WILLIAM BARKER, ESQUIRE,

Mayor of the City of London, &c.:

SIR,—Your watchful and untiring exertions for the welfare of the city in which you have risen to the distinguished position of chief magistrate, points you out as the person to whom this feeble testimony of my efforts for the benefit of the citizens should be submitted.

The want of a CITY DIRECTORY having been generally acknowledged, I hazarded the experiment; and I beg to offer these pages as the result of my humble endeavors to supply the deficiency, which many were more willing to suffer as an inconvenience than to attempt the remedy; and, although the work is not without its imperfections, I am hopeful that few serious inaccuracies or omissions, will be found to lessen its utility as a Household Directory, or as a General Business Reference.

Being a novice at Book Making, I seek no credit for the undertaking, which involves more labor than skill; but shall be content to avoid censure if my efforts have failed to meet public expectation. The task which I have imposed upon myself has not been a sinecure—nor am I certain of a return equal to the labor and outlay attending it—but if the city shall progress with even less rapidity than it has done, I look forward to an early occasion for revising and improving upon the first Directory published in London.

I am, Sir,

Your obedient servant,

GEO. RAILTON.

LONDON, August, 1856.

PREFACE.

BEFORE undertaking this work, the Compiler was aware that many difficulties would present themselves, and in this he has not been deceived; but he did not anticipate any hesitation on the part of the citizens to support an enterprize which, if successfully carried out, will aid in establishing this city as a place worthy the name which its rapid growth and progress has acquired; neither did he expect that any business men would withhold their advertising support, but would cheerfully contribute towards making the DIRECTORY an evidence of the stability, wealth and enterprise of which London has reason to be proud. Many, however, have withheld their support, either by subscribing for the book or advertising in it; and although some, who stubbornly refused to do either, have since "seen the error of their ways," and have done both; yet the absence of considerable advertising patronage, which ought to have been given, will account, in some measure, for the delay in publication; for being anxious to obtain the approval and support of the citizens in general, and of the advertising public in particular, I have not been remiss in calling to solicit their patronage; and, while I am thankful for the encouragement which has been given, I must at the same time apologise to those whom I may have offended by frequent asking, assuring them that my solicitations were intended rather for their benefit than my own; and the zeal of the Canvasser, may be excused by the perseverance of the Compiler, to render the result of his labors more acceptable and more complete, save him from the charge of apathy or neglect — which, I trust, is unmerited — and shield his non-supporters from the odium of having discountenanced, and refused to support, the first DIRECTORY published in and for the city of London.

The design of a local DIRECTORY and its general utility are so well understood, that nothing need be said upon the subject, but it is much to be feared that the duty of the public to assist the Compiler is not so clearly apprehended; and, therefore, a word or two may not be inappropriate. The mere publication of the citizens names, in alphabetical order, would fail to convey to the world an adequate idea of the nature and extent of our industrial pursuits—our resources—our commercial status—our local calibre—and hence the necessity for publishing our Business Cards, or whatever may be descriptive of our varied occupations, which is the legitimate information for a DIRECTORY, and its pages the proper place for them. The DIRECTORY of any rising town, although but an evidence of local prosperity, is not confined to mere local circulation, but finds its way as an artery of civilization into the very heart of Commercial Enterprise. The natural consequence is an examination of the merits and pretensions of its people, by the citizens of the world—a trial of their strength—a test of their principles and character—and these, being “found worthy,” open new fields of labor wherein to exert their energies and capital; their business, relations increase, their reputation becomes established, new branches of industry spring up; and thus it is that the obscure village expands itself into the bustling town whose ambition does not stop short of the pre-eminence of a city. When strangers, therefore, visit London—which, less than a quarter of a century, has changed from the den of the wolf, into a city numbering over 16,000 souls—they look for the DIRECTORY as the most ready means to afford the best information of our actual condition. They expect to find therein the cards or advertisements, so called, of all our business men—of men of enterprise at least—and the advantage of advertising is thus realised, to him who advertises, over him who advertises not. Many respectable establishments, whose insignificant beginning would not have justified a prediction beyond the merest struggle for existence, have enriched themselves by advertising; and some doubtless have amassed wealth who did not advertise—but if they did so, in times of less competition than these, they cannot fail to see the numerous inroads that new settlers are making to acquire a “local habitation and a name;” and who do acquire it, by the very means which the older settler had not seen fit to adopt, and which, however conscious he may be of its beneficial tendency to others, he nevertheless declines to encourage in himself.

However much some people may be opposed to advertising, and who boast of never having done so, they have nevertheless practised it, and continue to do it—although they will not support a DIRECTORY,—because the very sign board, the exposure of their merchandise at their doors, or on the streets, the sticking up of huge posters, or the circulation of handbills, are all advertisements, in their way, to attract attention and extend their business, thereby acknowledging the principle that ADVERTISING IS BENEFICIAL AND MUST BE DONE; but ask these men to support an undertaking like the present—which is for the convenience and benefit of the public at large—and then the physiognomist has a picture awfully descriptive of extreme parsimony, which not even the half-souled smile can disguise, nor the blandishments of duplicity wipe away. The truth is, that I have met with but few instances, where the cost of the advertisement was not the real objection to advertising; and I rather admired the candor of those who frankly declared they “could not afford it;” but as some pretended that the price was no object, but the principle of advertising,—or rather the principle of deviating from their established rule,—was bad; and delicately insinuated that they would rather give the amount to have their cards omitted; my offer to accommodate them in that respect, and apply the “donation” to a charitable purpose, was NOT ACCEPTED!

Had not the Compiler been resolute in his exertions to “win over” the bulk of the advertising community, to the exercise of some philanthropy, beyond a mere sense of pecuniary mammon, this attempt would have proved a failure; but to their credit be it said, several contributed voluntarily, from a thorough conviction of its importance, and the necessity for aiding an enterprise, which every village should seek to promote, which every town should possess, and which no city can dispense with.

The Compiler has not been sparing of exertion to render this publication as full and complete as possible; but, notwithstanding the utmost care in the noting of names and addresses, typographical errors have crept in, so that the names are in a few cases wrongly spelled; and, in some instances, also the address wrongly stated; but the latter most generally arises from changes since the taking of the information, and it would be impossible almost to keep track of all the various movements since publication was resolved upon. Neither has he in all cases omitted the names of those who may have since left, animo remanendi; but very little trouble will be found in tracing the residents sought for. The map of the city and the Street Directory will be found of great utility to the stranger; and the reader is respectfully referred to the classification of trades and professions, which forms a useful index to the advertisements at the end of the work. The enterprising men of business therein enumerated cannot fail to reap a rich remuneration from the prominent means which they have adopted to give permanent and extensive publicity to their varied pursuits; and to them as well as the officers of different institutions, &c., and citizens who have afforded the Compiler any facilities, the publisher is extremely grateful.

Should this effort meet with public favor, the Compiler purposes to correct, improve and enlarge, in the beginning of 1858, and to publish annually thereafter; and if he cannot much reduce the price of the book, nor suffer material abatement upon the cost of advertising, he will be enabled at all events, from the advancement of the city, to give more for the money.

POSTSCRIPT.

FINDING that the matter already "set up" has over-run the space in which he had hoped to convey more extended information, particularly of a statistical character, the Publisher is reluctantly compelled to omit several papers prepared from notes kindly furnished by the Clerk of the Peace, City Clerk, City Chamberlain, &c.—to whom I tender my best thanks,—and some account of the many extensive works erected and in progress in and about the city, comprising Railroads, Machine Shops, Potteries, Brick Yards, Mills, Breweries, Distilleries, &c.—the proprietors of which will, no doubt, feel disappointment that I have not used the information so kindly supplied.—has been unavoidably shut out from the same cause. Promised information, too, has, in some cases, not come to hand, and that which was unexpected having come late, a copious Index will serve to direct the reader to any matter which may appear out of its proper order.

The Book and all its etceteras has cost considerable labor and expense; and, no doubt, its imperfections will be more readily condemned than excused, but it must be borne in mind that a FIRST DIRECTORY, more so than any other primary publication, is more liable to error than any subsequent edition; and, having entered upon it "unaided and alone," I had to contend with the inexperience of a novitiate, besides the indifference of the public, to encourage that which some were pleased to call a useless undertaking; because, forsooth, they "knew everybody" and that "everybody knew them." Numberless objections, and evasive answers, were urged by householders, (fearing additional burdens by taxation,) so that the mere gathering of the names was extremely tedious; and, after these obstacles were overcome, fresh "trials and difficulties" were met with in the Printing, which is not to be wondered at in getting out a book of 300 pages, perhaps the largest job of the kind executed in London; but I was determined, at some sacrifice to myself, to ENCOURAGE HOME TRADE rather than get the job executed out of the City, even at a much less price. I believe that the Printing, the Paper, and the toute ensemble is creditable to the "ATLAS" Office; and, for my own part, I shall be pleased to escape a loss by the transaction if the undertaking shall prove in any way useful to the community.

Having been most kindly furnished by several publishers in Canada and the United States, with copies of their voluminous Directories for last and the present year, I take pleasure in acknowledging their courtesy, and will be glad to exchange with any other cities disposed to reciprocate such fraternal intercourse. Much good may arise from it; and a Directory Office, where may be seen a record of the citizens and leading business men of large commercial cities cannot fail to be an acquisition wherever established. With this desirable end in view, the compiler will give free circulation to his Directory in towns far and near, so that London may become closer identified with neighboring enterprise & no doubt the quid pro quo will realized in kind. Already has good resulted, from it—for on a recent visit to Detroit, the manager of a large concern who had heard of London merely, and who looked upon it as only a swamp village, intimated that his partner did business "on the other side," but had not penetrated any farther into the interior than Chatham. Upon my recommendation, he came hither in propria persona, and enlarged his business by some hundreds of dollars. So much for the Directory.

May London continue to realize all the benefits and blessings which may be expected to result from the motto of the City arms :—"LABORE ET PERSEVERANTIA."

The school is divided into five male and five female departments, classified according to the proficiency of pupils. The course of instruction, besides the ordinary branches, embraces mathematics, natural philosophy, astronomy and history.

The classical department comprises Greek, Latin and French; and the introduction of chemistry will take place after the present holidays.

There is also a branch school in the North Ward.

The courtesy of the Principal enables the Compiler to furnish the following registry of pupils during this quarter, thus:

UNION.

Registered, ..... 1095.
Average attendance, 729.

WARD NO. 7.

Registered, ..... 290.
Average attendance, 144.

Upwards of 1,800 scholars were educated last year, and the average attendance was 726. The system of common school education derives its support from a general tax upon freehold estate; and, while its growing success is the best proof of the soundness of the principles upon which is based, the progress of the pupils, as shown by last examination, affords satisfactory evidence of the skill and competency of the teachers.

COLONIAL CHURCH SOCIETY SCHOOL.

ARTILLERY BARRACKS.

Chief of the Mission, Rev. Mr. Dillon,
Principal of the School, R. M. Ballantyne,
Teacher of Girls, Miss Williams,
Infant Teachers, Misses Mary Anne & Sarah Titre.

Number of Scholars, from 450 to 500. Hours of attendance from 9 to 3 o'clock.

The principles of the School combine religious and secular instruction without sectarianism, and the mode of instruction is the "Glasgow training system."

Pupils are received from three to sixteen years of age, and the fees of tuition are one dollar per quarter, without regard to age, which goes to keep up the school stock.

The school premises are extensive, airy, and in a most healthful locality. Besides a lending library, exceeding 500 vols., there is a portable museum of natural substances, illustrative of the imports, exports, productions and manufactures of Great Britain and the colonies; and the gentlemanly and pains-taking Principal gives a cordial welcome to visitors during the class hours—keeping off Monday, if possible.

BOOK AND JOB PRINTING OFFICE!

The Proprietors of the Atlas Office would inform the public that their facilities for the execution of Book and Job Printing are as complete as those of any establishment in this part of the Province. In the Line, we have reason to believe that we have more material necessary in that branch of the business than any establishment west of Toronto. It was, previous to the establishment of our office in this City, found necessary to take all Books of any magnitude to Buffalo or Toronto to get them printed. We would, therefore, respectfully invite parties who intend publishing books to give us a call. As to our capability of turning them out in good style, we would merely refer them to this Directory of the City of London, which will compare favorably with any book ever issued in the Province.

A BY-LAW,

WHEREAS it is necessary, by a By-Law, to enact certain regulations and laws for the general government of the Town of London, the several By-Laws now in force being deemed insufficient and in some respects inapplicable to the wants and condition of the inhabitants.

Now be it therefore enacted by the Town Council of the Town of London, in Council assembled, under and by virtue of the act of the Parliament of this Province, entitled "An Act to provide by one general law, for the erection of Municipal Corporations and the establishment of regulations of Police in and for the several Counties, Cities, Towns, Townships and Villages in Upper Canada."

47. No standing rule or order of the council shall be suspended, except by a vote of two-thirds of the members present.

48. 54. That in all unprovided cases in the proceedings of council or in committee, resort shall be had to the law of Parliament as the rule for guidance on the question, and in such case the decision of the Mayor or presiding officer shall be final, and acquiesced in without debate.

55. In the absence of the Mayor, one of the Aldermen or Councilmen present shall be chosen to preside, and shall take the chair, and preside for the meeting only at which he has been chosen.

56. No motion shall be considered as carried unless a majority of the council present shall consent thereto.

57. In making appointments to office, when there shall be more than two applicants, the motion shall be put so that each

These Associations—based on popular principles—have met with unprecedented success. In the short space of three years, more than 31,000 Policies have been issued in the Fire Department—insuring upwards of £20,000,000 sterling. The Life Department has been equally successful. The Directors, with confidence, direct attention to the

ADVANTAGES TO ASSURERS IN THE UNITY FIRE.

A participation in two-thirds of the Profits. No charge for Policies.

Among many other advantages to Assurers in the Unity Life—Policies need NEVER BE FORFEITED, as, after payment of five years' premiums, the Directors will, at any time, give the assurer a "paid up" Policy for the amount he may have paid—securing that sum to his representatives at death. Thus, supposing a person, aged 40, to have assured for £1,000, with profits, for the whole term of life, and paid five years' premiums, he would, under such circumstances, have paid the sum of £113, 2s. 6d. Should he desire, then, to drop the assurance, or be compelled to do so, he could receive a "paid up" Policy for a like amount. This would be an absolute and indisputable reversion, payable to his representatives after death.

BOARD AND EDUCATION !

CARADOC ACADEMY

ESTABLISHED 1832.

THE Principal of this Institution, in tendering his grateful acknowledgements for the very flattering support he has received for so many years in which he has had the honor of training numbers of fine youths, most of whom are now filling situations of trust and respectability in many parts of the Province, would intimate that it is his intention, with the view of increasing the efficiency and at the same time facilitating the enforcement of the RULES OF THE SCHOOL, very materially to reduce the number of his pupils. Instead, therefore of ranging from fifty to sixty, as of late has generally been the case, not more than from 30 to 40 pupils will be desired; but as the reduction cannot be made instantly, no fresh applications will be entertained until the present number attending school be reduced within that limit; and he, therefore, respectfully requests parents and guardians intending to withdraw their children, to intimate the same by letter, that he may regulate himself accordingly.
