MR. JOHN FLEMING, TORONTO:

DEAR SIR,—I beg to advise you of the complete satisfaction I have experienced in the use of your Improved Stereotype Apparatus. It works admirably and I consider it the most valuable and useful addition that could possibly be made to any Printing Office for the amount of money it costs.

Yours very truly,
JOHN H. VIVIAN.

COOKSTOWN.

MR. JOHN FLEMING, TORONTO :

Compared with other Stereotype Apparatus there is none equal to the one you have sent me for economy, requiring but one fire for all the work, its completeness cannot be overrated. No Printing Office can be complete without it. It is a great auxiliary to our Jobbing Department.

WM. COLVILLE.

EXTRACT from a report in the "North British Daily Mail,"
Jan. 3, 1866, on Electro-Depositing and Stereotyping.

"The first of these branches has as yet only a limited development in Glasgow and in Scotland, and is in a great measure confined to the pictorial illustration of books and typography.

"In these departments, however, it is not too much to say that the work done in this city, is unsurpassed in the United Kingdom, and only rarely equalled. One well known printing firm in this locality, executes Electrotpe work for London Printing Houses, and yet it is in London and Birmingham where electro-deposition of another kind is carried on in the greatest scale and perfection above anywhere in the whole world.

"Mr. FLEMING, the Electro-Depositor for WILLIAM MACKENZIE, Esq., Publisher, displays an admirable and highly illustrative set of twelve specimens relating to its history and its application to bookwork.

In the arrangement of his specimens, he begins with the process of Stereotyping with the stucco matrix and cast therefrom, then comes the papier mache process, and a plate therefrom, followed by the electro-mould and the plate of copper deposit. In a second row in the same glass case appear the matrix, the mould, the electrotpe, and the printed copy from it without the intervention of stereotyping at all.

"Last of all comes the highest feat of the art in this connection where there is shown a most delicate impression on a gutta-percha mould from a large engraved steel plate with a proof copy clear and distinct, the subject being the departure out of Egypt.

"The beauty and perfection of this reverse of the steel plate in gutta-percha can best be realized by the aid of a lens to assist the sight."
