the day after the battle. If our army is in ever so critical a state, I wish to know it, and the worst of it. If all America is to be ruined and undone by a pack of cowards and knaves, I wish to know it. Pitiably is the lot of their commander. Cæsar's tenth legion never was forgiven. We are told for truth that a regiment of Yorkers refused to quit the city; and that another regiment behaved like a pack of cowardly villains, by quitting their posts. If they are unjustly censured, it is for want of proper intelligence.

I am sorry to see a spirit so venal prevailing every where. When our men were drawn out for Canada a very large bounty was given them, and now another call is made upon us no one will go without a large bounty, though only for two months, and each town seems to think its honour engaged in out-bidding the others. The Province pay is forty shillings. In addition to that, this town voted to make it up six pounds. They then drew out the persons most unlikely to go, and they are obliged to give three pounds to hire a man. Some pay the whole fine, ten pounds. Forty men are now drafted from this town. More than one half, from sixteen to fifty, are now in the service. This method of conducting will create a general uneasiness in the Continental army. I hardly think you can be sensible how much we are thinned in this Province.

The rage for privateering is as great here as any where. Vast numbers are employed in that way. If it is necessary to make any more drafts upon us, the women must reap the harvests. I am willing to do my part. I believe I could gather corn and husk it, but I should make a poor figure at digging potatoes.

There has been a report that a fleet was seen in our bay yesterday. I cannot conceive from whence, nor do I believe the story.

'Tis said you have been upon Staten-Island to hold your conference. 'Tis a little odd that I have never received the least intimation of it from you. Did you think I should be alarmed? Don't you know me better than to think me a coward? I hope you will write me every thing concerning this affair. I have a great curiosity to know the result.

As to government, nothing is yet done about it. The church is opened here every Sunday, and the King prayed for as usual, in open defiance of Congress.

If the next post does not bring me a letter, I think I will leave off writing; for I shall not believe you get mine. Adieu. Yours.

P. S. Master John has become post-rider from Boston to Braintree.

GENERAL WARD TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Boston, September 29, 1776.

SIR: Having been informed that the army was in great want of cooking utensils, and there being fifty-five copper camp-kettles and twenty-nine iron pots and kettles in the store here, I have this day sent them forward, with directions to the wagoner to make the utmost expedition in going to the army, and to deliver them to your order as soon as he arrives.

I am your Excellency's obedient, humble servant,

ARTEMAS WARD.

To General Washington.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER TO A MEMBER OF THE MASSACHUSETTS ASSEMBLY, DATED SALEM, SEPTEMBER 29, 1776.

SIR: It is not merely a matter of speculation, but of general complaint, that the ships of war, ordered more than seven months since to be built at Newbury and Portsmouth, are not in readiness to this day for service on our coasts. Those who have knowledge in business of this kind are free and open in their declarations, that those vessels might easily have been built and fitted for the sea so long ago as to have taken the transports with Highlanders, who were sailing a fortnight backwards and forwards in our bay; and to have prevented the retaking of several valuable prizes, and other vessels, to the amount, perhaps, of much more than the whole cost of our ships, that lay in harbour unfitted for service. This long delay has occasioned great uneasiness in the minds of many, and they are unable to account for it upon any other considerations than either negligence, the want of skill and vigorous application, or necessary interruption by other employments, in those to whom the chief direction in building and preparing those vessels for the sea was committed. To whatever cause this delay may be attributed, it has been unspeakably detrimental to the publick interest. And may it not, sir, be highly proper that it should be made a matter of strict inquiry by that court of which you are a member? and would it not be an instance of true patriotism in you to motion such an inquiry at the coming session of the General Court? If persons unskilled or inactive are employed in such an interesting affair, or if their attention to it is taken off by a multiplicity of other employments, ought they not to be restrained within due limits, that the publick may not suffer by their having too much upon their heads and hands?

LORD GEORGE GERMAIN TO GENERAL HOWE.

Whitehall, September 30, 1776.

SIR: I am favoured with your letters from the Headquarters upon Staten-Island, dated 6th and 15th August, in the latter of which you acknowledge the receipt of my despatches of the 11th and 12th June, and also of the camp equipage which had been sent to you from Europe.

The safe arrival of the two fleets under convoy of Commodore Hotham and the Repulse, was a very welcome piece of intelligence; and I have had the pleasure of receiving a confirmation of the report which you mention, relative to the healthy state of the Guards and Hessians.

I am too well convinced of your zeal and alertness to suppose that there will be any unnecessary delays in your operations; and I most sincerely wish you all the success during the campaign, which the justness of the cause in which you are engaged so amply deserves, and which, I flatter myself, the known bravery of the troops employed in this service will not fail to ensure.

It is very unfortunate that so great a part of the Forty-Second and Seventy-First Regiments should have fallen into the Rebels' hands. The loss of Major Menzies is much to be lamented, but I trust you will soon have it in your power to procure the release of Lieutenant-Colonel Campbell, and the other prisoners, as I observe with particular satisfaction, that you have agreed with Mr. Washington that the prisoners should be exchanged. I am, &c.,

GEO. GERMAIN.

SILAS DEANE TO ROBERT MORRIS.

Paris, September 30, 1776.

SIR: Yours of the 5th of June came to hand on the 25th instant. Mr. Delap will inform you of the state of remittances in his hands. Messrs. Cliffords & Teysett, and Mr. Hodgson, of Amsterdam, have received next to nothing, about two hundred pounds by the last accounts; from which you will perceive that not one-third of the sum proposed has come to hand, and even out of that my private expenses and those for promoting the other parts of my mission must take something, let me be ever so prudent and cautious.

To solicit arms, clothing, and tents for thirty thousand men, two hundred brass cannon, mortars, and other stores in proportion, and to be destitute of one shilling of ready money, exclusive of the fund of forty thousand pounds originally designed for other affairs, (which you know by the protests in London was my case,) has left me in a critical situation. To let slip such an opportunity for want of ready money would be unpardonable, and yet that was taking out of a fund before deficient. I hope, however, to execute both, though not in the season I could have wished. I have, as you see, had but a few days since the receiving of yours, in which I have discoursed with some of the persons to whom I had before proposed such a scheme, and think it will take well, but as men of property will be engaged in it, the remittances should be made very punctual.

The insurance I am sensible had better be in Europe, but it cannot be had at present unless in Holland, where I am told there are often disputes with the underwriters. On the whole it must be done in America. I can, I believe, engage for one hundred thousand pounds sterling during the winter. I shall write to you further in a few days.

You have mentioned to me a loan. I choose to speak of this in a letter of business particularly by itself, which I will endeavour to do by a young gentleman going on Sunday, to which opportunity I also refer what I have further to say on this subject. Pray forward the trifles I am sending to my little deserted family as soon as received.

Tobacco is rising very fast, being now seven stivers in Holland. The scheme of the Farmers-General here is very artful; they grow anxious. They held high terms on my first application. I turned off, and they are now applying to me, as are also some people farther northward.

God bless and prosper America is the prayer of every one here, to which I say Amen and Amen. I am, &c.

SILAS DEANE.

BALTIMORE COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Committee, September 30, 1776, Present: William Aisquith, Chairman pro tem., T. Rutter, J. Cockey, E. Talbot, T. Sollers, D. Shaw, A. Buchanan, W. Buchanan, W. Wilkinson, C. Ridgely of Wm., B. Nicholson.

Messrs. Andrew Buchanan and William Wilkinson are appointed members of the Committee for licensing Suits, in the room of Messrs. Walter Tolley, Jun., (deceased,) and James Calhoun, who declines acting any longer as a Committee man.

Mr. Samuel Baxter, (miller,) is appointed Collector of Fines for Middle River, Lower Hundred, in the room of Mr. Abraham Cole, who declined acting.

A Letter from the Council of Safety, mentioning that Mr. Towson is empowered to hire twelve men for a Guard, for not more than forty-five shillings per month, was received.

Three pounds is given to Moses McClean for a Gun, and an order given to Mr. Purviance to pay him. Also another, for which fifty shillings was given him.

A permission is granted to Mr. George Woolsey to load the brig Rogers with Flour, Bread, Iron, Tobacco, and some Lumber, for some foreign West-India Island.

Attest:

GEO. LUX, Secretary.

THOMAS STONE TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Philadelphia, September 30, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Your letter of the 29th, to the delegates of Maryland, was delivered to me yesterday. Captain Watkins did not leave this city so soon as I expected he would do. I fear nothing will do with him but dismissal. I have procured clothes for his company, and have directed Lieutenant Grace, who at present commands, to have every thing got ready for them as soon as possible.

Every thing here is over-dear; but I thought it better to pay high than keep the soldiers doing nothing, or send them naked to camp. I have heard nothing of the powder you mention. My colleagues, I presume, attended to that matter. Messrs. Chase and Paca left this on Sunday, and I shall set out on Thursday, if my state of body will permit, though this I much doubt, being at present much indisposed.

The two adverse armies remain in statu quo. General Miffin, who is in town, says our army is getting into better order, and he hopes will be able to sustain any attack the enemy may make. Doctor Brown arrived here the day after my letter to him was sent; but has been very ill ever since. Surgeons are much wanted in camp; but where proper ones will be procured, I know not.

I am with great esteem, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

T. STONE.

To the honourable Council of Safety of Maryland, Annapolis.

JOSIAH BARTLETT TO JOHN LANGDON.

Philadelphia, September 30, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Last Saturday I received yours of the 14th instant, and am very sorry for your bad success in procuring guns for the frigate. You say you have mentioned the affair to the President, and I hope some order will be taken about it, but what, I know not. I have not been able to attend either the Marine or Secret Committee for some time past, and Congress but little. It is now above five weeks since I have been troubled with a severe cough, slow fever, profuse sweats, and loss of appetite, except for light food. By the advice of my friends and physicians, I design to leave this city in a few days, and try to move homeward, in hopes a change of air, moderate exercise, and a recess from business, may assist in restoring my health. Mr. Hancock has offered me a seat in his carriage, which I shall accept, as it is impossible for me to return on horseback in my present state of health. I received Colonel Whipple's letter of the 15th, where he informs me he expects to set out for this place about the 10th of October. I hope he will set off before that time, when he comes to be informed by my letters of my bad state of health, and the necessity there is of a Delegate here. There is no news here, more than you will see in the publick prints.

I am your friend,

JOSIAH BARTLETT.

GENERAL THOMPSON TO RICHARD PETERS.

Philadelphia, September 30, 1776.

SIR: A number of officers and privates have arrived in this city from Canada, who are generally in a distressed situation for want of clothing and almost every other necessary. There are some from every regiment in this State, but most of Colonel Irvine's. I request you will take the necessary steps to get the whole some months' pay. Pay rolls shall be made out as soon as possible.

I am, sir, your most humble servant,

WM. THOMPSON.

To Richard Peters, Esq., Secretary at War.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM PHILADELPHIA, DATED SEPTEMBER 30, 1776.

In the late attack of the enemy on our posts it is certain they had at least four hundred men killed and wounded, besides the disgrace of a repulse, which has raised the spirits of our army, and checked the career of the enemy. The Hessians, is seems, carry it with a high hand, and greatly disgust the British troops, who are obliged to truckle and submit to great preferences given, and indeed taken, by the former. These foreigners say they will plunder every thing before them, and have even insisted on transports to carry over their stolen cattle and other plunder to their families.

Abundance of blankets and other woollens, with most other dry goods, are now to be had in the French Islands, in great abundance, and more are daily expected. That the French and Sponiards are on the eve of a war with Great Britain, seems to be incontestible, and our best accounts from the British West-Indies, describe them in the greatest distress imaginable. We understand that Carleton and Burgoyne are extremely industrious in fitting out vessels to dispute the mastery of Lake Champlain with us, but I think they are not likely to succeed this campaign.

A few members, factious men, of the old Pennsylvania Assembly, met lately under pretence of settling some unfinished accounts, and though not enough to do business by law, they, by a majority of one vote, came to a parcel of resolves, respecting the propriety of the Convention of that State levying taxes on the Non-Associators; after which they dissolved themselves and departed.

PROCLAMATION.

Whereas there are many Deserters from his Majesty's service now in arms in America, against their rightful Sovereign, and engaged with the declared enemies of Great Britain, in a most cruel and unnatural rebellion, to shake off all obedience to the constitutional authority of the State: And whereas the heinousness of their crime, not admitting any palliative considerations, will necessarily exclude them from the smallest claim to mercy, if they should fall into the hands of his Majesty's troops: The Commander-in-chief being anxiously desirous to warn them of their danger, to withdraw them from their present desperate and criminal situation, whereby they may escape the ignominious death of Traitors to their King and country, hereby offers a full pardon to all Deserters, who shall surrender themselves at the Head-Quarters, or to any division of the King's army, on or before the 31st day of October, 1776.

Given at the Head-Quarters on York-Island, the 30th day of September, 1776.

By his Excellency's command: Wm. Howe.

ROBERT MCKENZIE, Secretary.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE BOARD OF WAR.

Head-Quarters, Heights of Harlem, September 30, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Having considered the enclosed memorial, which you were pleased to transmit for my advice thereon, I beg leave to inform you, that in my opinion the service will be most advanced in general cases, by directing promotions in a regimental line. However, I should think this had better be practiced than resolved on, always exercising a right of promotion, on account of extraordinary merit, or preventing a succession to office where it is wanting, and the person claiming unfit for it.

I have the honour to be, with greatest respect, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

Go. WASHINGTON.

To the Honourable the Board of War.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read October 2; referred to the Board of War.]

Head-Quarters, Heights of Harlem, September 30, 1776.

SIR: Since I had the honour of addressing you last, nothing of importance has transpired, though, from some movements yesterday on the part of the enemy, it would seem as if something was intended.

The enclosed memorial from Lieutenant-Colonel Shepard, of the Fourth Regiment, I beg leave to submit to the consideration of Congress; and shall only add that I could wish they would promote him to the command of the regiment, and send him a commission, being a good and valuable officer, and especially as the vacancy is of a pretty long standing; and I have had, nor has he, any intelligence from Colonel Learned, and himself, who had the command, and who obtained a discharge on account of his indisposition, of his designs to return.

I have also enclosed a letter from Captain Ballard, which Congress will please to determine on, the subject being new and not within my authority.

I have the honour to be, sir, your most obedient servant,

Go. WASHINGTON.

P. S. A commission was sent for Colonel Learned, which is now in my hands, having received no application or heard from him since it came.

To His Excellency GEORGE WASHINGTON, Esq., General and Commander-in-Chief of all the Forces in the thirteen free and UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, the Petition of WILLIAM SHEPARD, now Lieutenant-Colonel in the Third Regiment in the Continental Army, humbly sheweth:

That he, in early life, was called forth to war in defence of his country; that he cheerfully stepped forth, and for six years successively served in the late war, in various capacities, from that of a private to a Captain, in which station he served three years; during the whole of said term he was led to believe that he served with good reputation in said capacities; that early in the unhappy controversy between Great Britain and the now free States of America, he was again called to the field, and his mind being impressed with the importance of the cause in which he was engaged, and the duty that he owed to God and his country, he thought himself under the strongest obligations to draw his sword against the unnatural enemies of this oppressed country, to defend its sacred rights and liberties; which considerations alone induced him to enter the present service in the station he now holds.

Your petitioner further begs leave to observe that when he entered the service he expected the same advantages, with regard to preferment, with other officers of his rank in the army; but when he views the regiment to which he belongs, which has been destitute of a chief Colonel for almost six months, and not filled, and other regiments vacant but a few hours before they are filled by advancements from their own corps, your petitioner is convinced that he is judged, by the wise and prudent rulers of the States, (whom he will honour and esteem,) not to be an officer worthy of promotion, or the most flagrant injustice is done him. This being the case, your petitioner thinks himself compelled, by every principle of justice to himself and to all his brethren who may continue in the service of their country, (which has his best wishes, and which service he has no desire to leave, so long as the cause of his country shall require his assistance, on any other principle than those before noted, there being but little expected from a degraded officer,) to beg your Excellency to grant him liberty to resign his command.

And your Excellency's petitioner, as in duty bound, shall ever pray, &c.

WILLIAM SHEPARD, Lieutenant-Colonel.

Bergen, September 28, 1776.

Fort Constitution, September 26, 1776.

SIR: I informed you yesterday that Colonel Read would certify to you his willingness for Lieutenant John Petties to purchase my commission and rank of Captaincy in the First Regiment of Virginia forces; but Colonel Read being so indisposed that he cannot sit up to write, but has promised to do so as soon as he can sit up, I humbly beg the favour of General Washington to receive my reasons for selling my commission, assuring his Excellency that it is not from any dislike to the service, or for want of zeal to the glorious cause, but, from experience, find that I cannot afford to stay in the service, being naturally of an extravagant turn, and not fortune sufficient to support that dignity that is observed in our camp.

I have served as a volunteer and Captain since the first of the raising of troops in Virginia, in which places I have exerted my abilities for the good of the service, and am still determined to be active.

I have the refusal of a Captaincy of Marines, in an armed vessel that is now fitting out in Virginia. I am desirous of accepting the same. Was I a man of fortune, not any consideration should induce me to dispose of my commission; but as I am not, I hope to be indulged, having spent a considerable sum more than my pay. I therefore humbly request your favours in writing to the Congress respecting the matter, provided your Excellency will not suffer Mr. Petties to purchase without the approbation of Congress.

I must beg leave to trouble you with one other circumstance—that of Mr. Petties being very popular in the County he came from; and as my company is not near complete, had he the command, he could very soon make up the deficiency.

I am, with all respect, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

ROBERT BALLARD.

To His Excellency General Washington.

GENERAL ORDERS.

Head-Quarters, Harlem Heights, September 28, 1776.

(Parole, Stamford.)

(Countersign, Rye.)

Mr. Finn Wadsworth is appointed Major of Brigade to General Wadsworth.

William Higgins, of Captain Hamilton's Company of the Artillery, convicted by a General Court-Martial, whereof Colonel Weedon is President, of "plundering and stealing," ordered to be whipped thirty-nine lashes.

The General approves the sentence, and orders it to be executed to-morrow morning, at the usual time and place.

A number of the new rules and regulations of the Army having come to hand, the several Brigades Major are to receive their proportion and deliver them to commanding officers of the several regiments, who are immediately to cause them to be read to their regiments, and made known to both officers and men, so that there may be no pretence of ignorance.

It is with great concern the General finds that so many excuses are made by Field-Officers and others, when ordered on duty, especially on picket. By this means active and willing officers are discouraged. He hopes trifling reasons and slight complaints will not be urged to avoid duty, when the utmost vigilance and care is necessary.

The General has also, in riding through the camps, observed a shameful waste of provision—large pieces of fine beef not only thrown away, but left above ground to putrefy. While such practices continue, troops will be sickly. The Colonels or commanding officers of regiments, who have not done it, are immediately to appoint camp-colour men; and officers who have spirit and zeal will see that all such nuisances are removed. Some of the camps nearest to Head-Quarters are very faulty in this respect, and will be pointed out in General Orders if there is not a reformation.

Stephen Moylan, Esq., having resigned his office of Quartermaster-General, Brigadier-General Mifflin is appointed thereto till the pleasure of Congress is known.

The Quartermaster-General will deliver to General Spencer's order such tents as are wanting for the regiments in Wadsworth's and Fellows's Brigades.

That the approach of the enemy to the front of our lines may be communicated as speedily as possible, two field-pieces are to be fired, by order of the Brigadier of the day, at the redoubt on the road by Colonel Moylan's; this to be repeated by two others at Head-Quarters, and the like number at Mount Washington.

Colonel Shee is to take charge of General Mifflin's Brigade till further orders.

General Saltonstall is to order in four of the Militia regiments under his command, who are to encamp on the hill opposite to Fort Washington, towards the point opposite to the encampment, on the other side Harlem River.

The General desires that the several works in which we are now engaged may be advanced as fast as possible, as it is essentially necessary.

In future, when an officer is ordered on duty, and through illness or any other private reason cannot attend, he is to procure one of equal rank to do the duty for him, unless some extraordinary reason should occasion an application to Head-Quarters. Otherwise a regular roster can never be kept.

The Brigade-Majors are to furnish the Chief Engineer with a detail of the men from their respective brigades ordered for fatigue. This is to be left at his office near Head-Quarters, and when any alteration is made they are to give him a new detail.

Major Bicker is ordered to attend the works, and be excused from other duty.

Any soldier detected in cutting any abatts without orders from the Chief Engineer, is to be sent to the Provost-Guard and tried by a General Court-Martial. Officers are desired to put a stop to so dangerous a practice immediately.

Fatigue men are to breakfast before they go to parade; no man to be allowed to return hereafter to his tent or quarters on this account.

The building up tents with boards is a practice peculiar to this army, and in our present situation cannot be indulged without the greatest injury to the service. The boards brought into camp are for floors to the tents, and officers will do well immediately to prevent their being applied to any other use.

Head-Quarters, Harlem Heights, September 29, 1776.

(Parole, Fairfield.)

(Countersign, Leyden.)

Ensigns Fosdick and Chipman, of Colonel Webb's Regiment, but lately in a detachment of Rangers under Captain Holmes, having been tried by a General Court-Martial, whereof Colonel Weedon was President, for "abusive language to their officers, mutiny, and disobedience of orders," they are convicted of giving abusive language to their officers, and ordered to be reprimanded for their conduct before the officers of Colonel Webb's Regiment.

The General approves the sentence, and orders them to join their regiment, that it may be carried into execution.

As there is the greatest appearance of bad weather, the General directs and begs that the officers would have a special care of the arms and ammunition; wherever there is a convenient cover for either bell-tents or painted tents, to have the arms and ammunition put into them.

He also directs that the several brigades, as soon as the weather admits, be marched down to their alarm posts, as fixed in the orders of the 26th, that the troops may know how to repair to them, and defend them to the best advantage; and that this be repeated until both officers and men are well acquainted with the ground and the posts.

From some discoveries made yesterday, there is reason to think the enemy meditate a speedy and general attack; it is, therefore, of great consequence that we should be well prepared in all respects to meet it.

A Court-Martial, consisting of the following members, are to meet to-morrow at ten o'clock at the White-House near Head-Quarters, for the trial of Captain Weisner and Captain Scott, for "cowardice and misbehaviour in the attack made upon Montresor's Island, on the morning of the 23d instant." Brigadier-General BELL, President; Colonel Maggaw, Colonel Newcomb, Lieutenant-Colonel Brodhead, Major Putnam, Major Mott, Captain Winship, Colonel Holman, Lieutenant-Colonel Cadwallader, Lieutenant-Colonel Russell, Major Hopewell, Captain Beatty, Captain Gillet.

All evidences are directed to be punctual in their attendance.

Head-Quarters, Harlem Heights, September 30, 1776.

(Parole, Norfolk.)

(Countersign, York.)

The movements of the enemy indicating a speedy attack, the officers of the several regiments, of all ranks, are to be very attentive to the state of the arms and ammunition of their respective regiments, and to be particularly alert in case of alarm.

The order of yesterday with respect to the troops marching to their alarm-posts and making themselves acquainted with the ground, is to be carried into execution immediately.

Ammunition boxes in each regiment, not having ammunition in them, are to be collected, that they may be filled. Commanding officers of regiments will send them to their respective Brigadiers' quarters immediately.

All the troops are every morning to be under arms a little before break of day and continue till sunrise, when they may be dismissed. As the preservation of our country may depend very much on a strict obedience to this order, it is hoped that commanding officers of brigades and regiments will pay a special attention to it.

A working party of twelve hundred men, exclusive of those at Mount Washington, to parade at the usual place, at seven o'clock in the morning, properly officered for the Engineers' department. Fellows's and Wadsworth's brigades to take their tools at Quartermaster Stone's quarters, nigh to General Spencer's quarters. Major Clift and Captain Parsons will attend them. Colonel Weedon's Regiment will take their orders from Lieutenant-Colonel Marshall. The overseers of the works will attend at the Engineer's office every morning to receive their orders and parties. The number of fatigue men not to be lessened till further orders. The Engineer must have a list of the several brigades and the number of men they furnish for the works, or he never can proportion the men to the works in a proper manner.

Return of Brigades under the more immediate command of His Excellency GEORGE WASHINGTON, Commander-in-Chief of the Army in the service of the UNITED STATES OF AMERICA. HARLEM HEIGHTS, Head-Quarters, September 30, 1776.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GENERAL GEORGE CLINTON.
SIR: Take with you Lieutenant-Colonel Hurlbut, and proceed immediately to Fairfield, and there, in consultation with General Lincoln, of the Massachusetts-Bay, Mr. Hobart, of this State, and Lieutenant-Colonel Livingston, if you can meet with him, concert an expedition to Long-Island, for the purpose of aiding the inhabitants in removing or destroying the stock, grain, &c., which must otherwise fall into the hands of the enemy.

This expedition is to be performed under the command of such officers as General Lincoln and yourself may fix upon, and by the troops from Massachusetts-Bay, aided by the three Continental companies, commanded by Colonel Livingston.

If there is a possibility of your seeing Governour Trumbull without too great a delay of time, I shall much approve of your consulting him upon this occasion previous to your concerting any plan; but if this cannot be done conveniently, you will forward my letter, with your reasons for not doing so, and a request of such assistance from the State of Connecticut as you shall find necessary to apply for.

Despatch is essentially necessary to the success of such an enterprise, and secrecy in obtaining craft for the transportation of the troops across the Sound will contribute not a little towards it. Circumstances and information must direct you to the number of men necessary for such an expedition as this, and therefore I shall not bias your judgment by any order or opinion of mine upon the occasion, but leave this matter wholly to yourselves, with earnest and best wishes for success.

Given under my hand, at Head-Quarters, on Harlem Heights, Colonel Morris's, this 30th day of September, 1776.

GO. WASHINGTON.

To Brigadier-General George Clinton, New-York Militia.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Head-Quarters, September 30, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Your favours of the 20th and 25th, with their several enclosures, I received this morning. The letters for Congress, with the rest of the papers, I shall transmit them by the earliest opportunity. I cannot conceive that their resolution of the 14th was calculated or designed in the smallest degree to give you offence. The application for stores had been made as a requisition from General Gates, which, I presume, occasioned the resolve ordering 'em to be sent to him. Also the words "for the use of the Northern army," nothing is to be inferred from them. Whenever stores are sent to any department, it is said always for the use of the army there.

I am greatly obliged by the measures you have taken to provide us with boards, as they are so material and so difficult to procure. Your assurances to execute any commands I may have occasion to impose upon you, when out of the military line, call for a return of my warmest acknowledgements; these I tender you, and of these I beg your acceptance.

Since my letter of the 27th, nothing of importance has occurred. Things remain nearly in the situation they then were. Yesterday there were some small movements on the part of the enemy; but as yet they have attempted nothing, nor have I been able to find out their design. A little time I suppose must show what plans they mean to pursue for the remainder of the campaign.

I am, &c.,

GO. WASHINGTON.

To Major-General Schuyler, Northern Department.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GENERAL LINCOLN.

Head-Quarters, Heights of Harlem, September 30, 1776.

SIR: Your letter of the 28th instant, noticing me the forwardness of the troops under your command, was this day handed me by Major Turner. On receipt of this, you'll please to halt your men till a conference with General Clinton, who waits on to advise with you, and determine on a secret expedition to Long-Island, which, if properly conducted, I have no doubt will be attended with success, and be exceedingly beneficial to the United States. To carry into execution the proposed plan, I must request a sufficient number of the Militia from your State, making choice of (both officers and men) those which may be depended on.

I am, wishing success, sir, yours, &c.,

GO. WASHINGTON.

To Major-General Benj. Lincoln, Massachusetts Militia, at Stamford or Fairfield.

P. S. You'll be pleased to return to Fairfield with General Clinton, to consult on the above subject.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Head-Quarters, Heights of Harlem, September 30, 1776.

SIR: Having received authentick advices from Long-FIFTH SERIES.—VOL. II.

Island that the enemy are recruiting a great number of men with much success, and collecting large quantities of stock throughout the island for their support, I have directed Brigadier-General Clinton forthwith to repair to Fairfield, to meet General Lincoln, on his march thither with a part of the troops lately voted by the Massachusetts State to reinforce this army, in order to concert with him an expedition to the island, to check and suppress, if possible, a practice so injurious and detrimental to our cause. These gentlemen will wait on you for your advice in the matter, if time and the situation of things will admit of it; and with a view of obtaining such aid as you and they may judge necessary to facilitate the enterprise. However, if it should not be in their power personally to attend you, I must take the liberty of requesting your good offices upon this occasion, and that you will afford them every assistance that you conveniently can, and they may require, either in men, vessels, &c., for carrying their scheme into execution.

It is absolutely necessary that the measures of the enemy should be effectually counteracted in this instance, or in a little time they will levy no inconsiderable army of our own people. The influence of their money and their artifices has already passed the Sound, and several have been detected of late who had enlisted to serve under their banner, and the particular command of Major Rogers.

Being in haste, and having the fullest confidence that your favours will not be wanting in this instance, I have only time to add, that I have the honour to be, &c.,

GO. WASHINGTON.

To Governour Trumbull, Connecticut.

COLONEL HARRISON TO GENERAL HEATH.

September 30, 1776.

SIR: His Excellency desires that such of General Saltonstoll's Militia as remain after the two regiments ordered to the heights opposite to Mount Washington, and after those have joined or are to join Colonel Chester, in the room of the Militia lately gone home, may be directed and sent to encamp on the grounds on the Morisania side of Harlem, opposite Head-Quarters, which his Excellency, you, and others, were viewing some days ago, and that they be enjoined to use their utmost industry in covering themselves as soon as possible by building huts with straw, rails, and sod. His Excellency would have some person whom you can rely upon sent to show them the place, and who will inform them that they are to build their huts on this side the heights facing Harlem River, that they may not be in the way of such works and lines as may be judged necessary to be thrown upon them.

I am, sir, your humble servant,

ROB. H. HARRISON.

To Major-General Heath.

Proceedings of a General Court-Martial of the Line, held on the Heights of HAARLEM, by order of His Excellency GEORGE WASHINGTON, Esq., General and Commander-in-Chief of the Forces of the UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, for the trial of the Captains WISNER and SCOTT, in the service of said States. September 30, 1776.

Brigadier-General Beall, President.

Colonel Magaw ,	Major Mott ,
Colonel Newcomb ,	Captain Winship ,
Lieut. Col. Cadwallader ,	Captain Stewart ,
Lieut. Col. Russell ,	Captain Beatty ,
Major Putnam ,	Captain Graydon ,
Major Hopewell ,	Captain Weitzell .

WILLIAM TUDOR, Judge-Advocate.

The Court being duly sworn, proceeded to the trial of Captain John Wisner, of Colonel Nicoll's Regiment of the New-York Levies, brought prisoner before the Court, and accused of "cowardice and misbehaviour before the enemy, and of speaking words inducing others to misbehave."

The prisoner being arraigned on the aforesaid charge, pleads, "Not guilty."

George Marsdin, Adjutant of Colonel Prescott's Regiment, was sworn, and deposes: I was one of a party ordered for an attack on Montessor's Island, on Sunday night, 22d

September. I went on board one of the boats prepared for us, with a Sergeant and twelve men. There was near fifty men on board the boat when we put off. The boat getting aground, I was obliged to go forward to the head of the boat, where I saw a man sitting down in the bottom of the boat. I trod upon him, and gave him a kick or two, when he got up and set upon the fore-thwart. After some time I discovered the badge of a Captain in his hat, and on asking him what officer he was, he told me he was a Captain. This was the prisoner. We had got about a mile from the place we set off at, when Captain Wisner observed that he was certain, from information, that there was five times the number of the enemy on the island that we thought for, and that we were led into a plaguy scrape; that a ship lay near the island which would rake us with grape shot. Some of the men heard this, and it was soon known throughout the boat. Soon after this we observed the privateer in the river, which hailed a boat ahead of us. On this the prisoner cried out there was the man-of-war, and called out to stop rowing, or we should all be cut off with grape shot or taken. On this speech, the men all stopped rowing. I contradicted him, and encouraged the men to put on. We soon passed the privateer, and a little below it the boats ran afoul of each other. We cleared each other and kept down the river, when our sentries on Haarlem side fired at the boat; on which the prisoner got off the thwart and kneeled down in the bottom of the boat. Captain Eldridge, who had come on board our boat just before, called out to him, and bid him get up. He refused, and said he did not choose to be in the way of those plaguy balls. As we kept along the prisoner saw the shade of some trees in the water, and cried out there was the man-of-war. Some of the men said so too. Presently after this a scattering fire began from the enemy, on which the prisoner immediately squatted down in the bottom of the boat; the firing increasing, the prisoner said the enemy had a number of boats, and that we should be cut off, and begged for God's sake that we would land on a point of land on Morisania side. This was said loud, and must have been heard by the men. The boats soon run foul of each other, and so much confusion ensued that we were obliged to land at Morisania. As every effort I could make I could not prevail on the men to go on, Captain Eldridge and I went on shore, where we found General Scott, who told us it was too late, and we had better go back. Before the boats run foul of each other Colonel Jackson's boat had got out of sight, and we could not determine whether the Colonel's boat had landed or not. The prisoner used no speeches of an encouraging kind during the whole course down the river, but rather discouraged the enterprise and disheartened the men. We had a man killed in the boat, which seemed to dishearten the men, when I turned it off by saying the man was asleep, and bid them row on.

Captain Eldridge deposes: About a mile from Montresor's Island, the boats stopping, I went on board the boat in which Adjutant Marsdin and the prisoner were. Soon after I had got on board, our sentries from Haarlem side fired upon us, when the prisoner squatted down in the bottom of the boat. I begged him to get up. He said something about bullets—I don't remember what. He told me that he had some men down as sentries at Morisania, who had told him the enemy was five times as strong as what we thought, and that we were led into a scrape, and that the ships would fire grape shot. He said this loud enough for the men to hear. I told him that such talk was discouraging to the men, and that the story could not be true. Presently after this some trees, which made a shade in the water, were observed by some one (I think it was the prisoner) to be the enemy's tenders. We kept along till the enemy's fire began, when the prisoner instantly squatted down in the bottom of the boat. I begged him to get up; told him such conduct discouraged the men, and gave him several kicks with my foot, which he did not attend to. The firing increased, when the prisoner cried out, "for God's sake retreat, or we shall all be cut off." A number of the men joined the cry; confusion ensued; the men laid down in the boat, and were not to be governed. I attribute the cowardice of the men to be more owing to the behaviour of the prisoner than to the enemy's fire. I doubt not, had the prisoner been out of the boat, I should have got the men on. The prisoner showed every sign of cowardice a man well could.

Sergeant Weymouth. After the men got into confusion Captain Eldridge and Adjutant Marsdin exerted themselves to quiet the men and get them on. The prisoner did nothing to encourage us. After the enemy began to fire upon us, somebody, I can't tell who, in the bow of the boat, cried out, "let us retreat, or the enemy will surround and cut us off."

John Kilburn, Corporal, confirms the substance of Adjutant Marsdin's testimony, and says the prisoner's conduct was very discouraging. That Marsdin and Eldridge did every thing in their power to encourage the men, but the confusion was so great they did not succeed. The deponent was on the second seat from that on which the prisoner sat.

The Court adjourned till to-morrow, 1st of October, at nine o'clock.

The Court met according to adjournment, and proceeded on the trial adjourned from yesterday.

Jotham Baker. Heard the prisoner tell Adjutant Marsdin that they had got into a scrape; that there was five times the number of the enemy we thought for, and that the ship would fire grape-shot upon us. When the sentries fired upon us, the prisoner laid down on the boat. Captain Eldridge bid him get up, for he discouraged the men. The prisoner replied he would not be in the way of the balls. He several times, in going down, talked of the danger of the ship firing grape-shot. He never said any thing but what was discouraging. When the enemy fired, he lay down in the boat. Captain Eldridge and Marsdin begged him to get up, and damned him. All the reply he made was, "For God's sake, retreat! We shall all be cut off." I was within four feet of the prisoner all the time we were going down. Several of us observed what the prisoner said. A number of the men were for retreating also. Adjutant Marsdin and Captain Eldridge did every thing to get the men on, but after the enemy began firing, the confusion was so great they were not minded.

Fortune Baker deposes: That he rowed one of the bow oars, and that the prisoner sat a little before him; that soon after the boat set off, the prisoner observed to the deponent that there was a great number of the enemy on the island, and that the party would certainly be cut off. The deponent confirms the last witness's testimony; and adds that the whole of the prisoner's conduct down the river was disheartening and cowardly. The deponent says he stood close to the prisoner the whole time, and observed every thing that passed.

The Prisoner's Defence.

Increase Wyman deposes: Was in the boat, and stood close to the prisoner going down the river. The prisoner took no command; and the deponent did not hear the prisoner say or do any thing that was either encouraging or not.

Daniel Shaw deposes: When the boats ran foul of one another, I jumped out of one boat, and got into that in which Captain Weisner was. At this time the enemy's fire was very brisk. Captain Weisner said, "Clap to your oars, boys, and go ashore; for we are safer there than we are here. The Colonel and Major's boat are landed." On this Mr. Marsdin said that the Colonel's boat had retreated, and immediately ordered the boats to retreat. Captain Weisner asked Marsdin if he was sure the Colonel's boat had retreated. Mr. Marsdin said yes. I belong to Captain Weisner's Company.

William Davis. When the sentries fired, I saw Captain Weisner dodge down his head. Whilst the enemy fired briskly, I heard an officer say, in the bow of the boat, "Clap to your oars, my boys; we shall be safer on there than here." From the voice, I took this to be said by Captain Eldridge, and the shore meant to be where the enemy was. When the man was killed in our boat, I heard Captain Weisner say, "it was a joke; the man was only asleep." I don't know of Captain Weisner saying any thing discouraging to the men.

Alexander Meers. I am one of Captain Weisner's Company. In the midst of the enemy's fire, the boat I was in was within two rods of Captain Weisner's. I heard Captain Weisner cry out, "Boys, we must land, for our officers are in the midst of the fire; and there we must land, for we are safer there than here." I did not see Captain Weisner, but know it was him by the voice, which I am well acquainted with.

Nathan Cary. Was in the same boat with Meers, and confirms his testimony. The deponent is one of Captain Weisner's Company.

Joel Cross. Was in the same boat with Meers, and confirms his testimony. The deponent is a private in Captain Weisner's Company.

James Armstrong. The boats had retreated some way back, when I heard Captain Weisner say, "For God's sake let us go back where the Colonel and Major are fighting, and die with them!" I was not in Captain Weisner's boat, but within half a rod of it, when I saw Captain Weisner, and heard him say this. I know nothing more of him.

The Court being cleared, after mature consideration, are of opinion that the prisoner was guilty of misconduct and cowardly behaviour, when on command in an enterprise ordered against Montresor's Island, on the night of the 22d September; and the Court unanimously sentence the prisoner to be cashiered, and rendered incapable of ever holding a commission in the service of the United States; and the prisoner is hereby cashiered, and rendered incapable of holding a commission; and the Court adjudge that the crime, name, place of abode, and judgment against the delinquent, be published in and about the camp and of the State of New-York, as ordered by the seventeenth article of the rules and regulations for the government of the Continental troops.

REZIN BEALL, President.

At a General Court-Martial held at the same place, by adjournment, on the 30th day of September, A. D. 1776:

Colonel LASHER, President.

WILLIAM WILLCOCKS, Judge-Advocate.

Lieut. Col. Prentice ,	Captain Keith ,
Lieut. Col. Johnston ,	Captain Dixon ,
Captain Sill ,	Captain Brazier ,
Captain Barns ,	Captain Townshend ,
Captain Allen ,	Captain Platt ,
Captain Dana ,	Captain Hardenburgh .

Benjamin Allen and Joseph Chesher, of Captain Michel's Company, Colonel Malcom's Regiment, charged with desertion by Captain Brenton Paine. The prisoners plead guilty, with evasive excuses. Judged guilty. Sentenced to receive twenty lashes each.

John Decker, Elijah Stanbury, and Jonathan Tomkins, of Captain Blair's Company, Colonel Nicoll's Regiment, charged with desertion. Plead, "Intention to return." Judged guilty. Sentenced to receive twenty lashes each.

JOHN LASHER, President.

MAJOR ADAMS TO MARYLAND CONVENTION.

Camp, Morris's Heights, September 30, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Being informed you are raising troops for the service of the United States of America, beg leave to address myself to your Honours on that particular head.

I flatter myself, since I have been in your service, I have discharged that duty and trust your Honours were pleased to repose in me as a soldier. Still being desirous of serving my country in so glorious a cause as I have already embarked in, hope your Honours will consider me in the election of officers in your State. From my ability, I can't flatter myself with any particular post in your service, but will leave that to your superiour abilities, hoping, at the same time, you will not give me lower rank than I bear at present in the army.

I have the honour to subscribe myself, gentlemen, your most obedient and most humble servant,

DANL. J. ADAMS.

To the honourable the Convention of Maryland.

A. DE WITT TO MATTHEW CANTINE.

Kingston, September 30, 1776.

DEAR SIR: You will see, by the letter from myself, Wynkoop, and Fink, and the enclosed letter to the Convention of the State of New-York, that the inhabitants of Papaconk are in great fear of a rupture of the Indians.

The man who has brought me the letter rode all night. Came to my house Saturday afternoon. Sunday morning early, I rode off to Kingston, to Peck and Wynkoop's. He tells me that an old squaw, on whom they depended all summer for a friendly warning, came to some of the inhabitants last week, weeping much, desiring them to move off this week, to get out of danger, as she would not see them in a great while. The inhabitants from Shohawkan were moved. He also told me that there were yet at Papaconk nine families, amounting to the number of between sixty and seventy children, and that they would move away in short, if they could get no assistance. They have a considerable quantity of grain and stock. I would leave it to your consideration if it would not be proper, if they must come away, to send a guard to assist them to bring off as much of their effects as possible. You know, in case of a rupture of the Indians, our case will be bad, as our frontiers will be drained of able-bodied men, and consequently necessary that we should be assisted with men, to preserve our lives and property, and that early, before the people suffer; for I conceive the first murder is committed will occasion a great consternation, and cause a number of people to evacuate their places, the effect whereof you know. I doubt not but you will do what is in your power for the best; and would be glad to receive a few lines from you, in answer, and news, if there be any certain.

I am, with esteem, your humble servant, &c.,

A. DE WITT.

To Matthew Cantine and Charles De Witt, Esq., Fishkill.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Albany, September 30, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I have the honour to acknowledge your Excellency's favour of the 27th instant, with the paper enclosed, which I shall immediately transmit to General Gates.

The resolution of Congress of the 14th instant, received since I wrote your Excellency on the subject of barracks, has empowered the commander in this department to build barracks where he may think proper; but no nails can as yet be procured.

Major William Edmenston, of the British Forty-Eighth Regiment, who is now a prisoner sent down by the Committee of Tryon County, has requested my leave to wait on you, in order to get exchanged, which I have refused until I should receive your orders thereon.

We have intelligence from Oswego since the 20th instant. No enemy then there.

I am, dear sir, with great respect, your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

To His Excellency General Washington, &c., &c.

TO THE PUBLICK.

The Commissioners appointed by Congress to examine and liquidate the Publick Accounts for the Northern District, give this publick notice that they have opened their office in this city, where constant attendance will be given from nine o'clock to two every day in the week, (Sundays excepted,) and all persons, civil or military, who have been employed in the service of the United States, whose accounts are not settled, are required to deliver them in to this office on or before the 31st day of October next.

JAMES MILLIGAN,
JOHN CARTER,
JOHN WELLES,
Commissioners.

Albany, September 30, 1776.

GENERAL GATES TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Ticonderoga, September 30, 1776.

SIR: I am much disappointed at not having it in my power to own the receipt of any letter from your Excellency since that of the 8th of July, nor a single line from either the Secretary of the Congress or the Secretary at War, of any date whatsoever. Knowing how precious your time must be, I never trouble your Excellency with any letter that is not immediately upon business, or that does not contain some demand which I am indispensably obliged to make. Would it not, therefore, be proper, that the demands contained in my letters to your Excellency, should be extracted and sent to the War Office, and that Board directed to acquaint me how far they can, and will, comply with my requisitions?

I hope my letters to your Excellency of the 16th and 29th of July, 6th and 23d of August, 2d and 23d of September, are all received, and particularly the last, by Colonel Hausager, as it contained a plan for establishing the new army, than which nothing can be of greater importance. Enclosed is a copy of my last letter to Major-General Schuyler, which, as it contains an account of the state of affairs here, I thought proper to transmit to your Excellency. Colonel Hausager carried the returns of this army to the War Office: I conclude they have been laid before Congress. The news of the great events that have passed, and are daily passing, in the neighbourhood of New-York, come to this army so broken, imperfect, and mutilated, that the emissaries of our enemies, taking advantage of our want of an account published by authority, grossly misrepresent these transactions to the troops here. In some critical moment, it might injure the publick cause. Would it not, sir, be proper, upon any great event taking place, to have a gazette published by order of Congress immediately despatched to the different States, and their armies upon the Continent?

I must again remind your Excellency of the total want of a train of field artillery in this department. Such a one as that I requested, in my letter of the 6th of August last, would be no more than what is absolutely necessary: there is not a single howitzer, or mortar of any kind, upon this ground. Had not some reason, which remains to be explained, prevented the approach of the enemy, we must have suffered exceedingly, perhaps been entirely ruined, by this deficiency; and to act offensively against the enemy in Canada is utterly impossible without a field train. The ammunition wanted in this department is particularly mentioned in my letter to General Schuyler of the 5th of September, a copy of which I enclosed your Excellency in my packet of the

Your Excellency will find in the packet an extract of Lieutenant Whitcomb's journal of his last scout to St. John's. I have taken Ensign and Quartermaster Saunders's parole, and ordered him and his servant, the Corporal, to Lancaster, in Pennsylvania. I must now beg leave to recommend Lieutenant Whitcomb as a very proper person to have the command of two independent companies of fifty men each, to be recruited by himself, and the officers to be commissioned agreeable to his recommendation. I never knew any man more capable of doing good service, in the ranging or scouting way, than Lieutenant Whitcomb; and his sobriety, honour, and truth, illustrate his military talents. I must also do justice to the merit and long service of Colonel Philip De Haas, by recommending him to Congress as deserving promotion. Colonel Enoch Poor, of New Hampshire, and Colonel John Paterson, of Massachusetts, are also deserving officers, worthy the notice of Congress. As numbers of field and other officers have died in the course of this campaign, I wish, if Congress think proper, that blank commissions were sent to me, to fill up in the manner the most beneficial for the publick service: you may be assured, sir, that is the only end I ever will have in view, in obeying their commands.

October 3.—My apprehensions for our fleet in the late storm were perfectly quieted by a letter I received last night from General Arnold, dated off Isle Valcour, the 1st instant. I find he had happily stationed the fleet in a situation where he rode out the gale in safety. One row-galley had joined the General. The two others, under General Waterbury's command, sailed yesterday, and must have reached the fleet this forenoon, as the wind has been fair ever since. The fourth row-galley arrived here last night from Skeensborough, and will be ready to sail in five or six days at farthest, for Isle Valcour. When this galley gets down the Lake, we have exerted all our possibilities to oppose the enemy in their approach by water.

This will be delivered to your Excellency by Lieutenant John Lucas, of Colonel Greaton's Regiment: he was principally employed last year at Cambridge, in the Continental store, under General Mifflin. I send him to Philadelphia, to forward up to Albany the clothing it may be the pleasure of Congress to order to be sent for this army; or to procure such a quantity of woollens, linens, and particularly shoes, as can be supplied from thence. Our troops are wretchedly in want of shoes.

I am your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,
HORATIO GATES.

To His Excellency John Hancock, Esq.

Head-Quarters, September 24, 1776.

(Parole, Horne's Hook.)

(Countersign, Hamilton.)

Captain Craig of the Second Battalion of Pennsylvanians, is appointed Lieutenant-Colonel, in the place of Colonel Wood, preferred.

Captain Butler is appointed Major of the same Battalion.

Captain P. Frazier, of the Fourth Battalion of Pennsylvanians, is appointed Major of the same, in place of Colonel Hausager, promoted.

Officer of the day to-morrow, Colonel Wheelock. Brigade-Major of the day, Brown.

Ephraim Carter is appointed an Ensign in the late Colonel Bedel's Regiment, in the room of Ensign F. Bayley, discharged.

After General Orders.—General St. Clair's Brigade to furnish daily at Head-Quarters, one Captain, two Subs, two Sergeants, two Corporals, one Drum, and forty-eight Privates, to serve as a fatigue party under the orders of the Deputy Quartermaster-General.

Head-Quarters, September 25, 1776.

(Parole, Ward.)

(Countersign, Boston.)

Various frauds, impositions, and abuses being every day committed by traders and hucksters coming to this camp, the Quartermaster-General and his assistant are immediately to regulate the prices to be paid for the several commodities brought to sell, particularly garden stuff, venison, cheese, butter, and all manner of eatables. For the future, all persons bringing any of the above articles immediately for sale, are to carry them to the foot of the glacis of the old fort, where the market is constantly to be held. Should any person or persons be detected monopolizing or forestalling the market, they will be punished by a Court-Martial, and have all their goods seized for the sick of the hospital. The market is to be opened every morning at eight o'clock, and to be allowed to continue till sunset.

Field officer of the day to-morrow, Lieutenant-Colonel Irvine. Brigade-Major of the day, Ryan.

After General Orders.—The Surgeons and Surgeons' Mates of all the Regiments to attend at the medicinal store to-morrow morning, between eight and ten o'clock, in order to receive their proportion of old linen, which is to be converted into lint, and returned to the store.

Head-Quarters, September 26, 1776.

(Parole, King's Bridge.)

(Countersign, Mifflin.)

Officer of the day for to-morrow, Lieutenant-Colonel Ogden. Brigade-Major of the day, Brown.

After General Orders.—Lieutenant-Colonel Johnson, President of the General Court-Martial being sick, Colonel Wayne is appointed President in his place. The Court to meet at nine o'clock to-morrow.

Head-Quarters, September 27, 1776.

(Parole, Jersey.)

(Countersign, Mercer.)

The Commissary will issue three sheep to each Regiment, and two to the corps of Artillery, to-morrow morning at ten o'clock.

The commanding officers of Regiments will see that the sick and weak soldiers are supplied with this refreshment. The Commissary is to reckon the sheep in the allowance of the Regiment, at their estimated weight.

Field officer of the day to-morrow, Lieutenant-Colonel Abijah Brown. Major of Brigade of the day, Ryan.

Head-Quarters, September 28, 1776.

(Parole, Augustine.)

(Countersign, Georgia.)

The following promotions are ordered to take place in Colonel Reed's Regiment, viz:

Ensign Burton to be Second Lieutenant, vice Lieutenant Thompson, promoted.

Sergeant Johnson to be Ensign, vice Ensign Burton, promoted.

Ensign Cook to be Second Lieutenant, vice Lieutenant Pratt, deceased.

Sergeant Green to be Ensign, vice Ensign Cook, advanced.
In Colonel Porter's Regiment: Quartermaster P. Bishop to be First Lieutenant, vice Lieutenant Pool, dead.

There was an omission in the orders of the 24th instant. It should have been expressed, that Lieutenant-Colonel Craig and Major Butler were appointed by the most honourable the Continental Congress, and Major Frazer nominated by the General until the pleasure of Congress is known.

Mr. Christopher Joseph Delezeune is appointed an assistant Engineer under Col. Baldwin. He is to be obeyed as such.

Whereas, either led by curiosity, or from some sinister design, many persons intermix with this army, continue therewith as long as they find convenient, and again depart without having any certificate from the Committee of Safety of the place where they belong, or a pass from Head-Quarters here, the General orders that any person not properly belonging to this army, who shall be found to have been within the limits of this encampment above the space of one hour, without having given in his name and business, either at Head-Quarters, or to a field officer of some of the regiments, and obtained a proper certificate thereof, shall be confined, tried by a General Court-Martial, and punished as the nature of the offence shall seem to deserve. The General expects all officers will be careful in discovering such delinquents.

Field officer of the day to-morrow, Lieutenant-Colonel Leonard. Brigade-Major of the day, Brown.

Head-Quarters, September 29, 1776.

(Parole, Deane.)

(Countersign, Hartford.)

The Regiments will deliver in their pay-abstracts to-morrow at orderly time, agreeable to the General Orders of the 19th instant.

Mr. Commissary Avery has orders to send directly from Saratoga one thousand bushels of turnips and potatoes, which will be served out to the troops in due proportion, upon their arrival at the provision store.

The two hundred bushels of onions just brought to the carrying-place at Lake George, are to be one half of them sold at the market upon the glacis of the old Fort, and the other half at the market place in the front of Colonel Patterson's Regiment, upon Mount Independence.

Lieutenant-Colonel Benjamin Brown Field officer of the day to-morrow. Brigade-Major of the day, Ryan.

Head-Quarters, September 30, 1776.

(Parole, France.)

(Countersign, Jefferson.)

The Commissary is immediately to issue one-half gill of rum to every non-commissioned officer and soldier now in camp.

It appearing upon a candid examination that the onions brought from Weathersfield, by Connecticut, have cost Mr. Sedgwick upwards of ninety-five pounds lawful money, transporting from thence, he is therefore permitted to sell the said onions at twenty shillings, New-York currency, per bushel, and no more.

No Field officer, nor any officer subordinate to them, is to presume to confine any of the Issuing Commissaries; when the Commissaries are guilty of any breach of order or duty, complaint is to be made in writing to the Commanding General, or the Deputy Quartermaster-General who will immediately take proper measures to bring the offenders to justice.

Lost last Friday, a silver watch, nigh the store at the head of the wharf; whoever has found the same and will return it to Lieutenant Smith, in Colonel Whitcomb's Regiment, shall have four dollars reward.

Field officer of the day to-morrow, Lieutenant-Colonel Craig; Brigade-Major of the day, Brown.

HORATIO GATES.

By the above General Return, it will appear the numbers that were necessary for the defence of Ticonderoga last year. It should be observed that this was the exact state of the Army about twelve days before General Carleton landed at Crown Point. H. G.

N. B. Dayton's, (not in this Return,) Van Schaick's, Van Dyck's, Wynkoop's, and half Mott's, were upon the Mohawk and Hudson Rivers; Irvine's at Crown Point, but, upon the enemy's approach, withdrawn.

GENERAL GATES TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Tyonderoga, September 30, 1776.

SIR: Your letter of the 23d instant is now before me. The want of shingle-nails distresses us greatly, as we can not cover our guard rooms, &c., without them, and the season grows colder and colder ever day. Spikes, we have too many. Some barrels came yesterday, ten I think. Colonel Lewis tells me they were not more than two-thirds full. Is this owing to theft, or are they sent in that manner? It is quite unnecessary to send any more of that article. Iron we also abound with. I cannot think we can use the half of what we have this winter. The barracks you mention have been preparing a long time; three are already completely finished. There will be no want of good shelter for a large and strong garrison, provided the shingle-nails are forwarded in due season. What in the name of honesty is doing with the boards that must be sawed at Cheshire's? We get none of them here. I wish you would send an officer you can depend upon, to superintend that business.

Now I mention Cheshire's, is it not astonishing that the road is not yet finished from thence, for the only five miles there was to do in July last, when you and I rode that way? And we are to this moment obliged to supply the troops and artificers, at Skeensborough, with provisions from here. I always thought the large store built at Cheshire's was intended to supply the troops this way. That is a much cheaper and better communication than this by Lake George. I wish you would order up all the men of the York regiments you have to spare, to finish the road to Cheshire's, that the proper use may be made of that communication. The New-England Militia will not work properly on that road. Could not a number of the Canadians, now at Albany, be employed in this business? They are excellent fellows at labour.

Commissary Avery has my orders to purchase all the turnips and potatoes you will supply us with from Saratoga. The cordage you mention is arrived, but General Waterbury is greatly disappointed in not receiving the cables. The galleys must sail with such as are to be had here. Better shall be sent them the moment they come to my hands. We are industrious in repairing the old fort, the stone redoubt at the east point of Tyonderoga, and constructing the outline of a strong fort upon Mount Independence. Preparations are also making to place the fleet in security for the winter; these are works which keep us all employed, the sick and maligners excepted, and they many more than they ought to be.

Messrs. Rensselaer & Taylor have sent shirts, &c., for the troops here, without naming the price, which causes murmuring, and prevents the officers and men from taking goods. I desire you will order Mr. Taylor to send without delay the price he charges for each particular article he has sent here.

The powder, lead, flints, and musket cartridge-paper wrote for so long ago, are not even in part arrived. The large demand supplied to the fleet, reduces our magazine so much, that should the fleet, after expending their ammunition, be obliged to retire, we shall not have any thing like sufficient to make a proper defence here. This should be seriously attended to, and not a moment more lost in furnishing the quantity demanded in my letter to you of the 5th of this instant.

Lieutenant-Colonel Buel must have imposed exceedingly upon your friendship, or you would never have granted him a furlough. Colonel Burrell has for some weeks been sent home in a very bad state of health, and his regiment in the utmost want of a Field officer to command it. Colonel Buel boasted here he had served nine campaigns without ever being in action, having always had the address to get employed in some publick work remote from danger. Such a subject deserves for once to be made to do his duty.

I am informed the fourth row-galley is ready to be launched, the whole of the different gangs of ship-carpenters being consolidated into one body to finish her. Is it not the intention of Congress to continue to increase our fleet with the utmost expedition? If it is, more carpenters should be forthwith engaged, and that work carried with all the spirit and industry you are capable of. The agua has so worn down the carpenters sent by order of Congress, that more cannot be expected from them this season; therefore, to continue this important work, more must be supplied.

I earnestly wish the Commissioners for settling the publick accounts, who are now at Albany, might be sent here immediately, as there are demands upon the United States, and several officers in publick stations here whose accounts cannot be too soon adjusted.

You will consider of the covering that will be necessary for the officers and soldiers to be quartered in Albany and Schenectady for the winter, and if any more is wanted than can at present be provided, you will give orders accordingly. As there can be no serious attack upon this side of the Mohawk river before next summer, you will as soon as possible order Colonel Dayton's regiment to this post, they being enlisted to serve until next March, and being almost a complete regiment. They are the properest to make a part of the winter garrison here. The New-York regiments and the Militia of the Mohawk river, must be more than sufficient to guard the western frontier.

Enclosed is a copy of General Arnold's letter to me of the 21st instant. His demands are complied with as far as in my power, by the Trumbull galley, Captain Warner, which sailed last Thursday evening to join the fleet. General Waterbury sails with the two other galleys to-morrow morning early, and the schooner Liberty will immediately after proceed to the fleet. The heavy storm last night would fill me with great anxiety had not General Arnold, as you will see in his letter, assured me that he had a safe harbour within his reach.

HORATIO GATES.

To Major-General Schuyler.

GENERAL GATES TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Ticonderoga, September 30, 1776.

SIR: I am just now honoured by the receipt of your Excellency's letter of the 25th instant, from Lebanon. I am happy to find your Excellency agree with me in sentiment in respect to the officers who ought to have commanded in the Continental Regiments, intended in future to compose the army of the United States. It shall not be my fault if your Excellency is not acquainted in time with the merits and demerits of those from the State of Connecticut, who have served under my command this campaign. If the worthy are not regarded, and the unworthy disregarded, the consequences are evident.

I am exceedingly ignorant of what has passed at New-York, having never received a line from General Washington, since fighting took place there. And although Congress pays some attention to my demands, I have not received a line from the President since that of the 8th of July.

The plan for raising the new army is not yet come to my hands. That is a business of the last importance. I sent Mr. Hancock some time ago a scheme of mine for the establishment thereof.

General Waterbury sails to-morrow morning with the two remaining row-galleys. Captain Warner, in the Trumbull, must have joined our fleet off Isle Valcour on Saturday. We had a violent storm last night; but as General Arnold told me in his letter of the 21st instant, that he had a secure harbour within his reach, I am not very apprehensive for the safety of the fleet.

I have ordered a bridge to be built over Otter Creek, at Rutland, and a good road to be cut from the east side of Mount Independence, to join the road at Castleton. The bridge is almost finished, and the road will in about a week be completed thither. Your State and that of Massachusetts will do themselves and the publick great service, in making the roads that lead westward to Rutland as good as possible. For further particulars, I must refer your Excellency to Colonel Trumbull, who writes by this conveyance.

With great respect, I am, sir, your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,

HORATIO GATES.

To Governour Trumbull.

COLONEL HARTLEY TO GENERAL GATES.

Crown-Point, September 30, 1776.

HONOURED SIR: I mentioned to you in my last, that I had sent the boat and crew back towards the fleet, who had got frightened at the firing of guns and returned. The men just now arrived here. My boat is not yet come. The vessels of our fleet were firing at a mark, and the enemy were rejoicing, or cleaning their artillery, at the Isle Noix, on the day that the firing was heard. The Sergeant can inform you of the rest.

Nothing remarkable has happened here since my last. I promised myself the pleasure of seeing you here to-day, but was disappointed. We had some good venison provided.

I am, sir, with the greatest regard and respect, your most humble servant,

THOS. HARTLEY.

To General Gates.

P. S. I would be exceedingly glad to hear what has happened at New-York.

CAPTAIN FASSETT TO GENERAL GATES.

Monkton, September 30, 1776.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOUR: On the 25th instant, a party of Indians came within one mile of Deacon Rude's, and took a man and his two sons prisoners. About the same time in the day, was discovered another party of Indians, seven or eight miles distant, by a party of our men. We were then building and preparing in the best manner for our defence. Our men seeing the situation they were in, paraded themselves and determined to leave the ground at all events. We tried all that lay in our power to keep them on the ground, till we could send word to your Honour, but could not prevail with them. They said they were willing to guard the frontiers; but, they said, your Honour did not know our situation; they said they had as good die one way as another. They marched in the night from the ground to Williston, across the river, one mile and a half, where we desired they would stay a few days, which they did. We sent out scouts, sent your Honour an express, and sent another down on the Grants, &c.

On the 28th instant, the men paraded themselves again, and resolved as is in the within writing.

We have marched with the families and some of their effects to this place, have no provisions valuable; and what to do we know not. But we know there are evil, designing men, which we understand are gone to see your Honour. Perhaps they may give a false representation of our case; but hope your Honour will wait patiently till there is a true representation given of the case.

The bearer, Lieutenant Lyon, can give a true representation, as he is knowing to the whole affair, which we hope will give your Honour satisfaction.

We are your Honour's most obedient, and very humble servants,

JOHN FASSETT, { Captains.
JONA. FASSETT, }

To the Hon. Horatio Gates, Major-General and Commander of the Northern Department.

At a Council of War holden at Williston, at the house of Colonel Chittenden, September 28, 1776, Members present: Captain Jonathan Fassett, President; Captain John Fassett, Lieutenant Rufus Perry, Lieutenant Jonathan Wright, Lieutenant Mathew Lyon, Clerk.

It was motioned by the President, that the soldiers that should have been under the command of those officers have paraded themselves this morning, and make the following proposals to the officers, viz:

Firstly, That the officers take their command in their proper stations on the following terms, viz: That they will immediately march the men off Onion River, to the southward to some place on Otter Creek, in order to defend the frontiers of the New-Hampshire Grants, which was, as they supposed, the extent of their being raised, and the General's being requested to encourage the raising them.

Secondly, That they will resign the command on no other terms.

Thirdly, That the officers may have half an hour to consider of those proposals.

Fourthly, That in case the officers shall refuse those proposals, that each soldier will immediately march to his respective home.

Resolved first, That we will accept of those proposals offered by the soldiery, in our present poor situation, on condition they resign to justice the leaders of the mutiny which has taken the command out of the officers' hands, at Head-Quarters, at Deacon Rude's house, at Jerico.

Resolved, second, That we choose Captain John Fassett to treat with the soldiery on the foregoing subject.

Captain John Fassett after making application to the soldiery paraded, he makes the following return, viz: That the soldiery will not at the risk of their lives deliver up their leaders, as it was a unanimous thing.

Having taken into consideration the poor, weak situation we are in—officers without soldiers, and soldiers without officers in an enemy's land—savages all round us:

Resolved, thirdly, That we will take the command on the terms proposed by the soldiery.

The above is a true copy. Test:

MATHEW LYON, Clerk.

COLONEL LIVINGSTON TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Saybrook, September 30, 1776.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOUR: I had this day determined to embark, with my little detachment, for Long-Island; but the desertion of several of my men, who are supposed to be gone for New-London, in order to engage on board the privateer fitting out for that place, has prevented me. I am informed some of the officers intended for those vessels have given our men encouragement to desert, having asserted at this place that they would protect them from the resentment of their officers in case they would leave them and engage in the sea service. I have transmitted General Washington a copy of this letter, with an account of this matter, that he may, if my detachment is broken to pieces by this means, be acquainted that it is not owing to my negligence. I send this by Lieutenant Smith, who has my orders to apprehend those deserters wherever they shall be found. It would be an addition to the many obligations conferred upon me, if it should please your Honour to grant a warrant to search those vessels for the persons we are in quest of.

I should have no objection to any number of men being drafted from the detachment for that service or any other, provided it was thought necessary by General Washington; but cannot help thinking it a great imposition, after having by his order inlisted and with pains disciplined them, to have them, just when they are needed to carry into execution his orders, taken from me by such methods as these. I would not for a moment continue in the land service was this allowed of. I have entered it merely to serve my country, but see plainly that it will be impossible for me to carry into execution my resolution with effect if the officers of the navy are suffered to spirit our men away by such low artifices as these. I should not much mind the desertion of a few worthless fellows, was it not for the influence their bad example may have upon others. A spirit of desertion is now among my men, and if passed over with impunity will, I fear, have bad consequences.

I remain, with respect and esteem, your Honour's most obedient, humble servant,

HENRY B. LIVINGSTON.

To His Honour Governour Trumbull.

CHRISTOPHER LEFFINGWELL TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Norwich, September 30, 1776.

HONoured SIR: In pursuance of orders received from your Honour and from Colonel Wolcott, in conformity thereto, I have been with my company and twelve men from Colonel Wolcott's, with what shipping I could find, to Sag-Harbour, where I was joined by a company from Colonel Livingston, with which we have taken off most of the fat cattle that was left in the Hamptons and on Montauk, as also most of the sheep, having left a sufficiency of fat beef and mutton and the milch cows, for the use of the inhabitants that tarry on the island, as also the greater part of the lean and young cattle.

The vessels I took up at Norwich and New-London brought off seven hundred and ninety sheep, one hundred and fifty-two head of horned cattle, three families, furniture, &c., &c. The sheep and cattle have been delivered to the Committee of Norwich. Several of the owners are now there taking charge of their own. Others are expected soon, but probably there will be a number that no owner will appear for this some time.

The Committee of Norwich have never received any request from the Convention of the State of New-York, neither had they seen the resolution of that Convention recommending the removal of the women, children, stock, &c., until I shew a copy of it to them this day. They were proposing to advertise the remaining cattle and sheep for sale at publick auction; but as it is new business, and they are not invested with such authority as they could wish, they desire to be instructed by your Honour. A great number of the inhabitants of Easthampton own they have taken the oath of allegiance, and signed the roll of submission; many of which have since come off, and more intend coming. They are threshing their English grain, and are very desirous of getting their Indian corn, if possible. My company were the last troops on the island, Colonel Livingston's men having embarked and sailed before we had taken all the stock on board. The officers and men have exerted themselves beyond what is common, and are much fatigued; hope your Honour will excuse them from any further immediate service, that they may have time to recruit, except something very special should require their aid.

I have paid some of the masters and people I employed in the shipping, as I promised them their money immediately on their return. The owners I have paid nothing; wish to be directed how to settle with them, and advised how they shall be paid, and when, as they will be calling on me.

Beg leave to subscribe, with great esteem, your Honour's most obedient, humble servant,

CHRIST. LEFFINGWELL.

To Governour Trumbull.

N. B. The vessels employed by Colonel Livingston imagine must have carried off double the number of stock and ten times as many of the inhabitants as those I employed.

C. L.

COMMODORE HOPKINS TO THE MARINE COMMITTEE.

Providence, September 30, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Enclosed you have a copy of the account Captain Whipple gave me of his cruise, who arrived here yesterday in the Columbus, and a copy of a letter I received this day from Mr. Goddard. The Columbus is very foul; shall order her to Newport the first fair wind to clean. The Hampden and the Alfred are ready all but men, which I have not been able to get a sufficient number yet. The new ships are down the river with about one hundred men each, but as there are so many privateers fitting out, which give more encouragement as to shares, it makes it difficult to man the Continental vessels. There are some small-arms arrived here belonging to the Continent, imported by Messrs. Nicholas, Brown, & Co.; should be glad of an order for them for the new ships, as I expect to get orders from the Committee of this State to enlist men out of their troops when they meet, which will be this week.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient, humble servant,

E. HOPKINS.

To the Hon. John Hancock, Esq., President of the Marine Committee, at Philadelphia.

GENERAL WARD TO MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL.

Boston, September 30, 1776.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOURS: As your Honours have thought proper to remove from the Heights on Dorchester Point those cannon which I had placed there, I must entreat you to see that those Heights are supplied with other proper cannon, and well furnished with ammunition. They are important posts, and ought not to be destitute of proper ordnance and ordnance stores one day. It gives me great uneasiness to think they have been so long destitute, and not in my power to furnish them. If we should be attacked when they are in such situation, the consequence will be bad, and great blame will fall somewhere, and that it may not justly come on me I give you this notice.

I am your Honours' humble servant,

ARTEMAS WARD.

To the honourable Board.

CAPTAIN J. P. JONES TO THE MARINE COMMITTEE.

Providence, off the Isle of Sable, September 30, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I had the honour of writing to you on the 27th ultimo, per the brigantine Britannia, a whaler, which I sent in under the care of Lieutenant Grinnell; likewise 4th current, per the brigantine Sea-Nymph, which I sent in under the care of Mr. W. Hopkins; also 7th current, per the brigantine Favourite, which I sent in under the care of Mr. J. Vesey. The Sea-Nymph was from Barbadoes for London; the Favourite, from Antigua for Liverpool.

From that time till the 14th I cruised without seeing any vessels. I then spoke the Columbus's prize, the ship Royal Exchange, bound for Boston. By this time my water and wood began to run short, which induced me to stand to the northward for some port of Nova-Scotia or Cape Breton. I had besides a prospect of destroying the English shipping in these parts. The 16th and 17th I had a very heavy gale from the northwest, which obliged me to dismount all my guns, and strike every thing I could into the hold. The 19th I made the Isle of Sable, and on the 20th, being between it and the main, I met with an English frigate, with a merchant ship under her convoy. I had hove to, to give my people an opportunity of taking fish, when the frigate came in sight directly to windward, and was so good-natured as to save me the trouble of chasing him, by bearing down the instant he discovered us. When he came within cannon shot, I made sail to try his speed quartering, and, finding that I had the advantage, shortened sail to give him a wild goose chase, and tempt him to throw away powder and shot. Accordingly a curious mock engagement was maintained between us for eight hours, till night, with her sable curtain, put an end to this famous exploit of English knight-errantry.

He excited my contempt so much by his continual firing at more than twice the proper distance, that when he rounded to, to give his broadside, I ordered my Marine officer to return the salute with only a single musket. We saw him next morning standing to the westward, and it is not unlikely that he hath told his friends at Halifax what a tripping he gave to a "Rebel privateer" that he found infesting the coast.

That night I was off Canso harbour, and sent my boat in to gain information. On the morning of the 22d, I anchored in the harbour, and before night got off a sufficiency of wood and water. Here I recruited several men, and finding three English schooners in the harbour, we that night burnt one, sunk another, and in the morning carried off the third, which we had loaded with what fish was found in the other two.

At Canso, I received information of nine sail of ships, brigs, and schooners, in the harbours of Narrowhook and Peter de Groat, at a small distance from each other in the Island of Madame, on the east side of the bay of Canso. These I determined to take or destroy, and to do it effectually. Having brought a shallop for the purpose from Canso, I despatched her with twenty-five armed men, to Narrowhook, while my boat went well manned and armed to Peter de Groat, and I kept off and on with the sloop to keep them in awe in both places. The expedition succeeded to my wish. So effectual was the surprise, and so general the panick, that numbers yielded to a handful without opposition, and never was a bloodless victory more complete.

As the shipping that were loaded were all unrigged, I had recourse to an expedient for despatch: I promised to leave the late proprietors vessels sufficient to carry them home to the Island of Jersey, on condition that they immediately fitted out and rigged such of the rest as might be required. This condition was readily complied with, and they assisted my people with unremitting application till the business was completed; but the evening of the 25th brought with it a violent gale of wind with rain, which obliged me to anchor in the entrance of Narrowshook, where I rode it out with both anchors and whole cables ahead. Two of our prizes, the ship Alexander and schooner Sea-Flower, had come out before the gale began. The ship anchored under a point, and rode it out, but the schooner after anchoring, drove and ran ashore. She was a valuable prize, being loaded with oil; but as we could not get her off, I next day ordered her to be set on fire. The schooner Ebenezer, taken at Canso, was driven on a reef of sunken rocks, and there totally lost, the people having with difficulty saved themselves on a raft.

Towards noon, on the 26th, the gale began to abate. The ship Adventure being unrigged and almost empty, I ordered her to be burnt. I put to sea in the afternoon with the brigantine Kingston Packet, and being joined by the Alexander, went off Peter de Groat. I had sent an officer round in a shallop to order the vessels in that harbour to meet me in the offing, and he now joined me in the brigantine Success, and informed me that Mr. Gallagher (the officer who had commanded the party in that harbour) had left it, at the beginning of the gale, in the brigantine Defiance, and taken with him my boat and all the people. I am unwilling to believe that this was done with an evil intention. I rather think he concluded the boat and people necessary to assist the vessel in getting out, the navigation being difficult, and the wind at the time unfavourable; and when the gale was begun, I know it was impossible for them to return. Thus weakened, I could attempt nothing more. With one of our brigs and the sloop I could have scoured the coast and secured the destruction of a large coal fleet that was loading near Lewisburgh, with the Savage only to protect them.

The fishery at Canso and Madame is effectually destroyed; out of twelve sail which I took there, I only left two small schooners and one small brig to convey a number of unfortunate men, not short of three hundred, across the Western ocean. Had I gone farther, I should have stood chargeable with inhumanity. In my ticklish situation, it would have been madness to lose a moment. I therefore hastened to the southward, to convey my prizes out of harm's way; Dawson's brig having been within fifteen leagues of the scene of action during the whole time.

On the 27th I saw two sail, which we took for Quebeck transports. Unable to resist the temptation, having appointed a three days' rendezvous on the southwest part of the Isle of Sable, I gave chase, but could not come up before they got into Lewisburg, a place where I had reason to expect a far superiour force, and therefore returned, and this day joined my prizes at the rendezvous.

If my poor endeavour should meet with your approbation, I shall be greatly rewarded in the pleasing reflection of having endeavoured to do my duty. I have had so much stormy weather and been obliged, on divers occasions, to carry so much sail, that the sloop is in no condition to continue long out of port. I am, besides, very weak-handed, and the men I have are scarce able to stand the deck for want of clothing, the weather here being very cold. These reasons induce me to bend my thoughts towards the Continent. I do not expect to meet with much, if any success, on my return; but if fortune should insist on sending a transport or so in my way, weak as I am, I will endeavour to pilot him safe. It is but justice to add that my officers and men behaved incomparably well on the above occasion.

I have the honour to be, with much respect and grateful esteem, gentlemen, your most obliged and very humble servant,

JNO. P. JONES.

To the honourable the Marine Committee.

Extract from the Minutes:

G. DUVAL, Clerk.

Depositions against TOWNSEND and SCARBROUGH.

September 12, 1776.

SIR: Upon request of your wife, I was this day going to a Magistrate, to give my deposition respecting your case; but am informed the Magistrate will not take it, but refers me to the Committee, and time will not permit the calling, and my going before the Committee for that purpose, at this time.

I am informed that you charge my oath against you as the principal cause of your present troubles. This is to assure you that I never to my knowledge swore an oath against you that could, in my opinion, injure you, was it fairly laid before the honourable Convention; nor indeed could I, with truth. I cannot now charge my memory what the several questions was that were asked me about you in Committee, or what my particular answers, if I said any thing that was construed to show that you intended to go on board any of the fleet under the command of Lord Dunmore, introduce the King's forces, or raise an army to join them. I do now solemnly declare that I never intended so to be understood, and, if called upon, would, at any time, make affidavit of it. But, as I said before, I scarce know the particulars of my oath before the Committee, as being a close prisoner, and under fear and apprehension. Yet, be assured, I was not so scared or surprised as to have sworn what I understand you have heard of.

Your obedient servant,
To Mr. William Barkley Townsend.

JOSIAH ROBINS.

November 16, 1775.

The Deposition of Edward Pettitt, being of full age, deposed and saith, That he lay at Josiah Robins's the night before last, and waking before day, about an hour, (as he apprehended,) he heard some person come to the house, on which Mr. Robins got up and asked him to sit down by the fire; upon which he heard the said Robins and the person then come talking, but did not give attention till he heard the said Robins say, "talk easy, Pettitt is up stairs;" upon which this deponent got up and went down immediately, and asked who had been there so early, and Robins said, "Benjamin Butler." This deponent said he was early. Robins said he only came on an errand, and was gone, and said he was afraid the horses were in the field, and went out hastily; upon which the said Pettitt told him if he would drive them up his horse would follow, and then went to one of his neighbours. When he came back, said Robins was gone. He then asked Mrs. Robins where her husband was. She was slow in answering till she sent the boys out, and then told this deponent that her husband was gone to William Barkley Townsend's, that Levin Townsend had been on board the man-of-war and brought powder and shot enough to his father, and what they called Tories were all meeting in order to have it delivered, as it would not be safe to keep it in one place, and when they had divided the same they were to give the man-of-war notice, and he was to send up to their assistance, that the matter might be put an end to in a short time—some time between this and Christmas.

Mary Robbins, wife of Josiah Robbins, being sworn on the Holy Evangelists of Almighty God, deposed and saith: That on the 15th of November, 1775, in the morning of the same day, Benjamin Butler, came to the house of her said husband, and inquired whether there was any person in his house except his family; her husband made answer that there was; upon which they went out, and after some time her husband came in, and told her he was going to a certain William Barcklay Townsend's; that a certain Levin Townsend had been down to Norfolk, on board the man-of-war, and had brought up a quantity of ammunition, and that all those who were for the King were to go down to the said William B. Townsend's, to get their share of the ammunition; and that the said Levin Townsend had brought a paper from on board the said man-of-war that they were to sign; and that the said Levin Townsend was to set out this day on his return to the man-of-war; and that if there was a sufficient number of signers to the aforesaid paper, they were to have assistance immediately from the said man-of-war.

November 25, 1775.

Josiah Robins, of lawful age, being called upon by the Committee of Worcester County, deposed and saith: That on Wednesday morning, the 15th instant, some little time before day, came Benjamin Butler to his house, and after he had been there some time, he asked this deponent if there was any body there besides his own family, and he made answer that Pettitt was up stairs; he then gave this deponent a touch and desired him to walk out, and upon his going out with said Butler, said Butler told this deponent that Levin Townsend had come home, and that it was said that he had been on board the man-of-war at Norfolk, and that he had brought salt and ammunition, and it was to be had there, and requested this deponent to bring his gun as there was to be a muster there; in consequence of which this deponent went immediately off to Townsend's, and arrived there, as he believes, about nine o'clock, at which time there was about fifteen people, some of whom were armed; and that Levin Townsend asked this deponent, as this deponent believes, to go up stairs; and then told him he must swear to keep secret what should be discovered to him, and at the same time asked him if he did not want salt; upon this deponent asked him where the salt was to be had; he told him it was no matter, and immediately swore him; that this deponent heard William B. Townsend say that salt would not do without ammunition; and that deponent heard some of the company say, that they heard Levin Townsend say, that when they returned they would not come alone.

Joshua Selby, of lawful age, being called upon by the Committee, deposed as follows: That he was at William B. Townsend's on Sunday, the 12th instant, when he heard Levin Townsend say that he had been on board the man-of-war five days; that Mr. William Allen was at the said William B. Townsend's, and endeavoured to persuade him to appear before the Committee; that said Townsend declared that he would die before he would be taken, or submit to the punishment which he supposed the Committee would inflict on him; and further this deponent saith, that early on the Wednesday morning following, Benjamin Butler came to this deponent, and asked him to go down to William B. Townsend's, that there was salt to be got there cheaper than it could be got at Snow-Hill; that Butler told him the orders they had, was to carry loaded guns; that this deponent accordingly went to Townsend's, and when he got there, he was carried up stairs, and sworn to keep secret by Levin Townsend, (son of William B. Townsend;) that on his being sworn, he asked said Townsend for what purpose it was? Townsend replied, to keep secrecy that they were going for salt. This deponent asked when they were going? Townsend replied, it was no matter when, if you will go with us, I will tell you. This deponent replied he could not go, for that he could not leave home. That this deponent then asked him (Townsend) what he would do if he brought salt, and the people attempted to take it from him; that Townsend replied, he should not come without help. That this deponent saw the above-mentioned Levin Townsend at a desk, as he supposed, taking down the names of the people who were to go with him for salt, and that the following persons were attending the said Townsend, as this deponent apprehended, giving in their names for that purpose, to wit: William Dickerson, Benjamin Selby, Thomas Moore, Thomas Cluff, Hugh Cestry, and Solomon Butler. And this deponent further saith, that he hath not seen any of those persons since the time above-mentioned, and supposes they are gone on the aforesaid design.

William Townsend, being called upon by the Committee of Worcester County, deposeth and saith: That on Wednesday, the 15th day of November, it being the day before William B. Townsend and company embarked, he was at William B. Townsend's house where he believed there might be sixty or seventy men, many of whom were armed. That William Barclay Townsend and son Levin told this deponent that Luke Townsend was to procure a load of salt, ready for them at Norfolk, and asked this deponent if he was willing to go along with them for it. That it was necessary to keep it a secret from the Committee, and for that purpose Levin Townsend administered an oath of secrecy to this deponent. That he believes the same oath was administered to numbers that were there that day. That the said William B. Townsend said he wanted friends enough to attend him as might prevent the salt from being destroyed. And this deponent further heard Levin Townsend say he was on board the man-of-war at Norfolk. That he, this deponent, has often heard the said William B. Townsend say, he would never submit to the measures of the Committee.

Samuel Parker, of lawful age, being sworn on the Holy Evangelists of Almighty God, deposeth and saith: That Benjamin Schochley met with this deponent at John Smith's about a fortnight ago, and requested him to meet Captain Schoolfield's company at Nasaingo Bridge, and to carry his gun and ammunition with him; that this deponent asked said Schochley what he wanted him to go for; that Schochley told him he could not tell for what reason; that he had opened it to him as far as he dared; that accordingly this deponent went to the place aforesaid, with his gun, where he met with about fifty men, chiefly armed with guns; that Josiah Ward met the company at the bridge, and told them they were desired to go down to William B. Townsend's; that some of the company asked said Ward on what account they were to go down; that he told William B. Townsend requested they would go down, for that he expected his house would be to be pulled down; and said informed them that Captain Schoolfield's company were at Townsend's; and that this deponent saith that the said Ward informed them that the reason of the said company being called to said Townsend's was to protect him, which protection this deponent supposes meant that he was to be defended if he should be sent for by the Committee; and this deponent says that he proceeded no farther than the bridge aforesaid, but immediately returned home.

Philip Rain, of lawful age, being sworn, saith: That a conversation happened between him and Staunton Atkins, and that said Atkins told him that he must make his will, and said deponent asked said Atkins if he was about to die; said Atkins said he "did not know, for there was like to be war;" and said deponent asked him, "Where?" and said Atkins replied, "With the people in the country." This deponent asked if he was down at William B. Townsend's, and said Atkins replied, "Yes." This deponent also asked if he carried his gun with him, and he replied, "Yes," and further told him there was about seventy guns at said Townsend's, and at the same time; and this deponent asked if his gun was loaded, and he answered, "Yes;" and this deponent also asked what was the purpose of his going down there, and said Atkins replied that it was "to defend William B. Townsend;" and the question being asked by this deponent whom it was he understood the said Townsend was to be defended against, said he "believed it was against the proceedings of the Committee."

November 17, 1775.

William Handy, of lawful age, being called upon by the Committee of Worcester County, deposeth and saith: That he had frequently conversed with Mr. Abraham Gibbs upon the subject of the unhappy disputes now existing between Great Britain and the American Colonies; that the said Gibbs, some time last fall, winter or spring, he can't particularly recollect which, this deponent heard the said Gibbs say that the Congress he thought either ought or would lose their heads; and in case the Ministerial troops were sent over here to lay their hands upon Congress, that he, the said Gibbs, would be one of the first men who would join them; but that he has heard the said Gibbs long since speak much in favour of the American cause, and at different times since he has heard Mr. Gibbs speak against the cause, and condemn the conduct of those who were friends to the cause; and that the latest conversation this deponent had with the said Gibbs, as he believes, was about three weeks ago, he heard the said Gibbs then express himself very inimical, although not with that degree of violence or rancour as he had first heard him express himself respecting the Congress.

The deposition of Barclay Townsend, of lawful age, being called upon by the Committee of Worcester County, deposeth and saith: That some little time since the rising of the last Convention of this Province, this deponent was informed that some of the company that Benjamin Shockley had enrolled, had desired him to attend at the house of the said Shockley for the purpose of exercising and instructing a number of people in the military exercise; that this deponent accordingly attended, and when he came he had exercised some of the people who were there; Shockley proposed to this deponent that he would be their Captain, but, upon this deponent's refusal, also asked if he would be their Lieutenant, which he also refused, upon which said Shockley then told this deponent he had come as a spy; he also asked this deponent if he had seen their articles; he said he had; he then asked him how he liked them; why, he said, he did not know; he found they were something like the association, or articles of his company; they were for the King and country. "Yes," said Shockley, "but we are against Boston." That Shockley afterwards insisted upon this deponent's hearing the articles read, and when they were read, they all huzzaed for the King, and pulled off their hats; this deponent also cried, Amen, and said he could huzza for their King, but as he did not pull off his hat, said Shockley seemed to be displeased, and that this deponent was under apprehensions he was unsafe in their company, and immediately came off.

The deposition of Isaac Hammond, of lawful age, being called upon by the Committee of Worcester County, deposeth and saith: That about four weeks ago he went to a certain Henry Parker's, where he understood that a number of people were to assemble for the purpose of entering into an association contrary to the General Association of this Province, and that he believes there might be thirty or forty people, and that a certain article of agreement or association was handed about for the people to sign; the substance of which this deponent understood was, that all those persons who signed the same bound themselves to stand together in behalf of their King, and to oppose the measures of the Committee, and to support each other, and be in readiness in twenty-four hours' warning to rescue any one of their number who should happen to be called before the Committee, and to resist any attempts to apprehend or seize any of their said number; and that there was about seventy who had subscribed the same, and that a certain Benjamin Shockley was principally active in handing about the said Association and encouraging the people to sign the same, and advised them not to sign the General Association of the Province.

ACCOMACK County set.:

The deposition of Stephen Riley, aged twenty-eight years, or thereabouts, being duly sworn on the Holy Evangelists of Almighty God, deposeth and saith: That on Thursday, the 12th of November, 1775, being at Old Point Comfort, he went on board of Edmund Scarborough's schooner and arrived that night at the said Scarborough's house, where he heard William Scarborough tell a number at Edmund Scarborough's, that the Governour asked him who were the leading men of the Eastern Shore? and the said Scarborough told him, Thomas Teackle was one, and that if the Governour would send him a cutter with eight men he would convey them to the said Thomas Teackle's in the night, that they might take him, the said Thomas Teackle, and carry him on board of the said cutter: and further this deponent saith that the said Scarborough said that if the Governour would send him a tender, with thirty men and an officer or two, that he would pilot them to every leading man's house in the County, and carry them to the Governour; and further, this deponent saith that the said Scarborough said at the same time that the Governour told him if he would bring him fifteen men who would 'list freely under him he should have a Captain's commission; if twenty, a Major's; if thirty, a Colonel's. This deponent further saith that the Governour told said Scarborough if he would bring any kind of provisions he should be paid for it. Further this deponent saith not.

Barkley White being sworn on the Holy Evangelists of Almighty God, deposeth and saith: That Levin Townsend sent for this deponent, and that this deponent accordingly went, and that when he came to William B. Townsend's that said Levin Townsend told this deponent that if he would go with him to the mouth of Potowmack river that he might have what salt he wanted very reasonable; upon which this deponent agreed to go; and on their arrival at the mouth of the river aforesaid, this deponent asked where the vessel was that had the salt on board? and the said Levin Townsend told this deponent that he always knew that there was no salt there, and accordingly put this deponent, with others, under the hatchway, and immediately pushed off for Norfolk; and on their arrival at Norfolk that the said Levin Townsend and Isaac Costen went on board of Lord Dunmore's ship, and from their return from board said ship said Levin Townsend asked this deponent and some others if they were willing to serve under Lord Dunmore, that if they would they should have a suit of regimentals, a guinea and a crown entrance, with their standing pay; but that Cornelius Dickerson objected to staying; and that this deponent said he would choose to return home, and said Levin Townsend said he could not return till he had taken an oath, which oath this deponent saith was administered to him in Norfolk by a Magistrate, in the Court-House, the contents of which oath this deponent can't well remember; that he heard Levin Townsend say that as he was manning out a tender to cruise up and down the bay, and that he should be in a very short time up Pocomoke river, and that he intended to try and take the Committee of Worcester County out of their beds in the dead of night and carry them on board his vessel, and then proceed as soon as possible with them down to Lord Dunmore, and that this deponent heard said Levin Townsend tell some of the company to look out sharply, that he should be along in a very short time; and this deponent further saith that William B. Townsend recommended it to him to enlist under the Governour, and said that he never would do any thing better for himself; and that this deponent heard the said William B. Barkley Townsend say he was determined to have revenge of the said Committee because they looked upon him as a Tory, and that he was very sorry for James Atkinson, and wished he had it in his power to get revenge; and further this deponent saith not.

Hugh Vestery being called on by the Committee of Worcester County, deposeth and saith: That he was sent for by William B. Townsend, that this deponent went and carried a gun, and when he came to said William B. Townsend's said Townsend asked this deponent if he did not want salt, if he did that he might have enough down at the Mud-Banks, very cheap, upon which this deponent agreed to go, and that he set out with sundry others down to the mouth of the river. Finding there was no vessel there with salt, agreeable to what Townsend told him, he asked said Townsend where the salt was; the said Townsend turned it off with a laugh, and when they were off Merromisco this depo-

ment, with Thomas Cluff and William Willis, were very desirous to return home, but Levin Townsend told them they had better not, for they most certainly would be hanged if they did return, and advised them to go down to Norfolk and enlist under Lord Dunmore as soldiers; and when they were at Merromisco aforesaid said Levin Townsend, with others, went on shore, where they killed a beef and brought on board uncleaned and said they bought it, and immediately pulled the boat on deck, and ordered this deponent, with sundry others, under the deck, and shut the hatchway on them, and immediately proceeded for Norfolk; and on the arrival at said place the said Levin Townsend and Isaac Coston went on board said Lord Dunmore's ship, and after they returned said Levin Townsend asked this deponent and others if they would enlist under Lord Dunmore, that if they would they should have a suit of regimentals, a guinea and a crown at entrance, with the gun and bayonet and standing pay; to which proposal this deponent objected and said he would return home; said Levin Townsend replied that he would not return home till he took a certain oath, which oath was administered to this deponent by a person who he understood was a Colonel, and that the tenour of said oath, as well as this deponent can recollect, was to bear faith and true allegiance to his Majesty, and to abjure all authority of the General Congress, &c.; and this deponent further saith that he heard said Levin Townsend say he was fitting out a tender to cruise up and down the bay in order to take prizes, and that Isaac Colton was to be his Lieutenant, and that said Levin Townsend said he should in a short time be up Pocomoke river, where he intended to lay his vessel against the cypresses, &c., and then seize the Committee of Worcester in the night whilst they were asleep and convey them to Lord Dunmore as speedily as possible; and further saith that on their return he heard Cornelius Dickerson say at Accomack County that if he had thought that he would have been taken up he would most certainly never have left Boston's vessel, with whom he went to Norfolk; and further saith that Levin Townsend pressed him, this deponent, to meet and join him when he came into Pocomoke; also saith that he saw William B. Townsend and Thomas Moore talking very much in private whilst the said Townsend was in Worcester, and that said William B. Townsend advised him whilst in Norfolk to enlist in Lord Dunmore's service, and that he, this deponent, heard Levin Townsend say he expected a large number of men to join him on his return in Annimessick, and that Thomas Moore aforesaid went down to Finley's Landing, from which place this deponent embarked and where they parted, and that Thomas Moore wished them well, and said he hoped in a short time to see them return safe.

Solomon Butler, of lawful age, being sworn, deposeth and saith: That Levin Townsend sent for this deponent by Hugh Vestery, that he wanted to see him and talk to him; that he went on the Tuesday evening before Townsend went away; that he (this deponent) was sworn to secrecy, and Townsend told him he wanted him to go down to the mouth of the river, for that there was plenty of salt there very cheap; and that this deponent accordingly agreed to go, and went home next morning to get his clothes, and by Levin Townsend's directions carried his gun, Townsend telling him there was plenty of fowl at the mouth of the river; that he accordingly embarked with Townsend and his company; and that in their way down the river they took possession of Daniel Boston's schooner; that they then proceeded to the mouth of the river. When they arrived there and found there was no salt, this deponent and some others expressed great uneasiness, and were very desirous of returning; that Levin Townsend and his father, and sundry others, laughed at them, and told them they must go further for the salt, and immediately took their boat on board and secured all who were desirous of returning under the hatches; that when they arrived at Norfolk, Levin Townsend and Isaac Colton went on board the man-of-war, and on their return to their company solicited them very strongly to enlist under the Lord Dunmore, and told them they should have a guinea and a crown advance, and standing pay allowed them, with a suit of regimentals, a gun and bayonet, &c.; that this deponent and several others refused to enlist; that he heard Levin Townsend say that he intended to fit out a tender to cruise in the bay and to take all the prizes they could, and then to proceed up Pocomoke river to take the Committee of Worcester County prisoners, and carry them to Lord Dunmore; and that Isaac Colton, William Dickerson, Benjamin Selby, Francis Britt, Joseph Gray Taylor, Levi Townsend, Elias Townsend, Zadock Townsend, Josiah Ward, approved highly of Townsend's scheme, and were determined to join him in it; that Townsend repeatedly expressed a confidence of being joined by a large number of people on his return home; that Thomas Moore was at old Townsend's the day the company set off, and went with them to the landing, where he wished them well, and told them he expected to see them in a short time; that Moore likewise met them at the Ferry down the river and had conversation with some of the company, which this deponent did not hear; that as they went down a beef was killed and brought on board; that this deponent heard Isaac Colton and Francis Britt say that they helped to bring the beef on board, but who the others were he cannot tell; that he heard Levin Townsend say he paid a half-joe for it, and that he obliged the company to pay their proportion.

The deposition of Smith Lingo, of lawful age, being called on by the Committee: That about three or four weeks ago this deponent was at the house of William Dykes, where met with Benjamin Shockly, and Shockly asked him if he was one of the damned Associators; he, this deponent, replied, "Why, what if I am;" "Why," said Shockly, "they are not worth a damn," or words to that purpose; Shockly, taking up a broad-axe, at the same time told this deponent not to say a word, or he would split his brains open, or any that dared sign the Association. That this deponent at sundry times, had seen the said Shockly very violent in condemning and threatening other people in the same manner.

William Willis being sworn on the Holy Evangelists of Almighty God, deposeth and saith, that Levin Townsend sent for this deponent, and that he accordingly went, and said Levin Townsend told this deponent that if he wanted salt he might have it down at the mouth of Pocomoke river, and that this deponent asked him who had it, and said Levin Townsend said it was his brother Luke, and that he might have it almost for going for, and that this deponent agreed to go; and after they had proceeded so far as Oyster-shell Town, this deponent asked where the vessel was that had the salt, and that the said Levin Townsend said he imagined it was lower down; and on their going farther down, said Levin Townsend, Levi Townsend, and Isaac Colton, went on shore, where they killed a beef, and brought it on board uncleaned, which they say they paid for; and upon this deponent's making further inquiry after the salt and finding there was none, this deponent requested that he might return home, but that said Levin Townsend said he should not, and immediately hauled the boat upon deck, and put this deponent with others under the hatchway, and there kept them till they arrived at Norfolk; and upon their arrival said Levin Townsend and Isaac Colton went on board Lord Dunmore's ship, where they stayed some short time; upon their return said Levin Townsend asked this deponent and others if they were willing to enlist under Dunmore; that if they were they should have a suit of regimentals, a guinea and crown, a gun and bayonet; and that this deponent replied, he could not stay on them terms; "Well," replied said Townsend, "if you won't agree to that will you stay and go with me privateering up and down the bay to take prizes?" and this deponent said he could not do it. This deponent further saith, that said Levin Townsend said that Isaac Colton was to be his Lieutenant, and that he intended to visit Maryland as soon as the Governour could get him a commission for that purpose, and that he intended up Pocomoke river in a very short time; and that he would take if possible the Committee of Worcester whilst they were asleep in their beds, and carry them on board his vessel and convey them as speedily as possible down on board of Governour Dunmore's ship; and this deponent further saith that he was sworn by a person in Norfolk, unknown to this deponent, the purport of the oath this deponent can't well recollect; and further saith, William B. Townsend pressed this deponent exceedingly warmly to enlist in Lord Dunmore's service, but that this deponent, Cornelius Dickerson, Bartley White, Hugh Vestry, Solomon Butler, and Thomas Cluff, absolutely refused; that the rest of their crew, to wit, Isaac Colton, Joseph Gray Taylor, Francis Britt, William Dickerson, Zadock Townsend, Elias Townsend, Josiah Wood, Benjamin Selby, Levi Townsend, did, and this deponent believes, enlist in his Lordship's service; that when this deponent left the said Townsend at Norfolk, the said Levin Townsend told this deponent he might keep a look out for him in about ten days or a fortnight, off the mouth of Pocomoke river, and that he would see him, the said Townsend.

Thomas Cluff, of lawful age, being sworn, deposeth and saith: That he went at a certain place gathering of corn, and that Levin Townsend sent for this deponent, and when this deponent arrived at William B. Townsend's, Levin Townsend asked this deponent if he did not want salt, that if he did, provided he would go with him, he should have it very reasonable; to which this deponent agreed to go with sundry others down as far as the mouth of Pocomoke river, upon which the said Levin Townsend administered an oath to him to keep the matter secret, but not finding any salt this deponent and some others wanted to return, upon which the said Townsend confined them; and that the said Levin Townsend and others went on shore where they killed a beef, whereupon they proceeded down to Norfolk, and upon their arrival at Norfolk, the said Levin Townsend and Isaac Colton, one of their numbers, went on board Lord Dunmore's ship, and some time after returned to this deponent, and said Levin Townsend asked this deponent and company if they were willing to enlist under Lord Dunmore, that if they would they should have a suit of regimentals, a gun, a guinea and a crown entrance, with their standing pay: and this deponent said he would rather choose to return home again; and that said Townsend said you cannot return home, for you will not be let return, you will be taken up; and further told this deponent that if this deponent did not go up to the standard in Norfolk, the Governour would most certainly detain him; and this deponent further saith that the aforesaid Levin Townsend came with an officer, who administered an oath to him, the contents of which this deponent can't particularly recollect: and further saith that said Levin Townsend was fitting out a vessel for a tender, and that said Levin Townsend told this deponent that he intended to come up Pocomoke river in the tender aforesaid, and that a certain Edmond Scarborough, of Virginia, was to go to Pocomoke with him as an assistant, and that the said Levin Townsend said that after he took a cruise or two up the bay in order to make some prizes, he should lay his vessel against the Cypresses in Pocomoke river, and that he would then seize the Committee of Worcester County whilst they were asleep in their beds, and convey them on board his vessel, and then proceed down to the Governour as quick as possible: and this deponent further saith that when Levin Townsend was insisting on him to enlist under Governour Dunmore, William Bartlet Townsend pressed this deponent to do it, and told him (this deponent) that he could not do any thing better for him, and very strongly recommended it to him; and the said William B. Townsend further told this deponent he should come up Pocomoke river in the tender with his son Levin: and this deponent further saith that the said Levin Townsend desired this deponent and the others that returned with him, to keep a look out on the Anne-amessix's shore for his return, to assist the said Levin in his scheme: and further saith not.

NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY AND CONVENTION.

COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Die Mercurii, 9 ho. A. M., September 4, 1776.

The Committee met pursuant to the adjournment.

Present: Abraham Yates, Jun., Esq.

NEW-YORK.—Mr. Robert Harpur, Mr. Evert Banker, Mr. James Duane.

DUTCHESS.—Mr. Sackett, Colonel Hoffman.

TRYON.—Mr. Harper, Mr. Moore, Mr. Veder, Mr. Newkirk.

ALBANY.—*Mr. Abraham Yates, Mr. Adgate, *Colonel Renselaer, Mr. John Ten Broeck, Mr. Cuyler, Colonel Livingston, General Ten Broeck.

CHARLOTTE.—Major Webster, Colonel Williams, *Mr. Duer.

SUFFOLK.—Mr. William Smith.

ORANGE.—Mr. Wisner, Colonel Allison, Mr. Joseph Smith.

CUMBERLAND.—Mr. Sessions, Mr. Stevens.

ULSTER.—Colonel De Witt, Mr. Tappan.

WESTCHESTER.—*Colonel Cortlandt, Judge Graham.

The Committee to whom was referred the consideration of the Resolution of the Convention of this State, relative to the calling out the Militia of Westchester, Orange, Dutchess, and Ulster, and the consideration of General Washington's Letter of September the 1st, report, that they have maturely considered the state of the Counties of Orange, Dutchess, Westchester, and Ulster, both with respect to their Militia and the number of disabled persons in the said Counties; and upon the whole, are of opinion that it will not be for the safety of this State, or the general interest of America; to order out any more of the Militia from the said Counties, and they submit to this Committee of Safety, the following reasons, among others, which have induced them to form this opinion:

1st. That from the best information they have been able to obtain, the number of armed and well-affected Militia, in the said Counties, do not exceed three thousand one hundred; the number of disarmed and disaffected persons two thousand three hundred, and the number of slaves two thousand three hundred. From a comparison of these numbers, and from our firm opinion that the disaffected only wait an opportunity of rising; that General Howe is actually endeavouring to enlist men in most of those Counties; and that our enemies would not scruple to stir up our slaves to bear arms against us, it would be extremely hazardous to the internal peace of the said Counties to draw out at present any more of their Militia.

2d. That from the situation of the County of Westchester, which borders both on the Sound and Hudson's River, and the Counties of Dutchess, Ulster, and Orange, on the North River, (the channel of which we have no reason to think sufficiently obstructed,) the enemy might land to the northward of our posts at King's Bridge, and take possession of those Counties, without any possibility of a resistance from the Militia.

3dly. That from the want of tents or sufficient houses, the Militia would be extremely exposed to the inclemencies of weather, and other hardships, which, added to the arts of the Tories in construing into a defeat the late prudent retreat from Long-Island, and the present inconvenient season of the year, would, we fear, prove too severe a trial for the virtue and patriotism of common soldiers, and disgust them so as to prevent their being of service to the State on a still more critical occasion. This appears to have been lately the case, both of the Militia and new levies, on Nassau-Island.

They therefore submit it to the wisdom of the Committee of Safety, whether it would not be advisable to send an express immediately to General Washington, informing him, from the reasons above-mentioned, of our inability to call forth at present any more of the Militia of the said Counties; assuring him, nevertheless, that the whole Militia of these Counties who are armed shall be ready to march on the earliest notice, whenever they receive orders from either himself or General Clinton, of the absolute necessity of such march.

Resolved, That this Committee of Safety does agree with their sub-Committee in the said Report.

And Ordered, That a copy thereof be prepared and certified, to be forwarded to General Washington.

Ordered, That his Excellency General Washington's Letter of the 1st instant be recommitted to the former Committee, with the addition of Judge Graham.

Die Mercurii, 4 ho. P. M., September 4, 1776.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Abraham Yates, Jun., Esq., President.

NEW-YORK.—Mr. Harper, Mr. Bancker, Mr. Duane.

WESTCHESTER.—*Colonel Cortlandt, Judge Graham.

CUMBERLAND.—Mr. Sessions and Mr. Stevens.

ALBANY.—*Mr. Abraham Yates, Mr. Adgate, *Colonel Renselaer, Mr. John Ten Broeck, Mr. Cuyler, General Ten Broeck, Colonel Livingston.

SUFFOLK.—Mr. William Smith.

ORANGE.—Mr. Wisner, Colonel Allison, Mr. Joseph Smith.

ULSTER.—Colonel De Witt, Mr. Tappan.

TRYON.—Mr. Harper, Mr. Moore, Mr. Veder, Mr. Newkirk.

DUTCHESS.—Mr. Sackett, *Major Schenck.

CHARLOTTE.—Major Webster, Colonel Williams, *Mr. Duer.

N. B. Those gentleman whose names are marked with asterisms are a quorum of the Committee of Safety.

A draft of a Letter to his Excellency General Washington, to accompany the Report of the sub-Committee of this Committee on his Excellency's Letter of the 1st instant, was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

"SIR: I enclose to your Excellency, by order of the Committee of Safety, a copy of a report which relates to a part of your letter of the 1st instant, respecting the calling out more of the Militia of this State, for the purpose of reinforcing the post at King's Bridge. It is with extreme concern that the Committee of Safety see their inability to assist further in maintaining the important posts. They flatter themselves that the reasons which they have offered, will appear as satisfactory to your Excellency as they did to the Committee.

"I am, however, directed to assure your Excellency, that the whole Militia of the Counties of Ulster, Orange, Dutchess, and Westchester, shall be ready to march whenever your Excellency or General Clinton shall think it absolutely necessary; and to inform you that the Committee of Safety will immediately exert themselves in arming with lances all such of the well-affected Militia as are at present destitute of fire-arms.

"I have the honour to be, most respectfully, sir, your most obedient, humble servant.

"To His Excellency."

Ordered, That a copy of the said Letter be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

Whereas many of the Militia of the different Counties in this State, who are well-affected to the American cause, are not supplied with fire-arms; and whereas it is the duty of the Convention of this State, at this critical period, to arm the whole Militia in such a manner as may prove most formidable to our inveterate and tyrannical enemies:

Therefore, Resolved, unanimously, That persons be appointed in the Counties of Westchester, Orange, Dutchess, Ulster, and Albany, for the purpose of procuring four thousand Lances to be made with the utmost expedition, agreeable to such models as shall be sent to the respective Counties.

Resolved, unanimously, That the following persons be appointed to procure the following proportion of Lances affixed to their respective names, in the Counties under-mentioned; and that this Convention will pay all the necessary charges for carrying this resolve into execution:

In the County of Albany , Hermanus Wendell and Richard Esselstine , Esqrs.,	- - - - -	800
In Ulster County, Dirck Wynkoop and Robert Boyd , Esqrs.,	- - - - -	800
In Orange County, Henry Wisner and Joseph Smith , Esqrs.,	- - - - -	800
In Westchester County, Stephen Ward , William Miller , and Thaddeus Crane , Esqrs.,	- - -	800
In Dutchess County, James Weeks , William Cushman , and Nathaniel Foster , Esqrs.,	- - -	800
Lances, - - - - -	- - - - -	4,000

CONVENTION.

Die Jovis, 9 ho. A. M., September 5, 1776.

The Convention of this State met pursuant to adjournment in the Episcopal Church, at Fishkill.

Present: Abraham Yates, Jun., Esq.

NEW-YORK.—Mr. Robt. Harper, Mr. Duane, Mr. Bancker.

DUTCHESS.—Mr. Sackett, Doctor Crane, Mr. H. Schenck.

TRYON.—Mr. William Harper, Mr. Moore, Mr. Veder, Mr. Newkirk.

ALBANY.—Mr. Abraham Yates, General Ten Broeck, Mr. Cuyler, Colonel Livingston, Mr. Adgate, Mr. John Ten Broeck, Colonel V. Renselaar.

CHARLOTTE.—Mr. Duer, Major Webster, Colonel Williams.

SUFFOLK.—Mr. William Smith.

WESTCHESTER.—Colonel Cortlandt, Judge Graham, Mr. Haviland.

CUMBERLAND.—Mr. Sessions, Mr. Stevens.

ULSTER.—Colonel De Witt, Mr. Tappan.

ORANGE.—Colonel Allison, Mr. Joseph Smith, Mr. Wisner.

This Church being very foul with the dung of doves and fowls, without any benches, seats, or other conveniences whatever, which renders it unfit for the use of this Convention, therefore they unanimously agreed to adjourn to the Dutch Church in this village; and adjourned to the same accordingly.

The Convention met in the Dutch Church, at the Fishkill, pursuant to the above adjournment.

Present: The President and Representatives above named.

Colonel De Witt from the Committee appointed yesterday to consider of and report on the difficulties stated on behalf of the Committee of Kingston, about the sale of Tea, and the removal of the Prisoners of War now at Kingston, reported the following Resolution and draft of a Letter, which were respectively read and agreed to, viz:

Resolved and Ordered, That the Treasurer of this State advance to Colonel De Witt, the sum of one hundred and fifty Dollars to be by him transmitted to the Chairman of the Committee of Kingston, in Ulster County, for the purpose of removing the Prisoners of War now at Kingston, to Morris County, in New-Jersey. And the said Chairman is hereby ordered to transmit to the Convention of this State a regular account of the expenditure of this money.

The draft of the Letter to the Committee of Kingston was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

"The Convention having it in contemplation to pass a general resolve respecting the tea within this State, a Committee for that purpose was appointed a few days before we adjourned from Harlem to this place; but as several of the gentlemen appointed of that Committee are not yet arrived, the Convention is prevented from completing that business. I am therefore directed to acquaint you that the Convention expect you will use your utmost endeavours to keep peace and good order amongst you, till such resolutions are passed, in the best manner you can.

"The old paroles, together with a copy of a resolve of the Continental Congress respecting prisoners, which were omitted at the time when the blanks were sent, you have here enclosed. Also, a resolve to defray the expense of their removal.

"I am your very humble servant. By order.

"To the Chairman and Members of the Committee at Kingston."

Ordered, That a copy of the said Letter be engrossed, and signed by the President, and, together with a copy of the foregoing Resolution, transmitted to the Committee at Kingston.

John Wooley being examined, says that he was on board of the British ships once lately; that he was carried on board against his consent, and by violence; that this happened on last Wednesday a week, about noon, under the shore of Nassau-Island, opposite to Frog's Point; that two ships were there, one named the Bloom, as appeared by the name on the stern; that he went to bring a boat home to be unrigged, and by that means was taken; that he was not ill treated on board the ship, and his boat was returned, the reason whereof was, he believes, that his brother had been on board, and has been a warm partisan for the British fleet and army; that he could have gone on board frequently if he had chose it; that he did not mean to join the enemy; that a brother of his, the examinant, was with him when he was taken; that he was asked on board if he could furnish them with provisions, or if they could be supplied in the neighbourhood; that he answered in the negative, and told them the cattle were all drove off; that he did not learn any of the designs of the enemy, but heard some of the soldiers say that they expected a large reinforcement of twenty thousand men; that he is an Associator; that his father owned the boat he went for; that Philip Wooley was with him when he was taken; that they called him a Rebel when he was taken; that he saw Isaac Barns from the New City Island, in Westchester County, on board, and also two negroes belonging to Henry Allen.

John Wooley withdrew.

Major Thorne, of Queen's County, called in as a witness, says: That John Wooley has behaved peaceably, and has not, to his knowledge, said or done any thing in the American cause on either side; that he has been excused from military duty, as a ferryman, and that he is an invalid; that he heard at Huntington that the Wooleys were removing their boats from his wharf to Captain Wooley's, and were intercepted by a barge; that Captain Wooley's family in general, through the influence of his son Thomas, is esteemed disaffected to the American cause.

Mr. Henry Stocker says, that John Wooley has behaved very peaceably, and said nothing on either side in the American cause; that Wooley's cattle has been removed, and John Wooley says that he removed those that were brought to his house; that he heard that Wooley's ferry-boat was removed to Major Thorne's dock; that he does not know, nor has not heard, that John Wooley has supplied the enemy's ships with provisions.

The Committee determined to admit John Wooley to bail, if he can find two good sureties to be bound with him, for his peaceable and good behaviour, and remaining on the main land in this State. The said John Wooley to be bound in the penalty of fifty pounds, and the said sureties in the sum of twenty-five pounds each.

And Ordered, That the President inform the said John Wooley thereof in time of the adjournment, and direct him to inform the Committee in the afternoon whether he can obtain sureties and who they are.

Ordered, That Mr. McKesson, one of the Secretaries, pay to Sergeant David Mills twelve shillings, by him paid for the passage of himself and two men under his command, sent up as a guard from Peek's Kill with a prisoner taken, who had been on board of the enemy's ships of war in the river. That the Secretary take a receipt for the same.

And Ordered, That the Treasurer repay to Mr. McKesson the said twelve shillings, and charge the same to Continental account.

Die Jovis, 4 ho., P. M., September 5, 1776.

The Convention met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Abraham Yates, Jun., Esq., President.

NEW-YORK.—Mr. Robert Harper, Mr. Baucker, Mr. Duane.

DUTCHESS.—Mr. Sackett, Doctor Crane, Mr. H. Schenck.

ALBANY.—Mr. Ab. Yates, General Ten Broeck, Mr. Cuyler, Colonel Livingston, Colonel Van Renselaer, Mr. Adgate.

TRYON.—Mr. William Harper, Mr. Moore, Mr. Veder, Mr. Newkerk.

SUFFOLK.—Mr. William Smith.

WESTCHESTER.—Colonel Cortlandt, Mr. Haviland, Judge Graham.

CHARLOTTE.—Mr. Duer, Major Webster, Colonel Williams.

ULSTER.—Colonel De Witt, Mr. Tappen.

ORANGE.—Mr. Wisner, Colonel Allison, Mr. Joseph Smith.

CUMBERLAND.—Mr. Sessions, Mr. Stevens.

On motion, Ordered, That the Secretaries prepare the following number of Commissions, to be signed by the President and attested by one of the Secretaries, and transmitted to the County Committees hereafter mentioned, on the conditions prescribed in the Resolution of the Convention of this State of the day of last, viz: 100 Commissions for the County of Albany; 50 Commissions for the County of Tryon; 20 Commissions for the County of Charlotte; 6 Commissions for the Third Battalion of Westchester County.

On motion of the Deputies of Albany,

Resolved and Ordered, That Harmen Van Bueren, Esq., be appointed Major of the Seventh Regiment of Militia of the County of Albany, and that a Commission issue for that purpose.

The Petition of the Committee of Tryon County, dated the instant, was read and filed. They therein set forth that the Militia of that County would be more advantageously regulated if a Brigadier-General was appointed in that County, as the distance they are from Brigadier-General Ten Broeck, whom they esteem, is a great inconvenience.

Brigadier-General Ten Broeck, present, informed the Convention that it is a disadvantage to the Militia of Tryon County, and an inconvenience to himself, to have those Militia in his Brigade, and the more especially as the Major of Brigade resides in Tryon County, at a great distance from him.

Thereupon, Resolved, That the Militia of Tryon County be formed into a Brigade separate from the Militia of Albany.

And whereas Nicholas Herkheimer, Esq., is justly entitled to be appointed the Brigadier-General of the Brigade of Militia of Tryon County, as well from his military rank in that County, as from his great merit and many exertions in the present glorious struggle for liberty:

Therefore, Resolved, unanimously, That Nicholas Herkheimer, Esq., be appointed Brigadier-General of the Militia of Tryon County, and that a commission issue to him accordingly for that purpose.

And Ordered, That John Frey, Esq., be appointed Brigade-Major of that Brigade.

On motion of Mr. Duer, the Convention came to the following Resolution for the removal of the Bells from the City of New-York, viz:

Whereas the King of Great Britain is studiously endeavouring, by every means which artifice and lawless power can devise, to deprive the inhabitants of the United States of America of Ammunition, Cannon, and every warlike store, in order that they may fall a more easy prey to his tyrannical purposes; which cowardly designs have unhappily so far succeeded, that this State is now distressed by the want of sufficient Arms to resist the powerful and unnatural enemy by whom they are invaded: And whereas the duty which the representatives of a free people owe, both to God and their country, obliges them to make every possible exertion to procure Arms and Ammunition, in order to defend their rights and liberties, which are derived from the Supreme Being, and which posterity have a right to claim as an unincumbered inheritance:

Therefore, Resolved, unanimously, That his Excellency General Washington be requested and authorized to cause all the Bells in the different Churches and publick edifices in the City of New-York to be taken down and removed to New-Ark, in New-Jersey, with all possible despatch, that the fortune of war may not throw the same into the hands of our enemy, and deprive this State, at this critical period, of that necessary though unfortunate resource for supplying our want of cannon.

Resolved, That a copy of this Resolution be sent to the Ministers, Elders, or Church-Wardens of the respective Churches, in order that the weight and value of those Bells may be ascertained. And the Convention of this State pledge the publick faith that the respective Churches shall be furnished with Bells of equal goodness and value whenever their constituents, free from the apprehension of having their civil and religious rights violated by any earthly Power, shall be enabled to return their publick thanks to the Supreme Ruler of the universe for graciously rescuing them from the gulf of tyranny.

A draft of a Letter to his Excellency General Washington was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

"SIR: I am directed by the Convention of this State to transmit to your Excellency a copy of a resolution which they entreat may be carried into execution with all possible despatch. It is with extreme concern that we find ourselves under the disagreeable necessity of having recourse to this unhappy but necessary expedient, or of troubling your Excellency with a commission of this nature; but the critical situation of this State, the want of brass field-pieces, and our inability to have this resolve executed by the Committee of the City of New-York, on account of their absence from the city, reduce us to the dilemma either of adopting this measure or of neglecting the publick safety. They therefore trust that your Excellency's zeal for the publick service will induce you to pardon the liberty they take of troubling you on this occasion.

"I have the honour to be, with the greatest respect, &c.

"To his Excellency General Washington."

Ordered, That a copy of the said Letter be engrossed, and signed by the President, and, together with a copy of the last foregoing Resolution, transmitted to his Excellency, by Sampson Dyckman, the Messenger.

The President informed the Convention that John Wooley offers as his sureties Major Richard Thorne and Henry Stocker, both of Queen's County, of which the Convention approved.

Ordered, That the Secretary present draw a proper Bond or that purpose, and see it duly executed by the said John Wooley and his sureties.

Major Schenck informed the Convention that a quantity of Oil, said to belong to this State, is stored in a store-house near Bush's Landing, and that it is in a leaky condition and wasting fast.

Ordered, That Major Henry Schenck be and is hereby authorized and requested to take proper care of the said Oil, and direct the same to be properly coopered, so as to preserve it from wasting.

The application or Petition of Henry Chase,* a prisoner in the Gaol of Westchester County, was read and filed. He thereby prays to be brought to a trial or discharged.

Ordered, That the consideration thereof be deferred until more important matters before the Convention are despatched.

The Petition of Colonel Benjamin Birdsall,† acting as Captain of a Company in Colonel Smith's Regiment, Nassau-Island, was read and filed. He thereby prays for money to discharge the bounty due to his men.

Ordered, That the consideration thereof be deferred until Colonel Birdsall can be examined before this Convention to-morrow.

The Bond of John Wooley,‡ and the condition, were brought into the Convention and read, and ordered to be filed.

Mr. Duane, from the Committee who visited the Fortifications on Hudson's River, produced a number of Returns, made by various officers there, and gave the Convention the following information in substance:

1st. That General Clinton told them that he thought the provisions deficient; that on inquiry they found a quantity of damaged pork in barrels there, which, from some information they received, was, in general, bad when sold for the use of the garrison, with a little good pork packed as a cover in each end of the barrels.

2d. That the fire rafts are in such a state as not to be fit for use, having in part water in them; and that the General does not know what to do with them.

3d. That at Fort Montgomerie, an Armourer, with the tools of his trade, is much wanted.

* WHITE-PLAINS JAIL, August 30, 1776.—GENTLEMEN: My confinement is the reason of my petitioning to you, the honourable Provincial Congress, hoping your Honours will be pleased to take my case into consideration; for the Committee of Safety says that they have no right to try me; so I leave my case to your Honours, gentlemen, and beg that your Honours would consider me, for I have been imprisoned a long time and nothing appeared against me; so I beg that you Honours would consider me as quick as possible, for I am a poor man and it is a great damage to me to lie in prison; so, gentlemen, I leave my case to your Honours, not doubting but your wisdoms, gentlemen, will do me justice. This broken petition from me, HENRY CHASE.

To the honourable Provincial Congress at the Fishkills.

P. S. Gentlemen, I should be very glad if your Honours would be so good as to send for me before your Honours as quick as possible, and in so doing you will greatly oblige me, HENRY CHASE.

In Committee of Safety for the County of WESTCHESTER, }
WHITE-PLAINS, August, 1776.

You are under the immediate cognizance of the Convention of the State of New-York, and this Committee thinks proper to inform you that they cannot take your case into consideration. You must make application to the Convention, if you want your case considered.

By order of Committee: JOSEPH YOUNGS, D. Chairman.

To H. CHASE, Prisoner.

† FISHKILLS, September 6, 1776.—GENTLEMEN OF THE STATE OF NEW-YORK: The conditions of the enlistment of the troops upon Long-Island, they had the promise of £4 bounty. I was to command one company; accordingly I have, but with only twenty-six men. They have often complained for the want of their bounty, which is £104, except £34 out, I have received; £70 is now due for bounty. I pray it may be discharged. I am at your service; and from this purpose, going with my men to Long-Island to join Colonel Smith, as I'm sensible he wants assistance. BENJ. BIRDSALL, Lieut. Colonel.

‡ Know all men by these presents, that we, John Wooley, of Hempstead, in Queen's County, Yeoman, and Richard Thorne, Esq., and Henry Stocker, both of Hempstead aforesaid, are held and firmly bound unto Abraham Yates, Jun., Esq., President of the Convention of the State of New-York, in the sums following, to wit: the said John Wooley in the sum of £50, and the said Richard Thorne and Henry Stocker in the sum of £25 each, to be paid to the said Abraham Yates, Jun., or to his certain attorney, executors, administrators, or assigns; for which payment well and truly to be made and done, we bind ourselves, our heirs, executors, and administrators, jointly and severally, firmly by these presents. Sealed with our seals, and dated the 5th day of September, 1776. The condition of the above obligation is such, that if the above-bound John Wooley do not go to any part of Nassau-Island without the permission of the Convention or Legislative authority of this State of New-York for the time being; and in the mean time if the said John Wooley shall and do behave himself as a faithful and good subject of the State of New-York, and not afford any aid, assistance, support, or comfort to any of officers or soldiers of the British fleets or armies, or their allies or adherents, or give them any intelligence by any means whatsoever, nor violate any order or resolution of the Congress of the United American States, or of the Convention or Committee of Safety of the State of New-York, then the obligation to be void; but on failure or non-performance of either of the above conditions, to be and remain in full force and virtue.

JOHN WOOLEY, Jr., [L. s.]

RICH'D THORNE, [L. s.]

HENRY STOCKER, [L. s.]

Sealed and delivered in the presence of us, the word "Hempstead" being wrote on a former word.

DAVID MILLS,
MICAH TOWNSEND,
JOHN MCKESSON.

4th. That there is a great want of men at Forts Montgomerie, Constitution, and Red-Hook; that the last mentioned work is very imperfect, but will be extremely useful. That one thousand more men the General would think necessary for the Fortifications, exclusive of Red-Hook. That spades, shovels, pick-axes, shot, lead, sheep-skins, langrage, and many other things, are wanting there; that the General desires a reinforcement of men, and that they may be armed. And he gave an account of the number of cannon there, and the weight of their metal.

Mr. Duane then moved that five hundred Militia may be immediately ordered to reinforce those Garrisons, to be detached from Ulster, Orange, and Dutchess.

Debates arose, and the consideration whereof is deferred till to-morrow.

Die Veneris, 9 ho. A. M., September 6, 1776.

The Convention met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Abraham Yates, Jun., Esq., President.

NEW-YORK.—Mr. Bancker, Mr. Duane, Mr. Robert Harper.

DUTCHESS.—Mr. Sackett, Doctor Crane, Mr. H. Schenck.

CHARLOTTE.—Mr. Duer, Major Webster, Colonel Williams.

ULSTER.—Colonel De Witt, Mr. Tappen.

ORANGE.—Mr. Wisner, Colonel Allison, Mr. Jos. Smith.

CUMBERLAND.—Mr. Sessions, Mr. Stevens.

On motion, Resolved, That a Messenger be sent for any Member of this Convention who shall absent himself without leave; and that the expense incurred thereby shall be defrayed by the said Member; and that such Member shall also receive a publick reprimand from the Chair, for a contempt of the House.

Mr. Duane, from the Committee appointed to visit the Forts Montgomerie and Constitution, gave the Convention some further information relative to the state of those Fortifications.

After some time spent thereon, Resolved, That it is of the utmost consequence to the safety of this State and the general interest of America, that a reinforcement should be immediately sent to the Forts Montgomery and Constitution, at Hudson's River.

Therefore, Resolved, unanimously, That six hundred men be, with all possible despatch, detached from the Militia of this State, and sent to the Forts Montgomery and Constitution, as a reinforcement to those Garrisons.

It was then proposed, and, after some considerable time spent therein, it was agreed, that the reinforcement for those Garrisons be detached from the Militia of Ulster, Albany, Dutchess, and Orange Counties.

A motion was then made by Mr. Duane, and seconded, that the proportion of men to be furnished by those Counties be as follows, to wit: From Ulster County, two hundred and twenty-five; from Albany, one hundred and fifty; from Dutchess, one hundred and fifty; and from Orange, seventy-five men.

Debates arose thereon. After some time spent thereon, a motion was made and seconded, that twenty-five men be taken from the number proposed to be raised in Ulster County, and added to the number proposed to be raised in Dutchess.

Debates also arose thereon; and the question being put, it was carried in the affirmative by every County present, except Ulster; that is to say, for the affirmative, twenty votes, and for the negative, four votes.

It was then proposed that the proportions of the Militia from those Counties be fixed as follows, viz: From Ulster, two hundred men; from Albany, one hundred and fifty men; from Dutchess, one hundred and seventy-five men; from Orange, seventy-five men—six hundred men.

Debates arose thereon; and the question being put, it was carried in the affirmative, in manner following, to wit:

For the affirmative.		For the negative.
6 Albany,	2 Charlotte,	3 Orange,
3 Tryon,	4 Westchester.	4 Ulster.
2 Cumberland,	—	—
—	17 votes.	7 votes.

Therefore, Resolved, That the above reinforcement detached from the Militia of those four Counties in proportions above mentioned.

Die Veneris, 4 ho. P. M., September 6, 1776.

The Convention met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Abraham Yates, Jun., Esq., President.

NEW-YORK.—Mr. Harper, Mr. Bancker, Mr. Duane, Mr. Jay.

DUTCHESS.—Major Schenck, Mr. R. R. Livingston, Mr. Sackett, Doctor Crane, Mr. Gilbert Livingston, Mr. Platt.

ALBANY.—Mr. Abraham Yates, General Ten Broeck, Colonel P. R. Livingston, Mr. Adgate, Mr. Cuyler, Colonel Renselaer, Mr. John Ten Broeck.

TRYON.—Mr. William Harper, Mr. Moore, Mr. J. Newkerk.

ULSTER.—Colonel De Witt, Mr. Tappen.

ORANGE.—Colonel Allison, Mr. Joseph Smith, Mr. ner.

CUMBERLAND.—Mr. Sessions, Mr. Stevens.

The Convention resumed the consideration of the of the Garrisons of Forts Montgomery and Constitution and the works erecting at Red-Hook. After some spent therein, the two following Resolutions were agreed and resolved, viz:

Resolved, That one hundred and fifty men from part of the County of Albany which is within and to the southward of the Manor of Renselaerwyck, including the City of Albany; one hundred and seventy-five men from the County of Dutchess; two hundred men from the County of Ulster; and seventy-five men from that part of the County of Orange which lies above the Mountain immediately detached by ballot, and marched to augment the Garrison at Forts Montgomery and Constitution.

Resolved, That the above reinforcement continue in service two months after their arrival at the said Forts, and that this Convention will discharge them sooner, if sufficient Garrisons of Continental troops shall be ordered to and arrive at those Forts before the expiration of the two months; and that the Militia so drafted shall be entitled to the same pay as are allowed to the Continental troops.

A question then arose into what number of Companies those Levies should be disposed. The same being considered,

Resolved, That the above Levies be formed into Companies in the following manner, to wit: Those from the County of Ulster into three Companies; those from Albany and Dutchess, respectively, into two Companies each; those from the County of Orange into one Company.

On motion of Mr. Duer, agreed that the Convention immediately proceed to fix and appoint the Field Officers to command the said Levies or Detachments intended to reinforce the said Garrisons.

Mr. Duer then moved that the Field Officers to command the said reinforcement be appointed out of the Officers of Albany, Ulster, and Orange, agreeable to the rank or rank fixed for the said Counties by the regulations for the Militia of this State.

Debates arose thereon; and the question being put, it was carried in the negative, in manner following, viz:

For the affirmative.		For the negative.
4 Ulster,	—	6 Albany,
3 Orange,	—	5 Dutchess,
2 Charlotte.	—	3 Tryon,
—	9 votes.	2 Cumberland.
—	—	16 votes.

Therefore the said motion was overruled.

On motion, Resolved, That the Colonel to command the reinforcement be called into service from Ulster County.

Lieutenant-Colonel from Dutchess County, and the Major from the County of Albany.

Colonel De Witt then moved, and was seconded, that the Troop of Horse in Ulster County, now called out by General Clinton, and the Rangers which are raised in the said County, be considered as a part of the troops to be raised by virtue of the resolutions passed this day.

Debates arose thereon; and the question being put, it was carried in the negative, Ulster alone for the affirmative.

Resolved, This Convention will, to the utmost of their power, comply with General James Clinton's requisitions for the support and supply of those Fortifications.

Colonel V. Cortlandt has leave of absence.

Die Sabbati, 9 ho. A. M., September 7, 1776.

The Convention met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Abraham Yates, Jun., Esq., President.

NEW-YORK.—Mr. Robert Harper, Mr. Jay, Mr. Duane.

WESTCHESTER.—Major Lockwood, Colonel Gilbert Drake, Mr. Haviland.

ALBANY.—Mr. Yates, General Ten Broeck, John Ten Broeck, Mr. Cuyler, Colonel Renselaer, Mr. Adgate, Colonel Livingston.

TRYON.—Mr. William Harper, Mr. Moore, Mr. Newkerk, Mr. Veder.

ULSTER.—Colonel De Witt.

ORANGE.—Mr. Jos. Smith, Colonel Allison, Mr. Wisner.

CHARLOTTE.—Mr. Duer, Colonel Williams, Major Webster.

DUTCHESS.—Dr. Crane, Mr. R. R. Livingston, Mr. H. Schenck, Mr. Gilbert Livingston, Captain Platt.

CUMBERLAND.—Mr. Stevens, Mr. Sessions.

The Convention was informed by several Members, that the Stores from White-Plains, for the removal whereof John Cregier was lately sent, are now arrived at Mr. Bogardus's landing in a small Sloop or Pettiauger, under a guard of a Sergeant and twelve men, who ought to be immediately discharged and furnished with provisions for their return.

Ordered, That the said Stores be landed and stored under the care of Nathaniel Sackett, Esq., who is hereby appointed a Commissary for that purpose; and that Mr. Sackett be, and hereby is, authorized and requested to furnish and provide the guard with provisions for their return.

Mr. Smith, of Suffolk County, informed the Convention that a certain person of the name of Harrison, is in the neighbourhood, and can give some information relative to the situation of the enemy and disaffected on Nassau-Island.

Mr. Harrison says that the Ministerial Troops have been to Oyster-Bay and Hempstead; that the disaffected inhabitants have joined to assist the enemy, and proceeded as far as Setauket; that General Howe has set guards to prevent any person coming off the island or removing cattle; that Isaac Ketchum has taken a commission and got some men; that William Smith, of , administers oaths of fidelity or allegiance to the inhabitants, and that Thomas Smith, of Hog-Island, receives their submissions; that Colonel Livingston is moving westward on the island with the Militia; that a number of men were going from Connecticut to bring off some gunpowder from Huntington and a quantity of flour there, which one Ireland had sold to the Ministerial Army; that he saw Colonel Smith, of Suffolk County, in Connecticut.

Ordered, That Colonel De Witt, Mr. William Smith, and Mr. R. R. Livingston be a Committee to devise ways and means to succour the subjects of this State on Nassau-Island.

On motion of Mr. Jay,

Resolved, That a Committee of Safety and Correspondence for that part of this State which lies below the Highlands be immediately formed; that Colonel Remsen, Major Abeel, and Major Peter P. Van Zandt, be that Committee.

And Ordered, That Mr. Duane, Mr. Jay, and Mr. Duer, be a Committee to draw up Instructions for that Committee of Safety.

And Ordered, That Colonel Hoffman be excused from attending at New-York as a correspondent, according to his late appointment for that purpose.

Resolved, unanimously, That the Committee of Safety and Correspondence at New-York be appointed and authorized to take from the doors of the Houses in the city of New-York all the Brass Knockers, and that they cause the same to be sent to some careful person at New-Ark, in New-Jersey, with all possible despatch; that the said Committee keep as accurate an account as possible of the weight and value of them, and of the houses from whence taken, in order that satisfaction may be hereafter made to the respective owners.

The residue of the morning was spent in preparing the Resolutions for reinforcing the Garrisons of the Forts on Hudson's River. The long preamble prepared by Mr. Duane, and many other parts, were read, amended, and agreed to.

Mr. Wisner, of Orange, moved, and was seconded, that a Bounty be allowed to the Militia now to be called into service in this State. Debates arose, and the question being put, the votes were as follows, viz:

For the Affirmative.

2 Cumberland.
6 Albany.
3 Orange.

11 votes.

For the Negative.

2 Charlotte.
3 Tryon.
5 Dutchess.
4 Westchester.

14 votes.

But by reason of the absence of several Members, the consideration of allowing Bounty is deferred till afternoon.

CUMBERLAND.—Mr. Stevens, Mr. Sessions.

The Convention resumed the consideration of the Report of the Committee who were sent to visit the Forts Montgomery and Constitution; and after some time spent thereon, and the completing of the Resolutions, designed for reinforcing the Garrisons at those Fortifications, with the preambles thereto, and the appointment of the Officers to command such reinforcements, the same being finally read and agreed to, are in the words following, to wit:

The Committee appointed the 2d instant, to visit and examine into the state of Forts Montgomery and Constitution, in the Highlands, laid before the Convention returns from different Officers at those Fortresses, showing the condition and wants of the respective Garrisons, from which, and the Reports of the Committee, among other things it appears that there are at present no more troops in the Highlands than seven hundred and sixty-four, whereof three hundred and ninety-eight are at Fort Montgomery, and two hundred and sixteen at Fort Constitution. The troops consist of Militia of the State, excepting five Companies of the Second New-York Continental Battalion. That to render Fort Constitution tenable, the West-Point, which commands it, ought to be fortified. That considerable progress is made in fortifying an advantageous eminence on the western shore, a little to the south of Fort Montgomery, and within the reach of cannon, but it is still incomplete. That the remaining part of the said troops, being one hundred and fifty, is employed in erecting works on the east side of the river, about three miles below Fort Montgomery, at a place called Red-Hook, near Peekskill, which are well calculated to prevent the enemies landing on that side, and becoming masters of the Highlands opposite to Fort Montgomery. That Brigadier-General James Clinton, commanding at the said Fortresses, informed the Committee that, exclusive of the post, at Red-Hook, an augmentation of one thousand men was requisite for completing and defending the Fortresses under his directions, and earnestly requested that this Convention would immediately procure such reinforcement, as well as the several articles of ammunition, stores, and necessaries, hereafter specified, of which he stood in the utmost need.

This Convention having duly considered the said representation and requisition, and well knowing how much the safety of this State, as well as the success of the united efforts of this oppressed Continent in the defence of our common liberties, must depend on maintaining the possession of Hudson's River, and guarding it against the invasion which is to be apprehended from the enemy; considering, at the same time, the little probability that it can at present be in the power of his Excellency General Washington to detach for this service any of the army which is employed in opposing the progress of the enemy in the southern part of this State; the Convention must again have recourse to the good people of this State, not doubting but that, inspired by a virtuous love for their country, they will, on an occasion so pressing, and at a period when their lives, their liberties, and every temporal blessing, are in imminent danger, stand forth with zeal and alacrity in the greatest and best of causes:

Therefore Resolved, That six hundred men be, with all possible despatch, detached from the Militia of this State, and sent to the Forts Montgomery and Constitution, as a reinforcement to those garrisons.

That one hundred and fifty men from that part of the County of Albany which is within and to the southward of the Manor of Renselaerwyck, including the City of Albany, one hundred and seventy-five men from the County of Dutchess, two hundred men from the County of Ulster, and seventy-five men from that part of the County of Orange which lies above the Mountains, all exclusive of commissioned officers, be immediately detached by ballot, and marched to augment the Garrisons at Forts Montgomery and Constitution.

Resolved, That the above reinforcement continue in service two months after their arrival at the said Fortresses, and that this Convention will discharge them sooner in case sufficient garrisons of Continental Troops shall be ordered to, and arrive at, those Forts before the expiration of the said two months; and that the Militia so drafted shall be entitled to the same pay and rations as are allowed to the Continental Troops.

Resolved, That the above Levies be formed into Companies, in the following manner, to wit: Those from the County of Ulster into three Companies, and those from Albany and Dutchess respectively into two Companies each, and those from the County of Orange into one Company, and that each Company have one Captain, two Lieutenants, four Sergeants, four Corporals, one Drummer, and one Fifer.

That the said reinforcement shall be formed into one Battalion, to be commanded by a Colonel, Lieutenant-Colonel, and Major, to be appointed by this Convention; that a Surgeon, Adjutant, and Quartermaster, shall be appointed for the said Battalion, the first by the Convention, and the two last by the Colonel. That the Captains and Subalterns be appointed by the Field Officers of the Regiments in each respective County from which the quotas are to be raised, out of the Militia Officers, having regard to their rank and the dates of their commissions, if a sufficient number of such are willing to serve; if not, that they shall be at liberty to appoint such others as they shall think properly qualified; and that the Non-commissioned Officers be appointed by the Captain of each Company under whom they are to serve.

Resolved, That each Non-commissioned Officer and Private shall provide himself with a good Musket or Firelock, Bayonet or Tomahawk, a Blanket and Knapsack, and every six men with a Pot or Camp-kettle; and that one penny per mile be allowed to each Non-commissioned Officer and Private during their march, for subsistence-money, and one day's pay for every twenty miles between their respective homes and rendezvous, going and returning.

And to the intent that the Levies so raised may not be unfurnished with Arms, the Committees in the different Townships and Districts in the said Counties, and the Colonels of the respective Regiments, are hereby authorized and empowered to furnish all such as have not Arms, by taking them from those who are not drafted and such other persons in the Districts as have Arms, the same being valued by the Committee of each District, the amount of such valuation hereafter to be paid to the proprietors of the said Arms by this Convention, or the Arms restored in the same order to their former proprietors.

Resolved, That Colonel Johannes Snyder, of Ulster County be and is hereby appointed Colonel, Lieutenant-Colonel John Bailey, Jun., of Dutchess County, to be Lieutenant-Colonel, of the Levies, now ordered to be detached from the Counties of Albany, Ulster, Dutchess, and Orange, and that a Commission be sent blank to the Committee of Albany, for a Major for the said Levies, to be offered first to the eldest Major of the Militia in the County of Albany, and in case of his refusal, to the next eldest in succession until it is accepted.

Resolved, That new Commissions issue for the Officers of those detachments, and that the Field Officers be by those Commissions appointed to that command, in addition to their former commands in the Militia of their respective Counties.

Resolved, That 50 Spades, 50 Wood-axes, 50 Pick-axes, 24 Shovels, 25 Bill-hooks, 200 weight of Lead, 1000 weight Langrage, 1000 round and bar Shot for nine-pounders, 50 sets of cast-iron Carriage-Wheels for cannon, 1000 weight of Nails for building barracks, 1000 rounds of six-pound Ball and Grape-Shot, three sets of men's Harness for drawing cannon, 30 pounds of Twine, 12 pounds of Thread for cartridges, and one Armourer with the tools of his business, be immediately procured and forwarded to Fort Montgomery. And that John Schenck be appointed an Agent for that purpose, with authority to draw on the Treasurer for a sum not exceeding twenty-five hundred Dollars, for which he shall keep and render an exact account.

Ordered, That the Treasurer of this State pay to John Schenck, as Agent for furnishing the Forts Constitution and Montgomery with the articles directed by this Convention, any sum for which he may apply not exceeding twenty-five hundred Dollars, for which Mr. Schenck is to keep and render account.

The subject of granting a Bounty to the detachments of Militia ordered by the foregoing Resolutions, was resumed. After a short time spent therein, the further consideration thereof was postponed till next week.

The following Preamble was read and agreed to, to introduce the copies of the foregoing Resolutions, which shall be sent to the Commanding Officers of the Militia in the Counties from whence the Militia are ordered to be detached, viz:

"The Committee appointed to visit and examine into the state of the Fortresses in the Highlands, report, among other things, that an immediate reinforcement is necessary and earnestly requested by General Clinton, the commanding officer."

Ordered, That the Secretaries prefix this Preamble to the copies to be sent to the Officers of the Militia in the Counties; instead of the other long introduction.

Ordered, That a copy of the said Resolutions be immediately prepared and despatched to the Delegates of this State at Congress, and that Mr. Robert R. Livingston prepare a draft of a Letter to the Delegates of this State at Congress, to accompany the said Resolutions.

Ordered, That a copy of the Resolution of this Convention, for removing Bells from the Churches and publick edifices in New-York, be sent to the Delegates of this State at Congress.

Ordered, That a certified copy of the Committee on General Washington's Letter, relative to sending Forces to King's Bridge, be sent to the Delegates of this State at Congress.

The Convention were informed that there are several women and a number of children, amounting to fifteen in the whole, at Captain Wiltse's Landing, in a storehouse, who came from New-York, and say that they were sent out by the Committee; but that they have not certificates, which the Committee usually gave; that they are willing to work, but are poor and have not subsistence. That the widow and children of Isaac Teller, deceased, are near this place, without support, and the widow in a sick and low condition.

Ordered, That Major Henry Schenck have discretionary power to provide for the maintenance of the poor now at Wiltse's Landing, and also for the widow and children of Isaac Teller, deceased.

Resolved unanimously, and Ordered, That the Treasurer of this State stop payment of all Accounts passed by the Auditor-General for Colonel Smith's Regiment of Levies, and for the drafts of the Militia from King's and Queen's County, commanded by Colonel Remsen, till he shall receive further orders from this Convention or a future Legislature of this State.

Resolved, That the President, Mr. William Smith, Major Webster, Mr. Duane, Mr. Adgate, and Mr. Jay, be a Committee of Safety of this State until the next meeting of a representation of the State in this Convention. That the President and three members be a quorum of that Committee. That every member of this Convention who shall attend shall have a voice, and that the said Committee be and is hereby authorized to take every measure necessary for the safety, defence, and protection of this State.

Colonel De Witt has leave of absence to go home, and return as soon as possible.

Mr. Duer has leave of absence for two or three days.

Mr. Wisner, Mr. Joseph Smith, and Colonel Allison, obtained leave of absence, to return on Monday at noon.

Dr. Crane had leave of absence, to return on Monday next, at two o'clock.

Mr. Robert R. Livingston had leave of absence, to return on Monday next.

Mr. R. R. Livingston, according to order, reported a draft of a Letter to the Delegates of this State at Convention, which was read, and referred to the Committee of Safety.

Ordered, That Nathaniel Sackett, Esq., as Commissary, deliver to any one of the Deputies of Charlotte County, fifteen hundred weight of Lead and one thousand Flints, to be sent to Charlotte County, for the use of the inhabitants of that County, to be paid and accounted for by the County Committee and inhabitants of that County, to this State. Mr. Sackett to take a receipt for the same of the Deputy to whom he shall deliver it.

And Ordered, That Mr. Sackett deliver one ton and an half of Lead to any of the Members of Tryon County, together with three thousand Flints for the use of the inhabitants of that County, to be paid and accounted for by the inhabitants of that County, to this State. And that Mr. Sackett take a receipt for the same of the Deputy to whom it will be delivered.

COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Sunday Morning, September 8, 1776.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Abraham Yates, Esq., President; Mr. Bancker, Mr. Duane, Mr. Adgate, Mr. Moore, Mr. Ten Broeck, Mr. Lockwood, Mr. Stevens, Mr. Sessions, Mr. William Harper, Mr. Veder, Mr. Cuyler.

Ordered, That Nathaniel Sackett, Esq., as Commissary, deliver one ton of Lead to the Deputies of the County of Albany, for the use of the inhabitants of that County, and take a receipt for the same; the County Committee and inhabitants of the County of Albany to account and pay for the same to this State.

Die Lunæ, 11 ho. A. M., September 9, 1776.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Abraham Yates, Jun., Esq., President; Captain Platt, Major Lockwood, Mr. Haviland, Mr. William Smith, Colonel Drake, Colonel Renselaer, Mr. Cuyler, Mr. Jay, Mr. Adgate, Mr. Sessions, Major Webster, and Mr. Stevens.

A Letter from Brigadier-General Scott, dated the 6th instant, and received yesterday by S. Dyckman, the messenger, was read and filed.

He therein, in pursuance of the request of the Convention on the instant, gives a particular account of the situation and movements of the Army since the retreat from Nassau-Island.

It was represented to this Committee that a certain Warrs is spreading or propagating false and mischievous reports tending to injure the cause of America:

Ordered, therefore, That he be forthwith apprehended and brought before the Convention of this State, or this Committee of Safety, and that Captain James Weeks apprehend him accordingly.

FIFTH SERIES.—VOL. II.

Ordered, That Mr. Cuyler and Captain Platt be a Committee to take the Spears brought from New-York, and get a model for making other Spears, with such alterations and amendments as they may think most advantageous.

Ordered, That a copy of the Resolution of the Convention of this State for furnishing Fort Montgomery with the articles and stores reported by the Committee as wanted by General James Clinton, be immediately despatched to Mr. John Schenck, and that the President write a letter to Mr. John Schenck requesting his immediate answer whether he will undertake the agency therein mentioned; and if he should undertake the same that he make the utmost despatch.

The said Letter and order was despatched immediately.

Resolved, That a Letter be written by the President to General J. Clinton, at Fort Montgomery, acquainting him of the reinforcement directed by the Convention of this State for the Fortresses under his command, and that he be requested to forward barracks for their reception as soon as possible.

A short Letter was accordingly written and signed by the President, and delivered, to be forwarded to General James Clinton.

A Letter received yesterday noon from his Excellency General Washington was read, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Head-Quarters, New-York, September 6, 1776.

"SIR: I have now before me your letter of the 4th instant, enclosing the report against ordering out any more of the Militia from the Counties of Orange, Dutchess, Westchester, or Ulster. The reasons alleged by the Committee to whom this matter was referred, are entirely satisfactory to me, and therefore I do not expect a compliance with that part of my letter which respects this matter.

"I have the honour to be your most obedient servant,

"GO. WASHINGTON.

"To the Hon. Abraham Yates, Jun., Esq., President of the Committee of Safety of the State of New-York."

Die Lunæ, 4 ho. P. M., September 9, 1776.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Abraham Yates, Jun., Esq., President; Colonel Peter R. Livingston, Mr. Robert Harper, Mr. William Harper, Mr. Adgate, Major Webster, Mr. Sessions, Colonel Drake, Captain Platt, Mr. Haviland, Mr. William Smith.

A Letter received of General James Clinton was read, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Fort Montgomery, September 8, 1776.

"GENTLEMEN: Agreeable to your request I send you a return of articles wanted at the Fortifications in the Highlands. I have made a return of carpenters' tools: the reason of it is, that we have many carpenters amongst us that we can't employ for want of tools. I have sent to New-York, to the Quartermaster-General, for nails. I am in hopes he will supply me. I don't much expect to get the shingles: if they can't be got, we must use boards. As many of our arms want repair, we would be glad to have an armourer, with his tools, here for some time. I give you an account of the artillery stores and ordnance when you were here, with the number of men at each post; therefore think it unnecessary to send it again. In case of an attack I think we are too weak of men; therefore expect you will consider of some way to reinforce us, if you judge it necessary.

"I am, gentlemen, your most obedient, humble servant,

"JAMES CLINTON, Brigadier-General."

The following Return of Necessaries wanted at the Fortifications in the Highlands, enclosed in General James Clinton's Letter, was also read, and is as follows, viz:

A Return of Necessaries wanted at the Fortifications in the Highlands.

Fifty Axes; 50 Spades; 25 Mattocks; 25 Shovels; 25 Bill-Hooks; 20 Wheelbarrows; 1 dozen Flat and Half-round Files; 1 dozen of Three-square ditto; 2 large Sledges; 2 Hand Vices; 10 Broad-axes; 10 Hand Saws; 10 Hammers; 5 Iron Squares; 2 dozen of Nail Gimblets; 6 pair of Compasses; 5 sets of Framing Chisels and Augers; 6 Spike Gimblets; 3 set of Match Planes, for inch and inch and a half Plank; 32,000 Brick; 10,000 Shingles; 700 weight of Iron; 25 lbs. of Blistered Steel; 400 weight of 10d. Nails; 300 weight of 20d. ditto; 20 hogs-heads of Lime; 7000 feet of 3-inch Plank; an Armourer, with his Tools, is wanting much; 5000 weight of Lead; 10 lbs. of Thread; 2000 of Tacks; 24 Sheep-Skins; 1000 weight of 6-lb. Shot; 1000 weight of 9-lb. ditto, one half each double-headed; 1½ ton of Grape Shot, from 4 to 6 oz. weight; 1 large Magazine Lock; 2 pair of Shears; 50 set of cast Carriage Wheels; 10 lbs. of Twine; quantity of Oil and Paint to paint the Carriages.

A Letter from his Excellency General Washington, dated yesterday, and received by a messenger, was read, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Head-Quarters, New-York, September 8, 1776.

"SIR: I have just received the resolve of your Convention, respecting the removal of the bells belonging to the different churches and publick edifices in this city, to New Ark, in the Province of New-Jersey. The measure I highly approve of, and shall accordingly have it carried into execution.

"I have lately been conversing with General Clinton concerning the defence of the Forts on the Highlands, who agrees with me in sentiment, that the force already there is by no means sufficient. I should, therefore, conceive it would be greatly in advancement of the service if you would cause a reinforcement of the Militia, amounting to about six hundred, to be sent there from the Counties of Ulster and Orange, or any other that may be most proper and convenient. They may be usefully and importantly employed as well in the defence of the Highlands, in case they should be attacked, as in erecting new works and fortifications, by which they may be rendered more secure.

"I am, sir, your most obedient servant,

"GO. WASHINGTON.

"To Hon. Abraham Yates, Jun., Esq."

Another Letter from General Washington, received by the same messenger, was also read, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Head-Quarters, New-York, September 8, 1776.

"SIR: I wrote you this morning by your express, but omitted mentioning a matter of consequence. It being determined to remove our sick to Orange Town, we shall want four large Albany sloops for that purpose. The fatigue of travelling that distance by land would not only be more than the patients could bear, but we have full employ for our wagons in transporting baggage, tents, &c., for the troops, from hence to our outposts. I must, therefore, beg the favour of your honourable body to procure the above number of vessels, and send them down with as much despatch as possible to this city.

"I am, with respect, sir, your most obedient servant,

"GO. WASHINGTON.

"To Abraham Yates, Jun., Esq., President of Convention of New-York.

"P. S. I shall be glad to know, by return of the express, when I may probably expect the sloops down. There are several now on the lower parts of the river, with boards: perhaps you might engage them to come this way, which would save time."

Resolved, That Brigadier-General James Clinton be requested to send a careful officer, in a whale-boat well manned, down Hudson's River, to impress four large river Sloops, to go to New-York for the Sick, agreeable to the request of his Excellency General Washington, and that a press warrant issue for that purpose.

And lest such four Sloops should not be large enough for the purpose,

Resolved, That two other Sloops be impressed at Fishkill landing and despatched for the same purpose.

Ordered, That the Secretary present prepare a copy of the Resolutions of the Convention of this State, of the 7th instant, for detaching from the Militia of this State a reinforcement to the garrisons of the Fortifications in the Highlands, to be sent to his Excellency by the return of his messenger.

A draft of a Letter to General Washington was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

"SIR: Your Excellency's letters of the 8th instant this moment arrived, and we are happy to inform you that the resolutions enclosed have anticipated your Excellency's recommendation relative to a reinforcement for the fortresses in the Highlands; and although we have done every thing in our power to raise them with despatch, we are apprehensive that the whole will not arrive there within less than fourteen days, and that all the week will elapse before any of them will be got to the post. The vessels for the sick shall be procured as soon as possible and sent to the City of New-York, for which purpose we have directed every empty vessel down the river to be impressed until the number required is procured, and have ordered two others from Fishkill landing, lest the vessels might be small and four of them insufficient. Their despatch will depend upon wind and weather; we suppose, however, they may be down by Wednesday and Thursday next.

"I have the honour to be, with the greatest respect, your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant.

"To His Excellency General Washington."

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and, together with a copy of the Resolutions of the 7th instant, for detaching part of the Militia, transmitted to his Excellency by his messenger.

A draft of a Letter to Brigadier-General Clinton was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

"SIR: The Committee received your letter of the 8th instant, covering a list of the articles wanting at your garrison, and have appointed a person to procure the same.

"They have also to acquaint you they passed a resolve, and have forwarded the same to the respective Brigadier-Generals of Ulster, Orange, Dutchess, and Albany, to reinforce your garrisons with six hundred men, with all speed. I have it in charge to desire you to despatch a whale-boat, well armed, with a proper officer, early to-morrow morning, to proceed towards New-York, with orders to impress four of the first large, convenient sloops they may meet with, and send them to the city of New-York, by request from General Washington, in order to bring up the sick to the town of Orange, in Orange County, for which purpose the captains of the sloops, on their arrival, are to apply to the Director-General of the Hospital.

"I am, respectfully, sir, your very humble servant.

"By order.

"To Brigadier-General James Clinton."

A Warrant for impressing Sloops was sent to General James Clinton, in the words following, to wit:

"SIR: You are hereby required, authorized, and empowered, to proceed with a whale-boat, well manned, towards New-York, and impress the first four large convenient river sloops you meet with, and send them (in pursuance of a request of his Excellency General Washington.) to the city of New-York, to remove the sick from the Hospitals there to Orange-Town, in the County of Orange; for which purpose you will direct the captains of the said sloops respectively, on their arrival at New-York, to inform General Washington of their arrival, and to apply to Doctor Morgan, the Director-General of the Hospital, for further orders, for which this shall be your sufficient warrant.

"By order of the Committee:

"ABM. YATES, Jun., President.

"To such Officer as General James Clinton shall appoint to execute this Warrant."

Ordered, That Mr. McKesson pay the bearer of the above Letter and Warrant eight shillings, to engage them to make despatch.

Ordered, That John Moore, Esq., one of the members of this Committee, be authorized to proceed to Fishkill landing, and there impress two Sloops, with proper persons to navigate them to New-York, to assist in the removal of the Sick from the Military Hospitals to Orange Town.

Thereupon a Warrant was issued to him in the words following, to wit:

"SIR: You are hereby required, authorized and empowered to proceed to the different landings near Fishkill, and impress the first two large convenient sloops you may find, and send them (in pursuance of a request of his Excellency General Washington) to the city of New-York, to remove the sick from the Hospital there to Orange-Town, in the County of Orange; for which purpose you will direct the Captains of the said sloops respectively, on their arrival at New-York, to inform General Washington of their arrival, and to apply to Doctor Morgan, the Director-General of the Hospital, for further orders, for which this shall be your sufficient warrant.

“To John Moore, Esquire.”

The Committee were informed that William Warne, who has been apprehended by their order, is attending in custody.

Ordered, That he be brought in for examination.

Die Lunæ, 4 ho. P. M.

William Warne, of Fishkill, wheelwright, being examined, says, that the news he told that thirty thousand men were arrived on Long-Island, he heard on Long-Island, from the inhabitants there; that he came from Long-Island on Thursday last. That David Colden told him there were above thirty thousand men on Long-Island, and that ten thousand more were lately arrived at Staten-Island; that either David Colden or some other person informed him that fifteen thousand more were expected. That a Doctor told him that General Burgoyne had so many men in Canada, of the Canadians and Indians, as, with eight hundred Regulars, amount to twenty-five thousand.

That he was informed that men were killed and fifteen hundred taken prisoners. That he was informed that Lasher's battalion was so far destroyed that it would not be recruited; that Doctor Ogden informed that Suffolk County had given up; that General Howe had sent to Suffolk County that if they would submit and testify their loyalty, they must send him two hundred wagons, and that near three hundred had passed his house; that one of the Light-Horsemen told he had taken General Woodhull in the dark in a barn; that before he would answer when he spoke to the General, he had cut him on the head and both arms; that the ships in the Sound prevented his getting off the Island; that the enemy said they had about two hundred men killed and wounded.

William Warne, by order, withdrew.

Ordered, That he be committed to the custody of Captain Weeks till further orders, and that Captain Platt direct that the witnesses against him be summoned to attend this Committee and give evidence.

A draft of a Letter to the Delegates of this State in Congress, reported by Mr. Robert R. Livingston on the 7th instant, was read and amended, and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

“GENTLEMEN: Sensible of the great importance of the posts in the Highlands, we have lately directed an inquiry into their situation, which will appear from the enclosed returns to be far from such as we could wish.

“The necessity General Washington has of all the troops that compose his army at New-York, prevented his sparing to these fortresses sufficient garrisons or the necessary stores. What may be the fate of the country below the Highlands, is, as yet, uncertain, and may possibly depend on the event of a single battle. Should these posts be properly secured, we cannot but hope that the greater part of this State might nevertheless be retained, and the communication between the Northern and Southern States be by that means kept up; for which reason we wish you to call the attention of the Congress to an object of whose importance they have always been sensible, and to ask a proper supply of stores. We have already afforded them all in our power to supply. Fire ships would be of great use, yet for want of materials we are unable to proceed in preparing them. Seamen cannot be procured here to man our armed vessels without the greatest delay and difficulty, unless drafted from the army. Perhaps they may be got at Philadelphia.

“By the enclosed resolves you will find that we have endeavoured to reinforce the garrisons in the Highlands. As these men are all taken from the plough, we are very anxious to have them relieved as soon as the circumstances of the Continent will admit.

“We have borrowed of the State of Connecticut twenty pieces of cannon, (ten twelve and ten six-pounders,) for the forts. We wish they were heavier, but we fear this deficiency cannot be supplied, and therefore must endeavour to do without them. You will find by the enclosed resolves that we have taken measures to increase the number of our field artillery. You will be mindful to transmit us every publick resolve of Congress, and at least one of the Pennsylvania Gazettes, every week.

“We are, most respectfully, gentlemen.

“To the Delegates of the State, &c.”

Ordered, That a copy of the said Letter be engrossed, and subscribed by the President, and transmitted, and that the Secretaries enclose therein copies of all the Resolutions which have lately been ordered to the Delegates.

Die Martis, 8 ho. A. M., September 10, 1776.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Abraham Yates, Jun., Esq., President.

NEW-YORK.—Mr. Bancker, Mr. Robert Harper, Mr. Jay.
DUTCHESS.—Doctor Crane, Mr. Sackett, Captain Platt,
Mr. H. Schenck.

ALBANY.—Mr. Yates, General Ten Broeck, Mr. John Ten Broeck, Colonel Renselaer, Mr. Adgate, Colonel Livingston, Mr. Cuyler.

TRYON.—Mr. Harper, Mr. Veder, Mr. Moore.

SUFFOLK.—Mr. William Smith.

WESTCHESTER.—Major Lockwood, Mr. Zeb. Mills, Colonel Gilbert Drake, Mr. Jonathan Platt.

CHARLOTTE.—Mr. Webster.

ULSTER.—Mr. Wisner, Major Parks.

ORANGE.—Colonel Allison, Mr. Wisner.

CUMBERLAND.—Mr. Sessions, Mr. Stevens.

Mr. John Schenck, attending, informs the Committee he is ready to execute their orders.

Colonel Livingston informed the Committee that the following articles, mentioned in General James Clinton's return of necessities, for Forts Montgomery and Constitution, are in store at Fishkill Landing, and may be ordered out to Mr. John Schenck, for the Forts. Thereupon, the following Order was unanimously made, and signed by the President, viz:

“Please to deliver to Mr. John Schenck, out of the stores in your custody, the following articles for the use of Forts Montgomery and Constitution, taking his receipt for the same: Twenty-five spades, twenty-five bill-hooks, twelve shovels, five thousand weight of lead, (delivering first all the lump lead in store, and the residue in ball and buck-shot,) and seven skeins or balls of thread.

“To Nathaniel Sackett, Esq.”

The following Order was given to Mr. John Schenck, for supplying the Fortifications, instead of the order made by the Convention on the 7th instant, the copy whereof Mr. Schenck returned:

“SIR: You are requested with all despatch to procure the under-mentioned articles for the use of the garrisons of Forts Montgomery and Constitution; and as soon as they are ready to send them to Brigadier-General James Clinton, commander at the said garrisons, taking his receipts for the same, viz:

“An Armourer with all his tools complete; 50 wood-axes; 25 spades; 25 mattocks; 13 shovels; 20 wheel-barrows; 1000 weight of six-pound iron shot, 1000 weight of nine-pound ditto—one-half of each double-headed; 3,000 weight of grape shot from four to six ounces; 50 sets of great gun-carriage wheels; 32,000 bricks; 10,000 shingles; 700 weight of bar iron; 25 pounds of blistered steel; 400 weight of ten-penny nails; 300 weight of twenty-penny nails; 7,000 feet of three-inch oak plank; 20 hogsheds of lime; 2,000 tacks; 24 sheep skins; 1 large magazine lock; 2 pair shears; a quantity of oil and paint to paint the carriages; 1 dozen of flat and half round files; 1 dozen three-square ditto; 2 large sledges; 2 hand-vices; 10 broad-axes; 10 hand-saws; 10 hammers; 5 iron squares; 2 dozen nail gimblets; 6 pair of compasses; 5 sets of framing chisels and augers; 6 spike gimblets; 2 sets of match planes for inch and half inch plank; 10 pounds of twine.

By order:

“ABM. YATES, Jun., President.”

On motion, Ordered, That Colonel Curtenius be requested to acquaint the Convention with the quantities of bar and other Lead he has shipped off from New-York, the places where sent to, and the names of the persons in whose hands they are deposited, and of the residue of other Military Stores remaining in his hands.

Ordered, That Mr. Richard Norwood, Commissary, make a return to the Convention of this State, of the Stores by him lately delivered to Zebediah Mills, and of those sent to General Clinton's encampment, or otherwise sent out of the city of New-York, and of such Stores, if any, as he may have on hand.

Abraham W. Depeyster being called in at the request of a member, and desired to give such information respecting Joseph Reade, Esq., as he had heard, Mr. Depeyster having mentioned sundry matters which he had heard of him, was directed to withdraw, and reduce his testimony to writing, in form of an affidavit, and bring it to this Committee.

A Letter from Brigadier-General Peter Ten Broeck, dated the 23d August last, was read and filed. He thereby recommends several gentlemen for Field and Staff Officers of Colonel Graham's Regiment; some of the Field and other officers of that Regiment being now in service.

He also requests blank commissions for three Companies. He requests to know whether the custom of electing officers is to be continued, alleges that thereby officers are generally appointed who have no command over their men; which matter he submits, and requests an answer.

Colonel Renselaer, Captain Platt, and Colonel Livingston, to whom General Peter Ten Broeck's Letter was committed, reported a draft of an answer; which was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

"SIR: I am directed by the Committee of Safety to acquaint you in answer to your letter of the 23d of August, it is their opinion that the respective officers now on duty are to be and remain the officers of the different regiments to which they belong, unless they should be removed by the fate of war; and that no new commissions will be granted to fill up any vacancies occasioned by officers called out in the service; but that they return to their respective commands, at the expiration of the service they are now on.

"We shall forward you blank commissions for the three companies of Militia, provided the officers are now out in actual service. If so, they are in the same predicament as above, to which beg your answer.

"I am, respectfully, sir, &c.

"To Brigadier-General P. Ten Broeck, Dutchess County."

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

Colonel Livingston and Colonel Allison are appointed a Committee to report a plan of establishing Riders to the city of New-York.

Captain Zephaniah Platt informed the Committee that Mr. Guisbert Schenck, who has been requested to give information of the late conduct of William Warne, was attending at the door. Being called in and examined, his Deposition follows:

"DUTCHESS County, ss:

"Guisbert Schenck, of Dutchess County, being duly sworn, deposeth and saith: That William Warne lately informed the deponent that he had come from Nassau-Island; that he had been informed, and said it was the publick report on the island, that the American army had lost in killed and taken, about three thousand men; that he had also heard that the Royal army had lost about two hundred men. That he told the deponent that he had received his information from the Regulars and the Tories. That he also informed the deponent of a report that one man, by stratagem, had taken prisoners either ninety or ninety-nine of the American army, by informing them, when they had surrounded him, that they were then surrounded by a large number, and advising them to club their arms and go with him, with which the Americans complied, and were thereby taken prisoners. That he also informed the deponent that Suffolk County had all surrendered; that the General had sent them a message, that if they would testify their loyalty, they must send him two hundred wagons; and that they had sent about three hundred wagons to assist in removing baggage to Hell-Gate. That he also informed the deponent, that he had heard that the Regulars had thrown up a breastwork opposite to the fortification at Horne's Hook, and demolished it. That the said William Warne informed the deponent that he had left Nassau-Island on Friday last. That he gave it as his opinion that the Royal army would conquer America.

GYSBERT SCHENCK.

"Sworn this 10th day of September, 1776, before me:

"ABM. YATES, Jun., President."

Mr. Abraham W. De Peyster, agreeable to the directions given him this morning, brought in this Affidavit, to which he was sworn, and is in the words following, to wit:

"DUTCHESS County, ss:

"Abraham W. De Peyster being sworn, deposeth and saith: That on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, the 4th, 5th, and 6th days of September instant, he was at New-Rochelle, in the County of Westchester; that on one of the above named days he heard (as far as he can at present recollect) either Theodosius Barton, of New-Rochelle, aforesaid, or Anthony Abrahams, of the town of Westchester, in substance say, in a conversation this deponent had with the one or the other of them on the American contest, that Joseph Reade, late of the city of New-York, attorney-at-law, but at present, as this deponent understood, a resident in the town of Westchester, was reputed a great Tory. That the chief of his, the said Joseph Reade's conversation, was of the Tory kind; and that he, the said Joseph Reade, had reported, that in the late battle on Long-Island, between the American army and that of the King of Great Britain, the Americans had lost either seven or fourteen thousand men, (this deponent cannot now recollect which of the two numbers was mentioned, but rather thinks fourteen;) this deponent further says, that the amount of all he heard at New-Rochelle at the time aforesaid, respecting Joseph Reid, was that the said Joseph Reid was a great Tory, and very unfriendly to the American cause, and further this deponent saith not.

A. W. DE PEYSTER."

Sworn before me the 10th September, 1776:

ABM. YATES, Jun., President.

Ordered, That the said Deposition be transmitted to the Committee of Westchester County, with a Letter requesting them to proceed thereon.

A draft of a Letter to the Committee of Westchester County was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

"SIR: I am directed by the Committee of Safety of this State to send you the enclosed affidavit, and to request the Committee of Westchester County to make further inquiry into the conduct of the person charged, and take such other steps as shall seem proper to them.

"I am, sir, your very humble servant. By order.

"To the Chairman of the County Committee, Westchester."

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

Two Letters from Mr. Ebenezer Hazard, Postmaster, the first dated the 1st, and the other the 6th, day of September, instant, was read and filed.

In the first letter he informs that he had submitted the matter about the privateer, for which the Committee applied to him, to the other owners, and sent the letter from the Committee to those owners.

In the postscript to the first letter, and by his second letter, he submits to the Convention the propriety of establishing a rider from Dobbs's Ferry, where the post-office is, to Head-Quarters; and that the Albany post should ride alternately on each side of Hudson's river, from New-Windsor upwards, and on the east side only below Fishkill. And further informs that the Comptroller of the Post-Office had informed him that the Postmaster-General thought the office should be kept near Head-Quarters.

A draft of an answer to Mr. Hazard was reported by Mr. Robert Harper and General Ten Broeck, and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

"SIR: Yours of the 1st and 6th instant are now before us. I am in consequence directed to inform you that it is the desire of the Convention that the Albany post-rider should, in going from and returning to New-York, ride on the east side of Hudson's river, between the Fishkill and the said city, and that he cross the said river at the Fishkill or New-Windsor, when it is his turn to ride on the west side thereof; and the Convention have no objections to your keeping your office at Head-Quarters, or any other place which the postmaster may think proper.

"I am, sir, &c.

"To Mr. Ebenezer Hazard."

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed and signed by the President, and transmitted.

Mr. Moore reported that by virtue of the warrant of this Committee, he had impressed the Sloops of James Jackson and Martin Wiltse, to proceed to the city of New-York.

Die Martis, 4 ho. P. M., September 10, 1776.

The Committee of Safety met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Abraham Yates, Jun., Esq., President.

NEW-YORK.—Mr. Robert Harper, Mr. Jay.

DUTCHESS.—Dr. Crane, Mr. H. Schenck, Captain Platt.

ALBANY.—Mr. Ab. Yates, Colonel Renselaer, Mr. Cuyler,

General Ten Broeck, Colonel Livingston, Mr. Adgate.

TRYON.—Mr. William Harper, Mr. Moore, Mr. Veder.

SUFFOLK.—Mr. William Smith.

WESTCHESTER.—Colonel Gilbert Budd, Colonel Van Cortlandt, Mr. Joseph Platt, Mr. Zeb. Mills.

CHARLOTTE.—Major Webster.

ULSTER.—Mr. Wisner, Major Park.

ORANGE.—Mr. Wisner, Colonel Allison, Mr. Jos. Smith.

CUMBERLAND.—Mr. Sessions, Mr. Stevens.

A Member informed the Committee that three witnesses are, by order, attending at the door, to be examined as to the conduct and declarations of Mr. Warne.

Dr. Theodorus Van Wyck was first called in, and sworn. He delivered in his testimony in writing. Being cross-examined by William Warne, such additions thereto as became necessary were added; and the Affidavit is annexed to the next page.

Roeloff Schenck being duly sworn on the Holy Evangelists, deposeth and saith: That his brother, Guisbert Schenck, and others, were present at the conversation with William Warne; that the said Warne informed them that the enemy were in possession of Nassau-Island; that the inhabitants were making their submission; that he said that from the information he had received, the two armies of the enemy when they met would be near eighty thousand men; that he intimated that he thought the Americans would be overcome; that he seemed inclined to think that the Americans had best to submit; that he also said that he had been informed that the Regulars, by a battery or some works on Long-Island, had demolished the works at Horne's Hook; that he said he had his information from David Colden, Dr. Ogden, and others; that he said he heard a Highlander say that he had himself taken ninety-nine men; that he informed that he had seen many of the officers, both Hessians and others; that he said those called friends to Government, were distinguished by a piece of something red on their hats; that he said he was not disposed to fight in the affair on either side, and that he would be willing to comply with the measures of Government, for that he thought it would be in vain to resist, or words to that effect; that he further informed that he had heard that General Howe had sent down to the inhabitants of Suffolk County that if they did not submit he would send down his army and destroy them; that the different towns in that County had sent in addresses to the General; that he had directed them if they would testify their loyalty to send him two hundred wagons to transport cannon and baggage towards Newtown or Hell-Gate, and that the different towns had sent three hundred wagons; that he further said that he had been informed that Justice Kissam was administering oaths of allegiance to the inhabitants.

ROELOFF SCHENCK.

Sworn the 10th day of September, 1776, before me,

ABM. YATES, Jun., President.

I saw William Warnes the 7th instant, who told me he left Long-Island the 5th in the evening, and says the regular army on Long-Island is upward of thirty thousand strong; that ten thousand had lately arrived on Staten-Island; that fifteen thousand was daily expected; that Burgoyne's army of Regulars, Canadians, and Indians, was fifteen thousand; that they had spies throughout the Continent, and had intelligence of each other frequently; that in the late skirmishes on Long-Island we had lost in killed, prisoners, and wounded, two thousand five hundred; that when our troops evacuated Long-Island we left all our cannon and provisions; that our army behaved ill, saving two regiments, viz: a Jersey regiment and Colonel Lasher's regiment, the latter but a few escaped; that the Regulars' loss did not amount to two hundred; that General Woodhull was taken, with Increase Carpenter, in the said Carpenter's barn; that General Howe sent to the inhabitants of Suffolk to come in, and to show their loyalty to send down two hundred wagons; they immediately sent three hundred; he likewise told me he was almost a Tory, and advised us all to turn Tories, that the King would certainly overcome us; that the said William Warne informed him that he heard the above-mentioned matters from David Colden, a Surgeon of the Army, several of the Light-Horse, and Dr. Ogden; that he did not say that he knew any of these things of his own knowledge.

THEODORUS VAN WYCK, Jun.

Sworn before me the 10th September, 1776:

ABM. YATES, Jun., President.

Peter Horton being duly sworn on the Holy Evangelists, deposeth and saith: That William Warne informed him that he had seen the Regulars and some of the Hessian officers; that he said the Regulars had told him they had killed, wounded, and taken, three thousand of our men; that he said he reckoned they would beat us; that he said he was a Tory; that he told him one of the Regulars said he had killed one man and taken ninety-nine more, and that one of the Light-Horse had killed two Riflemen and taken two others; that this conversation was on last Saturday evening.

PETER HORTON.

Sworn the 10th day of September, 1776, before me:

ABM. YATES, Jun., President.

The Doorkeeper was directed to take the said William Warne to Captain Weeks' or any other place where he may be safely kept till to-morrow morning.

Colonel Livingston and Colonel Allison, the Committee to whom was referred the subject of employing Post-Riders, delivered in their Report, which was read.

Ordered, That the consideration thereof be postponed till to-morrow morning.

A Letter from Colonel Henry Remsen, dated at New-Haven, the 7th instant, was read. He therein informs that Mr. Peter Colt is agent for Colonel Trumbull, the Commissary-General; is employed up Hudson's river to purchase flour. He recommends Mr. Colt to the Members of the Convention to direct him where to apply for flour.

Ordered, That Colonel P. R. Livingston, Mr. Wisner, Captain Platt, Major Park, be a Committee to confer with Mr. Colt, and give him the best directions they can on that subject.

Colonel Remsen further informs by his said Letter that he is waiting at New-Haven for the arrival of Captain Harrison from Providence, which were imported by Mr. Van Zandt and himself for the State of New-York; that he expects them soon, and requests directions how to dispose of, or where to lodge the said goods.

Ordered, That that part of Colonel Remsen's Letter which relates to the Dry Goods be deferred for consideration till to-morrow morning.

Major Schenck informed the Convention that Captain Wiltse's Sloop, which was impressed to go to New-York for the Sick, is delayed for want of a Master; that Captain Wiltse's wife is in such a situation that he cannot go abroad, and that Captain Bush declines going.

Ordered, That Major Schenck go to the landing, and endeavour to procure some proper person to proceed with the said Sloop immediately.

N. B. Colonel Renselaer obtained the consent of all the Members present to go home and take charge of his Regiment, to furnish their quota of men, and to prepare and command the Regiment should they be generally called to action.

Die Mercurii, 9 ho. A. M., September 11, 1776.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Abraham Yates, Jun., President.

NEW-YORK.—Mr. Robert Harper, Mr. Duane, Mr. Bancker, Mr. Jay.

DUTCHESS.—Dr. Crane, Mr. Zeph. Platt, Mr. Sackett.

ALBANY.—Mr. Yates, Mr. John Ten Broeck, Mr. Cuyler, Mr. Adgate, General Ten Broeck, Colonel Livingston, Mr. Robert Yates.

TRYON.—Mr. Moore, Mr. Harper, Mr. Veder.

SUFFOLK.—Mr. William Smith.

ORANGE.—Mr. Wisner, Colonel Allison, Mr. Joseph Smith.

CHARLOTTE.—Major Webster.

ULSTER.—Mr. Wisner, Jun., Major Parks.

WESTCHESTER.—Colonel Cortlandt, Colonel Gilbert Drake, Mr. Haviland, Mr. Jonathan Platt, Mr. Zeb. Mills.

CUMBERLAND.—Mr. Stevens, Mr. Sessions.

The Report of the Committee on the subject of employing Post-Riders to New-York, was again read. After some time spent thereon it was referred to the Convention of this State.

Colonel Remsen's Letter of the 7th instant, from New-Haven, was again read. He therein requested directions how to dispose of a parcel of Dry-Goods imported by Mr. Van Zandt and himself, for the use and on the account of this State.

Thereupon a draft of an answer to Colonel Remsen was read and approved of, and is in the words following, viz:

"SIR: Your letter, by Mr. Colt, has been received, and the necessary instructions given him.

"You will be pleased to transport the goods you mention to Fishkill, in the most cheap and expeditious manner, and by no means suffer any of them to be detained or sold.

"When the Convention shall be particularly informed of the circumstances of the inhabitants who have lately quitted Long-Island, they will doubtless make such a provision for them as humanity and the condition of this State may render necessary and proper. We are, &c. By order.

"To Colonel Henry Remsen."

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

On consideration of the case of William Warne, the Committee came to the following determination, viz:

Whereas, William Warne has been guilty of propagating divers false reports calculated to injure the American cause, and hath also confessed to certain persons that he was a Tory, and that in his opinion it was best for the country to submit to its enemies:

Resolved, That the said William Warne be committed to the Gaol of this County for one month. That the superintendents of the ship-yards at Poughkeepsie be requested and authorized to take the said Warne out of Gaol every morning, and set him to work in the yards, and return him to Gaol every night; and that they pay him weekly such wages as his labour may be reasonably worth.

Resolved, That at the expiration of the said month, the said Gaoler bring the said William Warne before the Convention, or a Committee of Safety of this State, whichever of them may be then sitting, to the end that he may abide such further order as may be then made concerning him.

Ordered, That Captain Evert Wynkoop Swart, or the next commanding officer of his Company send, with all possible despatch, two trusty Sentinels, well armed and accoutred, ready to proceed to execute such orders as they may receive from this Committee of Safety.

Whereas the Rev. Samuel Seabury, of the Borough of Westchester, in the County of Westchester, is notoriously disaffected to the American cause, and from his vicinity to the enemy, has opportunities of rendering them essential services:

Resolved, That Colonel Joseph Drake be directed forthwith to remove the said Samuel Seabury from Westchester to the house of Colonel John Brinckerhoff, at this place, to remain there till the further order of the Convention, or Committee of Safety of this State; and that he be not permitted to leave the farm of the said Colonel Brinckerhoff except in company with the Colonel.

On motion, Ordered, That Colonel Cortlandt, Mr. Jay, and Mr. Robert Harper, be a Committee to inquire into the circumstances of the Rev. Mr. Samuel Seabury and his, and report thereon to the Convention.

Ordered, That the President sign, and that one of the Secretaries countersign, six blank Commissions, to be delivered to Mr. Crane for certain officers in Dutchess County, and five others for certain officers in the County of Ulster, to be delivered to Christopher Tappen, Esq.

Major Schenck informed the Committee that in obedience to their order of last night, he had endeavoured to procure hands to navigate the Sloop from the landing of this place to New-York, to remove the Sick to Orange Town, but that he has not been able to procure any.

Therefore, Resolved, That Henry Schenck, Esq., be and is hereby authorized and empowered to impress a river Sloop, with a Master and men to navigate her, and that Mr. Schenck cause the said Sloop to proceed immediately to the city of New-York to remove such indisposed persons of the Army as General Washington or Dr. Morgan, the Director-General of the Hospital, shall be pleased to order on board to Orange Town, in the County of Orange.

Die Jovis, 9 ho. A. M., September 12, 1776.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Abraham Yates, Jun., Esq., President.

NEW-YORK.—Mr. Bancker, Mr. Robert Harper, Mr. Duane, Mr. Jay.

DUTCHESS.—Doctor Crane, Captain Zeph. Platt, Mr. Sackett.

ALBANY.—Mr. Ab. Yates, General Ten Broeck, Colonel Livingston, Mr. Adgate, Mr. Robt. Yates, Mr. Cuyler, Mr. Jno. Ten Broeck.

TRYON.—Mr. Moore, Mr. Harper, Mr. Veder.

SUFFOLK.—Mr. William Smith.

WESTCHESTER.—Colonel V. Cortlandt, Colonel Gilbert Drake, Mr. Haviland, Mr. Jonath. Platt.

CHARLOTTE.—Major Webster.

ULSTER.—Mr. Wisner, Jun., Major Parks.

ORANGE.—Mr. Wisner, Colonel Allison, Mr. Jos. Smith.

CUMBERLAND.—Mr. Sessions, Mr. Stevens.

Egbert Dumond, Esq., of Kingston, in Ulster County, delivered to the Committee a Letter from General Schuyler, directed to the President, and which General Schuyler desired to be sent by express.

He also produced to this Committee a Letter from General Schuyler to the Committee of Ulster County, requesting their Militia to march to Albany immediately. Also an extract of intelligence received from Lake Champlain.

Mr. Dumond says, that he was desired by their Committee to bring General Schuyler's Letter to the President. But there appeared reason to believe that the Committee of Ulster desired to have the sentiments of the Committee, whether they should supply the detachments from their Militia, for the Garrisons in the Highlands.

Thereupon the Committee of Safety made the following determination, to wit:

The Committee of Safety have taken into consideration General Schuyler's Letter of the 9th instant to the Committee of Ulster, and by them transmitted to this Committee:

Thereupon, Resolved, That the Levies directed by the Convention to be raised in that County, to reinforce the Garrisons in the Highlands, be immediately completed, and the more so, as General Washington concurs with the Convention in thinking those Levies highly necessary for the defence of those important posts.

And it is the opinion of this Committee, that the remainder of the Militia of Ulster ought to comply with such requisitions and directions as they have, or may receive from General Schuyler.

Whereas the Publick Accounts of this State, to be laid before the Continental Treasury Board, to be audited and passed, are, in a great measure, delayed for want of the accounts of the expenditures of the publick moneys which have passed through the hands of Egbert Dumond, Esq.:

Ordered, That Egbert Dumond, Esq., render Accounts to the Treasurer, or to the Auditor-General, of all the Publick Moneys which have been put into his hands by the Representatives of this State, with all possible despatch.

Ordered, That one of the Secretaries deliver to Egbert Dumond, Esq., a copy of the above order, and the preamble thereof.

A Letter from Major-General Schuyler, dated at Albany, on the 9th instant, was read, and follows, viz:

"Albany, September 9, 1776.

"GENTLEMEN: In consequence of information received from Colonel Dayton on Friday last, that a body of the enemy were to be at Oswego on the 4th instant, and that another body were actually on their march to the Mohawk river, I have requested the Committee of this County to order up the Militia, and they are now convening here.

"At half past ten this morning, I received a letter from General Gates, dated the 6th instant, at Tyconderoga, in which he gives me the following extract of a letter from Lieutenant-Colonel Hartley to him, dated from Crown-Point at two o'clock on Friday:

"There has been a very heavy cannonade down the Lake all this morning. It is undoubtedly between our fleet and the enemy, so that you may prepare accordingly. I have sent down a boat just now to know more particularly."

"This intelligence has induced me to call on the neighbouring Counties in the New-England States, and those of Dutchess and Ulster in this, to march their Militia up. Future accounts from General Gates or Colonel Dayton must determine which way I am to march the Militia, whether to Ticonderoga or to the westward. Our army is in the greatest distress for medicines, and this, in common with all the other misfortunes that have attended our Northern operations, is imputed to me. I am happy that I have it in my power not only to exculpate myself on the most minute and critical inquiry, but that I can point out the source of most of our disasters in this department. Your respectable body will not be displeased at this declaration, since you have, more immediately, cause to wish that I may have discharged my duty with propriety, as by your recommendation I was appointed to a command which, notwithstanding your favourable opinion of me, I knew I was incompetent to, and therefore reluctantly accepted the arduous task.

"Envy, detraction, and the most unbecoming jealousy have followed from the beginning. I hope I have properly resented every calumny where I could fix it on individuals. To exculpate myself from the general clamour, I have entreated Congress to make the strictest inquiry into my conduct, that if I am culpable, I may meet with the detestation of my fellow-citizens; if not, and that others are, that the publick resentment may be transferred to the proper object. I have even ventured to declare that 'I do not believe I shall be even convicted of an error in judgment.' As twenty-four days are already elapsed since I requested an inquiry, and have not been honoured with any answer, and as the calumny against me increases with rapidity, I have by this conveyance advised Congress and General Washington of my intentions to resign, and as soon as I return from Tryon County or Ticonderoga, and that I will in some other way strive to evince my affection for my country and my zeal in its cause.

"I hope this step will meet your approbation, and although I am not at liberty to lay before you such proofs as I trust will clearly and fully acquit me of any impropriety of conduct, yet it may hereafter be my duty to do it, as well for my own justification as for that of the Provincial Congress, who wrote so partially in my favour to the Continental Congress.

"I am, gentlemen, with the greatest respect and esteem, your most obedient, humble servant,

"PH. SCHUYLER.

"To the honourable the Provincial Congress of the State of New-York."

Ordered, That Mr. Cuyler, Mr. Duane, Mr. William Harper, Mr. Robert Yates, and Mr. Sessions, be a Committee to consider of the said Letter from General Schuyler, and report thereon with all convenient speed.

Whereas the Convention of the Representatives of this State, did, on the 7th instant, order a draft of a Commission to be prepared for the Field Officers of the Detachment of the Militia of Ulster, Orange, Dutchess, and Albany, to reinforce the Garrisons of the Fortifications in the Highlands; which draft of a Commission has remained several days, but there has not since been a representation of this State in Convention, to approve of the same. And whereas it is necessary for the despatch of those Detachments that a Commission issue to Johannes Snider, Esq.,* the Colonel appointed by Convention to command the same; and the said draft of a Commission and an engrossed copy thereof, has been read and approved by this Committee:

Therefore, from the necessity of the case, Ordered, That the President sign, and that one of the Secretaries attest the said engrossed copy of a Commission for Colonel Snider, and that it be forwarded to him by Egbert Dumond, Esq.

Which was done accordingly.

Whereas the time limited for the absence of Robert R. Livingston and William Duer, Esquires, from the Convention of this State, hath expired, and neither of them hath returned:

Resolved, That Sampson Dyckman, the Messenger, be directed to summon those gentlemen to return immediately to the House, and that they pay a reasonable compensation to the Messenger for his trouble and expenses.

Resolved, further, That the said Messenger summon all the absent Members who may reside or be between this place and the north bounds of the Manor of Livingston, to attend immediately, except Gilbert Livingston.

Ordered, That Mr. Robert Harper prepare a draft of a Letter to General George Clinton, requesting him to inform the Convention of the state of the Chevaux-de-Frise, and other obstructions to the navigation of Hudson's River, opposite to Fort Washington.

Ordered, That Colonel Peter R. Livingston have leave of absence, to depart on Saturday, and return on Tuesday.

Ordered, That the President send Letters to such absent Members as are not otherwise on duty, desiring their immediate attendance.

A Letter from Colonel Swartwout, of General Clinton's Brigade, dated the 10th instant, was read:

He therein mentions that Lieutenant Colonel Ferris, of his Regiment, on account of his indisposition, had obtained leave from their Brigadier-General to return to his family; that he will probably not be fit for service this campaign, and he recommends a promotion of the present officers now in service. Colonel Swartwout also claims the first rank in the Brigade to his Regiment.

A long Letter from Brigadier-General George Clinton, dated the 8th instant, was also read:

Amongst other things he mentions the frequent desertions from his Brigade, and encloses a return of the Brigade, whereby it appears that five hundred and ninety-six men are deficient. That the deficiency arises from the different Militia Regiments not having furnished their quotas, and from desertions.

He encloses therein a list of Dutchess County deserters; a petition of complaint against William Fordman, the Surgeon of Colonel Graham's Regiment; the testimony of some witnesses against William Mahany and Gilbert Tippet, by him confined for practices and declarations inimical to American liberty.

Ordered, That General Ten Broeck, Mr. Zeph. Platt, Dr. Crane, Colonel Allison, and Mr. Wisner, Jun., be a Committee to consider of and report on the Letters of General George Clinton and Colonel Swartwout, and the Papers

* In Convention of the Representatives of the State of NEW-YORK.

To JOHANNES SNYDER, Esq., greeting:

Whereas this Convention did, on the 7th day of September, instant, direct and order the raising and embodying out of the Militia of the Counties of Albany, Ulster, Dutchess, and Orange, six hundred men, exclusive of commissioned officers, to be formed into a battalion in order to reinforce the garrison in Forts Montgomery and Constitution, in the Highlands: Now, therefore, we, the Representatives of the State of New-York, reposing especial trust and confidence in your patriotism, valour, conduct and fidelity, do, by these presents, constitute and appoint you, in addition to your command as Colonel of the First Battalion of the Militia of the County of Ulster, to be Colonel of the troops so to be raised and regimented. You are therefore carefully and diligently to discharge the duty of Colonel of the said troops so to be raised, by doing and performing all manner of things thereunto belonging. And we do strictly charge and require all officers and soldiers under your command, to be obedient to your orders as Colonel aforesaid; and you are to observe and follow such orders and directions from time to time, as you shall receive from this, or a future Convention of the State of New-York, or of the Congress of the United States of America, or any other your superior officers, according to the rules and discipline of war, in pursuance of the trust reposed in you. This commission to continue in force until the said troops so to be raised and regimented shall be discharged.

Attest:

By order of the Convention.

attending the same. And that the said Committee do also report a Resolution to prevent harbouring Deserters.*

The Convention of this State, and the Committee of Safety of the State in the recess of the Convention, have frequent occasion for guards to apprehend dangerous and disaffected persons:

Resolved, That Melancthon Smith, Esq., Captain-Commandant of the three Companies raised in the Counties of Dutchess and Westchester, cause a detachment of a Sergeant and twelve Men to attend this Committee without delay.

Colonel Drake has leave of absence to return on Tuesday evening next.

Ordered, That Major Schenck be requested and authorized to cause to be apprehended and brought before this Committee, a certain Reily, suspected of being a Deserter from the Army of the United American States; and that Major Schenck use his discretion as to the mode of apprehending him, with power to demand the assistance of any Officer of the Militia, or other person or persons, in the execution hereof.†

Mr. Jay informed the Committee that he can employ Abraham De Peyster to assist in bringing up the Records of the Convention of this State, and desired to know whether the Committee will authorize him to apply to the said Abraham De Peyster on that subject.

Agreed, That Mr. Jay have leave to apply to converse with Abraham De Peyster on this subject, and report the result or terms proposed, to this Committee.

Die Veneris, 9 ho. A. M., September 13, 1776.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment.

NEW-YORK.—Mr. Bancker, Mr. Robert Harper, *Mr. Duane.

CHARLOTTE.—*Mr. Webster.

ALBANY.—*Mr. Abraham Yates, General Ten Broeck, Mr. John Ten Broeck, Colonel P. R. Livingston, Mr. Adgate, *Mr. Cuyler.

CUMBERLAND.—Mr. Sessions and Mr. Stevens.

SUFFOLK.—Mr. William Smith.

WESTCHESTER.—Mr. Haviland, Mr. Jonathan Platt, *Colonel V. Cortlandt.

ULSTER.—Major Park, Mr. Wisner, Jun.

ORANGE.—Mr. Wisner, Colonel Allison, Mr. Jos. Smith.

TRYON.—Mr. Moore, Mr. William Harper, Mr. Veder.

Those gentlemen whose names are marked with asterisms are a quorum of the Committee of Safety.

Ordered, That Colonel Livingston have leave of absence till to-morrow week, the order of yesterday notwithstanding.

The Committee are informed that the services and attendance of Matthew Vischer, Esq., as Clerk to the Secretary to the Committee in the City and County of Albany, is absolutely necessary:

* Your Committee, to whom was referred General George Clinton's Letter of the 8th September, and Colonel Swartwout's of the 10th, with sundry other Papers, and to report a Resolution to prevent harbouring Deserters, do report:

That as the time for which Colonel Remsen's Regiment were enlisted is expired, they ought not to be holden.

Your Committee are of opinion, that circular letters from the President be forthwith forwarded to the Colonels of the several Battalions from which General Clinton's Brigade was detached, directing them, without delay, where they have not done it, to furnish their respective quotas, and to use their utmost efforts to apprehending and sending, under proper guards, all deserters or drafts who have neglected joining and marching with their respective companies, which guard shall receive a proper reward for their service, and a letter wrote to Captain Melancthon Smith, with a list of the names of the deserters from the regiments raised in Dutchess County, and the endeavour to have them apprehended.

Ordered, That Major Schenck be authorized and requested to cause to be apprehended and brought before this Committee, a certain Rieley, suspected of being a Deserter from the Army of the United American States; and that Major Schenck use his discretion as to the mode of apprehending him, with power to demand the assistance of any officer of the Militia, or other person or persons, in the execution hereof. Extract from the Minutes: ROBERT BENSON, Secretary.

Agreeable to the enclosed order, I this morning went to the place where the suspected person within named was supposed to be at work. I was informed that the person so suspected has been at the house of Mr. Isaac Schultz, and he told Mr. Schultz that he intended to make the best of his way to Pennsylvania, and accordingly went off.

September 13, 1776.

HENRY SCHENCK.

Therefore, Resolved, That the said Matthew Vischer, Esq., be exempted from all military duty during his continuance in the exercise of the said offices.

A Letter from Mr. Ebenezer Hazard, dated yesterday, was read and filed. He says he cannot see any reason why the Albany Post should not continue to ride on the east side of Hudson's River as far as Fishkill, though "the Comptroller desires his route may not be altered until there is an absolute necessity or order from the Postmaster General." In a postscript to his Letter, he mentions that some postage is due to him, and requests an order for payment.

Ordered, That Mr. McKesson, one of the Secretaries of the Convention of this State, pay the postage due to Mr. Hazard, and charge the same to this State.

A letter from General George Clinton, dated at King's Bridge, the 12th instant, and directed to Mr. McKesson, was read. He therein gives information of the state of the army near him, and of the enemy; and from the intelligence therein contained, there is reason to believe that Samuel Gale and Isaac Ludlum, of Orange County, have a correspondence with persons inimical, now on Nassau Island.

This Committee being informed that Samuel Gale and Isaac Ludlum, of Orange County, are concerned in a dangerous correspondence with the enemy,

Resolved, That Colonel Allison immediately repair to Orange County, and take such methods as he may think proper to have the said Samuel Gale and Isaac Ludlum immediately apprehended, together with all papers on the subject of the present troubles, or relative thereto, and cause them, with the said papers, to be forthwith brought before this Committee or the Convention of this State; and for that purpose that he be authorized to search the houses and all such other places belonging to them as he may judge necessary.

The Committee were informed of sundry speeches and declarations of Jacob Peets, Johannes Snider, Andries Hart, and John Archibald, of Ulster County, whereby it appears to this Committee that they are dangerous persons, inimical to the cause of American liberty.

Resolved and ordered, That the Committee of Hanover Precinct, in that County, be and hereby are directed to have those persons apprehended, examined, and secured; and that they report their proceedings to the County Committee of that County.

The Sub-Committee to whom were referred the letter from Major-General Schuyler, of the 9th instant, and the letters from Comfort Sands and Thomas Grant, have, according to order, taken the same into consideration; and, first, that part of the General's letter communicating information that a body of the enemy were expected at Oswego on the 4th instant, and another body actually on their march to the Mohawk river; and that there had been a very heavy cannonade down Lake Champlain on the morning of the 6th instant, between our fleet and that of the enemy; that in consequence of this intelligence he had ordered up the Militia of the Counties of Albany, Ulster, and Dutchess, to be employed to the northward and westward, as might, from future accounts, become necessary. Upon which your Committee observe that the following drafts have already been made, and directed to be made, from the Militia of Dutchess and Ulster Counties, to wit: In pursuance of a resolution of the Provincial Congress of the 7th of June last, from Dutchess, embodied in Brigadier-General Scott's Brigade, posted near the city of New-York, three hundred and thirty-five men; from Ulster, for the same service, three hundred men; a further draft, agreeable to a resolution of the Convention of this State of the 19th of July last, of one fourth of the remaining Militia of each of the said Counties, which form a part of Brigadier-General Clinton's Brigade, and are stationed at or near King's Bridge; and a third draft, directed by the Convention on the 7th instant, of one hundred and seventy-five men from Dutchess, and two hundred from Ulster, to reinforce the Garrisons of Forts Montgomery and Constitution, in the Highlands. That when the last-mentioned drafts shall be completed, it is supposed that dependence cannot be made on more than seven hundred armed and well-affected Militia in the County of Dutchess, or on more than one thousand in the County of Ulster. That the Fortresses in the Highlands (which are of the utmost consequence to the common cause of America) will, even after receiving such reinforcements, be far from a state of security. That in case of an attack on those Fortresses, or any sudden irruption of our open, or insurrection of our concealed, enemies, no relief can at present be expected from the armies or Militia to the southward or northward.

From these circumstances, and considering, further, that many of the Militia of the County of Dutchess are disaffected, your Sub-Committee are of opinion that no more of the Militia can, with any regard to the common safety, be spared from the Counties of Dutchess and Ulster. Having, however, the highest confidence in General Schuyler's judgment and zeal for the common cause, we cannot advise that his order for the march of the Militia of the said Counties should be superseded by act of the Committee of Safety, but rather that a member be immediately despatched to confer with the General, that, fully apprised of the reasons which influence the opinion of this Sub-Committee, he may be satisfied of the danger of drawing all the Militia from those Counties, and give such directions as shall appear to him most salutary in this difficult and arduous conjuncture.

Your Sub-Committee are further of opinion that General Schuyler be informed, with respect to the subject-matter of the two last-mentioned letters, that there are a quantity of medicines at Poughkeepsie, in the hands of Gerardus Duyckink and Doctor Tappan, and a further quantity at New-Rochelle, in the hands of Comfort Sands, the original costs of which last appears to be £340 sterling; such part of which as shall, in the judgment of the Director of the Hospital or his agent, be found serviceable, may be purchased for the use of the Continental Army, the Convention having directed them to be reserved for that purpose; and that the letters from Mr. Sands and Mr. Grant, and the invoice enclosed in the latter, be transmitted to the General, for his better information.

The Sub-Committee are further of opinion that the remaining part of the General's letter, which more immediately relates to himself, be referred to the consideration of the Convention at their first meeting.

The said Report being read, and again read, by paragraphs, and amended,

Resolved, That this Committee does agree with their Sub-Committee in their said Report. And Resolved, That Jacob Cuyler, Esq., be the Member to wait upon General Schuyler for the purpose mentioned in the foregoing Report.

Ordered, That a Letter be written by the President to General George Clinton, requesting him to cause the Medicines and Hospital Stores, which were lately left at the house of Aaron Bussing, near the Church in Haerlem, to be removed to some place of safety near his encampment, or where he may think them most safe from the enemy.

A draft of a Letter to General George Clinton, respecting the obstructions to the navigation of Hudson's river, was read and approved, and is in the words following, viz:

"SIR: Being informed by a member of the Convention that some of the cheveux-de-frise intended to be effectually sunk in Hudson's river, were, a few days ago, floating with the tide, I am directed to request the favour of you to inform me what probability there is of the permanence of those machines, their distance, and whether you conceive the navigation of the enemy's fleet is thereby obstructed.

"If you have any thing else to communicate on this subject, whereby defects may be repaired and the plan more effectually executed, it will be of important service to the State. I am, sir, &c.

"To General George Clinton."

Ordered, That a copy of the said Letter be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

Certain Resolutions to prevent a correspondence with the enemy, by preventing persons from travelling in this State from one County to another without a Pass, were proposed and read.

Debates arose thereon, and they were committed to Mr. Jay to report thereon.

ULSTER.—Major Park, Mr. Wisner, Jun.

Only three Members of the quorum of the Committee of Safety attending, viz: those gentlemen whose names are marked with asterisms, the Committee could not proceed to business for want of a sufficient quorum; and therefore adjourned till to-morrow morning at nine o'clock.

CONVENTION.

Die Sabbati, 9 ho. A. M., September 14, 1776.

The Convention met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Abraham Yates, Jun., Esq.

NEW-YORK.—Mr. Bancker, Mr. Robert Harper, Mr. Duane.

DUTCHESS.—Dr. Crane, Mr. Sackett, Major Schenck, Captain Zeph. Platt, Mr. R. R. Livingston.

ALBANY.—Mr. Abraham Yates, General Ten Broeck, Mr. John Ten Broeck, Mr. Adgate, Mr. Robert Yates.

TRYON.—Mr. Harper, Mr. Moore, Mr. Veder.

SUFFOLK.—Mr. William Smith.

WESTCHESTER.—Mr. Haviland, Mr. Jonathan Platt, Mr. Zebediah Mills.

CHARLOTTE.—Major Webster, Mr. Duer.

ULSTER.—Mr. Wisner, Jun., Major Park.

ORANGE.—Mr. Wisner, Mr. Jos. Smith.

CUMBERLAND.—Mr. Stevens, Mr. Sessions.

The information and representation of Lieutenant-Colonel Benjamin Birdsall, and also the representation of Lieutenant Thomas Williams, of Captain Nostrand's Company, as to the state of Colonel Smith's Regiment raised on Nassau-Island, each dated the 6th instant, were respectively read.

Ordered, That they be deferred for consideration until the state of Nassau-Island is taken into consideration, or further information can be obtained.

Henry Wisner, Esq., informed the Committee that a large quantity of Saltpetre, in the hands of several persons, is ready to be purchased, and requested an order on the Treasury for £200.

Ordered, That the Treasurer of this State pay to Henry Wisner, Esq., the sum of £200, to purchase Saltpetre; that the Treasurer take a receipt for the same; and that Mr. Wisner hereafter render an account to the Convention of the expenditure of that money.

Mr. Joseph Smith has leave of absence for three days, this day included; then to return or send a Member from that County in his place.

N. B. Robert R. Livingston, Esq., and William Duer, Esq., attended, whereby there is a representation of this State in Convention.

The names of those gentlemen are added to the Members of their respective Counties, and the Convention proceeded to business.

Whereas the present critical situation of this State, and the important objects the Convention have in view, render it necessary that the good people of this State should be fully and constantly represented in this Convention:

Resolved, therefore, That all the Members of this Convention do forthwith, and at all times during the session thereof, regularly give their attendance at it, except such of the Members as now are, or hereafter may be, absent by order of the Convention.

Ordered, That copies of the foregoing Resolution be immediately transmitted to the Committees of all the Counties in this State, except those of Richmond, King's, Queen's, Suffolk, and the City and County of New-York, and to all the Members of those five Counties who may not be in the power of the enemy.

Ordered, That the Committee appointed to report a form of Government, do report with all convenient speed.

Mr. Jay, according to order, reported the draft of certain Resolutions for granting Passes to travellers and Licenses to Inn-Keepers. The same were read, and adjourned for further consideration.

Mr. Joshua H. Smith obtained leave of absence till Monday next.

Ordered, That Sa. Dyckman, the Messenger, be directed to serve and deliver copies of the above Resolution, requiring the regular attendance of the Members of this Convention.

Mr. Jay reported a set of Resolutions to prevent persons travelling without papers, which were read, and adjourned.

Die Sabbati, 4 ho. P. M., September 14, 1776.

The Convention met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Abraham Yates, Jun., Esq., President.

NEW-YORK.—Mr. Bancker, Mr. Robert Harper, Mr. Duane, Mr. Jay.

DUTCHESS.—Mr. Sackett, Major Schenck, Captain Zeph. Platt, Dr. Crane, Robert R. Livingston.

ALBANY.—Mr. Abraham Yates, General Ten Broeck, Mr. Robert Yates, Mr. Adgate, John Ten Broeck.

TRYON.—Mr. Moore, Mr. William Harper, Mr. Veder.

SUFFOLK.—Mr. William Smith.

WESTCHESTER.—Mr. Mills, Mr. Jonathan Platt, Mr. Haviland.

CHARLOTTE.—Mr. Duer, Major Webster.

ULSTER.—Mr. Wisner, Jun., Major Parks.

ORANGE.—Mr. Wisner.

CUMBERLAND.—Mr. Stevens, Mr. Sessions.

Henry Wisner, Esq., of Orange County, obtained leave of absence, to return on Monday next.

On motion, or request, of Mr. Jay, the Letter from Brigadier-General Scott, dated the 6th instant, and read in the Committee of Safety on the 9th instant, was read and committed to Mr. Robert Yates, Mr. Jay, and Mr. Duer.

Mr. Duer produced a draft of certain Resolutions to encourage persons upwards of fifty years, in the respective districts in this State, to form themselves into military Companies for the defence of their liberties, lives, and properties.

The same being read and moved for, and seconded, debates arose thereon. After some time spent therein they were committed to Dr. Crane, Mr. Robert R. Livingston, and Mr. Duer, to reconsider the same and report thereon.

A short Letter from General George Clinton, dated at King's Bridge, the 13th instant, was read.

He therein informs that he had examined the bearers, William Tredwell and Benjamin Ludlum, and sent their examinations to General Washington, and had sent the bearers to this Convention for further examination.

A short Letter of the said Tredwell and Ludlum to General Washington, and which was handed over to General Clinton, and enclosed, was also read.

Ordered, That Mr. Duane and Mr. Robert Yates be a Committee to examine the said William Tredwell and Benjamin Ludlum.

And Ordered, That as soon as their examinations are taken by the said Committee, they be taken into custody of Lieutenant Robert Brett, or such guard of the Militia as he may appoint for that purpose, and detained in custody until further order of this Convention.

Mr. Sackett informed the Convention that five or six soldiers from Philips's Precinct, in Dutchess County, are unarmed at the Forts in the Highlands, and that the Committee of that Precinct requests an order to purchase Arms for them at the publick expense, on an engagement of the Committee that the said Arms be restored to the State.

Ordered, That the Sub-Committee of Philips's Precinct be, and hereby are, empowered to purchase five or six Arms for the use of the said soldiers; the said Arms to be paid for by this State, and the said Sub-Committee to be accountable so far for the said Arms as to see that they are restored to the State by being delivered to a Commissary of Military Stores of this State only, that the State may not lose those Arms.

Ordered, That the Secretary write a Letter to the Auditor-General of this State and request his attendance on this Convention, and that he therein inform the Auditor-General that the reason of requesting his attendance is to point out the persons, or their particular accounts wanting, which prevent stating the accounts of this State with the United States.

A Letter received this afternoon, from his Excellency General Washington, dated the 12th instant, was read, and follows, viz:

“Head-Quarters, New-York, September 12, 1776.

“SIR: I yesterday received the favour of your letter of the 9th, with its several enclosures, and am extremely happy that your honourable body had anticipated my recommendation by resolving on an augmentation of six hundred men to the garrisons in the Highlands. The importance of those posts demands the utmost attention and every exertion to maintain them.

“The vessels for the removal of the sick are not yet arrived. Their present situation gives me great anxiety. As the wind is now favourable, I would fain hope that a sufficient number will come down to-day to take in the whole. If they do not, my distress will be much increased.

“General Clinton, in a letter of the 8th, transmitted me a list of artillery and ordnance stores wanted at Forts Montgomery and Constitution, which included the several articles you have determined to procure, except those mentioned below.* I directed that they should be sent up, but as the situation of our affairs at this time may not perhaps admit of it, I think it will be prudent for Mr. Schenck, whom you have appointed an agent in this instance, to get all he can. Should he be able to obtain the supply you have voted necessary, and General Clinton's demand be complied with also, no damage will be done. Our stores will not be too large.

“I have the honour to be, with great respect, sir, your most obedient servant,

“GO. WASHINGTON.

[In Convention of the Representatives of the State of New-York, Fishkill, September 14, 1776.]

Whereas the present critical situation of this State, and the important objects the Convention have in view, render it necessary that the good people of this State should be fully and constantly represented in this Convention:

Resolved, therefore, That all the Members of this Convention do forthwith, and at all times during the session thereof, regularly give their attendance at it; except such of the Members as now are or hereafter may be absent by order of the Convention.

Ordered, That copies of the foregoing Resolution be immediately transmitted to the Committees of all the Counties in this State, except those of Richmond, King's, Queen's, Suffolk, and the City and County of New-York, and to all the Members of those five Counties who may not be in the power of the enemy.

CUMBERLAND.—Mr. Stevens, Mr. Sessions.

The Convention was informed that through the absence of General Morris, the Militia of Westchester County are not so properly arranged and managed as they ought to be at this critical juncture, occasioned by the absence of General Morris:

Therefore, Resolved, That General Morris, now at the General Congress, do immediately return and resume the command of his Brigade.

Ordered, That the President enclose a copy of the foregoing Resolution in a Letter to General Morris, and transmit the same to General Morris with the utmost despatch.

Ordered, That Mr. Duane and Mr. Robert Yates be a Committee to examine Samuel Gale, who has been brought here in custody, by order of the Committee of Safety.

Ordered, That Mr. Hobart, Mr. R. R. Livingston, and Mr. Duer, be a Committee to report what further measures are necessary to bring Abraham Lott, Esq., to account to this Convention for the publick Moneys now in his hands, as Treasurer of the Colony of New-York.

Whereas Ezra L'Hommedieu, Esq., Loan officer of the County of Suffolk, did some time since deposit into the Treasury of this Convention, the sum of four hundred and twenty Pounds, which he had received of sundry persons for principal and interest, due on the several sums by them respectively borrowed of him as Loan officer as aforesaid:

Resolved, That the Treasurer of this State do immediately pay to Egbert Benson, Esq., Chairman of the Committee of Dutchess County, the above sum of four hundred and twenty Pounds, and that the receipt of the said Egbert Benson shall be a sufficient discharge to the Treasurer for the payment of the same.

Ordered, That Egbert Benson apply the said sum of money to the payment of the wages and subsistence due to the Companies under the command of Captain Melancthon Smith.

Resolved, That Colonel Allison, Mr. R. R. Livingston, and Mr. Wisner, Sen., be and are hereby appointed a Committee of Correspondence. That they be and hereby are authorized to establish Post-Riders between the Fishkill, where this Convention now statedly sits, and Head-Quarters, for the purpose of obtaining daily intelligence; and that this Convention will make provision for defraying the expense thereof, and that the said Committee be and are hereby empowered to write Letters to any correspondents, and take every other proper means to obtain intelligence.*

Sundry Affidavits taken by Robert Erskine, Esq., relative to the conduct of persons disaffected to the American cause, were read, and deferred to consideration and explanation until the Members from the country were present.

The Petition of Henry Chase,† dated at the White-Plains, on the 13th instant, praying to be released from imprisonment, was read.

The several Petitions of Jonathan Purdy, Jun., Rynier Van Housen, and John Fowler, were read.‡

The said Jonathan Purdy, Jun., thereby declares he is an enlisted soldier in the British army, and the said Rynier Van Housen that he is a registered Pilot in the British Navy; and they pray to be permitted to their paroles, as prisoners of war; and the said John Fowler sets forth the

* Your Committee to whom it was referred to devise ways and means to obtain intelligence from the Committee at New-York, report it as their opinion that the following resolve for that purpose be entered into:

Resolved, That Uriah Mitchel and Samuel Dyckman be employed as riders. That Mitchel set out from this place and Dyckman from New-York on one and the same day, and both meet at the house of John Blagg, this side Croton's River, and there exchange mails, with which each are to return to their respective stages the day following, so as to arrive as early as possible on that day: that is Mitchel to Fishkill and Dyckman to New-York, and set out again the day after and perform the same stages, and so to continue as long as this Committee or the Convention of this State shall think proper to employ them, and that there be allowed each respectively, while in said service, the sum of sixteen shillings per day.

SIR: You are hereby directed and empowered to repair from this place to New-York, to agree with some person at Peekskill to keep a horse for the publick service, and with some other person at Odle's to keep another horse, to employ a rider and a third horse at Head-Quarters, who shall set out every morning at daybreak from thence, having waited upon the General and the Postmaster the evening preceding for their letters, and upon General Clinton at King's Bridge, from whence he shall repair to Croton river, at which place he shall engage to be by twelve o'clock every day, and exchange his mail with that which shall go from this place every morning at the same hour, and return the same into the post office that night.

That such rider shall begin to ride on Thursday next, and continue to ride every day till the further order of this Congress, for which he shall be allowed a reasonable compensation, and be exempted from military duty. Or if he shall find it more advantageous, he may agree with any person by the great to ride daily from New-York and return thereto, finding their own horses, for which he may be permitted to allow any sum not exceeding three dollars per day.

† WHITE-PLAINS GAOL, September 13, 1776.

GENTLEMEN OF THE HONOURABLE PROVINCIAL CONGRESS: This my humble petition to beg if your Honours please to send for me, that I may have my trial, for the County Committee and the Committee of Safety say that they have no right to try me, and I have desired them to send me to the honourable Provincial Congress, and they tell me that they dare not send me without orders from your Honours. Gentlemen, so I shall be very glad if your Honours will be good enough to send for me as soon as possible, for I have been in prison going on eight weeks, and I can't support myself any longer. So, gentlemen, I shall be very glad if your Honours will take my case into consideration, if your Honours please, so that I may be cleared or condemned. So, gentlemen, I leave my case to your Honours' wise consideration, not doubting but your Honours will have compassion on a poor prisoner.

HENRY CHASE.

‡ WHITE-PLAINS GAOL, September 13, 1776.

To the honourable the Provincial Congress of the State of NEW-YORK: The Petition of RINEER VAN HOUSER, of ORANGE County, humbly sheweth: That your petitioner hath now been upwards of six months confined in New-York, and in this place, where he was ordered by this honourable House who formerly promised to remove your petitioner to Albany, and to provide for his helpless wife and six children. As the winter is now approaching, your petitioner humbly begs of this manner in which he formerly came on board of one of the British ships of war.

A Letter from Colonel Malcom, dated the 6th instant, directed to Mr. McKesson, giving some information respecting Captain Stewart's Company, in his Regiment, was read.

Ordered, That Mr. Hobart, Mr. Robert Yates, and Mr. Mills, be a Committee to take, consider of, and report on the said Affidavits, Petitions, and Letter, and that they bring in reports with all convenient speed.

That part of General George Clinton's Letter of the 8th of September, which relates to Lieutenant-Colonel Ferris, was read.

Colonel Swartwout's Letter of the 10th of September, instant, respecting Lieutenant-Colonel Ferris's ill state of health, and the appointment of a Lieutenant-Colonel and Major for that Regiment, was also read.

Resolved, That Lieutenant-Colonel Ferris be permitted to decline the present service.

That Major Thompson be appointed Lieutenant-Colonel, and Captain Mott appointed Major of Colonel Swartwout's present Regiment of Militia, now in service. Brigadier-General George Clinton's Brigade, while in the present service, in addition to their former respective commands in the Militia, in their respective Counties.

Ordered, That the Secretaries despatch the Commissions for Lieutenant-Colonel Thompson and Major Mott.

Resolved, That the eldest First Lieutenant of Colonel Swartwout's, be promoted to be Captain, vice Major Mott, and that the other officers rise in succession; and that the Secretaries send as many blank Commissions to General George Clinton as there are officers in that Regiment.

The Convention were informed that a person late one of the Light-Horsemen of King's County, and a Lieutenant of Colonel Smith's Regiment are about Poughkeepsie, in some distress, and that pay is due to them. That sundry of honourable House to be removed over the river, where he may be somewhat nearer to his family, as being destitute of money, he cannot even procure his clothes to be washed or mended, for want of which convenience your petitioner is rendered quite loathsome by his dirty rags and vermin, and has no other hope but of perishing in this nauseous place, unless shortly relieved by this honourable House. And your petitioner humbly hopes to be admitted to his parole, as he is absolutely registered on the navy books, and hath been so for the space of seventeen months, after passing examination as King's pilot in the fleet. Your petitioner humbly begs for such relief as to this honourable House shall seem meet. And your petitioner as in duty bound shall ever pray.

RINEER VAN HOUSE.

To the honourable the President and Members of the Provincial Congress of New-York.

The Petition of JOHN FOWLER, of the City of New-York, humbly sheweth:

That your petitioner now a prisoner in the White-Plains Gaol humbly begs leave to acquaint your Honours that your petitioner's unhappy case hath been grossly misrepresented by his enemies, the truth, as he shall answer to his God, being as follows: That on the day the men of war passed by the city, your petitioner having obtained leave of the Captain of the Guard, put off from Mr. Dean's wharf, at the North River, in a small boat, together with a certain butcher named Stophell, and your petitioner's son, a boy of about thirteen years of age, in order to purchase some sheep and calves for New-York market, when your petitioner was unhappily overtaken by one of the men of war's tenders, partly opposite Colonel Philips's, when your petitioner, stretching over for the western shore in hopes to gain Shethin's ferry, but being just abreast of the Meadows, as he could not make the ferry on account of the flats, when the tender fired four or five shot, which affair was distinctly seen by Mr. Edward Drake, who saw them hoist out their barge and take every one of us out of boat and carry us on board the tender, and after detaining your petitioner about an hour or two, they then carried them on board the Rose, where they were detained all night, when in the morning he sent us on board the Phanix, when the Captain asked us where we were going with the boat, when my partner showed his pass, which intimated that he had liberty for so many days to buy creatures in the country; upon which the Captain interrogated us concerning the strength of the army at New-York; your petitioner replied that to his opinion he judged there might be about thirty thousand men or better; when Stophel told the Captain that a reinforcement of seven thousand more were on their march to join them, when the Captain said, "Damn you, you Rebels, why didn't you come to when you were first fired upon?" upon which said, that the sails were so entangled that he could not get them down, upon which the Captain asked your petitioners if they would get some fresh provisions for them, or otherwise they would burn your petitioner's boat, and insisted on keeping your petitioner's son as a hostage for their fidelity to return again, when your petitioner on going ashore was with the said Stophel immediately seized and brought to this unhappy place, where he is deprived of the common necessities of life, and his helpless family in a deplorable condition, as every thing is going to the utmost ruin.

Gentlemen, your petitioner humbly begs you would consider how your Honours would have acted in such a situation, as your petitioner declares he never was on board a man-of-war in his life before, nor ever contracted or furnished them with any kind of provisions or ever will.

Your petitioner, therefore, humbly begs for a hearing before your Honours, when he makes not the least doubt of making his innocence appear to your Honours' entire satisfaction.

Your Honours' kind compliance will ever lay an obligation on your distressed, humble servant,

JOHN FOWLER.

the Light-Horsemen fled from the island, and have left their horses behind them.

Ordered, That Mr. Duane, Mr. Duer, Mr. Schenck, and Dr. Crane, be a Committee to inquire into the situation of the Light-Horsemen who were obliged to flee from the said island, and Lieutenant Onderdonk, and that they report thereon.

Mr. Wisner, of Orange County, proposed to the Convention that the Company of Militia from Orange County, lately ordered to be detached to augment the Garrisons of Forts Montgomery and Constitution, be permitted to have that duty performed by different Companies or parcels of Militia, in rotation.

Ordered, That Mr. Wisner, General Ten Broeck, Mr. Sackett, and Major Schenck, be a Committee to consider of the said proposal, and report thereon with all convenient speed.

The Committee appointed to consider what further measures are necessary to bring Abraham Lott, Esq., to account to this Convention for the publick Moneys now in his hands, as Treasurer of the Colony of New-York, delivered in their Report, which was read, amended, resolved on, and agreed to, in the words following, to wit:

Whereas the late Provincial Congress of this State did, on the 9th day of March last, enter into a Resolution in the words following, to wit: "Whereas the publick exigencies of the Colony are so great as to require that all the publick Revenues of the same should be appropriated to defray its expenses; and whereas the General Assembly of the Colony have, by their prorogation, made on the day appointed for their meeting, been prevented from proceeding to the despatch of the ordinary business thereof. It therefore becomes necessary for the Representatives of the people in Provincial Congress to attend to the proper application of the publick Moneys now in the hands of the said Abraham Lott, Esq: Resolved and Ordered, therefore, That the said Abraham Lott be directed, and he is hereby directed within thirty days from this day, to lay before this Congress or the Committee of Safety, on oath, an account of all the moneys that now are or shall be in his hands, as Treasurer of this Colony, particularly stating to what funds they belong, and whether any and what funds are appropriated to any and what uses, and every other matter which shall be necessary to constitute a complete state of the Treasury of this Colony:" a copy of which was left by the Secretary of this Convention at the usual place of residence of the said Abraham Lott, Esq., in the city of New-York.

And whereas the said Abraham Lott hath neglected to comply with the tenour of the said Resolution: Therefore,

Ordered, peremptorily, That the said Abraham Lott do forthwith attend this House on pain of contempt, and that he bring with him the Books, Papers, and Money, belonging to the Treasury, in order that the Publick Accounts of the Colony of New-York may be settled, and the balance paid to the present Treasurer of this State.

Ordered, That a copy of the foregoing Resolution and Order be served on Abraham Lott, Esq., by Mr. John Campbell, who is hereby directed to require an answer in writing for the justification of his conduct.

Resolved, That if Abraham Lott, Esq., shall refuse to attend this Convention, or neglect to set out within five days after the receipt of the above order, and pursue his journey with all reasonable despatch, that he be then apprehended, and sent under guard to this Convention, at Fishkill, in Dutchess County.

And Mr. John Campbell is hereby required and empowered to apply to any Committee in the State of New-Jersey or New-York, in order that he may obtain assistance for carrying the foregoing Resolution and Order into execution, and that Mr. Campbell be furnished with a copy of all the above Resolutions.

On motion, the following Resolutions were agreed to, viz:

Whereas, since the dissolution of the late Government under the Crown of Great Britain, it is inconsistent with sound policy that any of the Publick Moneys should be paid into the hands of any officers not duly authorized by the Convention of this State to receive the same:

And whereas it is the duty of the Representatives of the people to secure the Publick Revenues for the purposes of defending the lives, liberties, and property of the good people of this invaded State :

Therefore, Resolved, unanimously, That Abraham Lott, Esq., as Treasurer of the Colony of New-York, cease to demand or receive any Moneys belonging to the same ; and that the said Moneys be only paid to Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., the Treasurer of this State, who is hereby authorized and directed to receive the same. And all persons owing Money to this State are hereby ordered to account with Peter V. B. Livingston, and to make payment with all possible expedition.

Resolved and Ordered, That the Loan Officers in the different Counties in this State do forthwith pay into the hands of the present Treasurer, all such sums of Money as they have at present in hands, or hereafter may receive, either on account of the principal sums lent, or for the interest due on such sums ; and that the receipt of the Treasurer of this State shall be considered by the Supervisors of the different Counties, as a voucher for the money so paid, in as full and ample a manner as if the same had been paid to Abraham Lott, Esq., late Treasurer of the Colony of New-York.

Resolved, That all the Loan Officers in all the Counties in this State be empowered to act in that capacity, till further orders from this Convention or a future Legislature of this State.

Ordered, That the Secretaries do immediately transmit copies of these Resolves to Abraham Lott, Esq., and to the Loan Officers in the different Counties in this State ; and that the same be published four weeks successively in all the publick newspapers of this State.

Information was given to the Convention by some of the Members from the Counties of Orange and Ulster, that there is great reason to apprehend that there are many dangerous persons in those Counties. That from several pieces of testimony given to the different Committees in those Counties, it is probable that persons there have been inlisting, or endeavouring to inlist, men to join the enemy.

Ordered, That the Members of this Convention from the Counties of Orange and Ulster, be a Committee to inquire into the grounds of the apprehensions, and the particulars of all such testimony as they can collect on that subject, and to report the measures necessary to be taken to prevent such disaffected persons in those Counties from joining or aiding the enemy.

FISHKILL, September 18, 1776. G. BANCKER.

On the 11th March, 1776, the Convention of this State appointed a Committee, to wit : Mr. Van Zandt, Captain Denning, Mr. Beckman, Colonel Brazier, and Mr. Sands, to examine the Treasurer's accounts, and to point out what part of the charges therein were to be considered as Continental, and what Provincial. A fair copy of the Continental account, as stated by them, was prepared by the Auditor's clerk.

In May last, the Auditors, to wit : Messrs. Van Zandt, Bancker, Beckman, Sands, and Denning, continued this account down to the 30th day of April last ; it was afterwards examined by some of the New-York members of the Continental Congress, and then taken to the Convention of this State, where it underwent several alterations, in which state it is now fair copied. Many accounts being not then come in, the Auditors deferred sending it to Philadelphia till some of the principal ones could be procured ; and many letters were wrote for that purpose.

Nothing more was done with the Continental account till the Auditor-General was appointed the latter end of July last, when he came to the Plains to endeavour to continue it down to that time, but the number of outstanding accounts was so increased by the great sums of money that had been paid out there by order of the Convention on account for services to be performed, as to induce him to defer the completion of it till they could be got in, several of which accounts he procured abroad, and left orders for writing to many persons who had neglected sending in theirs, which letters have accordingly been wrote, and copies of some of them sent. And though the number of outstanding accounts is greatly diminished, there are still many to be brought in, as per the annexed list, amounting to about £40,000.

FISHKILL, September 18, 1776. G. BANCKER.

behind him large quantities of Flour, which reduced the magazines too low; and requests the aid of this Convention to procure flour.

Agreed, unanimously, That Major Henry Schenck, Colonel Charles De Witt, and Dirck Wynkoop, Esquires, be appointed Agents for, and on behalf of, the Commissary-General, and that a draft of the Resolutions for that purpose be prepared and brought in, in the afternoon.

Die Martis, 4 ho. P. M., September 17, 1776.

The Convention met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Abraham Yates, Jun., Esq., President.

NEW-YORK.—Mr. Jay, Mr. Bancker, Mr. Robert Harper, Mr. Duane.

ULSTER.—Mr. Wisner, Jun., Major Parks.

TRYON.—Mr. William Harper, Mr. Moore, Mr. Veder.

ALBANY.—Mr. Abraham Yates, General Ten Broeck, Mr. Robert Yates, Mr. John Ten Broeck, Mr. Adgate.

DUTCHESS.—Dr. Crane, Mr. R. R. Livingston, Mr. Sackett, Major Schenck.

CHARLOTTE.—Major Webster, Mr. Duer.

SUFFOLK.—Mr. William Smith, Mr. Hobart.

ORANGE.—Colonel Allison, Mr. Wisner, Mr. Joseph Smith, Dr. Sherwood.

WESTCHESTER.—Mr. Mills, Mr. Haviland, Mr. Jonathan Platt.

CUMBERLAND.—Mr. Sessions, Mr. Stevens.

The Convention, on information that the Soundings of Hudson's River, at and about Fort Washington, is not accurately sounded, and thereupon came to the following Resolutions:

Whereas there is reason to apprehend that the Channel of Hudson's River, opposite to Fort Washington, is not yet sufficiently obstructed; and whereas it is of the utmost importance to the safety of this State and general cause of America, that the navigation of that River should not be occupied by the enemy's ships: Therefore

Resolved, That Captain Thomas Greenhill be, and he is hereby requested and authorized to proceed, with all possible despatch, to Mount Washington, in order to take an accurate Survey of the Soundings of that part of Hudson's River: that he report his proceedings to the Convention of this State with all possible despatch.

Resolved, That the Commanding Officer of Fort Washington be applied to by Captain Greenhill, for his permission to sound the River, and for his assistance in carrying the above Resolutions into execution.

Resolved, That General James Clinton be requested to furnish Captain Greenhill with a Whale-boat, and a sufficient number of hands whose attachment to the American cause may be relied on, in order to assist in carrying this measure into execution: that General Clinton and Captain Greenhill be earnestly requested to conduct this matter with all the secrecy possible.

The Letter from Colonel Trumbull, received at noon, was again read, and here follows, viz:

"King's Bridge, September 16, 1776.

"GENTLEMEN: Yesterday our troops evacuated New-York to the enemy, and mean to make a stand at and near this place. In the retreat, I have been obliged to leave behind large quantities of flour, which reduces our magazine too low. It is absolutely necessary to have a large quantity soon. I have taken measures to get it in; but, fearing the apprehensions of the people may prevent their coming, and thereby distress the army, and knowing your body to be in a great flour country, I must beg the favour of you to forward, with all despatch, whatever flour can be had at and about Fishkills to Spiting Devil Creek, or as near it as may be. I much expect the ships up the North River again by and by: this makes me in the greater hurry to have this measure effected, as it may save us great expense and difficulty in land carriage. Perhaps it may be best to ensure the vessels of flour against the enemy: this and the price I will submit to your direction. The money for the flour will be ready, and paid on delivery.

"Your aid and assistance in this matter will greatly oblige, gentlemen, your most obedient, humble servant,

"JOS. TRUMBULL, Commissary-General.

"To the Hon. the Convention of the State of New-York."

The Resolutions for procuring Flour for the Commissary-General, in pursuance of his Letter, being read and agreed to, are in the words following, to wit:

Whereas Joseph Trumbull, Esq., Commissary-General of the American Army, by his Letter dated yesterday, at King's Bridge, and directed to this Convention, informs that the American Troops have evacuated New-York, and mean to make a stand at and near King's Bridge; that he has been obliged to leave behind large quantities of Flour, which reduces his magazine too low; that it is necessary to have a large quantity soon, that the Army may not be distressed; and requesting Flour to be forwarded, with all despatch, to Spuyt den Duyvel Creek, or as near it as may be to prevent the expense of land carriage, if the enemy's ships should come up Hudson's River; further suggesting that it may be best to ensure the Vessels and Flour against the enemy, which, together with the price, he submits to this Convention, requesting their aid; and the said Commissary-General therein engages that the Money for the Flour shall be paid on delivery:

Resolved, therefore, That Major Henry Schenck be, and hereby is appointed Agent in behalf of the said Commissary-General, to purchase all the Flour which can be obtained in Dutchess, Orange, and the lower end of Ulster Counties; and that Colonel Charles De Witt and Dirck Wynkoop, Jun., Esq., be, and each of them severally is, hereby appointed Agent in behalf of the said Commissary-General, to purchase all the Flour which can be procured in Ulster County, and places adjacent, not before particularized; and the said Agents are hereby respectively authorized, if it shall be found necessary, to impress Sloops or Vessels for the transportation of the said Flour; and to have such Vessels appraised by three indifferent Freeholders, one to be elected by the Agents respectively, another by the Owner of each Vessel, and the third by the two first elected. That the said Agents shall, in behalf of the Commissary-General, ensure against all risk of the enemy, to the sellers of the Flour respectively, the amount thereof at the stipulated price, and to the Owners of the Vessels the value thereof according to appraisement, such price and valuation, in case of capture, to be paid by the Commissary-General, agreeable to the said Letter. That they shall take Bills of Lading from the Masters of such Vessels to deliver the said Flour with the utmost despatch (the danger of the enemy excepted) to the Commissary-General at Spiten Duyvel Creek, or as near thereto as may be, forwarding to the Commissary-General by land, and by each Vessel, copies of each Bill of Parcels, and of each Appraisement of the Vessels, and Bills of Lading, with Letters of Advice, that the Sellers of the Flour and Owners of the Vessels may be under no difficulty in procuring payment.

Ordered, That a certified copy of the preceding Appointments and Resolutions be immediately despatched to the Commissary-General; and that a certified copy thereof be given to Major Schenck, and another such copy be despatched to Messrs. De Witt and Wynkoop, at Kings-ton.

A draft of an Answer to the Letter of the Commissary-General was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

"SIR: The Convention of this State have received your letter of the 16th instant by Mr. Peter Garson, in consequence of which they have entered into the enclosed resolutions, which I am directed to transmit to you. We shall exert ourselves to the utmost of our power in every measure which may forward the common cause, which, notwithstanding the present aspect of affairs, we doubt not will triumph over our tyrannical enemies. Mr. Colt, your deputy, has paid into the hands of Major Schenck, one of the agents for the purpose of procuring flour, the sum of three thousand six hundred dollars, for which that gentleman will be accountable.

"I am, sir, with respect, &c.

"To Joseph Trumbull, Esq."

A Letter from Gilbert Livingston, Esq., at Poughkeepsie, was read. He therein informs that the Chain intended to obstruct the navigation of Hudson's River has been delayed for want of iron. He requests that one of the other Members of the Committee may come to him to assist him, and bring with him two thousand Pounds, as their Treasury is nearly exhausted; and informs that he expects to go to the Fort to see that the apparatus is ready to fasten, and stretch the chain.

Ordered, That the Secret Committee for obstructing the navigation of Hudson's River, have permission to go to the Fortifications in the Highlands to-morrow morning.

Resolved, That Mr. Duane, Mr. Hobart, General Ten Broeck, Mr. Duer, Mr. William Smith, Mr. Wisner, and Mr. Bancker, with the President, constitute a Committee of Safety; that the President and any four of those gentlemen be a quorum of that Committee; that they continue a Committee of Safety until the first meeting of a representation of this State in Convention; that every other Member who may attend have a voice in the Committee, and that the said Committee have power to send for any Members of this Convention who may be absent.

Ordered, That Mr. Hobart, Mr. Duer, and Mr. Bancker, be a Committee to consider of and report the most proper disposition to be made of the vessel or sloop of war Montgomery, belonging to this State.

Ordered, That Mr. Robert Harper be added to and be one of the Committee for taking the Examination of Samuel Yale, Esq.

Adjourned.

Die Mercurii, 9 ho. A. M., September 18, 1776.

The Convention met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Abraham Yates, Jun., Esq., President.

NEW-YORK.—Mr. Duane, Mr. Bancker, Mr. Robert Harper.

DUTCHESS.—Mr. Robert R. Livingston, Mr. Sackett, Dr. Crane.

ALBANY.—Mr. Abraham Yates, General Ten Broeck, Mr. John Ten Broeck, Mr. Adgate, Mr. Robert Yates.

TRYON.—Mr. Moore, Mr. William Harper, Mr. Veder.

SUFFOLK.—Mr. William Smith, Mr. Hobart.

ORANGE.—Mr. Wisner, Jun., Colonel Allison, Mr. Joseph Smith.

CHARLOTTE.—Mr. Duer, Major Webster.

ULSTER.—Mr. Wisner, Jun., Major Parks.

WESTCHESTER.—Mr. Haviland, Mr. Mills, Mr. Jonathan Platt.

CUMBERLAND.—Mr. Sessions, Mr. Stevens.

Whereas this Convention, after many anxious inquiries, hath at length received certain intelligence that the Hon. Nathaniel Woodhull, Brigadier-General of the Militia, and President of the Convention of this State, is at present in the hands of the enemy, and that he was made captive whilst actually employed in executing the resolutions of this House: And whereas they are loudly called upon, not only by the sacred voice of honour and public duty, but likewise by the sympathizing principles of personal affection and respect, to exert themselves in restoring so valuable a person to that liberty which he has himself lost in endeavouring to secure to others that inestimable blessing:

Therefore, Resolved, That a list of the Prisoners at the disposal of this State be immediately made out and transmitted to General Washington; and that John Sloss Hobart, Esq., wait on his Excellency, with the earnest request of this Convention, that he will be pleased to give his assistance and advice in negotiating this exchange.

Whereas the sum of one thousand eight hundred Pounds was advanced by this State to Colonel Pierre Van Cortlandt and Captain Zephaniah Platt, as occasional Commissaries for such of the Militia of this and the neighbouring States as were, at the request of his Excellency the General, called out for the defence of the State, which sum they have expended and accounted for with Mr. William Paulding, Deputy Commissary:

Resolved, therefore, That Mr. Gerard Bancker be directed to get a true state of that account from Mr. William Paulding, and request payment thereof from the Commissary-General, and on the receipt of the Money, to give a proper discharge therefor, which shall be considered as a voucher for the Money by the Auditor and Treasurer of this State.

Resolved, That Mr. Gerard Bancker, Deputy Treasurer of this State, proceed immediately to the persons who had the charge of the Pork and other Provisions belonging to this State in Westchester County, in order to procure the receipts for what has been furnished to Joseph Trumbull, Esq., Commissary-General, or any of his Agents or Deputies. And that Mr. Bancker be directed and authorized to apply to the said Commissary-General for the payment of the same, at the price current of those articles when delivered; and that the receipt of the said Gerard Bancker shall be a sufficient voucher in behalf of this State.

Ordered, That Colonel Allison be added to and be one of the Committee for taking the Examination of Samuel Gale, Esq.

Ordered, That the Officer commanding the detachment of Captain Melancthon Smith's Company, which attends this Convention, be and hereby is commanded to take into the custody of his guard, William Tredwell, Benjamin Ludlum, and Samuel Gale, and them safely keep, as separate from each other as he can, till further orders of this Convention or their Committee of Safety.

Mr. Hobart, from the Committee to report the most proper disposition of the Sloop Montgomery, delivered in their Report, which was read.

That part of the Report which respects the condemnation and sale of Prizes, was agreed to.

Thereupon Resolved, That a Letter be immediately written to Mr. Joseph Hallett, the Agent for Prizes, requesting him forthwith to repair to New-England, and take the most speedy and effectual measures for the condemnation and sale of such Vessels and Goods as Captain Rogers, the Commander of the said Sloop, may have brought into that country.

The said Committee also reported a draft of such Letter to Joseph Hallett, as above mentioned, which was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

“SIR: The Convention having received information that Captain Rogers, of the sloop Montgomery, has left the south side of Long-Island, and is arrived at Norwalk, in Connecticut, with some of his prize goods, and that some vessels which he brought off with him are arrived in other parts of New-England, it is their desire that you repair forthwith to that country, and take the most speedy and effectual measures for the condemnation and sale of such vessels and goods; which I am directed to signify to you.

“To Joseph Hallett, Esquire.”

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

That part of the said Report which relates to the sale of the Sloop Montgomery, was recommitted to Mr. William Smith, General Ten Broeck, Mr. Duer, and Mr. Bancker, Mr. Hobart being excused on his earnest request, and reasons assigned.

Resolved, That a Committee be appointed to devise ways and means for establishing a fund for the board and subsistence of the poor inhabitants of this State who have or may be by distress of war obliged to abandon their habitations, upon such a plan as shall be least burthensome to the good people of this State.

Resolved, That Mr. Robert R. Livingston, Mr. Duer, Mr. Duane, Mr. Jay, and Mr. Robert Yates, be the Committee.

Ordered, That that part of the Report of a former Committee on this subject, and which was read and postponed on the 25th of August last, be recommitted to the same Committee.

Ordered, That Mr. William Smith have leave of absence to go to Orange County, ten days from the time of his departure.

Resolved, That Colonel Broome and Captain Denning be, and are hereby, appointed Members of the Committee of Safety and Correspondence for that part of this State which lies below the Highlands; that they be requested immediately to attend that business, and that Captain Denning in his way attend this Convention to receive instructions for the said Committee.

Robert R. Livingston, Esq., informed the Convention that from intelligence he has received, the particulars whereof he cannot consistent with prudence disclose, it may be necessary to call out a detachment of the Militia or the guards which are now attending this House; and that some Member of this House should be empowered for that purpose. Therefore,

Resolved, That Nath'l Sackett, Esq., be, and is hereby, empowered to employ from time to time any detachments of the Companies under the command of Captain Melanthon Smith, or any part of the Militia of Dutchess County, not exceeding twenty men, which he may think necessary, and to give them such orders as he may think proper, which they are hereby directed to observe and obey.

Mr. Wisner, Sen., from the Committee to whom was referred the consideration of a more easy and effectual mode of raising the several quotas of the Militia for the garrisoning of the Forts Constitution and Montgomerie, delivered in their Report. The same being read, and the question put whether the Convention agrees with their Committee in the said Report, it was carried in the negative.

Resolved, That the Committee of Safety appointed till the first meeting of the Convention be revived, and that the same continue until the next meeting of the Convention.

COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Wednesday Afternoon, September 18, 1776.

The Committee of Safety met.

Present: Abraham Yates, Jun., Esq., Chairman.

For NEW-YORK.—*Mr. Bancker, *Mr. Duane.

For WESTCHESTER.—Mr. Haviland, Colonel Drake, Colonel Cortlandt.

For ALBANY.—*Mr. Abm. Yates, *General Ten Broeck, Mr. Robert Yates, Mr. Ten Broeck.

For CHARLOTTE.—*Mr. Duer.

For SUFFOLK.—*Mr. Smith, Mr. Hobart.

For TRYON.—Mr. Harper, Mr. Moore.

For ORANGE.—Dr. Sherwood, Colonel Allison, *Mr. Wisner, Mr. Smith.

Those names marked with an asterism are the Members appointed to constitute the Committee of Safety.

A Letter from Hugh Hughes, Assistant Quartermaster-General, by express, dated yesterday, at Head-Quarters, near King's Bridge, was received and read. He, at the request of General Washington, informs the Convention that two Albany skippers have deserted the service without unloading their cargoes. The one named Brooks has such utensils for supplying the army with soap and candles that the business cannot be carried on without them. The other, named Rolf or Roff, has ammunition on board, besides sundry articles belonging to the Quartermaster-General's department, it is said. Mr. Hughes, by directions of the General, gives this information that a suitable remedy may be timely applied.

The said Letter being taken into immediate consideration, thereupon,

Resolved, That a copy of the Letter received from Mr. Hugh Hughes be immediately sent by express to the Chairman of the Committee of Albany, and that the said Committee be requested to send back all the property belonging to the Continent contained in the said Sloops; and to inquire into the conduct of Captain Roff and Captain Brooks, and transmit a state of facts to this Convention, taking good security of the said Roff and Brooks to abide by the future order of this Convention in the premises.

Ordered, That a copy of the above Resolution be transmitted to Mr. Hughes.

A Letter from the Committee of Albany, dated the 12th instant, was read. They thereby inform that the Major from Cumberland County, with the proportion of men to have been raised to the eastward of the Green Mountains, as a part of Colonel Van Dyck's Regiment, have not joined the Regiment or come into the service.

A Letter from _____ Esq., who was intended to have been Major of that Regiment, to Brigadier-General Ten Broeck, was also read.

Ordered, That Mr. R. R. Livingston, Mr. Hobart, Mr. Duer, and Mr. Robert Yates, be a Committee to take those two Letters into consideration, and report thereon.

A Letter from the Committee of Albany, dated the 16th instant, was also read. The Committee thereby express great concern on account of General Schuyler's resignation, and express their fears that it will occasion many other resignations in the Army, the Militia, and the Civil departments.

A long Letter from General Schuyler, dated the 15th, and a part thereof dated on the 16th instant, was read. The General therein informs the Convention of his resignation and in part his reasons for having requested leave to resign his office, and informs the Convention of the latest intelligence from the northward and westward; and that the Militia were countermanded before his receipt of the last Letter from this Convention.

The Examination of a Hessian Deserter enclosed in General Schuyler's Letter, was also read. Information is thereby given of the numbers of Hessians, Brunswickers, and other foreign Troops in Canada.

Ordered, That the Letter from the Committee of Albany, of the 16th instant, the Letter from General Schuyler of the 15th and 16th instant, and that part of General Schuyler's Letter of the 8th instant which remains to be considered, be committed to Robert R. Livingston, Mr. Hobart, Mr. Duer, and Mr. Robert Yates, to report thereon with all convenient speed.

A Letter from Cornelius Glenn, Treasurer of the County of Albany, to the President of the Convention, dated the 13th instant, was read. He requests his opinion whether the usual election shall be held in that County for a County Treasurer, or whether it shall be delayed until a plan is prescribed for that department under the new form of Government.

Ordered, That the consideration of, and determination on, this Letter, be referred to the Convention.

[Your Committee, to whom it was referred, to direct some mode for the relief of Debtors confined for debt in the Gaols of the respective Counties in this State, do report the following, viz:

Whereas, by the long suspension of the Legislature of this State, the debtors confined in the respective gaols are reduced to the greatest misery and distress, and their lives much endangered by long confinement: And whereas the detaining in custody debtors, under execution, who are willing to deliver up their estates for the use of their creditors, can be of no real benefit or advantage to the creditors, and at the same time, that by reason of such severity, many useful members are lost to the community, who might be advantageously employed at this arduous conjuncture in the service and defence of their country:

Be it therefore ordained, That all and every person and persons imprisoned or detained in any gaol within this State, by reason of any process, writ, or commitment for debt, be forthwith released and discharged: Provided always, That all and every person or persons, who shall take and claim the benefit hereby intended, shall before his, her, or their discharge, exhibit a petition in their respective Counties, where such person or persons are confined, to the persons hereinafter named, setting forth the reasons of such confinement; and if he, she, or they, so petitioning shall be charged in execution, such prisoner or prisoners shall with his, her, or their petition annex the name or names of his, her, or their creditors, and the debts due, as near as can be, and certify an account or inventory of his, her, or their whole real and personal estate, their bedding and clothing excepted, with the tenure by which it is held, and the evidences, deeds, books of account, notes or bonds relating thereunto; and upon such petitions and certificates delivered to the persons hereafter named, in the respective Counties, or any two of them, and they are hereby required to order such prisoner to be brought before them, and administer to such persons the following oath or affirmation, in such cases heretofore required, viz:

"You _____ of _____ do hereby solemnly swear upon the Holy Evangelist of Almighty God, that the account by you here produced, and to your petition annexed, to the best of your knowledge, contains a true and perfect state of all the debts due to your respective creditors; and likewise that the inventory by you exhibited contains a just and faithful account of all your real and personal estate, your bedding and clothing excepted, with the tenure by which it is held, and the evidences, deeds, books of account, notes or bonds relating thereto, and that you have not knowingly or intentionally kept back any part of the same, nor conveyed to any person or persons whatsoever any part thereof, for your future benefit, with design to defraud your creditors. So help you God."

And upon having taken such oath or affirmation such prisoner or prisoners shall make an assignment of his, her, or their estate, to two such persons as assignees, being freeholders, as the persons empowered to administer such oath or affirmation shall appoint, to be by them equally divided among all the creditors of the said insolvent debtors, in proportion to their several and respective debts, dues, and demands; whereupon, he, she, or they, making such assignment as aforesaid, shall be discharged out of custody, from and after which discharge, he, she, or they, shall not any time hereafter be imprisoned for the same debt or debts for which he, she, or they have made such assignment.

And further, That any two of the Judges of the Inferiour Court of Common Pleas, in the respective Counties of this State, together with the Chairman of the County Committee for the time being, be and they are hereby nominated, empowered, and required to hear and discharge the prisoners in the gaols of the said Counties, and to administer to them the oath above mentioned, and that all Gaolers and Sheriffs heretofore appointed, and all persons within this State, give due obedience to the said persons within their several Counties, who have been hereby authorized and appointed to hear and discharge the prisoners aforesaid.

And lastly, That the assignees to be appointed as aforesaid, notify the several creditors of the debtors so discharged in one or more of the publick newspapers of this State, for three months successively of their appointment as aforesaid, with intent that they may be acquainted where to apply for their several dividends.

JOSHUA H. SMITH.

CONVENTION.

Die Jovis, 9 ho. A. M., September 19, 1776.

The Convention met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Abraham Yates, Jun., Esq., President.

NEW-YORK.—Mr. Bancker, Mr. Robert Harper, Mr. Duane, Mr. Jay.

DUTCHESS.—Doctor Crane, Mr. Sackett, Mr. R. R. Livingston.

CHARLOTTE.—Major Webster, Mr. Duer.

ALBANY.—Mr. Abraham Yates, Mr. John Ten Broeck, Mr. Adgate, General Ten Broeck.

ORANGE.—Colonel Allison, Mr. Jos. Smith, Mr. Sherwood, Mr. Little.

CUMBERLAND.—Mr. Sessions, Mr. Stevens.

SUFFOLK.—Mr. Smith, Mr. Hobart.

WESTCHESTER.—Colonel Drake, Mr. Lockwood, Mr. Mills, Mr. Haviland, Colonel Cortlandt.

ULSTER.—Major Parks, Mr. Wisner.

TRYON.—Mr. Moore, Mr. Harper, Mr. Veder.

Captain Samuel Tudor, one of the Superintendents for building the Continental Ships at Poughkeepsie, attending, delivered in a Letter from General Schuyler, dated Albany, September 17, 1776, and directed to Messrs. Van Zandt, Tudor, and the other gentlemen to whose care the building of the Frigates at Poughkeepsie is committed; wherein the General informs those gentlemen that he received a line by express from General Gates, informing him that he is in the greatest distress for the cordage mentioned in a list enclosed in the said letter, for the use of the row-galleys, which are the greatest strength of our naval force on the Lake. Captain Tudor requested the opinion and advice of the Convention on this subject.

Resolved, That as a Naval strength on Lake Champlain is an object of the utmost importance, and will greatly contribute to the security of America, that the Agents for building the Ships at Poughkeepsie be directed to supply such and so much Cordage as General Schuyler requires, and that this Convention will justify them to the honourable the Continental Congress.

Mr. Haviland and Mr. Platt have leave of absence, to return on next Monday week.

A certified copy of a Resolution of the Committee of Dutchess County was read and filed; and is in the words following, to wit:

"In Committee, Dutchess County, September 17, 1776.

"It having been suggested to this Committee, by the Deputies from this County, in Convention, that the quorum

FIFTH SERIES.—VOL. II.

at present necessary to represent the County, being five, was too numerous, and that, by means thereof, was frequently deprived of a voice in the Convention:

"Resolved, therefore, That the number of the quorum be reduced from five to three; and accordingly, that of the nine Deputies elected to represent this County in the Convention of the Representatives of this State, any three of them be a quorum for that purpose.

"By order: EGBERT BENSON, Chairman."

The determination of the Committee of Dutchess County was approved of.

Ordered, That Mr. Jay, Mr. Duer, Mr. R. R. Livingston, Mr. Robert Yates, and Colonel Drake, be a Committee to devise ways and means for preventing the dangers which may arise from the disaffected in this State.

On motion of Mr. Duane,

Resolved, That a Committee be appointed to examine into and report the present state of the Treasury; the progress which has been made in emitting the sum of £200,000, to supply the exigencies of the State, agreeable to a Resolution of the Convention, passed on the 15th day of August last; the obstructions which have prevented the settlement of the publick Accounts of this State against the Continent, and further means for the immediate supplying the Treasury with Money.

Resolved, That this Committee consist of those gentlemen to whom was referred a list of the unsettled Accounts of publick Moneys, delivered in by the Deputy Treasurer and committed last Tuesday at noon, viz: Mr. Duane, Mr. Bancker, and Mr. Moore.

Mr. Jay has leave of absence for eight days from the time of his departure.

The Committee appointed to procure a proper Guard-House for the detachment of Captain Smith's Company, at this place, by order reported that the most convenient they have observed, or can obtain, is a hatter's shop belonging to Mrs. Mary Bloodgood, which needs repair.

Ordered, That Mr. Sackett be added to that Committee, and that the said Committee repair that shop for a Guard-House at their discretion.

The Report of the proceedings of Mr. Hobart and Mr. James Townshend, the Committee appointed on the 28th of August to repair to General Woodhull, on Nassau-Island, to advise and assist the General in the execution of the orders given to him by this Convention, was read and taken into consideration. Thereupon, Resolved, unanimously, That this Convention approves of the conduct of the said Committee while they acted in conjunction, and of the conduct of John Sloss Hobart, Esq., when he acted separately, as the same is stated in the said Report and the papers therein referred to.

Mr. Joshua H. Smith, from the Committee formerly appointed to consider of means for the relief of Insolvent Debtors, reported the draft of a Bill or set of Resolutions for the relief of Insolvent Debtors, which was read and amended; and being read a second time, Ordered, That it lay on the table for the further perusal and consideration of the Members.

Mr. Duer, of the Committee appointed to devise ways and means for preventing the dangers which may arise from the disaffected in this State, reported a draft of certain Resolutions for that purpose, which were read. The same being read a second time, Mr. Duane moved, and it was seconded by Mr. William Harper, that the consideration of this Report be postponed till to-morrow morning.

Debates arose thereon, and the question being put, it was carried in the affirmative, in manner following, to wit:

For the Affirmative.

6 Albany.
2 Cumberland.
4 Ulster.
3 Tryon.

15 votes.

For the Negative.

2 Charlotte.
5 Dutchess.
4 Westchester.
3 Orange.

14 votes.

Therefore, Ordered, That the further consideration of the said Report be postponed till to-morrow morning.

On motion of Mr. Jay,

Ordered, That a Committee be appointed to inquire whether any and what Bounty is necessary for encouraging the manufacturing of Gunpowder in this State.

That Mr. William Smith, Mr. Zephaniah Platt, and Mr. William Harper, be the Committee for that purpose.

Resolved, That a Committee be appointed to employ proper persons for making discoveries and assays of Sulphur, Lead, and Flint, within this State.

That for this purpose they have power to draw on the Treasury for a sum not exceeding five hundred Dollars; and that they report their proceedings to this Convention; and that Mr. Wisner, Sen., Mr. Robert Yates, Mr. William Harper, Mr. Adgate, and Doctor Crane, be the Committee for the purposes above mentioned.

Ordered, That the appointing Inspectors of Saltpetre and Gunpowder, manufactured in or imported into this State, be taken into consideration on Saturday next.

Resolved, That the Committee for establishing Posts and obtaining Intelligence be empowered to appoint a Secretary, and to allow him a reasonable compensation.

Die Veneris, 9 ho. A. M., September 20, 1776.

The Convention met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Abraham Yates, Jun., Esq., President.

NEW-YORK.—Mr. Bancker, Mr. Harper, Mr. Duane.

DUTCHESS.—Dr. Crane, Mr. R. R. Livingston, Mr. Sackett.

ALBANY.—Mr. Ab. Yates, Mr. Robert Yates, General Ten Broeck, Mr. John Ten Broeck, Mr. Adgate.

TRYON.—Mr. Moore, Mr. William Harper, Mr. Veder.

SUFFOLK.—Mr. William Smith, Mr. Hobart.

ORANGE.—Mr. Jos. Smith, Colonel Sherwood, Mr. Wisner, Jun., Colonel Allison, Mr. Little.

CHARLOTTE.—Mr. Duer, Mr. Webster.

ULSTER.—Mr. Wisner, Mr. Parks.

WESTCHESTER.—Mr. Mills, Colonel G. Drake, Major Lockwood, Colonel V. Cortlandt.

CUMBERLAND.—Mr. Sessions, Mr. Stevens.

The Committee appointed to consider General Schuyler's Letter brought in their Report, which was read. Thereupon the General's Letter of the 15th and 16th was read, and hereafter follows, viz:

"Albany, September 15, 1776.

"SIR: I do myself the honour to advise you that, by accounts received from General Gates and Colonel Dayton, the necessity of marching up the Militia is superseded. I have sent express to Ulster and Dutchess Counties to advise them of this, and have dismissed those that were here. The cannonade which was heard on Lake Champlain, and which was supposed to be between General Arnold and the enemy's army, was only a fire at a party of the enemy, who attacked a boat belonging to our fleet, at Windmill Point, in which three of the crew were killed and six wounded. The fleet continues off Isle-au-Motte, and no naval force of the enemy had appeared on the 9th instant. Our army at Tyconderoga, by the last returns, consisted of twelve thousand nine hundred and seventy men, are in good spirits, and so extremely well fortified on advantageous ground, that little is to be feared, even if the enemy should be able to cross the Lake, and make an attack.

"Many important matters require immediate attention in this department, to guard the State against the attempts, which will undoubtedly be made in the winter and spring, by the enemy from the northward. I suggested my ideas to Congress; but as I have not been honoured with a line, in answer to my letters, for near two months past, I suppose more momentous concerns so entirely engross their attention that they have not had time to take them into consideration.

"As I accepted of a command under the fullest conviction of my incompetency, I have made more than ordinary exertions to discharge the duties of it, that, if I could not gain reputation, I might at least not reflect disgrace on you, by whose means the command was conferred.

"Unhappily for me, envy and jealousy have followed me from the beginning. Aware to what a critical situation I was elevated, with the eyes of a jealous people on me, I took every precaution that I might have it in my power to justify myself whenever my conduct should be called in question. How far I have succeeded I shall beg the Convention of this State to judge, when I shall do myself the honour to lay a variety of papers before them, which I believe will be very soon, as I have sent my resignation to Congress.

"As the Convention is now removed to a place where they cannot be informed, by the usual channel, of what is transacting in this department, I shall do myself the honour to give them the most early information of every event as it arises.

"September 16.—Last evening I was honoured with the resolutions of the Convention of the 13th, conveyed to me by Mr. Cuyler. I am happy that there is no occasion at present for the service of the Militia. Should it become necessary, while I continue in command, (which will probably be until the 1st of October;) to call for their aid, I shall pay due attention to the information you have been pleased to give me, and not call on either Dutchess or Ulster County, unless on the most urgent necessity.

"I shall immediately despatch a proper person to purchase the medicines from the persons mentioned in your resolution; for although I am in hopes that Dr. Stringer, who is gone to New-England, will procure a considerable quantity there, yet the consumption in so large an army will, I fear, be far beyond what he will be able to procure.

"Enclose you copy of information given by a Hessian deserter, who lately arrived at Ticonderoga.

"I am, sir, with great respect, your most obedient, humble servant,

"PH. SCHUYLER.

"To the Hon. Abraham Yates, Jun., Esq., President of the Convention of the State of New-York."

The copy of the Information given by a Hessian Deserter* was again read and filed.

The Letter from Albany, of the 16th instant, was again read, and follows, viz:

"Albany Committee Chamber, September 16, 1776.

"GENTLEMEN: We are informed that General Schuyler has sent in his resignation to Congress, a circumstance truly alarming to the inhabitants of this city, and we fear will be very detrimental to the publick cause. His conduct as a General, his indefatigable assiduity on all occasions, are so very conspicuous, that we cannot help expressing the deepest concern.

"We are fully sensible, and time will evince, that the effects of his resignation will be severely felt in the Northern department, as we are well assured no person can be found to succeed him, capable of holding so honourable an office, that has a sufficient influence to conduct matters in the manner he has done, with such feeble supports.

"This day a Committee of this Board waited on his Honour, requesting to know the reason of his resigning. His answer was, that such inattention was paid to his remonstrances to Congress, and such calumnies thrown out against him, that, consistent with the character of a gentleman, he could not do otherwise.

"We are very unhappy to think that Congress should pay so little regard to the character of a gentleman whose conduct, we are well assured, merits the approbation of every well-wisher to this much-injured country.

"From what we have already heard, we can inform you, as a fact, that many resignations will follow his in a short time, as well in the Militia and Civil as in the Military departments.

"It is unnecessary for us, we presume, to expatiate on the great abilities which he possesses, as part of his conduct has manifested it more fully than we can possibly express.

*The Examination of Anthony Fasselabend, of Colonel Riedesel's Regiment of Dragoons, who deserted at Montreal, the 24th of June, with nineteen others, but does not know what became of them: Says, that in February, two thousand Hessians, and three thousand Brunswickers, and three thousand Westphalians, the latter all Roman Catholics, embarked on board forty-six Dutch vessels, at Stade, in Hanover, and sailed for America; that forty-three of these arrived at Quebeck the 27th May, the other three being blown off from the fleet in a storm about Easter, and supposed to be lost. That some time in June the whole marched for Montreal, where they arrived the latter end of the same month. That five hundred of the Westphalians and Brunswick troops were drafted as dragoons, horses purchased in Canada, and daily training for that purpose. Five hundred more were drafted as riflemen. The whole are new recruits from sixteen to twenty-two years of age, quartered at Langville, opposite Montreal, under the command of Colonel Belnitz, of the Brunswick troop. That at Quebeck, ten of the Germans had deserted. One was afterwards, at Langville, ordered to run the gauntlet through three hundred men; but the whole of the German troops mutinied, owing to their not receiving their pay and provisions promised 'em, refused to inflict the punishment, and were going to murder the General, but Colonel Belnitz quieted them with promises of their receiving their allowances regularly for the future. That he understood all the Germans were to return about Michaelmas, and that the English and Canadians amounted to about five thousand men.

September 5, 1776.

"From a full conviction of the above facts, we do instruct you, that you lay this letter before the Convention of this State, and desire you'll use your influence to have the sense of this Board transmitted to Congress on this occasion.

"We are, gentlemen, your very humble servants,

"By order: JOHN BARCLAY, Chairman.

"To the Deputies of the County of Albany, in Convention of the State of New-York."

General Schuyler's Letter of the 9th instant, which was made a part of the minutes of this Convention on the 12th instant, was again read.

Thereupon, the said Report of the Committee was again read, and being then read by paragraphs, on reading the second Resolution, Mr. Duane moved for the following amendment, to wit, that the words "endanger the peace" be obliterated, and the words "be productive of discontent and endanger the safety of this State," be inserted in their stead. Debates arose thereon, and the question being put it was carried in the negative, in manner following:

For the Negative.		For the Affirmative.
2 Charlotte.	3 Orange.	3 Tryon.
6 Albany.	4 Ulster.
4 Westchester.	5 Dutchess.
2 Cumberland.
26 votes.

Therefore the said amendment was rejected.

The residue of the said Report being read by paragraphs, amended and approved of, the whole of the said Report was again read and adopted by the Convention, is in the words following, to wit:

Whereas this Convention have received information that Major-General Schuyler has sent in his resignation to the honourable the Congress, which they have reason to believe has arisen from some unhappy misapprehension of and a neglect to inquire into his conduct: They cannot, therefore, in justice to his character, avoid expressing their sense of his merit, and their apprehensions of the influence his resignation may have on the publick measures:

1st. Therefore, Resolved, unanimously, That Major-General Schuyler, since his appointment to the command in the Northern department, has, as far as this Convention has been enabled to judge, discharged the duties of his important trust with assiduity, fidelity, and skill.

2d. Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Convention that the resignation of Major-General Schuyler at this critical period will, if accepted, greatly affect the general interest of America, and endanger the peace and safety of the State.

3d. Resolved, unanimously, That the honourable the Congress be requested (through the Delegates from this State) to withhold their assent to the resignation of Major-General Schuyler, and to cause an inquiry to be made into his conduct; since this Convention cannot but hope that an honourable acquittal will, by silencing the voice of calumny, induce him to continue in his command, and thereby preserve a useful officer to the publick.

Resolved, unanimously, That as Major-General Schuyler was appointed at the request of this Convention, if no inquiry should shortly be made into his conduct, that it will be the duty of this Convention to institute the same, in order either to justify their recommendation, and vindicate a character which they have reason to fear has been unjustly traduced, or to hold him up, if he has disgraced his appointment, as an object of publick censure.

Resolved, unanimously, That Robert R. Livingston, Esq., wait upon Major-General Schuyler, in order to inquire into the reasons of his resignation, and to report the same, and in the name of this State to request him not to insist thereon.

Resolved, That a copy of the foregoing Resolutions be immediately sent to the Delegates of this State at Congress, in order to be laid before that honourable House.

A draft of a Letter to the Delegates of this State, to attend the said Resolutions, was read and approved, and is in the words following, viz:

"GENTLEMEN: The Convention have much at heart the subject of the enclosed resolutions, and have directed me to recommend them to your particular attention. They are persuaded that General Schuyler's resignation will not only be highly prejudicial to the common cause of America, by the loss of an able and vigilant officer, singularly qualified for the command he now fills, but will be productive of internal jealousy and discontent, at a period when union and harmony are necessary for our preservation.

"I have the honour to be, gentlemen, your most obedient.

"P. S. I am directed to add that the Convention have received no answer to their last letters. They would wish to hear from you on the matter contained in them and this matter, as soon as possible."

Ordered, That a copy of the said Letter be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted without delay.

Mr. Duane, from "the Committee appointed to examine into and report the present state of the Treasury, the progress which has been made in emitting two hundred thousand Pounds to supply the exigencies of this State, agreeable to a resolution of the Convention, passed on the 13th of August last, the obstructions which have prevented the settlement of the publick Accounts of this State against the Continent, and further means for the immediate supply of the Treasury with money," delivered in their Report, which was read, and is in the words following, to wit:

Your Committee do report that they have, according to order, considered the several matters submitted to their examination. That the Treasury is exhausted, as appears by the account No. 1, being a general state of receipts and payments of the Treasury down to the 17th instant; and that the most speedy and effectual means ought to be adopted to supply the Treasury with money, that the publick credit may be supported, and the heavy expenses to which this State must unavoidably be exposed, in its present critical and dangerous situation, be provided for.

That by reason of the evacuation of the metropolis the loss of the paper mills, the dispersion of the printers, as well as of the gentlemen entrusted to procure the plates, superintend the press, and sign the bills of credit directed to be emitted, there cannot be the least prospect of supplying the Treasury from the intended emission so as to answer the exigencies of the State.

That the Committee have examined into the measures which have been pursued for adjusting the publick accounts of this State against the Continent, and for that purpose have been attended by the Deputy Treasurer, to whose state of facts mentioned in the paper No. 2, they refer; and from which it appears that several of the persons named in the list delivered in by the Deputy Treasurer on the 17th instant, who have been entrusted with publick money, have, though called upon, neglected to settle their accounts with the Auditor-General of this State, which putting it out of his power precisely to ascertain how much of the moneys have been applied for Continental service, and how much for the more immediate purposes of this State, hath hitherto proved an insurmountable obstruction to the adjustment of the publick accounts of this State against the Continent.

That, nevertheless, from an estimate made by the Deputy Treasurer, contained in the paper No. 3, which is herewith presented, it appears, and your Committee are satisfied, that upward of sixty-two thousand Dollars are due from the United States to the State of New-York. Whereupon, your Committee have agreed to the following Resolutions:

Resolved, 1st. That it is the opinion of this Committee that the Auditor-General be directed to use all possible diligence in completing the settlement of the publick Accounts of this State with the United States, and procuring the necessary Vouchers, in order that the said Accounts and Vouchers may, without further delay, be transmitted to the Treasury office of the United States, at Philadelphia, there to be finally settled and passed.

And to remove the impediments which have hitherto retarded the settlement of the said accounts,

Resolved, 2dly. That in the opinion of this Committee such of the persons named in the said list who have been entrusted with the publick Money, and have neglected to produce their Accounts and Vouchers to the Auditor-General of this State, be and they hereby are enjoined, on pain of incurring the displeasure of this Convention, to attend the said Auditor-General at Fishkills, with their respective Accounts and Vouchers, as soon as possible after receiving notice for that purpose from the said Auditor-General.

Resolved, 3dly. That it is the opinion of this Committee that the honourable Congress of the United States be requested to advance to this State one hundred thousand Dollars, in consideration of the vast expenses to which we are exposed, and the impracticability, for the reasons herein set forth, of emitting Bills of Credit with a despatch suitable to the urgency of our publick affairs and the calamitous circumstances into which we are involved. That in case this requisition should be complied with, the Convention do pledge this State to be accountable for the sums to be advanced, declaring that the receipt of the Delegates of this State or either of them, shall be a sufficient voucher for the same, and directing the said Delegates to forward the Money as expeditiously as possible.

Resolved, 4thly, as the opinion of this Committee, That if it should be inconvenient to the United States to advance to this State the sum specified in the before-mentioned requisition, that then the honourable Congress be and are hereby requested to advance to this State the sum of sixty thousand Dollars, on account of the balance due from the Continent to this State; this Committee being of opinion, upon the best evidence they have been able to procure, that at least that sum must be due from the United States to this State.

The same Report was again read by paragraphs. Thereupon

Resolved, unanimously, That this Convention does agree with their Committee in the said Report.

Ordered, That a copy of the preceding Report be transmitted by the President of this Convention to the President of the honourable Continental Congress, and that a copy be also transmitted to the Delegates of this State at the Continental Congress.

Ordered, That the President write a Letter to the honourable the President of Congress, and another to the Delegates of this State at Congress, to accompany the copies of those Resolutions.

Ordered, That Abraham Yates, Jun., Esq., the President of this Convention, have leave of absence for one fortnight from the time of his departure.

Mr. Duer, from "the Committee appointed to report a more effectual mode for detecting and defeating the designs of the internal enemies of this State," delivered in their Report, which was read. The same was read a second time. Debates arose thereon.

Mr. William Harper moved and was seconded, that the said Report be rejected.

Mr. Duane moved and was seconded, that the former Resolutions of the late Provincial Congress of this Convention, for apprehending and securing dangerous and disaffected persons, be read.

After many debates on each of the said two last-mentioned motions, the further consideration thereof was deferred till to-morrow.

Mr. Adgate has leave of absence for a fortnight from the time of his departure.

Mr. Wisner has leave of absence for a week from the time of his departure.

Mr. Duer dissents to both.

Resolved and Ordered, That the President for the time being, with any five Members, have power to send a Messenger for any Member who shall depart the Convention without leave, or for any Member who having departed with leave, shall be absent longer than the time of permission to such Member limited, pursuant to the Resolve and Order of this Convention of the 6th instant.

The Convention being informed that Isaac Ketcham, who, as a Traitor against this State, has lately been aiding and assisting the cruel enemies of the United American States in ravaging and plundering the Farms and Estates of the subjects and inhabitants of this State, on Nassau-Island, and carrying off the Stock, has been taken by Captain Rogers, and is now in chains on board of the Sloop Montgomery:

Ordered, That the said Isaac Ketcham be brought, manacled and under a proper guard, before this Convention, to abide the further order of this Convention; and that John Sloss Hobart, Esq., be requested to see that this order be duly executed.

Mr. Duane dissents.

Ordered, That Jost Wadder, alias Veder, and Peter

Benjamin Van Vredenburg, two Deserters from Captain Van Steinbergh's Company, from Dutchess County, and now in custody of the Guard of Captain William Clark's Company, be sent to Fort Constitution, and there delivered to the Commanding Officer; and the said Commanding Officer is hereby requested to detain the said Deserters in safe custody, and send them by the first conveyance to the main guard at General Clinton's encampment, at or near King's Bridge, together with this order.

Die Sabbati, 9 ho. A. M., September 21, 1776.

The Convention met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Abraham Yates, Jun., Esq., President.

NEW-YORK.—Mr. Duane, Mr. Harper, Mr. Bancker.

ORANGE.—Colonel Allison, Mr. Wisner, Dr. Sherwood, Mr. Joseph Smith, Mr. Little.

ALBANY.—Mr. Ab. Yates, General Ten Broeck, Mr. John Ten Broeck, Mr. Robert Yates.

WESTCHESTER.—Mr. Mills, Colonel Drake, Major Lockwood, Colonel Cortlandt.

SUFFOLK.—Mr. William Smith, Mr. Hobart.

TRYON.—Mr. Moore, Mr. Veder, Mr. Harper.

ULSTER.—Mr. Wisner, Jun., Major Parks.

CHARLOTTE.—Mr. Webster, Mr. Duer.

DUTCHESS.—Mr. Zeph. Platt, Mr. R. R. Livingston, Mr. Sackett, Dr. Crane.

CUMBERLAND.—Mr. Sessions, Mr. Stevens.

Mr. Wisner informed the Convention that the Rangers raised in Orange County are ready for service; but as the Indians are quiet and the Rangers unemployed, he suggested to the Convention whether it might not be proper to send them to Fort Montgomerie for the present, in lieu of the Company of Militia lately ordered to be detached from that County.

Resolved, That the state of the Rangers be taken into consideration on Tuesday next.

Ordered, That Mr. Hobart be directed to call at the Forts in the Highlands, in his way to Head-Quarters; that he get an exact account of the Garrison and the number of men required to put them in a proper posture of defence; and that he state to the General the inconvenience we lie under in raising more of our Militia, and request if they can be spared, that he would send a reinforcement from his Army to those posts.

Whereas that part of the order of the 18th instant, which sets forth that Colonel Pierre Van Cortlandt and Captain Platt had accounted with William Paulding for the publick Moneys put into their hands for supporting the Militia employed on the east side of Hudson's River, while the enemy's Ships of War were in that river, appears to have been founded on mistake:

On motion, Ordered, That the order of the 18th instant, respecting those Accounts, together with the Schedule containing the names of the persons who have not accounted to the Treasurer, be recommitted to Mr. Ten Broeck, Mr. Bancker, and Mr. Duer, who are hereby appointed a Committee for that purpose.

On motion of General Ten Broeck,

Resolved, That Mr. Gerard Bancker, the Deputy Treasurer of the State, do immediately draw upon the Loan Officers of the City and County of Albany, in favour of the Chairman of the Committee of Albany, for whatever interest of the Loan office Money is at present in their hands, not exceeding the sum of twelve hundred Pounds, and the said Committee are hereby ordered to apply the sum so received to the payment of the one-half of the Bounty to the Rangers raised in the said County, and to the payment of the Subsistence Money to the Company raised in the city of Albany for guarding the Stores and Vessels with Provisions and Ammunition, in and about the said city.

The Report of the Committee to whom was referred "the consideration of a more effectual mode of detecting and defeating the designs of the internal enemies of this State," was again read.

On motion, the Resolutions of the Provincial Congress of the 5th day of June last, appointing a Committee to call before them and secure persons dangerous and disaffected to the American cause, and those of equivocal character, were also read.

The Resolution of the Convention of the Representatives of this State, increasing the powers of the respective County Committees as to dangerous persons, and also the Resolutions of the Convention on the 26th day of August last, authorizing the County Committees to secure persons committed, or to deliver the Gaols, were respectively read.

The Convention then resumed the consideration of the said Report of the Committee above mentioned; the same was again read, and, on motion made and seconded, the question was put whether the same shall be rejected, which was carried in the negative.

A Letter from General Washington was read, and follows, viz :

"Head-Quarters, Heights of Harlem, September 20, 1776.

"GENTLEMEN: Having reason to believe the enemy will attempt to gall us with their ships of war from the North-River as soon as they are ready to open their batteries against the front of our lines, which we expect them to erect with great industry, I beg leave to mention that I think it may be of immense consequence if your honourable body will order down some of your fire-ships, which may lay just above the obstructions in the river under cover of the guns of Fort Washington, where they will be ready to act in case the ships should attempt to come up. Hurried and surrounded with a thousand things, I have only time to add that I have the honour to be, with great esteem, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

"GO. WASHINGTON."

On reading the Letter of his Excellency General Washington, of the 20th instant, requesting this Convention to order down some of their Fire-Ships to lay just above the obstructions in Hudson's River,

Resolved, That the two Fire-Ships charged by Captain Hazelwood, be immediately despatched to Fort Washington, or near it.

And Ordered, That Gilbert Livingston, Esquire, or any other Member of the Committee for obstructing the navigation of Hudson's River who may now be at Poughkeepsie, do immediately despatch the two Fire-Ships prepared and charged by Captain Hazelwood, with proper persons to navigate them, under cover of the guns of the said Fort, and there deliver them to the care of such person as his Excellency General Washington has or shall appoint to take charge of them.

Ordered, That a copy of the above Resolution and Order be despatched to his Excellency General Washington, and another copy to Gilbert Livingston, Esq.

A draft of a Letter to his Excellency was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit :

"SIR: The Convention have received your Excellency's letter of September 20, and have in consequence entered into the enclosed resolution, which I am directed to transmit. We are sorry that it is not in our power to send down more than two fire-ships, as they have no more charged in such a manner as to be depended on.

"A Committee of Correspondence has been established by the Convention for the purpose of communicating to, and receiving intelligence from, the army. The express will receive orders to call upon your Excellency daily; and any commands or intelligence which your Excellency may think proper to transmit, will be thankfully received and punctually attended to by "Your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant.

"By order.

"To his Excellency General Washington."

Ordered, That a copy be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

A Letter from the Quartermaster-General to Captain Cook, open, directing him to purchase and procure Timber and Oak Plank with all possible despatch for the Army; and an order of the said Quartermaster to Captain Cook, to purchase Vessels, or take them at an appraisement, for completing the obstructions to the navigation of Hudson's River, opposite to Mount Washington.

Ordered, That Mr. Duane, Mr. Sackett, and Mr. R. R. Livingston, be a Committee to go out and confer with Captain Cook on the subjects of those two papers, and know what aid he expects of this Convention in the premises.

The Convention resumed the consideration of the Report of the Committee on "A more effectual mode of detecting and defeating the designs of the internal enemies of this State."

A Letter from Thaddeus Crane to Major Jos. Benedict, dated the 17th instant, was read. He therein informs that the disaffected are grown troublesome and impudent, and that it is necessary that some remedy be provided. He suggests the necessity of removing a number of disaffected persons from Salem, and raising a company of twenty-five or thirty men, under the command of Captain Samuel Dellavan, for the purpose of awing and detecting the disaffected, insulting villains.

A pathetick Letter on the same subject from Major Jos. Benedict to Colonel Drake, dated the 18th instant, was also read and filed.

A Letter from John White, of Rhynbeck Precinct, to Captain Zeph. Platt, dated the 16th instant, was also read and filed. He therein complains of great desertions from the Army; that at least thirty deserters are thereabout in the woods, and supported by disaffected persons; that some remedy ought to be applied.

The Convention then spent some further time in consideration of the said Report, and the Letters above mentioned: Thereupon,

Resolved, That thirty men be raised in Westchester County by Captain Samuel Dellavan, and put on the same establishment as those under the command of Captain Micha Townsend; that they compose one Company under the command of the said Captain Samuel Dellavan, who is hereby empowered to appoint three Sergeants, three Corporals, and a Drummer and Fifer, in the said Company.

Dr. Crane had leave of absence, to return on Wednesday next, Mr. Duer dissenting.

The Convention adjourned one hour.

Die Sabbati, 4 ho. P. M., September 21, 1776.

The Convention met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Abraham Yates, Jun., Esq., President.

NEW-YORK.—Mr. Duane, Mr. Bancker, Mr. Harper.

DUTCHESS.—Mr. R. R. Livingston, Mr. G. Livingston, Mr. Platt, Mr. Sackett.

ALBANY.—The President, General Ten Broeck, Mr. John Ten Broeck, Mr. Robert Yates.

ORANGE.—Mr. Wisner, Mr. Little, Dr. Sherwood, Mr. Jos. Smith, Colonel Allison.

SUFFOLK.—Mr. William Smith, Mr. Hobart.

WESTCHESTER.—Mr. Mills, Major Lockwood, Colonel Cortlandt, Colonel Drake.

CHARLOTTE.—Mr. Duer, Major Webster.

ULSTER.—Mr. Wisner, Jun., Major Parks.

TRYON.—Mr. Moore, Mr. William Harper, Mr. Veder.

CUMBERLAND.—Mr. Stevens, Mr. Sessions.

A Letter from Thomas Randall, Esq., one of the Marine Committee, dated at Elizabethtown, the 7th September, was read and filed.

A Letter from Thomas Quigley, Mate of the Privateer Putnam, dated at Cranberry Inlet, the 4th instant, was also read and filed.

The Petition of the Officers and Marines of the said Vessel-of-War was also read and filed. It thereby appears that there is a mutiny on board of the said vessel, and the marines and crew demand their wages and refuse to continue in the said vessel under the command of Captain Thomas Cregier.

Ordered, That those Papers be deferred for consideration.

The Convention resumed the consideration of the Report of the Committee "on a more effectual mode of detecting and defeating the designs of the internal enemies of this State." The same being read by paragraphs, resolved on, and agreed to, is in the words following, to wit :

"In Convention of the Representatives of the State of New-York, }
"September 21, 1776. }

"Whereas divers of the inhabitants of this State have, by the wicked arts and insidious and corrupt practices of William Tryon, Esq., late Governour of the Colony of New-York, and his adherents, been seduced to take part with our enemies, and aid and abet their measures for subjugating the United States of America :

"And whereas, although sundry of the said paricides have been discovered and secured, yet there is the highest reason to believe that the measures hitherto pursued fully to detect and suppress such iniquitous practices and conspiracies, have not been effectual; and whereas this State is at present invaded by a powerful army at the capital, and threatened with the incursions of another army, attended by an host of savages on its northern and western frontiers, this Convention find themselves reduced by the great laws of self-preservation, and the duties which they owe to their constituents, to provide that no means in their power be left unessayed to defeat the barbarous machinations of their domestic as well as external enemies; and do, therefore,

Resolved, That a Committee be appointed for the express purpose of inquiring into and detecting and defeating all conspiracies which may be formed in this State against the liberties of America; that they be empowered to send for persons and papers; to call out such detachments of the Militia or Troops in the different Counties as they may from time to time deem necessary for suppressing insurrections; to apprehend, secure, or remove, such persons who they shall judge dangerous to the safety of the State; to make drafts on the Treasury for a sum not exceeding five hundred Pounds; that they be empowered to enjoin secrecy upon their own members and the persons employed by the Committee, whenever they shall judge the same necessary; and in general to do every act and thing whatsoever which may be necessary to enable them to execute the trust hereby reposed in them; that the said Committee keep regular Minutes of all their proceedings and expenditures, together with the examinations which they may from time to time take, and the correspondence they carry on for executing these resolutions, in order that the whole or any part thereof may be submitted to the consideration of this Convention, or future Legislature of this State, whenever and as often as they may think proper to call for the same; that they be empowered, if they shall think it necessary, to raise, officer, and put under pay, any number of men, not exceeding two hundred and twenty, officers included, to be upon the same establishment with those under the command of Captain Melancthon Smith, and to station them in such places, and to employ them on such services, as they shall judge expedient for the publick safety.

Resolved, That the Company of thirty men, ordered this day by this Convention to be raised by Captain Delavergne, be under the direction of the said Committee.

Ordered, That the several Committees in this State, do from time to time transmit to the above-mentioned Committee, all such information as they shall receive, relating to any machinations and conspiracies against this State, and that copies of these Resolutions be immediately sent by express to the Chairman of the County Committees, and to all the Brigadier-Generals, or Commanding Officers of the Militia in this State, that they may govern themselves accordingly.

Extract from the Minutes:

ROBERT BENSON, Secretary.

Resolved and agreed, unanimously, That the said Committee be chosen by ballot.

And the ballots of the several Counties being delivered in and told, William Duer, Charles De Witt, Leonard Gansevoort, John Jay, and Zephaniah Platt, Esquires, appeared duly elected by a majority of votes, to be the members of that Committee.

Resolved, therefore, That those gentlemen be the Committee.

Resolved, That Nathaniel Sackett, Esquire, be added to and be a member of the said Committee.

And Ordered, that the Secretaries send notice to Charles De Witt, Esquire, of his appointment to be one of this Committee, and desire his attendance.

Resolved, That the Chairman and two members of the said Committee be a quorum to proceed on business.

Resolved and ordered, That the Examinations of Samuel Gale, William Tredwell, and Benjamin Ludlum be delivered to the said Committee; that they take the same, with any other papers or evidences relating thereto, into consideration; and commit them or take securities of them, or liberate and discharge them respectively, as the said Committee may think proper.

Resolved and agreed, That the order for committing the said Samuel Gale, Benjamin Ludlum, William Tredwell, to the officer of the guard at this place, be rescinded.

And Ordered, That the Secretaries take security of each of them, by bond, with a surety to the President, in the sum of £500, each, with condition for their appearance, respectively, before the said Committee on request, and in the mean time not to depart farther than two miles from the Dutch Church, at Fishkill.

On Report of the Committee who went out to confer with Captain Cook,

Resolved, That the Secret Committee for obstructing the navigation of Hudson's River, be empowered and directed to purchase and impress for the service of this State, any number of Vessels, not exceeding six, which they shall think best calculated for the purpose of completing the obstructions in Hudson's River, opposite to Mount Washington; that they cause an appraisement of the said Vessels to be made, by persons under oath, in the most equitable and expeditious manner possible, in order that satisfaction may hereafter be made by this Convention to the owners of such vessels. And it is recommended to the said Committee to request the services of Captain Thomas Greenell in ballasting and navigating, and delivering those Vessels to Captain Cook, at Fort Washington.

Resolved, That the said Committee be directed to send all the Oak Plank which they have in their possession to Mount Washington, with the utmost despatch.

Resolved, That the Superintendents for building the Continental Frigates be earnestly requested to send as much of their short Oak Plank, as they possibly can spare, to Fort Washington, with the utmost despatch; and this Convention do engage to justify their conduct, in this particular, to the honourable the Continental Congress.

Resolved, That the last-appointed Committee of Safety, with the addition of four Members hereafter named, be revived. That therefore, Mr. Duane, Mr. Hobart, General Ten Broeck, Mr. Duer, Mr. William Smith, Mr. Wisner, Mr. Bancker, and the four following Members, viz: Mr. Ten Broeck, Major Lockwood, Mr. Moore, and Mr. Joshua H. Smith, constitute a Committee of Safety. That any four of them present at this place be a quorum. That every other member who may attend have a voice in the Committee. That the said Committee have power to send for any members of this Convention who may be absent; and that they continue a Committee of Safety until the first meeting of a representation of this State in Convention.

N. B. Colonel Cortlandt excused from being of the Committee of Safety, that he may go to relieve his family now in a boat or pettianger, on the river.

COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Monday Morning, September 23, 1776.

The following Members met in Committee of Safety, to wit:

Members of NEW-YORK.—Mr. Bancker*, Mr. Duane.
Of DUTCHESS.—Mr. Sackett.
CHARLOTTE.—Mr. Duer*, Major Webster*.
Of ALBANY.—General Ten Broeck*, Mr. Ten Broeck*.
Of WESTCHESTER.—Major Lockwood*.
CUMBERLAND.—Mr. Sessions, Mr. Stephens.
ORANGE.—Mr. Little, Mr. Joseph Smith*.
TRYON.—Mr. Moore*, Mr. Harper, Mr. Veder.

Those whose names are marked with an asterism, are of the quorum of the Committee.

The Committee proceeded to the choice of a Chairman, when Brigadier-General Abram Ten Broeck, was unanimously elected.

Mr. Duer, one of the Members of the Committee for establishing Riders betwixt this place and Head-Quarters, at or near King's Bridge, for the purpose of obtaining the most early intelligence, reported a Letter from Brigadier-General Scott, dated at the camp at King's Bridge, September 21st, giving intelligence of a great fire, which happened the preceding night, in the city of New-York, but that he had not been able to get any information as to the particulars of it. The same was read, and immediately returned to Mr. Duer, to be filed with the Committee papers.

A Letter from John Barclay, Esq., Chairman of the Committee of Albany, dated the 21st instant, and directed to Mr. McKesson, one of the Secretaries of the Convention of this State, was read. Mr. Barclay acknowledged the receipt of a Resolution of the Convention relative to Brooks and Roff, skippers of two Albany Sloops, who are charged with having deserted the service, with their Sloops laden with military stores, &c., and which they took on board at New-York, to be landed at or near King's Bridge. Mr. Barclay also informs the Convention that the said Committee have despatched a batteau well manned down the river in quest of them.

Whereas the Convention of this State did on the 17th instant appoint a Committee of Safety, to continue till the next meeting of a Representation of this State in Convention, and authorized them to send for any Members of the Convention who may be absent without leave, which said Committee was, with the addition of four Members, and with the like power, on the 21st instant, revived:

Therefore, Ordered, That a Messenger be immediately despatched to summon the following Members, who are absent without leave, to attend on the publick business without delay, and that they pay the Messenger a reasonable compensation for his trouble and expenses, to wit: Mr. Mills, Major Parks, Mr. Wisner, Jun., Colonel Sherwood, Colonel Allison, Colonel Livingston, Mr. Zephaniah Platt, and Mr. Stevens.

On motion of Mr. Duer, the sense of the Committee was taken, whether Colonel Drake had leave of absence, and the question being put it was determined, nem. con., in the negative. The question was then put whether the Messenger shall be despatched to require Colonel Drake's immediate attendance. Determined in the negative, because Colonel Drake's presence in Westchester County is absolutely necessary, in order to inform the Committee of the measures, which at the time of his departure, the Committee had under consideration, for detecting and defeating conspiracies of the disaffected.

Monday Afternoon, September 23, 1776.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Brigadier-General Ten Broeck, Chairman.

For NEW-YORK.—*Mr. Bancker, *Mr. Duane.

WESTCHESTER.—*Major Lockwood.

Of ALBANY.—*Mr. Ten Broeck, *General Ten Broeck.

TRYON.—*Mr. Moore, Mr. Harper, Mr. Veder.

Of DUTCHESS.—Mr. Platt, Mr. Sackett.

CHARLOTTE.—*Mr. Duer, *Mr. Webster.

Of ORANGE.—*Mr. Smith, Mr. Little.

CUMBERLAND.—Mr. Sessions.

Those marked with an asterisk are of the quorum of the Committee of Safety.

The Memorial of William Tredwell, now detained at this place by order of the Convention, on suspicion of holding correspondence with the enemy, (he having been on Long-Island since the same has been in possession of the enemy,) was read and filed.

Ordered, That the said Memorial be referred to the Committee appointed for detecting conspiracies, &c.

Mr. Duer, a member of the Committee of Correspondence and Intelligence, informed the Committee of Safety that he has transmitted to his Excellency General Washington copies of the Resolution of the Convention authorizing the Secret Committee to purchase or impress any number of Vessels not exceeding six, to complete the obstructions of the navigation in Hudson's River, opposite to Fort Washington, and of the Resolution requesting the Superintendents of the Frigates building at Poughkeepsie, to send down to Mount Washington all the short Oak Plank they can spare.

The Letter from John Thomas, Jun., Esq., Chairman of the Committee of Safety for Westchester County, [dated the 19th instant,] which was received in Convention on the 21st instant, relative to the indigent inhabitants of the city of New-York, who were sent into that County by a Committee of the Convention for that purpose appointed, was read:

Ordered, That the Secretaries write a Letter to Mr. Thomas, enclosing a copy of the Resolutions of the Convention on that subject, passed the 21st August last, and request of him that he cause report to be made of all the indigent persons which have been sent into that County, agreeable to the directions of the said Resolutions, and that this Committee or the Convention will make provision for defraying the expenses of supporting them.

Adjourned till to-morrow morning.

Tuesday Morning, September 24, 1776.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Brigadier-General Ten Broeck, Chairman.

NEW-YORK Members.—*Mr. Bancker, *Mr. Duane.

ORANGE.—Mr. Little, *Mr. Jos. Smith.

CHARLOTTE.—*Major Webster.

ALBANY.—Mr. Ten Broeck, General Ten Broeck.

WESTCHESTER.—Major Lockwood.

CUMBERLAND.—Mr. Sessions, Mr. Stephens.

DUTCHESS.—Captain Platt.

TRYON.—*Mr. Moore, Mr. Harper, Mr. Veder.

Note.—Those marked with an asterisk are a quorum of the Committee of Safety.

There being no material business proper for the Committee to take up,

Adjourned till four o'clock this afternoon, unless the bell should be ordered to ring before that hour, in which case the Members agree to give immediate attendance.

Tuesday Afternoon, September 24, 1776.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: General Ten Broeck, Chairman.

NEW-YORK Members.—*Mr. Bancker.

DUTCHESS.—Mr. Platt.

TRYON.—*Mr. Moore, Mr. Harper.

ALBANY.—*General Ten Broeck, *Mr. Ten Broeck.

WESTCHESTER.—*Major Lockwood.

CHARLOTTE.—*Mr. Duer, *Major Webster.

ULSTER.—Major Parks, Mr. Wisner.

ORANGE.—Mr. Little.

CUMBERLAND.—Mr. Sessions, Mr. Stephens.

Note.—Those marked with asterisks are a quorum of the Committee.

Thomas Cregier, Commander of the Schooner General Putnam, a vessel of war fitted out by and belonging to this State, waited upon the Committee and informed them that the said Schooner is very much out of repair, and, as the winter is approaching, submitted to the Committee whether it would be proper to keep the said Schooner longer in service. The Committee were of opinion that this matter be referred to the consideration of the Convention. Captain Cregier was called in and directed to wait the meeting of the Convention.

A Letter from Colonel Levi Pawling, dated the 23d instant, was read and filed. The Colonel complains much of the want of a Surgeon to his Regiment, and requests that Mr. Joseph Crane may be appointed to that office.

Ordered, That this Letter be referred to the Convention at their first meeting.

Adjourned till to-morrow morning, nine o'clock.

Wednesday Morning, September 25, 1776.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Brigadier-General Abraham Ten Broeck, Chairman.

NEW-YORK Members.—*Mr. Duane, *Mr. Bancker, Mr. Duncomb.

ORANGE.—Mr. Little, *Mr. Jos. Smith.

CHARLOTTE.—Mr. Duer, Mr. Webster.

ALBANY.—*General Ten Broeck, Mr. Ten Broeck.

WESTCHESTER.—Colonel Cortlandt, Major Lockwood, Colonel Drake.

CUMBERLAND.—Mr. Sessions, Mr. Stephens.

DUTCHESS.—Mr. Sackett, Mr. Platt.

TRYON.—Mr. Moore, Mr. Harper.

ULSTER.—Major Parks, Mr. Wisner, Jun.

Those marked with an asterisk are a quorum of the Committee.

A Letter from General Washington, dated at the Heights of Harlem, September 23d, containing a particular account of the manœuvres of the enemy on their landing on New-York Island, and of the behaviour of our Troops who were stationed to oppose their landing; also an account of the skirmish when the enemy attacked the Heights at the north end of Harlem Lane, and of the loss on both sides, was read and filed.

A Letter from General Scott to the Committee of Intelligence, was introduced by Mr. Duer, and read. General Scott gives a particular account of the great fire which lately happened in New-York, and also of a little expedition to Montresor's Island, in which our Troops failed of success, and were obliged to retreat with the loss of the brave Major Henly, killed, and several others wounded and missing.

A Letter from Messrs. Clark & Nightingale, dated Providence, September the 16th, relative to two Prizes, to wit: the Brigantine Temple, from a whaling voyage, and a Bermudian Sloop, both taken on the south side of Long-Island by the armed Continental Sloops Schuyler and Mifflin, and the armed Sloop Montgomerie, fitted out by the State of New-York. A state of the case of the Brigantine, drawn up by a lawyer, was also enclosed. Were respectively read and filed.

Ordered, That the said Letter be referred to the Convention on their first meeting.

A Memorial of Cornelius Atherton,* dated this day, was read and filed. He prays that he, with his men, may be exempted from military duty, that he may be enabled to fulfil his contract entered into with the Representatives of this State for manufacturing Muskets. Referred to the Convention.

Adjourned till four o'clock this afternoon.

Die Mercurii, 4to ho. P. M., September 25, 1776.

No other Members appearing, and no urgent business having offered, the Committee adjourned till nine o'clock to-morrow morning.

CONVENTION.

Thursday Morning, September 26, 1776.

The Convention met. Present:

NEW-YORK Members.—Mr. Duane, Mr. Dunscomb, Mr. Bancker.

WESTCHESTER.—Major Lockwood, Colonel Cortlandt, Colonel Drake.

ALBANY.—General Ten Broeck, Mr. Ten Broeck, Colonel Livingston.

ORANGE.—Mr. Little, Mr. Jos. Smith.

ULSTER.—Mr. Wisner, Jun., Major Park.

TRYON.—Mr. Harper, Mr. Moore, Mr. Veder.

DUTCHESS.—Mr. Sackett, Captain Platt.

CHARLOTTE.—Major Webster, Mr. Duer.

CUMBERLAND.—Mr. Sessions, Mr. Stephens.

The President, Abraham Yates, Jun., Esq., with leave being gone home to visit his family, the Convention proceeded to elect by ballot a President. Colonel Peter R. Livingston was duly elected, and accordingly took the chair.

On motion of General Ten Broeck,

Resolved, That a Committee of Safety be immediately appointed, to consist of the President, with Mr. Duane, Mr. Duer, Colonel Cortlandt, Zephaniah Platt, Mr. Wm. Harper, and Colonel Drake. That any three of those gentlemen, with the President, be a quorum. That every member

*To the honourable Convention of the State of New-York: Is humbly presented the Memorial of Cornelius Atherton, showing the impossibility of his carrying on the manufacture of fire-arms under the present situation of this State, there being no exemption for him or his workmen from the military duty, which is a fatal bar to his progress in making fire-arms. Your memorialist has taken unwearied pains to employ workmen, but to no purpose; for before he can get them qualified for the business they are called into the army, and he has new ones to seek, and all to no purpose, as the same scene is acted over and over, viz: the calling of himself and workmen to general musters, Tory hunts, drafting, &c. All these manœuvres put together has rendered it impossible for me to accomplish my contract with the Congress; and unless the honourable Convention can see it expedient to pass an act whereby their memorialist can be secured in keeping his workmen, it will be forever impossible for him to do much at making fire-arms, and must of necessity oblige him to quit the business. Your memorialist, therefore, earnestly prays that your Honours would take the matter into their serious consideration, and afford their memorialist such assistance as to your Honours shall seem best. And your memorialist in duty bound will ever pray.
September 25, 1776.
CORNELIUS. ATHERTON, Memorialist.

To the care of Zephaniah Platt, Esq., attending the Convention for the State of New-York.

of the Convention who may attend have a vote. That no Member of Convention depart this neighbourhood without leave of the Committee of Safety, and that the said Committee have power and are hereby authorized to send for absent Members of the Convention of this State.

Mr. Veder being so sick and indisposed that he is unable to sit or attend the Convention, and there not being Members sufficient to continue the Convention without Mr. Veder's attendance, therefore the Convention from necessity adjourned till nine o'clock to-morrow morning.

And Ordered, That the Committee of Safety meet immediately.

COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

The Committee of Safety met.

Present.—All the Members first named except Mr. Veder.

A Letter from Stephen De Lancey, Esq., now confined at Hartford, to States M. Dyckman was read.

Mr. Dyckman being called in and examined, says, that he knows the horses mentioned in Mr. De Lancey's letter; that they were kept on the farm of James De Lancey, Esq., at Westchester. That one of them is a bay horse about fifteen hands high, the other likewise a bay horse about fourteen hands high. That about a week ago he went to the farm of Mr. De Lancey and saw one of the horses, the large one; the other, the small one, he thinks perhaps may have been taken to Long-Island with the family.

States M. Dyckman withdrew. The Committee took the said letter and Dyckman's application for an order for the horses of Stephen De Lancey into consideration. After some time spent therein, an order with recitals on that subject being several times read, amended, and moved for, is in the words following, to wit:

Whereas it has been represented in behalf of Stephen De Lancey, Esq., now confined on his parole to the Town of Hartford, in Connecticut, by order of the General Committee of the County of Albany, that one of his horses has been taken, and is at present employed by persons in the Continental Army; and it being highly expedient that care should be taken to prevent the destruction of the property of all persons who are removed from their vacant places of residence by the authority of this State:

Resolved, therefore, That States M. Dyckman (recommended for that purpose by Mr. De Lancey) be authorized to take the custody and charge of the said horse, belonging to the said Stephen De Lancey: Provided, always, That the said horse, belonging to the said Stephen De Lancey, has not been impressed by proper authority for the service of the Army, and that nothing in this resolve contained shall exempt the horses of the said Stephen De Lancey from being impressed in common with those of other persons in this State.

Debates arose on the said proposed Resolution; and the question being put thereon, the Committee were equally divided, viz: Nine for the affirmative and nine for the negative. The Chairman then determined against the said proposed Resolution; wherefore it was rejected.

A Letter from Thomas Cregier, dated this day, was read. He therein gives a state of the vessel of war, the General Putnam, and her crew; that his men want their wages; and the vessel out of repair and unfit for the sea; and advises that she be laid up or sold.

Ordered, That the said Representation be filed, and referred to the consideration of the Convention.

The Memorial of John McCauley and of Orange County, setting forth the distresses of the inhabitants, for want of Salt, and that certain quantities of Salt are stored in Orange County, was read.

A Resolution of the Committee of Dutchess County, restraining the sale of the Salt stored in Dutchess County, was also read. They therein pray directions how the said Salt may be most advantageously disposed of.

The Resolution of the Continental Congress, directing the mode of the sales of Salt, was also read.

Ordered, That the said Papers, relating to the article of Salt, be committed to Captain Zephaniah Platt, Mr. Dunscombe, Colonel Drake, and Mr. Duane, hereby appointed a Committee to report thereon.

Mr. Duer, one of the members of the Committee of Correspondence, delivered in a Letter from Tench Tilghman, Esq., dated the 24th instant; which was read. He therein mentions his Excellency General Washington's satisfaction that the Convention should aid in obstructing the navigation of Hudson's River.

Ordered, That the said Letter be made a part of the Minutes of this Committee.

The said Letter follows, viz:

"Head-Quarters, Harlem Heights, September 24, 1776.

"DEAR SIR: I have this moment the honour of yours of the 22d instant, acquainting me that Mr. R. R. Livingston and yourself had been empowered, by your Committee of Correspondence, to employ some person about Head-Quarters to communicate, daily, such interesting intelligence as may be expected to occur at this critical time, and that you were anxious I should undertake this task. I feel myself highly honoured by this mark of distinction, and you may be assured I will exert myself to give you satisfaction in my office.

"His Excellency informs me that he wrote your Convention fully yesterday, and desires me to say that he has only to thank them for the attention they are paying to the obstruction of the North River, which he hopes will be rendered effectual by this intended additional obstruction above the chevaux-de-frise.

"We hear that our forces were obliged to abandon Powle's Hook yesterday evening; but as we have no particulars of the matter or manner, I must wait the return of General Greene, who went down that way this morning, to make himself fully informed. You shall hear more of it to-morrow.

"I beg you will let me know, in your next, who is President of your Committee of Correspondence, as I suppose my letters in my official capacity are to be addressed to him. I shall, till then, address myself to you.

"You are pleased to call me Richard, but I have the honour and pleasure to be your most obedient,

TENCH TILGHMAN.

"To William Duer, Esq., at Fishkill."

Die Jovis, 4to ho. P. M., September 26, 1776.

The Committee of Safety met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Colonel Peter R. Livingston, President.

NEW-YORK.—Mr. Dunscombe, Mr. Duane.

WESTCHESTER.—Colonel G. Drake, Major Lockwood.

CUMBERLAND.—Mr. Sessions, Mr. Stevens.

ALBANY.—Colonel Livingston, General Ten Broeck, Mr. John Ten Broeck.

ORANGE.—Mr. Little, Mr. Joseph Smith.

ULSTER.—Mr. Wisner, Jun., Major Park.

TRYON.—Mr. William Harper, Mr. Moore.

DUTCHESS.—Mr. Sackett, Captain Zephaniah Platt.

CHARLOTTE.—Major Webster, Mr. Duer, Colonel Williams.

A Letter from Benjamin Dupuy, Chairman of the Committee of Mamacotting Precinct, in Ulster County, was read and filed, and is dated the 23d instant. The said Chairman thereby informs that a vacancy of a military officer had arisen by Captain De Witt's engaging in the Ranging service; that thereby the following gentlemen were duly promoted and elected, viz: Abraham Cuddeback, Jun., Captain, Robert Cock, First Lieutenant, Samuel King, Second Lieutenant, and Samuel Dupuy, Ensign.

Ordered, That the said Commissions issue. And they were issued accordingly.

A Letter or Request of Joab Hoisington was received and read, and is in the words following, to wit:

"To the Hon. Nathaniel Woodhull, President of the honourable Congress of the State of New-York:

"Agreeable to the order of the honourable the Congress, I have sent the muster-rolls of the several companies under my command, by Elizur Andrews, the bearer, begging the favour of your forwarding the remainder of the bounty rations and first month's wages, taking his receipt for the same.

"Am, sir, your humble servant, JOAB HOISINGTON.

"N. B. Please to remit my wages and rations; likewise

FIFTH SERIES.—VOL. II.

as much of the rations as the honourable Congress shall see fit. Find it much easier to purchase supplies with cash."

A Return of the Commissioned Officers of the four Companies of Rangers, commanded by Major Hoisington, signed by James Clay, Chairman, was also read; and certain Muster-Rolls of the said Companies were also delivered in.

The Committee took the same into consideration. After some time spent therein, a motion was made and seconded, that a sum sufficient to answer the purposes of Major Hoisington's request be transmitted to him.

It was objected that the Committee of that County had, by their letter or declaration to this Convention, dated the 21st of June last, reserved, or pretended to reserve, to the people of that County, a right of seceding from the Government of this State; that the State has already been at great expense for that County; that further expenditures on their account ought not to be made until the jurisdiction of this State is fully acknowledged by the inhabitants of that County.

After sundry debates on this subject, at the request of a Member, Mr. Stevens, one of the Deputies from that County, was interrogated whether he, as a Representative of Cumberland County, acknowledges the jurisdiction of this State over the said County? Mr. Stevens declared that he does fully acknowledge the jurisdiction of this State over the said County.

The like question being asked of Mr. Sessions, he also answered in the affirmative, and declares he does, as a Representative of Cumberland County, fully acknowledge the jurisdiction of this State over the County of Cumberland and its inhabitants.

The further consideration of this subject was postponed till to-morrow.

Adjourned.

Friday Morning, September 27, 1776.

Committee of Safety met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Colonel Peter R. Livingston, the President, Chairman.

NEW-YORK Members.—Mr. Bancker, Mr. Dunscombe, Mr. Duane.

ORANGE.—Mr. Joseph Smith, Colonel Sherwood, Mr. Little.

ALBANY.—General Ten Broeck, Mr. Ten Broeck, Colonel Livingston.

WESTCHESTER.—Colonel Drake, Major Lockwood, Colonel Cortlandt.

ULSTER.—Mr. Wisner, Major Parks.

TRYON.—Mr. Moore, Mr. Harper.

DUTCHESS.—Mr. Sackett, Mr. Platt, Major Schenck.

CHARLOTTE.—Mr. Duer, Major Webster, Colonel Williams.

CUMBERLAND.—Mr. Sessions, Mr. Stevens.

Mr. Duer, from the Committee for establishing Posts and obtaining Intelligence, introduced a Letter from Tench Tilghman, Esquire, dated at Head-Quarters, Heights of Harlem, September 25, 1776, and directed to Mr. Duer: the same being read, it is Ordered, That such part of the said Letter as relates to General Washington's application for Powder be immediately transmitted by express to Henry Wisner, Jun., and John R. Livingston, Esquires; and that they be requested to forward all the Powder which they have on hand to King's Bridge, with all despatch; and that they be empowered to apply to General James Clinton for a proper guard to escort the said Powder.

The part of Mr. Tilghman's Letter above referred to is as follows: "His Excellency begs your Board would immediately order down what powder is ready at Wisner's and Livingston's mills."

A Letter from Brigadier-General Petrus Ten Broeck, enclosing the Returns of the Militia of his Brigade in Dutchess County, (excepting the Regiments of Colonel Brinkerhoff and Colonel Graham,) and a request that the other Field Officers of the Militia may be commissioned in the place of those called into actual service:

Ordered, That the Secretaries write to the General, and inform him that the Returns sent by him are irregular, and that he be requested to transmit to Convention a proper Brigade Return of the whole Militia of Dutchess, that the Convention be enabled to judge of the remaining strength of the said Militia.

Colonel Williams delivered in the Return of his Regiment of Militia in Charlotte County. Was put on the file.

Mr. Joshua H. Smith has leave of absence for three days. Mr. Duer dissents thereto.

A Letter from David Matthews, dated at Litchfield, the 25th of September, was read.

A copy of a Letter from Captain Moses Seymour to Governour Trumbull, dated at Litchfield, on the 20th September, instant, relating to the conduct of David Matthews, was also read.

Ordered, That the said Letters lie on the table for the perusal of the Members.

John Campbell, who was sent as a Messenger to Abraham Lott, Esq., late Treasurer of the Colony of New-York, with a certified copy of the Resolutions of this Convention relative to the publick Treasure, and his contempt in not having accounted, pursuant to the Order of the Provincial Congress of the 17th of March last, delivered the following representation from Abraham Lott, Esq., viz:

"To the Honourable Convention of the Representatives of the State of New-York:

"GENTLEMEN: Yesterday evening, I received, by Mr. John Campbell, your resolves and orders of the 17th instant, directing me to make answer, in writing, why the order of the Provincial Congress of the 9th March last, relating to the delivery of my publick accounts, has not been complied with.

"Permit me, gentlemen, to assure you that the omission has not proceeded from neglect of your authority, which I trust many of the honourable Convention are well convinced of, but from the following causes:

"Shortly after I received the order of the 9th March, I had the misfortune to wound my left arm in the wrist, in such a manner that I could not make any use of it for six weeks. When I got in part over this incapacity, I was attacked with the gout, which confined me six weeks longer at this place, and my books and accounts being in New-York, put it out of my power, for three months, to do any thing in the matter. After this I went to the city with intent to comply with the order, but the troubles increasing, and every body moving out of town, and advising me to do the same, as the fleet was arrived at Staten-Island, I packed up my books and papers in a hurry, and brought them here, about a month ago, from Newark, where they some time laid for want of a wagon to bring them up. Since which the times have been so very distressing, that I have not had resolution to finish the assorting of my papers, and thus not prepared to make out my accounts. These, and not contempt or neglect, are the true causes why the order of the 9th March has not been complied with.

"However, to convince the honourable Convention of my readiness to comply with its directions, will, with all possible speed, make out the accounts, and attend them without delay, agreeable to the order of the 17th instant, though cannot exactly mention the day, as I have still a number of papers to assort. Permit me to add that no unnecessary procrastination shall happen, and that I am, with respect, your most obedient servant,

"ABRAHAM LOTT.

"Beverwyck, September 22, 1776.

"P. S. On reading the foregoing to Mr. Campbell, he was very desirous that I would limit the time of my attendance as near as possible. For the satisfaction of the Convention, do not think it will be in less than a fortnight, but will come sooner if in my power."

Ordered, That the said Letter be referred to the consideration of the Convention of this State.

Major Henry Schenck, one of the Deputies of Dutchess County, came into the room, who, with the other Members before named, were a sufficient number to form a Convention.

They therefore proceeded as a Convention.

The Convention then took into consideration the application of Major Joab Hoisington, from Cumberland County, for money for the Bounty for the Rangers, and paying their Wages and Subsistence.

The Letter or application of Major Hoisington was read. The Return of the Officers of the Companies of Rangers, under the command of Major Hoisington, signed by James Clay, Chairman of the Committee of Cumberland County, was also read.

The Letter from Cumberland County Committee, of the 21st day of June last, to this Committee, was also read.

Debates arose on the application from Major Hoisington, occasioned by the said Letter of the 21st day of June last.

The following Questions, by order of the Convention, were asked of the Deputies from Cumberland County, and their answers are here inserted, viz:

Question. Were you elected by the people of the County at large, or by the Sub-Committees in the Towns?

Answer, (by Mr. Sessions and Mr. Stevens.) We were elected by the people of the County at large.

Question. How is your County Committee formed?

Answer. By two Members sent from the Committees of each Town.

Question. Were those Committees appointed or elected by the people of the County, before or after your election as Deputies?

Answer. The Committees were elected long before the late election for Deputies to represent that County.

Question. Have your County Committee any power or authority from the people to give such instructions or directions, or to make such declarations or reservations, as are contained in the said letter of the 21st of June?

Mr. Sessions, in answer, declares; that he is very confident that the Sub-Committees or Committees in Cumberland County, had not any directions or instructions from the people or inhabitants of Cumberland County, to give such instructions or directions as are contained in the said letter of the 21st of June, or to make such declarations or reservations as are therein mentioned. Mr. Stevens makes the like declaration, and says that the letter of the 21st June was agreed to prevent any division in the County, as some few towns in the County were opposed to sending Deputies to Convention, unless with such instructions. That he had not any particular instructions from the people of the town in which he resides, and believes the people of the other towns did not give any. That he conceives the credentials from the County give him full and unrestrained power in forming a Government. That he conceives himself no further bound by those instructions than his vote, and then only in cases where the instructions are agreeable to his own judgment.

Mr. Sessions says he shall think it his duty to pay regard to his instructions so far as to lay them before the House, and obtain a compliance with them, so far as they shall appear to be right and beneficial.

The Deputies from Cumberland County were then asked whether, if on debate it should appear that a matter contained in or directed by those instructions, would be injurious to the State, they would think themselves bound by those instructions?

They respectively answered, by no means. That they did not think themselves bound by those instructions whenever they might work any injury to the State, or whenever they should be out-voted.

The Convention were informed that the Committee to whom were referred the said Letter of the 21st of June to this Convention, have not made any Report thereon, and that the greater part of the Members appointed on that Committee are now absent.

Ordered, That the said Letter of the 21st of June last, and the application of Major Joab Hoisington for money to pay and subsist the Companies of Rangers mentioned in the Returns thereof by him made, with the said Returns, be committed to a Committee.

Ordered, That Mr. Duer, Mr. Duane, and Mr. Zephaniah Platt, together with Mr. Sessions and Colonel Stevens, be a Committee for that purpose, and that they report such facts relating to this matter, and what will in their opinion be most eligible to be done in the premises, with all convenient speed.

Resolved and Ordered, That the Committee appointed on the 21st instant, "for the express purpose of inquiring into, detecting, and defeating all conspiracies which may be formed in the State against the liberties of America," be and hereby are authorized and empowered at their discretion to place Guards at such place or places as they may think proper, for apprehending Deserters from the American Army, and for detecting and defeating all conspiracies which have or may be formed in the State against the liberties of America, and to give such instructions to those Guards as the said Committee may think necessary for those purposes.

Major Schenck produced to the Convention an account of Walter Hyer for services done as a Cooper, in securing and preserving a quantity of Oil, said to belong to the Continent, and now in store at Fishkill landing; which is as follows, viz:

The State of New-York, to WALTER HYER, DR.
September 14, 1776, To trimming 36 Tierces of Spermaceti Oil, the property of Continental Congress, on board of the Sloop Captain Cook, - - - - - £2 12 0

Ordered, That Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., pay the above Account to Henry Schenck, Esq., for the use of Walter Hyer, and charge the same to account of the Continent.

Resolved, That a Committee of Safety be and hereby are appointed to act until a meeting of this Convention, to consist of the President, with Mr. Duane, Mr. Duer, Colonel Cortlandt, Mr. Zephaniah Platt, Mr. William Harper, and Colonel Drake. That any three of those gentlemen with the President, be a quorum; that every Member of the Convention who may attend have a vote; that no Member of Convention depart this neighbourhood without leave of the Committee of Safety, and that the said Committee have power and are hereby authorized to send for absent Members of the Convention of this State.

Die Veneris, 4 ho. P. M., September 27, 1776.

The Committee of Safety met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Colonel Peter R. Livingston, Chairman.

NEW-YORK.—*Mr. Duane, Mr. Dunscombe, Mr. Bancker.
WESTCHESTER.—*Colonel V. Cortlandt, *Colonel Drake, Major Lockwood.

ALBANY.—General Ten Broeck, John Ten Broeck, Colonel P. R. Livingston.

ORANGE.—Mr. Little, Dr. Sherwood.

ULSTER.—Major Park, Mr. Wisner, Jun.

TRYON.—*Mr. Harper, Mr. Moore.

DUTCHESS.—Mr. Sackett, *Mr. Platt.

CUMBERLAND.—Mr. Sessions, Mr. Stevens.

Lieutenant Brett informed the Convention that sundry Prisoners are in the Guard-House, in custody of the Guard at this place under his command; some of them detained as suspicious persons, travelling without any certificates or passes, and others for reasons which were particularly assigned to the Convention.

The said Prisoners being severally brought in and examined:

Ordered, That Michael O'Farrell and Richard Gazart be respectively confined in the said Guard-House till further order of this Convention or their Committee of Safety; there being great reason to believe from the imperfect accounts given of themselves respectively, and particularly from the many contradictions in the account given by the said Richard Gazart, that they are Deserters from the American Army.

The other Prisoners were respectively discharged.

RESOLVES, &c., OF THE COUNCIL AND HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES OF MASSACHUSETTS.

MEMORIAL OF JOSEPH FRYE.

Colony of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

To the honourable the Council and House of Representatives of said Colony in General Court assembled, MAY 30, 1776:

The Memorial of JOSEPH FRYE humbly sheweth:

That your memorialist being settled in a new plantation at a place called Pigwacket, in the County of York, much exposed to an enemy from Canada, where the news of the Lexington battle arriving soon after it happened, it filled your memorialist and the other inhabitants of said plantation with great concern, apprehending that, as hostilities were commenced, a war in a little time would become general. And as they were far advanced in the County of York, they expected that the Governour of Canada would send the Indians, and others he could influence, against them and other exposed plantations; and as they had no ammunition to defend themselves, they expected either to be destroyed or driven from their habitations except they could get some. Therefore they met and requested your memorialist to try and procure some for them; in consequence of which your memorialist came off from said plantation on the 25th of May, 1775, for that purpose, but your memorialist could hear of none in Falmouth, Portsmouth, Newbury, nor in any other trading towns in the eastern country, in the County of Essex, nor any where else; but hearing, after he came to Andover, a large quantity of powder was expected would soon arrive in Watertown, he tarried at Andover some days waiting for the news of its arrival, hoping that if the quantity he had heard of did arrive, he should be favoured with some of it for the purpose above mentioned; and while he was at Andover, viz: on Saturday, the 17th of June, 1775, news arrived there of the burning of Charlestown and the battle of Bunker-Hill. Your memorialist being much concerned at that event, being then fully convinced that the Ministerial plan was to prosecute the unjust war they had begun with their utmost vigour, he the next day after went to Medford, where he tarried the night following, and the 19th went to Cambridge, where he found the honourable General Ward, Commander-in-Chief of the forces that were in the field; also many other gentlemen, some of whom were officers who had been with your memorialist in the wars with the French and Indians, and other men that were privates, who had been under his particular command in those wars, all of whom appeared very desirous of his company in the army, and not only those, but several of the honourable gentlemen belonging to the Congress then sitting at Watertown desired the same. Your memorialist, finding his service so generally desired, consented to serve his country accordingly, the distresses of his exposed plantation notwithstanding; whereupon the honourable the Congress of this Colony were pleased to honour him with a Major-General's commission, bearing date the 21st of June, 1775. With that commission he entered into the service in Cambridge, under the command of General Ward. After which, about the last of that month or beginning of July, General Ward received a packet from Philadelphia, containing his commission from the honourable the Continental Congress, and a list of General Officers appointed by that Congress to command in the army, which list he showed to your said memorialist. Upon looking over said list he thought he might then return to his family, which he mentioned to General Ward; in consequence of which he went up to Watertown, and on his return to Cambridge he informed your memorialist that he had shown said list to one or more of the Congress of this Colony, and that a letter would without delay be sent to the Continental Congress with respect to your memorialist and sundry other General Officers appointed by this Colony Congress, and that those of the last-mentioned Congress he had spoke with desired your memorialist would continue in the army till an answer to that letter should be returned from the Continental Congress, upon which your memorialist consented to tarry. Not long after this, the Congress of this Colony was dissolved, and in the beginning of July, then next, a General Court for this Colony assembled at Watertown, from whom your memorialist received a letter conceived in the following terms, viz:

"In the House of Representatives, Watertown, }
July 22, 1775. }

"SIR: This House, approving of your services in the station you were appointed to in the army by the Congress of this Colony, embrace this opportunity to express their sense of them, and at the same time to desire your continuance with the army, if you shall judge you can do it without impropriety, till the final determination of the Continental Congress shall be known with regard to the appointment of General Officers. We assure you that the justice of this House will be engaged to make you an adequate compensation for your services. We have such intelligence as affords us confidence to suppose that a few days will determine whether any such provisions shall be made for you as is consistent with your honour to accept, and shall give you encouragement to remain in the service.

"By order of the House:

"JAMES WARREN, Speaker.

"General Frye."

When your memorialist had received the letter of which the foregoing is a true copy, he not only judged he could continue in the army without impropriety, but looked upon himself bound in duty to his country to do it till the final determination of the Continental Congress should be known with regard to the appointment of General Officers, and accordingly went to Roxbury with General Ward, and while there, viz: about the time it was expected a commission would arrive from Philadelphia for your memorialist, this Colony's members of the Continental Congress came to General Ward's quarters, when they informed your said memorialist that in the letter sent to them in regard to him and others, his Christian name was not mentioned, and that as they knew your memorialist had moved into the County of York, they could not satisfy themselves it was he, therefore deferred the affair till they could have the name ascertained; and then two of those gentlemen desired your said memorialist to give them an account of his military services in the French wars, in order to lay it before the members of the Continental Congress, who were strangers to him; agreeable to which your said memorialist gave them the account they desired; and about the last of August those gentlemen set out on their journey to Philadelphia, leaving their desire of his continuance in the army, not doubting but he would be commissioned to command a Brigade that was then vacant. Your memorialist continued at Roxbury accordingly till the 12th day of October following, when being informed that General Washington had received a letter from the Continental Congress, wherein, among other things, he was informed that the appointment of another Brigadier-General was deferred for the then present, your memorialist left Roxbury, came to Cambridge, where it took him two days, viz: the 13th and 14th of said month, to get ready to return home, and on the 15th left Cambridge and went to Andover, which being his native place he tarried there till the beginning of November, then next, where he received a commission and instructions from the honourable the Council of this Colony, empowering him to take the command of the men posted in the County of Cumberland for the defence of the sea-coast, &c., and commanding them to obey him as their superiour officer.

As the instructions above mentioned were directed to General Frye, had no doubt on his mind but he would be esteemed as such, and as he was sure he had done nothing for which he deserved degradation, he concluded that the commission meant no more than to subject the troops in the County of Cumberland to his command, and that he should be treated in some measure agreeable to the dignity of the commission he had been honoured with from the Colony Congress. In this service he continued till the beginning of February, 1776, when he received a letter from General Washington, whereby your said memorialist was informed that the Continental Congress had appointed him a Brigadier-General in the Continental army, and by the same letter he was ordered to the camp in Cambridge with all possible speed. In obedience thereto your said memorialist left Falmouth, in said County of Cumberland, and came to Cambridge, where he arrived the evening of the 15th of said month, and the next morning waited upon General Washington, who presented him a Brigadier-General's commission, dated the 10th day of the preceding month. Your memorialist having informed your Honours how he understood the above-recited letter, begs leave to insert in this place a Resolve of the late Great and General Court, passed in the House the 25th of January, 1776, which is as followeth, viz:

"Resolved, That there be allowed and paid out of the publick Treasury of the Colony to the General Officers appointed by the Congress of this Colony for their services in the Massachusetts Army, from the time they entered into said service until they were put into the pay of the Continent or were otherwise discharged, at the several rates following, viz: To the Hon. General Ward, who served this Colony as Commander-in-Chief, £21 per month; to General Thomas, who served this Colony as Lieutenant-General, £18 per month; and to Generals Whitcomb, Heath, Frye, and Pomeroy, who served this Colony as Major-Generals, £16 per month each, accounting twenty-eight days to a month; and they are respectively desired to make up their accounts accordingly, and lodge them with the Secretary of this Colony for examination and allowance of the Committee on the Muster Rolls of the Army."

As your memorialist was brought into the army in the manner already mentioned, and desired to continue therein, as appears by the Court's letter of the 22d of July, 1775; and as the time of his being brought into the Continental army was deferred by reason his Christian name was omitted in the letter sent to the Continental Congress, and being sent by the late General Court to take the command of the sea-coast men in the County of Cumberland, by a commission dated the 13th of November, 1775; in which service he continued till the beginning of February, 1776, when he was called into the Continental army, as before related, and by comparing the letter from the General Court to your memorialist, dated the 22d of July, 1775, with the said Court's resolve of the 25th of January, 1776, and observing his pay was but £16 per month, which is not half the sum allowed to a Brigadier-General in the Continental army, and much less still than half the pay per month of a Major-General in that army, your memorialist had no doubt in his mind but the honourable the then General Court of this Colony designed his pay of £16 per month should be continued till he was taken into the pay of the Continent. But so it was, the following Resolve passed in the General Court, April 24, 1776, viz:

"Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury of this Colony to the Hon. Joseph Frye, Esq., the sum of £41 7s., in full discharge for his service as Major-General in the Colony Army one month and twelve days, and also for his service as superiour officer on the sea-coast establishment at Falmouth, two months and one day."

This is much short of the time of his service, as before shown. If it should be objected that between the 15th of October, 1775, which was the time your memorialist left the army, as before mentioned, and the 13th of November, then next, which is the day of the date of his commission to command the troops at Falmouth, on the sea-coast establishment, there is twenty-eight days he was not in actual service, he begs leave to reply that he allows it; but as he was one hundred and forty miles from his family, and one hundred and twenty miles from Falmouth, he apprehended that in the first case he should be allowed (as was ever usual) some time to go home in, and in the latter case, as no rations were allowed for his subsistence, and it being very expensive travelling at that season of the year, by reason there was such a scarcity of hay, no horses, as he was told, could be kept in Falmouth, he was obliged to hire two horses in Andover, and a man to bring them back from Falmouth, which was attended with no trifling expense. He flattered himself that all things considered through the whole affair, he should be allowed some part of the twenty-eight days, if not the whole, in either of those cases.

Your memorialist having given your Honour's a true relation of facts with regard to his service, he begs leave to say that he really thinks, that as they were not stated in due order and laid before the late honourable Assembly, it was the occasion of some mistake with regard to the time of his service, otherwise he is persuaded a larger sum would have been allowed him. Wherefore, upon the whole, your memorialist prays your Honours would please to take the premises under consideration, when he makes no doubt but your Honours will make him an adequate compensation for his services, agreeable to the before-recited letter from the late honourable Assembly to him.

And, as in duty bound, prays.

JOSEPH FRYE.

In the House of Representatives, September, 1776.

Resolved, That there be allowed and paid out of the Treasury of this State to General Joseph Frye, over and above what has been already allowed him, the sum of £44 in full for his services during his continuance in the Army at Cambridge and Roxbury, and the further sum of £3 16s., over and above what he has received of the Commissary for his subsistence during his continuance in the sea-coast service of this State, in the County of Cumberland, the same to be in full for his services till his appointment to a command in the Continental Army.

PETITION OF JEREMIAH COLBURN AND JOSHUA EAYRE.

To the honourable the Council and House of Representatives of the State, the Colony MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, in General Court assembled at WATERTOWN:

The Petition of JEREMIAH COLBURN and JOSHUA EAYRE, of PENOBSCOT RIVER, humbly sheweth:

That your petitioners have been settlers on Penobscot River for a number of years, and that your petitioners was obliged to quit their settlements after making great improvements on their lands, by order of proprietors, or persons pretending to own or claim the land, to their great damage, and had no place to go to. Your petitioners went farther up the river and settled on wild and unimproved lands, five miles above any settlement, where they thought no person could claim to turn them off, there built two dwelling-houses, one half a saw-mill, cleared a road to a meadow six miles, cleared another road to the inhabitants five miles, and cleared and improved a considerable tract of land, and built the other half of the mill, by being assisted by other people. Your petitioners began to build said dwelling-houses and mill in July, 1774, and in October following, moved our family upon the land, and there continued until May following; in the mean time the Indians of the Penobscot tribe were continually at our house, and we were always ready to assist them in any thing they requested, and were always welcomed to any provisions they desired, which your petitioners has given them to the value of thirty pounds, lawful money, at least, and were always kindly treated by us. And in May, 1775, your petitioners, being apprehensive of some danger from reports that the Canadian Indians intended to assist the people of Great Britain that might come across the country and destroy us, thought it most safe to move in to the inhabitants. Your petitioners moved their families and effects, and remained from May to August following, and one of us from May, 1775, to June, 1776. All this while your petitioners was urged by the Indians to return to our settlements, and promised we should enjoy our possessions, and they would protect and support us in the same; but since being acquainted that they had a promise of the lands from the Massachusetts Congress in June, 1775, we would not move again until they gave us their words that we should enjoy peaceably our possessions. In dependence of the same, we moved our families up, the time above mentioned, and since have heard they have resolved, in council amongst themselves, that every family shall be removed above the line that was settled by the Congress in June, 1775. They say they have a promise when the General Court next sits, that there will be an order to turn us off, in consequence of which they have told all the inhabitants within their limits, to get in readiness to move off when they gather their harvests.

Your petitioners are always ready to comply with any rule, order, or regulation, as your Honours shall direct. Your petitioners would inform your Honours that we have spent all our substance in this settlement, and which renders us so poor, we are not able to move our families away. Your petitioners most humbly pray your Honours to take their difficult circumstances into your wise consideration, and grant them such relief as you in your great wisdom shall see meet. And your petitioners, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

JEREMIAH COLBURN,
JOSHUA EAYR.

Penobscot River, 16th August, 1776.

September 5, 1776.—The Committee to whom was referred the consideration of the above Petition, have attended that service, and beg leave to report that the petitioners have leave to withdraw the same.

JEDEDIAH PREBLE, Per order.

PETITION OF STEPHEN BUSSELL AND OTHERS.

To the honourable Council and the House of Representatives of the State of the Colony of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, in General Court assembled at WATERTOWN:

The Petition of STEPHEN BUSSEL, DAVID ROWELL, and PATRICK McMANNAY, humbly sheweth:

That your petitioners are settlers on Penobscot River, and went on and settled on wild and uncultivated lands on the eastern side of Penobscot River, above the Falls, in March 22d, 1774; there built a dwelling-house each of us, and cleared about six acres of land each, cleared sundry roads to meadows, &c. And since being acquainted that the Indians of Penobscot tribe had a promise of the lands from the Congress of the Colony of the Massachusetts-Bay, in June, 1775, your petitioners was willing to make any reasonable consideration for the lands when they were acquainted whose right it was, and since your petitioners has had a warning from the said Indians to move off from our possessions as soon as we can get our harvest in, we have offered them any pay they should reasonably demand for the same. But nothing will satisfy them but we must move off. Your petitioners are very needy, having spent our strength and substance in subduing the land, to raise bread to support our families, and therefore don't know where to go to, to settle, unless enabled by your Honours to settle on lands back in the country. Your petitioners were and are always ready to comply with any rule, order, or directions your Honours in your wisdom shall order for the good and regulation of your inhabitants.

Your petitioners most humbly pray your Honours to take their difficult circumstances into your wise consideration, and grant them such relief as you in your wisdom shall think right. And your petitioners, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

STEPHEN BUSSELL,
DAVID ROWELL,
PATRICK McMANNAY.

Penobscot River, August the 19th, 1776.

The Committee to whom was referred the consideration of the above Petition, have attended that service, and beg leave to report that the petitioners have leave to withdraw the same.

JEDEDIAH PREBLE, Per order.

PETITION OF SELECTMEN OF WALDOBOROUGH.

Colony of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

To the honourable Council and the honourable House of Representatives, in General Court assembled:

Humbly show, we the subscribers of the town of Waldoborough, in the County of Lincoln, that your petitioners, by reason of there not being any ammunition in this town, we labour under many great difficulties and danger, on the account of not being supplied with ammunition in this town, for this town has already spent near one hundred pound by sending for ammunition, and never getting any. Therefore we would pray your Honours to grant the bearer, Captain Levi Soule, of Waldoborough, one hundred pounds of gunpowder. And your humble petitioners, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

JACOB WINCHENBACH, } Selectmen.

Waldoborough, August the 19, 1776.

State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, in AMERICA:

To the honourable Council and House of Representatives of said State:

The Petition of the Committee of Safety for the Town of CAPE-ELIZABETH, humbly sheweth:

That on January 19th, 1776, that Stephen Agen, Stephen Hayter, and Thomas Brierton, enemies to the United Colonies, and were taken prisoner, were brought to us on their way to Head-Quarters; who were put to Mr. Joseph Mariner, inn-holder in said town; they had three meals of victuals a man, at eight pence a meal, their lodging nine pence half-penny.

Your petitioners hereby apply themselves to this honourable Court to discharge the debt. As in duty bound shall ever pray.

N. B. Said prisoners were sent to us by the Committee of St. George's, in the County of Lincoln.

EBEN. THORNDIKE, Clerk of Committee Safety.

PETITION OF JOTHAM BUSH.

To the honourable Council and House of Representatives of the State of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, in General Court, or in the recess of said Court, to the said honourable Council:

The Petition of JOTHAM BUSH, of SHREWSBURY, in the County of WORCESTER, most humbly shews:

That on the 11th day of July last, the Committee of Correspondence, &c., for the town, disarmed your petitioner and ordered him to be confined to his homestead farm; and his four sons, namely, David, John, Jotham, and Levi, to be confined to his lands in Shrewsbury and Lancaster, and never to pass over the bounds aforesaid, without a permit from said Committee, until the further orders of said Committee; and that if he, or his aforesaid sons, should at any time disobey the said orders of the said Committee, and be convicted thereof, they should be confined to close gaol, in the County aforesaid, or otherways dealt with, according to the discretion of said Committee, as by the proceedings of said Committee herewith exhibited fully appear. All which proceedings your petitioner is greatly injured in his character and interest, for the following reasons: For that the said Committee, without ever convening him before them at the town aforesaid, and upon examination, finding him guilty of being inimical to the States of America, passed the aforesaid resolve, as it plainly appears by said resolve. They have not given any reason for their cruel treatment to him; and supposing they had proceeded against him by a proper examination of him, and upon said examination had found him guilty, in that case if your petitioner had tendered bonds for his good behaviour. Agreeable to a late law of this State, they had no right to imprison him in manner aforesaid; by which imprisonment he is prevented taking care of his business, much of which lies in other towns, especially two farms in Lancaster under his own immediate improvement, which he is deprived personally of taking care of.

Every individual in every State has an undoubted right to the protection of such State, and ought not to forfeit such protection without a fair hearing and adjudication of the crimes charged upon him. Your Honours will perceive that your petitioner, in the resolve of said Committee, is not charged with any crime whatever, but the whole proceedings of said Committee appear to be without any foundation against him. He therefore prays you to whom he appeals to take his case into your consideration, and liberate him and his sons from their present confinement, or at least to extend their limits, so far as that they may be permitted to attend publick worship, go to mill, and to take care of all his lands that are under his actual improvement or otherwise relieve them as to your Honours shall seem fit. And as in duty bound shall ever pray.

JOTHAM BUSH.

PETITION OF ICHABOD JONES.

State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

To the honourable the Council and the honourable House of Representatives of the State aforesaid, assembled in General Court at WATERTOWN, AUGUST 28, 1776, most humbly shows:

Ichabod Jones, late of Boston, in the County of Suffolk, that your petitioner in May, 1775, considering that the people at Machias, in the eastern part of this State, were of themselves unable to procure the provisions necessary for their subsistence, and knowing that the greater part of them depended on your petitioner to supply them, the other traders having declined to do it, did purchase a quantity of pork, flour, and other articles of food, and convey the same to the people aforesaid in two sloops belonging to your petitioner. That when arrived at Machias the inhabitants, at the request of your petitioner, met together and were informed that if they would furnish themselves in any other way with necessary provisions, your petitioner would be extremely glad to be freed from the difficult and hazardous task. That a great majority of them declared they could not obtain the necessary supplies, without the assistance of your petitioner, and desired him to continue as formerly to bring them provisions. That afterwards by means of some of the Machias people, with the assistance of others in the neighbouring places, the vessels aforesaid, and the person of your petitioner were seized; that at the time of the seizure the inhabitants of Machias owed to your petitioner and company, nearly the sum of four thousand pounds lawful money, which he is able and ready to prove. That your petitioner is lately informed they have taken possession of his houses, mills, and all his other estate at Machias, and not only of the estate of which your petitioner was sole proprietor, but also of the estate which belonged to himself and others in partnership. That your petitioner learns from an advertisement in the Watertown paper of August 19th, that libels are filed against the vessels and cargoes above mentioned, before the Judge of the Maritime Court, for the Eastern District in this State, and that the justice of the captures is to be tried at the said court, to be holden at Pownalboro', on the 9th of September next.

As your petitioner is confined to the town of Northampton, under large bonds, (with scanty means of subsistence,) he is unable to attend himself, or procure any person to attend in his place on so short a notice, and is greatly apprehensive that his property therefore will be condemned; although if allowed to attend the said Court, with his evidence, he persuades himself the innocence of his conduct would fully appear.

Your petitioner therefore most humbly prays your Honours to take the premises into your wise consideration, and that he may be heard thereupon, having no doubt, on a full knowledge of his case, your petitioner would be discharged from any further confinement. Your petitioner also prays that he may have liberty to attend in person the trial aforesaid of his vessels, at some future time, to which the said court shall by order of your Honours be adjourned; and that in the mean time all proceedings touching the vessels and cargoes aforesaid, may be staid; all which is most humbly submitted; and in duty bound shall pray.

ICHABOD JONES.

PETITION OF SELECTMEN OF HARPSWELL.

To the honourable Council and the House of Representatives at WATERTOWN, in General Court assembled, the prayer of your petitioners humbly sheweth:

That on the eighteenth day of October, one thousand seven hundred and seventy-five, when the town of Falmouth was burnt, there was an alarm at Harpswell, and upon said alarm there came from Topsham Captain James Hunter, with fifty men, Captain Actor Patten, with thirty men, and Captain Peter Coombs, with thirty-two men, from Brunswick, and were all there five days, and were billeted by order of the Selectmen, which makes eighty-five weeks for one man, at six shillings per week, comes to twenty-five pounds ten shillings; and as the town is a small town, and under low circumstances at best, and more so now, by reason of the drought, and the multitude of grasshoppers, which have almost cut off our English grain, there is but few that will get more than their seed, and some not that, and, to take the town throughout, not more than one-fifth part of a usual crop of hay is got in the town this year: therefore your petitioners humbly pray your Honours will take it under your wise consideration, and allow to the town the above-said account. And your petitioners, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

Per order of the Town,

WILLIAM SYLVESTER,
JOHN RODICK,
ANTHONY COOMBS, } Selectmen.

Harpswell, August 28, 1776.

October the 18th, 1775.—Upon an alarm at Harpswell, Captain Actor Patten, and Ensign Tibbits, of Topsham, with twenty-nine men under their command, marched to their relief, and spent five days. JAMES POTTER, Clerk.

October 19th, 1775.—Upon an alarm at Harpswell, Captain Peter Coombs and Lieutenant Hosea Baly, and Joseph Atten, Ensign, with thirty-one men under their command, marched to their relief, and spent five days, and were billeted there, by order of the Selectmen, at one Michel Curtis's, the whole time.

Per PETER COOMBS, Captain.

PETITION OF THOMAS EDWARDS.

To the honourable the President and Members of the Council for the State of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY: The very humble Petition of THOMAS EDWARDS, humbly sheweth:

That your petitioner, on the evacuation of the town of Boston, did remain with his family; and as he was determined to demean himself in an orderly and most respectful manner, according to such regulation as might be established, so he firmly hoped to receive that protection and security for his person and property which such a line of conduct might naturally and justly demand. That however guiltless your petitioner actually was of any species of offence, yet he was, at the instance of some malicious person or persons, procured to be committed to close confinement, but for what reason or what pretext he is wholly at a loss to determine. That your petitioner hath languished in a painful, close confinement near six months, in want of many necessaries of life, whereby his health and constitution is exceedingly impaired, and in such a declining state, that, unless speedily relieved, he cannot long survive. That your petitioner hath a sickly wife, quite helpless, with seven small children, entirely dependent on his industry for their support, which begin now unhappily deprived of, they are become objects of the most tender and compassionate concern.

Your petitioner therefore humbly hopes that benevolence which has so strongly marked your characters, will now operate in his favour, and that you will be pleased, in tender consideration of the peculiar unhappiness of his case, to give orders that he may be discharged, hereby solemnly promising that he will continue to demean himself in an orderly, respectful manner, in due obedience to such regulations as now are or shall be made for the government of this State. And your petitioner, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

THOMAS EDWARDS.

MEMORIAL OF JONAS BALL AND OTHERS.

State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

To the honourable the Council and House of Representatives in General Court assembled, at WATERTOWN, AUGUST 28, 1776:

The Memorial of JONAS BALL and others, in behalf of JOHN TAYLOR, of NORTHBOROUGH, in the County of WORCESTER, yeoman, humbly sheweth:

That the Committee of Correspondence for said town of Northborough, without any just cause therefor, by virtue of a pretended power vested in them, arrested the said John Taylor, confined him to the limits of his farm in said Northborough, and published him in the publick prints as an enemy to the liberties of America, and forbid him holding correspondence with any person, on any commercial account whatever, whereby the said Taylor is greatly injured in his property and estate. Wherefore your memorialists, deeming him to be a firm friend to the cause of America, and esteeming it an infringement upon the rights and liberties of a freeman, to be debarred of his personal liberty, without any just cause being first assigned, pray the honourable Court will take the subject-matter of this petition under consideration, and appoint a committee to make inquiry into the merits of this complaint, that justice may be impartially administered. And, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

JONAS BALL,
JOHN EAMES,
PETER BALL,
THADDEUS WYMAN.

PETITION OF JONATHAN EDDY AND OTHERS.

To the honourable Council and to the honourable House of Representatives in the State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, in General Court assembled, at WATERTOWN, the 28th day of AUGUST, Anno Domini, 1776:

The Petition of JONATHAN EDDY, WILLIAM HOW, and ZEBULON ROE, late of CUMBERLAND, in NOVA-SCOTIA, humbly sheweth:

That your petitioners, in behalf of ourselves and distressed friends residing in the County of Cumberland, in the government of Nova-Scotia. That your petitioners would inform your Honours that the British enemy are now repairing the old forts in that Province, to the great detriment of the inhabitants there: that, we apprehend, can be for no other intent but to keep the inhabitants in subjection to their tyrannical measures, especially since their forces arrived from Boston, the last spring, to Halifax. That the far greatest part of the people of Nova-Scotia are greatly concerned about it, and has been the cause of many of them to leave their estates to be confiscated, and to come over to these States, and will be the cause of many more to do the same, if they can effect it, unless they can have some supplies and assistance. That your petitioners humbly conceive that, if we, your petitioners, with a small number more to join our brethren there, could be supplied with some necessaries, as provisions and ammunition, we could at present easily destroy those forts, and relieve our brethren and friends, by permission from your Honours for so doing, or in any other way your Honours shall see meet. And your petitioners, as in duty bound, shall ever pray, &c.

JONATHAN EDDY,
WILLIAM HOW,
ZEBULON ROE.

Resolve relative to the Brig RISING-EMPIRE; passed AUGUST 30, 1776.

On the representation of Captain Welden, respecting the Brigantine called the Rising-Empire:

Resolved, That the said Welden repair forthwith to the town of Plymouth, and bring said Brig to a good wharf in said town, and there deliver said Brig with all the appurtenances thereunto belonging, to one or more persons that this Court may appoint to take charge thereof, and then said Welden is directed to discharge all the officers and men under his command, and make up his muster-roll for said officers and men, and lay it before this Court for payment thereof. Also, that the cannon now on board said Brig be ordered forthwith to the town of Swansey, and there put on board one or both of the armed vessels now fitted out by this State against the enemies of the United States of America.

Resolve on the Petition of JOHN FOX; passed AUGUST 31, 1776.

Resolved, That the Commissary-General of this State be, and he hereby is directed to deliver John Fox, six hundred pounds of Gunpowder, to be taken from the Powder-Mill at Andover, for the use of a private sloop-of-war called the Retrieve; he, the said Fox, allowing and paying the sum of six shillings per pound for said powder to the said Commissary-General, who is to be accountable for the same.

Resolve on the Petition of EBENEZER BECKFORD and others; passed AUGUST 31, 1776.

Resolved, That the Commissary-General supply Ebenezer Beckford and others, with five hundred pounds of Gunpowder, from the Powder-Mill at Andover, for the use of the Harlequin schooner of war; he, the said Ebenezer Beckford, paying at the rate of six shillings per pound; the Commissary-General to be accountable for the money so received.

Captain WELDEN directed to deliver the Brig RISING-EMPIRE to WILLIAM WATSON, Esq., AUGUST 31, 1776.

Resolved, That Captain Welden, commander of the Brig Rising-Empire, be, and he hereby is ordered and directed to deliver the said Brig, (which, by a resolve of this Court of yesterday, was ordered to be hauled up,) with her Appurtenances, Cannon, and Stores, unto William Watson, Esq., for the use of this State, he taking his receipt therefor, to be lodged with the Secretary of this State.

Resolve for the paying of Colonel ABIJAH BROWN £9; passed AUGUST 31, 1776.

Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury to Colonel Abijah Brown, nine pounds, for twenty-seven days' service as Lieutenant-Colonel in Colonel Woodbridge's Regiment, it appearing he was made up in the muster-roll of said Regiment so much short of the time he was in service.

Resolve on the Petition of GEORGE WILLIAMS, Jun., and others; passed AUGUST 31, 1776.

Resolved, That the Commissary-General of this State supply George Williams with five hundred pounds of Gunpowder from the Powder-Mill at Andover, for the use of the schooner of war called the General Putnam, the said George Williams paying at the rate of six shillings per pound. The Commissary-General to be accountable for the money so received.

Resolve on the Petition of JOSEPH SPRAGUE and others; passed AUGUST 31, 1776.

Resolved, That the Commissary-General of this State supply Joseph Sprague and others, with three hundred pounds of Gunpowder, from the Powder-Mill at Andover, for the use of the Schooner General Gates; the said Joseph Sprague and others to allow and pay the sum of six shillings per pound for said Powder to the Commissary-General, he to be accountable for the same.

Committee appointed to view places suitable for erecting Furnaces; AUGUST 31, 1776.

Resolved, That Hugh Orr, Esq., Thomas Durfee, Esq., and Deacon Ebenezer Washburn, be a Committee to repair immediately to some parts of this State, and take a view of some suitable place or places for erecting proper Furnaces for casting Cannon, and where Ore can be procured for that purpose; and that they apply to some Founder or Founders to advise in this matter. That they also inquire what sum or sums any stream, land, or ore, can be purchased for, they to make a report of their doings as soon as may be.

Resolve to revive Actions that were pending in the Inferiour Courts; passed AUGUST 31, 1776.

Whereas, by reason of the difficulties raised by the wicked designs of the enemies of our liberties, an interruption took place in the administration of civil distributive justice throughout this Colony, and whereas by an act of the General Court removing all officers from their respective offices, many civil suits which had been commenced, and were actually entered on the docket or book of entry of the inferiour courts of common pleas in the several Counties within this Colony, have not been prosecuted to final judgment, and much injury will happen if an adequate remedy is not provided in that behalf:

It is Resolved, That all civil actions that were pending in any inferiour court of common pleas in any County within this Colony, by having the same entered on the docket or minute book of said County, and on which judgment has not been given, may be brought forward at the next term of the said court, in which the same was entered as aforesaid, and the same proceedings had thereon as though such causes had been regularly continued in the said inferiour courts respectively, from term to term, where the same were pending when such interruption took place. Provided, always, That nothing in this resolve shall be construed or intended to be meant to enable any person or persons to bring forward any civil action which was brought forward, had, or pending in the inferiour court of common pleas for and within the County of Suffolk, from and after the first day of September, Anno Domini 1774, until the 17th day of March, Anno Domini 1776. Provided, also, That no execution or writ of possession shall issue on any judgment given in any of the cases aforesaid, until fifteen days after such judgment; and that the justices of the said inferiour courts of common pleas shall continue the said causes and actions one term at least, and cause the absent party to be notified of the suits against them; and where any of the party shall be out of the County, and in the Continental or Colonial service, the said suits shall be continued until the party as aforesaid shall return, or be dismissed from the said service, any law, usage, or custom, to the contrary notwithstanding.

Resolve on the Petition of JONATHAN EDDY and others; passed SEPTEMBER 2, 1776.

Resolved, That the Commissary-General be, and he hereby is directed to deliver to Jonathan Eddy, William How, and Zebulon Rowe, two hundred pounds weight of Gunpowder, five hundred weight of Musket-Balls, three hundred Gun-Flints, and twenty barrels of Pork, taking their obligation to be accountable for the same, when called for by order of this Court.

Resolve annulling a Resolve of the 29th of APRIL, allowing the Officers of Vessels in the sea-service to enlist Men out of the sea-coast Companies; passed SEPTEMBER 2, 1776.

Whereas, by a resolve passed by the General Court the 29th of April, the officers of vessels in the Colony sea-service were allowed to enlist men out of the companies raised for the defence of the sea-coasts, and the officers of the said companies were thereby directed to permit any of their men to enlist into the Colony and Continental sea-service only, and to enlist others to supply vacancies occasioned thereby, as soon as may be; and whereas such liberty or allowance, which was then given to the officers of vessels in the Colonial or Continental service has been found to be very detrimental, having weakened and very much exposed to the enemy many of our harbours and towns on the sea-coasts; and many of the officers of the sea-coast companies, after much expense of time and money to raise their companies, have had their men taken from them, to their great loss and damage, and thereby been discouraged from further recruiting; and some parts of the sea-coast may, if this practice is allowed, be left destitute of all defence, and thereby become a harbour for our enemies, which would not only further distress our trade, but involve us in many other difficulties: Therefore,

Resolved, That the aforesaid Resolve of the 29th of April, be, and hereby is discontinued and made null and void.

Resolve appointing a Committee to repair to NEW-HAMPSHIRE to endeavour to get one of the Continental Frigates fixed out; passed SEPTEMBER 2, 1776.

Resolved, That Benjamin Greenleaf, Esq., Oliver Wendell, Esq., and Captain George Williams, be a Committee immediately to repair to the State of New-Hampshire, and apply to the Government there, and if practicable, with the loan of as many Cannon as can be spared from this State, to effect the fixing out the Continental Ship now under the direction of Mr. Langdon, and to take immediate measures that such number of Cannon and other necessaries, as without distressing this State, may be lent to the Continent, may be safely and expeditiously transported to Portsmouth. This Ship to be fixed out for the purpose of attacking the Milford, or other ships of war distressing our coasts.

And in case said Ship can within any reasonable time be equipped for the sea:

Resolved, That two or more Colony Armed Vessels be directed to act in concert with her, and that the said Committee be, and hereby are empowered, to engage as many sea-coast soldiers, east of Boston, as may incline to enter for said service, and in general to do every thing necessary for effecting the aforesaid purpose. And that the pay of the sea-coast men continue in addition to the emoluments of the sea service. The said Cannon and other articles that may be lent as aforesaid, to be returned as soon as the cruise shall be over, or as soon as they shall be called for by this Government.

Resolve to supply six Soldiers in Colonel DYKE's Regiment with Guns; passed SEPTEMBER 2, 1776.

Resolved, That Richard Devens, Esq., Commissary, be directed to deliver out of the Colony stores six Guns to Samuel Taylor, Captain of a Company in Colonel Dyke's Regiment, for the use of six soldiers enlisted in said Taylor's Company, who are come hither without Guns, viz: Samuel Slarrow, Ebenezer Greaves, Nathaniel Rice, Joseph Huxford, Cyrus Pratt, and Seth Denis. And that the Commissary, upon delivery of said Guns, shall take a receipt of the Captain for the same, to be returned into the stores at the end of the campaign, and pay a dollar for the use of each of the same; and in failure of such return, be obliged to pay the full value for every Gun not returned.

Resolve on the Petition of FRANCIS BUTLER; passed SEPTEMBER 2, 1776.

Resolved, That there be paid out of the Treasury of this State to Francis Butler, £59 8s. 6d., in full for the net proceeds of the cargo of the Schooner Industry, which was paid into said Treasury by Jonathan Glover and Joshua Orne.

Resolve recommending to the Government of NEW-HAMPSHIRE to pass an act for preventing the Exportation of Lumber; passed SEPTEMBER 2, 1776.

Whereas Benjamin Greenleaf and Oliver Wendell, Esquires, and Captain George Williams, are appointed a Committee to repair to Portsmouth, in the State of New- Hampshire, to procure the Continental Frigate to cruise after the Milford and other Frigates of the enemy that are infesting the sea-coast of these United States:

Resolved, That the said Committee be directed to represent to the Legislative authority of the State of New-Hampshire, the expediency of forthwith passing an act to prohibit the exportation of Lumber for a limited time, similar to that passed by this State for that purpose.

PETITION OF JOSEPH SPRAGUE AND OTHERS.

To the honourable the General Court of the State of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

The Petition of the subscribers humbly sheweth:

That the said petitioners have fitted at a great expense, the schooner General Gates, William Carlton commander, whom the honourable Council have lately commissioned, with six carriage guns, eight swivels, two cohorns, and twenty muskets, together with sundry other implements of war, having fifty men, and provisions for three months' cruise, with an intention of making captures of the vessels belonging to the enemies of the United States of America. To effect said purposes, your petitioners humbly pray, that the honourable Court would grant them three hundred and fifty pounds of gunpowder upon your petitioners paying such a price for the same as the honourable Court shall think proper. And your petitioners, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

PETITION OF JOHN FOX.

To the honourable the Council and the honourable the House of Representatives of the State of MASSACHUSETTS:

The Petition of JOHN FOX, for himself and in behalf of others, inhabitants of FALMOUTH, CASCO-BAY, humbly shows:

That they are fitting out, and have almost completed for the sea, a private sloop-of-war, called the Retrieve, commanded by Captain Joshua Stone, mounted with ten carriage and sixteen swivel guns; to be navigated by eighty men; that said sloop is fitting out for the purpose of cruising against the enemies of the American States; that your petitioners have endeavoured, but without success, to provide for said sloop's intended cruise; that their only hope to obtain a sufficient supply is by applying to the honourable Court; and therefore their humble request is, that your Honours will be pleased to order the Commissary-General to supply them, out of the State Magazine, with six hundred pounds weight, they paying the usual price for the same. And your petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray, &c.

JOHN FOX,

In behalf of himself and the other owners.

Watertown, August 30, 1776.

PETITION OF JOSEPH NORTH.

To the honourable the Council and House of Representatives of the State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

The Memorial of JOSEPH NORTH, of a Plantation called GARDNERSTOWN, in the County of LINCOLN, Esquire, humbly sheweth:

That some time in the month of April last, William Gardner, of Gardnerstown aforesaid, Esquire, presented a petition to your Honours, setting forth, that at the time of the evacuation of Boston, on the 17th day of March last, his father, the late Silvester Gardner, of said Boston, Esquire, quitted the said town of Boston, and, with the Ministerial fleet and army, went to Halifax; that, at the same time, he, the said William Gardner, was in possession of a certain tract of land, with buildings thereon, situate at said Gardnerstown, which land his said father had some time before (as it seems the son alleged) given him, by deed of gift; and that the same being left at Boston, in his said father's house, was, by some evil-minded person, taken out of his possession. Whether the said Gardner had such a deed or not, or whether he was deprived of it or not, your memorialist does not pretend to determine; would only observe that the negative is generally believed, as he does not pretend the deed was recorded; neither is there one person in the County or elsewhere, that your memorialist ever heard of, who has pretended to assert they ever saw or heard of the deed before the 19th day of April, (after the evacuation,) at about which time your Honours passed a resolve that the respective Committees of Inspection and Safety, &c., through the Province, should take into their possession the respective estates of such persons as had gone off with the said fleet and army, and lease them in the best manner they could, for the publick benefit, excepting such estates, or parts of estates, which were leased or otherwise conveyed before the 22d of May, 1775. Pursuant to the said resolve, the Committee, soon after the receipt of it, acquainted said Gardner with it, and told him he must no longer keep possession of the said land, &c., in right of his father. But some time after this information of the Committee, (how long after the memorialist is uncertain,) the said William Gardner produced to the Committee your Honours' resolve and order that the said William be repossessed of the said tract of land and appurtenances, upon condition the said Committee, in their judgment, were convinced that he had not acted an unfriendly part since the dispute between Great Britain and this Province commenced. Upon receipt of the said order, the said William was repossessed of the said tract of land as before, but your memorialist and others think without due consideration of the inimical character which the said William did then bear, and had before deservedly borne, in the said Plantation and the vicinage, as may appear from the evidences which may be referred to in the sequel of this memorial.

Your memorialist further humbly sheweth, that the Committee of Safety, in June last, warned the inhabitants of said plantation of Gardnerstone to meet, in order to choose a new Committee of Inspection, Safety and Correspondence. At said meeting your memorialist appeared and informed the inhabitants that the General Assembly had lately passed a resolve, that all the future meetings for the said purpose should be notified by warrant of a Justice of the Peace, and that, therefore, he was of opinion that a choice of those officers at the present meeting would be deemed illegal; that the said William Gardner, with sinister views, as was supposed, insisted that the inhabitants should proceed to a choice; notwithstanding, however, part of the inhabitants, being convinced of the resolve which your memorialist had informed them of, left the meeting, unwilling to proceed contrary to law; but the said William, fond of choosing a committee at that meeting, for purposes of his own, persuaded such of the inhabitants as he was able to influence, to continue the meeting, now consisting of about fourteen persons only, one half of whom were disqualified for voting; notwithstanding which they proceeded to choose a Moderator and Clerk, and afterwards a Committee of five persons, such as said Gardner approved of; after which, through favour of a majority of said Committee, he procured a paper to be signed, recommending him to your Honours as a staunch friend to his country, in order to his obtaining from your Honours a confirmation of the said tract of land.

Your memorialist further sheweth that, after it was known in the said plantation that a majority of the new Committee had been induced to sign the recommendatory paper before mentioned, a complaint was made to your memorialist, as a Justice of the Peace, by Gideon Gardner, one of the inhabitants, (and a relative of the said William,) giving your memorialist to understand, that he had applied to the said Committee, and informed them that he was ready and able to prove the said William Gardner to be an enemy to these United Colonies, but that the said Committee had declined taking any notice of his information, and that, to prevent publick mischief which might arise from the proceedings of the said Committee respecting the said William Gardner, he had applied himself to your memorialist to summons divers persons to give evidence of what they knew touching said William Gardner's behaviour at different times, since the arrival of General Gage at Boston. The persons named were accordingly summoned, and made oath to their respective depositions, to be produced by your memorialist when demanded, and he expected that he should have been furnished with several other testimonies relative to the said William Gardner's enmity to his country, by him clearly manifested, as well since as before his application to your Honours to be repossessed of the tract of land before mentioned; such as that, some time after General Gage's arrival, said William Gardner had shown to several persons a pass, under the hand of the said Gage, permitting him to go from Kennebeck to Quebeck at any time when he thought proper, and that one of the persons saw the said pass destroyed by the said William last spring; but said persons, as your memorialist was informed, upon request refused for certain reasons to depose the same; and further, that, even in July last, the said William had declared at Gardnerstone, to one of the inhabitants of Woolwich, then at Gardnerstone, that he (said William) continued of the same mind respecting the probability of these Colonies being subjected to the Government of Great Britain, &c., but was afraid to speak his mind, as he knew several persons were watching his words and actions, &c.

And further, your memorialist sheweth that, inasmuch as the said William Gardner, in his memorial of last spring, endeavoured to avail himself of his great merit, as being the principal cause of procuring a number of the Eastern Indians the last year to go into war against the enemy, it will appear, by a deposition of one Benjamin Colburn, that the said William Gardner, in the year 1774, did declare in his presence, that, when the Regulars should come, he (said William) "would put on a red coat, and join with them to drive the men who had burnt the tea;" as it will also appear by the same deposition that the said William was so far from being the principal means of procuring said Indians, (as set forth in his memorial,) that he only furnished for their use sufficient coarse ratteen to make one jacket and a pair of Indian stockings, delivered to one Reuben Colburn, who declares the said William demanded of him the pay for the said cloth, and that he accordingly paid him; and further, your memorialist would add here, from the affidavit of Lieutenant Samuel Berry, (also ready to be produced,) that, upon an alarm at Gardnerstone, in July last, occasioned by a report of the Indians having killed a man above Norridgewalk, and the said Berry having orders from your memorialist to muster a division of Minute-men to march to Fort Halifax, to defend the inhabitants in that settlement, the said William, upon the occasion, manifested himself so inconsistent with his occasional professions, as to discourage the said officer from doing his duty; which your memorialist and others, with great reason, suppose that, since the said William's professed exertions to procure a number of the Eastern Indians to assist us last summer, he had been apprised by some of his brother Tories, that much money was arrived from the British Administration, and had been partly applied to bribe the Indians, and induce them to take up the hatchet against the inhabitants of these United Colonies.

Upon the whole your memorialist begs leave to declare to your Honours, that he does not prefer this memorial from any personal enmity against the said William Gardner, but to prevent your Honours being further imposed upon by him or other person, whom he may have probably procured to support his credit, and because your memorialist is convinced that it is the indispensable duty of each member of the community, as far as may be in their power, to expose to publick view those persons who, while expecting publick favours, yet evidently have discovered their being inimical to the publick welfare. The evidences by your memorialist produced to prove that the said William Gardner is to be viewed as one of that character, your Honours, he hopes, will take into your serious considerations, and in your great wisdom act as you shall judge most conducive to the safety of the publick. And your memorialist shall ever pray, &c.

JOSEPH NORTH.

Watertown, September 2, 1776.

I, Nathaniel Thwing, of lawful age, testify and declare, that at the time we first received the Act of the British Parliament for curtailing the Charter of this Province, the Court of General Sessions of the Peace and Inferiour Court of Common Pleas was then sitting at Pownalboro, in and for the County of Lincoln. A gentleman who had just received a newspaper which contained the act, was reading it at table after dinner, William Gardner, Esq., of Gardnerston, being present, on hearing it read, expressed himself in the following manner, viz: Now we shall see glorious times; now we shall be happy; now we may sit down, every man under his own vine and under his own fig tree, and have none to make us afraid; now we may sing the song of good old Simeon, "Lord, now lettest thou thy servant depart in peace." I further say that in the month of May, 1775, the several towns upon Kennebeck River sent delegates to meet in Congress, at the Court-House in Pownalboro, to devise means of safety in case of an attack from the savages, and to provide a stock of ammunition and provision, &c., and seeing in the return from Gardnerston the name of William Gardner, Esq., as one of the delegates for said Gardnerston, and knowing from the above expressions of his, and some conversation which he had with one Benjamin Gardner, of Bowdoinham, which I had from said Benjamin Gardner, that the said William Gardner, Esq., was inimical to this country, I objected to his being allowed to sit in Congress with the other delegates as being an improper person to sit there, but after some short debate the President moved that as the town where he lived thought fit to send him, they, the Congress, would not put an affront upon the town by refusing him; and it being put to vote, he was admitted to sit. And further saith not.

NATHANIEL THWING.

LINCOLN, ss., August 2, 1776:

Then Nathaniel Thwing, Esq., personally appeared, and being carefully examined and duly cautioned to testify the whole truth, made solemn oath to the truth of the above deposition by him subscribed, being taken at the request of Gideon Gardner, to be used in the General Court of the Colony of Massachusetts-Bay. The above-named William Gardner, Esq., not being within twenty miles of the place of caption, was not notified nor present.

Taken before me: JOSEPH NORTH, Justice Peace.

GARDNERSTON, July 29, 1776:

I, Benjamin Colburn, of Gardnerston, in the County of Lincoln, of lawful age, testify and say, that on the 28th day of June, 1774, on that day a covenant was offered to William Gardner, Esq., to sign, by Mr. Joseph North, but he refused to sign it, as the said Gardner said. As he came up to the deponent, I heard him, the said Gardner, say, that if the Regulars came that he would put on a red coat and join them, and go to help them to drive the men that burnt the tea.

I, the deponent, further say, that in the month of June, 1775, that my brother, Reuben Colburn, desired me to go after Paul Higans, and engage him to go with him after some Indians, to come in and take part with the United Colonies, and to join our army at Cambridge; my brother was the first that moved to go after and went after them, not William Gardner, Esq. All he, the said Gardner, did towards getting the Indians to come in, was to let Paul Higan have a piece of cloth to make a piece of Indian stockings and a jacket, which William Gardner said he gave the cloth to Higan, and he lent to my brother a tin kettle and a jump line. I know of nothing else he, the said Gardner, did to forward the said affair, and I think that Higans would went after the Indians if Mr. Gardner had not given said cloth to him, as the cloth might be had other wheres.

BENJAMIN COLBURN.

LINCOLN, ss., GARDNERSTON, July 31, 1775:

Then personally appeared Benjamin Colburn, and being carefully examined and duly cautioned to testify the whole truth, made solemn oath to the truth of the within deposition by him subscribed. The within named William Gardner, Esq., not being within twenty miles of the place of caption, was not notified nor present.

Taken before me: JOSEPH NORTH, Justice Peace.

PETITION OF JOSIAH BATCHELDER, JUN.

To the honourable the Council of the State of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

The Petition of JOSIAH BATCHELDER, JUN., & Co., humbly sheweth:

That your petitioners have fitted out and equipped the Brigantine called the Retaliation, for a privateer, to cruise on the enemies of the United States of America, and having conformed to all the resolves and regulations of the honourable the Grand American Congress, and of the General Court of this State, relative to fitting out private ships of war, humbly pray that your Honours would be pleased to commissionate the three within-named persons, with full power to proceed on their cruise, &c.

And your petitioners, as in duty bound, shall ever pray. In behalf of himself & Co.,

JOS. BATCHELDER, JUN.

An account of the Brigantine Retaliation's stores and appurtenances, as followeth, viz:

Brigantine Retaliation, about 75 tons; 10 carriage-guns from 4 to 2-pounders; 9 swivel guns.

Josiah Batchelder, Jun., & Co., of Beverly, owners; Eleazer Giles, Captain; Thomas Stephens, Jun., First Lieutenant; John Procter, Jun., Second Lieutenant; 70 men.

50 barrels beef and pork; 4,000 weight bread; 4 quintals fish; 6 jars oil; 10 bushels potatoes; 500 weight powder; 80 weight musket-balls; 400 cannon shot; 25 small-arms; 30 cutlasses; 10 lances.

These may certify that the above is a true account of the Brigantine called the Retaliation, together with her stores, appurtenances, and equipment, &c.

JOS. BATCHELDER, JUN.

Beverly, September 2, 1776.

In Council, September 4, 1776.

Read, and Ordered, That the above-mentioned Eleazer Giles be commissioned as Commander of the Brigantine Retaliation, he complying with the resolves of Congress.

SAMUEL ADAMS, Secretary.

PETITION OF JOHN WINTHROP, JUN.

State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

To the honourable the Council of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY: The Petition of JOHN WINTHROP, Jun., humbly sheweth:

That your petitioner, owner of the sloop Union, burthen about eighty tons, armed with two six-pounders, four four-pounders, four three-pounders, and fourteen swivels, manned with sixty-five men, and with six months provision, under the command of Isaac Somes, with Daniel Parsons for First Lieutenant, and Jonathan Russell, Jun., for Second, all of Gloucester, in the County of Essex, is designed to cruise against the enemies of these United States. Your petitioner would, therefore, request your Honours to grant a commission to the said vessel and Captain, for the purpose before mentioned. And your petitioner, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

JOHN WINTHROP.

In Council, September 2, 1776.

Read, and Ordered, That a Commission be issued out to the above-mentioned Isaac Somes, as Commander of the Sloop Union, he complying with the resolves of Congress.

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

ORDERS IN COUNCIL.

In Council, September 3, 1776.

As the old top of the Light-House is rendered unfit to be used for that purpose in future, the Commissary-General is hereby directed to deliver so much of it to the Committee for fortifying the Harbour of Boston as they shall need to supply the cannon with balls.

It being represented to this Board that the men raised for the Northern department, in the First Regiment, in the County of Hampshire, on the east side of Connecticut River, have not marched, it is therefore Ordered, That all the said men now raised for said purposes are directed to march forthwith under the command of Phineas Chapin, Jun., Lieutenant, on the most direct way to join Captain Flowers's Company in Colonel Woodbridge's Regiment.

PETITION OF CHARLES GOODRICH.

To the honourable Council and honourable House of Representatives of the State of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, now sitting at WATERTOWN, in Great and General Court, or Assembly:

The Memorial and Petition of CHARLES GOODRICH, of PITTSFIELD, in the County of BERKSHIRE, in the State aforesaid, humbly sheweth:

That the Committee of Correspondence, Inspection and Safety, of Pittsfield aforesaid, on or about the 25th day of March last, assumed to themselves power to hear, judge, and assess, both publick and private damages with cost, against your petitioner, for defending himself with blows when previously assaulted by a certain James Morey. That in the course of the above affair, your petitioner was dragged out of his house, and carried before said Committee, by violence, late in the night, by a number of men, who said they proceeded by order of said Committee. That said Committee then refused to dismiss your petitioner, till he had promised in writing to pay said damages and costs.

That said Committee in proceeding against Moses Graves, Jun., generally deemed an inveterate Tory, ordered him to have no conversation with any Tories; who then desired him to give them in writing the names of such persons, whereupon said Committee published a list of such names, including the name of your petitioner, with whom said Graves should not converse; thereby publickly stating the character of your petitioner in a most malicious manner, which will suffer till some way can be pointed out for an impartial hearing.

That upon the late raising every twenty-fifth man in the State aforesaid, your petitioner was informed, by report only, that he was ordered by the commanding officer in Pittsfield aforesaid, either to serve as a drafted soldier, or to hire one for that end. That afterwards he was cited to appear before said Committee to answer to a complaint not pointed out to him, which he neglected to do, supposing himself bound thereunto, neither in law, equity, nor common prudence. That since the above, the Clerk of said Committee hath informed your petitioner that said Committee had sent to Mr. Watson, printer at Hartford, to advertise your petitioner as an enemy to his country. That your petitioner conceives that the foregoing violent and oppressive proceedings were had against him principally because he was appointed to civil office in said County the last year, by the constitutional authority of this State, by which proceedings justice and the rights of mankind are trampled upon. Therefore, as the civil affairs of the County aforesaid are so near a state of nature that your petitioner cannot have such protection and redress as societies are instituted to give, he prays that he may have them in such a way and manner as the justice of his cause and the rights of mankind require, and such as you in your wisdom and righteousness shall deem meet. And your petitioner, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

CHARLES GOODRICH.

Watertown, September 3, 1776.

In the House of Representatives, September 7, 1776.

Read, and committed to the Committee on the Petitions from the town of Hancock. Sent up for concurrence.

J. WARREN, Speaker.

In Council, September 7, 1776.

Read and concurred, and Benjamin Greenleaf, Esq., and Benjamin White, Esq., are joined.

JNO. AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

The Committee to whom was referred the consideration of this Petition, beg leave to report in form of a Resolve, herewith exhibited. Per order, B. GREENLEAF.

The Petition of Charles Goodrich, Esq., of Pittsfield, in the County of Berkshire, having been considered, the following Resolve is passed thereon, viz:

In Council, September 16, 1776.

Whereas, the Committee of the town of Pittsfield have advertised the said Goodrich in the Connecticut Courant, of September 2d, 1776, as an enemy to his country, to the end that all connections and commercial intercourse be withdrawn from him, till he give satisfaction for his unfriendly conduct, and the said Committee having set forth the reasons for their proceedings against him in this manner, the principal of which are, "his having procured to himself a commission in the King's name to exercise authority over the people as a Justice of the Peace, which they seem to have considered as a submitting to British authority; his not paying a proper regard when he was drafted on the alarm list, to serve in the expedition against Canada; and his having joined himself with the most ancient Tories and implacable enemies among us." As to the first charge, Mr. Goodrich received a commission from the major part of the Council of this Colony, of such a tenour and form as they judged it proper to adopt, and such, as far as they could learn, as was agreeable to the practice of the other Colonies, and agreeable to the sentiments of the Congress. The said Committee therefore in exhibiting this charge, have discovered an entire ignorance of the line of their duty, and great indecency towards the constitutional authority of this State.

With regard to the second article of charge, it appears that Mr. Goodrich considered himself as not liable, by the laws of this State, to be drafted from the alarm-list in such manner and for such purpose as was intended, and that therefore it was he did not yield a ready compliance, according to the expectation of the Committee.

The other charges being general, and not supported by any proper proof or evidence, do not merit attention.

Therefore it is Resolved, That it does not appear to this Court that the said Charles Goodrich, Esq., ought to be stigmatized as an enemy to his country; but that, on the other hand, we consider him as a friend to the rights of mankind, and to the grand cause in which the United States are at present engaged.

In Council, September 16, 1776.

Read and accepted. Sent down for concurrence.

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

Resolve for paying £13 12s. 7d. to JOSEPH HOWLAND and TIMOTHY GOODWIN; passed SEPTEMBER 3, 1776.

Resolved, That there be paid to Joseph Howland and Timothy Goodwin, out of the publick Treasury of this State, the sum of £13 12s. 6d., in full discharge of what remains due for their service for post riding between Cambridge and Falmouth in the year 1775.

PETITION OF COMMITTEE OF FRAMINGHAM.

State of the MASSACHUSETTS:

To the honourable the Council and the honourable the House of Representatives of this State, now sitting at WATERTOWN:

The Petition of the Committee of Correspondence, Inspection, and Safety, of the Town of FRAMINGHAM, humbly sheweth:

That many people in this town are much dissatisfied that Nathaniel Brinley has the free liberty thereof, which renders it impracticable for the said Committee to comply with the order of Court, taken in its largest latitude, as the people take him for a very villain. The reasons by them assigned are the following, viz: That when among us heretofore, he used his influence to discourage and corrupt the minds of the people by saying that the Parliament had an undoubted right to make void the charter, in part or in whole; that ten thousand troops, with an artillery, would go through the Continent, and subdue it at pleasure, &c.; that he had a letter, in which we strongly suspect he had intelligence of the hostile intentions of the British troops some little time before the 19th of April, 1775; that he was preparing to join our enemies several months before that time, by slowly conveying his best furniture to Roxbury, and moved his family and goods into Boston a little before Lexington battle, and remained there so long as he could have the protection of the British troops; and approved of General Gage's conduct in the highest terms. And 'tis further observable that he left a large farm, on which he had his chief dependence for subsistence, at the most busy season of the year; and that his most intimate connexions were some of our worst enemies and traitors.

Your petitioners beg leave to observe to your Honours, that since said Brinley has been under our inspection, we can see nothing, either in his conduct or disposition, that discovers the least contrition, but contrarywise. He says he is a gentleman, and has done nothing to forfeit that character.

All which is humbly submitted to your Honours' wise consideration, praying for such direction or relief as to your Honours may seem meet. And, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

Per order of the Committee of Correspondence, Inspection, &c.

EBEN'R MARSHALL.

Framingham, September 4, 1776.

To the honourable the Council and honourable House of Representatives of the State of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, in General Court assembled, at WATERTOWN:

NATHANIEL BRINLEY, of FRAMINGHAM, husbandman, humbly sheweth:

That your petitioner was, in consequence of a power vested in five Justices of the Peace for the County of Suffolk, by said Justices apprehended and examined, as being a person suspected of being inimical to the rights of America, and, after examination, was sentenced to be sent to the town of Framingham, in the County of Middlesex, there to remain for the space of four months; and your petitioner entered into a recognizance to Henry Gardner, Esquire, Treasurer of this State, or his successor in said office, in the penalty of six hundred pounds, with two sureties in the sum of three hundred pounds each, for his not departing the limits of said town, for the said space of four months, and for his being of the peace, and good behaviour towards all the inhabitants of the free and independent States of America, specially towards the inhabitants of this State, for the space of twelve months, and for his not in any manner aiding, abetting, assisting, or corresponding with any of the enemies of said States.

Your petitioner conceived, and as he apprehends of right conceived, both from the judgment of said Justices and the condition of the recognizance, that he might reside and dwell in any part of said town of Framingham, and that he might pass and repass from any one part of said town to another, so that he broke not the condition of his recognizance.

But your petitioner would represent to this honourable Court that the Committee of Correspondence, Inspection and Safety, of said town, have put your petitioner to Mr. John Fisk, of said town, to labour for said Fisk, and not permitted him to go more than twenty rods from said Fisk's house, without his presence, and have denied him the free use of pen, ink and paper, all which your petitioner represents, for your Honours' advisement thereon, as he conceives the said Justices have no power to alter their former sentence; and prays that he may be ordered to some other inland town in this State, or in such other way as to your Honours may seem meet, may be relieved from his distress, especially as he apprehends the said Committee are not empowered to inflict other or further punishment than that ordered by said Justices, more specially as the only charge against your petitioner was his consenting to have his name put to an address to General Gage, which was brought to him when he was in great bodily pain, and your petitioner verily believes he should not have signed it if he had been in health, as he had always avoided every thing of that kind.

Your petitioner would further represent to this honourable Court, that while he was shut up in the town of Boston, being accidentally there, and not as a refugee, said Committee took into their possession the stock on the farm lately improved by your petitioner, as well as his farming utensils of every kind, his household furniture, &c., which your petitioner humbly prays may be ordered by this honourable Court to be restored to him, as he humbly conceives he has not by any law of this State forfeited the same.

And, as in duty bound, shall ever pray, in behalf of her husband, Nathaniel Brinley, aforesaid.

CATHARINE BRINLEY.

State of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

To the honourable the Council and the honourable the House of Representatives, in General Court assembled, this 9th day of SEPTEMBER, 1776:

Humbly sheweth NATHANIEL BRINLEY, of FRAMINGHAM, in the County of MIDDLESEX, husbandman:

That your petitioner was, by sentence of a Court of Inquiry specially appointed by this honourable Court, sent to the town of Framingham, in the County of Middlesex, there to remain for the space of four months; your petitioner would represent to the honourable Court that the only offence alleged against him, and the only thing of which he was found guilty by said Court, was signing an address to General Gage; an address presented to your petitioner while under great indisposition, and suffering the severest bodily pain; he, it is true, being in this distress, to avoid importunity and solicitation, which in such circumstances could not but add to his sufferings, consented to have his name put to said address; he did not sign it himself, and he is firmly persuaded had he been in health he should not have consented to have had his name thereto, as he always avoided every thing of the kind. Your petitioner would further represent to the honourable Court that he hath accordingly been confined in said town of Framingham for near the space of six weeks; not, as he apprehends, according to the true intent and meaning of the sentence against him, for he is confined to the limits of one farm in said Framingham, viz: Mr. Benjamin Eaton's, and indeed is not allowed to depart said Eaton's house without the presence of said Eaton; that he is not allowed to converse with any person friendly or unfriendly to the rights of this State, not even with his wife, unless in the hearing of some one of said Eaton's family; that he is denied the use of pen, ink and paper, and is really apprehensive of loss of life should he even depart the said house; that these apprehensions are grounded on good foundations, for he has been insulted even when in company with said Eaton, and was once struck at when in a chaise with said Eaton, which stroke, your petitioner apprehends, had it not been happily warded off, would have dangerously hurt your petitioner. All these facts your petitioner can make fully appear to the honourable Court when called upon so to do. He therefore prays the honourable Court that after a due consideration of the premises, they would order him to some other inland town in said State, where he may be treated in a manner suitable to a person suffering the penalties adjudged him by the said Court of Inquiry, and where a Committee may not add punishment to punishment already inflicted, and adjudged by the said Court adequate to his offence. And, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

Signed in behalf of her husband, Nathaniel Brinley aforesaid,
CATHARINE BRINLEY.

PETITION OF ELIAS HASKET DERBY AND OTHERS.

To the honourable the Council of the State of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, in NEW-ENGLAND:

The Petition of ELIAS HASKET DERBY, MILES GREENWOOD, and JOSEPH WHITE, all of SALEM, in the County of ESSEX, and State aforesaid, humbly sheweth:

That your petitioners are now fitting out, and have almost completed for sea, a private sloop-of-war, called the Revenge, of ninety tons burthen, to be mounted with twelve guns, from four to six-pounders, owned by the subscribers, and whereof Benjamin Warren is intended to be master, to be manned by eighty men, to be victualled with thirty barrels of pork, fifty barrels of beef, and seventy barrels of bread, and to be provided with eight hundred pound weight of powder and one thousand shot. Your petitioner's humble prayer, therefore, is, that the before-named Benjamin Warren may be commissioned Captain of the said private sloop-of-war Revenge. And your petitioners, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

ELIAS HASKET DERBY, MILES GREENWOOD,
JOSEPH WHITE.

Salem, September 4, 1776.

In Council, September 4, 1776.

Read, and Ordered, That the prayer of the within Petition be granted, and that a Commission be issued to the within-mentioned Benjamin Warren, he complying with the resolves of Congress.

SAM'L ADAMS, Secretary.

PETITION OF SAMUEL DOGGET AND OTHERS.

State of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

To the honourable Council now sitting at WATERTOWN:

The Petition of SAMUEL DOGGET, GUSTAVUS FELLOWS, NEHEMIAH LOMES, SAMUEL PARTRIDGE, of BOSTON, DANIEL HOWES, and others of HARWICH, humbly sheweth:

That your petitioners, owners of the sloop Wolfe, burthen about ninety tons, armed with ten carriage-guns, viz: two six-pounders, four four-pounders, and four three-pounders, and ten swivel guns, navigated by ninety men, Nathaniel Freeman commander, Joshua Doane First Lieutenant, Joshua Winslow Second Lieutenant, and Nathaniel Cooke master, has on board as provisions, fifty barrels pork and beef, four and half tons bread, five barrels flour; and as warlike stores, nine hundred and fifty pounds weight powder, cased and double-headed shot in proportion, with langrage. Said sloop is designed to cruise against the enemies of these United States. Your petitioners would, therefore, humbly pray your Honours to commission the said sloop and commander for the purpose before mentioned. And your petitioners, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

NATH'L FREEMAN,
SAMUEL PARTRIDGE,
SAMUEL DOGGETT.

In Council, September 4, 1776.

Read, and Resolved, That the prayer of this Petition be granted, and that a Commission issue to the within-named Nathaniel Freeman accordingly, he giving bonds agreeable to the order of the Continental Congress.

SAM'L ADAMS, Secretary.

Resolve directing the Commissary to deliver JONATHAN EDDY and others, Bread instead of Pork; passed SEPTEMBER 4, 1776.

Whereas, by a resolve of the General Court on September 2, 1776, the Commissary-General was directed to deliver to Jonathan Eddy, William How, and Zebulun Rowe, sundry articles of Ammunition and twenty barrels of Pork; and the said Eddy, How, and Rowe, have represented that a quantity of Bread would be much more useful to them than such a quantity of Pork:

Therefore, Resolved, That the Commissary-General be, and he hereby is directed to deliver to the said Jonathan Eddy, William How, and Zebulun Rowe, only ten barrels of Pork, and as much Bread as shall amount to the value of ten barrels of Pork, taking their obligation as directed in the resolve aforesaid.

Resolve for the delivery of a four-pound Cannon to ISAAC COLLIER; passed SEPTEMBER 4, 1776.

Resolved, That Colonel Crafts be directed to deliver to Mr. Isaac Collier one four-pound Cannon, which by certificates, appears to have been delivered for the use of the Army at Cambridge, in April, 1775.

PETITION OF JOSEPH MAYHEW AND SHUBAEL CATTLE.

To the honourable the Council and the House of Representatives of the State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, in General Court assembled:

The Petition of JOSEPH MAYHEW and SHUBAEL CATTLE, members of said House of Representatives for the towns of CHILMARK and TISBURY, in the County of DUKES County, in the State aforesaid, humbly sheweth:

That the several companies of soldiers stationed on the sea-coast establishment on Martha's Vineyard, in said County, for the defence thereof, do stand in great need of boats, in order to their passing (as there will be occasion for them to do) from one place to another; for which reason the prayer of your petitioners in behalf of their constituents and other inhabitants of the County aforesaid, is, that some suitable person be appointed and directed by this honourable Court to provide for the use of the officers and private soldiers of said companies ten boats, and to exhibit to your Honours an account of the cost thereof, for your allowance and order for payment, out of the publick Treasury of the State. And your petitioners, as in duty bound, shall ever pray, &c.

JOSEPH MAYHEW,
SHUBAEL CATTLE.

Watertown, September 5, 1776.

PETITION OF NATHANIEL GUILD.

To the honourable the Council and the honourable House of Representatives for the State of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

Humbly sheweth your petitioner that this honourable Court granted him leave to choose sixteen men out of the towns of Stoughtonham, Walpole, Norton, and Mansfield, to work in the furnace in Stoughtonham aforesaid, to forward the making military stores, ordered by this honourable Court and General Washington. Your petitioner is informed that the Militia are ordered to supply the lines in this State, and of course the men now employed at the furnace must be called upon to serve in their turns, which must inevitably stop the going of the furnace now making garrison wheels, &c., for the Castle, part of which is now finished, and will greatly injure your petitioner in his interest, after putting the furnace into blast at an unseasonable time at a great expense, should the persons concerned in said furnace be obliged to attend their turns in the military service; wherefore your petitioner humbly begs this honourable Court that the persons now concerned in said furnace business, may be exempted from serving in the Militia service during the blasting of said furnace. And your petitioner, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

NATHANIEL GUILD.

MEMORANDUM.

The owners of Furnace Hope, in the State of Rhode-Island, pray that the following persons may be exempted from military duty in the State of the Massachusetts-Bay, as they are necessary to carry on the works at said furnace: Solomon Perkins, Daniel Keth, Jun., Abner Sears, Jeremiah Keth, James Keth, Ruel Keth, Seth Keth, Jonathan Keth, Amos Shepherdson, gun moulders; Martin Darsance, fireman; Ebenezer Hooper, Thomas Wood, topmen; James Hill, Jun., blacksmith.

PETITION OF COMMITTEE OF MIDDLEBOROUGH.

To the honourable Board of Counsellors and House of Representatives of the Massachusetts State, at WATER-TOWN, in General Court assembled:

The Petition of the Committee of Correspondence of the town of MIDDLEBOROUGH, humbly sheweth:

That the said Committee, in serving the publick agreeable with, and pursuant to, the order and directions of the honourable Council and House of Representatives, (which they are resolved seriously and carefully to observe, so far as shall any ways promote the publick good,) do meet with some difficulty; and, in particular, first: As they were ordered to the possession of, and lease out, the real estates of all persons that have fled to Boston, &c., and no directions given how to clear said real estates from their present encumbrances, there yet remains such real estate not leased out, because the present possessor obstinately refused to quit possession or hire the same; alluding, at the same time, to something from two of the present Council as a reason for such conduct: and further, as the personal estate of the Olivers hath not been under the care of publick authority, the said Committee, on taking possession, and also an inventory, of said personal estate, do find, by sufficient testimony from reputable persons, who were well acquainted with said estate, that there were many valuable things there, when and soon after the said Olivers left their estate, which they do not find now, and there is no person accountable therefor; and it hath been repeatedly suggested to the said Committee that particular persons who have had the opportunities have used, removed, and concealed a part of said estate; and further, a part of said personal estate is perishable, and liable at any time to be lost, and for that cause no one will risk it: Therefore your petitioners most humbly pray that the said honourable Council and House of Representatives would immediately grant to the said Committee further authority and directions adequate to their task; and in particular, with submission to your Honours' great wisdom, your petitioners humbly pray that your Honours would grant to the said Committee authority immediately to remove any person or persons from the possession of any such real estate as above-said, who have not, nor will not hire the same at a reasonable rate; and further, to demand the assistance of a Justice of the Peace so far as is necessary for the obtaining such personal estate as above-said that is yet missing; and also that any person or persons, being suspected of having taken any part of such personal estate as abovesaid, shall be accountable upon oath to the said Committee therefor, and that all perishable estate as abovesaid may be disposed of for the good of the publick. For all which your petitioners, as in duty bound, for the benefit of the publick in general, and for the equity, peace, and good order of the town to which they belong, shall ever pray. Dated at Middleboro, September the 2d, 1776.

By order of said Committee:

JOHN MILLER, Chairman.

IN COUNCIL, September 5, 1776: Read and sent down.

SAMUEL ADAMS, Secretary.

The Committee to consider the within Petition have attended that service, and beg leave to report that the petitioner have leave to withdraw said Petition.

OAKES ANGIER, per order.

Resolved, That the Commissary-General supply Captain Benjamin Plummer with fifty pounds of Gunpowder, one hundred pounds of leaden Balls, and one hundred and fifty Flints, for the use of his Company, he, the said Plummer, to be accountable for the same.

Resolve for the delivery of six Firelocks to Captain LEIGHTON; passed SEPTEMBER 5, 1776.

On the Petition of Samuel Leighton,

Resolved, That the Commissary-General be, and he hereby is directed to deliver to Captain Samuel Leighton, six Firelocks out of the store belonging to this State, for the use of six soldiers mentioned in his Petition, and that he, the said Captain, be accountable for said Firelocks, and that there be deducted out of each of said soldiers' wages, six shillings for the use of the same.

Resolve for the delivery of four Firelocks to Captain LYMAN; passed SEPTEMBER 5, 1776.

Resolved, That the Commissary-General be, and he is hereby directed to deliver to Captain Lyman, four Firelocks out of the store belonging to this State, for the use of four soldiers mentioned in the Petition, he to be accountable for the same, and that there be deducted out of each of said soldiers' wages, six shillings for the use of the same.

Resolve for the Payment of £2 14s. to ELEAZER SPAULDING; passed SEPTEMBER 5, 1776.

On the Petition of Eleazer Spaulding, praying that his son Daniel may be allowed for his Gun lost at the battle of Bunker-Hill,

Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury of this State £2 14s. to the above petitioner, in full compensation for the loss of his Gun above mentioned.

PETITION OF THOMAS NICHOLSON.

To the honourable the Council of the State of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

The Petition of THOMAS NICHOLSON humbly sheweth:

That your petitioner is fixing out from Plymouth as a privateer, a sloop called the America, burthened about eighty tons, mounting ten carriage-guns and six swivels, owned by himself, Messrs. Watson & Spooner, and a number of others. She has on board six thousand pounds of bread, forty barrels pork and beef, five hundred weight of powder, two thousand weight of iron, and three hundred weight of leaden balls; manned with seventy men: Thomas Nicholson Captain, Corben Barnes First Lieutenant, Nathaniel Ripley Second Lieutenant. Your petitioner therefore humbly prays your Honours would grant him a commission as Commander of the said privateer, he giving bond agreeable to the requisition of the Congress.

THOMAS NICHOLSON.

In Council, September 6, 1776.

Read, and Ordered, That a Commission be issued out to the said Thomas Nicholson as Commander of the Sloop America, he complying with the resolves of Congress.

JNO. AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

PETITION OF THOMAS CRAGG.

State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

To the honourable the General Court of said State:

The Petition of THOMAS CRAGG humbly shows:

That your petitioner being part owner of the ship Isaac and her cargo, was on a voyage in said ship from the Island of Tortola bound to Liverpool, in England, to visit his family and attend to his private concerns; that in prosecuting said voyage he was taken and brought into this State. This unexpected event has thrown your petitioner into the most distressed and pitiable circumstances. A principal part of his fortune is taken out of his hands, and what remains must suffer inevitable ruin from his absence in a short time. He has a wife, children, and a large family, who cannot long subsist without his support; and himself, though unused to want the conveniences of life, must soon experience the wretchedness of extreme poverty. Your petitioner begs leave to declare that he has never taken an active part in the unhappy controversy between Great Britain and America; and from his age and standing in life, it necessarily follows that he never will. He, therefore, humbly prays your Honours to take his unhappy case into your consideration, and grant him and one servant liberty to take passage for some part of England, in the ship _____, owned by Mr. William Ross, and by your Honours' permission bound for some part of England, or grant him such other relief as your Honours' well-known wisdom and humanity may point out. And your petitioner as in duty bound shall ever pray.

THOS. CRAGG.

Boston, September 4, 1776.

In Council, September 6, 1776.

Read, and Ordered, That the prayer of this Petition be granted, and that the said Thomas Cragg, with one servant, be permitted to depart from this State to any part of Great Britain in such Vessel as William Ross and Nathaniel Morgan (who lately had liberty obtained to depart) may purchase for that purpose.

JNO. AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

PETITION OF THOMAS MELVILL.

State of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

To the honourable the Council of said State:

The Petition of THOMAS MELVILL, one of the owners of armed Schooner SPEEDWELL, in behalf of himself and the other owners of said schooner, humbly shows:

That the said owners of said schooner have, at a great expense, armed, fitted, and manned, said schooner, (as mentioned in a memorandum given in to the Secretary's Office of this honourable Board,) to cruise against the enemies of this and the United States of America. Your petitioner, therefore, in behalf of himself and other said owners of said schooner, humbly prays your Honours to authorize, empower, and commissionate Jonathan Greeley, of Boston, in the County of Suffolk, mariner, to take the command of said schooner, and to cruise against the said enemies of the said States of America. And your petitioner, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

THOS. MELVILL, one of the Agents.

In Council, September 6, 1776.

Read, and Ordered, That the within-mentioned Schooner Speedwell, whereof Jonathan Greeley is Commander, be commissioned, he complying with the resolves of Congress.

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

On board the armed Schooner SPEEDWELL, seventy-five tons.

70 men, officers included;
8 carriage-guns, four and three-pounders;
12 swivels; 35 small-arms;
700 lbs. powder; 400 three and four-pound shot;
300 swivel shot; 70 weight small-arm balls;
45 bbls. beef and pork; 6,000 weight bread;
4 bbls. flour, and a number of other small stores.

Jonathan Greeley Captain, First Lieutenant not yet appointed, William Pitman Second Lieutenant, John Wilkinson Master.

THOMAS MELVILL, JONATHAN GREELY,
WILLIAM FOSTER, THOMAS HICHBORN,
DAVID BRADLEY, Captain GORHAM.
JOHN HUCKLEY,

Owners, all of Boston.

PETITION OF WALTER LOGAN.

Needham, September 6, 1776.

To the honourable the Council of the Colony of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

The Petition of WALTER LOGAN, Comptroller of the Customs of PERTH-AMBOY, in NEW-JERSEY, humbly sheweth:

That your petitioner, in December last, being about to remove his family from the town of Needham (the place of their residence) to his port, his Excellency General Washington was pleased to order him to remain within the said town on his parole of honour, and afterwards did refer his condition to the determination of the authority of your Colony. That the office of your petitioner having now ceased, he is deprived of his subsistence, which reduces him and his family to very distressing circumstances. He therefore prays your Honours will be pleased to permit him, his wife and son, to return to Britain, and to grant him such liberty as may be necessary, in the mean time, to prepare for his voyage. And your petitioner will ever pray.

WALTER LOGAN.

In Council, September 6, 1776.

Read, and Ordered, That the prayer of the within Petitioner be so far granted that the said Walter Logan, wife, and son, may have liberty to depart this State in the first vessel licensed by this Board; and that he have liberty to prepare for his voyage.

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

PETITION OF NATHANIEL BARSTOW AND DANIEL WHITMORE.

To the honourable Council and the honourable House of Representatives of the State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, in General Court assembled:

The Petition of NATHANIEL BARSTOW and DANIEL WHITMORE, of SUNDERLAND, in the County of HAMPSHIRE, humbly sheweth:

Whereas there is a great scarcity of gunpowder in this part of the State, and people cannot obtain necessary supplies thereof at this important crisis, and there being considerable quantity of saltpetre manufactured in these parts, your petitioners apprehending that it would be advantageous to the publick, and serve the publick cause, to have the saltpetre made in these parts manufactured into gunpowder amongst us, one of us has taken pains to acquaint himself with the mystery of manufacturing the same, and has attained it, so that he has already made about forty weight of what is esteemed excellent good gunpowder; and we have begun to erect a Powder-Mill by the assistance of Mr. Cunable, who says it may be ready to go in about three weeks. Your petitioners therefore humbly pray that your Honours would be graciously pleased to grant unto them the privilege of manufacturing what saltpetre is made in these parts into gunpowder for the use of the estate, on the terms that it is manufactured at the other Powder-Mills in the said State, and also appoint some meet person or persons to purchase and receive said saltpetre, and also to dispose of such gunpowder as shall be made therewith. And in duty bound, will ever pray.

NATHL. BARSTOW,
DANIEL WHITMORE.

Sunderland, September 6, Anno Domini 1776.

PETITION OF ANNE TWEEDIE.

State of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

To the honourable the Council of the said State:

The Petition of ANNE TWEEDIE, GEORGE KEYS, MAIN-SWEETE WALDRON, PHILIP HICKS, and CHARLES GRANT, lately from the Island of ANTIGUA, humbly sheweth:

That the said George Keys was lately master and part owner of a certain ship called the Nancy, bound from the said Island of Antigua to London, laden with sugars, the property of inhabitants in the said Island. That the said ship was made capture of by the brigantine privateer called the Hancock, from Philadelphia, commanded by Wingate Newman, which said ship was brought into Newport, in the said State of Massachusetts-Bay. That some of your petitioners have the nearest and dearest connexions in England, who are entirely dependent upon them for maintenance; that others of your petitioners have private important business in England, concerning themselves only, which cannot be transacted without their presence there; that your petitioners are so unhappily circumstanced that they are unprovided with means by which they may support themselves in this country. That your petitioners are residents, and have property in the said Island of Antigua, but have taken no part in the present unhappy war between Great Britain and the United States of America. Your petitioners therefore humbly pray that your Honours will take their unfortunate case into consideration, and grant your petitioners and their three servants lately from Antigua, leave to depart from this State to some part of Europe, in the ship lately purchased by William Ross, or in any other vessel bound to Europe, or the West-Indies. And your petitioners shall ever pray, &c.

PHILIP HICKS for ANNE TWEEDIE,
GEORGE KEYS,
MAINSWETE WALROUD,
PHILIP HICKS,
CHS. GRANT.

In Council, September 7, 1776.

Read, and Ordered, That the prayer of this Petition be granted, and the several petitioners be permitted to depart from this State to any part of Great Britain, in such vessel as William Ross and Nathaniel Morgan, who lately had liberty to depart granted them by this Board, may purchase for this purpose. JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

Resolve relative to the Adjournment of a Maritime Court at POWNALBOROUGH; passed SEPTEMBER 6, 1776.

On the Petition of Ichabod Jones,

Resolved, That the prayer of this Petition be so far granted that the Maritime Court for the Eastern District of this State, to be holden at Pownalborough, on the 9th of this instant, in order to try the justice of the captures of two Vessels taken from the petitioner, be adjourned to the first day of October next, in order that the petitioner, by an attorney, may show cause, if any he has, why the said Vessels should not be condemned. And the petitioner, by his attorney, has liberty to file his claim with the Judge of the said Maritime Court to the said Vessels and Appurtenances, at any time before the said first day of October next, and that the Judge of said Court be notified thereof, by being served with a copy of this order.

PETITION OF ELISHA HEDGE.

To the honourable Council and House of Representatives of the State of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, in General Court assembled:

The Petition of ELISHA HEDGE, of MARLBOROUGH, in the County of MIDDLESEX, in said State, most humbly shows:

That in consequence of a late resolve of the honourable Continental Congress giving full liberty and approbation to all persons in the American States to buy and sell the article of tea, your petitioner, about the 1st of July last past, sent forty pounds lawful money to one Mr. Jonathan Danford, of Hardwick, in order for the said Danford to purchase a quantity of tea for your petitioner; which tea the said Danford did actually purchase, and brought the said tea to Hardwick aforesaid, for your petitioner; but when your petitioner applied for the said tea, the Committee of Correspondence for the aforesaid town of Hardwick had seized the said tea and all the rest of the said Danford's estate which they could find, without ever convening the said Danford before them, to give him any hearing in his own defence, or even without proving any crime against him whatever; all which proceedings of the said Committee are directly contrary to the resolves of the Congress aforesaid; and supposing the said Committee had ever so good a right to seize the said Danford's estate in manner as aforesaid, surely they have no right to withhold and detain the property of your petitioner in their custody. Therefore your petitioner humbly prays your Honours to take his case into your consideration, and give him some directions how he shall proceed, in order to obtain his property aforesaid out of the hands of the aforesaid Committee, as said Committee have refused to let the aforesaid tea go out of their hands, but unjustly detain it in their own custody, greatly to the damage of your petitioner. All which is humbly submitted. And as your petitioner, in duty bound, shall ever pray.

ELISHA HEDGE.

Marlborough, September the 7th, 1776.

The Committee on the Petition of Elisha Hedge have attended that service, and beg leave to report that this petitioner have leave to withdraw his Petition.

PETITION OF JOHN CODMAN.

State of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

To the honourable the Council and honourable House of Representatives, in General Court assembled:

The Petition of JOHN CODMAN, of BOSTON, humbly sheweth:

That your petitioner, with several other owners of the schooner Langdon, mounting six carriage-guns and ten swivels, now fitting out to cruise against the enemies of these United States, and said schooner having every necessary equipment but the article of gunpowder, and for want of which she is unable to proceed on her cruise, your petitioner therefore humbly prays that your Honours would grant him permission to purchase five hundred weight of gunpowder out of the publick store belonging to this State, and for which he will immediately pay the money. And, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

JOHN CODMAN.

PETITION OF JOSEPH SPRAGUE AND SAMUEL WARD.

To the honourable Council and House of Representatives of the State of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

The Petition of the subscribers humbly sheweth:

That your petitioners have, at a great expense, fixed out as a privateer the schooner Dolphin, Samuel Waters commander, whom the honourable Council have commissioned, with eight swivel-guns and twenty-five men, to cruise on the enemies of the United States of America. To effect said purposes, your petitioners humbly pray that the honourable Court will grant them sixty pounds of gunpowder, they paying for the same such a sum as the honourable Court shall think proper. And your petitioners, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

JOSEPH SPRAGUE.
SAM. WARD.

PETITION OF ISAAC COLLYER.

To the honourable the General Court of the State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, now assembled at WATERTOWN:

The Petition of JOHN COLLYER, of MARBLEHEAD, humbly sheweth:

That your petitioner with sundry others are fitting out an armed vessel on a four months' cruise against our unnatural enemies, to carry twelve carriage-guns and one hundred men, Nathaniel Leech commander, and as it is difficult if not impracticable to procure ammunition, beg your Honours would be pleased to order the Commissioners of this Colony to deliver your petitioner one thousand pounds of gunpowder, he paying for the same. And your petitioner, as in duty bound, shall ever pray, &c.

ISAAC COLLYER.

Resolve for the payment of Wages and Rations to JEREMIAH COLBURN and SAMUEL LOW; passed SEPTEMBER 7, 1776.

On the Petition of Jeremiah Colburn and Samuel Low,
Resolved, That there be paid out of the Treasury of this State to the above petitioners, the same Wages and Rations as were allowed to the other soldiers of Captain Lane's Company, viz: six dollars per month, and seven pence half penny per day, each, for rations, amounting in the whole to sixteen pounds and eleven shillings each.

Resolve relative to building a Barrack on the GURNET; passed SEPTEMBER 7, 1776.

Resolved, That William Watson, Esq., the Commissary for the supply of the Troops doing duty for this State at Plymouth, be and he hereby is empowered and directed as soon as may be, to provide materials and build a Barrack upon the Gurnet in Plymouth harbour, sufficient to contain one hundred men.

SEPTEMBER 7, 1776.

On the Petition of Thomas Nicholson,
Resolved, That William Watson, Esq., deliver unto the petitioner, Thomas Nicholson, two four-Pounders and six Swivels, that belonged to the Brig Rising-Empire, he delivering to the said Watson a bond with sufficient sureties, payable to the Treasurer of this State, that he will deliver two four-Pounders and six Swivels of equal goodness with those hereby ordered to be delivered, within ten days from this day; and also, that the said Watson deliver to the said Nicholson two hundred pounds of Gunpowder belonging to said brig, he paying the sum of six shillings a pound for the same.

Resolve on Captain JOHN PARKER's Muster-Roll; passed
SEPTEMBER 7, 1776.

Whereas, by a Resolve of this Court of the 28th of June last, the sum of £13 11s. 6d., was made payable out of the Treasury of this State to Captain John Parker, for the use of the officers and soldiers of a company of men lately commanded by said Parker, and it having been made to appear to this Court that the said Parker was deceased before the passing said Resolve: Therefore,

Resolved, That there be allowed and paid out of the publick Treasury of this State to John Bridge, Lieutenant of said Company, the above-said sum of £13 11s. 6d., for the use of the officers and soldiers borne on the muster-roll of said Company, made up and attested to by said Bridge, in full of said roll; and that the warrant that was drawn by this Court on the Treasurer, for the above-said sum, in favour of said Parker, be stayed in the Secretary's office.

Field-Officers for the BOSTON Regiment chosen.

The House made choice, by ballot, of the following gentlemen, as Field-Officers for the Boston Regiment of Militia, in the County of Suffolk: Henry Bromfield, Colonel; Thomas Dawes, Lieutenant-Colonel; Ephraim May, First Major; William Dawes, Second Major.

Concurred by Council, September 7, 1776.

An Adjutant chosen for the Fourth Regiment of Militia, in the County of MIDDLESEX.

The House made choice, by ballot, of Daniel Loring, as an Adjutant of the Fourth Regiment of Militia, in the County of Middlesex.

Concurred by Council, September 7, 1776.

PETITION OF WILLIAM SPOONER AND OTHERS.

State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:
To the honourable Council of said State, sitting at WATERTOWN, SEPTEMBER 9, 1776:

William Spooner, Stephen Bruce, and Daniel Martin, agents for themselves and for Richard Gridley, Paul Dudley Sargent, Henry Newman, Benjamin Wormell, Benjamin Bird, and Edward Church, all of Boston, of the schooner Viper, represent to your Honours, that they have, at their joint and proper expense of the said owners, fitted out, armed, manned, and equipped, the aforesaid schooner, now lying in the harbour of Boston, and ready for the sea; burthened about seventy tons, to be navigated by fifty men, mounting six carriage-guns, four-pounders, eight swivels, and other implements of war, and provided with thirty barrels of beef and pork, four thousand weight of bread, and forty butts of water, together with five hundred weight of powder, and twelve hundred weight of shot, and to be commanded by the aforesaid Benjamin Wormell as Captain, Joseph Lovace as First Lieutenant, Alexander Martin as Second Lieutenant, as Master, John Martin as Gunner, Josiah Levett as Surgeon; for the purpose of cruising on the enemies of the United States of America, and their property. They therefore make this application to your Honours for a commission for the said schooner, the said Benjamin Wormell, in the bond herewith exhibited, having complied with the requisitions of the honourable Congress, in such case made and provided. And, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

WILLIAM SPOONER,
DANIEL MARTIN,
STEPHEN BRUCE, } Agents.

FIFTH SERIES.—VOL. II.

In Council, September 9, 1776.

Read, and Ordered, That the prayer of this Petition be granted, and that a Commission be issued to the said Benjamin Wormell, as Commander of the schooner called the Viper, he complying with the resolves of Congress.

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

PETITION OF ELIZABETH FENTON.

State of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:
To the honourable Council now sitting at WATERTOWN:
The Petition of ELIZABETH FENTON, of CHARLESTOWN, humbly sheweth:

That as the circumstances of publick affairs render it impracticable for your petitioner to have any communication with, or receive any kind of assistance from, her husband, who is now in England; and your petitioner understanding that Mr. Ross has lately obtained liberty to depart this State, and has purchased a vessel for this purpose, your petitioner therefore prays your Honours' leave that she may be permitted, with her children and a negro girl, to take passage in said vessel. And, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

In behalf of my sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Fenton, NATHANIEL DOWSE.

In Council, September 9, 1776.

Read, and Ordered, That the prayer of the Petition be granted, and the said Petitioner, with her Children and Servant, be permitted to depart from this State to any part of Great Britain in such Vessel as Mr. William Ross and Nathaniel Morgan, who lately had liberty obtained to depart, may purchase for that purpose.

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

PETITION OF THOMAS MELVILLE.

State of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:
To the honourable the General Court of said State:
The Petition of THOMAS MELVILLE, of BOSTON, in the County of SUFFOLK, in behalf of himself and the other owners of the armed Schooner SPEEDWELL, now riding at anchor in the Harbour of BOSTON aforesaid, commanded by JONATHAN GREELEY, humbly shews:

That they have, at a great expense, equipped and fitted said schooner with her carriage-guns, and every necessary warlike implement for a cruise against the enemies of the American States, but for the want of about seven hundred pounds of powder, said schooner is detained in the harbour, and unable to proceed on her intended cruise. Your petitioner, therefore, in behalf of himself and the said owners of said schooner, humbly prays your Honours to take the premises into your wise consideration, and grant him a supply of seven hundred pounds' weight of powder, for the use of said schooner against the said enemies of said States, out of the publick stores or magazines of this State, at such price, or on such conditions, as to your Honours may seem fit. And your petitioner, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

THOMAS MELVILLE.

PETITION OF THE COMMITTEE OF ROCHESTER.

To the honourable the Great and General Court or Assembly of the Colony of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:
MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOURS:

The Committee of Correspondence and Inspection for the town of Rochester, being directed by your Honours to inform of all persons whose conduct is unfriendly to the cause of the Colonies, &c., said Committee beg leave to name Samuel Sprague, who was one of the addressors of the late Governour Hutchinson, but did, some time after, subscribe a declaration, manifesting his repentance and retraction of said Address, and also his abhorrence of the Quebeck Bill, and the Act of Parliament for blocking up the Port of Boston, &c., which confession and retraction was to the general satisfaction of the town. But the said Sprague hath since retracted his former confession and repentance, and manifests a disposition unfriendly to America, as it appears to us by the enclosed depositions; and the said Samuel did, before the Committee, on the 7th of June last, declare that he was not convinced of the justice of the cause of the Colonies, and that he utterly refused to take up arms, or be any ways personally active in the defence of the common cause of the Colonies.

By order of the Committee, &c.,

ISRAEL SNOW, Chairman.

Rochester, September 9, 1776.

To the Hon. the Speaker of the House of Representatives.

I, the subscriber, do testify and declare that I lately heard Samuel Sprague, Esq., say, in his own house, he was sorry that he signed a retraction of the Address to Governor Hutchinson, and that, if it were to do again, he should not do it.

STEPHEN BARDEN.

Rochester, June 21, 1776.

PLYMOUTH, ss., June 21, 1776:

The above-named Stephen Bardin appeared and made oath that the above deposition is the truth.

Sworn before DAVID WING, Justice of Peace.

I, the subscriber, testify and declare that, in conversation with Mr. Samuel Sprague, I heard him declare that he did believe the Quebeck bill complained of to be just, and was enacted to fulfill a former contract.

JAMES COWING.

Rochester, June the 21, 1776.

I, the subscriber, heard Samuel Sprague say, in regard to his signing a recantor for addressing Governor Hutchinson, he did that which was wrong, and that he did it for to save his life, and, had it been in matters of religion, he looked on it he ought to resist even to bloodshed.

JOHN BURGESS.

Rochester, June 21, 1776.

PLYMOUTH, ss., June 21, 1776:

The above-named John Burges appeared and made oath that the above deposition by him subscribed is the truth.

Sworn before DAVID WING, Justice of Peace.

I, the subscriber, being called upon by the Committee of Correspondence for the town of Rochester to declare what I heard Samuel Sprague say relative to the Quebeck bill, do testify and declare that the said Samuel did, in my hearing, plead up for and justify the said bill, as being just and equitable, and nothing more than a ratification of a former treaty, and that he could see no ill consequences attending the same.

JABEZ COTTLE.

Rochester, June the 21st, 1776.

PLYMOUTH, ss., June 21, 1776:

The within-named Jabez Cottle appeared and made oath that the within deposition, by him subscribed, is the truth.

Sworn before DAVID WING, Justice of Peace.

PETITION OF DAVID KEMP.

State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

To the honourable the Council and House of Representatives of this State in General Court assembled at WATER-TOWN, SEPTEMBER, 1776:

The Petition of DAVID KEMP, of GROTON, in the County of MIDDLESEX, humbly sheweth:

That your petitioner's son, David Kemp, Jun., a minor, under the age of twenty-one years, enlisted himself into his country's service in April, 1775, in Captain Joshua Parker's Company, in Colonel William Prescott's Regiment, and served there as a private until the 17th of June, 1775, and was in the battle at Bunker-Hill; was there taken captive and carried into Boston, and remained there till the British troops left Boston last March, at which time he was carried off with them to Halifax, and there remained a prisoner with Lieutenant Scott until the 13th of June last, when said Scott came off. Your petitioner would represent to your Honours that Captain Parker made up your petitioner's son no longer than to the 17th of June, 1775, that your petitioner has received no wages for his said son's service but what was allowed in said Captain Parker's roll. Your petitioner is poor and very needy; therefore desires your Honours would take the subject-matter of this petition into your wise consideration, and allow him the wages for his son to this time, or such part of the time as your Honours shall think fit. And as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

DAVID KEMP.

This certifies, that Lieutenant Scott, of Peterboro, who was taken prisoner by the King's troops on the 17th of June, 1775, married my wife's sister, and told me since his return from Halifax that David Kemp, Jun., of Groton, was taken prisoner with him at the same time and carried to Boston, and there confined in gaol until the town was evacuated, and then he and said Kemp were carried to Halifax in irons, and confined in the gaol there until he broke out, that he parted with said Kemp, but was informed by a deserter that they had retaken said Kemp, and carried him back to the gaol again; said Lieutenant Scott said also that he had heard the same about said Kemp from divers other persons.

ISAAC WOODS.

Groton, September 9, 1776.

David Kemp, son of David Kemp and Hannah his wife, was born at Groton, January 25, 1758.

A true copy from the Town book, page 119.

Attest: OLIVER PRESCOTT, Town Clerk.

The Committee on the within Petition beg leave to report that the petitioner have leave to withdraw said Petition.

Resolve for the payment of Captain DODGE's Roll; passed SEPTEMBER 9, 1776.

PETITION OF THOMAS HARRIS.

To the honourable the Council and the honourable the House of Representatives for the State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, in General Court assembled at WATERTOWN, SEPTEMBER 9, 1776:

The Petition of THOMAS HARRIS, of BOSTON, in the County of SUFFOLK, in behalf of himself and others, owners of the Schooner AMERICA, now lying at NEW-MEADOWS, humbly sheweth:

That your petitioners are preparing the said schooner for a privateer, to cruise against the enemies of the United American States, but find it impossible to purchase powder sufficient for the purpose of private persons. They would therefore humbly pray that your Honours would give orders that they may receive out of the publick magazine of this State seven hundred pounds weight of gunpowder, for the purpose aforesaid, they paying the customary price for the same.

And your petitioners, as in duty bound, shall ever pray,
&c. THOMAS HARRIS.

PETITION OF NATHANIEL LEECH.

State of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

To the honourable Council now sitting in WATERTOWN.
The Petition of NATHANIEL LEECH, and others, of MARBLEHEAD, in the County of ESSEX, humbly sheweth:

That your petitioner and others, owners of the sloop called the Polly, burthen about ninety-three tons, armed with twelve carriage-guns, eighteen swivel-guns, and thirty muskets, navigated by one hundred men, Nathaniel Leech Commander, John Dixey Second Lieutenant, Isaac Colyar First Lieutenant, Samuel Green Master, all of Marblehead, has on board as provisions eighty barrels of beef and pork, ten thousand weight of bread, and other stores in proportion. Said sloop is designed to cruise against the enemies of these United States.

Your petitioner would therefore humbly pray your Honours to commission the said sloop and Commander for the purpose before mentioned.

And your petitioner, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.
NATHANIEL LEECH & Co.

In Council, September 10, 1776.

Read, and Ordered, That a Commission be issued out to the above-mentioned Nathaniel Leech, agreeable to the prayer of the petition, he complying with the resolves of Congress.

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

PETITION OF JEDEDIAH PREBLE, JUN.

To the honourable Council and to the honourable House of Representatives, in General Court assembled at WATERTOWN, in the State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, SEPTEMBER 10, 1776.

The Petition of JEDEDIAH PREBLE, Jun., and JEREMIAH COLBURN, of PENOBSCOT, in behalf of themselves and inhabitants adjacent, humbly sheweth:

That your petitioners, being inhabitants up the river of Penobscot, and near adjacent to the Indian settlements, and are daily exposed to the enemy, and none but Indians to trust to. That your petitioners imagine they are not fit to be trusted alone, without some of our guards with them, which causes the inhabitants to be very uneasy for fear their settlements may be broke up. That your petitioners pray your Honours would order some guards there, to be connected with the Indians, in order to keep them from joining against us, as they are no ways to be trusted alone, would cause us to dwell much more at ease among us, and much less in fear of them. That your petitioners pray your Honours would consider their danger, and relieve them, as in your great wisdom see meet. And your petitioners, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

JEDEDIAH PREBLE, Jun.,
JEREMIAH COLBORN.

PETITION OF SHUBAEL COTTLE.

To the honourable Council and House of Representatives for the State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

SHUBAEL COTTLE, a member of this House, and Representative of the Town of Tisbury, in Dukes County, in the behalf of Nathan Smith, Captain of the First Company of sea-coast men, stationed in said Tisbury, in Dukes County aforesaid, for the defence of the said County, most humbly sheweth:

That from the encouragement given by these States to all persons to make captures of vessels belonging to the enemy employed against the United States, as also by a resolve which passed the honourable Continental Congress on the 23d of March, in 1775, respecting such matters, your petitioner begs leave to say that the above-said Captain Smith, from a principle of serving his country, and stimulated with the hopes of reward, he, with divers other persons belonging to a sea-coast company stationed on the Island of Martha's Vineyard, with some of the Militia of the same place, with three pilot-boats provided by said Smith and company, did, on the 12th day of April last past, at the risk of their lives, board, take, and bring into the port of Bedford, in this State, a certain schooner called the Volante, of about sixty tons burthen, laden with provisions and stores for the use of the fleet and army employed against the United States of America, the said schooner then being a part of said fleet, and tender to the Scarborough man-of-war, one Edward Marsh master. Your petitioner at the time of the capture did humbly conceive, after condemnation and deducting the charges incident thereto, that the vessel, cargo, and appurtenances, were to be divided among the captors; but by a resolve which passed the late General Assembly at their last session on the 23d day of April, 1775, the State thereby taking two-thirds of all such captures, and the other third to the use of the captors, your petitioner humbly suggests that should your Honours take any part of said capture by virtue of said resolve passed the 23d of April aforesaid to the use of this State, that two-thirds is by far too great a part in the opinion of your petitioner. Your petitioner, therefore, in the behalf of said Captain Smith and company, humbly prays that you would take the matter into your wise consideration; and as the State were at no expense, nor suffered not any risk for vessel's cannon, in making said capture, that your Honours would order the whole or such a part of said schooner, cargo, and appurtenances, to the use of the captors as you in your great wisdom shall think proper. And your petitioner, in duty bound, shall ever pray.

PETITION OF WILLIAM WHITING.

To the honourable Council and House of Representatives of the State of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, in General Court assembled:

Humbly sheweth WILLIAM WHITING:

That the honourable Provincial Congress of the Colony or State aforesaid, in the beginning of the year 1775, so far took the important matter of manufacturing saltpetre as to resolve that fourteen pounds per hundred should be given for all that should be manufactured in this Colony for a certain limited time, at which time your petitioner observing the profound ignorance which appeared in all ranks of people respecting the nature of this manufacture, and being anxious for the defence of his country against tyranny and vassalage, which he saw little grounds to hope for without the help of this important discovery, your petitioner then immediately set himself with the greatest solicitude to investigate the same, for which purpose he devoted himself in a great measure to the procuring and perusing the various authors who had made any mention of this manufacture, and in making experiments on the same. Soon after, viz: in the beginning of May, in the same year, your petitioner laid a short dissertation upon this subject before the honourable Provincial Congress at Watertown, showing the practicability of manufacturing saltpetre in this country, and urging the Congress to a more zealous and efficient prosecution of the same; whereupon the Congress appointed your petitioner a Committee, with orders to repair to New-York, or elsewhere, in order, if possible, to acquire sufficient knowledge for the carrying on of this important business; upon which your petitioner repaired to New-York, and from thence to Philadelphia, and returned through Rhode-Island Colony; and although in this tour your petitioner acquired several useful pieces of knowledge relative to this business, so that on his return he was able to produce some saltpetre, yet he found the true process far from being investigated, though he found encouragement and was determined vigorously to pursue the same. This being in August, and the honourable Assembly hearing of a person in Connecticut who pretended great skill in saltpetre-making, ordered your petitioner, after making some experiments at Watertown, to repair to Windsor, in Connecticut, which he did, and found the man so famed to be a vile impostor, as afterwards notoriously appeared, though your petitioner did not wholly lose his labour, having acquired some additional knowledge from two persons who were endeavouring to carry on the business, although they afterwards failed. Your petitioner after his return from Connecticut continued to make experiments at Watertown, with but ordinary success, until November, when he was ordered again to Connecticut on the Assembly having received intelligence of some new discoveries being made there in the process of saltpetre-making; and from Connecticut your petitioner was ordered to repair to Newburyport, there to join Deacon Baker, Captain Peck, and Mr. Fips, who were also of the Saltpetre Committee, and there to pursue making experiments until the 15th of December. Your petitioner again repaired to Connecticut, but instead of finding encouragement, he found the persons who had been famed for carrying on this business with success wholly discouraged and just quitting the business, having worked one hundred and twenty cart-loads of earth, and had procured seventy pounds of saltpetre only. This ill-success of their's shocked your petitioner with discouragement and filled his breast with the greatest anxiety, being strongly impressed at that time with an opinion that except a sufficient quantity of that important article of defence could be procured among ourselves our country must be lost. He was, however, so far from giving over the pursuit, that he then determined either to make the important discovery or spend his life in the cause. In his long journey from Windsor to Newburyport, your petitioner, with anxious days and sleepless nights, recollected and considered every thing he had ever read, heard of, or experienced, relative to this process, and by the time he arrived at Newburyport he was so happy as to have determined upon a method which in theory promised him certain success. When your petitioner arrived at Newburyport he found his worthy brethren of the Committee drooping and almost discouraged. They had worked twelve or fifteen loads of earth and had produced but six or eight pounds of saltpetre; they had boiled down the liquor from about seventy bushels of earth, which appeared very strong, but could get no saltpetre from it. On a small quantity of this liquor your petitioner made trial of his new projected process, and in a short time produced a proportionably large quantity of saltpetre from it, to his very great satisfaction. He then repeated the trial on the remaining liquor, with equal success. He then continued for several days making small experiments, until he had reduced the process to a certain system; after which he proceeded to model those works agreeable to his new process, and then went on to make about eight or ten pounds a day for a number of days without the least difficulty; after which your petitioner, having been repeatedly solicited, returned to Rowley, where he, with some small conveniences, made fifty weight of saltpetre in five days; from thence he returned to Watertown, where he was ordered to publish his new process. Soon after which large quantities of saltpetre was made in various parts of the Colony, to the great satisfaction of every true patriot.

Your petitioner begs leave to say that in the foregoing narration he has not arrogated to himself more of the credit of this valuable discovery than what truth and justice warrants him to do; and although sundry persons have made variations and improvements upon this process since its first publication, yet all of them have been merely circumstantial, and none of them essential.

And your petitioner begs leave further to inform your Honours, that during the long time he was pursuing this important discovery, he was necessitated almost wholly to neglect the business of his profession, the only means he has had of supporting an helpless and expensive family; and since he has been released from publick employment in this business, much of his time has been taken up in giving instructions to people who have applied to him for that purpose. Your petitioner also finds to his grief that great numbers of his former customers have been obliged, in his absence, to apply themselves to other physicians, and have become so attached to them as not to return to him again, in consequence of which his business as a physician is greatly lessened. He could also demonstrate that the wages he has already received for those services, have not been more than sufficient to defray his own personal expenses. From all which your petitioner is humbly of opinion that the honourable Court will judge him entitled to some greater reward, though he is sensible this is no time for the publick to lavish out its bounties in great rewards for services, and he is conscious that the ultimate end he had in view was the salvation of his country. He would not, however, suffer himself to be so far swallowed up in patriotism, as to incur St. Paul's anathema, viz: "He that provides not for his own household has denied the faith, and is worse than an infidel."

Your petitioner therefore humbly prays that your Honours would take this matter under your wise consideration, and make him such further allowance for his services and sufferings, as to your Honours shall seem meet. And, as he ought, shall ever pray.

WM. WHITING.

Watertown, September the 10, 1776.

Resolve for the sale of Powder to THOMAS HARRIS; passed SEPTEMBER 10, 1776.

On the Petition of Thomas Harris,

Resolved, That the Commissary-General be, and he is hereby directed to deliver out of the store of this State, or order the same to be delivered out of the Powder-Mill in Andover, five hundred pounds of Gunpowder to Thomas Harris, he, the said Harris, paying six shillings per pound for the same to the Commissary-General. He, the said Commissary, to be accountable for the money so received.

Resolve for supplying Doctor WATTS with Medicines, &c.; passed SEPTEMBER 10, 1776.

Resolved, That there be paid to Doctor Edward Watts, out of the Treasury of this State, the sum of eighteen pounds, to purchase Medicines for the benefit of the sea-coast men stationed at Falmouth, in the County of Cumberland; he, the said Doctor Watts forthwith to lodge an account of the expenditure of said money in the Secretary's office, therein setting forth the quantity and price of each medicine severally, and account with this Court for the same whenever called upon therefor.

And it is further Resolved, That the aforesaid Doctor Watts be allowed at the rate of six pounds per month as a Surgeon for the aforesaid sea-coast men, until the last day of December next, unless sooner duly discharged by order of this Court.

Sundry Resolves for paying Militia, raising Men, &c., passed in consequence of a message from the Council, SEPTEMBER 10, 1776.

Resolved, That the guard which did duty at Hull last winter, be paid wages and billeting, agreeable to establishment made for the men raised in this State for the defence of the sea-coast.

Resolved, That three Companies of fifty men, each, including officers, be raised to augment the Regiment of Artillery, now under the command of Colonel Crafts.

Resolved, That the Militia which have been called in to duty since March last, (excepting those lately called in on the Continental establishment,) be paid wages and billeting, agreeable to establishment made for the Regiments under the command of the Colonels Whitney and Marshall.

Resolved, That there be paid to the Hon. Benjamin Lincoln, Esq., the sum of twenty-one pounds per month, for the time he served as a General Officer by appointment of the honourable Council of this State.

And it is further Resolved, That some person be appointed by this Court to take the command of the troops in the pay of this State.

Resolved, That Governor Cooke's Letter, his answer to Lord Howe, together with Lord Howe's Letter and Declaration which accompanied the message, be referred back to the honourable Board.

Resolve for the delivery of an Iron Cannon to JOSEPH HOMAN, &c., of MARBLEHEAD; passed SEPTEMBER 10, 1776.

Resolved, That the Commissary-General be, and he is hereby directed to deliver to Joseph Homan, John Gallison, and Isaac Collyer, or either of them, or their order, one piece of Iron Cannon, a four-pounder, which was taken from Marblehead the last year, for the use of this State, if it is to be found; but if not to be found, then to deliver to the persons aforesaid, any other Cannon of the same dimensions, if such there be.

Resolve respecting Deserters from the Northern Army; passed SEPTEMBER 10, 1776.

Resolved, That the several Returns of Colonel Patterson, Colonel Bond, Colonel Greaton, and Colonel Porter's Regiments, describing the several persons Deserters from each of said Regiments, with this resolve, be printed and sent to the Committees of Correspondence, Inspection and Safety of each town in this State. And the said Committees are directed to make a strict search and inquiry after such Deserters as described in said Returns; and, upon finding any of said Deserters, to take care and secure them in the common Gaol of the County, in order that they may be forthwith returned to their several Regiments. And the Committees aforesaid are enjoined to take special care, and use their best endeavours to take up, and confine as aforesaid, any other person or persons who have enlisted into the publick service, that have or may hereafter leave the Army, or the Regiments to which they belong, before the time of their enlistment is out, unless they can show a regular discharge or furlough from his or their superiour officer. And the said Committees are enjoined to make returns of their doings hereon, as soon as may be, to the Secretary of this State. And all necessary charges attending the securing such Deserters, shall be paid out of the Treasury of this State, and shall be deducted out of the said Deserters' wages.

Resolve for raising one-fifth part of the Militia of this State, to reinforce the Army at NEW-YORK; passed SEPTEMBER 10, 1776.

Whereas it has been represented to the General Court of this State, by the honourable the Governour of the State of Connecticut, that it is of the utmost importance to the United States of America to have a large body of troops stationed above the Island of New-York, to prevent the British Army's cutting off the communication between the American Army at the City and Island of New-York, and the country. And whereas the honourable Congress, in consequence of an application made to them by his Excellency General Washington, in the present critical state of our affairs, have since called upon the Government, in the most pressing terms, immediately to send all the aid in our power to the Army at New-York; this Court, being sensible that the safety, freedom, and future happiness of America depend upon, and pressingly demand, a vigorous and manly management of this campaign, and well considering that, while all that is dear to this people is at stake, they should be chargeable with great remissness if they did not exercise the powers with which they are vested by this State for its salvation, at this critical moment, by sending such reinforcement to the Army at New-York as the exigency of the case requires. And whereas the Militia of this State within the Counties of York, Cumberland, and Lincoln, are too remote to march to the timely aid of the Army; and whereas the situation of the Counties of Nantucket and Dukes County, the towns of Boston, Dartmouth, Plymouth, Salem, Marblehead, Gloucester, Manchester, Beverly, and Newburyport, render it unfit for any part of the Militia to be drafted from them at present, it is

Resolved, That one-fifth part of the Militia of this State, not now in actual service by sea or land, excepting those of the towns and counties above named, be ordered, by the major part of the Council, to march immediately, under the command of such General officer as shall be appointed by the General Court, and commissioned by the Council, to command them, to remain and continue in the service within the four New-England Governments, the State of New-York, or the Jerseys, until they are recalled by the General Court of this State, the House of Representatives, or the major part of the Council, under such regulations, and upon such establishment, as is hereinafter provided.

And that the said fifth part of said Militia may march without delay, it is

Resolved, That the major part of the Council make out their order in writing to Major-General Warren, commanding him that he immediately order the Brigadiers of the several Counties of Suffolk, Essex, Middlesex, Worcester, Hampshire, Plimouth, Barnstable, Bristol, and Berkshire to cause the Militia, as well of the Alarm List, as Training Band of their respective Brigades, to be mustered without delay, excepting those in the towns above excepted; and that they cause to be drafted therefrom, when so mustered, every fifth able-bodied man of the non-commissioned officers and private soldiers, under fifty years of age, except the officers and students of Harvard College, grammar-school masters, and persons necessarily employed in the manufacture of gunpowder, not exceeding four to each powder-mill, and armed with a good firelock, bullet-pouch, and powder-horn, or cartridge-box, a bayonet, cutlass, or hatchet, and twenty bullets fitted to their gun, with a knapsack and blanket, to march to the reinforcement of the Army as aforesaid; and that they form those so drafted into Companies of sixty-four men each, including non-commissioned officers, or as nigh thereto as they conveniently can; and that the said Brigades, from the officers of their respective Brigades, order one Captain and two Lieutenants to take the command of each of said Companies; and that said Brigadiers shall form such Companies as are raised and drafted from their respective Brigades, not amounting to sixteen, into one Regiment; and where they do amount to that number of Companies or upwards, into two; and, to each Regiment so formed, assign or order from the field-officers of such Brigade, one Colonel, one Lieutenant-Colonel, and one Major, to command said Regiments; and the officers of said detachment of the Militia drafted as aforesaid, shall have, while in said service, the same relative rank with each other as they now have.

And it is further Resolved, That if any person of the Alarm List or Train Band, non-commissioned officer or soldier, shall, after being duly warned thereto, neglect to appear upon such muster designed for drafting as aforesaid, he shall forfeit and pay the sum of ten pounds, one half thereof to the use of this State, and the other half to the person who shall sue for the same, by action of debt, in any Court proper to try the same. And if any person so drafted shall refuse to march upon being ordered thereto, not having a sufficient excuse therefor, and shall not procure some able-bodied and effective man to go in his stead, or shall absent or conceal himself, so that his officer cannot find him to give him marching orders, he shall, for either of the said offences, pay a fine not exceeding ten pounds, or be committed to prison not exceeding two months, upon his being convicted thereof, on indictment or presentment therefor by the Grand Jury for the County where the offence shall be committed, before any Court proper to try the same, whose duty it shall be to make a presentment thereof.

And it is likewise Resolved, That the said detachment of Militia shall, while out of this Government, be under the general command of the Commander-in-Chief of the Continental Army, and shall be under the laws and regulations provided by the Congress for said Army.

And it is further Resolved, That the pay and allowance of provision for said detachment shall be every way the same as that allowed the Continental Army.

And it is likewise Resolved, That the Selectmen of each town from whence any part of said detachment shall be drafted, shall be, and hereby are directed and empowered to procure as many teams or other conveyances within their respective towns, as shall be sufficient to carry the baggage of the said fifth part of the Militia, to Fairfield, in Connecticut, in the most expeditious manner. And the said Selectmen are also directed to furnish said men with kettles and canteens, and also to pay each man one penny for each mile from the place they march from to the place of their destination, to support themselves, and to render an account of those expenditures to the General Court for allowance and payment.

And it is also Resolved, That the Brigadier of each County shall appoint one Chaplain, one Surgeon and Mate, one Adjutant, and one Quartermaster, to each Regiment that shall be so drafted from his Brigade; and the General officer appointed to command the detachment shall appoint a Brigade-Major to each Brigade.

And it is also Resolved, That each Brigadier-General, as soon as the men are drafted and formed into Companies, be, and hereby is directed to order them to march to Horseneck, subject, however, to such further orders as they may receive from the General Court of this State, the House of Representatives, or the major part of the Council, or the orders of the General and Commander-in-Chief of the Continental Army.

And it is Resolved, That in the absence of any Brigadier of any County, the next officer in command in said Brigade shall be held to do the duty assigned to the Brigadier, and shall be obeyed accordingly.

And it is also Resolved, That the Commissary-General of this State be, and hereby is directed to send forward immediately to New-Haven, such quantities of ammunition as this Court shall order.

PETITION OF ETHAN COMPSTOCK.

To the honourable the Council and House of Representatives of the State of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, in NEW-ENGLAND.

The Petition of ETHAN COMPSTOCK, Second Lieutenant in the DILIGENT schooner-of-war, Captain JOHN LAMBERT, Commander, and JOSHUA WING, Master of said schooner, humbly sheweth:

That your petitioners have been in the service of the State nearly six months, have made several cruises, but all of them unsuccessful, by which they have not been able to supply themselves with any of the necessaries of life, and your petitioners are now reduced to such a situation (not having as yet received any wages) as obliges them to petition your Honours for some relief.

And your petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray,
ETHAN COMPSTOCK,
JOSHUA WING.

Boston, September 11, 1776.

Resolve for paying SAMUEL FREEMAN, Esq., Clerk of the House, £120; passed SEPTEMBER 11, 1775.

Resolved, That there be allowed and paid out of the Treasury of this State to Samuel Freeman, Esq., the sum of £120, for his services as Clerk to the House of Representatives the last year, and to enable him to satisfy others who may have assisted in said service, or officiated as Clerk in his stead during that time, and the further sum of £19 10s., paid by him to sundry persons for copying resolves, &c., by which means the said Clerk was better enabled to carry on the business of his said office.

Resolve for paying WEMYSS ORROCK £100; passed SEPTEMBER 11, 1776.

On the Petition of Wemyss Orrock,

Resolved, That Edward Pope, Esq., the Colony Agent at Dartmouth, be, and he is hereby empowered and directed to pay to the petitioner £100, out of the Colony's part of the ship and cargo, of which the petitioner was late master, if so much there be belonging to this State; if not, whatever is the Colony's proportion of said expense.

Resolve for procuring Couriers; passed SEPTEMBER 11, 1776.

Whereas it is of the utmost importance that at this critical situation of our publick and military affairs the most early intelligence should be obtained from the several quarters where our Troops are employed: Therefore,

Resolved, That Brigadier Palmer, Captain Brown, of Watertown, and Major Osgood, be, and hereby are appointed a committee to engage suitable persons as Couriers for this service, upon such terms as they shall judge proper.

MEMORIAL OF JOHN JONES.

To the honourable Council and honourable House of Representatives of the State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, in General Court assembled:

The Memorial of JOHN JONES, in behalf of the Committee of Correspondence, Inspection, and Safety, of the Town of HOPKINTON, humbly sheweth:

That on the 24th day of June last, the Sheriff of the County of Middlesex did order to the said Committee of the Town of Hopkinton, seven officers on parole, and four waiters as prisoners, to be supported by said town; that said Committee have already expended a very considerable sum of money in their support, and are not in a capacity to support them any longer, unless they can be reimbursed their past expenses. Therefore prays your Honours would take their case into your consideration, and grant them such release as you shall direct. And your petitioner, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

JOHN JONES,

In behalf of the Committee of Hopkinton.

Watertown, September 12, 1776.

MEMORIAL OF JEREMIAH COLBURN.

To the honourable Council and to the honourable House of Representatives, in General Court assembled at WATERTOWN, in the State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, the 12th day of SEPTEMBER, Anno Domini 1776.

The Memorial of JEREMIAH COLBURN, of PENOBSCOT, humbly sheweth:

That your memorialist would inform your Honours upon your appointing twenty men, together with ten Indians, as a guard at Penobscot, under the command of Lieutenant Andrew Gilman and myself, that your memorialist would be glad to know if your Honours would order some subsistence and ammunition for the said thirty men by your memorialist, as he is bound home on his duty. And your memorialist, as in duty bound, shall ever pray, &c.

JEREMIAH COLBURN.

Resolve appointing RICHARD DERBY, Jun., Esq., to lay claim to the Ship LORD DARTMOUTH; passed SEPTEMBER 12, 1776.

Whereas the ship named Lord Dartmouth, lying in Danvers, is libelled in the Maritime Court for the Middle District, by Bartholomew Putnam and Andrew Cabot; and whereas this Court apprehend that as said vessel was owned in Great Britain, she properly belongs to this State:

Therefore, Resolved, That the Honourable Richard Derby, Jun., Esq., be, and he is hereby appointed agent in behalf of this State, to put in and defend their claim to final judgment; and if the same shall be adjudged to this State, that he take possession thereof till the further order of this Court.

Resolve relative to the purchasing Cannon of the Town of NEWBURY-PORT; passed SEPTEMBER 12, 1776.

Whereas, the town of Newbury-Port have offered to sell to this State five pieces of Cannon, nine-pounders, at the rate of five pounds per hundred weight, and the carriages belonging to the same at the prime cost; and as it is apprehended the same may be of great use to this State for its defence:

Therefore, Resolved, That Brigadier Palmer be a Committee for purchasing the same.

Resolve for placing a Guard of thirty Men on PENOBSCOT River; passed SEPTEMBER 12, 1776.

Resolved, That a guard of thirty men, ten of them to be Indians, be placed on Penobscot River, under the direction of Andrew Gilman, and that there be appointed by this Court to command them, one Lieutenant and one Ensign, and to be on the same establishment with the men raised for the defence of the sea-coast.

Resolve relative to Vouchers of Accounts against the Continent; passed SEPTEMBER 12, 1776.

Whereas many Vouchers are lodged in the hands of the Treasurer of this State, and in the Secretary's office, that may be necessary to be produced to prove the several articles of charge to be transmitted to the Continental Congress by this State, which the Treasurer and Secretary may not think they can with propriety deliver out of their possession without the express directions of this Court: Therefore,

Resolved, That the Treasurer and Secretary be, and they hereby are severally directed to deliver unto William Story, Henry Hill, and Joseph Henderson, a Committee appointed to prepare the accounts of charges and expenses incurred by this State in the defence of American liberty, to be transmitted to the honourable the Continental Congress, they, the said Committee, making out an account of the amount of the sums, supported by the several vouchers and their date, and the names of the persons to whom any sums as aforesaid have been paid, and giving a receipt for the vouchers they shall receive, which receipt of said Committee shall be held good and effectual to discharge the Treasurer and the Secretary in as full and ample manner and sort as though the vouchers had not been delivered as aforesaid.

Resolve for supplying MARTHA'S VINEYARD with three Cannon; passed SEPTEMBER 12, 1776.

Resolved, That the Commissary-General be, and he hereby is directed to deliver to Joseph Mayhew, Esq., or order, proper apparatus for the three Cannon ordered to Martha's Vineyard, he, the said Joseph Mayhew, Esq., to be accountable to this Court for the same.

Resolve permitting Captain BARBER'S Schooner to come to the Port of BOSTON; passed SEPTEMBER 12, 1776.

Resolved, That Captain John Barber be permitted to bring his Schooner with her cargo, from Cape Ann to the Port of Boston, he taking due precaution to prevent said Schooner and cargo falling into the hands of the enemy.

PETITION OF ISAAC SNOW.

To the honourable Council sitting at WATERTOWN, in the State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, SEPTEMBER the thirteenth day, Anno Domini 1776.

The Petition of ISAAC SNOW, of HARPSWELL, in the County of CUMBERLAND, humbly sheweth:

That your petitioner has the command of a private schooner of war called the America, of ninety-eight tons burthen, mounting ten carriage-guns, eight of which are four-pounders, and two three pounders; eighteen swivel-guns, five hundred weight of powder, fifteen hundred weight of shot, thirty-five barrels pork and beef, six thousand weight of bread, belonging to Aaron Hinckley, Esq., of Brunswick, James McCobb, Esq., of George-Town, Nathaniel Purrington, Esq., and Messrs. John Snow, Joseph Linscott, Henry Merritt, Elisha Snow, and Isaac Snow, your petitioner, of Harpswell, in the County of Cumberland, in the State aforesaid; whereof Isaac Snow, of Harpswell, aforesaid, is Commander, and Benjamin Lemmount, of George-Town, in the County of Lincoln, is Lieutenant, with eighty men.

Your petitioner prays your Honours would grant him a commission to cruise against the enemies of the United States of America, and your petitioner, as in duty bound, shall every pray, &c.

ISAAC SNOW,

In behalf of himself and other owners.

In Council, September 13, 1776.

Read, and Ordered, That a Commission be issued out to the above-named Isaac Snow, as Commander of the Schooner America, he complying with the resolves of the Congress.

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

MEMORIAL OF THOMAS CRAFTS.

To the honourable the Council of the State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

Some time in June last a Scotch ship and brig were seen in the Bay by the troops stationed at Hull, standing in for the Light, and four privateers attacking them without any probable hopes of success; on this, ordered one eighteen-pounder to Point Alderton. In the dusk of the evening the vessels were between said Point and the Fort on Hull; we fired from the Fort on them; the brig struck to us, and sent her boat on shore. I sent in a claim for the vessels in the name of the State, and in behalf of myself and regiment, but recovered no part of the ship or brig. When the Queen-of-England was taken I had the same idea of the matter as before: that it was my duty to claim for the State as well as myself, accordingly gave directions to my counsel. I was afterward, to my great surprise, informed that the ship was not libelled in the name of the State, and that it was too late to correct this error. But at my request the Hon. Mr. Derby, agent for the State, had leave to enter his claim, the time by law for his doing it being elapsed notwithstanding, for I had no disposition that the State should be deprived of its just right in this vessel, neither have I now any disposition to contend if the Council are clearly of opinion that there ought to be a different disposition of said ship and cargo from that given by the court and jury.

I beg your Honours would excuse my troubling you with this matter; and believe me to be, with the greatest respect, gentlemen, your most humble servant,

THOS. CRAFTS.

SUFFOLK, ss:

At the Superiour Court of Judicature, &c., held at Brain-tree, within and for the County of Suffolk, by adjournment, on the second Tuesday of September, Anno Domini 1776,

In the case Benedict Eldridge, one of the claimants of ship Queen-of-England, appellant, vs. Caleb Hopkins et al., libellants, and Josiah Whitney, Thomas Crafts, and Thomas Marshall et al., other claimants of the same ship, cargo, and appurtenances, appellees. The jury find that the said ship Queen-of-England, was employed in carrying supplies to the fleet and army employed against the United Colonies or States of America, and being so employed, the said ship was taken at the time when, in the libel, she is said to have been taken, by the claimants Josiah Whitney, Thomas Crafts, and Thomas Marshall, and the men under their command, and Benedict Eldridge, the Pilot, and by them brought into Boston, in the County of Suffolk, and that one-fifth part of said ship, and appurtenances, and cargo, be to the use of Benedict Eldridge, and the remainder of said prize to the use of Josiah Whitney, Thomas Crafts, and the said men under their command.

JOHN ELLIS, Foreman.

September 13, 1776.—Judgment accordingly.

SAML. WINTHROP, Clerk.

Resolve directing the Commissary-General to send Ammunition to FAIRFIELD; passed SEPTEMBER 13, 1776.

Resolved, That the Commissary-General of this State be directed, as soon as may be, to send forward to Fairfield, in the State of Connecticut, for the use of the Militia of this State, this day ordered to be sent to New-York, five thousand four hundred pounds weight of imported Gunpowder, if such be in store; eleven thousand Gun Flints, and thirteen reams of paper fit for Musket Cartridges, with thread proper and sufficient for the same, and five thousand four hundred pounds weight of leaden Balls of different sizes, there to be distributed under the care of such person as shall be appointed by the Commissary, in the following proportions, viz: one pound of Gunpowder, two Flints, one sheet of Cartridge Paper, and twenty Musket Balls to each man; said person so appointed by the Commissary to be accountable to this Court for the same.

Resolve to alter the Rigging, &c., of the TYRANNICIDE from a Sloop to a Brig; passed SEPTEMBER 13, 1776.

Resolved, That the Hon. Richard Derby, Jun., Esq., be directed as soon as may be, to alter the Spars and Rigging of the Tyrannicide, from that of a Sloop to a Brigantine; and to lay his account before this Court for examination and allowance; and in order that this matter may be effected expeditiously, the honourable Board are desired to issue their warrant on the Treasury, in favour of the said Richard Derby, Jun., Esq., for such sum of money as they judge may be necessary for the purpose aforesaid, the said Derby being accountable therefor.

Resolve for ordering the Men drafted from PLYMOUTH and BARNSTABLE Brigades to march to RHODE-ISLAND instead of NEW-YORK; passed SEPTEMBER 13, 1776.

Whereas the General Assembly of this State did, by their resolve of the 12th instant, order and direct that one-fifth part of the Militia, both of the Alarm and Train Band list, not now in actual service, be drafted from the said Militia of the Counties of Suffolk, Essex, Middlesex, Hampshire, Plymouth, Bristol, Barnstable, Worcester, and Berkshire, some towns only excepted, to march to the aid of the Army at New-York, in manner as is by said resolve directed; and whereas the honourable the American Congress have requested the Assembly of this State to send one Battalion of the Militia thereof to the State of Rhode-Island, to supply the place of a Battalion in the service of the United States ordered from thence to reinforce the Army at New-York:

It is therefore Resolved, That the men drafted from the Brigades in the Counties of Plymouth and Barnstable in consequence of the aforesaid resolve, be and hereby are ordered, instead of marching to the aid of the Army at New-York, to march to the State of Rhode-Island, to supply the place of the Continental Battalion aforesaid, and the major part of the Council of this State be and hereby are desired to make out their orders in writing to Major-General Warren, commanding him immediately to order the Brigadiers of the said Counties of Plymouth and Barnstable, as soon as their men are drafted agreeable to the resolve aforesaid, to form them into Companies of sixty-four men each, including non-commissioned officers, and to officer them agreeable to the resolve aforesaid, the whole to form into one Regiment, and to be officered agreeable to said resolve, and to order them to march to Rhode-Island for the purpose aforementioned, the resolve aforesaid notwithstanding. This Regiment to continue in the service until they are recalled by the General Court of this State, the major part of the Council, or the House of Representatives.

Resolve on the Petition of RICHARD MAYBERRY; passed SEPTEMBER 13, 1776.

Resolved, That the Commissary-General of this State be directed to deliver to Captain Richard Mayberry, the petitioner, seven effective Fire-Arms, for the purpose in his Petition mentioned, he being accountable to this Court for the same; and that he pay one dollar for the use of each of said Fire-Arms, he being empowered to stop the same out of the wages of those persons that may receive them.

Resolve for paying SOLOMON WOOD £2 8s.; passed SEPTEMBER 13, 1776.

Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury of this State, to Solomon Wood, the sum of £2 8s., in full for the loss of his Gun at Bunker-Hill.

Resolve to furnish the Agent for building the Continental Ships with Guns for one of them; passed SEPTEMBER 13, 1776.

Resolved, That this State will furnish the Agent for building the Continental Ships at Newburyport with a sufficient number of Guns for one of them, and afford him every other assistance in their power in fitting out and manning said Ship, provided leave can be obtained from the honourable Congress for said Vessel to cruise on this coast, for the protection of the trade thereof; the Agent engaging to reimburse all the expenses this State shall incur in the fitting out and manning said Ship, and return said Guns whenever said Ship shall be otherwise employed.

Resolve on the Petition of JAMES MCCOBB; passed SEPTEMBER 13, 1776.

Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury of this State, the sum of £19 4s., or $64, as expressed in the Petition, to James McCobb, Esquire, Chairman of the Committee of Safety in the County of Lincoln, or his order, for the use of Messrs. Pages and Parham, who performed the services set forth in the Petition, in pursuance of an agreement with the above Committee, at the rate of thirty-two dollars per month, as appears by their testimonies before a Magistrate in said County; which sum will be in full for two months' wages on said tour to Canada.

Resolve on the Petition of the Selectmen of HARPSWELL; passed SEPTEMBER 13, 1776.

Resolved, That the Treasurer and Receiver-General be directed to pay out of the publick Treasury of this State, the sum of £8 6s. 8d., to William Sylvester and Anthony Combs, in full discharge of their account for furnishing Blankets for seventeen soldiers enlisted in Captain James Curtis's Company, within mentioned.

REPRESENTATION FROM COMMITTEE OF NEWBURYPORT.

To the honourable the Council of the State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

The Committee of Correspondence, Inspection, and Safety, for the town of Newburyport, would beg leave to represent to your Honours that a Sub-Committee was appointed by them, to inspect all vessels arriving at or departing from this harbour, that the regulations of the honourable Congress or of this State might not be violated; that while on their duty on board the sloop Two-Friends, (which was some time past taken and brought into this place by Captains O'Brian and Lambert, and acquitted by a Court of Admiralty held for this district,) William Hazen master, bound for St. John's, they were informed of two men that were bound for Nova-Scotia in said sloop, and of whom it was suspected that, if not prevented, they would be of real damage to this State to let pass. Upon further inquiry, we were satisfied as to the unfitness of their going, and prevented them. It appeared they were to be sent by Mr. Epes Sargeant, of Cape Ann, (the one being his son, and the other a master of a vessel who had for some time past been in his employ,) down to East Passage, where he had a snow and he said a schooner or two lying, with considerable interest, we have reason to think has, for some time past been employed in and under the protection of that Government. By a letter from Mr. Epes Sargeant, which was wrote directly upon his being frustrated in this plan, to Captain Sayword, master of his snow there, and intercepted just before the sloop sailed, fully convinces us of the above suggestions.

We are induced to trouble your Honours with this information, by a report that the said Mr. Sargeant did, on his leaving this town, hire a two-mast boat in Ipswich, and applied to a friend in Salem, who procured a commission for said boat; that she has actually sailed, it is supposed directly for East Passage, and that his son is gone in her; which your Honours will be pleased to act upon as shall in your wisdom seem fit.

In behalf and per order of the Committee:

JONA. TITCOMB, Chairman pro tem.

Newburyport, 30 August, 1776.

In Council, September 14, 1775.

On the Representation from the Committee of Newburyport, relative to Epes Sargeant,

Read, and Ordered, That the said Epes Sargeant be notified to appear and make answer in Council, on Thursday, the 26th day of September, instant, to such matters as are in said Representation suggested to his prejudice; and that the Secretary be directed to serve him, the said Epes Sargeant, with a copy of said Representation and this Order thereon, and also serve the Committee of the town of Newburyport with a copy of the above Order, that they may appear if they think proper. JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

Newburyport, August 16, 1776.

Captain JOSEPH SAYWORD:

SIR: I have only time to tell you that your family is well, and that Heaven must direct you in your movements. I can't get down. I beg you'd keep a good look out. I can't say any more.

Your friend,

EPES SARGEANT.

To Captain Joseph Sayword, of snow Charles, at East Passage.

Resolve for supplying THOMAS CRANE, Esq., with a large Copper; passed SEPTEMBER 14, 1776.

Resolved, That the Committee appointed to take care of the Estates, in the town of Boston, of persons who have fled with our unnatural enemies, be, and they hereby are, directed to deliver to Thomas Crane, Esq., or his order, for the use of the Powder-Mill at Stoughton, one large Copper of said effects, which will contain thirty or forty gallons, said Crane to be accountable to this Court for the same.

Resolve forbidding the sale of two Negroes brought in as Prisoners; passed SEPTEMBER 14, 1776.

Whereas this Court is credibly informed that two Negro men lately taken on the high seas, on board the sloop Hannibal, and brought into this State as prisoners, are advertised to be sold at Salem the 17th instant, by publick auction:

Resolved, That all persons concerned with the said Negroes be, and they are hereby forbidden to sell them, or in any manner to treat them otherwise than is already ordered for the treatment of prisoners taken in like manner; and if any sale of the said Negroes shall be made it is hereby declared null and void; and that whenever it shall appear that any Negroes are taken on the high seas and brought as prisoners into this State, they shall not be allowed to be sold, nor treated any otherwise than as prisoners are ordered to be treated who are taken in like manner.

FIFTH SERIES.—VOL. II.

Resolve appointing Colonel SIMONS and others to execute in the County of BERKSHIRE the Resolve for raising one-fifth of the Militia; passed SEPTEMBER 14, 1776.

Whereas it has been represented to this Court that there is now no Brigadier in the County of Berkshire, to put in execution a late resolve of this Assembly for raising and sending to New-York a fifth part of the Militia; and as the first Colonel of the Militia there is now in the service of the United States, and the other chief Colonel is sick, and one Lieutenant-Colonel of the Militia there is also in the said service: Therefore,

Resolved, That Colonel Simons, of Williamstown, Colonel Root, of Sheffield, and Deacon Curtis, of Stockbridge, be, and they hereby are empowered and directed to execute the late resolve of this Court above referred to, within the County of Berkshire, in the same manner and observing the same directions that are given to the Brigadiers or commanding officers in the several Counties by said resolve.

Additional Resolves for procuring Clothing for the Army; passed SEPTEMBER 14, 1776.

Resolved, That the Committee appointed by this Court the last Session to purchase Clothing for the Continental Army agreeable to a recommendation of Congress, be directed to purchase as many suits of Clothes and Blankets as they may be able to procure before the first day of December next, and that the said Committee be directed to make returns to this Court of their doings as soon as possible.

And further Resolved, That the further sum of thirteen thousand Pounds be granted to the same Committee for the above purpose, each of them to be accountable to this Court for that part of said sum they shall severally receive.

Resolve for supplying the Ship BOSTON with Cannon; passed SEPTEMBER 14, 1776.

Whereas it is necessary in order that the Ship Boston, Hector McNeil commander, may be fitted out with all possible expedition, that she should be immediately supplied with the Guns this Court has resolved, upon certain conditions, to supply her with: Therefore,

Ordered, That the Committee for fortifying the Harbour of Boston be, and hereby are directed to send forthwith, by water, so many Cannon, nine-pounders, with carriages and other apparatus, from those in and about the town of Boston, as shall be sufficient to arm said Ship, to the town of Newbury-Port, to be there delivered to Captain Hector McNeil for the purpose aforesaid; and in case the whole number of nine-pound Cannon above mentioned cannot be obtained from those in and about Boston, then the said Committee are empowered and directed to procure and send to Newbury-Port, by water, so many as may be necessary to make up the deficiency from the towns of Salem and Marblehead, and give them others in lieu of the same from those in and about the town of Boston.

And further Ordered, That the Agent for building the Continental ships at Newbury-Port, be furnished by the town of Newbury-Port, for the purpose before mentioned, with the five pieces of Cannon this State has lately purchased of said town, and also with five other Cannon, nine-pounders, which the town of Newbury-Port has agreed to lend to this State, with their carriages, &c.; the Agent agreeing to redeliver all the Cannon, with their carriages and other apparatus before mentioned, to the order of this State in case leave cannot be obtained from the honourable Congress for said vessel to cruise on this coast for the protection of the trade of this State. And it is strongly recommended to said Agent to be as expeditious as possible in fixing out said Ship.

PETITION OF ROBERT CAMPBELL.

To the honourable Speaker and Gentlemen of the General Court for the United State of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

Permit your humble petitioner to lay before your House a remonstrance setting forth a state of the circumstances that has attended me since I came on shore at Cape Cod in March last, and the treatment I have met with in not being able till now even to get a line before you, where I only could expect justice.

I laboured above four months endeavouring to get to Boston, which Colonel Cobb, one of the Cape members, is not unacquainted with, and who knows I never acted as if I intend to leave the place as an enemy, as it was every day in my power before I came to this place; but as a testimony of what I always professed, I had not the least intentions of being concerned in bringing destruction on my native land. Notwithstanding every convincing proof of my innocence, as soon as I arrived at Boston I was ordered to gaol for want of bail, as I being a stranger, I could not give, nor has any thing appeared since I have been here against me. I beg the favour I may be admitted to come into Court with a state of my grievances, not doubting from the known wisdom of the House my liberty will be accelerated, and my private property and wearing apparel will be returned me.

I beg to be excused in my manner of writing, as all the table I have is the heels of iron boots to lay my paper on.

I am, with due respect, gentlemen, your most obedient, humble servant,

ROBERT CAMPBELL.

Boston Gaol, the 16th of September, 1776.

MEMORIAL OF RICHARD ADAMS.

To the honourable Council and to the honourable House of Representatives, in General Court assembled at WATERTOWN, in the State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, on the 16th day of SEPTEMBER, Anno Domini 1776.

The Memorial of RICHARD ADAMS, of MADUNCOOK, in the County of LINCOLN, humbly sheweth:

That your memorialist would set forth to your Honours, that, about the month of March last, there was, at the said Maduncook, a meeting, and chose assessors and collector to assess and gather the taxes for the present year. That in May last they called another meeting, and chose another set of assessors and collector for the same purpose. That the last of said assessors assessed and made the rates, and delivered to the collector, who has gathered near one-half of said taxes, and remitted it to the Hon. Henry Gardner, Esq., Treasurer for said State, as may appear by said Treasurer's books. That your memorialist would further acquaint your Honours that the first-chosen collectors are applying for a warrant to collect the same over again; and those that have paid have paid the whole that they were assessed to pay to the last-mentioned collector. That your memorialist would pray your Honours to take this into your wise consideration, and order therein what your Honours in your great wisdom shall see meet. And your petitioner, as in duty bound, shall ever pray, &c.

RICHARD ADAMS.

PETITION OF JULIANA JAMES.

To the honourable the Council and honourable the House of Representatives of the State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

The Petition of JULIANA JAMES, of BOSTON, Widow, humbly shews:

That soon after the town of Boston was shut up, she, with great difficulty, obtained passes for herself and child to go out of town, but was prevented twice, and, finding she could not get out, was obliged to submit to remain in town until the British troops were about leaving the town, when she was told that the town would certainly be set on fire, which so terrified her, that she, with her child, took passage on board a sloop, commanded by one Campbell, bound she could not tell where, which same sloop afterwards went into Cape Cod, where your petitioner, with the rest of the passengers on board, was carried on shore at a place called Provincetown. That your petitioner, with her child, has remained there ever since, suffering much hardship and distress by reason that she could not be permitted to take away with her the few articles of household stuff she carried with her, without which she cannot support herself and child. Your petitioner, therefore, humbly prays your Honours would so far compassionate her case as to order that her bedding and household furniture may be delivered her, so that she may be enabled to get some support for herself and child, as she has no other means than her own labour to procure it. And, as in duty bound, she will pray, &c.

JULIANA JAMES.

SUFFOLK, ss.: BOSTON, September 14, 1776:

Juliana James personally appeared and made oath, that the annexed schedule contains a just and true inventory of the articles of household furniture now at Provincetown, which she refers to in the foregoing petition, and claims as her property.

Cor. JOSEPH GARDNER, Just. Peace.

Account of the Household Furniture of JULIANA JAMES.

Eight maple chairs, one old packing desk, one square table, one round ditto, one small Dutch look glass, one pair small hand-irons, shovel and tongs, one pair bellows, one dozen pewter plates, five dishes, one dozen cream-colour plates, one pair brass candlesticks, two iron pots, three iron skillets, one gridiron, two beds and bedstead, one frypan, one crane, and sundry small articles, together with wearing apparel.

BENJAMIN LINCOLN, Esq., chosen to command the Militia; SEPTEMBER 16, 1776.

The House made choice, by ballot, of the Hon. Benjamin Lincoln, Esq., to command the Militia ordered to be raised by a resolve of Court, which passed the honourable Board the 12th instant, to reinforce the Army at New-York.

Concurred by Council, September 16, 1776.

Resolve to continue Military Commissions in force until the 19th of JANUARY, 1777; passed SEPTEMBER 16, 1776.

Whereas, in and by one act or law of this State, made in the present year of the Christian era, for establishing the style of Commissions, &c., and by one other act in addition thereto, it is ordered that all Military Commissions issued by the major part of the Council of this State before the first day of June, one thousand seven hundred and seventy-six, and bearing the date of the year of the reign of the King of Great Britain, and not afterwards made conformable, as to the style and date, in the manner required by said acts, before the nineteenth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and seventy-six, should on and after said day become void, and of none effect: And as sundry Military Officers of this State have neglected to get their Commissions made to conform as aforesaid, and it being necessary, for the defence of this and the other United States, that the whole Militia be constantly prepared and properly organized for duty, and especially necessary at this time to expedite the marching that part of the Militia now ordered for reinforcing the Army at New-York, and defence of a neighbouring Government:

It is therefore Resolved, That all Military Commissions now in force shall be and continue in full force and effect on the same 19th day of September, and from thence to the 19th day of January next after, such Commissions not being made to conform as aforesaid, notwithstanding.

Resolve for supplying the Town of FALMOUTH with Powder and Cannon Balls; passed SEPTEMBER 16, 1776.

Resolved, That the Commissary be, and he hereby is directed to deliver to the Hon. Jedediah Preble, Esq., or order, fifteen hundred weight of Gunpowder, and the following Cannon Balls for the use of the town of Falmouth, viz: twenty 32-pounders, twenty 18 ditto, one hundred and fifty-two 12 ditto, one hundred and forty-four 9 ditto, and one hundred and two 6-pounders; said Preble to be accountable to this Court for the same.

Resolve for procuring Whale-Boats, &c., passed SEPTEMBER 16, 1776.

Resolved, That Joseph Nye, Esq., Shubael Cottle, Esq., and Colonel Nathaniel Leonard, be and hereby are appointed a Committee to purchase sixty Whale-Boats and Oars, and to collect them at Falmouth or Buzzard's Bay, and Dartmouth, as soon as may be; and the major part of the honourable Council are desired to issue their orders to Major-General Warren, commanding him to give orders to the Brigadiers of the Counties of Plymouth and Barnstable, to cause the men drafted from their Brigades in consequence of the resolves of the General Assembly of this State of the 12th and 13th instant, or as many of them as conveniently can, with their baggage to proceed to Rhode-Island in said boats with all the despatch possible, and them to deliver to the Hon. Nicholas Cooke, Esq., Governour of said State; and the Treasurer is hereby directed to furnish the said Committee with the sum of £360 for that purpose, each of them to be accountable to this Court for such sums as they shall respectively receive.

And it is also Resolved, That the Committee aforesaid, be empowered to take such a number of the sea-coast men stationed at the Vineyard and Elizabeth Islands, as they shall judge necessary to assist in removing and collecting said boats; and the officers and men of said companies are hereby directed to conform themselves to such orders as they shall receive from said Committee, for the purpose aforesaid.

Resolve appointing a Committee to sign and number Bills; passed SEPTEMBER 16, 1776.

Ordered, That the Rev. John Murray, Thomas Cook, Esq., Abraham Fuller, Esq., Jonas Dix, Esq., John Bliss, Esq., Jonathan Brown, Esq., John Lewis, Esq., and Mr. Henry Hill, be a Committee to sign and number the Bills of the present emission of £50,004.

Resolve directing Committees to return Money to the Treasury; passed SEPTEMBER 16, 1776.

Whereas several gentlemen who have been lately employed by the General Court on various services for this State, more especially such as have been employed on the Committees for inlisting men into the service of the United States of America, having received divers sums of money for which they are accountable to this State, now have considerable sums of money resting in their hands, which are not needed for the purposes for which they were received; and as the Committee of this Court lately appointed to take the accounts of the persons accountable as aforesaid, will not be able speedily to complete so lengthy a business:

It is therefore Resolved, That all such persons having money so remaining in their hands, be directed to pay the same to the Treasurer of this State forthwith; and the said Treasurer is hereby directed, on the receipt of such moneys, to make to the person or persons paying the same, a duplicate receipt thereof; and that the person or persons taking such duplicate, be directed to lodge one part of such duplicate in the office of the Secretary of this State, keeping the other part for his own use.

Resolve for paying off Captain WIGGLESWORTH's Portage Bill; passed SEPTEMBER 16, 1776.

Resolved, That the Treasurer of this State be, and he is hereby directed to pay out of the publick Treasury to Captain John Wigglesworth, or order, the sum of £74 4s., in full discharge of the Portage-Bill of the Sloop Swift, in the service of this State, and all charges attending the same.

Resolve on the Petition of PRESERVED CLAP; passed SEPTEMBER 16, 1776.

Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury of this State to Preserved Clap, £43 1s. 10d., in full for his account. And whereas said Clap says that he has invented a machine for boring Cannon, which may be improved to the great advantage of this State,

Therefore, Resolved, That if said Clap will exhibit a plan or model of said machine to Hugh Orr, Esq., and others, a Committee for casting large Cannon, so as to satisfy them of its superiour utility, upon their report thereof to this Court, there shall then be granted to him such a sum for his invention as may appear to be adequate to its superiour usefulness.

Resolve for erecting or purchasing an Air Furnace for casting Cannon; passed SEPTEMBER 16, 1776.

Resolved, That Hugh Orr, Esq., and others, a Committee appointed to make inquiry with respect to casting of Cannon be, and they hereby are directed immediately to erect or purchase an Air Furnace in such place as they may judge most fit and proper for the purpose of casting and boring large cannon; and that they provide all such workmen, materials, and every thing necessary for the erecting said furnace, and casting such cannon as aforesaid, and that they carry the same into effect with all possible despatch.

And it is also Resolved, That Major Crane and Mr. Root be added to said Committee.

PETITION OF COMMITTEE OF CAMBRIDGE.

To the honourable the Council and the honourable House of Representatives of the State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

The Petition of the Committee of Correspondence, Inspection, and Safety, of the Town of CAMBRIDGE, humbly sheweth:

That whereas we, the said petitioners, have in our possession personal estate that is wasting, which belonged to certain persons who were unfriendly and inimical to this State, and have fled from Cambridge to the British fleet and army for protection, we, your said petitioners, humbly pray that your Honours would appoint some person or persons to sell the same. And whereas there is certain personal estate which belonged to those said persons, which has been conveyed into other towns without our knowledge, we therefore pray that this honourable Court would pass such orders thereon as they in their very great wisdom shall think fit. And your petitioners, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

By order of the Committee:

ANDREW BORDMAN, Clerk.

Cambridge, September 17, 1776.

Resolve relative to NATHANIEL BRINLEY; passed SEPTEMBER 17, 1776.

Resolved, That Nathaniel Brinley be put under the care of Francis Brinley, Esq., to be forthcoming at the order of this Court, said Francis giving security therefor to the Treasurer in the sum of six hundred Pounds.

Resolve for a Loan of £150 to the Town of GOULDSBOROUGH; passed SEPTEMBER 17, 1776.

Resolved, That the town of Goldsborough be favoured with the loan of one hundred and fifty Pounds out of the Treasury of this State, for the term of two years, the Committee of said town giving security to the Treasurer for the repayment of the same.

Resolve appointing Mr. DAVIS and Colonel GOODWIN to sign Bills; passed SEPTEMBER 17, 1776.

Ordered, That Mr. Davis and Colonel Goodwin be a Committee to sign the Bills of Credit of the present emission, in the room of Major Fuller and Colonel Bliss, excused.

Resolve on the Petition of JONATHAN HALE, relative to receiving Saltpetre; passed SEPTEMBER 17, 1776.

It appearing to this Court that the Powder-Mill erecting in the town of Springfield and County of Hampshire is now almost ready for service, but will be a useless machine unless duly provided with materials for carrying on the manufacture of Powder; and whereas the time is near expired for the bringing in the Saltpetre, in order to be entitled to the premium: Therefore,

Resolved, That Captain James Sikes be, and hereby is appointed to receive in the town of Springfield the Saltpetre made in the Counties of Hampshire and Berkshire for the use of this State, until the further order of this Court; and that the sum of fifteen hundred Pounds be paid to him out of the publick Treasury to enable him to pay for the Saltpetre so delivered to him, pursuant to a late resolve of the General Court of this State, and that he be accountable to this Court for the same.

Resolve for the delivery of Household Goods to JULIANA JAMES; passed SEPTEMBER 17, 1776.

On the Petition of Juliana James, of Boston, widow,

Resolved, That the prayer of said petitioner be granted, and the Selectmen of Province-Town are hereby directed to deliver the said Juliana James the several articles of Household Furniture in the list, or such part of them as may be in their custody, she paying all such charges as may have arisen thereon.

Resolve for paying Brigadier PREBLE £8, for the use of two INDIANS; passed SEPTEMBER 17, 1776.

Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury the sum of eight Pounds unto the Hon. Jedediah Preble, Esq., for the use of Joseph Denaquara and Peter Andre, two of the St. John's tribe of Indians, for their support from Watertown to their home.

Resolve on the Petition of SHUBAEL COTTLE, Esq., respecting the capture of a Vessel; passed SEPTEMBER 17, 1776.

On the Petition of Shubael Cottle, Esq., in behalf of Nathan Smith and others,

Resolved, That whereas it appears to this Court that certain persons mentioned in said Petition were concerned in taking and bringing into this State a certain Schooner mentioned in said Petition; and it further appears that the vessel or boats which attacked and took said Schooner were procured by and at the risk of the captors. Therefore,

Resolved, That after the charges of trial and condemnation are deducted from the gross proceeds of said Vessel and Cargo, and the share of the other captors have been assigned, the Colony shall receive one-third, and the sea-coast men the other two-thirds of said Schooner, Cargo, and Appurtenances.

Resolve for recalling the Militia ordered to NEW-YORK, within the space of two months, &c.; passed SEPTEMBER 17, 1776.

Whereas doubts may arise in the minds of some of the good people of this State, who are willing to go out at this important juncture against our unnatural enemies, agreeable to the resolve of this Court passed the 12th instant, about what time they shall be held in that service:

Therefore, for removing any difficulties of that nature, it is Resolved, That all those persons who shall march out on this exigence, shall be recalled within the space of two months from this date, at the farthest, and as much sooner as the service may admit of.

And whereas some persons may, pursuant to the said resolve of the 12th instant, be drafted for the purpose therein specified, whose business and other avocations may render it inconvenient for them to attend that duty personally, and may voluntarily choose rather to pay down their fines, and some persons that have been already drafted may have paid the fine, by reason of their not knowing what time they should be held in the service:

It is further Resolved, That the commanding officer of each company be, and hereby is empowered to receive the fines of all such persons who will voluntarily pay the same, and to dispose thereof in the best manner he can, for the purpose of raising other men for that service; and such persons as have already paid their fines, by reason of their not knowing how long they should be held in the service, shall have the said fine paid back to them by the officer that received it, in case they incline to receive it back and to proceed upon the service, or do procure some able-bodied, effective person to proceed in their room.

And in order that there may be no deficiency in the number of men for the above service, it is further Resolved, That the commanding officer of each respective company of the Militia in any town; or in case the Militia is not duly organized in any town, then the respective Committees of Safety of such towns, and the Selectmen where there are no such Committees, are hereby empowered and directed to muster the Militia, when and so often as they may respectively find it necessary, in order for the obtaining the quota designed: and that all persons for non-attendance, or for not marching when drafted, shall be subject to the like penalties as are specified in the said resolve of the 12th instant, to be applied as aforesaid. And that each man on his march, shall be entitled to receive for his support, a further sum of one penny per mile, from the place he marches from to the place of his destination. And the Selectmen of the several towns are in like manner as in the former resolve to pay the same, and lay their accounts before this Court for allowance and payment.

Resolve for the delivery of Gunpowder, &c., to Mr. JEREMIAH COLBORN; passed SEPTEMBER 17, 1776.

On the petition of Mr. Jeremiah Colborn,

Resolved, That the Commissary-General be, and he is hereby directed to deliver out of the store belonging to this State unto the petitioner, sixty Flints and thirty pounds of Gunpowder, and Lead answerable thereto, for the use of the guard mentioned in the petition, and also Provisions enough to supply the said guard for the space of three months, according to the established allowance in the army, he, the said petitioner, Jeremiah Colborn, to be accountable for the distribution and expenditure of the same.

RICHARD DERBY, Esq., directed to make application to the Superiour Court, relative to the Ship QUEEN-OF-ENGLAND; passed SEPTEMBER 17, 1776.

Resolved, That Richard Derby, Jun., Esq., Agent for the Middle District of this State, be, and hereby is directed forthwith to make application to the Superiour Court of Judicature, &c., for this State, that in the precept or order of sale that they may issue from that Court for the sale of the Ship Queen-of-England, her cargo and appurtenances, lately (as is said) condemned there, by appeal from the Maritime Court for the Middle District, distribution of two-thirds of the neat proceeds of such part thereof as the regiments in the service and pay of this State have had adjudged to them as original captors, may be directed to be paid to him for the use of this State, pursuant to a resolve of both Houses in April last, directing what proportion prizes taken by officers and men in the service and pay of this State, stationed in any port or harbour on the sea-coast for the protection and defence thereof, shall be distributed.

Resolve for granting three of the Judges the sum of £80 each; passed SEPTEMBER 17, 1776.

Resolved, That there be allowed and paid out of the publick Treasury of this State to the Honourable William Cushing, Jedediah Foster, and James Sullivan, Esquires, three of the Justices of the Superiour Court of Judicature, &c., severally, the sum of eighty Pounds, in part for their services the present year.

Resolve on the Petition of RICHARD ADAMS, of MADUNCOOK; passed SEPTEMBER 17, 1776.

Resolved, That the inhabitants of Maduncook, as soon as may be, assemble a legal meeting, called by some neighbouring Justice of the Peace, then and there to proceed to choose Assessors and Collectors of the Tax for the year 1775; and the Assessors so chosen are hereby empowered and directed to assess the taxes for said year, according to law, and return the sum and the Assessors' names to the Treasurer of this State, as early as possible; and the said Treasurer is hereby directed to delay issuing his warrant for collecting any tax there for said year, until such return is made to him; and when he shall issue such warrant, he is directed to issue it for seven pounds four shillings and five pence less than the whole tax of said Maduncook for said year; and the Collector to whom said warrant shall be directed, is ordered to accept from any inhabitants of said place the receipts of the Collectors appointed in May last, as payment for such sums of said tax as they have paid for said year.

Resolve for paying DANIEL HENSHAW, Jun., £3; passed SEPTEMBER 18, 1776.

Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury of this State to Daniel Henshaw, Jun., three Pounds, in full for his services as Deputy-Commissary in the service of this State.

Resolve for paying the Committee of NORTHFIELD £27, for the use of Prisoners; passed SEPTEMBER 18, 1776.

Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury of this State to the Committee of Correspondence, Inspection and Safety, of the town of Northfield, or to their order, the sum of twenty-seven Pounds, for the use of the five prisoners now in that town on their parole, being at the rate of twelve shillings per week for each prisoner, from the eighth day of July last, agreeable to a resolve of the Continental Congress.

Resolve for confining JOHN GRAVES; passed SEPTEMBER 18, 1776.

Resolved, That the Sheriff of the County of Berkshire be, and he hereby is authorized and directed to receive from the Committee for superintending Prisoners of War in the State of Connecticut, the body of John Graves, of Pittsfield, in the said County; who (as is said) was sent to Hartford, in the said State of Connecticut, by order of the said Committee of said Pittsfield, charged with aiding and assisting one Captain McKay, a prisoner of war stationed in said Hartford, upon his parole, in making his escape therefrom, in violation of his parole; and him the said John Graves, closely confine and keep in the common gaol of the said County of Berkshire, that he may be dealt with touching the said charge, as to law and justice appertaineth.

Resolve excusing the Town of CHARLESTOWN from furnishing Men; passed SEPTEMBER 18, 1776.

Resolved, That such of the inhabitants of the town of Charlestown of the Training Band and Alarm-List, who lived in that part of the town which has been destroyed by the British Army, be excused from furnishing their quota of Men lately ordered, by a resolve of this Court, to be raised to reinforce the Army at New-York, any thing in the said resolve to the contrary notwithstanding.

Resolve for supplying Brigadier PALMER to buy Cannon at NEWBURY-PORT; passed SEPTEMBER 18, 1776.

Resolved, That a warrant be granted to Brigadier Palmer, from the honourable Board, on the Treasurer of this State, for such sum as he shall agree for the payment of five pieces of Cannon, with Carriages, which, by a resolve of the 11th instant, he was to purchase of the town of Newbury-Port; and that he pay the same to the order of the Selectmen of said town, in full for said Guns and Carriages.

Resolve empowering the Committee of DEERFIELD to make sale of NATHANIEL DICKENSON'S personal Estate; passed SEPTEMBER 18, 1776.

Resolved, That the Committee of Inspection, &c., for the town of Deerfield, be empowered and directed to make sale, by publick auction, of all the personal Estate of Nathaniel Dickenson above named, and make return of the proceeds thereof to this Court.

Resolve for furnishing the Frigate HANCOCK with Guns, &c.; passed SEPTEMBER 18, 1776.

Resolved, That this State will furnish the Agent for building the Continental Ships at Newbury-Port with a sufficient number of Guns, provided they can be obtained by purchase or otherways, for the Continental Frigate called the Hancock, John Manley Commander, and which Ship is built to carry thirty-two Guns; and will afford him every other assistance possible for fitting out and manning said Ship; and the Honourable Richard Derby, Esquire, is appointed agent, in behalf of this Colony, for the purposes aforesaid, provided leave can be obtained from the honourable Congress for said Vessel to cruise on this coast, for the protection of the trade thereof; the said Continental agent engaging to reimburse all the expenses this State shall incur in fitting out and manning said Ship, and return said Guns whenever said Ship shall be otherwise employed; it being of great importance that there should be a sufficient number of armed vessels fixed for sea effectually to free this coast from the enemy's armed vessels now infesting it.

Resolve to encourage the manufacture of Fire-Arms; passed SEPTEMBER 18, 1776.

Whereas, notwithstanding the encouragement hitherto given by this State for the manufacturing of Fire-Arms, a sufficient number has not yet been obtained: Therefore,

Resolved, That for every effective and substantial fire-arm which shall be manufactured in this State, with a good barrel of three feet and nine inches in length, that will carry an ounce ball, with a good bridle-lock, a good bayonet, with a blade not less than eighteen inches in length, with a scabbard for the same, a steel ramrod with a spring to retain the same, two loops for gun-slugs, and the manufacturer's name stamped or engraved on the lock, and which shall be delivered at Boston or Watertown, to the Commissary-General, for the time being, on or before the first day of October, in the year 1777, there shall be allowed and paid out of the publick Treasury of this State, to the owner thereof, the sum of four pounds; provided, always, that the owner of each fire-arm which shall be received for this State, shall produce a certificate that such fire-arm has been proved by firing the same properly loaded with four inches and a half of powder, at least, with a wad thereon, and a ball with a wad upon it, in the presence of one or more Selectmen of that town where such fire-arm was manufactured.

Resolve on the Petition of NATHANIEL GUILD; passed SEPTEMBER 18, 1776.

On the Petition of Nathaniel Guild,

Resolved, That the prayer of the Petition be so far granted, that the Committee of Correspondence of Walpole, be directed to sell to Mr. Nathaniel Guild, as much Wood of the estate belonging to Isaac Royal, Esq., Sir William Pepperrel, and George Erving, lying within two miles of Stoughton Furnace, as they shall think necessary, not exceeding one hundred cord, provided the said Committee of Correspondence see that it be cut where it will be the least damage to the said lots, the said Guild paying the full value for the Wood to the said Committee, the Committee being accountable to this Court for the sum or sums so received.

And it is further Resolved, That sixteen such men as Mr. Guild most wants to carry on his furnace business, it being of so great importance for the defence of this and the United States of America, be excused from service in the present alarm, if drafted agreeable to the resolve of this Court, to assist said Guild in his furnace works.

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

ORDERS TO ALEXANDER SHEPARD.

In Council, September 19, 1776.

Ordered, That Mr. Alexander Shepard, who is entrusted with the care of conveying some military stores from this State to Fairfield, for the use of the Militia now marching from hence to New-York, be directed to engage a suitable Guard for the same, at the charge of this State, until he arrives in the County of Worcester, and then to apply to some Field Officer in that Brigade to order a Sergeant, with a sufficient number of men, destined for New-York, to attend him in guarding said stores to Fairfield; and such Field Officer as he may so apply to is hereby enjoined to furnish such Guard accordingly.

PETITION OF OFFICERS OF THE SCHOONER DILIGENT.

To the honourable Council of the State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

The Petition of the following persons humbly sheweth: That we, your petitioners, have served this Colony in different departments on board the schooner Diligent, John Lambert Commander, since the 16th March last, which, we are sorry to say, to little advantage to the publick or ourselves. We therefore beg that your Honours would take it into your wise consideration, and honourably acquit us, discounting for the time served, or place us in some way wherein we may serve the general cause of America and ourselves, as we cannot be so happy in any other way as in the defence of the country. But in the channel we are in we cannot make ourselves easy, unless we are lost to a sense of all honour and justice, as all the privates have left the vessel; but as to your petitioners, we are not willing to leave the service, unless it meets with the sanction of your Honours' approbation. We therefore beg leave to inquire the reason of the detainment of our wages. Is the captures we brought in unlawfully taken, or is it for embezzlements? Or are we accountable for the Captain's conduct, when our commissions from your Honours oblige us to obey his commands? If we are impeached with any thing, being conscious of our innocence, we beg to be brought to an immediate trial, by which means we doubt not of being able to acquit ourselves with honour and to your satisfaction, as we esteem our honour dearer than our interest or even our lives. We therefore heave ourselves at the feet of your Honours, hoping you'll consider our distressed situation in so expensive a place as this, having already expended a great part of our wages in the pursuit of them. We therefore pray we may no longer be kept in suspense, but have an immediate answer, that we may not lose our honour and time; in complying with which we shall esteem ourselves under the greatest obligations. And, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

JOHN O'BRIEN, First Lieutenant.

WALTER PERKINS, Second Lieutenant.

JOSHUA WING, Master.

PETER CLARK, Commander Marines.

In Council, September 20, 1776.

Read, and Ordered, That Walter Spooner and Samuel Holton, Esquires, be a Committee to take the within Petition under consideration and report.

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

PETITION OF JOHN FRAZIER.

To the honourable Council assembled at WATERTOWN, in the State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, the 20th day of SEPTEMBER, Anno Domini 1776:

The Petition of JOHN FRAZIER, late Commander of the prize ship SUSANNA, humbly sheweth:

That your petitioner, with the above-said ship, was taken and carried into Piscataqua; that your petitioner has liberty from his Excellency General Washington to depart from America, on his having given his parole of honour not to act directly nor indirectly inimical to America during the present dispute with Great Britain; that your petitioner has also liberty from the honourable Council and House of Representatives in the State of New-Hampshire, to depart from this Continent; that your petitioner prays your Honours he may have liberty to go as a passenger in the ship at Boston belonging to Mr. Ross. And your petitioner, as in duty bound, shall ever pray, &c.

JOHN FRAZER.

In Council, September 20, 1776.

Read, and Ordered, That the prayer of the petition be granted, and the said John Frazier be permitted to depart from this State to any part of Great Britain, in such vessel as Messrs. Ross and Morgan, who lately had liberty granted them by this Board to depart, have purchased for this purpose.

JNO. AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

ORDERS TO COLONEL MITCHELL.

Council Chamber in Watertown, September 20, 1776.

To Colonel JONATHAN MITCHELL:

You being appointed by the General Assembly of this State to the command of the five companies of sea-coast men stationed in and about Falmouth, are hereby directed to keep them in good order and discipline, and continue to carry on the works there in such manner as will be most for the security of the town, and let regimental musters for the present cease.

PETITION OF LYONEL BRADSTREET.

To the honourable Council assembled at WATERTOWN, in the State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, the 20th day of SEPTEMBER, Anno Domini 1776.

The Petition of LYONEL BRADSTREET, late Commander of the Ship NOLLY FRIGATE, taken by the HANCOCK and FRANKLIN Privateers, humbly sheweth:

That your petitioner would set forth to your Honours that the above-said ship, with her cargo, was condemned the 12th day of August last. That your petitioner has leave from the honourable Congress in the State of N'ampshire to proceed to any port of Great Britain or elsewhere, upon condition that your petitioner don't act directly or indirectly inimical to America during the present dispute with Great Britain. That your petitioner prays your Honours he may have liberty to go as a passenger in the ship at Boston belonging to Mr. Ross. And your petitioner, as in duty bound, shall ever pray, &c.

LYONEL BRADSTREET.

In Council, September 20, 1776.

Read, and Ordered, That the prayer of this Petition be granted, and the said Lyonel Bradstreet be permitted to depart from this State to any part of Great Britain in such vessel as Messrs. Ross and Morgan, who lately had liberty granted by this Board to depart, have purchased for this purpose.

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

PETITION OF GEORGE ASHBURN.

State of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

To the honourable the General Court of said State:

The Petition of GEO. ASHBURN shows:

That your petitioner being master of the ship Isaac, was on a voyage in said ship from the Island of Tortola, bound to Liverpool, in England, to visit his family and attend to his private concerns. That in proceeding said voyage, he was taken and brought into this State. This unexpected event has thrown your petitioner into the most distressed and pitiable circumstance. As his wife was born in America, he is in fear she'll find but few friends in his absence; that she and children must suffer without his support. Your petitioner begs leave to declare that he has never taken an active part in the unhappy controversy between Great Britain and America, and from his age, standing in life, it necessarily follows that he never will. He therefore humbly prays your Honours to take his unhappy case into your consideration, and grant him liberty to take passage for some part of England in the ship owned by Mr. William Ross, and by your Honours' permission bound to some part of England, or grant him such other relief as your Honours' well-known wisdom and humanity may point out. And your petitioner, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

GEO. ASHBURN.

In Council, September 20, 1776.

Read, and Ordered, That the prayer of the Petition be granted, and the said George Ashburn, be permitted to depart from this State to any part of Great Britain, in such vessel as Messrs. Ross and Morgan, who lately had liberty granted them by this Board to depart, have purchased for this purpose.

J. AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

INSTRUCTIONS TO CAPTAIN JOHN CLOUSTON.

By the major part of the Council:

Captain JOHN CLOUSTON:

The sloop Freedom, under your command, being in all respects equipped in warlike manner, and being also well and properly manned, so as to enable you to proceed on a cruise, you therefore are directed to range the eastern-shore of this State, laying between the River Piscataqua and Machias, in order to clear that coast of any of the enemy's cruisers that may be infesting the same, and from thence proceed to the mouth of the River St. Lawrence, and there cruise until the 1st of November, in order to intercept any of the enemy's vessels that may be passing that way, and from thence you must proceed to the coast of Newfoundland, and there cruise until the middle of November aforesaid, in order to surprise and seize such vessels of the enemy as you meet with upon that coast, or in any of the harbours of the same, after which you may proceed upon a cruise as far to the southward as latitude 38° north, and continue upon said cruise so long as you find it practicable or expedient; and then you are to return to the harbour of Boston, always using every necessary precaution to prevent the sloop under your command from falling into the hands of the enemy. You are to observe and follow such orders and directions as you shall from time to time receive from Captain Daniel Souther, provided they are consistent with the instructions now given you.

And whereas you have received a commission by force of arms to attack, seize, and take on the high seas, all ships and other vessels belonging to the inhabitants of Great Britain, or others, infesting the sea-coast of this Continent, you are therefore punctually to follow the instructions already delivered you for regulating your conduct in this matter, and in all things conduct yourself consistent with the trust reposed in you.

In Council, September 20, 1776.—In the name and by order of Council. JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

PETITION OF THOMAS BUCKMORE.

To the Honourable Council, sitting at WATERTOWN, in the State of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, SEPTEMBER 19, 1776.
The Petition of THOMAS BUCKMORE, of CONCORD, Armourer, humbly sheweth:

That your petitioner has been employed in making of fire-arms for this State for upwards of eighteen months past. That your petitioner has supplied the said State with new arms, and repairing upwards of three hundred to satisfaction of his employer, and employed workmen for the said service with great difficulty. That your petitioner has now upon hand about one hundred arms, belonging to the State, and some partly finished, and would be glad to know what to do with them. That your petitioner is drawn out, with three of his workmen, by the officer of the town, to proceed to New-York as soldiers. That your petitioner is not against proceeding, if his accounts can be made up with the Commissary, and discharge them, if your Honours think he can be spared from his business, which instance he never knew in London upon any such emergency. That if your petitioner is ordered to proceed, he prays your Honours he may go in the station of an armourer. And your petitioner, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

THOMAS BUCKMORE.

State of Massachusetts-Bay, Council Chamber, }
September 20, 1776. }

Whereas it has been represented to this Board by Thomas Buckmore, of Concord, that he has been employed in making Fire-arms for this State for upwards of eighteen months past, and has now upon hand a large number of Arms belonging to the State, and some partly finished, and that he, the said Thomas Buckmore, is drawn out, with three of his workmen, by the officer of the town, to proceed to New-York as soldiers: the Board, considering how necessary it is that this State should be fully supplied with Fire-arms, and that the Armourers actually employed in making such Arms are doing more essential service to the State, while thus employed, than they could do as soldiers, are of opinion, that the said Thomas Buckmore and his workmen ought not to have been counted or drafted to serve as soldiers in the present reinforcement to be sent to the Army at New-York:

Therefore, Ordered, That Captain George Minot, of Concord, be, and he hereby is required and directed to discharge the said Thomas Buckmore and Silas Wood from the service for which they were drafted, and immediately to proceed to draft two other persons in their room, not engaged in the necessary business of this State.

PETITION OF WILLIAM JENKINS.

State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

To the honourable the Council and the honourable the House of Representatives of said State, in General Court assembled, at WATERTOWN, this 12th day of September, 1776, humbly sheweth:

WILLIAM JENKINS, of the City of BRISTOL, in the Kingdom of GREAT BRITAIN, Mariner;

That your petitioner, being master of the brigantine called the Perkins, was, by the chance of war, taken by the Captains Tucker and Skimmer, in the Continental armed schooners, called the Hancock and Franklin, and brought into the port of Boston, where he now is.

Your petitioner would represent to the honourable Court that, at the time of his being taken, he was on a merchant voyage, bound from St. Augustine to Bristol, in Great Britain; that he had on board his said brigantine no supplies of any kind, either for the fleet or the army now employed against these States, neither had he arms or ammunition.

Your petitioner would further represent to the honourable Court, that he left in Bristol a wife and four small children, who are entirely dependent on him for their support and maintenance, and he is really apprehensive that, even before this time, they may be suffering all the anxiety and distress annexed to a want of the necessities and comforts of life, unless fortunate enough to find friends to relieve them in their troubles. However tedious and irksome his continuance here might otherwise be, this cannot but necessarily render it more so. He therefore prays the honourable Court that, from a consideration of the premises, they would grant him permission to take passage for Great Britain, or any other part of Europe, the first opportunity that offers: he also prays liberty to take with him his servant boy.

He humbly presumes there will be no objection to the prayer of his petition, as he is not held as a prisoner of war, and no information that he can give can be of any possible service or disservice to either party in this war, unless indeed the humanity with which he has been treated may be an inducement to the like treatment of others in similar circumstances on the other side. And, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

WILLIAM JENKINS.

In Council, September 20, 1776.

Read, and Ordered, That the prayer of this Petition be granted, and said Petitioner be permitted to depart, with his servant boy, to any part of Great Britain, agreeable to his request.

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

To the honourable the Council of the MASSACHUSETTS State:

GENTLEMEN: The bearer, Captain Jenkins, who waits on the honorable Board with a petition, appears to be a person deserving the commiseration of the Board. I have reason to believe nothing but his attachment to his family, and the reasons set forth in his petition, induces him to leave America. I pray the honourable Board to gratify the petitioner, and they will lay a lasting obligation on their most obedient, most obliged, and very humble servant,

C. J. BRADFORD.

September 14, 1776.

PETITION OF ROBERT BROWN AND JOHN MOON.

To the honourable the Council of the State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY.

The Petition of Robert Brown and John Moon humbly sheweth:

That one of your petitioners, viz: Robert Brown, was lately chief mate on board the ship Rachel, Moses Henry, master, bound from Grenada, in the West Indies, to London. That your Honours' other petitioner, viz: John Moon, was steward on board said ship. That, on the 26th day of August last, the said ship Rachel was taken by the armed sloop called the Tyrannicide, commanded by Captain John Fisk, and your petitioners taken out of said ship, and put on board said sloop, and brought into Salem, in this State; but, before the said sloop Tyrannicide was out of sight of the said ship Rachel, the said ship was retaken by a British man-of-war. That when your petitioners were put on board the said sloop Tyrannicide, they left all their interest, together with their wearing apparel, on board their own ship. That your petitioners are, by these means, deprived of the necessary means of subsistence; and, from the peculiar circumstances necessarily attending their situation, they are rendered totally incapable of procuring a maintenance.

Your petitioners' most humble prayer, therefore, is, that your Honours would be pleased to grant them permission to take passage for London in a ship bound there, and lately purchased by Mr. Ross and others. And your petitioners, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

ROBERT BROWN.

Salem, September 22, 1776.

JOHN MOON.

In Council, September 24, 1776.

Liberty is hereby granted to Robert Brown and John Moon to depart this State in the Ship Creighton, Benjamin Moore, Master, lately purchased by Mr. Ross for the purpose of transporting himself and others to Great Britain.

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

MEMORIAL OF COMMITTEE OF SUNBURY, NOVA-SCOTIA.

To the honourable the General Assembly of the State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, in NEW-ENGLAND:

The Memorial of the Committee of Safety for the County of SUNBURY, in NOVA-SCOTIA, humbly sheweth:

That whereas your memorialist did in the month of May last prefer a petition to the said General Assembly, setting forth that the inhabitants on the River St. John's were desirous of committing themselves to the government and protection of the Province (or State) of the Massachusetts-Bay, and other matters as set forth in said petition.

Having received no direct answer to these particulars, we have since endeavoured to regulate our conduct agreeable to the rules made by the United States, as far as we have been able to get information, but our remote situation renders it difficult on these accounts.

It is the humble request of the aforesaid Committee, that if the inhabitants on the River St. John's are esteemed as a part of the free States of America, your Honours would be pleased to signify it to them, and give directions for their future conduct, who are ready at all times to pursue every measure in their power that you shall prescribe. And your memorialists, as in duty bound, shall ever pray for the peace and prosperity of the American States, and for the preservation of your Honours' lives and administration.

Signed by order and in behalf of the Committee:

JACOB BARKER, Chairman.

Mauryervill, September 24, 1776.

Attest:

ISRAEL PERLEY, Clerk.

For particular information of the circumstances of the inhabitants on the river St. John's, with regard to commerce, &c., &c., the General Assembly are desired to inquire of the bearer, Francis Shaw, Jun., Esq.

TO JAMES SIMONDS, JAMES WHITE, and JAMES SAY, Esqrs.

GENTLEMEN: The disputes between Great Britain and America are so generally known and so fully understood by you, that to say any thing upon that subject would be needless. Likewise the proceedings of the inhabitants of this river in that regard you have been made acquainted with. These measures you have not thought proper to fall in with, neither have you declared against them. This conduct of yours gives uneasiness to many of the inhabitants, who think you stand ready to be reconciled to the strongest party, and if unhappily for the Americans, wherewith should it be but with the heads of these men? We, therefore, in the name and in behalf of our constituents request of you an explicit declaration of your sentiments on this subject, and what part you are determined to take in the present controversy. You will perhaps say you are determined to stand neuter, but this will not be a satisfactory answer. We conclude you have determined in your own mind which of the contending parties you choose should get the victory, in case the sword determine it; and he must be a slothful man who chooses or desires a thing may come to pass, and yet shall use no measures direct or indirect to accomplish his desire. We don't mean to prescribe rules binding on the consciences of men, nor yet to urge any person into measures contrary to his inclination: all we request of you is a plain declaration of your sentiments and determinations, and that immediately.

By order of the Committee of Safety:

JACOB BARKER, Chairman.

Mauryervill, June the 20, 1776.

Copy of the original:

ISRAEL PERLEY, Clerk.

No answer hath been given to the foregoing letter. In July following Mr. Simonds was up river, and being questioned concerning those matters, he said he had wrote an answer, but upon consideration thought best not to send it. He was then requested by some that if he was a friend to the cause, that he would leave something privately with the Committee, expressing his sentiments; this he declined, any further than words, alleging that he could be of more service to the people not to do it. He was then asked to give something from under his hand, he would not inform or appear at Government against the inhabitants for their entering into an alliance with the people of New-England; this he refused. Being told by some of the Committee that they could not esteem such a man their friend, nor a friend to the cause in general, nor could they, consistent with their own resolves, hold any commerce with him, he said if he did do such a thing, he must represent that he was compelled to do it, which he thought would be rather against the people. Thus matters remain to this day.

PETITION OF WILLIAM PASCALL.

The honourable the Council of the State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

May it please your Honours:

The humble Petition of WILLIAM PASCALL, steerage passenger on board the ship ANNA MARIA, WILLIAM PRINGLE Commander, from BARBADOES, bound for LONDON, and taken by the privateer sloop REVENGE, of SALEM, JOSEPH WHITE Commander, sheweth:

That whereas I hear of a ship in Boston harbour, purchased by Messrs. Ross and Morgan, of said Boston, with intent of carrying passengers to London, I humbly crave the favour your Honours will of your goodness grant me the liberty to return in said ship to London, my native place, as I have a tender mother, a widow, and two children younger than myself, whose whole dependence (under God) is on my labour and industry for their support. I complain not, may it please your Honours, of any ill treatment since my being made a captive, but on the contrary declare, and will at all times declare, my being exceedingly well used. But my money being on the decline, and a long, and in all probability tedious winter approaching, is the sole cause of this my earnest prayer. I beg, therefore, your consideration of my case, and that this my request and prayer may be granted. And your petitioner, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

WILLIAM PASCALL.

Salem, 18th September, 1776.

In Council, September 24, 1776.

Liberty is hereby granted to the within-named William Pascall to depart this State in the Ship Creighton, Benjamin Moore Master, lately purchased by Mr. Ross, for the purpose of transporting himself and others to Great Britain.

JNO. AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

PETITION OF ADAM HIGH.

May it please your Honours:

The humble Petition of ADAM HIGH, Second Mate, and THOMAS LIMMON, Boatswain, on board the ship ANNA MARIA, WILLIAM PRINGLE Commander, from BARBADOES, bound for LONDON, and taken by the privateer sloop REVENGE, of SALEM, JOSEPH WHITE Commander, sheweth:

That whereas we hear of a ship now in Boston harbour, purchased by Messrs. Ross and Morgan, of said Boston, with intent of carrying passengers to London, we humbly crave the favour your Honours will of your goodness grant us the liberty to return in said ship to our native homes, as we have each of us in London a wife and several children, whose whole dependence, under the Almighty, is on our labour for their support. We complain not, may it please your Honours, of any ill-treatment since our being made captives, but on the contrary declare, and will at all times declare, our being exceedingly well used. But our money being on the decline, and a long and in all probability tedious winter approaching, is the sole cause of this our earnest prayer. We beg, therefore, your consideration of our case, and that this our request and prayer may be granted. And your petitioners, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

ADAM HIGH,
THOMAS LIMMON.

Salem, 18th September, 1776.

To the honourable the Council of the State of the Massachusetts-Bay.

In Council, September 24, 1776.

Liberty is hereby granted to the within-named Adam High and Thomas Lemmon to depart this State in the Ship Creighton, Benjamin Moore Master, lately purchased by Mr. Ross, for the purpose of transporting himself and others to Great Britain. JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

PETITION OF OWNERS OF SLOOP PHOENIX.

State of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

To the honourable the Council now sitting in WATERTOWN: The Petition of JOHN ROWE, in behalf of himself of BOSTON, and CARLTON B , of VIRGINIA, humbly sheweth:

That your petitioners, owners of the sloop Phoenix, burthened ninety tons, armed with ten three and four-pounders, eight swivels and cohorns, one thousand weight of powder with shot in proportion, navigated by sixty men, and two months' provisions on board; said sloop is destined to cruise against the enemies of the United States of America. The officers on board are as follows, viz: Joseph Cunningham, Captain; William Lovering, 1st Lieutenant; Daniel Malcom, 2d ditto; Henry Jackson, Master.

Your petitioners would therefore humbly request your Honours to commission the said sloop and commander for the purpose before mentioned. And your petitioners, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

JOHN ROWE.

In Council, September 24, 1776.

Read, and Ordered, That the prayer of this Petition be granted, and that a Commission be issued out to the above named Joseph Cunningham, as commander of said sloop, he complying with the resolves of Congress.

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

PETITION OF OWNERS OF SLOOP LIBERTY.

To the honourable Council of the State of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

The Petition of SAMUEL WEBB, SAMUEL FLAGG, and HENRY WILLIAMS, of SALEM, humbly sheweth:

That your petitioners are fixing out at Salem, the schooner Liberty as a privateer, to cruise upon the enemies of the United States of America; which schooner is about twenty tons burthen, mounts six guns, navigated by twenty-five men; has on board fifty pound of powder, eight barrels of beef and pork, two thousand weight of bread, and will be commanded, if your Honours please, by Ebenezer Peirce. Your petitioners therefore pray that your Honours would be pleased to grant a commission to the said Ebenezer Peirce to command the said schooner for the above purpose. And your petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray, &c.

SAMUEL WEBB, SAMUEL FLAGG,
HENRY WILLIAMS.

In Council, September 24, 1776.

Read, and Ordered, That the prayer of the Petition be granted, and that a Commission be issued out to the said Ebenezer Peirce, as commander of the Schooner Liberty, he complying with the resolves of Congress.

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

PETITION OF PETER GOULAY.

May it please your Honours:

The humble Petition of PETER GOURLAY, Carpenter on board the Ship MARIA, WILLIAM PRINGLE Commander, from BARBADOES, bound for LONDON, and taken by the Privateer Sloop REVENGE, of SALEM, JOSEPH WHITE Commander, humbly sheweth:

That whereas I am informed of a ship now in Boston harbour, purchased by Messrs. Ross and Morgan, of said Boston, with purpose of carrying passengers to London, I humbly crave the favour, your Honours will of your goodness grant me the liberty to return in said ship to my native home, and to my family, whose whole dependence (under God) is on my labour for their support. I freely, and with gratitude, acknowledge to have been treated with the greatest civility and kindness, since my being made a captive; but my money now grows very low, that I cannot possibly support myself the approaching winter. I therefore humbly entreat your Honours' consideration of my case, and that this my earnest request and prayer may be granted. And your petitioner, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

PETER GOULAY.

Salem, 23d September, 1776.

To the honourable the Council of the State of the Massachusetts-Bay, assembled at Watertown.

In Council, September 24, 1776.

Read, and Ordered, That liberty be hereby granted to the within petitioner to depart this State in the Ship Creighton, lately purchased by William Ross, for the purpose of transporting himself and others to Great Britain.

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

PETITION OF DANIEL DONNAN AND OTHERS.

State of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

To the honourable the General Court of said State:

The Petition of DANIEL DONAVAN, Esquire, GEORGE BATES, and MARK SIDDEN, humbly sheweth:

That your petitioners were passengers on board the ship Isaac, on a voyage from Tortola to Liverpool, in England, and being on said voyage were taken and brought into this State. That all your petitioners have the strongest of family connexions in England, and some of them wives and children, entirely depending upon them for support, added to the distress of mind occasioned by their separation from their friends; they find themselves in a situation that threatens them with the want of every necessary of life. These calamities are less easily supported, as they have never taken any active part in that dispute which is the foundation of their present captivity. Your petitioners therefore humbly pray your Honours to take their unhappy case into your wise considerations, and grant that Daniel Donovan and his servant, Mark Sudden and his servant, and George Bates, may have liberty to take passage for some part of Europe, in a ship owned by Mr. William Ross, or grant them such other relief as your Honours may think fit. And your petitioners, as in duty bound, shall ever pray, &c.

DANIEL DONNAN,
GEORGE BATES,
MARK SEDDEN.

In Council, September 24, 1776.

Read, and Ordered, That liberty be hereby granted to the above petitioners to depart this State in the Ship Creighton, Benjamin Moore Master, lately purchased by Mr. Ross, for the purpose of transporting himself and others to Great Britain.

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

PETITION OF JOHN BEARDWELL BARNARD.

To the honourable Council of the State of MASSACHUSETTS, now sitting at WATERTOWN:

The Petition of JOHN BEARDWELL BARNARD, passenger, humbly sheweth:

That your petitioner, having been taken on his passage, bound for London, in the ship Pecary, Breholt Cleaveland Commander, from Tobago, and carried into Cape Ann, begs the gentlemen to consider his case, having a wife and three children, to give him leave to proceed in the first ship permitted to sail for England. And your petitioner will ever pray.

J. B. BARNARD.

Cape Ann, September the 18th, 1776.

PETITION OF JOHN EMMES.

State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

Unto the honourable the Council of said State, sitting in WATERTOWN, SEPTEMBER, 1776:

The Petition of JOHN EMMES humbly shows:

That he was taken on board the ship Creighton, from Antigua, and brought into Boston by the Yankee privateer. That his friends and connexions are all in Great Britain. That he has no money to support him here, and therefore humbly prays your Honours would be pleased to allow him to depart in the ship William, owned by Mr. William Ross, and that he will act as a seaman on board of said ship. And your petitioner, as bound, shall ever pray, &c.

JOHN EMMES.

In Council, September 24, 1776.

Read, and Ordered, That liberty be granted to said petitioner to depart this State in the Ship Creighton, lately purchased by him for the purpose of transporting him and others to Great Britain.

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

PETITION OF JOHN BROWN.

To the honourable the Council of the MASSACHUSETTS STATE, now sitting in WATERTOWN:
The Petition of JOHN BROWN, a native and inhabitant of GREAT BRITAIN, humbly sheweth:

That your petitioner belonged to the ship Earl of Erroll, and was on his passage from the Island Grenada to London, but, on the 24th July last, was taken by two privateers of New-York, and sent into Boston.

That your petitioner, having a wife and family in London, is desirous of returning to them, and begs the favour of your honourable Board to grant him a permit to go thither with Mr. Ross, who, your petitioner understands, is permitted to go in the Ship Clayton. And your petitioner, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

JOHN BROWNE.

In Council, September 24, 1776.

Read, and Ordered, That said petitioner have liberty granted to depart this State in the Ship Creighton, Benjamin Moore Master, lately purchased by Mr. Ross, for the purpose of transporting himself and others to Great Britain.

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

Boston, September 21st, 1776.

PETITION OF JOHN ROWE.

State of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

To the honourable the Council now sitting at WATERTOWN:
The Petition of JOHN ROWE, of BOSTON, humbly sheweth:

That your petitioner, with several others, owners of the sloop Phoenix, now fitting her out to cruise against the enemies of these United States, and said sloop having every necessary equipment but the article of gunpowder, and for want of which she is unable to proceed on her cruise; your petitioner, therefore, humbly prays that your Honours would grant him permission to purchase five hundred weight of gunpowder out of the publick magazine belonging to this State, and for which he will immediately pay the money.

JOHN ROWE.

In Council, September 24, 1776.

Resolved, That the Commissary-General of this State be, and he hereby is directed to deliver John Rowe, Esq., five hundred pounds of Gunpowder, to be taken from the Powder-Mill at Andover, for the use of a private sloop-of-war called the Phoenix, he, the said Rowe, allowing and paying the sum of six shillings per pound for said Powder to the said Commissary-General, who is to be accountable for the same.

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

PETITION OF JOHN STALKER.

May it please your Honours:

The humble Petition of JOHN STALKER, Mariner on board the ship ANNA MARIA, WILLIAM PRINGLE Commander, from BARBADOES, bound for LONDON, and taken by the privateer sloop REVENGE, of SALEM, JOSEPH WHITE Commander, sheweth:

That whereas I hear of a ship, now lying in Boston harbour, purchased by Messrs. Ross and Morgan, of said Boston, with intent of carrying passengers to London, I humbly crave the favour your Honours will of your goodness grant me the liberty to return in said ship to London, it being my native place, where I have a wife, whose whole support depends upon my labour and industry; and myself being a man of a very weakly constitution, very unable to endure the hardships of a long and in all probability tedious winter, being always used to a warmer climate; my money also being much on the decline, that I cannot possibly support myself here much longer.

These, may please your Honours, are the sole cause of this my earnest prayer; for I freely and with gratitude acknowledge to have been treated with the greatest civility and kindness since my being made a captive. I therefore beg your Honours' consideration of my case, and that this my prayer may be granted.

JOHN STALKER.

Salem, 20th September, 1776.

To the honourable Council of the State of the Massachusetts-Bay.

In Council, September 24, 1776.

Read, and Ordered, That liberty be hereby granted to the said petitioner to depart this State in the Ship Creighton, Benjamin Moore Master, lately purchased by Mr. Ross, for the purpose of transporting himself and others to Great Britain.

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

PETITION OF CAPTAIN BROWN.

To the honourable Council of the State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

The Petition of Captain WILLIAM BROWN sheweth:

That your petitioner is appointed by Messrs. Paul Dudley Sergeant, James Swan, Mungo Mackey, and Thomas Adams, to the command of the privateer frigate-ship named the Boston, of which they are proprietors, which is almost ready to sail upon a six months' cruise against the enemies of America. She carries twenty-two guns—ten nine-pounders, six six-pounders, and six four-pounders, with two hundred and ten hands, including officers and marines; is burthened about four hundred tons, and has on board ninety barrels of pork, ninety barrels of beef, with small stores. The First Lieutenant's name is Heman Doane, the Second Lieutenant's name is John Snoddin; Captain of Marines, Gaven Brown, Jr., the Lieutenant of Marines, William Nichols.

Your petitioner therefore prays your Honours would commission him commander of said frigate, and give him the necessary papers of instructions. And, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

WILLIAM BROWNE.

In Council, September 24, 1776.

Read, and Ordered, That the prayer of the above Petition be granted, and that a Commission be issued out to the above Commander, he complying with the resolves of Congress.

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

FORM OF BOND GIVEN BY AGENTS FOR CAPTURES.

Know all men by these presents, that we, Timothy Persons, of Pownalborough, in the County of Lincoln and State of Massachusetts-Bay, gentleman, and stand firmly bound and obliged to Henry Gardiner, Esq., Treasurer of the State aforesaid, in the sum of ten thousand pounds, to be paid the said Treasurer or his successors in said office, to the which payment, well and truly to be made, we bind ourselves, our heirs, executors, and administrators, jointly and severally, and firmly, by these presents. In testimony whereof we have hereunto set our hands and seals, this 24th day of September, Anno Domini 1776.

The condition of the foregoing obligation is such, that whereas the said Timothy Persons, Esq., is appointed Agent for the Eastern District for all captures made by any vessel or otherways in which this State is any way interested or concerned, whose authority as Agent shall be limited to and confined within the limits of the aforesaid district for holding the Court of Captures, as set forth by an act of this State for the trying and condemning of all vessels as aforesaid. If, therefore, the said Timothy Persons shall in all things observe and conduct himself according to the orders and directions given him respecting his office as Agent aforesaid, and shall duly account, when thereto legally required, for all moneys and effects by him received in virtue of his appointment as aforesaid, then the above obligation to be void, otherways to abide and remain in full force and virtue.

PETITION OF HUGH WALKER AND OTHERS.

State of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

To the honourable the Council of the said State:

The Petition of HUGH WALKER, ARCHIBALD BOG, and ROBERT PARK, humbly shows:

That your petitioners were taken in different ships belonging to the inhabitants of Great Britain and brought into this State; that they have families in Great Britain suffering for want of their assistance while they remain here without the least employment, and must soon suffer for want of the necessaries of life, or become an unwilling burthen upon their friends; your petitioners therefore humbly pray that your Honours will take their distressed circumstances into your wise consideration, and grant them a permission to leave this State with Mr. Ross on his intended voyage, or any other opportunity under the directions of your Honours, or make such order and grant them such relief as in your Honours' wisdom may seem fit. And your petitioners, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

HUGH WALKER,
ARCH'D BOG,
ROBERT PARK.

Boston, August 22d, 1776.

In Council, September 25, 1776.

Read, and Ordered, That liberty be hereby granted to the within petitioners to depart this State in the Ship Creighton, Benjamin Moore Master, lately purchased by Mr. Ross, for the purpose of transporting himself and others to Great Britain.

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

ORDER FOR PROCURING CANNON FOR THE SHIP BOSTON.

In Council, September 25, 1776.

Whereas, by a resolve of the General Court, passed September 16th, 1776, the Committee for Fortifying the Harbour of Boston were directed to send forthwith by water, so many Cannon, nine-pounders, with carriages and other apparatus from those in and about Boston as shall be sufficient to arm the Continental ship called the Boston, to the town of Newburyport; and whereas a sufficient number of nine-pound Cannon cannot be procured out of those in and about the town of Boston, for the purpose above mentioned: Therefore,

Ordered, That the Committee for fortifying the Harbour of Boston be, and hereby are directed to send to Newburyport for the Cannon aforesaid, forthwith by water, four twelve-pound Cannon and other apparatus, with their carriages, from those in and about Boston, in lieu of the nine-pound Cannon that are wanting, and they were directed to send to the place before mentioned, and also to supply the said Ship with two six-pounders and four four-pounders, if to be procured.

PETITION OF OWNERS OF SCHOONER INDEPENDENCE.

To the honourable Council of the State of MASSACHUSETTS BAY:

The Petition of WILLIAM NICKOLS, in behalf of himself, STEPHEN HOOPER, and SAMUEL BATCHELDER, humbly sheweth:

That your petitioners are fitting out at Newburyport, in this State, the schooner Independence, to cruise on the enemies at the United American States; said schooner is about fifty tons burthen, carries six carriage-guns, four and three-pounders, and eight swivels, with a sufficient quantity of powder and ball, has twenty barrels of provisions on board; will be navigated by twenty-five men, and commanded by William Nickols; First Lieutenant Moses Gerish; Cutting Lunt Captain of the Marines. Your petitioners, therefore humbly pray your Honours to commission William Nickols to command said schooner for the above purpose. And your petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

WILLIAM NICKOLS.

In Council, September 25, 1776.

Read, and Ordered, That a Commission be issued out to the above-named William Nickols, he complying with the resolves of Congress.

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

PETITION OF CHARLES REID.

State of MASSACHUSETTS:

Unto the honourable Council of said State, sitting at WATERTOWN:

The Petition of CHARLES REID humbly sheweth:

That the petitioner was taken some months ago in his passage to London, and brought into Boston. That he is a married man and has six small children, capable of no support to themselves, and who depend entirely for subsistence on his labour. That he has no way in the world of getting home to them unless the honourable Council will please to allow him to go in Mr. Ross's ship, which he earnestly requests may be granted him. And your petitioner, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

CHARLES REID.

In Council, September 25, 1776.

Read, and Ordered, That liberty is hereby granted to the above petitioner to depart this State in the Ship Creighton, Benjamin Moore Master, lately purchased by Mr. Ross, for the purpose of transporting himself and others to Great Britain.

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

PETITION OF ALEXANDER TOUGH AND THOMAS MAHONY.

State of MASSACHUSETTS:

To the honourable the Council of said State, sitting at WATERTOWN:

The Petition of ALEXANDER TOUGH and THOMAS MAHONY humbly sheweth:

That your petitioners were taken some months ago on their voyage from Jamaica to London, and brought into Boston. That Alexander Tough has three small children, who, having the misfortune to be motherless, are in the utmost need of his personal support. Thomas Mahony is likewise a married man, and has the additional care of a parent, who depends entirely upon him for maintenance. Your petitioners therefore most humbly request the honourable Council to permit them to go home in the ship belonging to Mr. Ross, as they have no other prospect of relief. And your petitioners, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

ALEXANDER TOUGH,
THOMAS MAHONY.

In Council, September 25, 1776.

Read, and Ordered, That liberty be hereby granted to the within petitioners to depart this State in the Ship Creighton, Benjamin Moore Master, lately purchased by Mr. Ross, for the purpose of transporting himself and others to Great Britain.

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

PERMISSION FOR THE SHIP WILLIAM.

State of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

Permission is hereby granted unto Benjamin Moore, Master of the Ship William, together with the several passengers and others on board her, to depart this State in ballast, and stores for the people and passengers' sustenance only, for some port in Great Britain, liberty having been granted to the said passengers and others by this Board, as will appear by the several permits delivered them, under the hand of the Secretary of this State, or his Deputy. Therefore, all masters and commanders of armed vessels fitted out from any of the United States will duly notice this permission, and suffer said ship to pass with her passengers and others, unmolested accordingly.

In Council Chamber, at Watertown, the 25th September, 1776.

In the name and per order Council:

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

In Council, September 26th, 1776.

Ordered, That the Committee of Safety, Inspection, &c., of the town of Boston be, and they hereby are directed to deliver to Mr. William Ross, owner of the Ship William, (lately the Creighton,) the sails, or any other articles now in their possession, belonging to said Ship. And the said Committee are further directed carefully to inspect the said ship, and to take care that no one person takes passage in the said ship but such as have a certificate in writing under the hand of the Secretary of this State, or his Deputy, certifying that liberty has been granted them for that purpose. And the said Committee are also directed to see that no other persons but such as produce a certificate as aforesaid, take passage in said vessel; and the Committee are directed to permit Mr. Ross to take on board as provisions for the voyage such articles named in a bill of stores this day delivered Mr. Ross, signed by the Secretary, which has been allowed by this Board; and the Committee are also directed to return a list of the names of the persons who shall actually sail in the said ship, to this Board as soon as may be.

PETITION OF WILLIAM ROSS.

State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

To the honourable the Council of State sitting in WATERTOWN, SEPTEMBER, 1776:

The Petition of WILLIAM ROSS, of JAMAICA, gentleman, humbly shows:

That by an order of this honourable Board of the 7th ultimo, your petitioner, in conjunction with Mr. Nathaniel Morgan, were permitted to purchase a vessel for the convenience of transporting themselves and their families to Great Britain, to depart from this State any time after the 1st instant, and in the mean time giving them leave to prepare such vessel as they might purchase, so as to be ready to sail when this honourable Board might think proper to grant them permission. In consequence of which order your petitioner has purchased a vessel, but in preparing her he has met with some interruption, particularly in procuring of ballast, which has been refused to be supplied him without a certificate from the Committee of Safety in Boston, of its being agreeable to them, for which certificate your petitioner applied to the said Committee, and produced a copy of the aforesaid order of this honourable Board, but the said Committee refused granting any such certificate, as the said order was not addressed to them.

Your petitioner therefore humbly prays that your Honours would be pleased to order the said Committee to grant him leave to procure such ballast, and to do and provide every thing else necessary for the putting the said vessel into a proper condition for going to sea, (excepting the bending of her sails,) that she may be ready to proceed whenever your Honours are pleased again to grant permission, the honourable Board in their wisdom having thought proper to suspend their former permission till further orders, by an order of the 21st ultimo. And your petitioner shall ever pray, &c.

WILL. ROSS.

In Council, September 3d, 1776.

Read, and Ordered, That David Sewall, Esq., be directed to take the within Petition into consideration and report.

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

Council Chamber, September 3, 1776.

Ordered, That William Ross, of Jamaica, who has by permission of this Board purchased a vessel to transport himself and family to Great Britain be, and hereby is permitted to procure ballast for his said vessel, and to do every thing necessary for repairing and fitting the vessel for the sea, for his intended voyage; and all persons are directed in no manner to retard, hinder, or molest, the said William Ross, or such persons as he may employ in that business. And to the end the said William Ross may not depart till the order of this Board, the Committee of Inspection, Correspondence, &c., for the town of Boston, are directed to receive the sails of the said vessel into their custody, and them detain until the said Ross shall have permission in writing from this Board to take his departure, and the said Committee are also directed to use their influence to prevent the said William's being interrupted in preparing his vessel for his intended voyage as aforesaid.

PETITION OF JAMES HODGES,

To the honourable Council assembled at WATERTOWN, in the State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, the 26th day of SEPTEMBER, Anno Domini 1776:

The Petition of JAMES HODGES, of ABERDEEN, in SCOTLAND, Merchant, humbly sheweth:

That your petitioner, about twelve months since, was passenger in the brigantine Diana, John Wallace Commander, from Quebeck, bound for Boston, and taken by some boats and carried to Cape Ann. That your petitioner has, by the kindness of your Honours, been upon parole ever since, to go any where upon the Continent; that your petitioner is of a tender constitution, and not brought up to labour, and nothing left for his support here, and having no opportunity to return to his native country, he prays that your Honours would grant leave therefor. And your petitioner, as in duty bound, shall ever pray, &c.

JAMES HODGES.

In Council, September 26, 1776.

Read, and Ordered, That the above petitioner have liberty granted him to depart this State in the Ship William, Benjamin Moore Master, lately purchased by Mr. Ross, for the purpose of transporting himself and others to Great Britain.

PETITION OF WILLIAM EMLE AND JAMES M'GILL.

State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

Unto the honourable the Council of said State:

The Petition of WILLIAM EMLE and JAMES M'GILL, humbly sheweth:

That your petitioners were taken on their passage on board the Zachary Bayley, from the West-Indies, to London, and brought into Boston; that your petitioners have wives and families in England, whose only support depends upon your petitioners, and in case they are not permitted to go to them, they must be reduced to the greatest misery and want. Your petitioners, therefore, most humbly pray your Honours would be pleased to permit them to depart on board the ship purchased by Mr. Ross, who will take them with your Honours' permission. And by granting this petition, your petitioners will be ever bound to pray, &c.

WILLIAM EMLE,
JAMES M'GILL.

In Council, September 26th, 1776.

Read, and Ordered, That the above petitioners have liberty granted to them to depart this State in the Ship William, Benjamin Moore Master, lately purchased by Mr. Ross, for the purpose of transporting himself and others to Great Britain.

APPLICATION FOR CAPTAIN SAMSON.

Kingston, 23d September, 1776.

SIR: Captain Samson waits upon the Council to make report, and receive further orders. As some small repairs are wanting on the brigantine he commands, and if the honourable Council should order him out again, some provisions, &c., will be necessary, I imagine it will be thought needful, that some person should be appointed for these purposes, as I don't know that any provision has been made in these respects.

Captain Samson thinks that it might have been advantageous to the State, as well as to the ship's crews, if he had not been so restricted by his orders in his last cruise. I presume your Honours will give him such instructions as shall be thought most conducive to the good of the State.

I am, sir, your very humble servant,

W. SEVER.

In Council, September 26, 1776.

Read, and Ordered, That the Hon. William Sever be appointed Agent for the purpose above mentioned, and he is hereby directed to supply the said Brigantine with such Stores, and other articles, as may be necessary to equip said Brigantine for the sea.

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

To Hon. James Bowdoin, Esq.

In Council, September 26, 1776.

Ordered, That the Hon. William Seaver, Esq., be appointed to provide the armed vessel commanded by Simeon Samson, with such Stores, and other articles, as may be necessary to equip said vessel for the sea; and the Commissary is hereby directed to supply said vessel out of their publick store with such things as by said Mr. Seaver shall be required of him.

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

Memorandum for sundry Provisions for Brigantine Independence, November:—25 barrels Beef, 15 barrels Pork, 1 cask Rice, 6,000 lbs. Bread, 6 firkins Butter, 10 bushels Peas or Beans, 50 bushels Potatoes and Turnips.

PETITION OF OWNERS OF SCHOONER HOPE.

State of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

To the Honourable the Council of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

The Petition of Watson and Spooner, Samuel Jackson, and John Grey, in the town of Plymouth, in behalf of themselves and others, owners of the schooner Hope, burthened about forty-seven tons, armed with five three-pounders and ten swivels, three hundred weight powder, one hundred three-pound, and twenty double-head shot, three hundred swivel shot, forty two and a half pound shot, eight hundred grape shot: provisions, twenty-five barrels beef and pork, and two thousand bread; navigated by forty-five men; Walter Hatch commander; is designed to cruise against the enemies of the United States of America.

Your petitioners would, therefore, humbly request your Honours to commission the said vessel and Captain for the purpose aforesaid. And your petitioners, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

WATSON SPOONER,
SAMUEL JACKSON,
JOHN GRAY.

N. B. John Churchill, First Lieutenant; Solomon Whitten, Second Lieutenant; Sibeline White, Master.

In Council, September 26, 1776.

Read, and Ordered, That a Commission be issued out to the above-named Walter Hatch, he complying with the resolves of Congress.

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

ORDER TO CAPTAIN BANGS.

In Council, September 26, 1776.

Whereas a number of men in the several Towns in the County of Barnstable, have been drafted to repair to the lines at Dorchester Heights, which men have not as yet arrived at the place of destination:

Ordered, That Captain Abijah Bangs, who was appointed to command said men, be, and is hereby directed and commanded immediately to repair to the County of Barnstable, and to order the men that have been drafted in the several towns in said County, for the purpose aforesaid, and who have not yet appeared, immediately to march to the Heights of Dorchester, there to attend their duty.

PETITION OF ALEXANDER LIDDELL AND THOMAS CREMARTY.

State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

Unto the honourable the Council of said State:

The Petition of ALEXANDER LIDDELL and THOMAS CREMARTY, humbly sheweth:

That your petitioners were taken in their passage from Jamaica to London, and brought into Boston. That the said Alexander Liddell has a wife and two small children at home, and his wife big with a third when he came away; that their support entirely depended upon his labour; and that the said Thomas Cremarty hath a father, who, from age and infirmities, has been confined to bed for three years past, whose whole subsistence, as well as that of his sister, who takes care of him, depends upon your petitioner.

That the conduct of your petitioners since their arrival in Boston, hath been so satisfactory that the owners of the privateer who took the ship they were in, knowing the above circumstances, made them a present of what little adventure they had on board, though the ship and cargo was condemned without exception. That, having converted their little property into money, they gave it to Mr. Ross, who has invested it in the purchase of his ship, &c., and cannot return them their money till his arrival in England.

Therefore most humbly prays your Honours to allow them to depart in the said ship, that their families may receive that relief which they must now be so much in want of. And your petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

ALEXANDER LIDDELL,
THOMAS CREMARTY.

William Ross begs leave to inform the honourable Board that the circumstances mentioned in the above petition respecting him are true, and most earnestly prays your Honours would be pleased to permit the petitioners to depart with him, that he may have it in his power to pay them their money, which he cannot do here but by bills of exchange, which, from the unhappy state of affairs, cannot be negotiated.

WILL. ROSS.

In Council, September 26, 1776.

Read, and Ordered, That the within petitioners have liberty granted them to depart this State in the Ship William, Benjamin Moore Master, lately purchased by Mr. Ross, for the purpose of transporting himself and others to Great Britain.

PETITION OF ROBERT M'KOWN.

To the honourable the Council of the State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, at WATERTOWN:

Your petitioner humbly sheweth that, as your petitioner, as Commissary for the troops stationed at Bristol, in the County of Lincoln, hath received the first and second payments, and hath settled his accounts for the first, and he is come up to settle his accounts for the second, and to receive the third payment according to the resolves of the Great and General Court, not knowing that the Court was adjourned, and as those supplies that your petitioner hath received are nearly exhausted, and the distance he hath come is two hundred miles, your petitioner humbly prays that his accounts may be examined; and that, as the distance is so great, he may receive the money for the three ensuing months, which is one hundred and eighty-seven pounds, ten shillings, or as much as your Honours, in your great wisdom, shall think proper. And your petitioner, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

ROBERT M'KOWN.

In Council, September 26, 1776.

Read, and Ordered, That the prayer of the above Petition be granted, and that a Warrant be drawn on the Treasury for £150, in favour of said M'Kown, he to be accountable for the same.

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

PETITION OF OWNERS OF SCHOONER RANGER.

State of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

To the honourable the Council now sitting in WATERTOWN: The Petition of TRISTRAM DALTON, JONATHAN TITCOMB, PETER ROBERTS, THOMAS THOMAS, and EBENEZER PARSONS, humbly shows:

That your petitioners, owners of the schooner Ranger, burthened about fifty-two tons, armed with six three-pounders, ten swivels, two hundred weight of powder, with shot in proportion, navigated by forty men; and thirty barrels of beef and pork, three thousand weight of bread, on board. Said schooner is intended to cruise against the enemies of these United States.

The officers on board are as follows, viz: Peter Roberts, Commander; Jeremiah Parsons, First Lieutenant; John Robinson, Master.

Your petitioners, therefore, humbly request your Honours to commission the said schooner and commander for the purposes above mentioned. And your petitioners, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

PETER ROBERTS,
In behalf of myself and owners.

In Council, September 27, 1776.

Read, and Ordered, That the prayer of the Petition be granted, and that a Commission be issued out to the said Peter Roberts, he complying with resolves of Congress.

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

PETITION OF JAMES FULTON.

To the honourable Council of the State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

The Petition of JAMES FULTON, late Master of the JEAN OF IROIN, humbly sheweth:

That your petitioner hath laid his case before your Honours twice before, this some time ago, to obtain liberty to return home. At present, your petitioner, understanding there is a ship bound from the port of Boston to London, belonging to Mr. William Ross, and that there is liberty granted to several shipmasters to go with the said William Ross, your petitioner humbly prays that your Honours would take his case into consideration, as I was taken by Captain Tucker, of the Hancock, armed schooner, and carried into Lynn, on the 7th of May, and hath remained in Lynn ever since, and never hath got any subsistence since that I came to the country, but hath been obliged to sell both clothes and other necessities to support me. For such reasons your petitioner humbly prays that your Honours would take his case into consideration, and grant him liberty, with his servant, to go with the above Mr. William Ross, or, if disappointed of him, with the first opportunity that may offer to Britain or Portugal. And your petitioner, in duty bound, shall ever pray.

JAMES FULTON.

In Council, September 27th, 1776.

Read, and Ordered, That the prayer of the Petition be so far granted, that the petitioner have liberty to depart this State in the Ship William, commanded by Benjamin Moore, lately purchased by Mr. Ross, for the purpose of transporting himself and others to Great Britain, provided the said Ross permit him to go in said ship; but permission for his servant is not granted.

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

Captain Fulton has remained in this town ever since he was taken, which is about four months, and during that time he has behaved himself with decency and civility, and not departed in any respect, as we apprehend, from his parole.

JOHN MANSFIELD,

Chairman of the Committee of Correspondence.

Lynn, 2d September, 1776.

To all persons whom it may concern.

PETITION OF JAMES KENNEDY.

State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

To the honourable Council of the State of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, now sitting in WATERTOWN:

The Petition of JAMES KENNEDY, late Master of the Ship PEGGY, &c., humbly sheweth:

That your petitioner laid his case before your Honours some time ago, of his bad state of health, and of his having a wife and small family in London, to which place your petitioner hears of a ship just going, belonging to a William Ross; your petitioner, therefore, being yet poorly in his health, and subject to rheumatism, fears the approaching season, and likewise in a place where he knows nobody that can give him support, and already has been obliged to dispose of his linen and clothes to support himself. He therefore hopes that your Honours would be pleased to grant him liberty to go in said ship, together with a servant man named John Weatherd, and girl named Sophia Kennedy, which your petitioner was obliged to bring from the West-Indies, to wait on and take care of him in his trouble, being at that time unable to put off or on his clothes, and is now been obliged to have the attendance of a doctor since his arrival here. Your petitioner therefore hopes that your Honours would be pleased to grant him said indulgence. And as in duty bound, he will ever pray, &c.

JAMES KENNEDY.

Boston, September 25th, 1776.

In Council, September 27, 1776.

Read, and Ordered, That the prayer of the petitioner be so far granted that he have liberty to depart this State with his servant girl, named Sophia Kennedy, (but his servant man not permitted to go,) in the Ship William, commanded by Benjamin Moore, lately purchased by Mr. Ross, for the purpose of transporting himself and others to Great Britain, provided the said Ross permits him to go in said vessel.

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

Boston, 29th September, 1776.

These certify whom it may concern, that Captain James Kennedy was master, and Thomas Pamp mate, of the Ship Peggy, when captured by the Captains Skimmer and Tucker.

J. BRADFORD.

PETITION OF RICHARD PYNE.

To the honourable the Council of the State of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, humbly sheweth:

That your petitioner, Richard Pyne, was chartered on the 26th of August, 1775, by Messrs. Lettis and Hayes, of the Island of St. Michael's, with a design to carry staves to the West-Indies; but by an unforeseen accident was prevented, on which said freighters thought proper to load her with wine and fruit for this Continent, and on the 7th of May, 1776, was taken by the armed schooner Hancock, of this Province, and carried into Lynn. Your petitioner now requests that your Honours will be good enough to give him liberty to depart from this country, that he may return home to his family; and as he has some freight due to him in the Island of St. Michael, would prefer going by that way; and some time past bought an old vessel with a design of proceeding when liberty would be granted, and since, apprehending that she might be liable to seizure, resold her. Your petitioner now humbly beseeches your Honours will permit him to buy a small vessel to return home with, with a crew of masters and servants to navigate her, that have your permission to depart from here, or permit him to depart by any other ways or means I may find most convenient for myself and a small boy, an apprentice. And as many other masters have your Honours' permission, your petitioner prays your Honours to permit the same indulgence to him, as on his being taken he signed a parole not to act against the Colonies, and is now willing to give your Honours any other obligations you may require, that a stranger or an individual can give. And on your Honours' permission, your petitioner will be forever bound to pray.

RICHARD PYNE.

In Council, September 27, 1776.

Read, and Ordered, That the prayer of this Petition be so far granted that the petitioner, but not his servants, have liberty to depart this State in the Ship William, commanded by Benjamin Moore, lately purchased by Mr. Ross, for the purpose of transporting himself and others to Great Britain, provided the said Mr. Ross permits him to go in said ship.

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

Boston, July, 1776.

Captain Richard Pyne, of the brig William, has given his parole of honour not to act against the United Colonies.

J. WARD, A. D. C.

Committee of Correspondence, Lynn, September 26, 1776.

Richard Pyne, who was master of the brigantine called the William, which was taken and brought into the harbour in this town, has resided here ever since the capture, and we are fully persuaded has made no attempts to depart the country secretly and without license, but has in all respects abided by his parole. And we are unable to suggest any reason why he should have liberty to depart and return home denied him, if others in the same condition with him have liberty granted to them. We esteem him to be a gentleman and a man of honour, and as such, we recommend him to the respect and assistance of all persons.

JNO. FLAGG, per order.

PETITION OF JOHN DONNESTON.

To the honourable the Council of the State of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

The Petition of JOHN DONNESTON, late Master of the Ship ANN, humbly sheweth:

That your petitioner laid his case before your Honours some time ago to obtain leave to go out of this country, and at present there is a ship bound from Boston to the port of London. He therefore begs your Honours would be pleased to grant him liberty to go in that ship, along with Mr. William Ross, as he understands several other shipmasters is going who was taken some time after him. Your petitioner, therefore, most humbly prays your Honours will grant him liberty to return home to his wife and family by this ship or the first that goes to any port of Britain, Spain, or Portugal, as he has been near four months in this country and never had any subsistence allowed him, and had an interest on board when taken upward of three hundred pounds sterling. Your petitioner, therefore, begs your Honours will take his hard case into consideration, and allow him any part of his private venture your Honours may think proper, with liberty to depart from this country. And in duty bound, shall ever pray.

JOHN DONNESTON.

In Council, September 27, 1776.

Read, and Ordered, That the prayer of this Petition be granted; the petitioner have liberty to depart this State in the Ship William, commanded by Benjamin Moore, lately purchased by Mr. Ross, for the purpose of transporting himself and others to Great Britain, provided the said Mr. Ross permit him, the said Donneston, to go in said ship.

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

APPLICATION IN FAVOUR OF CAPTAIN DUDFIELD.

To the honourable the President of the Council, WATERTOWN.

Salem, 27th September, 1776.

The bearer, Captain Dudfield, was taken and brought in here by Captain Fisk, in the Tyrannicide. He has a young son with him, about six years old, and a black boy; and now waits on the Council in hopes of obtaining permission for himself and then, together with the surgeon of his vessel, to sail for England with Mr. Ross. They have very little to support themselves here, and will soon become burthensome to the State. May it not, under the circumstances, be prudent to let them go?

With due respect, I am your Honours most obedient servant,
 RICHARD DERBY, JUN.
 To the honourable the President of the Council.

In Council, September 28, 1776.

Read, and Ordered, That liberty be granted to Captain Dudfield, his son and servant, to depart this State in the Ship William, Benjamin Moore Master, lately purchased by Mr. Ross, for the purpose of transporting himself and others to Great Britain; but permission is not granted to his Surgeon.

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

PETITION OF PEARSON JONES.

To the honourable Council of the State of MASSACHUSETTS:
 The Petition of PEARSON JONES, of FALMOUTH, C. BAY, humbly shows:

That he, with Ebenezer Parsons, of Newbury-Port, have fitted out a sloop called the Putnam, burthened sixty tons, navigated by forty-five men, mounted with two carriage-guns, three-pounds, and sixteen swivel-guns, to carry two hundred pounds powder, three thousand pounds beef, four barrels pork, three thousand pounds of bread, &c. That said sloop is fitted out for the purpose of cruising against the enemies to the American States. That the owners of said sloop have chosen the following officers for her, viz: Joseph Bailey Captain, John Maxwell First Lieutenant, Nathaniel Thompson Second Lieutenant, William Thomas Master. The petitioner therefore prays your Honours to grant a commission to Captain Joseph Bayley as commander of the above-mentioned vessel. And, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

PEARSON JONES.

In Council, September 28, 1776.

Read, and Ordered, That a Commission be issued out to Joseph Bayley, as Commander of the above Sloop called the Putnam, he complying with the resolves of Congress.

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

ORDER FOR SUPPLIES FOR GENERAL WASHINGTON.

In Council, September 28, 1776.

Whereas General Washington, in his letter of the 19th instant, to the General Assembly of this State, has represented that the army under his command are much in want of Camp Utensils, and that he knows not how to procure a sufficiency:

Therefore, Ordered, That the Commissary-General be, and hereby is directed to procure two Teams, and load the same with such a number of iron Pots as they can contain, and send them forward immediately to Norwich, in the State of Connecticut, and consign them to William Coit, Esq., merchant there, and desire him to forward them by water to the town of Fairfield, to the address of Thaddeus Burr, Esq., to be by him forwarded to General Washington for the use of the Continental Army in the State of New-York.

PETITION OF JAMES DARGIE.

To the honourable Council and Representatives of the General Court assembled at WATERTOWN:

The humble Petition of JAMES DARGIE, setteth forth:

That he arrived at this place upon the 9th of April, 1775, to go as an officer on board of a new ship, then building at Danvers, for Dr. John Calfe, of Ipswich, by Captain Israel Hutchinson, and further sheweth that the said ship was launched in June, 1775, from which time to the present, as the ship has been stopped by the honourable House as above, your said petitioner has been distressed greatly for want of the necessaries of life, and as I see no prospect of the ship going from hence, humbly begs your Honours to grant me liberty to leave this country, as having a wife and two small children at home, and must be in a poorer situation for want of my assistance. Your Honours' compliance will forever bind your petitioner to pray.

JAMES DARGIE.

ORDER FOR DISCHARGE OF CONSTANT CHURCH, AN INDIAN.

State of Massachusetts-Bay, Council Chamber,
 September 30, 1776. }

Whereas by an order of Council of the 9th instant, one Bill, alias Constant Church, an Indian, was committed to the Gaol in Cambridge, in the County of Middlesex, on suspicion of being a Spy sent from Canada, and there to remain till further order of Council; and it having been now made to appear to this Board that the said Indian belongs to the town of Freetown, and not likely that he was any Spy or any ways inimical:

Therefore, Ordered, That the said Constant Church be, and he hereby is discharged from his confinement in the said Gaol in Cambridge.

In the name and by the order of the Council.

To the Keeper of the Gaol in Cambridge, in the County of Middlesex.

PETITION OF JEREMIAH O'BRIEN.

To the honourable Committee of Council, assembled at WATERTOWN, for the MASSACHUSETTS STATE:

The Petition of JEREMIAH O'BRIEN, in behalf of himself and Company, humbly sheweth:

That he has served with his company on board the sloop Machias Liberty, in the Colony service, from the 1st day of February last, under many disadvantages, my officers and seamen making repeated applications for money, with which I have supplied to the amount of five or six hundred dollars, and still lie out of it, which your Honours readily think is a great disadvantage to me. Also, have furnished the sloop and schooners now in the Colony service to the amount of nigh one hundred and sixty pound lawful money, and as yet have not received any pay therefor; the men on board had not sufficient clothing to defend them against the inclemency of the weather. I have now on board my full complement of men, who are daily solicited to enter in private properties; they having such great encouragement, renders it very difficult to keep them on board, and unless the honourable Committee will in their great wisdom order payment it will be impossible to confine them on board. Also would inform that I have made application to the Commissary for provisions, and can't obtain any without a draft from the honourable Committee of Council. We hold ourselves always ready and willing to serve for the good of our country; but are anxious to know whether we are held in commission or to be discharged. An immediate answer from your Honours will lay your petitioner under the greatest obligations imaginable. As in duty bound, shall ever pray.

JEREMIAH O'BRIEN.

In Council, October 1, 1776.

Read, and thereupon Ordered, That the Commissary-General of this State be, and he hereby is directed to furnish necessary Provisions from time to time to the men belonging to the Sloop Machias Liberty, under the command of Captain Jeremiah O'Brian, and in actual service on board the said sloop, until the next meeting of the General Court.

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

In Council, October 1, 1776.

Whereas Captain John Foster Williams, of the Sloop Republick, and Captain John Clouston, of the Sloop Freedom, both belonging to this State, are in want of some iron ballast that they may immediately proceed on their intended cruise: therefore the Committee for fortifying the Harbour of Boston be, and they are hereby directed to deliver the said Williams and Clouston, out of the row-galley lying in Boston harbour, so much iron ballast, as they may stand in need of at this time for their several sloops.

PETITION OF JOSHUA ORNE.

To the honourable Council of the MASSACHUSETTS STATE:
The Petition of JOSHUA ORNE, of MARBLEHEAD, humbly showeth:

That your petitioner, in concert with Captain John Selman, of Marblehead, has been at considerable cost and pains to equip an armed schooner called the Necessity, to cruise against the foes of this and the United States of America. Said schooner is burthened about thirty tons; armed with twelve swivel guns and blunderbusses; commanded by William Le Craw; navigated by thirty men; victualled with twelve hundred pounds of bread, twelve hams of beef, and six of pork; to carry two hundred pounds powder. Your petitioner being destitute of a supply of powder for the above vessel, humbly prays your Honours will grant him an order on the Commissary-General for two hundred pounds, he to pay for it, and two hundred grape-shot from the Laboratory, at Boston, as there are none to be had at the forges for want of rain; and also a commission for the above-named Le Craw. And your petitioner, as in duty bound, will ever pray, &c.

JOSHUA ORNE.

Watertown, October 1, 1776.

In Council, October 1, 1776.

Read, and Ordered, That the prayer of the Petition be granted, and that a Commission be issued out to the said William Le Craw, as commander of said Schooner, upon his complying with resolves of Congress; and that the Commissary-General be directed to deliver Mr. Joshua Orne, two hundred pounds Gunpowder out of the Powder-Mill at Andover, and two hundred pounds Grape-shot out of the Laboratory at Boston, for the use of said Schooner; he paying six shillings per pound for Powder, and for the Shot the customary price to the said Commissary, who is to be accountable for the same.

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

MEMORIAL OF THE TOWN OF SPENCER.

Colony of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

To the honourable General Court, sitting at WATERTOWN:
The Memorial of the Committee of Correspondence, Inspection, and Safety, of the Town of SPENCER, humbly showeth:

That the Tories in several towns in the County of Worcester have frequent meetings in large bodies, which creates suspicions in the minds of the good people of said County that said Tories have and are providing magazines of warlike stores in several places, which we, your memorialists, think it will be of very dangerous consequence to the lives and liberties of this and the United Colonies in North America, if suffered to proceed in their schemes and plans. Therefore we, your memorialists, humbly pray your Honours that you would take said affair into your wise consideration, and give us such instructions and directions, in order to proceed with said Tories as may be effectual, when put into execution, to prevent their evil designs against the said Colonies. As in duty bound, shall ever pray.

ASA BALDWIN,
JEREMIAH WHITEMORE,
KNIGHT SPRAGUE,
JOSHUA DRAPER,

Committee of Correspondence, Safety, and Inspection.

Spencer, July 13, A. D. 1776.

In the House of Representatives, October, 1776.

Upon the Petition of the Committee of Correspondence, &c., of the town of Spencer:

Resolved, That said Committee be enjoined to keep a watchful eye upon suspected persons, and, according to their best discretion, to redouble their exertions for the peace and safety of their town.

FIFTH SERIES.—VOL. II.

PETITION OF JOSEPH THOMPSON.

To the honourable the Council and honourable House of Representatives of the State of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, in General Court assembled at WATERTOWN, AUGUST, 1776:
The Petition of JOSEPH THOMPSON, of MEDFORD, humbly showeth:

That your petitioner, after Lexington battle, left Medford, and retired to Boston, from whence, on the eighth day of November last, he went to Swanzey, and there lived till within a few days past. That your petitioner never signed any addresses or associations, though often solicited to do it while he was in Boston. He acknowledges he has, in some instances, acted an imprudent part, for which he is very sorry. That he lately wrote to the Committee of Inspection, &c., in Medford, for leave to return home, and that he might enjoy his estate again, but they informed him it was out of their power, and that it lay with this honourable Court.

Your petitioner therefore humbly prays this honourable Court to take his case into your wise and compassionate consideration, and that your Honours would be pleased to give orders that he may be restored to the enjoyment of his estate again. And your petitioner, as in duty bound, shall ever pray, &c.

JOSEPH THOMPSON.

PETITION OF DAVID GRIFFIN.

To the honourable the General Assembly of the Province of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, now holden at BOSTON, in said Province:

The Petition of DAVID GRIFFIN, of SHEFFIELD, in the County of BERKSHIRE, humbly showeth:

That, whereas there is a considerable quantity of saltpetre made and manufactured in said Berkshire County, and although there is a premium given for encouragement to those who shall make the same, yet, nevertheless, the transportation thereof to the powder-mills is attended with a very considerable trouble and cost, the mills being so far distant; and your petitioner, with a view for the benefit and safety of the United States of this distressed Continent, as well as for his private interest, having obtained license from the honourable General Assembly of the Colony of Connecticut, hath erected and set up a Powder-Mill in the town of Salisbury, in Litchfield County, a town adjoining to said Sheffield; and your petitioner being sensible that said mill cannot be fully supplied with saltpetre by the towns adjacent in said Colony; and your petitioner being also sensible that the saltpetre made in said Berkshire County can, with less trouble and cost, be delivered to said mill than any other in the Province: Therefore your petitioner prays that your Honours would take the matter into your wise consideration, and enact, order, and decree, that the towns in the County of Berkshire, or the towns in said Province, that are nearest said mill, may deliver their saltpetre at said mill; and that your Honours would appoint a Committee to have the charge and oversight of the matter, that the powder made of said saltpetre be delivered for the use and benefit of the Province, or in some other way grant relief. And your petitioner, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

Dated in Sheffield, this 5th day of August, 1776.

DAVID GRIFFIN.

PETITION OF COMMITTEE OF MEDFORD.

To the honourable the Council and House of Representatives in General Court assembled, OCTOBER, 1776:

May it please your Honours:

Pursuant to a resolve of Court passed the 19th of April, Anno 1776, the Committee of Correspondence, &c., of Medford, proceeded to take into their care the estates belonging to the absentees, (as in said resolve described,) and made due return thereof to said Court.

The present Committee beg leave now further to inform your Honours, that they have lately discovered a dwelling-house in said town, (now occupied by the Widow Kidder), to be the property of Sir William Pepperell, an absentee, the particulars of which are fully described in the records of the County Register.

EDWARD WIGGLESWORTH, Colonel.

PETITION OF BENJAMIN GOODHUE.

To the honourable the Council of the State of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

The Petition of BENJAMIN GOODHUE, of SALEM, in the State of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, humbly sheweth:

That he has, in company with several other persons, fitted the schooner Sturdy Beggar, of one hundred tons burthen, with eight carriage-guns, twelve swivels, muskets, spears, and other weapons of war, with sixty men, and provisions suitable for a six months' cruise, with an intention of cruising upon and making captures of the property of the enemies of the United States of America.

To effect said purposes, your petitioner, in behalf of himself and company, humbly begs that your honourable Board would grant Edward Rowland, commander of said schooner, a commission authorizing him to cruise and make captures of the enemies aforesaid. And as in duty bound, your petitioner shall ever pray.

BENJ'N GOODHUE, JUN.

In Council, October 2, 1776.

Read, and Ordered, That the prayer of the Petition be granted, and that a commission be issued out to the above-named Edward Rowland, as commander of the Schooner Sturdy Beggar, he complying with the resolves of Congress.

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

ORDER OF COUNCIL RESPECTING PRISONERS.

State of Massachusetts-Bay, Council Chamber, }
October 3, 1776. }

Ordered, That the Sheriff of the County of Essex be, and hereby is directed to tender the parole accompanying this order to now in Salem, lately taken prisoners of war, and in case they refuse, or either of them, to sign the same, to commit him or them so refusing to prison agreeable to a resolve of the honourable Congress. And it is further ordered, that the said Sheriff be, and hereby is directed to employ some suitable person to conduct the said to the town of Boxford, in the said County of Essex, to which place the said is destined, upon their signing said parole, and deliver them to the care of the Committee of Safety, &c., of said town. And the said Sheriff is further ordered to take into his custody soldiers and sailors taken by Captain Sauter, and brought into the town of Salem, and confine them in the gaol in said Salem, unless they or either of them incline to labour, or exercise their trades in order to support themselves, in which case you are directed to deliver to any of the Committees of Correspondence, Inspection, &c., in said County, such individuals of the said prisoners as are willing to be employed in labour as aforesaid, to be by said Committees distributed to such persons as they may think proper for the purposes aforesaid; and the Sheriff is directed to take receipts of such Committees expressing the names of such of the prisoners as they have received under their care, and their engagement to return them to yourself (if remaining in their town) when any order of Council shall pass for that purpose.

ORDER FOR DELIVERING GUNS TO CAPTAIN M'NEIL.

Council Chamber, October 3, 1776.

Ordered, That the Committee of Correspondence, Safety, and Inspection of the town of Newbury-Port be, and they are hereby directed to deliver Captain Hector McNeil, for the use of the ship Boston, eight swivel guns, brought in said town the last year by one Captain Johnson, who was from the West-Indies, in the service of this State.

PETITION OF OWNERS OF BRIGANTINE WASHINGTON.

State of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

To the honourable the Council, now sitting in WATERTOWN:

The Petition of JOHN DYSON, THOMAS DAVIS, WILLIAM VAUS, of BEVERLY, SAMUEL TWING, and JONATHAN HOBBY, of BOSTON, humbly sheweth:

That your petitioners, owners of the brigantine called the Washington, burthened ninety tons; armed with twelve carriage-guns, six and four-pounders, six swivels, four blunderbusses, six hundred weight of powder, with shot in proportion; navigated by eighty men; and with twelve thousand pounds beef and pork, twelve thousand pounds bread on board. Said brigantine is designed to cruise against the enemies of the United States of America.

The officers on board are as follows, viz: Elias Smith Captain, James Lovett First Lieutenant, William Tucker Second Lieutenant, John Vickery Master.

Your petitioners would therefore humbly request your Honours to commission the said brigantine and Commander, for the purpose above mentioned. And your petitioners, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

JOHN DYSON,

In behalf of all concerned.

In Council, October 3, 1776.

Read, and Ordered, That a Commission be issued out to the above-mentioned Elias Smith, as Commander of the said Brigantine, on his complying with resolves of Congress.

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

MEMORIAL OF THOMAS CUSHING, AGENT FOR BUILDING THE CONTINENTAL FRIGATES.

To the honourable the Council of the State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

The Memorial of THOMAS CUSHING, Agent for building two Continental frigates, humbly sheweth:

That your memorialist has received directions from the Marine Committee of Congress to apply to this State for powder, ball, musket-shot, and other military stores, for the Continental frigate called the Boston, commanded by Hector McNeil, which they say will be paid for or returned by the Congress; that your memorialist finds there will be wanted for the said frigate, four tons of powder, one thousand double-headed shot nine-pounders, one thousand weight of musket-ball, ten swivel blunderbusses, fifty small-arms, eighty cartouch-boxes, five hundred flints, some swivel and some partridge shot, fifty screwed-bottom powder-horns. He therefore humbly prays that your Honours would supply him with the articles before mentioned, for the use of the frigate Boston, Hector McNeil, Commander, which will either be paid for or returned by the Congress. And your memorialist, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

THOMAS CUSHING.

October 4, 1776.

In Council, October 4, 1776.

Ordered, That the Commissary-General be, and hereby is directed to supply the petitioner, Thomas Cushing, Esq., or his order, with four tons of Powder, out of the Powder Mills at the town of Andover, and with other articles mentioned in the Petition, as also such other Military Stores as he finds necessary for the use of the Continental Frigate called the Boston, he, the said Cushing, giving his receipt therefor.

ORDER RESPECTING THE THREE REGIMENTS FOR DEFENCE OF MASSACHUSETTS.

State of Massachusetts-Bay, Council Chamber, }

Ordered, That the three Regiments now in the pay of this State, and raised for the defence and service of the same, commanded by Colonel Josiah Whitney, Colonel Thomas Marshall, and Lieutenant-Colonel Thomas Crafts, be, and hereby are put under the command of Major-General Ward until further order; and the said Colonels Whitney, Marshall, and Crafts, together with the inferior officers and soldiers in their respective Regiments, are hereby commanded to obey the said Major-General Ward as their General Officer, and to observe and follow such orders and instructions as they shall from time to time receive from him.

In Council, October 4, 1776.

Ordered, That the Commissary-General be and hereby is directed to supply the Regiments under the command of Colonel Whitney, Colonel Marshall, and Colonel Crafts, with such Guns or Muskets as the Colonels of the respective Regiments may apply for, for the use of the men under their command.

State of Massachusetts, In Council, }
October 4, 1776. }

Ordered, That the two Independent Companies raised in the towns of Weymouth and Hingham, under the command of Captain Stowers and Captain Trufant, be joined to the Regiment under the command of Colonel Josiah Whitney, with them to do duty; and the two Independent Companies raised in the town of Braintree, under the command of Captain Turner and Captain Thayer, be joined to the Regiment under the command of Colonel Thomas Marshall, with them to do duty, and that the Secretary forthwith notify Colonel Whitney and Colonel Marshall, and the several Captains before mentioned with this order by serving each of them respectively with an attested copy of the same.

PETITION OF EBENEZER PORTER.

To the honourable the Council of the State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, now sitting at WATERTOWN:

The Petition of EBENEZER PORTER most humbly sheweth:

That your petitioner, a native of Salem, where he was brought up, and afterward resided at Woburn until within this few years, when he, with his family and many others, removed to Nova-Scotia, and settled at a place called Yarmouth, in the Bay of Fundy, inhabited chiefly by people from Salem and Beverly, and some from Ipswich and Wenham, who are now drove to great straits and difficulties, owing to the communication between this State and that Province being cut off. That your petitioner is very desirous of removing himself and family from Nova-Scotia to Salem, the place of his nativity, could he have your Honours' liberty in so doing; and to prevent his little furniture and effects from being captured on their passage from Yarmouth to this place, your petitioner humbly prays your Honours would be pleased to grant him a license in returning to Nova-Scotia in any way he may be able, and to remove from thence himself, his wife, and five children, together with his furniture and effects. And your petitioner, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

EBENEZER PORTER.

Woburn, October 4, 1776.

This may certify that the contents of the foregoing Petition is true, and that Mr. Valpy has been a respectable ship master in this State for many years.

R. DERBY, Jun.

In Council, October 4, 1776.

Read, and Ordered, That the prayer of the Petition be granted, and that Samuel Holton, Esq., be directed to draft an order for the above purpose.

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

State of Massachusetts-Bay, Council Chamber, }
October 4, 1776. }

Whereas Ebenezer Porter, Richard Valpey, Nathan Utley, Henry Coggin, Asa Hammond, and Nehemiah Porter, all of Yarmouth, in the Province of Nova-Scotia, have petitioned this Board that they may have liberty to remove themselves, their families, and effects, from said Yarmouth to this State, and it appearing that the petitioners, not many years since, removed themselves and families from this State:

Therefore, Ordered, That the above-named petitioners be, and hereby are permitted to return from this State to Yarmouth, in the Province of Nova-Scotia, and bring off their families and effects to any part of this State that they shall think proper; and it is hereby recommended to the commanders of all armed and other vessels, to let the above-named petitioners, or either of them, pass unmolested to Yarmouth, in said Province, and from thence to this State to bring their families and effects.

On Tuesday, the 1st day of October, instant, the privateer schooner, from Boston, (the day before,) named the Speedwell, took a snow from London, which sailed last July in company with twenty four topsail vessels, bound to Boston, but finding the harbour evacuated steered off; and by the information of the mate of the above prize snow, the fleet are now hovering about Nantucket, not knowing where to go, till they get orders from New-York, as they signed bills of lading for Boston. This signed by part of the proprietors of the said privateer Speedwell, commanded by Captain John Greeley, this 5th day of October, 1776.

THOS. HICHBORN, Jun.

JAM. SWAN,

E. PARKMAN.

SIR: In consequence of the foregoing information, several gentlemen of the Council in the town of Boston, have thought it advisable that you proceed towards Nantucket, in order to fall in with the above-mentioned fleet, and afterwards to proceed agreeable to the former orders of the Council.

Sir, your most humble servant, JAMES BOWDOIN.

MEMORIAL OF JOHN ANDERSON.

To the Hon. JAMES BOWDOIN, Esq., President, and the rest of the honourable Members of the Council of the State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, NEW-ENGLAND:

The Memorial of JOHN ANDERSON, of the River St. JOHN'S, NOVA-SCOTIA, humbly sheweth:

That your memorialist, through the unhappiness of the times, has been induced to move with his family to Newbury-Port. That he has sundry effects remaining at his farm, at St. John's, consisting of several hundred of moose skins, two iron cannon, nine-pounders, (double fortified,) with a few wall-pieces, and small-arms, and likewise some provisions, which he is desirous to send a small vessel for, in order to bring them to Newbury-Port; and therefore begs your Honours' permission for the above purpose. On the receipt of the cannon and small-arms, your petitioner will look upon himself obliged to give your Honours the first refusal of the said military stores. And your petitioner, as in duty bound, shall ever pray, &c.

JOHN ANDERSON.

Newbury-Port, 4th October, 1776.

In Council, October 8, 1776.

Resolved, That John Anderson, within named, be permitted to import into this State the warlike stores and other effects in his petition mentioned, provided the said Anderson give bonds with sufficient sureties to the Treasurer of this State, in the sum of five hundred Pounds conditioned for his (the said Anderson's) importing the effects in the said petition mentioned into this State as soon as may be, and give the refusal of the warlike stores in said petition mentioned to this State, for the use thereof.

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

CORRESPONDENCE, PROCEEDINGS, &c.

EARL OF ABINGDON'S ADDRESS.

Wallingford, England, October 1, 1776.

A few days ago, at the annual meeting of the Mayor and Corporation of this borough, the Earl of Abingdon, our High Steward, took occasion to compliment them respecting their unanimous petition to the Throne upon the unhappy troubles in America, in a speech to the following purport:

"GENTLEMEN: It is with infinite pleasure that I embrace this opportunity of congratulating you on that humane, independent, and truly patriotick spirit you so well expressed in the petition I had the honour, at your request, of presenting to the Throne, and, at the same time, of assuring you that, both for your own sakes and that of the Commonwealth in general, my only wishes and endeavours have been to preserve that integrity of disposition you so firmly displayed, unbiased and unbroken. Happy, gentlemen, would it have been, in my opinion, had your laudable example been followed by every other Corporation in the Kingdom! We should not then have been involved in a war the most unjust and unconstitutional in its principles and ruinous in its tendency, of any to be found in the annals of this or in any other nation upon earth; for so inauspicious is this war, that our very successes must destroy us. We are murdering our own people, choking up the channels of our own wealth, and, thus enervated and drained, laying ourselves open to every combination in Europe that should think proper to fall upon us."

SILAS DEANE TO THE SECRET COMMITTEE.

Paris, October 1, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Mr. Morris's letters, of the 4th and 5th June last, of politicks and business, I received, with the duplicates of my commission and instructions, on the 25th ultimo. I stand corrected, and confine myself to politicks.

Your letter found me in a most critical situation. The Ministry had become extremely uneasy at your absolute silence; and the bold assertions of the British Ambassador, that you were accommodating matters, aided by the black and villainous artifices of one or two of our own countrymen here, had brought them to apprehend, not only a settlement between the two countries, but the most serious consequences to their West-India Islands, should we unite again with Great Britain. For me, alas! I had nothing left but to make the most positive assertions that no accommodation would or could take place, and to pledge myself, in the strongest possible manner, that thus would turn out the event. Yet so strong were their apprehensions, that an order issued to suspend furnishing me with stores. Think what I must feel upon such an occasion! Our friend Monsieur Beaumarchais exerted himself, and in a day or two obtained the orders to be countermanded, and every thing is again running on favourably.

For Heaven's sake, if you mean to have any connection with this Kingdom, be more assiduous in getting your letters here. I know not where the blame lies, but it must be heavy somewhere, when vessels were suffered to sail from Philadelphia and other ports, quite down to the middle of August, without a single line. This circumstance was urged against my assertions, and was near proving a mortal stab to my whole proceedings.

Doctor Williamson, of Philadelphia, and Colonel Mercer, of Virginia, have been in France. The latter, I believe, is still here. The former has returned, with his budget, for London. Under pretence of being an American, this man is doing the Colonies prodigious mischief; and the situation of affairs here, at this critical moment, renders it as dangerous for the Ministry to take him up, as it is to let him alone. Let his name be known in America, and every one be put on their guard how they correspond with him.

One Mr. Hopkins, of Maryland, in this service, and who is in the rank of Brigadier-General, appeared desirous of going to America; but on my not paying him the regard he vainly thought himself entitled to, formed the dark design of defeating, at one stroke, my whole prospects as to supplies. At this critical period, he pretended to be in my secrets, and roundly asserted that I had solely in view a reconciliation with Great Britain, immediately after which, the stores now furnishing would be used against France. This coming from a supposed enemy of Great Britain, from a native of America, from one who professed himself a zealous friend to the Colonies, you must suppose had weight. However thunderstruck I was, as well as my friend Monsieur Beaumarchais, at this unexpected and last effort of treachery, we exerted ourselves, and truth prevailed. This mischief has recoiled on himself, and having fallen into disgrace here, he will strive to get to America, where he threatens, I hear, to do much mischief to me. However, he will not, probably, be permitted to depart, unless he slips off very privately. Should that be the case, or should he write letters, you have now a clue to unravel him and his proceedings.

It would be too tedious to recount what I have met with in this way. It has confined me not only to Paris, but to my chambers and pen, for some weeks past, in drawing up, by way of memorial, the true state of the Colonies, their true interests, the system of policy they must unquestionably pursue, and that the highest interests of France are inseparably connected therewith. I do not mention a single difficulty with one complaining thought for myself. My all is devoted, and I am happy in being so far successful, and that the machinations of my enemies, or rather the enemies of my country, have given me, finally, an opportunity of experiencing the friendship and protection of great and valuable men. But it is necessary that you should know as much as possible of my situation.

The stores are collecting, and I hope will be embarked by the middle of this month. If later, I shall incline to send them by Martinico, on account of the season. It is consistent with a political letter to urge your remittance of the fourteen thousand hogsheads of tobacco, wrote for formerly, in part payment of these stores. If you make it twenty, the publick will be gainers, as the article is rising fast; in Holland, seven stivers, ten pounds, and must be in a proportion here.

You are desired by no means to forget Bermuda. If you should, Great Britain will seize it this winter; or France, on the first rupture, having been made sensible of its importance by the officious zeal of that same Mr. Hopkins.

As your navy is increasing, will you commission me to send you duck for twenty or thirty sail? I can procure it for you, to the northward, on very good terms, and you have on hand the produce wanted to pay for it with.

Have you granted commissions against the Portuguese? All the friends to America in Europe call loudly for such a measure.

Would you have universal commerce, commission some person to visit every Kingdom on the Continent that can hold any commerce with America. Among them, by no means forget Prussia.

Grain will be in demand in this Kingdom and in the south of Europe. Permit me again to urge the increase of the navy. Great Britain is calling in her Mediterranean passes, to expose us to the Algerines. I propose applying to this Court on that subject.

Doctor Bancroft, of London, merits much of the Colonies. As I shall now have frequent opportunities of writing by officers and others going out, I will not add more, than that one Mr. Carmichael has now been with me some time, recommended by Mr. A. Lee, of London. I owe much to him for his assistance in my despatches, and for his friendly and sensible advice on all occasions. He is of Maryland, and is here for his health, and proposes going soon for America. I expect to hear from London to-morrow, by Doctor B., who is on his way here.

I am, with my most sincere respect and esteem for the Secret Committee, and most profound regard to the honourable Congress, your most obedient and very humble servant,

SILAS DEANE.

An agent from Barbadoes is arrived in London, to represent their distresses. Another from Bermuda, with a declaration to the Ministry of the necessity of their being supplied with provisions from the Colonies, and saying if not permitted they must ask the protection of Congress.

P. S. I have to urge your sending to me, either a general power for the purpose, or a number of blank commissions for vessels of war. It is an object of the last importance, for in this time of peace between the nations of Europe, I can be acquainted with the time of every vessel's sailing, either from England or Portugal, and by despatching little vessels, armed, from hence, and to appearance property of the subjects of the United States of America, to seize them, while unsuspecting on this coast, and to stand directly for America with them, great reprisals may be made; and persons of the first property have already solicited me on the occasion. Indeed, they have such an opinion of my power, that they have offered to engage in such an adventure, if I would authorize them with my name, but this might as yet be rather dangerous. It is certainly, however, a very practicable and safe plan, to arm a ship here as if for the coast of Africa, or the West-Indies, wait until some ship of value is sailing from England or Portugal, slip out at once and carry them on to America. When arrived, the armed vessel increases your navy, and the prize supplies the country.

Since writing the foregoing, I waited on Mr. Beaumarchais, and while in conversation on our affairs, Mr. Hopkins came in. He was surprised at seeing me, and evidently fluttered at the apprehensions that Mons'r B. M. had been informing me of his informations to the Ministry; and on my charging him with it, and expostulating, he boldly maintained his information to be true, and that his zeal for, and fidelity to this kingdom, would not permit him to keep it a secret, and had the confidence to charge me with saying that I meant a reconciliation, &c., &c. He, however, previously acknowledged there had been a coldness and indifference between us for more than three weeks, during which he complained that I would not let him speak to me alone. I was, he said, so very reserved towards him, yet his zeal had prompted him to make this information only two days before this, and immediately on his resenting a reception I gave him at my lodgings. These, and many other circumstances convinced me on what grounds and with what real intention it was made, to which I added, that I could not condescend to confront Mr. Hopkins as on a level, but if one doubt remained in the minds of any one of the Ministry, my correspondence since in France, which I had minutely copied, as well as my most secret conversation to my most confidential friends, might be examined into, and I would fall if a single sentence ever escaped me, tending in the least to what Mr. Hopkins asserted. He then persevered in his assertions, and laboured to make the dispute personal. He finally declared his resolution of going to America, and gave hints what he would do there; to which I replied he was at his liberty, but justice to my country would oblige me to transmit a true narration of his conduct, and the bold attempt he had made to intercept the sending out of supplies, which could be exceeded by nothing but his inconsistency, in pretending to offer his service to a country which he had laboured to injure so materially.

We parted, and nothing in his power will be left unattempted against me pretendedly, but against the Colonies ultimately. However, I am under no great apprehensions. Such a man, when known, ceases to be formidable; but I can by no means avoid cautioning you against him, should he escape into America, as one of those restless and unquiet spirits ever dangerous in civil society, but more so in military operations. Inveterate as he is, I can manage him in such a Government as this, better than you can in America. I say, if he escapes, for at present he is closely watched in all his motions, but he may write letters, and under pretence of friendship for America cause some uneasiness here. Should he persevere in his machinations, he would soon wind himself up; indeed, I am apprehensive he will, but am determined never more to put myself, or any affair of mine, in his way. The Ministry are satisfied with my conduct in the affair, and I believe mean to use the present occasion for dismissing him, which as he may be apprehensive of, he will push the harder to get away for America.

It is of importance, as I have mentioned in my former letters, to have some one deputed and empowered to treat with the King of Prussia. I am acquainted with his agent here, and have already, through him received some queries and proposals respecting American commerce, to which am preparing a reply. I have also an acquaintance with the agent of the Grand Duke of Tuscany, who proposes fixing a commerce between the United Colonies and Leghorn, but has not as yet given me his particular thoughts. France and Spain are naturally our allies. The Italian States want our flour and some other articles. Prussia, ever pursuing her own interests, needs but be informed of some facts relative to America's increasing commerce to favour us. Holland will pursue its system, now fixed, of never quarrelling with any one on any occasion whatever. In this view is seen at once the power we ought to apply to and gain a good acquaintance with. Let me again urge you on the subject of tobacco. One hint further; it is this: Should you apportion a certain tract of the western lands, to be divided at the close of this war among the officers and soldiers serving in it, and make a generous allotment, it would, I think, have a good effect in America, as the poorest soldiers would then be fighting literally for a freehold; in Europe it would operate beyond any pecuniary offers. I have no time to enlarge on the thought, but may take it up hereafter; if I do not, it is an obvious one, and if capable of execution, you can manage it to the best advantage.

I have no doubt but I can obtain a loan for the Colonies, if empowered, and on very favorable terms. I have already sounded on this subject, and will be more explicit hereafter, both as to my proposals, for I can go no further, and the answers I may receive.

I am, as ever, yours,

SILAS DEANE.

London, October 1, 1776.

Yesterday, Major Creed, who brought the last despatches from Lord and General Howe, was at Court, and had a conference with his Majesty. The insurers of London have agreed to pay to the master and crew of any vessel taken by the Americans, and retaken by the said crew, five pounds per cent. on their several subscriptions, as a reward to the said crew.

SPEECH OF THE GOVERNOUR OF BARBADOES, TO THE COUNCIL AND ASSEMBLY OF THE ISLAND, AT THE OPENING OF THE NEW SESSION, IN SEPTEMBER, 1776.

Gentlemen of the Council and Gentlemen of the Assembly:

It is with the greatest pleasure I meet you again in this new session, which from your zeal for the good of the Colony, and your knowledge and experience in the publick business of the Island, I trust will be productive of such useful regulations as may be of lasting service to the community. The present juncture of publick affairs would unavoidably awaken the attention of his Majesty's subjects in every part of his extensive dominions. They must all feel the effects of a suspension of trade with so many of his Majesty's Northern Colonies in America as are now in rebellion; nor was it possible that his West-India Islands could be exempt from a large share of inconvenience from this interruption.

But such has been the provident care of his Majesty and both Houses of Parliament, as first in the prohibitory act, to grant us all the indulgence which the nature of the case would then admit of, and by a late act to allow the exportation of wheat and other articles to the East and West-Indies.

We have reason to be very thankful for these marks of attention from the supreme Legislature towards these distant Colonies, which, together with the prudence of the planters and merchants in ordering our supplies, has had the most desirable effect. Numerous have been the cargoes imported into this Island within the present year; and even as to the articles of Indian and Guinea corn, the usual support of the negroes in the plantations, these have in some measure had their substitutes; and now from the continual showers of rain for these two months past, there is the most pleasing prospect of more plenty of corn and other provisions than has been yet known, and which ought to relieve our anxiety on this important point.

But as it must be the sincere wish of every good man to see peace restored throughout all his Majesty's dominions, so we have great reason to expect some very favourable result from the operations of the present campaign. On the one hand the terms of submission which his Majesty's commissioners are empowered to accept, are open to all those who are desirous of returning to their duty. On the other hand, the powerful armament of land and sea forces now upon the coast of America, must have some effect in reducing the most obstinate to obedience. Therefore, it is scarcely to be doubted that some one or more of these Colonies will sue for peace and obtain the King's pardon this present year. Should an event so devoutly to be wished come to pass, we then shall have a market open to us, and all our apprehensions will subside.

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the Assembly:

As this Colony shares with the mother country in the happiness of the noblest form of government that ever existed, so the inhabitants have a right to expect all the benefits which can arise from it. As I am fully persuaded that you, gentlemen, who are the representatives of the people, are desirous to promote their interest and happiness, so I must earnestly recommend to your prudence, calmness, temper, and moderation in your proceedings, as essentially necessary towards the publick service.

Gentlemen of the Council and Gentlemen of the Assembly:

I have at the commencement of former sessions recommended two points to your serious consideration—the revisal and amendment of the Militia law, and a daily maintenance for the prisoners. They still are objects worthy of your attention. There are many other matters which might be proposed for the publick service, but I am fully persuaded that your own zeal for the interest of the community will readily suggest to you such as may be more immediately necessary. I have no wish nearer my heart than to contribute to the peace, happiness, and prosperity of this Island; therefore you may be sure of my immediate concurrence in every measure which may be productive of these singular blessings.

REPLY OF THE ASSEMBLY.

To his Excellency the Hon. EDWARD HAY, his Majesty's Captain-General, Governour and Commander-in-Chief of the aforesaid Island; Chancellor, Ordinary, and Vice-Admiral of the same.

The humble Address of the General Assembly of the said Island:

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY: We, the Representatives of the people, return your Excellency the thanks of our Assembly for your speech, and those favourable sentiments which it expresses of our zeal for the good of our country, joined to our knowledge and experience in the publick business, and we flatter ourselves that the same zealous inclination to promote the interests of this Colony, which distinguished our proceedings in the former sessions, will continue to animate the conduct of this House on every laudable occasion through the present.

Unavoidably as the attention of his Majesty's subjects must have been awakened to this unhappy conjuncture of affairs in every part of his extensive dominions, yet in no part of them could the anxiety and apprehensions be naturally so great as in our own, and all the other helpless West-India settlements in the neighbouring seas; for, dependent as this Island has been, time immemorial, upon the Northern Colonies of America, not only for supplies to carry on the works of our most valuable manufacture, but for the very articles in a great measure of our subsistence, and both parts of the importation happily exchanged for the produce of our lands and labour, we could not behold the first threatening appearances of an interruption to this necessary commerce without a just alarm, yet confiding in the wisdom of his Majesty's councils, ever influenced by a tender regard to the wants and weaknesses of this dutiful and loyal Colony, and moreover unwilling from our particular affection to our Sovereign, to add any thing to the weight of his royal cares for the general welfare of his American dominions, by too hasty an expression of our fears, we for a long time maintained a resolute and respectful silence, until by an act of the British Parliament, we saw our intercourse with the Northern Colonies, the granary of this Island, utterly cut off, and yet no new channel opened for our supply; but on the contrary we found a permission tacitly, yet effectually granted by your Excellency to one of his Majesty's transport vessels, to export from this Island a part of those very stores which had been laid up under the same authority for our own supply; then indeed, the duty we owed both to our country and ourselves, constrained us to speak out.

We first remonstrated to your Excellency against the unnatural license which you had been pleased to grant, under our own alarming circumstances, by requesting you to grant no more; and then too justly apprehending an unlucky interpretation that might be put in England upon your Excellency's extraordinary indulgence to that vessel, as a sign of our abundance, rather than a sacrifice from our scanty store, we in the next place presented a most humble and dutiful petition to the King, to implore his gracious attention to the true state of our Colony, and such relief as in our critical situation, we stood most in need of. Yet for this last measure, though voted with unanimity, and was but the natural consequence of the former, the honour of our Assembly stands impeached before his Majesty, and our country has been disappointed of the hopes of our Sovereign's favour by the ill offices of your Excellency, the immediate representative amongst us of that great father of his people, whom we had supplicated in the season of our distress. But if the benevolence of his royal heart, from whence so gracious a declaration flowed, "of his Majesty's readiness to do every thing for the advantage of his good subjects of Barbadoes," be not too far obstructed by the malign interposition, our country will at length reap the fruits of our repeated application to the Throne, and its representative body too be cleared from every imputation of a factious and unworthy motive to their proceeding.

Whatever may have been the provident care of his Majesty and both Houses of Parliament, in the prohibitory act in our favour, yet we are not sensible that the inhabitants of this Island have actually received the least benefit by such indulgence; and from the other act, to allow the exportation of wheat from England to the East and West-Indies, the benefit is yet to be received. We are, however, duly thankful for every mark of attention in the supreme Legislature towards these distant Colonies. But notwithstanding the numerous cargoes which have been imported into this Island, added to the supplies ordered out by the prudence of several of the planters on a private account; and notwithstanding the substitutes which your Excellency takes notice of, in the room of our accustomed supplies of corn from North America, yet certain it is, that from the extravagant prices of the common articles of provisions, many of our poor white inhabitants have been put to the most wretched shifts to keep themselves and families from perishing, and many of the planters in those parts of the Island that were accustomed to rely upon the North American grain for the support of their negroes, have been to the greatest degree distressed to find the proper subsistence for their people. And even now, that after the Island had been blessed with continual showers of rain, for the two months preceding the date of your Excellency's speech, and we were enjoying the prospect of a plentiful crop of Indian corn, such is the melancholy uncertainty of our soil, the destructive worm to which that plant is too frequently liable has since appeared, and robbed us in many places of the promised harvest. Nor is it without terror we have seen some vestiges of the same vermin in the young blades of our other sort of grain, the Guinea, planted to succeed the Indian, for our supply; and should there be any failure too of this, the most beneficial of our internal grain, the miseries of a famine may yet in some parishes prove their dreadful lot.

From every consideration, then, that can affect the members of this House, as men or citizens, we cannot but look with eagerness for a joyful end of the present most horrid conflict upon the Continent of America; since upon the happy restoration of peace, and a renewal of that ancient harmony which subsisted betwixt our parent State and her American dominions, all hope of the prosperity, if not the very preservation, of our own Colony, can be alone securely rested.

Perfectly sensible of the happiness which in this Island we partake of, in the free and noble form of government of our mother country, this Assembly will be equally careful not to violate the sacred trust by any unbecoming trespass on the one part, nor to betray it by any mean surrender of our glorious birthright on the other; happy whilst we see no occasion offer to force us away from that temper, calmness, and moderation recommended by your Excellency; yet not unprepared, however painful it may be to us, in a different conjuncture, to show that sense of injury, and adopt that spirit of resentment inseparable from the character of a faithful and independent representative of the people.

In the course of our former sessions, we gave the strongest proof of our humane attention to the poor prisoners then confined for debt, by an insolvent act, including every unhappy object found in gaol down to the very day on which the act passed the House. Nor were our cares wanting to the just relief of any unfortunate debtors under the like confinement, as will appear from the proceedings of the House; but whether we shall in the present Assembly proceed to a revival of the plan proposed, but left undetermined at the expiration of our body, or make the provision recommended by your Excellency, for the maintenance of those who may be held in prison under the present laws, shall be the subject of our mature consideration.

But with regard to an amendment of our Militia law, the other principal object of your Excellency's earnest and repeated recommendation to the Assembly, this is a point on which we cannot help repeating, in our turn, the difficulties and distrusts that rise up in our minds against the undertaking, and which seem rather to increase than lessen by every impulse to remove them. Nor can we help reflecting upon the good fortune of our ancestors, who, under certain Administrations, were able to keep up a numerous and respectable body of Militia in this Island, yet with no higher hand than what the present defective law permitted them to hold over their respective corps. In the principle of a personal regard from their inferiours, the commanding officers found every deficiency of the law most happily supplied; and we are therefore most unwilling now, in times more propitious to the claims of civil liberty in the Colonies than ever, to renounce a principle of attachment so honourable to society, and enforce obedience by a power congenial only with the habits of despotick sway.

In all other matters that may be laid before us by your Excellency, for the good of the country, we shall most cheerfully concur, being bound by every tie of interest no less than duty to promote its peace, its happiness, and prosperity; blessings which we rejoice to hear your Excellency has so near your heart for this Island, and which no generous endeavour of your Excellency's to procure, can fail to draw after it the hearts of our community.

By order of the House:

JOHN GAY ALLEYNE, Speaker.

House of Assembly, October 1, 1776.

THE SENTIMENTS OF THE SEVERAL COMPANIES OF MILITIA AND FREEHOLDERS OF AUGUSTA, IN VIRGINIA, COMMUNICATED BY THE DEPUTIES FROM THE SAID COMPANIES AND FREEHOLDERS TO THEIR REPRESENTATIVES IN THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF THE COMMONWEALTH.*

GENTLEMEN: We have chosen you at a very critical juncture to represent us in the General Assembly of our Commonwealth, and need not tell you that we place great confidence in you. Your being elected by us, in such times as these, to an important place of trust, will sufficiently prove it, and show, at the same time, our respect for you and the sense we have of your abilities and virtue.

Our independence on Great Britain and every other nation, we are determined upon, without a nice calculation of costs; for if possible to effect and preserve liberty for ourselves and unborn generations, we think it will be a noble equivalent for much blood and treasure, and we trust a full balance of all our losses.

Attempts, unnatural, cruel, and unjust, to rob us of our most valuable rights and privileges, have roused almost all America to defend them, forgetting the illiberal treatment which a difference in religious sentiments, in some misguided places, has produced. All denominations have unanimously rushed to arms to defend the common cause. Their unanimity has made them formidable to their enemies; their unanimity will be ever preserved by giving equal liberty to them all; nor do they crave this as the pittance of cour-

*Mr. PURDIE: In your last paper I saw a piece entitled "The Sentiments of the several Companies of Militia and Freeholders of Augusta, communicated by the Deputies from the said Companies and Freeholders to their Representatives in the General Assembly of the Commonwealth;" which piece, as it has been submitted to the publick inspection, is a proper subject for a few publick strictures.

Its object is the subversion of our Church Establishment, an establishment which has been found, from the experience of near two hundred years, productive of peace and order, of piety and virtue. Its independent exordium is, to be sure, of a very popular nature; but then it would precede with as much, perhaps more propriety, an essay to prove the expediency of continuing our Establishment. For did not Churchmen, clergy as well as laity, when the salvation of their country rendered it necessary, declare for independence with as much alacrity as Dissenters of any denomination? and have they not since been as active in supporting it? I could instance as many clergymen of the Established Church who have been more forward in the present glorious contest, than any of the religious of any sect amongst us, although the former acted at the risk of losing livings, whilst the latter were tempted with the prospect of creeping into them.

The grand, and indeed the only argument which these sentimental gentlemen indulge us with, in behalf of their favourite scheme, is, that by giving equal liberty to all denominations unanimity will be preserved; and unanimity, they tell us, has already made us formidable to our enemies. I would ask, as they acknowledge that unanimity has heretofore prevailed amongst us, what was our situation at that time? Had we not a Church Establishment; and were not Dissenters freely tolerated? Why, then, should unanimity forsake us, as long as we continue in the same situation? If it does, it must be because some people require more than others for having ventured less, and only having done, to say the most, as much.

But are our gentlemen sure that, by destroying our Church Establishment, that unanimity, so necessary to the salvation of our country, will be preserved? If they are, they have, I must needs confess, great confidence in the meek and disinterested disposition of the members of the Established Church, much more than they evidently have in the temper of their own sects. They suppose the spirit of our Church so generous and forgiving, that it will dispose us to submit to laws which are injurious to us, rather than for a moment endanger the publick welfare; while they declare they will not pay obedience to what is enacted by the supreme power of this State, unless their particular interest is preferred to the lasting interest and happiness of the whole community. If they represent matters fairly, our Legislatures may easily determine whether they will do their country a greater service by supporting so excellent a Church as ours is acknowledged to be by its very adversaries, or by depressing it, and encouraging sectaries, who, by their own confession, are selfish, turbulent, and seditious.

But, what if these men should be mistaken? They may not have considered that, though the spirit of the Established Church is meek and tolerating, still its members are by nature men of like passions with themselves; and that though their religion forbids them to trespass upon the patrimony of others, it by no means authorizes them to give up, or even neglect, their own. To threaten seems to be the province of bullies, and of such as have a bad cause; but every reasonable person will allow, that to deprive men of what they have always enjoyed, and been taught to regard as their right, is a much juster cause of complaint, and much more likely to produce dissatisfaction and dissensions, tesy, but demand it as their patrimony, that cannot be withheld from them without the most flagitious fraud, pride, and injustice, which, if practised, may shake this Continent, and demolish Provinces.

This we think our Representatives in Convention, last June, had fully in view. Besides other things, they declared, "that all men are equally entitled to the free exercise of their religion, or the duty they owe to their Creator, and the manner of discharging it according to the dictates of their consciences." We take this to be the true and full meaning of their words, without any unjust view of favouring some to the hurt of others, and we view their declaration in this light as a most happy proof of their wisdom and virtue. Hereby men, how different soever in their religious opinions, are united in defence of our invaluable inheritance, which they can equally call their own. Hereby jealousies, oppositions, and we believe all the plagues of jarring interests, will be prevented, their united force be employed to accomplish the same ends, and the only strife be who will become the most approvable, wise, and useful members in society.

While we most pressing request you as individuals, or members of the same community, to use your best endeavours to promote the general good, we do, gentlemen, as our Representatives most solemnly require you, and positively command you, that, in the General Assembly of this Commonwealth, you declare it the ardent desire and unanimous opinion of your constituents, should such a declaration become necessary, that all religious denominations within this dominion be forthwith put in the full possession of equal liberty, without preference or preëminence, which, while it may favour one, can hurt another, and that no religious sect whatever be established in this Commonwealth. This, from its apparent tendency to promote, and most effectually to secure the good of our country, we earnestly wish to see established; and we hope the number of interested bigots, illiberal politicians, or of disguised enemies to the freedom and happiness of Virginia, will be too small and contemptible to prevent or obstruct a matter of such extensive utility, a than the withholding from them what they never had in possession, and what the distresses of their country only could have made them expect.

I hope this will be considered by our honourable Assembly, and that they will carefully avoid a measure by which the greater and more orderly part of the State will be aggrieved, and may be sickened of our important dispute.

The rest of this sentimental piece containing only puerile declamation, I shall vouchsafe it no further notice; but, as I am before the publick, I will take this opportunity of making a few observations on the advantages of a religious establishment. I take it for granted, that the necessity of the Christian religion, both with respect to our temporal and eternal welfare, is a point, in Christian countries, generally acknowledged; and, if so, it is undoubtedly the duty of those who are appointed to take care of a State, to adopt the most likely method of having it propagated in the greatest purity. An establishment of that Church which, to the majority, seems most orthodox in its doctrines, most apostolical in its form, and most rational in its precepts, bids fairest to effect this purpose; for when a good provision is made for teachers, and ensured to them by the publick faith, men of abilities will think it worth their whiles to take some pains in qualifying themselves for such an office; and men who have been accustomed to think and reason, who have had their judgments strengthened and assisted by all the learned treasures of the ancient and modern world, will be more able to comprehend, and consequently to communicate to their hearers, the sense of the Holy Scriptures.

On the other hand, when every church and sect is alike countenanced by the State, when salaries are to depend entirely upon the caprice of the people, what encouragement is given to men of genius to qualify themselves for the sacred function? That person must be but little acquainted with the world who has not observed that the generality of the world are more influenced by their passions than by their reason, and that the harangues of fanatics are more likely to be attended to, and to gain followers, than the most sensible discourses of sober-minded, rational men. The consequence must be, where there is no Establishment, that all preachers must either turn popular declaimers or starve; and thus all just notions of religion must be lost.

I own it seems somewhat hard, and repugnant to liberty, to oblige men to pay towards the support of a Church to which they do not belong; but if such a thing be conducive to the general good, as from the foregoing observations appears to be the case, such persons are in duty bound to submit, in consideration of the many advantages they may be supposed to derive from the State; and in so doing they make but a small sacrifice, especially when they are permitted to enjoy their own private opinions, and to worship God according to the dictates of their own consciences. Would any one hesitate a moment to affirm, that it was highly just and reasonable to oblige every member of a society to join in supporting that form of civil government which had been judged best, and adopted by a majority of the society? I am inclined to think that an advocate for monarchy, whose lot was cast in a republican government, would not be excused his quota of publick taxes upon any plea he could urge of disapprobation of that form of government; and as the cases are similar, why should we not admit in both the same mode of reasoning?

I shall make no apology, Mr. Purdie, for giving you so much trouble. You must be sensible of the necessity of such publications at this time.

A MEMBER OF THE ESTABLISHED CHURCH.

matter so just that the contrary is most evidently iniquitous, destructive, and oppressive. But should the future conduct of our legislative body prove to you that our opinion of their wisdom and justice is ill grounded, then tell them that your constituents are neither guided nor will ever be influenced by that slavish maxim in politicks, "that whatever is enacted by that body of men in whom the supreme power of the State is vested must in all cases be implicitly obeyed," and that they firmly believe attempts to repeal an unjust law can be vindicated beyond a simple remonstrance addressed to the legislators.

These, gentlemen, are the sentiments with which we have been entrusted, by communicating of which we have discharged the duties of our deputation. Other things, how material soever they may be, are committed to your prudence and unremitting care, to be managed conformable to the declaration of rights.

THOMAS HUGHES TO MARYLAND CONVENTION.

Charles-Town, Cecil County, October 1, 1776.

SIR: Agreeable to your letter of the 8th ultimo, and the resolves of the 10th, I called the battalion together, to raise a company of volunteers, and in a few days after made up one composed of as hearty young fellows as any company that has marched out of this Province, who have readily and willingly agreed to march under the following officers, viz: James Maxwell Captain, John Hartshorn First Lieutenant, William Johnston Second Lieutenant, and Adam Glasgow Ensign.

I wrote to the Council of Safety (in your recess) recommending the above gentlemen to be commissioned by them, and acknowledging the receipt of £333 5s. cash, for the use of the company, and at the same time begging they would forward the cartouch-boxes, haversacks, canteens, and what other necessities they had there for the troops, and to send up as much more cash as they thought would be necessary for the purchase of blankets and provisions for the immediate use of the company, and to pay the remainder of the bounty and advance agreeable to your resolves, but not receiving the advices from them, have advised Mr. Hartshorn to wait on you and receive your further instructions. Mr. Hartshorn can inform you what situation they are in at present with respect to arms. Bayonets cannot be got here at any rate; and should be glad you would instruct him in what manner these and all other necessities that are wanting may be procured.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient and humble servant,
THO. HUGHES.

To the Hon. Matthew Tilghman, Esq., President Convention of Maryland, Annapolis.

DOCTOR WEISENTHALL TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.
Baltimore-Town, October 1, 1776.

SIR: I was, by the former Convention, ordered to examine the saltpetre earths on the south bank of the Potomack, of which I produced a sample. The Convention having adjourned before I returned, I now take the liberty to make a report thereof. The place is on Patterson's creek, about twelve or fourteen miles from the South Branch, near Colonel Hight's. It is a perpendicular rock, in the middle of which is a cavern, and which was formed from the stones composing the rock decaying and tumbling down, carrying along with them a good quantity of rich mould, which contains the saltpetre; and as the cavern is so deep that no rain can come in, the saltpetre is not washed off. If stones are broke off, or lifted up, there is sometimes a good quantity of real saltpetre in its white colour found, which can be scraped off out of the interstices, where it collects. As for its formation, there is a similarity with old cellars, which are known to contain often, (according to their age,) great quantities, with this difference only, that the collection of nitre in these caverns may be formed thousands of years, which accounts for their richness.

From the situation and causes, I had reason to suppose that the mountains must contain a great many sub-caverns; and accordingly informed the inhabitants with my notion, who have since searched and discovered, about three miles farther, another sub-cavern equally rich; and as I have received a sample of saltpetre from the Ohio, which was found and scraped off from interstices of stones in a cavern, which I hereby send for the inspection of Convention, it is evident that our mountains contain everywhere such caverns full of saltpetre as to furnish the Colonies with that desirable article to the fullest extent, at reasonable rates.

I attempted a trial to make some saltpetre out of the mould, and took two bushels thereof, from which I extracted between two and three pounds, but am sure that it would have produced considerable more, if I had the necessary utensils on the spot. A sample of the nitre I have brought to the Council of Safety. This saltpetre was exceeding strong and in very large crystals. The people on the spot now make saltpetre, and make use of it partly in gunpowder, and partly for salting meat, that being a scarce article there, and no doubt squander away great quantities, not being sufficiently skilled to make it to advantage.

I have the honour to be, sir, your most obedient and humble servant,

C. WEISENTHALL.

To Matthew Tilghman, Esq., President of the Convention of Maryland.

JESSE HOLLINGSWORTH TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.
Baltimore-Town, October 1, 1776.

Honourable Council of Safety,

To JESSE HOLLINGSWORTH, Dr.

To cash paid for 134½ lbs. of 20d. nails, at
1s. 1d., - - - - - £7 5 8½
To cash paid for 32 lbs. of 20d. nails at 1s. 1d., 1 14 8
To commission on £ at 2½ per cent.

SIR: I have sent the boat and scow down with all the nails I can get. Please to excuse their not coming sooner, as it was not in my power. Please hurry the hands home, as they are by the day.

My part of the timber for gondolas is in the yard, and shall be glad to serve you in any further orders. From your humble servant,
JESSE HOLLINGSWORTH.

To honourable Council of Safety.

LUX AND BOWLEY TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, October 1, 1776.

HONOURABLE SIR: We are favoured with yours of the 27th ultimo, respecting the cordage we were to furnish Mr. Stewart, for the gondolas, &c., on the publick account.

We did not enter into any agreement with him to finish it at any particular day; but on his return from Philadelphia, as he could not get it there, we promised to do our endeavours to complete it as soon as possible, and which we mean to comply with, so soon as we get rid of the frigate's rigging, which we think will be finished in a week; after that, we hope to furnish for the gondolas as nearly as fast as it is wanted, and shall, agreeable to Mr. Stewart's directions, forward it to Annapolis, as we make it.

We are, honourable sirs, with respect, your most obedient servants,

LUX & BOWLEY.

To the Hon. Daniel of St. Thomas Jenifer, Esq., President Council of Safety.

COMMITTEE OF SECRET CORRESPONDENCE.

Philadelphia, October 1, 1776.

"On my leaving London, Arthur Lee, Esq., requested me to inform the Committee of Correspondence, that he had had several conferences with the French Ambassador, who had communicated the same to the French Court; that in consequence thereof the Duke de Vergennes had sent a gentleman to Mr. Lee, who informed him that the French Court could not think of entering into a war with England, but that they would assist America by sending "from Holland this fall two hundred thousand pounds sterling worth of arms and ammunition to St. Eustatius, "Martinico, or Cape François. That application was to be made to the Governours or Commandants of those places by inquiring for Monsieur Hortalez, and that on persons properly authorized applying, the above articles would be delivered to them." [Verbal statement of THOMAS STORY to the Committee.]

The above intelligence was communicated to the subscribers, being the only two members of the Committee of Secret Correspondence now in the city, and our considering the nature and importance of it, we agree in opinion that it is our indispensable duty to keep it secret even from Congress, for the following reasons:

First, Should it get to the ears of our enemies at New-York, they would undoubtedly take measures to intercept the supplies, and thereby deprive us not only of those succours, but of others expected by the same route.

Second, As the Court of France have taken measures to negotiate this loan of succour in the most cautious and secret manner, should we divulge it immediately, we may not only lose the present benefit, but also render that Court cautious of any further connection with such unguarded people, and prevent their granting other loans and assistance that we stand in need of, and have directed Mr. Deane to ask of them. For it appears from all our intelligence they are not disposed to enter into an immediate war with Britain, although disposed to support us in our contest with them. We therefore think it our duty to cultivate their favourable disposition towards us, draw from them all the support we can, and in the end their private aid must assist us to establish peace, or inevitably draw them in as parties to the war.

Third, We find by fatal experience the Congress consists of too many members to keep secrets, as none could be more strongly enjoined than the present embassy to France, notwithstanding which Mr. Morris was this day asked by Mr. Reese Meredith, whether Dr. Franklin and others were really going Ambassadors to France, which plainly proves, that this Committee ought to keep this secret, if secrecy is required.

Fourthly, We are of opinion that it is not necessary to inform Congress of this intelligence at present, because Mr. Morris belongs to all the Committees that can properly be employed in receiving and importing the expected supplies from Martinico, St. Eustatius, or Cape François, and will immediately influence the necessary measures for that purpose; indeed, we have already authorized William Bingham, Esq., to apply at Martinico and St. Eustatius for what comes there, and remit part by the armed sloop Independence, Captain Young, promising to send others for the rest. Mr. Morris will apply to the Marine Committee to send other armed vessels after her; and also to Cape François, (without communicating this advice,) in consequence of private intelligence lately received, that arms, ammunition, and clothing can now be procured at those places.

But should any unexpected misfortune befall the States of America, so as to depress the spirits of the Congress, it is our opinion, that on any event of that kind, Mr. Morris (if Dr. Franklin should be absent) should communicate this important matter to Congress; otherwise keep it until part of or the whole supplies arrive, unless other events happen to render the communication of it more proper than it appears to be at this time.

B. FRANKLIN,
ROBT. MORRIS.

Communicated to me the 11th October, 1776, and I concur heartily in the measure.

RICHD. HENRY LEE.

Communicated to me the 10th October, 1776, and I do also sincerely approve of the measure.

WILLIAM HOOPER.

COMMITTEE OF SECRET CORRESPONDENCE TO SILAS DEANE.
Philadelphia, October 1, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Mr. Morris has communicated to us the substance of your letters to him, down to the 23d June, when you were near setting out for Paris. We hope your reception there has been equal to your expectations and our wishes; indeed we have no reason to doubt it, considering the countenance we have met with amongst the French Islands and their seaports in Europe. It would be very agreeable and useful to hear from you just now, in order to form certain opinions of the designs of the French Court respecting us and our contest, especially as we learn by various ways they are fitting out a considerable squadron at Brest and Toulon. What a noble stroke they might now strike at New-York! Twenty sail of the line would take the whole fleet there, consisting of between four and five hundred sail of men-of-war and transports, storeships, and prizes. Was that piece of business once effected by a French fleet, we would engage to give them a very good account of General Howe's army in a short time; but alas, we fear the Court of France will let slip the glorious opportunity, and go to war by halves as we have done; we say go to war, because we are of opinion they must take part in the war sooner or later, and the longer they are about it the worse terms will they come in upon.

We doubt not you will obtain from England a regular account of the proceedings of Lord Howe and his brother; and we suppose the General's military operations will be ushered into the world with an éclat beyond their true merits; or at least the conduct of our people and their present situation will be misrepresented as ten times worse than the reality. We shall therefore state these things to you as they really are. The fleet under Lord Howe you know is vastly superiour to any thing we have in the navy way; consequently wherever ships can move they must command; therefore it was long foreseen that we could not hold either Long-Island or New-York; nevertheless as our fortifications are chiefly built with axes and spades, the time and trouble in raising them was not mispent, for it must have been owing to those works that they remained several weeks at Staten-Island, without making any attempt. The first they did make was on Long-Island where they landed twenty thousand men or upwards. At this time we had our army, consisting of not more than twenty thousand effective men, stationed at King's Bridge, New-York, and on Long-Island; six to seven thousand was the whole of our force on the latter, and about three thousand of them commanded by General Sullivan and Lord Stirling turned out of the lines, took possession of some heights, and intended to annoy the enemy in their approaches. They, however, outgeneraled us, and got a body of five thousand men between our people and the lines, so that we were surrounded and of course came off second best: but they purchased this victory dear, and many such would be their ruin. Sullivan, Lord Stirling and many other officers fell into their hands. These with privates amounted to from eight hundred to one thousand men in killed, wounded, and taken prisoners. They lost a greater number in killed and wounded; but we took but few prisoners as you may suppose.

General Howe then laid a trap in which he fully expected to have caught every man we had on that island; but General Washington saw and frustrated his design, by an unexpected and well-conducted retreat across the Sound. This retreat is spoken of on both sides as a master-stroke.

The enemy immediately marched up a large body of men opposite to Hell-Gate. Our people threw up intrenchments on York-Island to oppose their landing; but, shame to say it, on the day of trial two brigades behaved infamously, and could not be stopped by the entreaties or threats of the General who came up in the midst of their flight. It had been previously determined to abandon New-York, and most of our cannon and military stores were removed from thence in time. The enemy took possession of the city and encamped on the Plains of Harlem. Our side occupy the Heights of Harlem, King's Bridge, and Mount Washington, where they have made lines as strong as can be. In this situation they had a skirmish between about one thousand to twelve hundred men on each side, in which we gained greatly the advantage, beat them off the field, and took three field-pieces from them, having killed and wounded a considerable number of their men.

Since then the city of New-York has been on fire, and it's said one-fifth or one-sixth of it is reduced to ashes. The enemy charged some stragglers of our people that happened to be in New-York with having set the city on fire designedly, and took that occasion, as we are told, to exercise some inhuman cruelties on those poor wretches that were in their power. They will no doubt endeavour to throw the odium of such a measure on us; but in this they will fail, for General Washington, previous to the evacuation of that city, whilst it was in his power to do as he pleased with it. desired to know the sense of Congress respecting the destruction of the city, as many officers had given it as their opinion it would be an advisable measure; but Congress resolved that it should be evacuated and left unhurt, as they had no doubt of being able to take it back at a future day. This will convince all the world we had no desire to burn towns or destroy cities, but that we left such meritorious works to grace the history of our enemies.

Upon the whole our army near New-York are not sufficiently strong to cope with General Howe in the open field; they have therefore entrenched themselves, and act on the defensive. They want better arms; better tents, and more clothing than they now have; nor is it in our power, at this time, to supply them. Consequently we cannot recruit or increase that army under these discouragements. Men cannot cheerfully enter a service where they have the prospect of facing a powerful enemy, and encountering the inclemency of a hard cold winter, without covering, at the same time. These are discouraging circumstances, but we must encounter them with double diligence, and we still have hopes to procure clothing, partly by importation, partly by capture, and chiefly by purchasing all that can be found on the Continent.

If France means to befriend us, or wishes us well, they should send us succours in good muskets, blankets, cloths, coatings, and proper stuff for tents, also in ammunition; but not like the Venitians, wait until we are beat, and then send assistance. We are willing to pay for them, and shall be able soon as we can safely export our tobacco and other valuable produce.

Our Northern army is strong, well intrenched in an advantageous post at Tyconderoga, which can only be taken from them by storm, as it cannot be approached in a regular manner on account of the situation. We are also formidable on the lakes, in galleys, boats, and gondolas, under command of your friend Arnold, and that army is better provided than the other, so that we do not seem to apprehend any danger in that quarter at present.

The Southern States are, from the present, in peace and quietness, except some interruptions from the Indians, who were instigated thereto by Mr. Stewart, the Superintendent, and other agents from our enemies; however, they have not any cause to rejoice in those machinations as yet, for the Carolinians and Virginians have attacked and beat them several times, destroyed several of their towns and cornfields, and made them repent sorely what they have done. So that we have little to apprehend on account of Indians.

The only source of uneasiness amongst us arises from the number of Tories we find in every State. They are more numerous than formerly, and speak more openly; but Tories are now of various kinds and various principles. Some are so from real attachment to Britain, some from interested views, many, very many, from fear of the British force; some because they are dissatisfied with the general measures of Congress, more because they disapprove of the men in power and the measures in their respective States. But these different passions, views, and expectations, are so combined in their consequences that the parties affected by them either withhold their assistance or oppose our operations; and if America falls, it will be owing to such divisions more than the force of our enemies. However, there is much to be done before America can be lost, and if France will but join us in time there is no danger but America will soon be established an independent empire, and France, drawing from her the principal part of those sources of wealth and power that formerly flowed into Great Britain, will immediately become the greatest Power in Europe.

We have given you as just a picture of our present situation as we can draw in the compass of a letter, in order that you may be well informed; but you will only impart such circumstances as you may think prudent.

Our frigates are fine vessels, but we meet difficulty in procuring guns and anchors. Our people are but young in casting the former, and we want coals to make the latter; however, these difficulties we shall surmount, and are bent on building some line-of-battle ships immediately. The success in privateering, and encouragement given by the merchants, will inevitably bring seamen amongst us. This, with the measure that will be adopted to encourage the breeding of seamen amongst ourselves, will, in a few years, make us respectable on the ocean. Surely France cannot be so blind to her own interest as to neglect this glorious opportunity of destroying the power and humbling the pride of her natural and our declared enemy.

We make no doubt but you have been made acquainted with the negotiations of Monsieur Hortalez, and in consequence thereof we conclude you will be at no loss to obtain the supplies of goods wanted for a particular department, notwithstanding we know that the greatest part of those remittances that were intended you, have been intercepted by one means or other. It is unfortunate and much to be regretted that those remittances have had such ill fate, but we hope you have obtained the goods on credit, and you may depend that remittances will be continued until all your engagements are discharged.

Clothing and tents are so much wanted for our armies that we entreat you to apply immediately to the Court of France for a loan of money sufficient to despatch immediately considerable quantities of stuff fit for tents, and of coarse cloths, coatings, stockings, and such other comfortable necessities for an army as you can readily judge will be proper. You will get these goods either sent out direct in French vessels, or to their islands, where we can send for them; but if you could prevail on the Court of France to send out men-of-war with them, it would be most acceptable. Whatever engagements you make for payment of the cost of such clothing and necessities, the Congress will order sufficient remittances to fulfil the same; but in our circumstances it requires time to accomplish them. You'll observe the Secret Committee have given orders to Mr. Thomas Morris to procure sundry articles and despatch them immediately; and if you succeed in the negotiation of a loan from the Court for this purpose, you may employ him or act in conjunction with him to procure and despatch those articles ordered by them, and such others as you shall judge necessary, and the remittances to be made him will serve to refund the loan. Should the Court decline this matter perhaps the Farmers General may be induced to advance the money or stake their credit for the sake of securing the tobacco the Secret Committee will remit to Europe. These things we throw out as hints, and shall only further observe that you cannot render your injured country more essential service at this time than by procuring these supplies immediately.

We are told that our vigilant enemies have demanded of the Courts of France, Spain, and Portugal, to deliver up the American ships in their ports, and to forbid their having any future intercourse with them. The Court of Portugal has complied so far as to order our ships away on ten days' notice. That France and Spain gave evasive answers. This is private uncertain intelligence; but we think you will do well to intimate to the Ministers of those nations that first impressions are lasting; that the time has been when they stood much in need of American supplies; that the time may come again; that although we are styled Rebels by Britain, yet our friendship may hereafter be of the utmost importance to those Powers particularly that possess American Colonies, and that injuries now done us will not be easily effaced. These hints of arguments you'll offer as the suggestions of your own mind, and endeavour to influence them by interest or fear from taking any active part against us. On the contrary, as it is evidently their interest to encourage our commerce, so we hope you'll be able to influence them, by one means or other, to protect and license it in the utmost extent.

We shall not take up more of your time at present, but remain, sir, your humble servants.

To Silas Deane, Esq.

COMMITTEE OF SECRET CORRESPONDENCE TO WILLIAM BINGHAM.

Philadelphia, October 1, 1776.

MR. BINGHAM: Sir: Having received advices that our agent, Mons. Hortalez, is despatching sundry articles, wanted for the service of the United States of America, to Martinico or St. Eustatia, recommended to the care of his Excellency the General, or the Governor and Intendant there, to be by them delivered to whoever shall be properly authorized by Congress to receive the same, we hereby request you will make application for all arms, ammunition, money, clothing, or other articles, that may arrive in Martínico or St. Eustatia with the above directions; and you are hereby empowered to receive and grant receipts for the same, on behalf of the United States of America, or to sign certificates, or any other writing that may be required, purporting the delivery thereof to you as agent for the Congress. We are, sir, your humble servants.

In Congress, Philadelphia, October 1, 1776

I do hereby certify that Benjamin Franklin and Robert Morris, Esquires, Delegates in Congress from Pennsylvania, have been duly appointed members of the honourable Committee of Secret Correspondence, and that they are fully empowered to direct all matters in their department on behalf of the United States of America, the other members of said Committee being now absent. I do also certify that the delivery of arms, ammunition, specie, or other stores, to them or their order, on behalf of the Congress, is, and will be acknowledged as valid and binding on the United States of America.

B. FRANKLIN TO C. W. F. DUMAS.

Philadelphia, October 1, 1776.

SIR: I have just time to acknowledge the receipt of your two packets, with the pamphlets enclosed, the contents of which are very satisfactory. You will hear from me more fully in a little time. With great esteem, I am, sir, &c.,

B. FRANKLIN.

P. S. We have a great force brought against us here, but continue firm.

MARINE COMMITTEE TO LIEUTENANT ALBERTSON.

October 1, 1776.

SIR: The Continental schooner Muskeito, under your command, being well fitted and manned, you are to set sail for Ocracock, in North-Carolina, and proceed up with said schooner to Edenton. On your arrival there, put into the post-office any letters you carry with you, and the military stores and other goods you have on board deliver to Messrs. Hewes & Smith, merchants, at that place. Those gentlemen are to lade you back; therefore you must lose no time in discharging and getting the vessel ready for the reception of naval stores, or any other goods which they may want for to put on board, which you are to receive to the full lading of your vessel.

You are to apply to the Convention, or any other publick body at that place, for any despatches they may want to send by you; and as soon as you have received your cargo and despatches from Messrs. Hewes & Smith, you are to set sail for this place, proceeding with caution, to avoid being taken by the enemy. Should you find our bay shut up by the men-of-war, and that you cannot get in by the Cape May channel, bear away for some of the inlets, and write to us when you get in.

You are to be careful of the schooner, her materials and stores, and we expect you will be diligent and attentive to the execution of your business.

We are, sir, your humble servants.

To Lieutenant Thomas Albertson, of the Continental schooner Muskeito.

P. S. You must make the utmost despatch from Carolina, and take care not to waste any powder. Should you be taken, throw all letters and papers overboard, slung to a shot to sink them.

ROBERT MORRIS TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

In Secret Committee, Philadelphia, October 1, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Publick bodies should be equally cautious of taking offence as of giving it, because mischiefs are very apt to arise therefrom, and generally before a remedy can be applied. You have taken amiss the refusal of fourteen pieces of canvass, wanted for your Colonial vessels, and had information that two thousand pieces had been imported in our vessel here. These are your premises; and the facts are as follows: It was not this Committee that refused you the canvass, for we had, agreeable to orders of Congress, delivered the whole to the Marine Committee, and that whole consisted of about six hundred pieces instead of two thousand; but it was not possible the Marine Committee could spare you a single bolt, because the Congress had but a day or two before your application ordered all the light duck and other stuff, then in the publick stores, or that could be bought in the city, to be made up into tents, and to be sent immediately to General Washington. The Marine Committee remonstrated against this measure, alleging that none of the Continental vessels could be sent out if the canvass was taken from them. No matter, they were told; the soldiers should have tents if they stripped the yards of those Continental frigates and cruisers that had sails made up; and in consequence of this measure, which nothing but the extreme necessity of our army could justify, we have now a parcel of fine vessels lying here useless at a time they might have been most advantageously employed. Therefore judge you, whether that Committee or the Congress itself could have justified sparing you the canvass you wanted.

You may depend, gentlemen, that no just grounds are ever meant to be given by Congress, or any of its Committees, for complaints like yours. We are all embarked in a cause that requires our utmost united exertions to carry us through, and be assured you can always demand our utmost aid and assistance, where it can possibly be extended consistent with the general welfare.

I have the honour to be, gentlemen, for and on behalf of the Secret Committee, your most obedient and very humble servant,

ROBT. MORRIS.

To the Honourable Council of Safety of Maryland.

Philadelphia, October 1, 1776.

Yesterday arrived in this city from the American camp at Harlem, Brigadier-General Mifflin, Colonel Penrose, and Major Williams.

We hear that an armed vessel is now fitting out in this city, which will be called the Parry, in honour of the late gallant Colonel Parry, of this State, who fell on Long-Island, the 27th of August last, nobly contending for the freedom and independence of his country.

COLONEL Z. BUTLER TO ROGER SHERMAN.

Westmoreland, October 1, 1776.

HONOURED SIR: In some of my last letters, you will recollect, I informed you I had sent a messenger among the Indians upon the head waters of the Susquehanna, and thereby informed them of an assault made upon one of our people, whose testimony has some time since been sent to you. The Indians, you will see by the enclosed messages, are disposed for peace, and think it necessary that this place be appointed to hold their council at, and, as they express it, to have a fire-place here. Their importunity was so pressing on that account, that I promised them to inform the Congress and our Assembly of their request, and would beg the opinion of yourself, and our other Delegates, whether it is best to lay it before the Congress, and that you would be pleased to inform his Honour, our Governour, immediately what you apprehend will be best for the Colony to do, if any thing, in that matter.

The Indians, when they come here, expect presents, or at least to be supported while among us, and no one is appointed to treat with them. They come to me, and I have frequently given them, but find the burthen too great for one man to bear. They also insist upon a new flag, such as is used by the army of the United States. They say their old flag came over the great water, and they now want a new one, as a token of their friendship to the United States.

By the last papers we find that the report of Colonel Butler, etc., with Indians and Canadians being at Oswego, is disbelieved. By the accounts we had before received of that matter, some were much agitated here, but seem more easy at present.

I expect to be at the Assembly, and shall gladly receive any information you shall think proper to send me.

I am, sir, your humble servant,

Z. BUTLER.

To Hon. Roger Sherman.

N. B. The Indians deny having any hand in the attack made upon Wilson, and have engaged to let us know if they make any discovery of that matter.

A Conference held at WYOMING, or WESTMORELAND, between Captain JOHN, in behalf of the SIX NATIONS, and Colonel BUTLER, of the Colony of CONNECTICUT.

Captain John: Brothers, we come to make you a visit, and let you know we were at the treaty at Oswego, with Colonel Guy Johnson. We are all of one mind; we are friends, and bring good news.

Brothers, we are also come to let you know the Six Nations have been something afraid, but are now glad to see all things look like peace, and they think there will be no quarrel with each other, and you must not believe bad reports, or remember times that have been bad or unfriendly.

Brothers, all our spirits are of one colour, why should we not be of one mind?—continue to be brothers as our fathers and grandfathers were?

Brothers, we hope and desire you may hold what liberties and privileges you now enjoy.

Brothers, we are sorry to hear two brothers are fighting with each other, and should be glad to hear the quarrel was peaceably settled. We choose not to interest ourselves on either side. The quarrel appears to be unnecessary. We do not well understand it. We are for peace.

Brothers, when our young men come to hunt in your neighbourhood, you must not imagine they come to do mischief; they come to procure themselves provisions, also skins to purchase them clothing.

Brothers, we desire that Wyoming may be a place appointed where the great men may meet, and have a fire, which shall ever afterwards be called Wyomick, when you shall judge best, to prevent any jealousies or uneasy thoughts that may arise, and thereby preserve our friendship.

Brothers, you see but one of our chiefs. You may be suspicious on that account, but we assure you this chief speaks in the name of the Six Nations. We are of one mind.

Brothers, what we say is not from the lips, but from the heart. If any Indians of little note should speak otherwise, you must pay no regard to them, but observe what has been said and wrote by the chiefs, which may be depended on.

Brothers, we live at the head of these waters, (Susquehanna.) Pay no regard to any reports that may come up the stream or any other way, but look to the head of the waters for truth, and we do now assure you, as long as the waters run, so long you may depend on our friendship. We are all of one mind, and we are all for peace.

GENERAL HOWE'S ORDERS FOR SEIZING GRAIN, &c., ON LONG-ISLAND, NEW-YORK.

In pursuance of his Excellency the Commander-in Chief's orders to me, you are hereby directed to take into your custody all the grain, forage, and creatures you can find on Long-Island, being the property of persons in actual rebellion, or who have deserted their habitations, and put themselves under the protection of the Rebels, taking an exact account of what is so seized, and report frequently to John Morrison, respecting grain and forage, and to James Christie respecting creatures. In execution of this duty you are to employ such persons as you think proper, who will apply to his Majesty's Justices of the Peace to impress boats, wagons, horses, drivers, mills, barns, and what other conveniences you may require for the benefit of his Majesty's service; and all officers, civil and military, are hereby required to give you their aid. For doing all which, this shall be a sufficient warrant.

DAN'L CHAMIER, Com. Gen.

October 1, 1776.

Jamaica, October 2, 1776.

TO JOHN HEWLETT, Esq., L. I.:

You are to use your utmost endeavours to bring me cattle and sheep for the army; when delivered a receipt will be given, to be paid at a certain time and place. If any butcher or others interfere with you under pretence of bringing them to me, without a written order from me, seize their cattle, put a fair value on them, and drive them to me, and the owners shall be paid. Also seize all sheep and cattle of Rebels who have left their habitations, and employ proper people to assist you. For doing whereof, this shall be your warrant.

JAMES CHRISTIE,
Commissary for Cattle and Sheep.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Head-Quarters, Harlem Heights, October 1, 1776.

SIR: I have the honour of your favour of the 27th ultimo, and note the contents. The row-galleys belonging to your State, together with those the property of the United States, and all other vessels, on the approach of the men-of-war, ran up the North River, under cover of the battery on Mount Washington, from whence it is now impossible to remove them. As they are now posted, they are serviceable to us, by preventing a communication with the ships, and keeping out row-guards by night, to give us timely notice of the approach, or any movements, of the enemy. To take from them their crew would be rendering them entirely useless, and to rob them of their weapons would dispirit the men. However, if it should be thought advisable, after weighing the above circumstances, to have the crew ordered to Connecticut, or any of the arms or other weapons on board to be sent there, your orders shall be attended to. The situation of the enemy's ships is very different at this time from what it was before the evacuation of New-York. We then had the command of a narrow pass, communicating from the Sound to the East River, commonly called Hell-Gate, which is now in their possession. Two of their ships came through yesterday—one, I think, a transport, the other a frigate mounting twenty-four guns.

October 3.—Since the above, I am honoured with yours of the 28th, enclosing the petition from the gentlemen sent from this State on parole to Connecticut. They were looked upon as favourers to Governour Tryon and the British troops, and were removed to prevent giving any intelligence or otherways aiding the enemies of our country. It was intended that when the theatre of action was removed, they might return; but that at present is not the case. Nor do I think it prudent they should be permitted to return during our present situation, as undoubtedly they may have it in their power to give information concerning your State, &c., which might be prejudicial to the general good. They particularly mention, in their petition, "that they were removed from Long-Island into Connecticut until such time as the situation and state of affairs there should admit of their return to their respective families again." You will be pleased to inform them I agree with you in sentiment that that period is not arrived.

There is no material difference in our situation since I last wrote you. The enemy have nearly completed their works from the North to the East River. As the season is far advanced, we cannot reasonably expect a state of inactivity; but should they attempt to dislodge us from our present quarters, I am in hopes to defeat their designs, and give a favourable account to the publick of the conduct of the troops under my command.

I have the honour to be, sir, your most humble servant,

GO. WASHINGTON.

To Governour Trumbull, Connecticut.

COLONEL REED TO THE COMMITTEE OF CONGRESS AT HEAD-QUARTERS TO INQUIRE INTO THE STATE OF THE ARMY.

Camp, near Harlem, October 1, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Your departure from this place earlier than I expected, obliges me to communicate to you this way what I intended to have done in person. I observe that the Congress, in the establishment of a new and permanent army, have very properly reserved the appointment of General officers to themselves. As the department I now have the honour to hold is in that class, and of very great importance to the publick safety and welfare, I think it my indispensable duty to acquaint you, as early as possible, that I find my apprehensions of not being able to fill it to advantage to the publick and satisfaction to myself, have been too well realized to allow me to continue in it.

If there is any department in the army which should be filled by one who has made arms his profession, it is this; and I doubt whether any abilities or reading can supply the deficiency of practice. In a well-regulated army, it is a post of great concern and difficulty, and always filled by some officer of the greatest experience: how much more necessary must it be in ours, where the greatest part are uninformed of their duty, and the frequent changes keep us constantly ignorant. To set out with the new troops; to lead them on step by step in the various duties of the camp, the parade of the field; to establish one system of exercise through the whole, so that the whole machine, though large, may move with ease, will require an officer to whom the minute duties are familiar, and whose knowledge and experience will claim respect in his discharge of the greater ones. I feel myself often at a loss in the former, and inexpressibly so in the latter: to continue, therefore, in an office which may be filled by a man of capacity, when I am sensible of my deficiencies, would, in my opinion, be unbecoming a man of character and honour. In the new arrangement, therefore, to be made, you will be pleased to consider this department as one to be provided for, and the sooner, I apprehend, the better.

The General's friendship and partiality would doubtless induce him to retain me with him, and supply my defects from his own knowledge and application to business, both which are very great. I have not, therefore, as yet, acquainted him with my intentions; but I beg you would do me the justice to believe that neither a regard to private interest, personal danger, or dissatisfaction with the service, but a single eye to the publick service and welfare, have actuated me upon this occasion. I shall not hesitate to apply the little knowledge and experience I have acquired to the publick service in a channel through which I can serve it with satisfaction and honour, but I cannot continue in an important department, where the publick and my own character will eventually suffer.

I am, with great respect and regard, gentlemen, your most obedient and very humble servant,

Jos. REED, Adjutant-General.

COLONEL GRAYSON TO GENERAL HEATH.

Head-Quarters, Heights of Harlem, October 1, 1776.

SIR: His Excellency has desired me to acquaint you that he approves of the sentence respecting the condemnation of James McCormick, as also the sentences on Lieutenant Thomas Yunkerman, of Colonel Haller's Regiment, and of Oliver Mildeberger, of Captain Leonard's Company, Colonel Lasher's Regiment. With respect to James McCormick, it will be necessary for you to appoint the place and time of execution, and acquaint his Excellency therewith, that he may have an opportunity of putting it into general orders.

I have it further in command to acquaint you, that whenever any prisoners in your division are charged with capital offences, that it will be advisable to send them here for trial: in other instances you are to proceed as heretofore. His Excellency having some matters to communicate to you is desirous of seeing you here some time to-day.

I am, sir, your most obedient servant,

WILLIAM GRAYSON, A. D. C.

To the Hon. Major-General Heath, at King's Bridge.

P. S. His Excellency, upon considering further on the subject of McCormick, thinks it will be best to order him here for execution: you will, therefore, be pleased to have this done. You will please to let the prisoner know he is certainly to die, and direct that a blessing may attend him.

COLONEL REED TO GENERAL HEATH.

Head-Quarters, October 1, 1776.

SIR: You will please to order McCormick down here under a guard, as soon as you conveniently can. Captain Wilcox has applied for a Court of Inquiry into his conduct on Long-Island, in August. You will please to order one if General Sullivan's health will admit his attendance.

I am, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

Jos. REED, Adjutant-General.

COLONEL REED TO GENERAL HEATH.

October 1, 1776.

SIR: I wrote you this morning by the General's direction to desire McCormick might be sent down here to be executed to-morrow, but as he has not arrived, I fear the letter has miscarried.

I send you back the proceedings of the Court-Martial on the other prisoners, which the General desires you would have carried into execution immediately.

I am, sir, your obedient, humble servant,

Jos. REED, Adjutant-General.

TENCH TILGHMAN TO WILLIAM DUER.

Head-Quarters, Harlem Heights, October 1, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I have only to acquaint you that a frigate came through Hell-Gate last night, and anchored within the mouth of Harlem river, a little below Harlem town. This looks more and more like an attempt upon that side. As we have got our front well secured, we are bestowing all our attention to our flank next the Sound. Mr. Jenifer arrived here an hour ago; he left General Lee in Georgia, the 1st of last month. He would set out for this on the 3d, and as he intended to ride post we look for him every day. His arrival will greatly relieve our worthy General, who has too much for any mortal upon his hands.

I have not to add, but that I am, sincerely your most obedient servant,

TENCH TILGHMAN.

To William Duer, Esq., Fishkill.

Captain Cook has not yet given his answer respecting sinking of the ships.

GENERAL HEATH TO GENERAL SALTONSTALL.

King's Bridge, October 1, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Your Militia have not as yet come forward. I beg you would hurry them, as they are wanted immediately. Two regiments are to take post on New-York Island, agreeable to his Excellency's orders lately given to you. Four were to join Colonel Chester, two of which are now to be posted on Harlem river, nearly opposite to Head-Quarters. Colonel Throop's regiment is also to come forward without loss of time, and take post at the last-mentioned place. Major Rogers's regiment is to remain on the sea-coast; Captains Wheat and Perkins are to remain at the Saw-Pitts; the other companies of that regiment are to be posted in the most judicious manner between the Saw-Pitts and East-Chester, in such manner as most effectually to secure and guard the coast.

I am, dear sir, yours affectionately,

W. HEATH.

To General Saltonstall.

GENERAL SALTONSTALL TO GENERAL HEATH.

West-Chester, October 1, 1776.

HONoured SIR: Yours of this day is before me. Yesterday ordered two regiments, Lieutenant-Colonel Stores's and Major Greaves's, immediately to march on to New-York Island and encamp on the hill opposite Fort Washington, and apply to his Excellency for further orders. Two regiments, Lieutenant-Colonel Ely's and Lieutenant-Colonel Smith's, immediately to march on the hill westward of my lodgings, to occupy the tents now standing, left by the late Connecticut Militia. One regiment, Colonel Douglass's, is posted here. One regiment, Colonel Hosford's, out of which one hundred and seventy-five men are posted at Manor of Pelham, and guard four miles of sea-coast, having only fifty men more to march, as the number of one hundred and seventy-five was left to my discretion, with advice of Colonel Joseph Drake, who then urged to have more guards for that length of coast; but if you don't order otherwise this day, will order the remainder of said regiment to march forward. The four first-mentioned regiments are now on their march for their destination aforesaid, but shall order the several regiments, with Colonel Throop's, immediately to march to the post you assign on Harlem river, and give Major Rogers orders agreeable to your direction. His Excellency told me my command would be where the greater part of the brigade was, and consequently on this side King's Bridge.

I am your most humble servant, G. SALTONSTALL.

To Major-General Heath.

GENERAL SCOTT TO GENERAL GATES.

Camp near King's Bridge, October 1, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: Permit me to recommend to your par-particular attention Monsieur Sennalet, a young gentleman from the French Islands, who has entered into the American service, and has a Majority, with orders to repair to your department. The gentleman has been with me a few days; and I flatter myself, from the short acquaintance I have with him, that you will find him a man of merit. Of this, however, General Gates will be a better judge than myself. The General's good sense and politeness will give merit its due; and I cannot help flattering myself that no person will be prejudiced in his estimation by the recommendation of his most obedient, humble servant,

JNO. MORIN SCOTT.

To the Hon. Major-General Gates.

JOSEPH TRUMBULL TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read October 14, 1776.]

King's Bridge, October 1, 1776.

SIR: I have this day drawn on you, in favour of Colonel Lowry, for sixty thousand dollars, towards supplying the Continental troops in New-Jersey with provisions. I hope the same will be paid and charged to my account accordingly.

I am, sir, your most humble servant,

JOS. TRUMBULL.

To the Hon. John Hancock, Esq., President of Congress.

WILLIAM MILLER TO THE COMMANDING OFFICER AT MOUNT WASHINGTON.

In Committee of Safety for the County of Westchester, }
White-Plains, October 1, 1776. }

SIR: We are well assured that there are several companies of men in the Counties of Westchester and Dutchess, who are making ready to go off and join the King's army. We are taking all possible pains to detect and apprehend them, by raising and sending off guards. We inform you, at the same time, that the Convention are apprised of it, and have recommended it to us to use the utmost vigilance. We beg, as they may go down the North River this evening, or perhaps in a night or two, that you'll keep a strict watch at your fort, by the water-side. They may likewise endeavour to pass over the East River to Long-Island; and we think they will meet with no difficulty in effecting their scheme that way, as the Continental Militia keep so indifferent a guard along that shore.

We thought proper to acquaint you of this plot, as it may be in your power to stop them in going down the North River.

By order of the Committee:

WM. MILLER, D. Chairman.

To the Commanding Officer at Mount Washington.

We beg you'll be kind enough to forward the above information to the commanding officers along the Sound.

COLONEL WEBB TO GENERAL HEATH.

Head-Quarters, ten o'clock, Tuesday Evening.

The General has this moment received information from the Committee of Westchester County, that several companies are formed and forming to join General Howe, and that it is more than probable they intend to pass this night or in a day or two. I am therefore to acquaint you his Excellency expects your guards keep the strictest watch from Harlem river, as far up as they posted.

I am, sir, yours, &c., SAM'L N. WEBB, A. D. C.

To General Heath.

WILLIAM MILLER TO CAPTAIN OSBORNE.

White-Plains, October 1, 1776.

I this day received a letter from the Convention, in which they inform me of a discovery made to them by you of conspiracies among some persons upon Cortlandt's Manor. I must acquaint you that the Convention have reposed especial trust in me to be aiding and assisting in bringing the same to light, as you may learn by applying to Captain Delavan. I must beg that you will, as soon as possible, give me further information about the matter, in order that they may be apprehended before they can escape, and if I could see you I could impart further matter of the like consequence.

I am your very humble servant, WM. MILLER.

To Captain Osborne, at Cortlandt's Manor.

JOHN SIMPSON AND OTHERS TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

GENTLEMEN: It is now six weeks and two days since we were admitted to our parole by your body at the White-Plains—our destination Bedford. We were at the same time informed that the Committee of that place were to furnish us with two dollars per week on account of the Continental Congress, for our subsistence, to be repaid by us when exchanged; for which we have repeatedly applied, but through inattention or want of understanding in the matter, it has hitherto been neglected, which lays us under the necessity of this application, desiring you would be kind enough to order the arrears to be paid us, as likeways to appoint the means of our future support. We have boarded upon our own credit for these six weeks, at Bedford; brought from there on Friday last, without a morsel of victuals being allowed us from seven o'clock of the morning of that day till Saturday, that we got our dinners upon a fresh credit at the Plains, where we now sojourn. As we have no money to get our linen washed or shoes mended, &c., the favour of your attention to this will much oblige your humble servants,

JNO. SIMPSON,
WILL'M ELDER,
JOSEPH WOLLCOMB,
WM. McDERMOTT.

To the Congress of the State of New-York.

PETITION OF PRISONERS CONFINED IN MORRISTOWN JAIL.
To the honourable the Provincial Congress for the Colony of NEW-YORK:

Your petitioners: Barnaby McMaron, belonging to General Greene's brigade, stationed at Long-Island, punished for sleeping on his post, and ordered one month's confinement, and been confined near three months:

Richard Keef, belonging to Lord Stirling's brigade, confined for buying a gun; tried and punished; ordered one month's imprisonment, confined three months:

William Gillas, confined for buying of a soldier who was indebted to him, a shirt and a pair of breeches, which it proved he had stole. To excuse himself he informed that I was going on board the Asia, though in years and a cripple; keeps a small store in York:

Thomas Dennis, confined by Major Crane, under suspicion of desertion into Boston, to the enemy. I was taken by them and pardoned for deserting from them, which I have done a second time, leaving all my clothes behind, and as a reward for returning, I have been long confined quite naked:

Jeremiah Gilly, confined for getting drunk, and making a disturbance in the streets of New-York:

Edward Wilson, confined for quarreling with his Corporal, being a front rank man and he would place me in the rear at the battle on Long-Island; a rifleman:

John Dougherty, confined for being in a certain house in York in liquor; a bowl being broke, the guard being come in, accused us with being Tories, my company fled, and I sent to gaol; an inhabitant of York:

James Nowles, confined on suspicion of going to Long-Island, being fishing in the East River for the Hospital:

Thomas Berry, belonging to General Sullivan's brigade, confined for striking a Lieutenant on the Holy ground, who had drawn the sword on two of them. Confined since April 17, 1776:

John Creig, confined for the above crime, and is the man who has disciplined most of the Jersey troops; was to have been discharged the day after we left York:

John Andrews, a prisoner of war, taken at St. John's, hath since disciplined two battalions of Provincial troops at Montancus, where he left his regiment and came in Captain John De Witt's company to Horn's Hook. Confined for being in company with a man suspected to be a Tory. The man got cleared, I being neglected in the hurry of business; should have been discharged in a few days, if we had not left New-York:

John Gee, belonging to the First Battalion of York Militia, confined for affronting a Sergeant who was in liquor. I reminding him of his duty for fear of getting mischief, he charged me with being inimical to the country. I was tried and honourably acquitted by a Court-Martial, upon a good character given from my Captain, which he repeatedly sent me, but could not come and take me, being upon Long-Island; therefore I remain, though guiltless, through the hurry and confusion of the times:

Most humbly sheweth, that your petitioners think they are very cruelly treated, to be confined without crimes, or even the shadow of a crime in reality; and hurried like the worst of criminals from one gaol to another, when soldiers are so much wanted; and it is the desire of every man to join their respective regiments, instead of perishing for want of clothes, and their health by their close confinement daily declining. We are used to enjoy liberty in York and Newark gaols, but here close locked up in dungeons; our victuals and the treatment we meet with from the gaoler is kind and good. We, beg for justice sake, you will take our unhappy, as well as unmerited sufferings into your kind and most serious consideration, (being every resource left us while the army is in such confusion,) or we must languish without any hopes, though most of us might be very useful if we had liberty and justice. Hope you will take these unhappy circumstances into your most serious consideration; and your petitioners, in duty, as well as gratitude, be ever bound to pray, &c.

Morristown Gaol, October 1, 1776.

COMMITTEE OF SHAWANGUNK TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

In Committee, Shawangunk, in Ulster County, }
October 1, 1776. }

GENTLEMEN: Whereas the company of Militia of Foot formerly commanded by Matthew Rea, in the Precinct of Shawangunk, and in the regiment commanded by Colonel Jonathan Hasbrook, have been under the necessity to make a new choice of officers, by reason of their Captain's resigning and other vacancies, the following gentlemen were chosen, agreeable to the resolves of Congress, for the officers of said company, viz: Siah Robenson for Captain, James Hunter for First Lieutenant, James Karne, Jun., for Second Lieutenant, and Evert Huffman for Ensign. And the Committee of said Precinct of Shawangunk do earnestly request that the persons above named may be commissioned as early as possible.

By order of the Committee:

MATTHEW REA, Chairman.

To the honourable the Convention of the State of New-York, now convened at Fishkill.

LIEUTENANT ALGER TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Fort Montgomery, October, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Captain Dennis was speaking to me concerning raising a company of Marines to enter on board the ship Montgomery, for her safety this winter. I make no doubt but he has acquainted the Convention of the same. I had some encouragement that I should have the berth, as our regiment will soon be disbanded and our men will be idle. By what small encouragement I have had from Captain Dennis, I have engaged a company of very fine young men, a great part of them sailors and artillerymen, which will go through all hardships with me. If you see cause to appoint me in that station, and send me the rate that they must engage under, I shall engage them instantly, as they wait for nothing else.

Gentlemen, your compliance to this petition will very much oblige your humble servant.

WILLIAM B. ALGER, Lieutenant.

To Captain Platt, or either of the members of Congress, at Fishkill.

GENERAL JAMES CLINTON TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Fort Montgomery, October 1, 1776.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY: Enclosed you have a copy of a letter and a deposition sent to me by the Chairman of the Committee of New-Windsor. The prisoners mentioned in the deposition are both confined in the Guard House at Fort Constitution, and their butter put in the Commissary's store. I have ordered an exact account of the quantity of butter taken to be sent to me; but I have not yet received it. I understand there is between fifty and sixty firkins and pails. It appears that the said Connor has a quantity of flour in Colonel Ellison's store, at New-Windsor; but I have not heard how much. Their conduct has been very suspicious ever since they came into the country, though the evidence given against Connor is only what Montgomery informed the said Lightbody. If I were convinced or had reason to believe that the butter, &c., was intended for our army at King's Bridge, I would be very unwilling to stop it; though, in my opinion, it was intended for our enemies. I intend to keep them and the butter until I receive your Excellency's directions about the matter.

Colonel Snider, who was appointed Colonel of the new recruits to assist in fortifying and defending these posts, is lately arrived here, with part of three companies, which consist of about a hundred men, including officers. There is part of two companies of the same regiment at Fort Constitution, but I have no return of their number as yet.

We have not a sufficient number of intrenching tools for to carry on our work. I have applied to Congress for them, but I am not yet supplied.

I am your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,
JAMES CLINTON, Brigadier-General.

To His Excellency General Washington, &c., at Headquarters, King's Bridge.

In Committee for the Precinct of New-Windsor, }
September 23, 1776. }

SIR: Enclosed you have a copy of an affidavit taken before this Committee this day, on which the Committee have determined to transmit to you the culprits, with their property, in order to be disposed of as you may judge proper. Mr. Connor alleges, in his favour, that he hath, for some time past, sold necessities to our army in New-York, and that he intended what he now possesses should be disposed of in the same way. But as Mr. Connor purchased the butter after he heard that our people had evacuated the town, and the ships of war hath proceeded some way up the North River, the Committee was of opinion that he might design it for the enemy, as he confessed that he did design to stay in town till the Regulars were on his back.

It further appeared to the Committee that Montgomery sold a quantity of butter to Connor after he had heard said Connor make the declaration as recited in the above affidavit; by which the Committee are of opinion that Montgomery is highly culpable.

We are, sir, your most humble servants. By order of the Committee:

SAM'L BREWSTER, Chairman.

P. S. Since the Committee determined on the above, they received information that Connor hath a quantity of flour in Colonel Ellison's store, which they have not determined concerning at present.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Albany, October 1, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Two Sachems of the Cayugas, who have been with me on some business, expressed an inclination to visit your Excellency, which I greedily embraced, as their reports, when they return, will, I hope, eradicate the various accounts which prevail amongst the savages to our disadvantage. They go down under the care of Mr. Deane, the interpreter to this department. I wish, if convenient, that they might be shown as much of our force as possible, and to have some presents made them. They do not wish to remain above a day or two with you.

I am, dear sir, most respectfully, your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

To His Excellency General Washington.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GENERAL GATES.

Albany, October 1, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Yesterday I received a letter from General Washington, enclosing a paper containing some information respecting the strength and intentions of the enemy in Canada. Copies of both I now enclose.

It is probable that a blow is meditated on the communication. The garrison at Fort George is too weak to encounter a vigorous attack, and as the fate of the army depends on the regularity of the supplies, you will please to detach a battalion to its support, which may again join you in time, should General Arnold be unable to keep the Lake. A sufficiency of batteaus should for that purpose be kept at Fort George.

If it should be left to you to appoint a General Officer to command here, permit me to hint that St. Clair, I believe, would be as agreeable as any, as you will not be able to spare Arnold. Whoever it is, my aid, if necessary, shall not be wanting. I have not had a letter from Congress, in answer to any of mine, since July. I feel this slight very sensibly, and have already and shall continue to resent it.

I am informed that Congress has resolved on raising eighty-eight battalions during the war; to give twenty dollars bounty, and a gratuity in land to officers and soldiers; eight-ninetieths of a dollar is to be allowed in lieu of a ration to officers. How they have come to estimate it so low, I know not.

Some more cordage left this yesterday, and the remainder is momentarily expected, and shall be forwarded without delay.

I am, dear General, very sincerely, your obedient, humble servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

To the Hon. General Gates.

COLONEL DE HART TO GOVERNOUR LIVINGSTON.

Tyconderoga, October 1, 1776.

SIR: I have taken the liberty to acquaint you of a matter so materially interesting to the Province of New-Jersey, respecting our regiment, that it might be construed a neglect of my duty was I to omit it, which I trust will serve as an apology for intruding on your time. When the Continental Congress gave the order for raising the New-Jersey Regiments, part of the contract was, that the men should find their own arms. The mode of inlisting men armed, was found impracticable, and the Province, as I apprehend, at their own risk, provided them with arms, to be repaid by stoppages arising from the men's pay at two dollars a month. How far this mode will indemnify the publick, will at our return be best known; this, however, I very much suspect, that a great number of very good arms will be lost to the Province.

At the expiration of the soldiers' inlistment the arms are then their own property, and the distance of way, with many other reasons will, I fear, occasion the soldiers to dispose of them, and our Eastern friends seem very desirous of taking them off of the soldiers' hands at a very good price. Should this happen, and our Province be deprived of six or seven hundred good Jersey arms, (the very best guns on the Continent,) I fear that our small, though willing, services to our country will be more than counterbalanced by the loss. If the Province look upon this circumstance in the light I do, and are desirous of remedying it; I will contribute every thing in my power towards it.

If any person here should be authorized to give the men assurances that the stoppages that have been made on them for the arms, should be returned to them upon their being delivered in New-Jersey, I imagine it would be in my power to persuade or compel them to return them to New-Jersey again, a thing, I am of opinion, much to be desired by the people of that Province. Such intelligence ought to be sent soon, as I expect we shall march for New-Jersey the beginning of November. I have by an application to General Gates got orders to secure the arms of the dead and deserted, which shall be my particular care. Had I received such orders when our regiment first marched for Canada, it would have been a happy circumstance. This I request you will please to communicate to such members of the State as it may be proper this application should be made to, and at the same time excuse any impropriety of application, as at present I am a stranger to your new Constitution.

I heartily congratulate you and our State on your late appointment, convinced it will produce the good effects intended, which shall be the constant wishes of, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

WM. DE HART.

To His Excellency William Livingston, Governour of New-Jersey.

COLONEL HARTLEY TO GENERAL GATES.

Crown-Point, October 1, 1776.

HONOURED SIR: I was surprised that the boat I had despatched to the fleet had not returned; but the cause now appears. Sergeant Macolm had orders to take Messrs. Gilliland, Watson, and MacCawley prisoners, and to convey them to Ticonderoga. This occasioned some delay. General Arnold doubtless will inform you the reasons that induced him to make these orders. I thought that as Mr. Gilliland's family and Mr. Watson's family were in our power, there would have been no danger of either of the men, had they inclined to act against us. Mr. Watson's family is in great distress, his wife near lying in, very unwell and made unhappy by his confinement, induces me to desire that Watson should be permitted to return here to remove his family as he proposes. There can, in my opinion, be no great danger, let his offence be what it may.

General Arnold seems very uneasy that the galleys do not come down, as he every moment expects the enemy. Should he be attacked by a superiour force, he intimates that he will be obliged to keep up a running fight till he joins the galleys. You will doubtless use every expedition to forward them. Some accident has, I presume, retarded the two. If the enemy mean to come at all, I should apprehend it will be the next fair wind.

I am, honoured sir, with the greatest respect, your most humble servant,

THOS. HARTLEY.

To General Gates.

GENERAL ARNOLD TO GENERAL GATES.

Valcour, October 1, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: Last night the Trumbull galley arrived here, and Captain Warner delivered me your letter of the 26th ultimo. I was rejoiced to hear she brought a reinforcement of seamen. I expected at least one hundred, but was much surprised when Captain Warner informed he had not one save his own ship's company. I hope to be excused (after the requisitions so often made) if with five hundred men, half naked, I should not be able to beat the enemy with seven thousand men, well clothed, and a naval force, by the best accounts, near equal to ours. The Trumbull is a considerable addition to our fleet, but not half finished or rigged; her cannon are much too small.

I wrote in July for cordage sufficient for eight galleys; I then supposed that number would be built. I am surprised at their strange economy or infatuation below. Saving and negligence, I am afraid, will ruin us at last.

Colonel Trumbull writes me a very imperfect account of the affairs at New-York. I am all impatience to hear the particulars, and know the event.

Enclosed is a list of sundry articles which I have sent Lieutenant Calderwood to bring down, if to be had. Great part of my seamen and marines are almost naked. The weather has been very severe for some time. I don't expect to be able to keep my station above a fortnight longer. We have continual gales of wind, and the duty very severe.

I ordered the Captain of the Liberty to stay no longer than to overhaul his vessel, which might have been done in forty-eight hours. I beg you will be kind enough to order him back immediately. If he brings materials his vessel may be done here in one day.

This minute Sergeant Stiles is returned from a scout to the Isle-aux-Noix, where he was sent this day week. Enclosed is his examination, by which it appears the enemy are exerting every nerve to augment their navy, doubtless with a design to cross the Lake this fall or be an over-match for us next spring.

Colonel Wigglesworth joins me in respectful compliments.
I am, dear General, your affectionate and obedient humble servant,

B. ARNOLD.

To Hon. Major-General Gates.

Sergeant Stiles returned this morning from the Isle-aux-Noix, where he was sent this day week. Says he left it last night at sunset; that there appears upwards of two thousand men on the island, in tents; that he saw a schooner mounting twelve guns, two gondolas, completed, with three guns in each and a square-sail, one gondola launched and not completed, and two on the stocks, one of them just set up; that a number of people were encamped at River la Cole, where they have erected a battery of heavy cannon. He also saw many tents on Hospital Island, and on the west shore between that and the Isle-aux-Noix; that he passed Windmill-Point in the night, and believes there was four hundred Indians there; and that on the Bay opposite he saw many lights and fires, and supposes the regular troops were encamped there.

Valcour, October 1, 1776.

Valcour, October 1, 1776.

COLONEL BARRETT TO GENERAL GATES.

Rutland, on Otter Creek, October 1, 1776.

SIR: I received a line from your Honour yesterday by the post of the 28th September. Would inform your Honour that the underwork of the bridge is raised and the string pieces all on but two, which frames the upper work, in which the people are at work on, and making a road to and from the bridge. I am, sir, pursuing your instructions as vigorously as possible as is within my power with the detachment here, and shall by every opportunity inform your Honour as the work advances.

I am, sir, your Honour's most obedient, humble servant,
JOHN BARRETT, Superintendent.

To the Hon. General Gates.

JOSEPH HAWLEY TO GENERAL GATES.

Northampton, October 1, 1776.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOUR: Among my solicitous meditations on the state of our armies, it occurs to me that if an army of the United States should continue at Ticonderoga the approaching winter, (as I trust they will, maugre all the efforts of Britain;) several hundred pair of snow-shoes will be needed for them. The army cannot subsist without them. There are in my house, left here by accident, fifty-nine pair belonging to the States, in good order, paid for last year. I have wrote to one or two members of Congress suggesting the necessity of timely provision of snow-shoes for the Northern army. But mention made of it by your Honour in a list or invoice of necessities for the winter, will have far greater effect than the suggestion from me.

Pray, sir, pardon my officiousness in this particular. My only apology is the consideration of the infinitude of matters which your Honour has to attend to, induced me to suppose that possibly this article for the winter might not be thought of so early as would be most advantageous.

I am, sir, with the greatest respect, your most obedient and most humble servant,
JOSEPH HAWLEY.
To General Gates.

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL TO MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL.

Lebanon, October 1, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The Honourable E. Gerry, Esq., in his letter of the 6th of August last, informed that upon my desire he applied to you to lend or sell a quantity of sulphur, for the use of the powder-mills in this State, and that you was willing to comply with the proposal, but supposed it expedient for me to advise you what quantity would be wanted, and whether we should choose to purchase or borrow it, that determination of the General Court might be had thereon. We are still in want of that article, and the powder-mills here must stop if they cannot obtain it from your State. I should esteem it a favour if you would spare one ton at this time, and should choose to purchase it. It is now likely that more will be wanted. I should be glad that the Assembly would, at the same time, make provision to spare us more if needed; it will be very prejudicial to the publick to have the powder-mills stopped.

The ton of sulphur now wanted please to deliver to Jedediah Elderkin and Nathaniel Wales, Jun., Esq., or their order, who will pay for the same if had on purchase; otherwise they will give their receipt to be returned if received on loan.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient, humble servant,
JONTH. TRUMBULL.

To the honourable Council of the State of Massachusetts.

Mr. Story, Mr. Berry, Mr. Noyes, a Committee to inquire into the state of the Magazines with respect to Sulphur, and report whether the application of Governour Trumbull to this Court for one ton of that article can be complied with.

NATHANIEL SHAW TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

New-London, October 1, 1776.

SIR: The 29th ultimo I shipped by Captain Webster, seventy-two tents which were sent me by Daniel Tillinghast, Esq., of Providence, and hope they will get safe to hand. I now, by Captain Thomas King, send you nine markees and ninety-seven common tents, which I hope will also come safe. In case any of the British ships should come down this way, I think we should have the earliest notice of it, as we are daily shipping goods up the Sound for the army.

I am, sir, your very humble servant,

NATH'L SHAW, Jun.

To His Excellency General Washington, Commander-in-Chief of the American Army.

New-London, October 1, 1776.

Received on board the sloop Susannah, myself master, nine markee tents and ninety-seven common tents, from Nathaniel Shaw, Jun., which I promise (the dangers of the seas excepted) to deliver as far up the Sound, as the said vessel can proceed with safety, and deliver to General Washington, or his order, having signed two receipts of this date.

THOMAS KING.

STEPHEN HOPKINS TO JOHN ADAMS.

Providence, October 1, 1776.

SIR: On my journey homeward, at a town called Millstone, in Somerset County, in the Jerseys, I found confined there a strange group of about fourteen prisoners, four of which belong to New-England, and had been taken at different times by British cruisers, and carried to Halifax; and having no other means to get home, shipped themselves on board some transport vessels bound to New-York, where they were to be discharged. Four more of them are French subjects, taken in the same manner on this coast, and carried also to Halifax, and were returning in like manner, in order to get home. One of them is a boy of eleven years of age, belonging to Halifax; the remainder British seamen. I promised these prisoners that I would write to the Board of War concerning them, in order to procure their release, or at least the liberation of the New-England men and Frenchmen; and I wish you to use your influence for that purpose.

I remain your friend,

STEP. HOPKINS.

To John Adams, Chairman to the Board of War.

COMMODORE HOPKINS TO REV. SAMUEL HOPKINS.

Providence, October 1, 1776.

SIR: I received yours of the 20th September, yesterday, and am very much obliged to you for your address and advice; and as to your complaints of the morals of the people belonging to the navy, I am now to let you know that I did not enter into the navy as a divine, and that I am not qualified to act nor give directions in that matter. The Congress whom I serve made provision for a Chaplain to perform the necessary duty, but to my mortification, I have not been able to get a single man to act in that character, although I have applied to many. If you know of any that has the good of mankind at heart sufficient to expose himself to necessary danger of the service, should be glad you would send him, who may depend, shall be treated with due respect. And if none can be procured, I cannot but condole with you the depravity of the times.

I am, with great respect, sir, your humble servant,

ESEK HOPKINS.

To the Rev. Samuel Hopkins, Pastor of the First Congregational Church, at Newport.

JOHN AVERY TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

SIR: I am directed to acquaint the President of the honourable Congress of the sums advanced to the Sieur Girault Chavalier and Sieur Coleaux, on account of the Congress, which you'll perceive by the enclosed resolves that I have now the honour to transmit to you.

I am, sir, with great esteem, your Honour's most obedient, humble servant,

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

To Hon. John Hancock, Esq.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER RECEIVED IN LONDON, DATED HALIFAX, NOVA-SCOTIA, OCTOBER 1, 1776.

On Sunday last we received advice from Liverpool, in this Province, that some of the American privateers had taken in port Medway a brig belonging to Captain Hall; a sloop, the property of Mr. Richard Cunningham, of this town, and several others; and also a ship, nearly loaded with lumber, spars, &c., out of which they took the provisions, sails, anchors, cables, &c., cut away all the rigging, and after destroying part of the said ship left her. A schooner loaded with cattle, roots, &c., was likewise taken coming out of the harbour of Liverpool, bound to this port.

[The obvious object of these excursions, and others, some on Kennebeck River, Bay of Fundy, &c., in which the New-England troops have been assisted by the New-Eng- land privateers, has been to distress the garrison at Halifax. They expect to be joined by a party in the Colony.]

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO COLONEL SMALLWOOD.

[No. 198.]

Annapolis, October 2, 1776.

SIR: We are desirous of having a particular account of the troops at present under your command, as well Regulars as Militia, distinguishing those that are effective from those that are sick, wounded, or prisoners; also a list of those that have been killed. We have heretofore wrote about sending us an inventory of arms and other stores belonging to this State, to which we refer, and repeat our request that you would comply therewith. We are surprised you have never wrote us a line since you left Annapolis, and more especially since the battle on Long-Island. We are much pleased to hear the great character the Marylanders have acquired, and heartily wish you health and success. We are, &c.

To Colonel William Smallwood.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO COLONEL HUGHES.

[No. 199.]

Annapolis, October 2, 1776.

SIR: In yours of the 22d of September last you inform us that Colonel Hollingsworth would call on us in a day or two, and that by him we should have an opportunity of sending the commissions and cash wrote for by you. We had ourselves reason to expect that gentleman down, as we had requested he would attend us on business of importance; but we have been disappointed, as he has not appeared. Your letter to the Convention of the 1st instant, informing them of your not receiving any answer from this Board, and applying to them, has been laid by them before us, and we are much surprised at the application, as attention was and would have been paid to your letter, had Colonel Hollingsworth, agreeable to your expectation, come here. As soon as a safe hand, with whom we could entrust the money, made application from you, it has been immediately sent.

Mr. Hartshorne brings you up five hundred and seventy pounds, for the purchase of arms, blankets, payment of subsistence money, and remainder of bounty money, a sum judged sufficient, but if it should fall short a further sum will be sent you on transmitting the accounts of the expenditure of the moneys already sent. Mr. Hartshorne has an order for cartouch-boxes, haversacks, and canteens, at Baltimore, and what tents may be ready there. If more are wanting, and you can get them made with you, the cash will be furnished on requisition. If you can buy materials for them they can be made at Baltimore. We are, &c.

To Colonel Hughes.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO MESSRS. CRAVATH AND DUGAN.

[No. 200.]

Annapolis, October 2, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: If the schooner Ninety-Two is still unengaged we shall be glad to see you immediately on the subject of chartering or purchasing her. We are, &c.

To Messrs. Cravath & Dugan.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO THE ASSEMBLIES OF THE SOUTHERN STATES.

Philadelphia, October 2, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The Congress being at present deeply engaged in matters of the utmost importance to the welfare of America, have judged it absolutely necessary that there should be a full representation of the several States as soon as possible. For this end, I am to request, in obedience to their commands, you will immediately take proper measures to comply with the enclosed resolves, in order that the United States may be fully represented in Congress, and the sentiments of America be more fully known upon those interesting subjects that lie before them. I shall therefore only once more request your compliance with this requisition of Congress; and have the honour to be, in great haste, gentlemen, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To the Convention of Maryland.

[Same to Assembly of Virginia; Convention of North-Carolina; Assembly of South-Carolina; Assembly of Georgia.]

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO THE ASSEMBLIES OF THE NORTHERN STATES.

Philadelphia, October 2, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The many and just complaints of the insufficiency of the Surgeons and their Mates to discharge their duty in a proper manner, have induced Congress to pass the enclosed resolves, recommending it to the several States to appoint some skillful examiners, without whose approbation no Surgeon or Surgeon's mate shall receive a commission either in the army or navy.

The Congress being at present deeply engaged in matters of the utmost importance to the welfare of America, have judged it absolutely necessary that there should be a full representation of the several States as soon as possible. For this end I am to request, in obedience to their commands, you will immediately take proper measures to comply with the enclosed resolve, in order that the United States may be fully represented in Congress, and the sentiments of America be the better known upon those interesting subjects that lie before them. I shall therefore only once more request your compliance with this requisition of Congress; and have the honour to be, gentlemen, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.To the honourable Assembly of New-Hampshire.[Same to Massachusetts-Bay; Rhode-Island; Connecticut; New-York; New-Jersey.]

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia, October 2, 1776.

SIR: The bearer, Major Ross, calling on me previous to his setting out for Head-Quarters, I have only time to enclose you sundry resolves, and to inform you that I shall write you fully by General Mifflin. In the interim, I have the honour to be, with the greatest esteem and respect, sir, your most humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.To General Washington.

COMMITTEE OF SECRET CORRESPONDENCE TO SILAS DEANE.

Philadelphia, October 2, 1776.

SIR: We have this day received from the honourable the Congress of Delegates of the United States of America the important papers which accompany this letter: being first a treaty of commerce and alliance between the Court of France and these States; second, instructions to their Commissioners relative to the said treaty; and lastly, a commission whereby you will find that Doctor Franklin, the Hon. Thomas Jefferson and yourself are appointed Commissioners for negotiating the said treaty at the Court of France. These papers speak for themselves, and need no strictures or remarks from us, neither is it our business to make any.

You will observe that in case of the absence or disability of any one or two of the Commissioners, the other has full power to act. We therefore think it proper to inform you, that Doctor Franklin and Mr. Jefferson will take passage with all speed; but it is necessary that their appointment on this business remain a profound secret; and we do not choose even to trust this paper with their route. Suffice it therefore that you expect them soon after this reaches your hands, and if you don't see some evident advantage will arise by communicating this commission to the French Ministry immediately, we give it as our opinion you had best suspend it until the arrival of one or both these gentlemen, because you will then benefit of each other's advice and abilities, and we apprehend their arrival will give additional importance to the embassy. But should you be of opinion that delay will be in the least degree injurious to our country or its cause, you must by all means use your own discretion in this matter, wherein we are not authorized to instruct or advise; we only offer you our thoughts on the subject. Should you think proper to disclose this commission to the Ministers of France, enjoin the strictest secrecy respecting the names or rather insist that it be not made known to any persons but those whose office and employments entitle them to the communication, that any other are joined with you in it, because if that circumstance reaches England before their arrival it will evidently endanger their persons:

The Congress have ordered the Secret Committee to lodge ten thousand pounds sterling in France, subject to the orders of the Commissioners, for their support, &c., and you may depend that remittances will be made for that purpose with all possible diligence. We can also inform you that you may expect instructions for forming treaties with other nations; consequently you will cultivate a good understanding with all the Foreign Ministers.

We have committed these important despatches to the care of Mr. William Hodge, Jun., who we hope will in due time have the pleasure to deliver them in person. He knows nothing more of their contents than that they are important; and in case of capture, his orders are to sink them in the sea. This young gentleman's character, family, and alertness in the publick service, all entitle him to your notice. He is also charged with some business from the Secret Committee, wherein your countenance and assistance may be useful. You will no doubt extend it to him, and also engage Mr. Morris's exertions therein.

You will please to advance Mr. Hodge the value of one hundred and fifty pounds sterling for his expenses, and transmit us his receipt for the same.

We most fervently pray for a successful negotiation; and are with the utmost attention and regard, dear sir, your affectionate friends, and obedient, humble servants.

To Silas Deane, Esq.

P. S. Mr. Hodge has some instructions from the Secret Committee, which he will lay before you, and if the negotiation of Mons. Hortalez respecting arms and ammunition has been conducted with success it will be needless for Mr. Hodge to make contracts for those articles. You will know how that matter is, and direct Mr. Hodge accordingly, and if you should think it of more consequence to send him immediately back here with despatches, than to employ him in the business that Committee have proposed, he will obey your orders, and Mr. Morris may do the other.

CESAR RODNEY TO THOMAS RODNEY.

Philadelphia, October 2, 1776.

SIR: I received your letter yesterday about three o'clock in the afternoon, by post. Lake, who set out from the creek's mouth on Monday morning arrived here yesterday afternoon about one o'clock; but did not call on me until the evening. However, this could be no fault of his, unless it had pleased God to have endowed him more understanding, for I really believe (as he says) that he had been hunting from the minute he came, and could not find me or the house where I lodged. If he had been lucky enough to have blundered on the house he would have found me, as I happened to be at home all that afternoon. This turned out to be the case at last; for stalking along the street he saw Monsieur standing in my door, which relieved him. I shall sell the vessel as soon, and as for as good a price, as possible. Mr. Read is not yet come up. However, I shall set out for Kent on Saturday or Sunday at farthest, whether he comes or not. Yesterday I received a letter from Doctor Tilton. The officers are in pretty good health, except Colonel Haslett, who has been unwell with the flux for a considerable time past, but getting better. One paragraph in the old man's letter is very full of the great honour obtained by the Delaware battalion, in the affair at Long-Island, from the unparalleled bravery they showed in view of all the Generals and troops within the lines, who alternately praised and pitied them. By General Howe's return of the prisoners to Congress, Lieutenant Stewart and Lieutenant Harvey are both alive and well.

General Mifflin came to town the day before yesterday. He brought letters from General Washington informing Congress that Mr. Moylan, the Quartermaster-General, had resigned his commission, as unable to conduct the business of so many troops. That in consequence thereof, the General says he had prevailed on General Mifflin to accept, confident that there was not another man in the army who could carry on the business upon the present large plan. Under these circumstances, Mifflin has with reluctance accepted. General Mifflin says our army is numerous; mending fast as to their sickness; in high spirits; well fortified, and wish for nothing more than a general engagement. There is seldom a day but some prize or some French trading vessel comes into this port—some days two or three.

I hope the children will get better of their sickness soon, and am glad Sally is better.

I am, with love to all, yours, &c., CÆSAR RODNEY.
To Thomas Rodney, Esq.

VOLUNTEERS FOR THE FLOATING BATTERY.

All gentlemen, volunteers and others, who are free, able, and willing to serve their country in this grand struggle for liberty, yet may not choose to be far removed from a parent, family, wife, or sweetheart, have now an opportunity to show that laudable desire, and gratify their tender feelings by entering on board the new Floating Battery fitting out under the command of Captain William Brown, for the particular defence of the State of Pennsylvania, and will never be stationed more than six or seven miles down the river Delaware. Those who are thus inclined to serve themselves, their country, and posterity, let them repair to the rendezvous opened by said Brown, at John Stoops's, at the sign of the Two Tuns, opposite the New Market, where they shall be well entertained, have a month's pay advance, and a dollar or a dollar's worth of drink, to drown all their sorrows, and drive away care. Their pay and subsistence will be fifty shillings per month, and that paid monthly; ten pounds of beef, mutton, or pork, seven pounds of bread, sixpence worth of vegetables, and seven half pints of rum, per week.

This battery is well constructed for defence, and for the preservation and accommodation of her men. If any industrious tradesmen, whose business is of a sedentary nature, should incline to enter this service, he may here have his house-rent, firing, victuals, and drink free, besides his pay and a great deal of time, in which he may employ himself for the emolument of his family (should he have one) or to fill his pockets for his own amusement. This is encouragement no other service on the Continent can give.

Philadelphia, October 2, 1776.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read October 4th; referred to the Board of War.]

Head-Quarters, Harlem Heights, October 2, 1776.

SIR: I do myself the honour of transmitting to you the enclosed letter [of September 24] from Lieutenant-Colonel Livingston, with sundry copies of General De Lancey's orders, which discover the measures the enemy are pursuing on Long-Island for raising recruits and obtaining supplies of provisions. In consequence of the intelligence they contain, and authentick advices through other channels respecting these matters, I have sent Brigadier-General George Clinton to meet General Lincoln, who has got as far as Fairfield, with part of the troops lately ordered by the Massachusetts Assembly, to concert with him and others an expedition across the Sound with these troops—three companies under Colonel Livingston, and such further aid as Governour Trumbull can afford, in order to prevent, if possible, their effecting these important objects, and to assist the inhabitants in the removal of their stock, grain, &c., or in destroying them, that the enemy may not derive any advantage or benefit from them. The recruiting scheme they are prosecuting with uncommon industry; nor is it confined to Long-Island alone, having just now received a letter from the Committee of Westchester County, advising that there are several companies of men in that and Dutchess County preparing to go off and join the King's army. I have given directions to our guard boats, and the sentinels at our works at Mount Washington, to keep a strict look-out, in case they attempt to come down the North River. Also to General Heath, at King's Bridge, that the utmost vigilance may be observed by the regiments and troops stationed above there, and down towards the East River, that they may intercept them, should they take that route with a view of crossing to Long-Island. I will use every precaution in my power to prevent these parricides from accomplishing their designs, but I have but little hopes of success, as it will be no difficult matter for them to procure a passage over some part or other of the Sound.

I have been applied to lately by Colonel Weedon, of Virginia, for permission to recruit the deficiency of men in his regiment out of the troops composing the Flying-Camp, informing me, at the same time, that some of those from Maryland had offered to engage. Colonel Hand, of the Rifle battalion, made a similar application to-day. If the enlistments could be made, they would have this good consequence, the securing of so many in the service. However, as the measure might occasion some uneasiness in their own corps, and be considered as a hardship by the States to which they belong, and the means of their furnishing more than the quota exacted from them in the general arrangement, and would make it more difficult for them to complete their own levies, I did not conceive myself at liberty to authorize it without submitting the propriety of it to the consideration of Congress, and obtaining their opinion whether it should be allowed or not.

I have enclosed a list of warrants granted from the 2d to the 30th ultimo inclusive, the only return of the sort that I have been able to make since the resolution for that purpose, owing to the unsettled state of our affairs, and my having sent my papers away. You will also receive sundry letters, &c., from General Schuyler, which came under cover to me, and which I have the honour of forwarding.

By a letter just received from the Committee of Safety of the State of New-Hampshire, I find a thousand of their Militia were about to march, on the 24th ultimo, to reinforce this army, in consequence of the requisition of Congress. Previous to their march, General Ward writes me he was obliged to furnish them with five hundred pounds of powder, and one thousand pounds of musket ball, and I have little reason to expect they are better provided with other articles than they were with ammunition. In such case they will only add to our present distress, which is already far too great, and become disgusted with the service, though the time they are engaged for is only till the 1st of December. This will injure their inlisting for a longer term, if not wholly prevent it.

From three deserters who came from the Galatea man-of-war, about five days ago, we are informed that several transports had sailed, before they left her, for England, as it was generally reported, in order to return with a supply of provisions, of which they say there is a want. General Mercer in a letter informed me, that General Thompson said he had heard they were going to dismiss about a hundred ships from the service. I am also advised, by a letter from Mr. Dirby, at Boston, of the 26th ultimo, that, the day before, a transport snow had been taken and sent into Piscataqua by a privateer, in her passage from New-York to the West-Indies. She sailed, with five more, under convoy of a man-of-war, in order to bring from thence the troops that are there to join General Howe. They were all victualled for four months. From this intelligence it would seem as if they did not apprehend any thing to be meditating against them by the Court of France.

October 3d.—I have nothing in particular to communicate respecting our situation, it being much the same as when I wrote last. We had an alarm this morning, a little before four o'clock, from some of our out-sentries, who reported that a large body of the enemy was advancing towards our lines. This put us in motion. However, it turned out entirely premature, or at least we saw nothing of them.

I have the honour to be, with every sentiment of respect, sir, your most obedient servant,
Go. WASHINGTON.

GENERAL ORDERS.

Head-Quarters, Harlem Heights, October 1, 1776.

(Parole, Spotswood.)

(Countersign, Gutes.)

The picket duty being too severe on the few Brigadiers who are now here, after this day, the Brigadier-General of the day is not expected to lay out on picket. He will attend on the parade, march off the guards, see them properly posted, visit them twice in the day, and at daybreak in the morning. The Colonel, being the immediate commanding officer of the picket, will be very vigilant to prevent surprise; give immediate notice to the Brigadier of any approach of the enemy, or other extraordinary occurrences.

James McCormick, of Captain Farrington's Company, Colonel Sargent's Regiment, having been tried and convicted by a Court-Martial, whereof Colonel Lasher was President, of "desertion and mutiny," is ordered to suffer death, on the eighth and fifth Articles of War. The General approves the sentence, and orders him to be hanged to-morrow, at eleven o'clock. The troops off duty are to be paraded on the grand parade at that time.

Captain Marony, late Provost-Marshal, having absented from camp without leave, is suspended, and Thomas Bryan appointed in his stead. He is to be obeyed and respected accordingly.

No officer is, on any pretence, to leave the camp without permission, in writing, from the Commander-in-Chief, one of the Major-Generals, through their respective Brigadiers, or commanding officers.

The General also thinks it proper to acquaint the officers and soldiers who have stayed and faithfully attended to their duty, that he has wrote to the respective States, to order back all officers and soldiers who have absented themselves with or without leave, and that he will take the most effectual measures for the purpose.

From the movements of the enemy, and other corroborating circumstances, to say nothing of the advanced season and the necessity which must induce them to bring on a decisive engagement, the General has abundant reason to believe that an attack may be hourly expected. He exhorts every commanding officer, therefore, of corps to pay particular attention to the state of the arms and ammunition of their men, that nothing may be amiss whenever we are called upon, however sudden it may happen. At the same time he once more recommends to every officer and soldier the importance of the cause they are engaged in, and the necessity there is of their behaving like men who are contending for every thing that freemen should value. He assures the whole that it is his fixed determination to defend the posts we now hold to the last extremity; and nothing but unparalleled cowardice can occasion the loss of them, as we are superiour in number, and have a better cause to contend in than the enemy have. He further declares that any spirited behaviour in officers or soldiers shall meet with its reward, at the same time that misbehaviour and cowardice shall find exemplary punishment.

Every Brigadier, or officer commanding a brigade, is hereby enjoined and ordered to select some good officers to be in the rear of their battalions; and these officers are positively ordered to shoot any officer or soldier who shall presume to quit his ranks or retreat, unless the retreat is ordered by proper authority. And to prevent the confusion which is occasioned by every person's undertaking to give or carry orders, none are to be looked upon as valid that are not delivered in the manner mentioned in the orders of the 17th ultimo.

The Militia, if they have not already done it, are to get completed with as much powder, ball, and cartridge-paper, as will make twenty rounds of cartridges.

That no man, either officer or soldier, may plead ignorance of these orders, the Colonels or commanding officers of corps are to take especial care that they be read to the whole, as they will answer the contrary. The Adjutant-General is to transmit copies thereof to Major-Generals Heath and Greene, that the whole army may be apprised thereof, the General being determined to punish cowardice the instant it happens, for the sake of example.

Major Colbourne is appointed to command the Rangers lately under Colonel Knoulton. He is take orders from General Putnam, to whom they are to make daily reports.

After-Orders.—The following troops to parade at five o'clock, on the grand parade, and there receive orders from General Putnam:

Light Infantry of the Pennsylvania Battalions.

General Mifflin's Brigade to furnish a Lieutenant-Colonel and three hundred men.

General Wadsworth's Brigade to furnish two hundred men, to be commanded by Colonel Silliman.

General McDougall's Brigade to furnish a Lieutenant-Colonel and two hundred men.

General Fellows's Brigade to furnish a Major and one hundred and fifty men.

Head-Quarters, Harlem Heights, October 2, 1776.

(Parole, Hartford.)

(Countersign, Harlem.)

Jonathan Pollard, Esquire, is appointed Aid-de-Camp to General Heath, and is to be obeyed and respected accordingly.

It is with much concern the General is informed that though the new Rules for the government of the Army have been out some time, they have not been generally read to the soldiers. Surely gentlemen do not reflect what prejudice it is to the service to omit so material a point of duty.

It is once more repeated that every soldier is to be completed with ammunition to twenty-four rounds a man; and it is the duty of officers to see that they have it. Some of the troops who went out on the covering party, this morning, had not their complement; nor had their officers examined their arms and ammunition before they marched them on the grand parade. This conduct, if not amended, will be fatal to the army and the country. Where the cartridge-boxes will not hold the full complement, application is to be made for pouches, which may be had at the Commissary's store.

Head-Quarters, Harlem Heights, October 2, 1776.

(Parole, Ireland.)

(Countersign, Florida.)

General Putnam will please to point out proper places, for huts to shelter the picket guard, (in front of our lines,) and direct the officers who command these guards to see that the men are employed, every day, at work thereon, till they are completed; and this, for the sake of their own health and convenience, it is hoped they will do as soon as possible, as the weather will soon grow too uncomfortable to lay without shelter.

As the new articles for the government of the Army are to take place on Monday next, it is expected that the officers will make their men acquainted with them as soon as possible, that crimes may not pass unpunished on any pretence of ignorance.

The several Brigadiers are immediately to return a list to Head-Quarters, of the Field Officers of their respective Brigades, who are absent, and on what account; noting such (if any) as have absented themselves without leave, or stayed beyond their limited time. Colonels and commanding officers of Regiments are to do the same in their Regiments respectively. This return to be made on Saturday, at twelve o'clock. When the Brigadier is absent, the eldest officer of the Brigade to make the return.

Captain Fitzgerald is appointed to act as Major to Colonel Weedon's Regiment, till further orders, instead of the brave Major Leitch, who is dead of his wounds.

An exact return of the officers' names, "fit for duty," in camp, and "unfit," is to be made separate from the general return.

The Brigades which send their detachments first on the parade are to take the right, as has been the usage for a long time.

No officer is on any pretence to take off any soldier who is employed either as wagoner, butcher, tallow-chandler, or other business under the Quartermaster-General, or Commissary-General, without first applying to the head of the department; and in case of difficulty or difference on the occasion, to apply to Head-Quarters, and in the mean time the soldier to continue on the command.

Head-Quarters, Harlem Heights, October 4, 1776.

(Parole, Holland.)

(Countersign, Boston.)

The shameful inattention in some of the camps to decency and cleanliness, in providing necessaries, and picking up the offal and filth of the camp, having been taken notice of before in general; after this time particular Regiments will be pointed out by name when such practices prevail.

The Court-Martial whereof Colonel Magaw was President, is dissolved. The Brigade-Majors are immediately to settle a new one, Colonel Weedon to preside.

As there are many officers in camp whose health will not admit their going on piquet, but can attend Court-Martial, the Brigade-Majors are to attend to this circumstance in forming the Court, by which means the duty will be easier to the whole.

GENERAL HEATH TO GENERAL SALTONSTALL.

King's Bridge, October 2, 1776.

DEAR SIR: If it be agreeable to you, I should think it best that Colonel Ely's regiment should take post on the hill on this side the bridge, near Williams's Tavern. My reason for this is that a redoubt must be immediately thrown up on that height, and two companies of that regiment have for some months been employed in the construction of works at New-London. Colonel Smith will march forward agreeable to your orders, and you will please to order one of the other regiments forward in the room of Colonel Ely's, to take post on Harlem river.

I am, dear sir, yours affectionately, W. HEATH.
To General Saltonstall.

COLONEL REED TO GENERAL HEATH.

SIR: We must desire you to exert your authority to make the witnesses attend in the affair of Scott and Weimer; they keep thirteen officers from other duty, and will probably escape, as by one means or other all such rascals do. The Captain who suffered McCormick to escape, the General orders to put under close arrest and tried immediately in your division. I am, sir, your obedient, humble servant,
Jos. REED, Adjutant-General.

To Major-General Heath.

GENERAL HEATH TO MAJOR BACKUS.

King's Bridge, October 2, 1776.

SIR: Information has just been received that several companies are formed and forming in this State to join General Howe's army, and it is probable will very soon, if possible, get to Long-Island. Your guards and sentinels are, therefore, to be very alert, and apprehend such persons as are suspicious and cannot give a good account of themselves and their business. In addition to your sentinels let patrols frequently patrol in the most likely places to discover them in their attempts to get over to the Island.

I am, sir, yours, &c., W. HEATH.

To Major Backus.

P. S. You will immediately send one or two of your Light-Horsemen to give the above notice to all the officers commanding the guards between your own posts at Westchester and the Sawpits, and in particular to Major Rogers and Captain Theyer. You may relieve the Horsemen at General Washington's as often as you may think proper, with the like number now posted there. You will direct one of them to inquire for General Sullivan, at New-Rochelle, and deliver him the letter directed to him. W. H.

EZRA THOMPSON TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Great Nine Partners, October 2, 1776.

TO THE HONOURABLE CONVENTION OF THE STATE OF NEW-YORK: By reason of sickness in my family I have not been able to attend constantly at the mines; but as Mr. McDonald appears an honest, industrious man, and one Mr. Herrick, that I improved, was a man used to the business and very faithful, therefore I think the business has gone on very well. I was obliged to go to Mr. Livingston's Powder-Mill, in order to get powder for the business, and then could not get it without paying the money, at eight shillings per pound. I got twenty pounds.

Mr. McDonald's report, as far as I can judge, may be depended upon. He will give you particular account of the cost and what the damage was appraised at, done to Mr. Fish, the owner of the land where the mine is.

In great haste, I must beg leave to subscribe myself your very humble servant,

EZRA THOMPSON.

To the President of the New-York Convention.

EVERT BANCKER TO JOHN M. HOBART.

Fishkill, October 2, 1776.

DEAR SIR: The Convention having determined to send the Montgomerie, Captain Rogers commander, out on a cruising voyage again, and appointed us to expedite the same, and give instructions, and grant such supplies as may be necessary there, and therefore to desire you will supply Captain Rogers with as much money as may be necessary to fit out said privateer, out of the publick moneys you mentioned in your letters to Convention. If opportunity will permit, should be glad you would inspect and see what is necessary, and that prudence is used in the outfit.

Yours, &c.,

EVERT BANCKER,
ZEPHA. PLATT, JUN.,
WM. HARPER.

To John M. Hobart, Esq.

EVERT BANCKER AND OTHERS TO THE NEW-YORK MARINE COMMITTEE.

Fishkill, October 2, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We, as a Committee being appointed by Convention to give instructions to Captain Rogers to proceed on a cruising voyage with all possible expedition; but as his men have some months wages due them, they are unwilling to proceed on the same. This is, therefore, to desire you'll please to pay them out of the sales of the prize goods which has been by them taken.

Remain, gentlemen, your most humble servants,

EVERT BANCKER,
ZEPHA. PLATT, JUN.,
WILLIAM HARPER.

To Messrs. Jacobus Van Zandt, Judge Hallet, and others of the Marine Committee.

Fishkill, October 2, 1776.

SIR: Whereas the arm sloop Montgomery, yourself commander, now lying in Norwalk, New-England, and on your application to the Convention of the State of New-York, they came to a resolution on the 28th ultimo to continue said sloop in the same service, and we being a Committee to give such orders as we shall think proper, this is, therefore, to order and direct that you proceed from hence with all convenient speed to Norwalk and fit out said armed sloop with provisions and other necessary articles which she shall want for a cruising voyage; and as soon as victualed and well manned, to proceed from thence to such cruising ground as you may judge most proper to meet with vessels belonging to the subjects of the King of Great Britain, Ireland, &c., and meeting with such vessels to do what is in your power to take the same as prizes; when taken to send them to any of the most convenient harbours belonging to the United States of this Continent, to be consigned into the hands of such person or persons as you, or the Convention of this State may judge fit to act for our mutual benefit, in order to have the same condemned, agreeable to the resolves of the Continental Congress.

On the arrival of any prize or prizes in any harbour, you are to order the Prizemaster or Agent to acquaint the President of this Convention or Legislature of New-York, with all convenient speed, letting them know the contents of the cargo, burthen of the vessel, from whence and where bound. If the vessel or any of the prizes should have a cargo of warlike stores, dry-goods, or cloth, linens, threads, &c., it is the desire of Convention that the same be retained for the use of this State.

In order to enable you to fit out the sloop Montgomery, you are to apply to Mr. John Sloss Hobart for so much cash as you shall want for the same.

We conclude with wishing you a prosperous voyage, and remain your humble servants,

EVERT BANCKER,
WILLIAM HARPER,
ZEPHA. PLATT, JUN.

To Captain William Rogers.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Albany, October 2, 1776.

SIR: I am honoured with your very obliging favour of the 25th ultimo. I have not a wish to enter into any measure that would prove prejudicial to my country, and since you think the publication of my vindication would militate against our common cause, I should not hesitate to defer it if it was now ready for the press as long as I possibly could, consistent with my honour. I cannot help saying that the line of conduct which Congress has held with me, will put it out of my power to continue in any publick office where the appointment must come immediately from them; for although my veneration for the representatives of a free people cannot be exceeded by any member of the community, yet I cannot patiently sit down, with insult added to injustice, and must always resent it.

We have nothing new either from the northward or westward; all seems quiet, and I hope will continue so.

I am, sir, with every friendly wish, and every grateful sentiment, your most obedient humble servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

To Hon. Jonathan Trumbull, Esq., &c.

GENERAL GATES TO GENERAL ARNOLD.

Tyonderoga, October 2, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: I received your favour of the 28th, yesterday, in the forenoon; and after dinner Messrs. Gilliland, Watson, and Macaulay, were brought here prisoners: I found they had a free intercourse together at Crown Point, so that no end could be answered by keeping them separate here. I propose sending them to General Schuyler, with the deposition of Sergeant Day and your letter. The Sergeant is by this time at Philadelphia; but Gilliland designing to remain down the country during the war, there will be no difficulty in bringing him to answer any accusation.

I am astonished at the folly and timidity of the fellow who destroyed your letters. There was a packet from General Schuyler, one from your family, (as I believe,) and some other letters. A copy of mine I enclose you. It contained little news; but in some degree to make amends for that, I send you an extract from General Washington's letter of the 20th ultimo, to General Schuyler.

(Extract, &c., "I removed my quarters," to the end of the letter.)

This will be delivered to you by General Waterbury. As I shall be happy to know that he has joined you, desire you will despatch an express boat with the news. The Liberty schooner sails to-morrow, by whom I shall send any further accounts that may arrive from our Southern army. The other row-galley will be here to night from Skeen, and is in such forwardness that I expect she will be ready to sail from hence in a week. My best compliments to Colonel Wigglesworth. For further particulars must refer you to General Waterbury.

I am, dear General, your affectionate humble servant,

HO. GATES.

To Brigadier-General Arnold.

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Lebanon, October 2, 1776.

SIR: I received your favour of the 26th ultimo, in which you inform me of the discharge of the Militia under the command of General Wolcott, who were much reduced by desertions, &c. I flatter myself that those under General Saltonstall seeing their error and the dishonour they have brought on the State to which they belonged, would have manifested a different temper, but with most sensible pain have heard that numbers of those have also deserted the army. I hope and trust this State will in a proper manner discover their resentments against such vile and scandalous behaviour, and that those who still remain will faithfully abide and discharge their duty, till regularly dismissed.

Your request of a return of the names of the prisoners in this State shall be complied with as soon as possible, and have given orders to the several Committees immediately to furnish me therewith; those in the Counties of Hartford and Windham will, when I receive your Excellency's directions, be sent by water down Connecticut river, and through the Sound as far as Norwalk or Stamford; those in the County of Litchfield must be sent down through the County to one or both of those towns. Should be glad to be informed whether such of the privates as are mechanics, and some others who have a strong inclination to abide and remain in the County, must be forced and obliged to return and be exchanged, unless there should be a deficiency to redeem those of our people in the hands of the enemy; and whether it is expected that the charge and expense attending the keeping the prisoners be forwarded to your Excellency with them.

I have received from the honourable Congress of the United States their resolution of inlisting a new army of eighty-eight battalions to serve during the present war, with the bounty of money and land therein offered; that the appointment of all officers and filling up vacancies (except General officers) be left to the Governments of the several States; the quota assigned this State, is eight battalions.

The appointment of suitable officers is a matter of the greatest consequence to the States and armies; wish to have such persons appointed as may serve with courage, good conduct, and honour; and ask the favour of your Excellency to take some suitable steps (consulting our General officers if agreeable) and furnish me with intelligence of such in the army who are willing to undertake, and fit for the service; and give me your sentiments on the affair, that appointments may properly be made. Shall request the same favour from General Gates, at Tyonderoga, for the three battalions in that quarter, where will probably be enough to make one battalion or more. I shall meet the Assembly at New-Haven, the 11th instant, and your information as soon as convenient will be very acceptable.

I am, with great esteem and regard, sir, your obedient humble servant,

JONTH. TRUMBULL.

P. S. When the Field Officers are agreed upon, will not they be able to point out the best Captains and Subalterns for the respective companies, in their respective regiments, subject to your Excellency's correction.

CONNECTICUT COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

At a meeting of the Governour and Council of Safety of Connecticut, October 2d, 1776, Present: His Honour the Governour, Elipht. Dyer, Jabez Huntington, Richard Law, William Hillhouse, Nathaniel Wales, Jun., Benjamin Huntington, and Jed'h Elderkin, Esqrs.

Voted, That the Spy, commanded by Captain Niles, be ordered and directed to get ready with all possible despatch, and to cruise in the Sound between Montauk-Point and Stamford, in order to watch the movements of our enemies, and to give intelligence in the earliest and best manner for the security of the navigation belonging to the United States, and of the towns upon the Sound, and to annoy our enemies, until further orders.

Voted, To draw on the Pay Table for £1,500, in favour of Captain John Deshon, of New-London, to enable him to provide for the troops there, and to his account. (Order drawn October 2d, 1776, and delivered Peter Christopers.)

Voted, That Sergeant John Spencer, of Captain Wells's Company, in Colonel Wolcott's Regiment, and also seven or eight seamen or marines of the same, be permitted to enlist on board the ship Oliver Cromwell, and that others may be enlisted in their stead in said regiment, if they can be without premium.

Whereas the great cry and want of the necessary article of Salt threatens to disturb the publick peace and safety of the State, that it makes it absolutely necessary in order to supply both the publick and private necessities of the people, and that in the most private and speedy method:

Therefore, Voted and Resolved, That a suitable number of Vessels be provided at the publick expense, to be sent under convoy, in order to get a supply of that article; and Captain John Deshon an agent to carry this resolve into execution.

Instructions to Captain JOHN DESHON.

You are hereby instructed and ordered forthwith to impress and cause to be appraised the schooner Hannah and Elizabeth, which was taken by Captain Robert Niles, of the armed schooner Spy, belonging to this State, and take up and have appraised five hundred tons more of vessels, from about sixty to about one hundred tons burthen, which are good for sailing and well found, and see them suitably manned and supplied with provisions and suitable cargoes for purchasing the salt, to go out at your discretion and direction as to their sailing and place of destination, they to be guarded and protected by an armed vessel; for which end you are to advise the Governour and Council of Safety, for their orders to such one as they shall see fit. You are to do the whole with the greatest secrecy and despatch.

To Captain JOHN DESHON, of NEW-LONDON, Greeting:

You are hereby authorized and empowered to take up or impress five hundred tons of vessels, from about sixty to one about one hundred tons, good for sailing and well found, and have them appraised by suitable persons under oath, for publick service, for which this shall be your warrant.

Voted, That his Honour the Governour be desired to appoint such person as he shall think proper to be master of the Ship Oliver Cromwell; also any other officer that shall be wanted. And also to give orders for medicine on board said ship, as shall be wanted.

Voted, That Doctor Samuel Lee, of Windham, be, and he is hereby appointed Surgeon and Physician on board the Ship Oliver Cromwell.

Doctor Benjamin Dyer exhibited an account of sundry Drugs, &c., by him supplied for the use of this State to amount of £57 11s. 10d., which is allowed, and voted to draw on the Pay Table for the same in his favour. (Order drawn October 2d, 1776, delivered Colonel Dyer.)

Jabez Huntington, Esq., exhibited two accounts of sundries supplied and services done for the publick, amounting to £171 6s. 10½d., which is allowed, and voted to draw on the Pay Table for the same. (Order drawn October 2d, and delivered B. Huntington.)

Voted, To draw on the Pay Table for £300 in favour of Doctor Joshua Elderkin, to enable him to purchase Clothing, &c., for the publick, and to be in account. (Order drawn and delivered Colonel Elderkin, October 2d, 1776.)

Voted, To draw on the Pay Table for £300 in favour of Mr. Andrew Huntington, to enable him to purchase Clothing, &c., for the publick, and to be in account. (Order drawn October 2d, 1776, taken by Mr. Huntington.)

Benjamin Huntington, of Norwich, exhibited his account of sundry services and expenses for this State, which is allowed, being £25 8s. 7d, and voted to draw on the Pay Table for the same. (Order drawn and taken by himself, October 2d, 1776.)

Prosper Wetmore, Esq., Sheriff of New-London County, exhibited an account of transporting one Bazeb Boudenot from Norwich to Worcester, in the State of the Massachusetts, amounting to £8 17s., which is allowed, and voted to draw on the Pay Table for the same. (Order drawn October 2d, 1776, taken by B. Huntington.)

JOHN L. C. ROOME TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Norwich Gaol, October 2, 1776.

SIR: I must request it as a particular favour that I may be indulged with the liberty of attending your Honour with Mr. Samuel Loudon, either on my parole or with such person as your Honour shall think proper, on particular business, before your Honour and Council remove to New-Haven.

I am with the greatest respect, your Honour's most obedient, humble servant,

JOHN L. C. ROOME.

To the Hon. Jonathan Trumbull, Esq.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER TO A GENTLEMAN IN LONDON, DATED BOSTON, OCTOBER 2, 1776.

Yesterday a French ship with sixty-two guns arrived in this harbour, from Toulon. She brought her guns in her hold, by way of ballast, and was purchased by Mr. Silas Deane; she was navigated to this place by French seamen, who, in a few days, will return home in a schooner appointed for that purpose.

Since this once flourishing city has been evacuated by his Majesty's forces, commanded by General Howe, several additional new works of strength have been raised, one in particular, a new battery near the entrance of the harbour, which is mounted with twenty pieces of heavy cannon, and is garrisoned by a number of experienced soldiers, and some foreign engineers. The greatest ardour imaginable is still using by several hundred troops arrived here from Cambridge, and the inhabitants, to render, if possible, this place impregnable, as the Congress expect next spring it will be the seat of war.

SILAS DEANE TO C. W. F. DUMAS.

Paris, October 3, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Since my last, in which I mentioned the King of Prussia, I have obtained a method of sounding that monarch's sentiments more directly through another channel, which, voluntarily offering, I have accepted, and therefore waive writing on the subject for the present any thing, save that you may undoubtedly serve the United States of America most essentially in this affair in a few weeks from this. The attention to my business here, which is not merely political, but partly commercial, the critical situation of affairs at this Court, and the anxious suspense for the events at New-York and Canada, have actually fixed me here, and the having received no intelligence for some time past has well-nigh distracted me. I have, however, favourable prospects, and the most confirmed hopes of effecting my views in Europe. I am too much engaged to say more in this, and will be more particular in my next.

FIFTH SERIES.—VOL. II.

I am, &c.,

SILAS DEANE.

WILLIAM AYLETT (DEPUTY COMMISSARY-GENERAL) TO JOHN ADAMS.

Virginia, Williamsburg, October 3, 1776.

HONOURABLE SIR: I have reason to believe I can get the Continental troops in the Commonwealth victualled at seven-pence half-penny per ration. A Commissary who has two of the regiments has offered it. I therefore request you to inform me immediately whether I am to contract or employ Commissaries, as the time for engaging pork and other provisions is now at hand, and, if contracts are admitted, they must be entered into immediately, or the terms above mentioned will not be obtained, as the present contractors will only lay in a sufficiency to bring about their year, which ends the 1st of March next. If Commissaries are to be employed, and the troops victualled on the Continental account and risk, I shall be glad to know for how many troops I am to provide, or whether it will not be prudent, as I imagine beef and pork will be cheaper here than to the northward, to lay in all that can be obtained on reasonable terms, that we may have to spare to the Northern Commissaries.

I must also request the favour of you, sir, to inform me respecting the other matter contained in my representation to the Virginia Delegates, which was laid before Congress and referred to your Board. The want of those regulations respecting the rations, forage, &c., embarrasses me exceedingly in my business, as the parties who are entitled to drawbacks are perpetually teasing me to settle them. To some I have paid, though not so many as they think themselves entitled to, particularly the Artillery officers, who claim four rations for Captain and three for Lieutenants.

I will here beg leave again to repeat those others which I have never yet been informed of, and which neither the Commissary-General at New-York or the Secretary to Congress could inform me of, and therefore suppose no regulation respecting them has been agreed to, viz: the Deputy Adjutant-General, Deputy Quartermaster-General, Deputy Commissary-General, Deputy Judge-Advocate, Mustermaster-General of the Southern District, Regimental Surgeons and Mates. Though I have been obliged to settle with them, and allow them the same that are allowed to Surgeons and Mates of the Hospital; and whether I am, as Deputy Commissary-General, allowed a clerk, how much to allow him as to wages and rations; and whether I am not allowed forage for my horses, and rations for my servants who attend them, for the necessity of keeping horses, not only to go upon duty here, but to attend at Philadelphia to settle my accounts, is so obvious that I have no doubt but a reasonable allowance will be made, as well as for a clerk, who I am obliged to keep in my office at Head-Quarters in my absence, to settle the various accounts for recruits, troops on their march, &c. With such of the contractors who may apply, it may be proper to observe, that if contracting is adopted the contractors expect that when the camp moves, or detachments sent out, they are to be found wagons for transporting their provision.

I intended to have sent a copy of my accounts by this opportunity, to show how the various sums of money that have been paid me have been applied; but there are two contractors whose accounts are not finally settled, but will be in a few days, and the accounts shall be immediately forwarded; and at such time as your Board will be pleased to appoint, I will attend with my vouchers, to settle my accounts finally.

I have hitherto been obliged to advance the contractors considerable sums of money to enable them to comply with their engagements, which they have nearly repaid by their ration returns. I wish to know whether I am justifiable in so doing; in short, unless it is allowed there can be no contracts, for no individual who engages in this business has a sufficient sum of money of his own to answer the large engagements they are obliged to make.

I have the honour to be, respectfully, sir, your most humble servant,

WILLIAM AYLETT, D. C. G.

To the Hon. John Adams, Esq., President of the Board of War, at Philadelphia.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO JOSEPH TRUMBULL.

Philadelphia, October 3, 1776.

SIR: The enclosed resolve demands, and I beg leave to request you will pay the greatest attention to it, and exert yourself to comply with it in the fullest manner in your power.

I am, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,
JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To Joseph Trumbull, Esq., Commissary-General.

COMMITTEE OF SECRET CORRESPONDENCE TO WILLIAM HODGE, JUN.

Philadelphia, October 3, 1776.

SIR: We deliver you herewith copies of the letters and credentials you had from us when you sailed on your late unfortunate voyage, the originals whereof we understand you destroyed on being taken by the Orpheus man-of-war. We have since that time taken other measures for procuring arms and ammunition, which probably may have succeeded; therefore we request you will lay those copies and this letter before Silas Deane, Esq., at Paris, and follow such advice and directions as he may give respecting arms and ammunition; but with respect to the cutters we approve much of that plan, and wish it to be executed, and even enlarged. We therefore propose that you should consult with Mr. Deane and Mr. Thomas Morris on this subject, and if you find it will be in your power to procure seamen and obtain liberty to arm and fit out vessels in France, Spain, or Holland, that you should, if possible, buy a frigate of twenty to forty guns, have her completely fitted, armed and manned, putting in a gentleman of unexceptionable good character, being also an able seaman, to command her, for which purpose we give you herewith a blank commission, to be filled up with his and the ship's name, which may be the Surprise. The Captain and you may appoint the officers necessary for this ship, giving to each a certificate showing his station.

When this ship is completed you must give orders to the Captain, signed by Mr. Deane, to cruise in the Channel against the enemies of the United States of America, making prize of all British property as he can meet with. He may send his prizes into such ports in France as may be most convenient, and you will there demand protection for them, or rather let Mr. Deane demand this, and also liberty to make sale of such goods as he, Mr. Morris, and yourself, may think best to sell there. Direct the Captain to take out any dry goods he finds on board his prize into his own ship, and when by this means he has got a considerable quantity on board, let him come away for this coast, and get into the first place of safety he can in the United States of America.

The Captain must, before he goes, give bond duly to observe all the rules and regulations of Congress; and herewith we deliver you a blank bond, with a book of those rules and a list of the Continental agents. Any prize that he sends into France you must send forward from thence to some of these States, unless Mr. Deane, Mr. Morris, and yourself agree it is more for the publick good to sell in France; and if you sell them there apply the net proceeds to pay the debts you contract in this business.

Besides this ship, we approve also of the two cutters, as mentioned in our former letters. You may arm, fit and man them, and despatch them hither soon as possible, either with arms, ammunition, or such other goods as Mr. Deane and Mr. Morris may recommend or provide. We deliver you commissions, &c., for these vessels also, and recommend to you to be very attentive to the choice of Captains. They should all be good seamen, men of good character and principles, strongly attached to this country and its cause; and prefer Americans, thus deserving, to any other country. If such Americans are not to be found, seek for good men of other countries that have been here or have connexions among us. We know that there are many such in Europe that would be glad of the employ.

The ship must make but a short cruise in the Channel and a short one will do the business, for she will daily meet prizes; but if she is long there, they will have men of war in quest of her. We hope you'll meet with some fine, fast-sailing ship for this purpose, and be able to purchase and fit her on reasonable terms. We shall desire Mr. Deane and

Mr. Morris to join you in the necessary assurances to those you deal with of being faithfully reimbursed. We again repeat that we shall make remittances in the produce of this country for that purpose.

We will also make you a proper compensation for your trouble and services hereafter, when they can be better ascertained. Therefore, wishing you success, we remain, sir, your humble servants.

To Mr. William Hodge, Jun.

P. S. It is absolutely necessary that you observe the utmost secrecy in all this business, and make use of every cloak or cover you can think of to hide the real design.

COMMITTEE OF SECRET CORRESPONDENCE TO WILLIAM HODGE, JUN.

Philadelphia, October 3, 1776.

SIR: We commit to your care sundry despatches delivered you herewith, and you are immediately to repair on board the sloop Independence, John Young commander, now waiting for you between this and Reedy Island. This sloop will carry you and said despatches, with the utmost expedition, to the Island of Martinico, where you must apply to William Bingham, Esq., delivering to him all the letters and packages directed for him. This gentleman will assist in procuring you an immediate passage from thence to some port in France, on board a French vessel. Choose a good one if you have a choice, and a man-of-war or a packet, in preference to a merchantman. The General of Martinico will give you a letter to the commander of the port you sail for, requesting him to grant you a passport, and to expedite you immediately to Paris. On your arrival there, you must find out Silas Deane, Esq., and Mr. Thomas Morris, and deliver to each the letters and packages directed for them.

If you arrive at Nantz, apply to Mr. John Daniel Schweighauser; at Bordeaux, to Messrs. Samuel and John Hans Delap; at Havre-de-Grace, to Mr. Andrew Limozin; at Dunkirk, to Messrs. P. Stival & Son, in the name of Willing, Morris, & Co., to furnish you with the address of Mr. Deane and Mr. Morris, at Paris, as it will be well known to them all, and they will also render you any other services you may stand in need of. Should you go to Paris without previously finding out the address of these gentlemen, apply to Messrs. , bankers in Paris, who can direct you to Mr. Deane.

The letters and packets directed for him and Thomas Morris you are to consider as despatches of the utmost importance. You must never suffer them to be out of your possession one moment until you deliver them safe, with untouched seals, to those two gentlemen, unless you should unfortunately be taken, and in that case you must throw them overboard, always keeping them ready slung with a weight to sink them if that measure should be necessary, and for your faithful discharge of this trust, you are answerable to your God, your country, and to us that have reposed this confidence in you.

We have desired Mr. Bingham to supply you with what money you want at Martinico, and to transmit us your receipts for the amount. Mr. Deane will supply you with any sum not exceeding one hundred and fifty pounds sterling in France. You will keep an account of your expenses, which will be paid by the Congress, who will also compensate you generously hereafter for your time, trouble, and risk, in this voyage. Should Mr. Deane think proper to send you immediately back with despatches for us, you will no doubt take charge of them and proceed according to his instructions.

You must cautiously avoid letting any person whatever know what is your business, or that you have the least connection with publick business.

We wish you a safe and successful voyage, and are, sir, your obedient, humble servants.

To Mr. William Hodge, Jun.

Philadelphia, October 3, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The bearer hereof, Mr. William Hodge, Jun., is a young gentleman we esteem; he now goes for France, via the West-Indies, and is uncertain at what port he may land. He has business with Silas Deane, Esq., and Mr. T. Morris; we beg, therefore, you will furnish him with their address, and render him any other service he may stand in need of. If he wants money for expenses, please to advance it, and his draft on Mr. Deane will be honoured. Your compliance will oblige, gentlemen, your obedient, humble servants.

To Mr. John Daniel Schweighauser, at Nantz; Messrs. Samuel & J. H. Delap, at Bordeaux; Mr. Andrew Limozin, at Havre; Messrs. P. Steval & Son at Dunkirk.

MARINE COMMITTEE TO MESSRS. HEWES AND SMITH.

Philadelphia, October 3, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: You will receive this from Lieutenant Thomas Albertson, commander of the schooner Muskeeto, now employed in the Continental service as an advice-boat. She carries but few letters this voyage, but what there are must be put in the post-office, and the same price charged for carriage as if they had gone from hence by land, which you will please to see done. Mr. Hewes having fitted this schooner himself before he left this, you will take care to receive the cargo, which consists altogether of Continental stores, sent for the use of the Continental troops in your State, and deliver the same to the proper officers, granting Lieutenant Albertson a receipt for what he delivers, and you'll please also to supply him with what money may be absolutely necessary to defray the charges and expenses of his vessel, but no more, taking his accountable receipts for what you pay him, one of which you'll transmit by the vessel.

We desire you to ship back by this vessel one hundred barrels coal tar, two tons tallow in barrels, and twelve barrels rosin, for the use of our navy. If the schooner will carry more, put it on board; if not so much, you must leave out a little of each. We beg you will despatch Mr. Albertson back immediately; don't allow him to stay on any account. If he wants a few men, pray assist him in getting them, and your drafts on the Chairman of the Marine Committee for the cost of the goods ordered and of the schooner's disbursements, will be duly honoured.

We are, sirs, your very humble servants.

To Messrs. Hewes & Smith.

P. S. You have enclosed a manifest of the cargo, and Mr. Hewes must allow a handsome freight for his goods, which you'll credit in the schooner's account.

GOVERNOUR LIVINGSTON TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read October 5th; referred to Mr. Lynch, Mr. Ross, and Mr. Floyd, who are directed to take into consideration the case of the Prisoners in the Gaol of Philadelphia.]

Princeton, October 3, 1776.

DEAR SIR: The signers of the enclosed petition are part of a number of prisoners who were sent to me while stationed at Elizabethtown, as one of the Brigadier-Generals of this State, by the Committee of Newark, to whom they were sent by General Washington. That Committee not being able to confine them in the gaol of Newark, which was already filled with prisoners, desired me to confine them in the gaol of Elizabethtown; but as that was in the same condition, and the place was upon other accounts improper to keep prisoners, I sent them to Somerset gaol, at Milston. I believe they are in deplorable circumstances for want of clothes, and especially clean linen. I wrote some time since to General Washington for their baggage, which was left at New-York, but from the multiplicity of business the General has not been able to answer me, and probably their baggage is lost. As they are Continental prisoners, I would wish the Congress would be pleased to give such directions concerning them as to their wisdom and humanity shall seem fit, which this State will cheerfully order to be carried into execution.

I am, sir, your most humble servant,

WILL. LIVINGSTON.

To the Hon. John Hancock, Esq.

COLONEL GRAYSON TO GENERAL HEATH.

Head-Quarters, October 3, 1776.

SIR: His Excellency has commanded me to acquaint you that he conceives it to be highly expedient that the different officers in your division should be thoroughly and perfectly acquainted with the grounds between your several posts and Morrisseana, and the other points or landings where you conceive there is any probability the enemy will attempt an impression. In order to obtain this desirable end, his Excellency thinks it will be advisable in you to send a few officers every day, as the nature of duty will admit to reconnoitre those grounds to the end that they may be entirely acquainted with them.

I am, sir, your most obedient servant,

WILLM. GRAYSON, A. D. C.

To Major-General Heath.

COLONEL GRAYSON TO GENERAL HEATH.

Heights of Harlem, October 3, 1776.

SIR: His Excellency has desired me to inform you that on looking over your letter of the 30th of September, he has discovered a passage respecting Colonel Trumbull, which he thinks has not yet been answered. He has no objection to Colonel Trumbull's inlisting the number of men out of the Militia which you have mentioned; indeed he looks upon it as a proper step. I have it further in command from him, that he conceives it to be of the last importance that you should be well acquainted with the grounds leading from Morrisiana and other places where you suspect the enemy may land to your several posts. I wrote you to-day of the necessity there was that your several officers should reconnoitre them also. It is the opinion of the General that you should form and digest proper dispositions for your troops to take effect eventually on their landing at this or that place, as the case may happen to be. He imagines it will be too late after the enemy have actually landed, to consider of and digest a proper disposition for your forces.

I am, sir, your most obedient servant,

WILLM. GRAYSON, A. D. C.

To the Hon. Major-General Heath.

His Excellency cannot imagine what has been the occasion why the regiment ordered to the heights opposite to this, are not yet arrived there; he desires you may forward it with all possible despatch; they may be furnished with tents from the Quartermaster here.

TENCH TILGHMAN TO EGBERT BENSON.

Head-Quarters, Harlem Heights, October 3, 1776.

DEAR SIR: We had an alarm this morning at four o'clock; we had our men instantly under arms, but it turned out a mistake of our patrols, who conceived they had seen a large body of the enemy advancing to our lines.

By a letter from Mr. Derby, of Boston, we are informed that one of our cruisers had taken and carried into Piscataqua a transport, one of six that sailed from New-York the 1st September, for the West-Indies, to bring from thence what troops might be there. Does not this look as if General Howe's army was not so strong as we have apprehended? Or would he drain the Islands of their weak garrisons, considering how matters stand affected in the French Islands? They have already insulted the British flag, by affording an asylum to Captain Weeks in a Continental ship-of-war, and refusing to give her up to the Pomona frigate.

Captain Cook is now up the river cutting timber for chevaux-de-frise. As he is much wanted here to sink the old vessels, the General begs that you would immediately send him down. We are at a stand for want of him; for, as he has superintended the matter from the beginning, he best knows the properest places to be obstructed. If the new ships should be found necessary to our salvation, you need not fear their being sacrificed; but our publick money goes fast enough without using it wantonly.

I am sorry that your Convention do not think themselves legally authorized to make examples of those villains they have apprehended; if that is the case, the well-affected will be hardly able to keep a watch upon ill. The General is determined if he can bring some of them in his hands under the denomination of spies, to execute them. General Howe hanged a Captain of ours belonging to Knowlton's Rangers, who went into New-York to make discoveries. I don't see why we should not make retaliation.

I am, with much esteem, dear sir, your most obedient servant,

TENCH TILGHMAN.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM HARLEM, DATED OCTOBER 3, 1776.

Yesterday morning eleven hundred men were ordered to parade at day-light, to bring off the corn, hay, &c., which lay on Harlem Plains, between the enemy and us. This property has lain for a fortnight past unmolested, both sides looking at it, and laying claim to it until to-day, when it was brought off by us. A covering party were within musket shot of the enemy, but they made no other movements than to man their lines; and three thousand of our men appearing, the enemy struck their tents, expecting an attack. Our fatigue party finished the business, and not a single shot was fired. These plains would afford an excellent field for a fight. I really expected an action, but the enemy declined it.

Opinions here are various with respect to the enemy's designs. This is the best month in the year for fighting. The enemy must be near twenty thousand effective, and the taking of York is not a sufficient compensation for the expense of so vast an armament as the British King has sent out this year. Thence it is thought General Howe will attempt to give us a defeat, at least to get complete possession of the island and the adjoining heights. General Washington has, in publick orders, assured the whole army, he intends, at every hazard, to defend the ground the army now occupies. The other opinion is, that the enemy will wait for the disbanding of our army, which takes place the last of December, and then obtain a bloodless victory by getting possession of our present works, as there may then be nobody to defend them.

We have had five French officers come to camp this week; they come from Old France, last from Philadelphia, and are in Continental pay. Two of them are Engineers. Three of them are very genteel men, and all come well recommended.

GENERAL HEATH TO COLONEL CHESTER.

King's Bridge, October 3, 1776.

As it is indispensably necessary that a disposition of the troops should be made previous to action, the following order is to be observed, in case the enemy should make an attack on this post, viz:

The advance-guard, if possible, is to prevent the enemy from landing, but if this cannot be effected, they are to fight on the retreat, disputing every spot of ground which they can to advantage, taking care to avoid being surrounded by the enemy. Colonel Hand's battalion are immediately to advance and attack the enemy in front and right flank. The piquets of the division are instantly to turn out and form. Those of General Parsons's brigade being nearest to the advance-guard, are to advance without delay. If one of the Field Officers of the piquet should be in that brigade, he is to command them. If there should be no Field Officer of the piquet there, the senior Captain of the piquet will march them to support the guard; the other piquets commanded by the Field Officers are to follow as fast as possible. The whole to be under the Brigadier-General of the day.

The line is to form immediately, General Parsons's brigade on the right, on the hill on which Colonel Prescott's regiment encamped, leaving one hundred men to man the redoubts, lines, &c. General Clinton's brigade (except Colonel Thomas's regiment, who are to take post in Fort Independence, and the lines on the east of the fort) to form on the left of the line in the road to the east of the stone bakehouse, formerly a church. General Scott's brigade, leaving one hundred men to man the lines on the hill to the right of their barracks, are to take post in the centre between General Parsons's left and Clinton's right. Colonel Sargent's brigade, with Colonel Brewer's artificers, Colonel Chester's regiment, and the two established companies of Colonel Ely's regiment, are to be a reserve, (except fifty men of Colonel Sargent's regiment, who are to be left at the redoubt of his own encampment,) and are to march at the distance of one hundred paces in the rear of the line to support such parts of the line as may stand in need of aid, or to follow such directions as may be given by the commanding officer of the division. A detachment of the Artillery, with one brass three-pounder, to march with each brigade, as far as the ground will admit of it with safety.

Colonel Ely's regiment, (except the two before-mentioned companies,) and Colonel Douglas's regiment to take post at the redoubt and works, near Colonel Ely's encampment. The Light-Horse to assemble in the road between Valentine's tavern and Williams's, (except such as may be wanted to ride express,) ten of whom, on the first alarm, will attend on the Major-General for that purpose. Each regiment is to have four good axe-men, who are to march with their fire-locks slung, each carrying an axe. A stout able-bodied man of a company is to be appointed, who with the camp colour-men and musick, are to assist the wounded men.

Should the line advance into the wood and broken ground, upon coming up with the advance-guard and piquets, the guard and piquets are to pass through the intervals between the battalions and halt, and form with the reserve. Colonel Hand's battalions will then form on the left of our line, and will endeavour if possible, to flank the enemy's right. Colonel Throop's and Colonel Smith's Militia are on the side of Harlem river, to flank the enemy's left.

This order supposes that one attack only is made, and that to the westward of the brook running down by Delancy's Mills. But if two attacks are made, and one of them should be to the eastward of that stream, Colonel Hand will send one of his battalions that way for a skirmish with the enemy through the broken ground, and General Clinton's brigade will file off to the left to support them. The Militia at Chester, Marenneck, &c., will march with all expedition to attack the enemy in flank, on that side. In this case, one of the troops of Light-Horse will repair to that quarter, from whom expresses are to be constantly riding to give intelligence of the enemy's advancing or retreating, and of their numbers as nearly as can be ascertained, to the commanding officer of the division. The best judgment of the number of the enemy before they land, may be formed from the number of boats, which all officers on the out-posts are desired to ascertain as nearly as possible, and mention in the express.

The foregoing disposition to be communicated to the Field Officers and Captains of their several regiments in the division, by their respective Brigade-Generals, by giving copies to each regiment, or in such other way as they may think proper.

W. HEATH, Major-General.

To Commandant Chester.

GENERAL JAMES CLINTON TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Fort Montgomery, October 3, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I received a letter from the Congress about the last of November, or some time in December, 1775, with an order enclosed to stop £27 11s. 2d., being expenses for taking up thirteen men of Captain Johnston's company and my regiment. But as those men were chiefly discharged, except such as listed the second time, I could not stop it out of their wages, but as they were tried by a Court-Martial, and each fined a month's pay, I stopped that from the Captain, and it was stopped out of their wages, which I intended should answer the expenses of taking them up as soon as he could get a settlement for his company. But it appears by a certificate produced to me which Captain Johnston has, which he can show you, that the Paymaster has stopped the same sum, notwithstanding I desired it might not be stopped, as I had already stopped it and was answerable for it. However, Captain Johnston should not have that sum twice stopped from him. Therefore, if it be agreeable to the Congress to order me to pay back the money to Captain Johnston, I will do it freely, as one of us must in justice return the money.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient humble servant,
JAMES CLINTON, Brigadier-General.

To the President of the Provincial Congress of the State of New-York, Fishkill.

To whom it may concern:

This may certify that Captain Robert Johnson has allowed on settlement of his account, the sum of £34 13s. 4d., New York currency, for one month's wages of thirteen men of his company who deserted and returned to their duty, which was forfeited by judgment of Court-Martial.

Witness: JOHN PIERCE, Jun., Assistant-Paymaster.
Albany, June 18th, 1776.

Fort Constitution, June 27, 1776.

I do hereby certify that I have stopped in my hands one month's pay of thirteen men in Captain Johnston's company, who deserted and was taken up, and sent back to their regiment, and was forfeited by judgment of a Court-Martial to pay the expense of taking them up, as may be seen by an order from the New-York Provincial Congress, dated November 4th, 1775, which expenses amounted to £27 11s. 2d., and must not be stopped, nor any part, from Captain Johnston, as I am answerable.

JAMES CLINTON, Col. 2d New-York.

Albany, August 12, 1776.

Mr. Turnbull cannot suffer this money to go out of his hands, without the General's orders.

WILLIAM M'KERMEN TO RICHARD PETERS.

Sopus, October 3, 1776.

SIR: I arrived here last night, after a great deal of fatigue and trouble, and was fixed upon starting this morning to Albany, with the wagons; but the Committee came to me, and told me it was very dangerous to travel by land without an enlargement of my guard to at least sixty or seventy men, with which could not supply me, and their reasons were, an express has arrived, that the Indians are breaking out on the frontiers, which has occasioned all the people to fly in the town, many of whom I have seen. Another reason of their stopping me was, that a sloop could be hired, for eighteen or twenty pounds, to carry the whole, and that it was by much the safest, and by a vast deal the cheapest way. The arguments being so strong against me, I was forced to give way, and am just going down to unload the wagons, and discharge them.

Sir, from your humble servant,

WM. McKERMEN.

To Captain Peters, Secretary at War, Philadelphia.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read October 9th; referred to Board of War.]

Albany, October 3, 1776.

SIR: Colonel Nicholson delivered me the enclosed list, which contains the rank and names of the officers of his regiment, and begs commissions may be sent for them.

If Congress has not determined that I never should be honoured with a line from them, I shall hope one acknowledging the receipt of mine of this day. I have ordered the express to wait one day for an answer, and then to return. If I do not hear from Congress on the subject of my former letter, before or by him, I shall esteem myself perfectly disengaged from attending to the duties of those offices which I have resigned.

I am, sir, respectfully, your obedient, humble servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

To the Hon. John Hancock.

Return of Officers of Colonel NICHOLSON's Regiment.

Head-Quarters before Quebeck, April 15, 1776.

As it has been necessary to make some alteration in the arrangements of the Captains and sub-officers in Colonel Nicholson's Regiment, the following is to take place:

John Nicholson, Esq., Colonel; Frederick Weissenfels, Esq., Lieutenant-Colonel—appointed in the Third Regiment Yorkers; John Visher, Esq., Major; John Brogdon, Adjutant; Israel Evans, Chaplain; Joseph Mirvin, Surgeon's Mate.

First Company: Gershom Mott, Captain; Benjamin Pelton, First Lieutenant, appointed in Third Regiment Yorkers; Isaac Nichols, Second Lieutenant; Charles F. Weissenfels, Ensign.

Second Company: Elisha Benedict, Captain; Digby Odum, First Lieutenant; Nathaniel Henry, Second Lieutenant; Francis Shaw, Ensign.

Third Company: John Graham, Captain; John G. Lansingh, First Lieutenant; Francis Brindley, Second Lieutenant; Esia Holmes, Ensign.

Fourth Company: Robert Johnston, Captain; William Martin, First Lieutenant; Thomas Nicholson, Second Lieutenant; Peter Katan, Ensign.

Fifth Company: Ezekel Cooper, Captain; Timothy Hughes, First Lieutenant; William Bellknapp, Second Lieutenant; Thomas Pennington, Ensign, a prisoner taken in Canada.

Sixth Company: Benjamin Evans, Captain; Isaac Hubbell, First Lieutenant; Thomas Maclelan, Second Lieutenant; Samuel Prebble, Ensign.

Seventh Company: Derick Hansen, Captain; William Tapp, First Lieutenant, appointed in First Regiment Yorkers; Isaac Guion, Second Lieutenant; William Blackney, Ensign.

Eighth Company: John Copp, Captain; John Brogdon, First Lieutenant; William Colbreath, Second Lieutenant; Thomas Logan, Ensign.

Approved by General Wooster, Commander-in-Chief of the Continental forces before Quebeck, as taken from Brigade-Major Blagdon's Orderly Book, by my order.

FREDERICK V. WEISSENFELS, Lieut. Col.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read October 9th; referred to Board of War.]

Albany, October 3, 1776.

SIR: I have this moment received a letter from General Gates, enclosing a copy of one from General Arnold. Copies of both I do myself the honour to enclose.

I have, in a former letter, already remarked the situation we are in respecting nails.

As active an assistant Deputy Quartermaster-General as I could procure superintends the business at Cheshire's. I shall immediately inquire of him what is become of the boards. I believe he sends them down as fast as they are sawed.

General Gates gives the reason why the road to Cheshire's is not completed. The Assistant Quartermaster has also complained; but I have no other troops to send, as there are none here that can be spared from the necessary guards, and the Canadians whom I had employed on the roads, left them, and will not do any kind of duty.

The cables are by this time arrived at Ticonderoga. They were made at Poughkeepsie, and with despatch, and forwarded without a moment's delay.

If I move Dayton's regiment from Fort Stanwix, it must be replaced by Elmore's and Nicholson's, and the Mohawk river left exposed to the incursions of the enemy. I wish it was certain that no attempt would be made by the enemy in that quarter. Whether a removal of these troops would be prudent, Congress will be able to judge from the enclosed copy of a letter from Colonel Dayton, and from the information given by one of the prisoners from Canada; and the Cayugas have even brought away our blacksmith.

The prices of the shirts and clothing sent from here I will order to be immediately transmitted to General Gates. I mentioned the extravagant price that had been paid for all these articles, in some of my former letters, and begged an abatement, in behalf of the soldiers, in a former letter to Congress. The soldiers will be ruined by the high price of the clothing.

No carpenters are to be procured here. The far greater part of the great numbers I sent up in the course of the campaign, have sickened and returned home.

On the subject of increasing our navy on Lake Champlain, I have already wrote to Congress.

The barracks ordered by the resolution of Congress of the 14th ultimo, will be built as soon as nails are sent up. Perhaps it might have been proper to have determined for what number of troops barracks should be erected.

Lieutenant-Colonel Buel came down to settle his business. As the Commissioners were not ready, I gave him leave to go to his family for a few days. He made no stay, and is already gone up. I never heard such a disadvantageous report as General Gates mentions to prevail of him. I must do him the justice to declare that it was with much entreaty that I could prevail upon him to be employed in the civil line, and that he frequently pressed me for leave to join his regiment, before I could find a proper person to relieve him at Fort George.

I am, sir, with great respect and esteem, your most obedient, humble servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

To the Hon. John Hancock.

Fort Schuyler, September 22, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: Since I had the honour of writing to you last, I have caused Thomas Mayres's conduct as a Tory to be examined into by a Court of Inquiry. The witness they collected I have enclosed. I looked upon it to be sufficient to order Mayres from this place; accordingly I sent him under guard to Colonel Elmore, requesting he would forward him to the Chairman of Tryon County Committee.

I have also sent down one Armstrong at the same time, who had repeatedly disobeyed my orders, by selling rum to the Indians and my men. The Indians he has frequently made drunk, and from one he took a gun for a gallon of rum. Yesterday the chiefs and warriors from Kanonwarohare, Hanajhsorage, Onoghquage, amounting to forty, came here in order to establish with me some sure method of speedily conveying intelligence to each other, and show their disapprobation of their men going on scouts with ours; but they very readily agreed that their men should go alone for that purpose.

In the evening, two runners came from the Castle with the war-whoop, who brought, as they said, certain intelligence of Sir John Johnson's arrival at Oswego, on Thursday last, with a large force. They say the person who brought the news to Onondaga stayed at Oswego until a number of soldiers were landed, and the cannon fired from the vessels, and then run immediately off with the news. The White Skin, chief of the Oneidas, insisted on my giving this intelligence immediately, and not looking upon it to be false, as the last accounts proved. He gave it me as his opinion that parties would soon be along the Mohawk river, and cut off all communication with our friends below. Messengers and parties from Oneida are frequently coming in, who undoubtedly expect we should find them provision. As I have not had particular directions on that head, should be glad to know the General's pleasure.

24th. This day Sconado came here from the Oneida Castle, and informs us that the vessel which was seen at Oswego several days ago, fired her guns there, went immediately off, and that she had not any soldiers on board of her. I now send Lieutenant Gifford and Ensign Thomas and two soldiers to Albany, to be examined respecting the embezzlement at Johnson Hall.

I am, dear General, your most obedient, humble servant,
ELIAS DAYTON.

To General Schuyler.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GENERAL GATES.

Albany, October 3, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Your favour of the 30th ultimo came to hand at ten this morning. The shingle nails made here are sent off as fast as they can be procured. I imagined that the boards, which are sawed at Cheshire's, were regularly sent to Skenesborough to be used there, or if not wanted, forwarded to you. Captain Varick goes up to-morrow on a visit to Tyonderoga, and will take that route.

It is really astonishing that no further advances should be made in the road to Cheshire's, but you have given the reason in your letter, and we have no men to send; part of the Yorkers are upon the road between this and Fort Edward, and the Canadians will not do any duty of any kind. The cables, I hope, are arrived before this, and all the last requisition of cordage is gone or going to-day.

I have directed Taylor and Rensselaer to transmit you the accounts. I was in hopes Congress would have ordered an abatement on the first coil, as the price is so extravagantly high; but I have not been able to obtain an answer to my request for that purpose.

Whenever the powder or any other military stores come to hand, they shall be forwarded without delay. I have sent an express to Congress with copies of your and General Arnold's letters. No carpenters are to be had here.

Lieutenant-Colonel Buel came down to settle his accounts. The Commissioners were not ready, and he had my leave of absence for a few days. He is already returned and gone up. I cannot account for the declaration you mention to be made by him. It was with reluctance that he undertook to be an Assistant Deputy Quartermaster-General, and he has repeatedly entreated me for leave to join his regiment, before I could find a person to supply his place.

I cannot think of moving Colonel Dayton's corps from Fort Stanwix. If I had any troops to spare, I would strengthen that quarter, as all my intelligence agrees that some blow is meditated. The Cayugas have already brought away our blacksmith, and the Oneida Indians, our friends, are collecting together for their better protection.

As it will be necessary for Colonel Lewis to go to Cheshire's, to see how things are carrying on there in his department, I wish him to prosecute his journey to this place, that I may give him directions which I trust he will find of service to him in conducting his business, of which he will have plenty as soon as I quit the command; for then the whole of your supplies must depend upon him and Mr. Avery.

I suppose in a few days I shall become a private citizen. You will, however, at all times command my best efforts. Adieu.

I am, dear General, your most obedient, humble servant,
PH. SCHUYLER.

To the Hon. General Gates.

COLONEL CORTLANDT TO GENERAL GATES.

Skenesborough, October 3, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: I have at present a slow intermitting fever and jaundice, occasioned by my want of exercise, (I believe,) riding, and change of air, which I formerly much accustomed myself to. And as the hurry of business is at present over at this place, I shall esteem it a great favour, if I may be permitted to take a tour down as far as Saratoga or Albany, which will take me about six or seven days. I may also have an opportunity to find out the state of the remainder of Colonel Wynkoop's regiment, and perhaps purchase some clothes or blankets for my men.

Colonel Wynkoop, I fear, will not join us in some time, as the last accounts I had from him were unfavourable.

I may perhaps find it necessary to pay the Colonel a visit, which will take me three days extraordinary. Should it be agreeable to the General, Colonel Trumbull will inform me, which will oblige, most sincerely, your obedient, humble servant,
PH. CORTLANDT.

GENERAL GATES TO GENERAL ARNOLD.

Tyonderoga, October 3, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: Last night I received your letter of the 1st instant by Lieutenant Calderwood. Captain Hawley carried with him all the seamen that were to be had here when he went from hence. Those who have been procured since, sailed yesterday in the two row-galleys under General Waterbury's command, to which were added one hundred and ten men, officers included. Besides the number you determined upon, for the full complement of each row-galley, not one of the two hundred seamen promised from New-York has yet arrived here. I now give up the hopes of seeing them for this year.

As to the equipment of the Trumbull, I am not answerable for any deficiency. General Waterbury, who had the entire management of rigging and arming the galleys, will satisfy all your questions upon that head. I know not how much cordage you wrote for in July, or whether it is yet half arrived; but this I know, that General Waterbury assured me there was not more than half the quantity necessary, and we shall have much to do to furnish the galley which came last night from Skenesborough. Not a cable yet arrived from Albany, and those here too bad for use. Captain Dow, who perfectly understands fitting of vessels, has my orders to assist Captain in getting his galley equipped with the utmost possible expedition. I am told she will sail in a week, being much better fitted when she left Skenesborough, than those who came before her from thence. Colonel Trumbull and Mr. Conductor Lane, assure me they have put every article that you demanded in your last letter, on board the Liberty schooner, except what is not to be had here; where it is not to be had, you and the princes of the earth must go unfurnished. As to any unnecessary delays made by the Captain of the Liberty, I refer you to General Waterbury. I am told the man was diligent, and that the vessels wanted more caulking than you suspected.

All the clothing we have goes in the Liberty schooner, to be delivered to your order.

I have represented to General Schuyler and to Congress, the absolute necessity of taking immediate measures to augment our fleet upon this Lake. I suppose so important a business will not be deferred or delayed.

I take it for granted you will consult with General Waterbury and Colonel Wigglesworth, and with them determine when it is proper season to retire up the Lake. I am confident your and their zeal for the publick service will not suffer you to return one moment sooner than in prudence and good conduct you ought to do it. Perhaps some station nearer Crown-Point may, about the time you mention, be proper to be taken; but this must be submitted to your better judgment in maritime affairs.

The Commissary sent, in the galleys which sailed yesterday, fourteen barrels of rum. Six more go now in the Liberty; a quantity of fresh beef and other, &c., &c., went by the same conveyance, which Mr. Yancey acquainted you with particularly by letter. If you think proper to keep the Lee gondola, or any other, to go between Ty and the fleet, we can be able to send you supplies in as ample a manner as Ty will afford.

I have read and noticed Sergeant Stiles's examination. By the enemy's building a battery for heavy cannon at river La Cole, I am inclined to suspect they are rather acting upon the defensive; but until the middle of the next month arrives, I shall not entirely give up the probability of seeing them this year.

Colonel Trumbull gave you the best account in his power of the transactions in the neighbourhood of New-York, as I have constantly done, and as I shall continue to do. Therefore, be satisfied, when you do not hear all you wish, it is because all you wish is not come to my knowledge. There is not a syllable of news, good or bad, since I wrote you yesterday. My affectionate compliments to General Waterbury and Colonel Wigglesworth, and believe me, dear General, your affectionate, humble servant,

HO. GATES.

To General Arnold.

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL TO COMMODORE HOPKINS.

Lebanon, October 3, 1776.

SIR: I wrote you day before yesterday on the plan for Naval operations, with an eye to what we had conversed upon, in relation to the same then mentioned. Last night received General Washington's letter, and one from General Lincoln. Have conversed freely with our mutual good friend, Thaddeus Burr, Esq., and desired him to communicate any of my thoughts more fully than I have time by writing. Am putting every thing forward in the best manner. Please to promote the forwarding the whale-boats, and give me intelligence as you see fit.

Sir, your obedient, humble servant,

JONATHAN TRUMBULL.

To Commodore Hopkins.

PHILIP SKENE TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

New-Haven, October 3, 1776.

SIR: I was honoured with your letter on Sunday, the 30th of September, before my matters were regulated for a march. I missed the opportunity of acknowledging the receipt of it, and that I am, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

PHILIP SKENE.

To Governour Trumbull.

GENERAL WARD TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Boston, October 3, 1776.

SIR: Several persons who were employed to purchase arms for the Continent, and received money for that purpose, have applied to me to settle their accounts, but, as I was not possessed of the receipts which they gave for the money they received, I could not settle with them.

If your Excellency inclines that I should settle those accounts, you will be pleased to forward copies of those receipts which are necessary for that purpose.

I am your Excellency's obedient, humble servant,

ARTEMAS WARD.

To General Washington.

Boston, October 3, 1776.

Yesterday was sent into this harbour, by the Columbus ship-of-war, Captain Whipple, a brig from Antigua, bound for Europe, with two hundred and fifty hogsheads of rum.

A ship from Jamaica was also sent into Cape Ann last Monday, said to have been taken by a Rhode-Island privateer.

Monday last was sent into Cape Ann, a prize ship, three-decker, from Barbadoes, bound to London, taken by Captain Coas, in the Warren. She has on board three hundred and ninety-four hogsheads sugar, one hundred and eighty puncheons rum, twenty casks indigo, seventy live tortoise, six casks tortoise shell, fifty bags cotton, some cash and plate, and a quantity mahogany.

ROBERT GORDON TO THOMAS WHITE.

Cork, Ireland, October 4, 1776.

SIR: I beg leave to send you the following information, which may be depended upon: Three American privateers sailed from Salem in July last, for the Western Islands of Madeira, to wait for the outward-bound West-Indiamen; one sailed the same time to the Straits, and two others to our Irish Channel, to intercept the linen ships; the latter carry eight guns each, and seventy-five men. I request you will lay this letter, with my humble duty, before his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant, and request a copy may be sent forward to England.

I am, sir, &c., ROBERT GORDON, Commissary.

To Thomas White, Esq.

CAPTAIN COOKE TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Ship-of-war Defence, at Sea, October 4, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I have the pleasure to inform you by Captain Brown, whom I've sent prize-master of a snow belonging to Glasgow, from the Bay of Honduras, loaded with mahogany and some logwood, bound to Cork, which we this morning made a prize of; at the same time took a sloop from St. Augustine, bound to Liverpool. She has no cargo on board, except a little indigo. Their papers, with a large packet of letters, belonging to the sloop, you'll receive per Mr. Walker, who I've made prize-master.

I'm informed by Captain Bolton, master of the snow, that he was boarded by a boat belonging to a twenty-two gun ship, the 1st of this instant, who inquired of him if the Jamaica fleet had sailed; he likewise says there was another ship of twenty-four guns, the names of neither he does not remember. We are also informed by two passengers from the sloop, that the Otter, Squires, and tender, the schooner Kinderhook, Elliss, and three small schooners, with four and six guns, are stationed off St. Augustine. The Cherokee, of six four-pounders, the Raven, of sixteen six-pounders, and the Sphinx, of twenty nine-pounders, stationed off Coxspur, in Georgia. Which is all the intelligence I have got at present.

I have the honour to be, gentlemen, your most obedient and humble servant,

GEO. COOKE.

To the honourable Council of Safety of Maryland, at Annapolis.

P. S. The two passengers above mentioned, I've sent in the sloop, and am in hopes they'll be able to give you some satisfactory intelligence.

G. C.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia, October 4, 1776.

SIR: The enclosed resolves will inform you of the steps the Congress are taking to provide for the army. They are so explicit that I need only refer your attention to them; and indeed this is all I have time to do at present. By General Mifflin, who will set out to-morrow or next day, I shall do myself the pleasure to write you fully.

I have the honour to be, with the greatest esteem, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To His Excellency General Washington.

Enclosed you have Colonel Shephard's commission. The vacancy of Colonel, in room of the late Colonel Stephenson, is ordered to be kept for Mr. Morgan, agreeable to your recommendation.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Philadelphia, October 4, 1776.

SIR: It is with the greatest pleasure I transmit the enclosed resolves, in which you will perceive that the Congress have fully expressed their sense of your past conduct, and their determination to do your character that justice which you have a right to expect from them. At the same time Congress cannot give their consent to your retiring from the army in its present situation. Such a step would give your enemies occasion to exult, as they might suppose you were induced to take it from an apprehension of the truth and reality of their charge against you. The unmerited reproaches of ignorance and mistaken zeal are infinitely over-balanced by the satisfaction arising from a conscious integrity. As long, therefore, as you can wrap yourself in your innocence, I flatter myself you will not pay so great a regard to the calumnies of your enemies as to deprive your country of any services which you may have it in your power to render her.

I have the honour to be, with the greatest esteem and respect, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To General Schuyler, Albany.

MARINE COMMITTEE TO WILLIAM BINGHAM.

Philadelphia, October 4, 1776.

SIR: You have herein a memorandum from the Commissioners of the Continental Store for sundry articles wanted for our navy. If you can send the whole or any part back by the sloop Independence, do; but if you cannot get them, send forward this list and the files to Mr. Thomas Morris, with this letter, requesting him to ship as soon as possible and charge the amount to the Secret Committee.

We are, sir, your humble servants.

To William Bingham, Esq.

JOHN ADAMS TO MRS. ADAMS.

Philadelphia, October 4, 1776.

I am seated in a large library-room, with eight gentlemen round about me, all engaged in conversation. Amidst these interruptions, how shall I make it out to write a letter?

The 1st day of October, the day appointed by the charter of Pennsylvania for the annual election of Representatives, has passed away, and two Counties only have chosen members, Bucks and Chester. The Assembly is therefore dead, and the Convention is dissolved. A new Convention is to be chosen the beginning of November. The proceedings of the late Convention are not well liked by the best of the Whigs. Their constitution is reprobated, and the oath with which they have endeavoured to prop it, by obliging every man to swear that he will not add to, or diminish from, or any way alter that constitution, before he can vote, is execrated.*

* TO THE PEOPLE OF PENNSYLVANIA: I do not mean to take up your time in pointing out the injustice, tyranny, and cruelty of several of the ordinances of the late Convention of this State, much less shall I dwell upon the absurdities and danger of their visionary Constitution. I beg your attention only to the oath which they have prescribed for us in their last ordinance, for appointing a day for the election of an Assembly. It is as follows: "I. A. B., swear (or affirm) that I never will do any act or thing prejudicial or injurious to the Constitution or Government of Pennsylvania, as established by the Convention."

We live in the age of political experiments. Among many that will fail, some, I hope, will succeed. But Pennsylvania will be divided and weakened, and rendered much less vigorous in the cause by the wretched ideas of government which prevail in the minds of many people in it.

NEW-JERSEY.

An Act to punish Traitors and Disaffected Persons.

Whereas, in the present time of danger, the safety of the people more especially requires that all persons who are so wicked as to devise the destruction of good government, or to aid or assist the enemies of the State, shall suffer condign punishment. And whereas all persons abiding within this State, and deriving protection from the laws thereof, do owe allegiance to the Government of this State, established under the authority of the people, and are to be deemed as members thereof: and all persons passing through, visiting, or making a temporary stay in this State, being entitled to the protection of the law during such passage, visitation, or temporary stay, do owe, during the same time, allegiance to this Government:

1. Be it enacted by the Council and General Assembly of this State, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That every person who is a member of, or owes allegiance to this Government as before described, and who, from and after the publication hereof, shall levy war against this State within the same, or be adherent to the King of Great Britain, or others the enemies of this State within the same, or to the enemies of the United States of North America, giving to him or them aid or comfort, or by giving to him or them advice or intelligence, either by letters, messages, words, signs, or tokens, or in any way whatsoever, or by procuring for, or furnishing to him or them any kind of provisions or warlike stores, and thereof shall be probably attainted of open deed by people of his or her condition,

In the Commonwealth of Virginia the Convention adjourned after publishing a plan of their Government, and did not ordain it to be final, till they found, by consulting their constituents in every state, that it was agreeable to them. Even by the new Constitution of Pennsylvania, no law can be proposed and passed in the same session, although that law is afterwards liable to be repealed in less than a year. But by the foregoing test a frame of Government is forced upon us without our consent, and without the interval of an adjournment to consider of it. Every man of sense in the State complains of its imperfections, and yet in order to entitle himself to the privilege of an elector, he must swear or affirm that he will never "directly" or "indirectly" expose these imperfections, or propose an amendment of them. The present situation of our affairs requires union and vigour in all our proceedings, and an uncommon degree of tenderness to the ancient prejudices and habits of the people of Pennsylvania. But alas! the Constitution of Pennsylvania excludes them all. The British Parliament held up slavery to us, but it never enacted a law to forbid our complaining of it. We are now bound to submit to a Government full of dangerous experiments, wholly unlike our former Constitution, for seven years, or forfeit the greatest privilege of a freeman—the privilege of choosing his rulers. I hope the virtue and good sense of Pennsylvania will be roused by such proceedings. The honour of the cause in which we have embarked with our sister States is at stake. The voice of the people can abrogate tyrannical frames of Government, as well as tyrannical laws. Remember, my countrymen, that slavery is a potion equally bitter, whether it comes to us through the hands of Lord North, Lord Howe, or my Lords the members of the Convention.

PHILADELPHIA, October 2, 1776.

BRUTUS.

TO BRUTUS.

SIR: You assert that the several ordinances passed by the honourable Convention, are unjust, tyrannical, and cruel, and that their frame of Government is absurd, dangerous, and visionary. I have examined both with some degree of attention, and cannot perceive what part you allude to. You will oblige much in pointing out the particulars, and assigning your reasons for thinking them such. Brutus would not have us take all he says for gospel, though he asserts it in as warm a tone as Jonas did his resentment against the Almighty for smiting his gourd. Truth and calmness will prevail over heat and error; therefore prove your assertions coolly, and it will have a much greater effect on the people of Pennsylvania than blustering noise without meaning. I call upon you to prove your assertions, or acknowledge your fault like a gentleman.

You assert, for you deaf in assertion, that the oath of allegiance prescribed in the frame of Government, amounts to swearing that we "never" will, directly nor indirectly, expose its imperfections, nor propose an amendment, though every man of sense complains of these imperfections. Passing by the artful insertion of the word "never," into your copy of the oath, which is not to be found elsewhere, I would beg your indulgence, while I show to the people whom you address, how little you regarded truth and the fact in this comment.

The Constitution of Pennsylvania consists of a Declaration of Rights and Frame of Government, each of which contains several sections. Now, an oath to the whole Constitution, is an oath to each and every particular part of it; what is true of the whole, being true of the parts composing it. Let us then apply your comment to the fact, and take the oath to any one section.

The oath applied to the second section in the Declaration of Rights shall be adjudged guilty of high treason, and be punished accordingly, saving the corruption of blood.

2. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person who is a member of this State, or owes allegiance to this Government as before described, shall, from and after the publication hereof, by any speech, writing, open deed or act, advisedly and wittingly maintain and defend the authority, jurisdiction, or power of the King or Parliament of Great Britain, heretofore claimed or used within this State, or shall attribute any such authority, jurisdiction, or power to the King or Parliament of Great Britain, the persons so offending, being duly convicted thereof, shall be punished by fine and imprisonment at the discretion of the Court, so that the fine exceed not three hundred pounds, nor the imprisonment the term of one year. And if any such offender, after such conviction as aforesaid, shall commit the said offences, or any of them, in manner and form aforesaid, and be thereof duly convicted, he or she shall be set in the pillory, and imprisoned for any term not exceeding one year.

3. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That any person who shall maliciously and advisedly revile or speak contemptuously of the Government of this State, or of the honourable Congress of the United States of America, or of the measures adopted by the said Congress, or by the Legislature of this State, or who shall maliciously and advisedly say or do any thing whatever which will encourage disaffection, or manifestly tend to raise tumults and disorders in the State, or who shall maliciously and advisedly spread such false rumours concerning the American forces, or the forces of the enemy, as will tend to alienate the affections of the people from the Government, or to terrify or discourage the good subjects of this State, or to dispose them to favour the pretensions of the enemy; every person so offending shall be punished with fine and imprisonment in manner aforesaid.

would run thus: "I do swear (or affirm) that I will be true and faithful to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania; and that I will not, directly or indirectly, do any act or thing prejudicial or injurious to the natural and unalienable right which all men have of worshipping Almighty God according to the dictates of their own consciences and understandings," &c. Does this admit of your comments?

If taken to the twelfth article of the same, which is exactly in point, it will run thus: "I do swear," &c., "that I will not, directly or indirectly, do any act or thing prejudicial or injurious to the right of the people to freedom of speech, and of writing and publishing their sentiments; nor will I restrain the freedom of the press." And so for any other article in the Declaration.

Let us try the Frame of Government, &c. Take it to the second article, and it will be as follows: "I do swear," &c., "that I will not, directly or indirectly, do any act or thing prejudicial or injurious to the supreme legislative power being vested in a House of Representatives of the freemen of the Commonwealth or State of Pennsylvania, unless it shall hereafter, on experience, be found to require improvement or stand in need of amendment, in which case I will, as the Constitution directs in the forty-seventh section of the Frame of Government, lend my aid and assistance to effect such improvement as far as is necessary for the preservation of the rights and happiness of the people." Thus let the oath be taken to any or every article of the Constitution, and it will be so far from favouring your commentary, that it enforces the very contrary.

Experience begets wisdom, and provision is made to men by experience; for it is not only expressly provided in the Constitution that every article which experience shall prove to be defective or improper, shall be improved and amended, but the declaration of its establishment runs in these remarkable words: "We, the Representatives of the freemen of Pennsylvania, met for the express purpose of framing a Government on the authority of the people only, do, by virtue of the authority vested in us by our constituents, ordain, declare, and establish the following Declaration of Rights and Frame of Government, to be the Constitution of this Commonwealth, and to remain in force forever, unaltered, except in such articles as shall hereafter on experience be found to require improvement, and which shall, by the same authority of the people, fairly delegated as this Frame of Government directs, be amended, or improved for the more effectual obtaining and securing the great end and design of all government herein before mentioned;" viz: the happiness of the people.

As well, therefore, might Brutus make his inference, as some people do, that the Convention has denied the God of the Christians, by establishing the divinity of the Scriptures of the Old and New Testament, as if there was no account of the Christian's God to be found in the Bible.

The Constitution is now formed and the Convention dissolved; the last attempt to defeat all our measures is to prevent an election. Other Conventions either resolved themselves into Assemblies, and undertook to appoint the officers of State, though not appointed for that purpose; or sat until it took place. Our Convention trusting to the virtue of their countrymen, on finishing their work dissolved themselves. Our enemies, if they could prevent an election under the new form, would gain their point, as all things must in consequence run into immediate confusion. Brutus appeals to the people, and hopes to prevail on them by misrepresentation and artifice to effect this, by making them believe that an oath which can prevent none but our enemies from voting, is arbitrary and criminal. I leave it to them to whom you appeal, to form a judgment of your principles and designs.

A FRIEND TO TRUTH AND THE PEOPLE.

4. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That any two Justices of the Peace shall, and they hereby are empowered and directed to convene, by summons or warrant, any person whatsoever, whom they shall suspect to be dangerous or disaffected to the present Government, and to tender and administer to him the oaths of abjuration and allegiance, set forth in an act entitled "An act for the security of the Government of New-Jersey," passed the 19th of September, 1776. And if any person to whom the said oath shall be tendered, shall neglect or refuse to take the same, the said Justices shall bind him over, with sufficient sureties, to appear at the next Court of General Quarter Sessions of the Peace, and to be in the meanwhile of good behaviour, and in default of sufficient sureties, or on refusal to be bound, the said Justices are hereby empowered and directed to commit such offender to close gaol, and certify the same, with the cause of commitment, under their hands and seals, to the next Court of General Quarter Sessions of the Peace, where, if such offender refuse to take the said oaths, he shall continue bound to his good behaviour, or be fined, or imprisoned, as the said Court shall deem necessary.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM HEAD-QUARTERS AT BERGEN,
DATED OCTOBER 4, 1776.

To-morrow we evacuate Bergen, a measure which will at first be condemned, and afterwards approved of. For my own part, I am sorry that the enemy should possess another inch of American ground, but prudence requires a further sacrifice. The reasons of leaving this place I take to be these: Bergen is a narrow neck of land, accessible on three sides by water, and exposed to a variety of attacks in different places at one and the same time. A large body of the enemy might infallibly take possession of the place whenever they pleased, unless we kept a stronger force than our numbers will allow. The spot itself is not an object of their arms: if they attacked, it would be to cut off those who defended it, and secure the grain and military stores. These have been removed; and when we are gone, a naked spot is all they will find. No other damage will follow, except a depression of some people's spirits, who, unacquainted with places, circumstances, and the secret reasons of such relinquishments, are apt to despond as if every thing was lost. We go to Fort Constitution as soon as we have seen the troops marched off. We shall leave a guard of observation behind us: this may prevent the enemy's discovering our removal for a day or two.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read October 8, 1776.]

Harlem, October 4, 1776.

SIR: Before I knew of the late resolutions of Congress, which you did me the honour to enclose in your letter of the 24th, and before I was favoured with the visit of your Committee, I took the liberty of giving you my sentiments on several points which seemed to me to be of importance.

I have no doubt but the Committee will make such report of the state and condition of the army as will induce Congress to believe that nothing but the most vigorous exertions can put matters upon such a footing as to give this Continent a fair prospect of success. Give me leave to say, sir, (I say it with due deference and respect, and my knowledge of the facts, added to the importance of the cause and the stake I hold in it, must justify the freedom,) that your affairs are in a more unpromising way than you seem to apprehend.

Your army, as I mentioned in my last, is upon the eve of political dissolution. True it is, you have voted a larger one in lieu of it; but the season is late, and there is a material difference between voting of battalions, and raising of men. In the latter there are more difficulties than Congress are aware of, which makes it my duty, as I have been informed of the prevailing sentiment of the army, to inform them that unless the pay of the officers, especially that of the Field Officers, is raised, the chief part of those that are worth retaining will leave the service at the expiration of the present term, as the soldiers will also, if some greater encouragement is not offered them than twenty dollars and one hundred acres of land.

Nothing less in my opinion than a suit of clothes, annually given to each non-commissioned officer and soldier, in addition to the pay and bounty, will avail; and I question whether that will do, as the enemy, from the information of one John Nash, who with six others were taken by our guards, are giving ten pounds bounty for recruits, and have got a battalion under Major Rogers nearly completed, upon Long-Island.

Nor will less pay, according to my judgment, than I have taken the liberty of mentioning in the enclosed estimate, retain such officers as we could wish to have continued. The difference per month in each battalion will amount to better than one hundred pounds; to this may be added the pay of the Staff Officers, for it is presumable that they will also require an augmentation; but being few in number, the sum will not be greatly increased by them, and consequently is a matter of no great moment; but it is a matter of no small importance to make the several offices desirable. When the pay and establishment of an officer once become objects of interested attention, the sloth, negligence, and even disobedience of orders, which at this time but too generally prevails, will be purged off; but while the service is viewed with indifference, while the officer conceives that he is rather conferring than receiving an obligation, there will be a total relaxation of all order and discipline, and every thing will move heavily on, to the great detriment of the service, and inexpressible trouble and vexation of the General.

The critical situation of our affairs at this time will justify my saying that no time is to be lost in making of fruitless experiments. An unavailing trial of a month to get an army upon the terms proposed, may render it impracticable to do it at all, and prove fatal to our cause, as I am not sure whether any rubs in the way of our enlistments, or unfavourable turn in our affairs, may not prove the means of the enemy recruiting men faster than we do. To this may be added the inextricable difficulty of forming one corps out of another, and arranging matters with any degree of order in the face of an enemy who are watching for advantages.

At Cambridge, last year, where the officers (and more than a sufficiency of them) were all upon the spot, we found it a work of such extreme difficulty to know their sentiments, each having some terms to propose, that I despaired once of getting the arrangements completed, and do suppose that at least a hundred alterations took place before matters were finally adjusted. What must it be, then, under the present regulation, where the officer is to negotiate this matter with the State he comes from, distant perhaps two or three hundred miles, some of whom, without leave or license from me, set out to make personal application the moment the resolve got to their hands? What kind of officers these are, I leave Congress to judge.

If an officer of reputation—for none others should be applied to—is asked to stay, what answer can he give, but in the first place, that he does not know whether it is at his option to do so, no provision being made in the resolution of Congress even recommendatory of this measure, consequently that it rests with the State he comes from (surrounded perhaps with a variety of applications and influenced probably by local attachments) to determine whether he can be provided for or not. In the next place, if he is an officer of merit, and knows that the State he comes from is to furnish more battalions than it at present has in the service, he will scarcely after two years' faithful services, think of continuing in the rank he now bears, when new creations are to be made, and men appointed to offices (noways superior in merit, and ignorant perhaps of service) over his head. A committee sent to the army from each State may, upon the spot, fix things with a degree of propriety and certainty, and is the only method I can see of bringing matters to a decision, with respect to the officers of the army; but what can be done in the meanwhile towards the arrangement in the country, I know not. In the one case you run the hazard of losing your officers, in the other of encountering delay, unless some method could be devised of forwarding both at the same instant.

Upon the present plan I plainly foresee an intervention of time between the old and new army, which must be filled with Militia, if to be had, with whom no man who has any regard for his own reputation can undertake to be answerable for consequences. I shall also be mistaken in my conjectures if we shall not lose the most valuable officers in this army, under the present mode of appointing them; consequently, if we have an army at all, it will be composed of materials not only entirely raw, but if uncommon pains is not taken, entirely unfit; and I see such a distrust and jealousy of military power, that the Commander-in-Chief has not an opportunity, even by recommendation, to give the least assurances of reward for the most essential services. In a word, such a cloud of perplexing circumstances appear before me, without one flattering hope, that I am thoroughly convinced, unless the most vigorous and decisive exertions are immediately adopted to remedy these evils, that the certain and absolute loss of our liberties will be the inevitable consequence, as one unhappy stroke will throw a powerful weight into the scale against us, enabling General Howe to recruit his army as fast as we shall ours, numbers being disposed, and many actually doing so already. Some of the most probable remedies, and such as experience has brought to my more immediate knowledge, I have taken the liberty to point out; the rest I beg leave to submit to the consideration of Congress.

I ask pardon for taking up so much of their time with my opinions; but I should betray the trust which they and my country have reposed in me, were I to be silent upon a matter so extremely interesting.

With the most perfect esteem, I have the honour to be their and your most obedient and most humble servant,

Go. WASHINGTON.

To the Hon. John Hancock, President of Congress.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Head-Quarters, Harlem Heights, October 4, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I last night received the favour of your letter of the 30th ultimo, and am happy that you have got the directions of Congress upon the subject of barracks, as it is high time they should be begun where they are wanted. The nails that are necessary I cannot supply.

In respect to Major Edmondston's request, I cannot consent to his coming here. You may inform him that a general exchange of prisoners is now in agitation, and when it is ready to be executed, he, no doubt, will have proper notice of it.

I am in hopes that the expedition by way of Oswego, that was talked of, is not intended, as the season begins to grow late.

The situation of our affairs here is much the same as when I last wrote, which leaves me only to add that I am, dear sir, &c.,

Go. WASHINGTON.

To Major-General Schuyler, Northern Department.

COLONEL HARRISON TO GENERAL HEATH.

Head-Quarters, Harlem Heights, October 4, 1776.

SIR: I am commanded by his Excellency to inform you that you may permit Captain Douglass, with the part of the company he has with him, to join the battalion to which he belongs, directing him, however, to apply to General Mercer for his particular orders, and a different disposition, if he should conceive it necessary.

I am, sir, your humble servant,

ROB. H. HARRISON.

To Major-General Heath.

COLONEL REED TO GENERAL HEATH.

October 4, 1776.

SIR: Captain Maroney, the late Provost-Marshal, having abdicated his office and absented himself without leave from camp, another person is appointed in his stead. As he has a horse, saddle, and bridle, belonging to the publick, and some effects belonging to prisoners, in his possession, I should be much obliged to you to have inquiry made after him, and order him either down here or to deliver up what he has. Zedwitz's cane, sword, and some other things, are in his possession.

I am, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

JOS. REED, Adjutant-General.

To Major-General Heath.

TENCH TILGHMAN TO WILLIAM DUER.

Head-Quarters, Harlem Heights, October 4, 1776.

DEAR SIR: If the enemy do not make some move soon, our materials for carrying on a correspondence will be exhausted, for I think the sum and substance of most of my letters is that things remain in statu quo. If we can keep them at that point, our business will be effectually done. General Lee may be hourly expected. I shall not be surprised to see Mifflin, who has taken a start to Philadelphia on business, return with him in his hand. You have a very just idea of Greene's importance. He is, beyond a doubt, a first rate military genius, and one in whose opinions the General places the utmost confidence. He is so near us that he can give every assistance in the way of advice, and should the enemy relinquish their plan against the Jersey side, he can also be spared to attend in time of action.

There are now five ships in the North River, opposite Greenwich. What their intentions are, cannot be descried from any thing that has yet appeared. The season for ships to leave the river and seek docks approaches fast. I suppose the men-of-war will not choose to remain in the Bay of New-York the whole winter. If we could once get rid of them, I should not value their land forces.

I am your most obedient servant,

TENCH TILGHMAN.

WILLIAM PRESCOTT.

October 4, 1776. •

COLONEL HASLET TO THOMAS RODNEY.

Camp at Mount Washington, October 4, 1776.

On Sunday, the 25th of August last, my regiment was ordered to Long-Island, in Lord Stirling's brigade, composed mostly of the Southern troops, by whom we were much caressed, and highly complimented on our appearance and dexterity in the military exercise and manoeuvres. On Tuesday, the 27th, his brigade, consisting of five regiments, and a few of Sullivan's, not exceeding five thousand men, were ordered to advance beyond the lines and repulse the enemy. To oppose this small band were seventeen thousand regulars, much better furnished with field-pieces and every other military appointment than we. Several of the regiments were broken and dispersed soon after the first onset. The Delawares and Marylanders stood firm to the last; and, after a variety of skirmishing, the Delawares drew up on the side of a hill, and stood upwards of four hours, with a firm, determined countenance, in close array, their colours flying, the enemy's artillery playing on them all the while, not daring to advance and attack them, though six times their number, and nearly surrounding them. Nor did they think of quitting their station till an express order from the General commanded their retreat through a marsh and over a creek, the only opening left, which they effected in good order, with the loss of one man drowned in passing. The Delawares alone had the honour of bringing off twenty-three prisoners.
FIFTH SERIES.—VOL. II.

I must also do Colonel Smallwood's battalion the justice to say, that the spirited attack made by them on the enemy, at the time the Delawares and themselves were retreating, greatly facilitated the escape of both. Twenty-seven of the Delawares next morning were missing. In that number were Lieutenants Stewart and Harney; the latter a prisoner, the other not yet heard of. Major Mc Donough was wounded in the knee; a ball passed through the sleeve of his coat without wounding the arm or his body. Lieutenant Anderson had a ball lodged in his throat; Lieutenant Corn a ball still in his back; they are recovered. The standard was torn with shot in Ensign Stephens's hand, who is now in his element, and a most excellent officer. Such is our fate. The Delaware battalion, officers and men, are respected throughout this army. We are now in General Mifflin's brigade, who a few days since was appointed Quartermaster-General, and by special order we encamp on the lines, near the General's house. In the retreat from Long-Island, which was conducted with great prudence, Colonels Shee, Swallowwood, Hand, and some others I do not recollect, were called into Council, and requested to take the defence of the lines upon us, while the main body of the army crossed the East River to New-York, which was accepted; and last of all crossed ourselves, thank God, in safety.

Proceedings of a Court-Martial held the 4th day of October, 1776, at MOUNT WASHINGTON, at the BLUE-BELL, for the trial of Mr. CHAMPNEY, Wagonmaster-General, arrested by Dr. MARTIN, viz:

Major Samuel F. Parker, President.

Members.

- Captain Luce,

Captain Vanclicf,

Captain Houton,

Captain G. Anderson,
- Captain Congleton,

Captain J. Anderson,

Lieutenant Pearson.

The aforesaid Mr. Champney being arrested for abusing Dr. Martin, the Court after hearing the parties, and duly examining the evidences on both sides, are of opinion that Mr. Champney is not guilty of a breach of any of the articles of war of the United States of America, and ought to be acquitted, and do therefore acquit him accordingly.

SAM'L F. PARKER, President.

I approve of the above sentence, and order Mr. Champney to be discharged from his arrest.

PHILIP V. CORTLANDT,
Colonel, acting Brigadier-General.

GENERAL HEATH TO CAPTAIN STEWART.

King's Bridge, October 4, 1776.

SIR: You will take into your custody one Justice Palmer, Mr. Read, and Mr. Underhill, now confined at the main guard, on suspicion of being unfriendly to the State of America. You are carefully to conduct them to the town of Fishkill, and deliver them to the Convention of this State. The Light-Horsemen are to return immediately. You may then proceed yourself to the Nine Partners, from whence you are to return to this place on Wednesday next.

W. HEATH, Major-General.

To Captain William Stewart.

GENERAL COURT-MARTIAL.

Proceedings of a General Court-Martial held in Major-General HEATH's Division, October 4, 1776, whereof Colonel LASHER is President.

Ensign Benjamin Snow, of Colonel Sargent's Regiment, confined by Colonel Sargent for leaving his guard when on duty, and absenting himself from camp without leave.

The prisoner pleads, "Not Guilty."

The following evidences after being sworn, deposed as follows:

Lieutenant Dustin, deposes: That Ensign Snow came to his tent, and told him that he had some friends he wanted to visit, and asked him to go with him. I asked him whether he was not on guard. He said he was, but had got an officer to take his place. We went away about three o'clock, P. M., and came back about dark. We went about two miles from camp. It was a chance whether we could hear the drums if they beat to arms in our camp.

Sergeant McInties: I was Sergeant of the guard with Ensign Snow. He told me he was going a little way, and if any thing happened, I should apply to Ensign Fisk. While the Ensign was absent the Adjutant came, and finding no officer, put one in his room. The Ensign came back about seven o'clock.

Captain Wyleys: I heard Ensign Snow ask Ensign Fisk to take the guard. He told him he was too unwell; but if any thing happened, and the Sergeant came, he would go with the Ensign. I told him he took too great—

PRISONER'S DEFENCE.

Lieutenant Wyleys: The Ensign came to Ensign Fisk, and asked him to take his place. He said he was unwell; but if any thing happened he would go to the guard. The distance from the guard-house and Ensign Fisk's tent is about seven or eight rods. It has been the practice in our regiment to take an officer's place in this manner. It was a Brigade guard.

The Court upon mature consideration, adjudge the prisoner to be not guilty of the charge laid against him, and order him to be released.

Approved:

JOHN LASHER, Presd.

NOTIFICATION TO CALL A TOWN MEETING.

To notify the freeholders of the inhabitants of this town to meet at the dwelling-house of Mr. Jonas Whitneys, on the 15th of October, current, at twelve o'clock in the afternoon:

To choose a Moderator to order said meeting to consider the contents of a letter from the Chairman of the Committee of this County, directed to the sub-Committee of this town, requesting to know the mind of this town on account of revolting from New-York.

To hear the report of Captain Whitmore from the Convention at Dorsett.

This above being requested by the Committee of this town to me, I do hereby appoint the time and place as aforesaid.

Dated at New-Marlbrough, Cumberland County, New-York, October 4th, 1776.

WILLIAM MATHER, Town Clerk.

This notification was taken from the tin of a publick house at New-Marlbrough by me. JOHN TAYLOR.

WILLIAM MILLER TO CAPTAIN OSBORNE.

Harrison Precinct, October 4, 1776.

SIR: I received an order from a Committee appointed by the Convention, for the purpose of defeating all conspiracies against the States, in which I was told that you had informed them of two companies raising; and I was ordered and empowered to call on Captain Delavan to take them. In consequence of which I wrote to Captain Delavan to hold himself in readiness, and at the same time wrote to you for further information, which to my grief and surprise I have not received.

I hereby acquaint you I have since received an order more urgent for detecting them and others, and am empowered to call out any part of the Militia to my assistance. By virtue of which order I now send to you, desiring you will advise with the bearer, who may be confided in, and will give you all the assistance in his power.

I have sent him also to Captain Delavan, with a request for him to advise and assist you in taking up all the conspirators. I would inform you that this night we are to strike below, and hope you will at the same time; and be sure to send a guard to the bridge. Our rendezvous is intended at Stephen Davenport's, in North-Castle, where you may send at any time. Your compliance with the above may do great service, and much oblige the Convention and your humble servant,

WILLIAM MILLER.

To Captain Joseph Osborn.

NEW-YORK CONVENTION TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read October 8, 1776.]

In Convention of the Representatives of the State of New-York, }
Fishkill, October 4, 1776. }

SIR: This Convention have had the pleasure of receiving information through their Delegates that a resolution has passed the honourable Congress of the United States of America, for advancing to this State one hundred thousand dollars.

They are highly sensible of this seasonable relief, which amidst a crowd of difficulties and accumulating expenses, may enable them to support the publick credit, alleviate the sufferings of their fellow-citizens, and continue their strenuous exertions in the common cause.

They have, sir, directed me to present in the most respectable terms, their thanks to the honourable Congress for this fresh instance of their confidence and regard; which I beg you will be pleased to communicate.

I have the honour to be, with the utmost regard, your most obedient, and very humble servant,

PETER R. LIVINGSTON, President.

To the Hon. John Hancock, Esq., President of the Congress of the United States of America.

COLONEL SETH WARNER TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read October 15, 1776.]

Albany, October 4, 1776.

SIR: Agreeable to directions from Congress, I have waited on the Commissioners for liquidating accounts in the Northern department, and presented them my petitions, which were referred to their consideration. To my surprise they inform me they are not instructed, and do not consider themselves authorized to act on the matter, by which means I am again disappointed of settlement of my accounts. The repeated delays I have met with are a great prejudice to the raising the new regiment for which I have orders. Some of the men who were in service the last winter's campaign are in great necessity for their pay. It is really surprising that an order interdicting my pay should be given, without any particular crime alleged or any return made to Congress of mal-conduct in me; more surprising still that I cannot be remedied at this distant day. Mr. Chase and Mr. Carroll are the persons who desired General Schuyler to give the order respecting me. They can, perhaps, explain their intentions. Let me entreat Congress that this matter may be brought to an issue, that I may be punished or acquitted for any supposed crimes, and that my people may no longer be delayed their pay which may be justly due to them, however culpable I may have been in my own conduct. Captain Hopkins and Captain Brownson beg that their petition exhibited to Congress may be referred to the Board of Commissioners, or some resolution be passed thereon, and they informed of it.

I have the honour to be, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

SETH WARNER.

To the Hon. John Hancock, Esq., President of the Continental Congress, Philadelphia.

GENERAL GATES TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Tyonderoga, October 4, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: Last night I received your letter of the 1st instant, with a copy of General Washington's letter of the 27th ult., with the paper of intelligence therein enclosed. I am convinced that paper contained such information as the enemy wished him (as he very sensibly suspects) to believe; but it is our business to act as if the intelligence was strictly true. By my last return you will clearly see one-half of this army are sick; one-third of the other half are feeble, or poorly. I can, therefore, spare no men from hence. I conclude you will, of course, comply with my request, and immediately order Colonel Dayton's regiment to Fort George. When they have done what may be expected from them there, they will be ordered to compose part of the winter garrison at this post.

Yesterday I received a letter from General Arnold, of the 1st instant. All then well with the fleet, and my apprehensions from the storm perfectly quieted.

Enclosed I send you the examination of Sergeant Stiles, lately returned from a scout towards Isle-aux-Noix. This will confirm my opinion of the impropriety of parting with any troops from hence at this critical juncture, as you may easily furnish the two hundred men wanted for winter garrison at Fort Stanwix from the troops on Mohawk river; and, as it is not possible an attack can this winter happen in that quarter, no good reason can retard the immediate march of Colonel Dayton's regiment to Fort George. I am astonished the enemy have given our army so much time to strengthen themselves at King's Bridge. I hope Howe, like many abler Generals, has missed his opportunity.

This will be delivered to you by the Rev. Mr. Gordon, a particular friend of mine, and a gentleman in whose acquaintance you will receive a singular pleasure.

I am, dear General, your most obedient, humble servant,
Ho. GATES.

To General Schuyler.

GENERAL GATES TO JOHN CARTER.

Ticonderoga, October 4, 1776.

SIR: I wrote some time ago to Major-General Schuyler, to desire he would signify to the gentlemen commissioned by the most honourable the Congress of the United States of America, for adjusting and comptrolling the accounts of the army in the Northern department, that their presence was necessary at this post. Since then I am informed that you and your brethren in office conceive you are, by your instructions, confined to the limits of Albany. I again request your presence here, and should wish you would, without further application, come to Ticonderoga. If that request is not complied with, I shall be under the necessity of acquainting Congress that their order is wanting to bring you here.

I am, sir, your most obedient, humble servant, •

Ho. GATES.

To John Carter, Esq., one of the Commissioners of Publick Accounts, at Albany.

MIDDLETOWN (CONNECTICUT) COMMITTEE.

In Committee of Inspection, Middletown, }
October 4, 1776. }

Reuben Plum appeared upon a citation and complaint before this Committee, for acting and speaking at diverse times against the liberties of America. The citation was read, to which he pleaded, "Not guilty." Many evidences were examined and heard on the matters of said citation or complaint, and the said Plum was likewise heard through, and the same being fully considered, it was fully proved, and appears:

1. That said Plum hath cursed particular members of the honourable Continental Congress, and villified and traduced the whole body.

2. That he hath not only refused to do his duty as an officer of the Militia, when commanded by his superiour officer, but discouraged others from engaging in the service of their country, and villified and imprecated mischiefs on those that did.

3. That he hath termed the resistance made by the United States of America, against tyranny and oppression,

"a damned cause," and in the bitterest terms reviled the same, and wished and prayed they may be subdued by their enemies.

4. That he hath declared himself a Tory, understanding and explaining himself to mean by said term, an enemy to the United States of America.

Whereupon it is Resolved, by this Committee, That said Reuben Plum appears to be, and is an enemy to the United Independent States of America, and that he be held up and published to the world as such. And all persons are required to break off and decline all dealings and correspondence with him.

Voted, Nemine contradicente.

A true extract from the Records.

Test: BENJAMIN HENSHAW, Clerk.

New-London, Friday, October 4, 1776.

Last Lord's day se'nnight Captain Rowe, with a party of men, landed at a place called the Old Man's, near Brookhaven, on Long-Island, in order to remove his family from Corum Main, where he met one Richard Miller, a native of East-Hampton, who had taken a commission under General Howe, and was inlisting men for the regular army, and as he was riding by Captain Rowe's door, where a sentry was placed, Miller was hailed and ordered to stop, which he refused to do, and rode the faster, and after being repeatedly called upon to stop, and he not regarding, the guard fired at him, when a ball entered his body, and he died the next morning.

Last Wednesday a prize ship from Jamaica, bound to London, was sent into port by the armed brig Defence, belonging to the State of Connecticut, commanded by Captain Seth Harding; she sailed from Montego bay in company with two hundred sail, under convoy of two men-of-war, who had parted with them and returned into port. Her cargo consists of three hundred and six hogsheads of sugar, one hundred and fifty-eight hogsheads of rum, sixteen bales of cotton, a quantity of coffee and mahogany, and has two turtle on board. She is about three hundred tons, called the John, McDonald master, was taken twelve days ago. An embargo being laid on the shipping in Jamaica, on account of the insurrection among the negroes for want of provisions, detained the above fleet, who, when they sailed, were at short allowance of provisions.

MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL TO GENERAL WARD.

Watertown, October 4, 1776.

SIR: We have received your favour of the 30th September, relative to the cannon removed from the heights on Dorchester Point. They were removed by the Committee for fortifying the harbour of Boston; and the Council, agreeable to your desire, have directed the said Committee without delay to supply the forts from which they have taken any cannon with others as good in their room. We agree with you that the heights of Dorchester are important posts, and ought not to be left destitute of proper ordnance.

The Council apprehending that it is absolutely necessary for the keeping up good order and regular discipline among the three regiments raised for the defence of this State to put them under some General officer, and being also convinced of the utility and vast importance of the troops stationed here in the pay of the Continent, and those in the pay of this State, being under one and the same direction, in order to make a regular and effectual stand against the enemy, in case of an attack in these parts, we have thought fit to put the three regiments before mentioned under your direction, and have issued an order for that purpose, a copy of which you have, enclosed. We hope this measure will be agreeable to your Honour, and that you for the service of the common cause will take these troops under your command and direction.

In the name and behalf of the Council, I am, with great respect, your most humble servant.

To Major-General Ward.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO JESSE HOLLINGSWORTH.

[No. 201.]

Annapolis, October 5, 1776.

SIR: We desire you will purchase and have ready as soon as possible, on account of this Province, nine hundred barrels of superfine flour, and twenty hogsheads tobacco. The tobacco and three hundred and fifty barrels of the flour must be put on board of the schooner Resolution, and the remainder of her cargo must be made up of the bread belonging to the Province, now at your town. We shall send you some money by the first opportunity.

We are, &c.
To Mr. Jesse Hollingsworth.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO MESSRS. LUX AND BOWLEY.
[No. 202.] Annapolis, October 5, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We have received your favour of the 1st instant; and provided you will engage to begin making the cordage for the armed vessels within ten days from this time, and will continue in that business till a sufficient quantity is supplied, we desire you will immediately come down and contract with us for it; if you cannot, be pleased to signify it to us by the first safe opportunity.

We are, &c.
To Messrs. Lux & Bowley.

PETITION TO THE CONVENTION OF MARYLAND.
The humble Petition of a majority of Captain RICHARD CHEW's Company of Militia, belonging to Colonel JOHN WEEMS's Battalion:

These humble petitioners doth petition this honourable house of Convention for a new choice of commissioned officers to serve under in the Militia, as they thinking themselves ill used by the present ones, for the reasons hereafter mentioned: First, we do complain of an unfair election for a Second Lieutenant, on Friday, the 9th day of August last: two judges being appointed to take down the votes, and one of the candidates desiring to see the poll after it was closed, was denied the sight of it, for which reason he thought himself ill used. Secondly, we can and are ready when called upon to prove our officers have been partial in regard to fines upon the people for not attending on field days, and offering to clear all their back fines, that would vote for Mr. Richard Harrison to be Second Lieutenant. And thirdly and lastly, we do complain of our Captain and Ensign speaking in publick company against the poor people in general, as you do see in Mr. Gilbert Hamilton Smith's form of deposition above mentioned.

ANNE ARUNDEL County:

This is to certify that I, Gilbert Hamilton Smith, of the County above mentioned, heard Captain Richard Chew, of the said County, say, that no poor man was entitled to a vote, and those that would insist upon voting, if he had his way, should be put to death; and I do affirm also that I heard his brother, Samuel Chew, say that a poor man was not born to freedom, but to be a drudge on earth.

GENERAL THOMPSON TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.
Philadelphia, October 5, 1776.

SIR: The wants of the prisoners being many, I procured them credit with Mr. Truman, at Quebeck, for £630 9s. 8½d. Halifax, equal to £945 14s. 6¾d. Pennsylvania currency, for which I have received the following bills and cash, viz:

	Halifax.
Colonel Green's bill for	- - - - £335 2 6½
Captain Morgan's bill for	- - - - 105 6 9½
Captain Lamb's bill for	- - - - 57 6 0½
Messrs. Nichols & Steel's bill for	- - - - 40 0 1
Doctor McKenzie, cash,	- - - - 12 3 4
Mr. Duncan, cash,	- - - - 8 13 9
Colonel Green, for the sick, (still due,)	63 3 10½
Captain McClean, cash,	- - - - 8 13 3
	£630 9 8

Colonel Green took up for the use of the sick soldiers belonging to the New-England Colonies, sundry articles amounting to £63 3s. 10½d. Halifax, which he has not included in his bill. Your Excellency will please to direct whether it is to be charged to the poor soldiers or the publick.

I have also drawn five months' pay for the officers, and three months' pay for the soldiers, belonging to the Pennsylvania and Jersey regiments, who have returned with me from Canada. I enclose the account, that stoppages may be made in the regiments to which they belong.

I have made myself liable for the goods supplied by Mr. Truman to Messrs. Meredith & Clymer, of this city, and must request that you will order the bills to be paid, that I may be released from that obligation.

I have the honour to be your Excellency's most obedient humble servant,
WM. THOMPSON.

To His Excellency General Washington, King's Bridge.

Philadelphia, October 5, 1776.

Major-General Lee is daily expected in town from the southward, on his way to the American camp, near New-York.

Monday last (September 30) arrived in this city, from the American camp at Haerlem, Brigadier-General Mifflin.

PHILADELPHIA COUNTY (PENNSYLVANIA) COMMITTEE.
Philadelphia County Committee, October 5, 1776.

The inhabitants of the County of Philadelphia are hereby acquainted that each Township in the said County is, by the allotment of the City Committee, entitled to the proportion of between nine and ten bushels of the Salt belonging to Joshua Fisher & Sons, and Joseph Shewel, at the moderate price of three shillings for the fine, and seven and sixpence for the coarse, per bushel. It is requested that the County committee-man of each township will attend at the Conestoge Wagon, on Friday, the 18th instant, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to receive the proportion allotted to his township. And it is also expected that those townships where no committee-man has hitherto been chosen, will appoint proper persons to give their attendance at the same time and place, for the like purpose. Should any township neglect applying on that day, its proportion will be divided among the rest.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GOVERNOUR HENRY.
Head-Quarters, Heights of Harlem, October 5, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Your obliging favour of the 20th ultimo came duly to hand, and demands my best acknowledgments. I congratulate you, sir, most cordially, upon your appointment to the Government, and, with no less sincerity, on your late recovery. Your correspondence will confer honour and satisfaction; and, whenever it is in my power, I shall write to you with pleasure. Our retreat from Long-Island, under the peculiar circumstances we then laboured, became an act of prudence and necessity, and the evacuation of New-York was a consequence resulting from the other. Indeed, after we discovered the enemy instead of making an attack upon the city were endeavouring (by means of their ships and superiour land force) either to intercept our retreat, by getting in our rear, or else by landing their forces between our divisions at King's Bridge and those in the town, to separate the one from the other, it became a matter of the last importance to alter the disposition of the army.

These measures, however, although of the most evident utility, have been productive of some inconvenience; the troops having become in some measure dispirited by these successive retreats, and which, I presume, has also been the case among several of our friends in the country. In order to recover that military ardour, which is of the utmost moment to an army, almost immediately on my arrival at this place I formed a design of cutting off some of the enemy's light troops, who, encouraged by their successes, had advanced to the extremity of the high ground opposite to our present encampment. To effect this salutary purpose, Colonel Knowlton and Major Leitch were detached, with parties of Riflemen and Rangers, to get in their rear, while a disposition was made as if to attack them in front. By some unhappy mistake, the fire was commenced from that quarter rather on their flank than in their rear, by which means, though the enemy were defeated and pushed off the ground, yet they had an opportunity of retreating to their main body. This piece of success, though it tended greatly to inspire our troops with confidence, has been in some measure embittered by the loss of those two brave officers, who are dead of the wounds they received in the action. Since this skirmish, excepting the affair at Montresor's Island, where Major Henly, another of our best officers, was slain, there has been nothing of any material consequence. Indeed, the advantage obtained over the enemy's light troops might have been improved, perhaps, to a considerable extent, had we been in a proper situation to have made use of this favourable crisis, but a want of confidence in the generality of the troops has prevented me from availing myself of that, and almost every other opportunity which has presented itself.

I own my fears that this must ever be the case when our dependence is placed on men inlisted for a few months, commanded by such officers as party or accident may have furnished, and on Militia, who, as soon as they are fairly fixed in the camp, are impatient to return to their own homes; and who, from an utter disregard of all discipline and restraint among themselves, are but too apt to infuse the like spirit into others. The evils of short inlistments, and employing militia to oppose against regular and well appointed troops, I strongly urged to Congress before the last army was engaged. Indeed, my own situation at Cambridge, about the close of the last campaign, furnished the most striking example of the fatal tendency of such measures. I then clearly foresaw that such an armament as we had good reason to expect would be sent against us, could be opposed only by troops inlisted during the war, and where every action would add to their experience and improvement, and of whom, if they were unsuccessful in the beginning, a reasonable hope might be entertained that in time they would become as well acquainted with their business as their enemies. This method, I am convinced, would have been attended with every good consequence; for, besides the Militia's being altogether unfit for the service when called into the field, we have discovered, from experience, they are much more expensive than any other kind of troops; and that the war could have been conducted on more moderate terms, by establishing a permanent body of forces, who were equal to every contingency, than by calling in the Militia on imminent and pressing occasions.

I would not wish to influence your judgment with respect to Militia, in the management of Indian affairs, as I am fully persuaded the inhabitants of the frontier Counties in your Colony are, from inclination as well as ability, peculiarly adapted for that kind of warfare; at the same time I should think it would be highly advisable, in case you should conceive yourselves to be in danger from any detachment from the British army, or from their marines, not to depend on any troops but such as are well officered and inlisted during the war.

I make no doubt but your State have turned their views towards forming some obstacles against the enemy's ships and tenders, who may go up your rivers in quest of provisions, or for the purpose of destroying your towns. If they have depended on batteries to prevent them, without any other obstructions, a trial of the matter has taught us to believe it will be altogether ineffectual; as, when under sail, with wind and tide in their favour, any damage they may receive from a battery will be of very little consequence. At the same time, I must observe, that this kind of opposition is exceedingly proper for the defence of a town, or in any case where it is necessary the ships should come to anchor before the batteries for the purpose of silencing them. In the first instance, I would strongly recommend row-galleys, which, if officered with brave and determined men, and conducted with prudence, would, in my opinion, be productive of the greatest advantage, and be the most likely means, in your situation, of securing your towns and houses on the navigable water from any impression of the shipping.

I imagine, before this, Congress has made you acquainted with their resolutions for raising the new army, and that your Colony is to furnish fifteen battalions, to be inlisted during the war. As this will occasion the choosing a number of new officers, I would in the most urgent manner, recommend the utmost care and circumspection in your several appointments. I do not expect that there are many experienced gentlemen now left with you, as, from what I have understood, those who have served in the last war are chiefly promoted; however, I am satisfied that the military spirit runs so high in your Colony, and that the number of applicants will be so considerable, that a very proper choice may be made; indeed, the army's being put upon such a permanent footing will be a strong inducement for them to step forth on the present interesting occasion. One circumstance in this important business ought to be cautiously guarded against, and that is, the soldier and officer being too nearly on a level. Discipline and subordination add life and vigour to military movements. The person commanded yields but a reluctant obedience to those he conceives are undeservedly made his superiours. The degress of rank are frequently transferred from civil life into the departments of the army. The true criterion to judge by (when past services do not enter into the competition) is, to consider whether the candidate for office has a just pretension to the character of a gentleman, a proper sense of honour, and some reputation to lose.

Perhaps, sir, you may be surprised at my pressing this advice so strongly as I have done in this letter; but I have felt the inconveniences resulting from a contrary principle in so sensible a manner, and this army has been so greatly enfeebled by a different line of conduct, that I hope you will readily excuse me.

I am, sir, with sincere regard, your affectionate, humble servant,

GO. WASHINGTON.

To his Excellency Patrick Henry, Esq., Governour of the State of Virginia.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read October 8, 1776.]

Head-Quarters, Heights of Harlem, October 5, 1776.

SIR: I was last night honoured with your favour of the 2d, with sundry resolutions of Congress. The officers that concurred in the acquittal of Ensign Macumber shall be called upon to assign their reasons for their first judgment, which shall be sent as soon as they are collected.

In respect to the exchange of prisoners, I fear it will be a work of great difficulty, owing to their dispersed and scattered situation throughout the States. In order to effect it, I have wrote to the Eastern Governments to have them collected, and to transmit me an account of their number, distinguishing the names and ranks of the field and commissioned officers, and the corps they belong to. I have also wrote to Governour Livingston, of the Jerseys, upon the subject, and must take the liberty of requesting Congress to give directions that a similar return may be made of those in Pennsylvania and Maryland, and for their being brought to Brunswick, that they may be ready to be exchanged for an equal number, and those of the same ranks. I observe by the resolve of the 26th ultimo, that the exchange is particularly directed to be made of the officers and soldiers taken off Long-Island. But should not that follow the exchange of those officers and men who have lately returned from Quebeck, whose imprisonment has been much longer, and whose service has not been less severe, and in many instances, conducted with great intrepidity? I have had many applications since their arrival, by which they claim a kind of preference, as far as their number and the circumstances of their rank will allow, and which I thought it my duty to mention, that I may obtain some direction upon the subject.

You will observe by a paragraph of a letter received yesterday from General Howe, a copy of which you have at length, that the non-performance of the agreement between Captain Forster and General Arnold, by which the latter stipulated for the return of an equal number of officers and prisoners in our hands for those delivered him, is considered in an unfavourable light, and entirely imputed to me, as having the chief command of the armies of the States, and a controlling power over General Arnold. The pointed manner in which Mr. Howe is pleased to express himself could not personally affect me, supposing there had been no good grounds for the treaty not being ratified, having been nothing more than an instrument for conveying to him the resolutions formed upon the subject; but as there were but too just reasons, his censure could have no weight was it not directed against me. However, I would beg leave to observe from the letters from the hostages; from what has been reported by others respecting Captain Forster's having used his endeavours to restrain the savages from exercising their wonted barbarities, though in some instances they did; his purchasing some of the prisoners for a pretty considerable premium; but above all, from the delicate nature of such treaties, and because the non-observance of them must damp the spirits of the officers who make them, and add affliction to the misfortunes of those whom necessity and the nature of the case force into captivity, to give them a sanction by a long and irksome confinement: for these reasons and many more that will readily occur, that I could wish Congress to reconsider the matter, and to carry it into execution. I am sensible the wrong was originally in their employing savages, and that whatever cruelties were committed by them should be esteemed their own acts, yet perhaps in point of policy, it may not be improper to overlook those infractions on their part, and to pursue that mode which will be most likely to render the hardships incident to war most tolerable, and the greatest benefits to the State. I have ventured to say thus much on the subject from a regard to the service, and because such gentlemen of the army as I have heard mention it, seem to wish the treaty had been ratified rather than disallowed.

Enclosed is a list of vacancies in the Third Regiment of Virginia troops, in part occasioned by the death of Major Leitch, who died of his wounds on Tuesday morning, and of the gentlemen who stand next in regimental order, and who are recommended to succeed to 'em. You will observe that Captain John Fitzgerald is said to be appointed to the duty of Major. This I have done in orders, being the eldest Captain in the regiment, and I believe an officer of unexceptionable merit, and as it was highly necessary at this time to have the corps as well and fully officered as possible. There is also a vacancy in the First Continental Battalion by the promotion of Lieutenant Clark to a majority in the Flying-Camp, which Colonel Hand has recommended William Patten to succeed, as you will perceive by his letter enclosed.

I have taken the liberty to transmit a plan for establishing a corps of Engineers, Artificers, &c., sketched out by Colonel Putnam, and which is proposed for the consideration of Congress. How far they may incline to adopt it, or whether they may choose to proceed upon such an extensive scale, they will be pleased to determine. However, I conceive it a matter well worthy of their consideration, being convinced from experience, and from the reasons suggested by Colonel Putnam, who has acted with great diligence and reputation in the business, that some establishment of the sort is highly necessary, and will be productive of the most beneficial consequences. If the proposition is approved by Congress, I am informed by good authority that there is a gentleman in Virginia, in the Colony service, John Hadler, Esq., a native of Germany, whose abilities in this way are by no means inconsiderable. I am told he was an Engineer in the army under General Stanwix, and is reputed to be of skill and ingenuity in the profession. In this capacity I do not know him myself; but am intimately acquainted with him in his private character, as a man of understanding and of good behaviour. I would submit his merit to the inquiry of Congress, and if he shall answer the report I have had of him, I make no doubt but he will be suitably provided for.

The Convention of this State have lately seized and had appraised two new ships, valued at £6,229 York currency, which they have sent down for the purpose of sinking, and obstructing the channel opposite Mount Washington. The price being high and opinions various as to the necessity of the measure, some conceiving the obstruction nearly sufficient already, and others that they would render it secure, I would wish to have the direction of Congress upon the subject by the earliest opportunity, thinking myself that if the enemy should attempt to come up, that they should be used, sooner than to hazard their passing. I must be governed by circumstances, yet hope for their sentiments before any thing is necessary to be done.

Sundry disputes having arisen of late between officers of different regiments and of the same rank, respecting the succession to such vacancies as happen from death or other causes: some suggesting that it should be in a Colonial line and governed by the priority of their commissions, others that it should be regimentally, and there being an instance now before me between the officers of the Virginia regiments, occasioned by the death of Major Leitch, it has become absolutely necessary that Congress should determine the mode by which promotions are regulated: whether colonially or by priority of commissions, or regimentally; reserving a right out of the general rule they adopt to reward for particular merit, or of withholding from office such as may not be worthy to succeed. I have only proposed two modes for their consideration, being satisfied that promotions through the line, as they are called, can never take place without producing discord, jealousy, distrust, and the most fatal consequences. In some of my letters upon the subject of promotions, and one which I had the honour of addressing the Board of War on the 30th ultimo, I advised that the mode should be rather practised than resolved on; but I am fully convinced now of the necessity of settling it in one of the two ways I have taken the liberty to point out, and under the restrictions I have mentioned, or the disputes and applicants will be endless, and attended with great inconvenience.

I have the honour to be, with great esteem, sir, your most obedient servant,

GO. WASHINGTON.

Perth-Amboy, September 16, 1776.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY: By a commission dated the 14th of this instant, which I have received from the Convention of the State of Pennsylvania, am appointed a Major in the Second Battalion whereof Richard McCaltster, Esq., is Colonel, in the Flying-Camp. Therefore beg leave to resign my commission as Lieutenant, and hope it will be agreeable that some other person be appointed in my stead.

I am your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,
JNO. CLARK, JUN.,

Lieutenant in First Continental Regiment.

To his Excellency George Washington, Esq., Commander-in-Chief of the United Forces in America.

SIR: I beg leave to recommend Mr. William Patten to succeed to the Third Lieutenantcy, vacant in my regiment by the promotion of Lieutenant Clark.

I am, sir, with much respect, your Excellency's most obedient servant,

EDWARD HAND.

To his Excellency the Commander-in-Chief.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY: The following establishment of artificers, &c., are in proportion to the eighty-eight battalions of Infantry as one company to five and a half battalions, which I think is as small a proportion as will answer the ends proposed. The battalions in general may give fifty each for the works; the miners and sappers are in proportion to these nearly as one to ten. The carpenters will not exceed, if we are to consider they have in charge the making of platforms, chevaux-de-frise gates, guard-houses, ordnance stores and barracks within the fortifications or necessary for the garrison of each place, and many other things in the Engineer department. I have had no regard to carriages, beds, boxes, and other matters belonging to the Artillery; nor wagons or other carriages belonging to the Quartermaster's Department or barracks for the quartering of troops in general, nor any stores for the Commissary (except for the different fortresses, these only come within the Engineer department.) However, if the carpenters are thought to exceed, there may be a part of them attached to the Artillery, and the same with regard to smiths, and they may also be employed in any other department, when the fortifications do not require their labour. For my own part I should rather choose to increase their number than lessen them some; if the service does not require their labour they are not to be paid more than other troops, and subject to like duty.

I am, sir, your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,

RUFUS PUTNAM.

October 3, 1776.

GENERAL SIR WILLIAM HOWE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Head-Quarters, York-Island, October 4, 1776.

SIR: Having heard, by report, of Governour Browne's vicinity in Connecticut, I have been in daily expectation of his arrival for the exchange of Lord Stirling; but as the Governour is not in the military line, and as I proposed the exchange to gratify your desire for the return of Lord Stirling, whose services would take place with you some days sooner were I to comply with your request for his immediate dismission, you will excuse my detaining his Lordship until the arrival of Governour Browne.

With relation to the non-performance on your part of the agreement between Captain Forster and General Arnold, that General being immediately under your command, from your situation made known to me by your own subscription, it rests with you to see them fulfilled, agreeable to the plighted faith of the General, which, no doubt, to save his honour, he has a right to expect; or that you will return the prisoners given up by Captain Forster. In the meanwhile I trust, from the declaration in yours of the 23d last past, that you will not allow of any delay in the exchange of the officers and soldiers in your possession belonging to his Majesty's troops.

Brigadier-General Woodhull was yesterday reported to me to have died of his wounds.

The enclosed note from Mrs. De Lancey I have taken the liberty of sending for your determination upon the contents.

I am with due respect, sir, your most obedient servant,
W. Howe.

To General Washington, &c., &c.

Mrs. De Lancey's compliments to General Washington; is concerned, that she is obliged to be troublesome to him, but hopes an appeal to his feelings will convince him that her case deserves some attention. Some regard is surely due to a woman, who without the smallest influence on publick affairs, feels deeply for the distresses of her country, and who has been so great a sharer in its calamities.

Some time before the British troops landed on Long-Island, Mrs. De Lancey came on a visit to her father. His illness, and the unhappy situation of affairs, obliged her to prolong her stay beyond the time she intended. Her daughters and herself being in want of clothes, she sent a servant with a note to General Mifflin, (who she heard was commanding officer at West-Chester,) requesting the favour to allow of safe conveyance for some necessary apparel. The servant was seized and confined, and no answer returned. Since that the death of her father (the Lieutenant Governour) and the fire at New-York, has destroyed much the greatest part of her property there, makes her anxious to return to West-Chester, to try if she can yet preserve what she has in that place. What she has to request of General Washington is, that he would be so obliging as to inform her whether she and her daughter may be permitted to return home; and if so, that he would be so kind as to order them a safe conduct. If this cannot be, may she not hope that he will take some method to prevent the destruction of her property.

Spring-Hill on Long-Island, October 1, 1776.

To General Washington.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GENERAL JAMES CLINTON.

Head-Quarters, on Harlem Heights, October 5, 1776.

SIR: Your letter of the 1st instant, enclosing one from the Committee of New-Windsor and a deposition against Mr. Conner, is duly received. They say the butter was intended for this army. I would therefore advise its being immediately sent to Colonel Trumbull, Commissary-General, who will pay the current price. This step cannot but be agreeable to Mr. Conner, if he is innocent of the charge; if otherways, will be secured from going to the enemy. The Committee should take upon them the further examination of Conner and Montgomery, and deal with them according to their crimes. If found guilty, the same steps ought to be taken in regard to the flour you mention to be in store at New-Windsor.

In respect to intrenching tools, much time elapses in sending them from here. Besides, we have not more than are wanted for present use. You must apply to the several Committees in the country, or send an officer to pick up such a number as may be necessary. For the amount, you may draw on the Quartermaster-General.

I am, sir, &c.,

GO. WASHINGTON.

To Brigadier-General James Clinton, Fort Montgomery.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GOVERNOUR LIVINGSTON.

Head-Quarters, Harlem Heights, October 5, 1776.

SIR: The Congress having directed me, by a resolve of the 26th September, to procure, as soon as possible, an exchange of the officers and soldiers taken on Long-Island, for the same number of British officers and privates now in the United States, it becomes necessary for me to be informed of the numbers and ranks of the prisoners in the different States, in order to carry the same into execution. You will therefore oblige me by having made out and transmitted to me an exact return of the number of officers in New-Jersey, their ranks, names, and the corps to which they belong. The numbers of the non-commissioned officers and privates, without their names, will be sufficient. They should also be collected from the different places where they are stationed, and brought together to some convenient place, (Brunswick, I should think,) from whence they may be sent to General Howe, when the cartel is fully settled.

I am, sir, your most obedient servant,

GO. WASHINGTON.

To His Excellency William Livingston, Esq., Governour of the State of New-Jersey.

COLONEL REED TO GENERAL BEALL.

Head-Quarters, October 5, 1776.

SIR: The General being so much engaged in other business that he cannot finish the observations he proposed to lay before the Court-Martial, on the trial and sentence of Captain Weisner, has directed me to request the Court to reconsider the matter, and to remark that the discretionary power of the Court seems to have been exercised rather from some motive of compassion than any circumstance appearing on the face of the proceedings. He would therefore wish the Court to point out the circumstances which have induced them to mitigate a sentence which seems to have been generally expected by the army.

Had the Court, upon the contrariety of evidence, acquitted the prisoner, the General apprehends the same consequences would not have remitted to the publick, and he should have acquiesced in the opinion, though it differed from his own. But to convict an officer of the crime of cowardice, and in a case where the enterprise failed on that account, where several brave men fell because they were unsupported, and to impose a less punishment than death, he is very apprehensive will discourage both officers and men, and render it, hereafter, difficult, if not impossible, to make an exemplary punishment, and especially in the case of a common soldier, who will suppose distinctions are made by officers in the case of an officer.

I have laid before you, as near as I can recollect, the General's sentiments and directions, and enclose you the proceedings; and am, respectfully, sir, your obedient, humble servant,

JOS. REED, Adjutant-General.

To Brigadier-General Rezin Beall, President of General Court-Martial.

GENERAL BEALL TO COLONEL JOSEPH REED.

Camp near Head-Quarters, October 6, 1776.

SIR: This Court-Martial, with equal surprise and concern, considered your letter which contains his Excellency's remarks on the opinion of the Court in the trial of Captain Weisner.

We flatter ourselves the following observations will justify the Court in the opinion of his Excellency or the publick, and at the same time discover their feelings, as well as the impropriety of a reëxamination of the matter, as his Excellency's sentiments that the Court so far deviated from their duty (when under the most solemn ties) as to exercise a discretionary power, rather from motives of compassion than from any circumstance appearing on the face of the proceedings.

As no new testimony is mentioned to be offered to the Court, they conceive the judgment they have given in the case consistent with their duty as officers and the rules for the government of the army.

You, sir, must be sensible of the very great diversity between written evidence and that given viva voce. The manner, the behaviour, and a number of circumstances in the conduct of a witness, which may enforce credit, doubt, or discredit, before a Court, cannot possibly be reduced to writing, so as to enable a reader to judge with any degree of certainty or precision. Upon those principles, we contend we are the best, the sole judges.

If his Excellency is of opinion, from the written testimony, that the miscarriage of that unfortunate enterprise was owing principally to Captain Weisner's misbehaviour before the enemy, it far exceeds the amount of the evidence in the minds of the Court.

The only evidence which stands uncontradicted is that relative to the prisoner's conduct before the firing from the enemy began; and here the testimony of some of the witnesses suffered much, in point of credibility, by their after-testimony. On this ground the Court proceeded in finding the prisoner guilty under the seventeenth of the articles of war, where a species of cowardice is plainly implied different from that in the twenty-seventh. His life was in question on this article. The testimony was contradictory. On the part of the States, the witnesses produced were considered interested. Their lives, in some measure, were at stake. Throwing the fault on some one or more persons might be essential to their own justification and preservation.

TENCH TILGHMAN TO WILLIAM DUER.

Head-Quarters, Harlem Heights, October 5, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Marsh shall be immediately sent up to you, and I hope he will answer the end proposed.

We sent down a party last night, to bring off a parcel of boards from Harlem, which they effected. The enemy, I fancy, think we have got more than our share from that town, for they this morning sent a small party over and took possession. They have been throwing up a breast-work to-day; but we must try to drive them away to-night.

I hope you will succeed in apprehending Palmer. We have done nothing yet with the persons apprehended in company with Marsh; nor can we, till he returns to give evidence.

I am, sir, your most obedient servant,

TENCH TILGHMAN.

To William Duer, Esq., Fishkills.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM COLONEL JOHN HASLETT TO GENERAL CÉSAR RODNEY, DATED CAMP NEAR MOUNT WASHINGTON, OCTOBER 5, 1776.

SIR: I know you have already sacrificed a large share of private property to the evil and unthankful. In this you resemble the Supreme Manager, who makes his sun to shine on the evil and the good, and, bad as times are, you have a few friends still of the latter character. And, my dear sir, who can better afford it? Providence has blessed you with a fortune to your prudence inexhaustible, by which you are enabled to live where you please, and to keep the first company where you do live, and all this with few drawbacks upon it. How, then, can you lay out a part of it to more noble purposes than in serving your country, guarding her rights and privileges, and forcing wretches to be unhappy against their will? In this you will act as an agent of the sovereign goodness, and coöperate with Heaven to save a wretched race; and though you may not effect the righteous purpose, the testimony of an approving conscience, the applause of conscious virtue, and the approbation of all good beings, will more than balance the sacrifice. A thousand things might be urged to the same purpose. But a word to the wise.

GENERAL HEATH TO CAPTAIN PAIN.

King's Bridge, October 5, 1776.

SIR: Being informed that one Samuel Smith, of Poughkeepsie, has lately come from Long-Island and gone to that place, and it is suspected that he may have intentions prejudicial to the interest of the States of America; and being also informed that your health is such as to render you unable to do duty in camp at present, would therefore have you immediately proceed to Poughkeepsie, and, if possible, apprehend the said Samuel Smith, and convey him here for examination. You will take care to search his pockets for inlisting papers. You will also take the advice of the Committee, and ask their aid if needful.

I am, sir, yours, &c.,

W. HEATH.

To Captain Brenton Pain.
